HAWAI'I LOA COLLEGE
Announces a New Program of PACIFIC STUDIES

Hawai'i Loa College introduces a new Pacific Studies Program at the undergraduate level. Using an interdisciplinary approach with roots in the American liberal arts tradition, the program provides students with a broad understanding of the Pacific region, its culture, environment, arts and history.

The Pacific Studies major requires completion of the liberal arts core, two years of a Pacific related language, and four Pacific oriented courses providing an overview of the region. Students must then specialize in one of three areas: Island Cultures, Development Systems, or Natural Environment. A minor is also available.
