

HOW STARCH IS MADE.

FROM THE CORN-SHELLER TO THE PACKAGE IN PAPER.

Six days in hot water—Separation of Starch and Gluten—in the Agitator Wells—Mould Boxes—Washed Up—

(Indianapolis Special.)

Near the east side of the main building are the large vats for the reception of the maize feed, and a little further southeast are the large vats—two in number, 13 by 200 feet, and about 4 feet deep.

It is then by means of an elevator deposited in a long bin in an upper story. By means of separate spouts the corn is conveyed into fourteen large "steep tanks," holding 600 bushels each.

STARCH AND GLUTEN.

It is then conveyed to the mills, four in number, being mixed again with water, and after going through two sets of forty millstones it passes below to the "shakers." These are vibrating boxes, open at one end and covered with a wire and satin sieve.

The run house is a room 100 feet square, containing fifty-six troughs, about eighteen inches wide and 100 feet in length. These runs are slightly inclined, and while passing through them the starch and gluten are separated from the solid particles of the corn, which is called "starch feed."

After remaining in the mould boxes three to four hours it is cut into blocks about six inches square, elevated to the second floor, placed on cars, and run into the crushing room, where it remains overnight.

As they are filled they are run into the dry-room, which is kept at an average temperature of 100 degrees by means of steam pipes. The starch is kept here until it is thoroughly dried into the prismatic form in which it is purchased in the market.

An election of thirty-six deputies is soon to take place in Paris, the total expense of which is estimated at $50,000. There will be 332 voting places.

The list of names ordered is long and varied. It consists of 1,801 wooden bowls, 1,804 penknives, 652 pairs of scissors, 652 paper-placers, 3,913 inkstands, 1,304 pieces of india-rubber, 6,380 penholders, 2,508 black pencils and the same number of red and blue pencils, 1,000 needles, 652 twists of red cord, 3 pounds of brass pins, and 40 gallons of ink.

It is stated that the regulation amount of red and black paper ordered, and the usual number of books of registry.

In France elections are usually held on Sunday, so that the voters lose no time from work.

"You have peppermint essence?" she asked, as she held out a pint bottle.

"Yes, yes."

"I'll take about five cents worth. You may rinse the bottle and put in a new cork, if you please."

"And say! feeling as I am a regular customer can't you send to throw in a few pluches of rhubarb and a dozen or so cloves? I'm very fond of cloves and I want the rhubarb for the baby."

DEATH OF THOMAS A. HENDRICKS.

News was received last Saturday by the J. D. Spreckels, from San Francisco, of the death of Vice-President Hendricks. Particulars have not reached here, beyond the fact that the Vice-President of the United States was attending an entertainment of cadets at Annapolis, Maryland, on the 24th of November, when he was taken suddenly sick and died within a few hours.

WANTED.

For the coming election, candidates who are not only intelligent, but fearless and independent. The very foundations upon which Hawaiian Independence has been built have been rudely shaken by the folly and misrule of the present Administration.

A glance at the history of the acts of the last two Administrations, which have caused all our financial trouble and political dejection, will suffice to point out that the hope of Hawaii now lies in the election of a majority of men in whom are united intelligence, rectitude and independence.

party to the trust is held equally responsible. The shifting of responsibility from King to Cabinet, or the reverse, is of no avail in these practical times, when legal fictions and kingly crafts have gone out of fashion.

No Government can retain its integrity and character that has misused its power and shammed the people. The best evidence of a Government's adherence to its just and legitimate functions is to be found in the indorsement and support of the people; the clearest evidence of misrule is found in the popular discontent and condemnation of those who pay the taxes.

To determine the future of Hawaii, politically, according to the dictates of justice and economy, the people need men to represent them who will return to their constituencies with clean hands; further, a guarantee is needed that there shall be some definite limit to the prerogative of the Crown and the acts of the Cabinet.

Hawaii Notes.

The Hilo correspondent of the DAILY PRESS wishes to correct a statement which was published in the PRESS of November 30th, in which he states "that the steward of the brig Haard was arrested for smuggling opium, and fined $75. It was the steward of the bark C. O. Whitmore. Your correspondent usually tries to be very guarded in what he writes, as he wishes to do justice to all, and cheerfully makes this correction, and begs pardon for accusing the wrong steward. Captains of vessels that come to these ports, bring with them demijohns of various kinds of liquors to treat their friends, but if a poor man brings a tin or two of opium for his own use, he is arrested and fined for not bringing it ashore, so that he could be fined more, with no intention to smuggle. When the attempt is made then the arrest is proper; but it would seem inconsistent to arrest when no attempt is made. Captains leave their demijohns in full view, full of liquors. Why not arrest them, as well as the man who has opium for his own use. Whiskey does millions more injury than opium.

