WHAT SHALL IT PROFIT?

If I lay waste and wither up with doubt
The blessed fields of heaven where once my faith
Possessed itself serenely safe from death;
If I deny the things past finding out,
Or if I orphan my own soul of One
That seemed a Father, and make void the place
Within me where He dwelt in power and grace,
What do I gain, that am myself undone?
—William Dean Howells in Harper's.

ANNIE O'BRIEN.

The Connaught Castle had arrived in New York. The cabin passengers had gone ashore. The steerage people were being carried away by their friends or by the boarding house keepers who always lie in wait for them. Those yet uncalled for sat about the decks. Wistful eyes turned shoreward, anxious to see a familiar face and form among all these strange ones.

Pat Nolan had come aboard in all his bravery—a new blue coat flung open, that might not conceal the shining watch chain dangling from his vest pocket, his hat tipped to one side in true Connaught fashion, with a mighty show of white collar and cuffs and blue necktie, and his boots for once polished by an "Eyetalian." He threw his shoulders back and looked his best, for "didn't he come aboard to bring his sweetheart, Annie O'Brien, home, and wasn't she the purtiest girl in ten counties, and hadn't she crossed the ocean for his sake?"

Pat felt as though every one who saw him must know his business there.

Standing still he looked about him, expecting to see his little Annie somewhere not far.

"Sure, an' wouldn't she be as anxious to mate him as he would be to mate her?" But strange to say he could not see her.

He was a little late, for there had been a delay of the train in which he came down from the place where he was working as coachman and gardener. But surely Annie would never have gone ashore without him. He walked about for full ten minutes, looking everywhere, but still missing the face he wanted.

Every now and then a gay ribbon or a bright coil of hair would make his heart dance, but it was never Annie's hair or Annie's bonnet. At last he made up his mind that she had gone ashore; but in that case she had left word for him, of course—word where she had betaken herself.

"I beg pardon, sir," he said, stepping up to a man who wore a gold band upon his cap, and was presumably an officer—

"I beg pardon, sir, but I'm Pat Nolan. Is there a bit of a message left for me, do you know, sir?"

"Not that I am aware of," the officer replied.

"It was Annie O'Brien," said Pat. "She came over on this steamer; she expected me to mate her. We're to be married, you know, sir, and she'd lave word where she is gone—Annie O'Brien."

The officer turned a curious, startled gaze upon him.

"Annie O'Brien," he repeated. "A steerage passenger?"

"In course, sir," said Pat. "She's comin' over to marry me, and she's a workin' girl. We're natheriv us rich."

The officer looked at him again.

"I know the name," he said.

"You couldn't help noticing the girl," said Pat. "She's a purty crayther, is Annie, wid eyes like the sky and golden hair, and a waist you could span wid yer two hands—barrin' she wouldn't permit ye to do so—and a foot light as a bird's upon the floor. A little jewel is my Annie. You'd not fail to notice her."

"Sit down a moment, Mr. Nolan," said the officer. "I will make some inquiries. Wait here for me."

"A mighty polite gentleman, though he's as solemn as a funeral," said Pat to himself. "I hope he'll not delay long."

I'm wild to see Annie. Oh, the divil fly away wid the cars that kept me from her! I wonder in she criv' her eyes out for not seein' me? It was what she had a right to expect—the first one aboard."

The officer was returning.

He looked more serious than ever.

"Mr. Nolan," he said gravely, "the captain would like to speak to you. I will take you to him. We have had a very stormy voyage, as winter voyages often are."

"Pat, you've come into port on as pleasant a day as there is in the calendar," Pat said cheerfully. "A Christmas couldn't be brighter."

"But we have had a very unpleasant voyage," said the officer gravely.

He opened the door of the captain's cabin. Pat entered with his hat in his hand.

The captain, a grave, bronzed man, with iron gray hair, sat at a table before an open book, on which his hand lay.

"Sit down," he said.

"Thank you, sir. It's as easy standin'," said Pat, with a bow.

"You had better sit down," said the captain. "I may have to talk to you for some minutes. I have something very particular to say if you are the right man. Your name is—"

"Pat Nolan," said Pat, beginning to feel astonished, but then perhaps the captain, knowing that he was to be married that evening, wanted to congratulate him, to offer him a glass of something, or perhaps it was the way of the captains of ocean steamers to be slow and solemn, not thinking how he kept people from their sweethearts. So Pat sat down, put his hat on the floor, and not knowing just what to do cracked all his knuckles one after the other as he waited.

"Your name is