Died, December 7th, at Hilo, Hawaii, Mrs. Sarah J. Lyman, the wife of Rev. David B. Lyman, deceased. She was born November 29th, 1805; embarked with her husband in 1831, and arrived in these Islands in 1832. Neither he nor she left to go anywhere since coming here, having made the Islands their life work, and were greatly beloved by all who knew them.

On Monday morning, as she did not appear at her usual time, Miss Martha Chamberlain, a daughter of a deceased missionary, staying and caring tenderly for Mother Lyman, opened her door, went to her bed, and found that sometime during the night her gentle spirit had gone to the God who gave it. Asleep in Jesus; blessed sleep! Dr. Kittredge was called, but too late. God's angel had called. She is with her God she had so truly loved and served on earth. She was familiarly called Mother Lyman, in Hilo; all loved to call her by that name, for she was truly a good mother to all. She leaves a glorious record. Such people are always missed. It pays well to live well, as has been shown in her life. She was buried at Haili Church December 8th. The funeral was a large one. Those who were there loved her, for she was truly a Christian woman. The pallbearers were all natives. The remarks made were in English and native, loving words.

EDITOR DAILY HONOLULU PRESS—SIR: Your Hilo correspondent, in a painfully laborious attempt to appear facetious, has reported for publication that the steward of this vessel had been found with opium in his possession, setting forth the circumstances as if they were true. Your correspondent has been misinformed, and in his laudable endeavor to furnish news has been drawing on his imagination, until the two tins of opium, actually found on board the bark C. O. Whitmore, appeared to look like four would if they had been found on board the Haard. The true circumstances were as follows, if you care to publish them, as far as the seizure of opium was concerned. On the arrival of the C. O. Whitmore, the usual officers of Customs boarded and searched her. The cook voluntarily brought out two tins of opium, one of which he had been using out of, and reported to the boarding officers that he was in the habit of using it, and that these two tins were all he had and were for his own use. He was arrested, taken ashore, tried and fined—according to the report already published. I claim that the officers of the Customs exceeded their power, under the circumstances, and acted in an arbitrary manner—such as is practiced in no other country. The proper course would have been to place it under seal until the vessel sailed from the Kingdom. They could not, and did not, prove that the man was trying to import it into the Kingdom. But the way justice is administered in some of the Courts of this Kingdom, especially the Police Courts, is enough to make a horse laugh. Everyone appears to be at liberty to have wines and liquors for their own use, if they so desire, and how much worse than whiskey is opium? Please credit these two tins of opium to the steward of the C. O. Whitmore. The steward of this vessel is not ambitious of dealing in opium. Your obedient servant, W. G. GOODMAN, Master Hawaiian brig Haard.

A DENVER GAMBLER

TELLS ABOUT OLD-TIME DEVICES OF TWENTY YEARS AGO.

A Man Who Had a "Winning" Way About Him—How Greenhorns Were Deliberately Robbed—The Trick Discovered.

(Denver News.) In 1863-4 there were numerous places where the tenderfoot was beguiled and robbed of his all. The most notorious place was the room run by Bill and Hy Ford. They didn't run a saloon, but a poker-room, but many a poor devil with a taste for the game was enticed in there and robbed.

"How was it done?" "I will tell you. One of the hangers-on around the rooms was a gambler named Jerry Lewis. Jerry was crooked throughout. He couldn't play a fair game if he wanted to. He had his coppers around town gathering up the unwary. He always had his particular seat at a table and the man who sat opposite to him was always fleeced before he got up.

A "WINNING" WAY. "Everything apparently was on the square, but it wasn't. Jerry had a winning way about him in more ways than one. He never went for anything but the big game. He would get a fellow, propose a quiet game of draw, take him to his room and the two would sit down to a table in a room by themselves. Jerry had his confederate, however, and had him stationed in the loft immediately above the table. There was a small hole in the ceiling where the fellow could see the sucker's hand. Then there was an ingenious system of wires arranged by which signals could be given.

"The signals were all given on the sole of Jerry's foot. There was a hole in the floor as well as in the ceiling. Jerry would place his foot on the hole and his pal would work the wires. They had a telegraph system. One tap would mean something, two something else; so you see that the watcher could keep Jerry correctly informed as to what the other fellow held. It was a dead sure thing, and Jerry made a mint of money."

"How was his trick discovered?" "A Texan, named Sam, a old, struck Denver with $20,000. He played bank heavy and won $10,000 more. Jerry tackled him for a game of draw and Sam consented. The first night Jerry lost just enough to make the Texan think that he was the boss poker player in the world. The next night they quit even. The night after Jerry started in to win the pile, but luck was against him. He couldn't hold anything. He knew it was useless to try and stack the cards, because Jerry would have discovered that there would have been a shooting scrape. In spite of signals Jerry quit lower that night, but he didn't give up. He tackled the fellow again the next night and won right along.

"How did he win?" "He had won $40,000 of the southerner's money and was laying himself out to win the rest of it. He had a pot of $50,000 and had dealt the cards himself. Reid had only about $4,000 left. He got a full hand on the draw and Jerry got a full hand also, his full hand being larger than Reid's. The betting commenced and Reid had every cent of his money up on the call. Before the cards were shown Reid told Jerry to hold on awhile. He drew a revolver and laid it on the table, still retaining hold of it, however.

"Don't show your hand yet," he said. "Every cent I have in the world is on that table. I don't know which one has the best hand, but I do know there has been cheating done. Somebody has given my hand away. That somebody is over us. If everything is square you won't object to my shooting through the ceiling. If there is anything crooked of course you will object."

"Jerry raised his pistol and cocked it. Jerry didn't say anything, but grabbed Reid's arm, but too late. The gun went off. There was a howl and a scampering heard and a fall in the next room."

"There," said Reid, "I know you were robbing me. I didn't kill that fellow, but I wish I had. Now you just hand back every cent of my money. If you don't I will put a hole through you big enough for a dog to crawl through."

"Jerry was game, but Reid had the drop on him and was forced to give back every cent he had won."

Those Central American Revolutions. (San Francisco Chronicle "Undertones.") I met a gentleman from Guatemala the other day.

"You must have a lively time down there with all those revolutions," I said. "Oh, Guatemala is quiet comparatively. If you want revolutions Montevideo is the place. They used to have a revolution there every other day. I remember an English couple, friends of mine, were one day in a photographer's establishment. The camera was set and fixed, the operator was taking a last look under the black cloth, when there was a sudden noise like the discharge of musketry. He threw away the cloth and at once proceeded to close the shutters and barricade the place. My friends rushed out, and as they made for their hotel everybody along the street was barring up his house and fastening the shutters. The hotel war all closed up when they reached it. They went to their rooms and patiently awaited the expected carnage. An hour passed, but no noise was heard. Finally the husband stole out and found everybody in a state of hilarity. It seems that somebody had unloaded a cart of cobblestones on the plaza, and everybody had taken it for the customary opening of a revolution."

The Human Hair Market. (Philadelphia Times.)

Two years ago agents of the great Paris hair dealers visit the provincial fairs in France, Germany and Switzerland and buy large quantities from the peasant girls and women. In Europe the peasant women do a great deal of out-door work and long hair interferes with their business. They are willing to sacrifice their locks for a monetary consideration and the hair cutters do a thriving business all over Europe during the fair season.

The most expensive hair is pure white, which is worth doublets weight in gold. The cheapest hair is worth about $2 per ounce. The white switches are obtained by selecting hairs from a hundred different heads that have turned gray. When a head of hair becomes white, particularly among the peasantry, the sun usually turns the ends yellow, and this impairs their money value. The next most expensive hair is gray and the different varieties of drab, blacks, browns, auburns and goldens are cheap and usually coarser. White hair of any length is usually fine and the drabs are like spun silk.

When the hair is purchased it is made up into bales and shipped to Paris. Here it undergoes a cleansing and purifying process. The coarser grades are treated with boxes and potash, but the finer tints of drab and the grays and whites are cleaned with bran. Very little hair is bought from the growers, so to speak, in America.

Flowering Plants. The total number of flowering plants now known in British North America may be estimated at 3,000 species against 10,000 in the United States.
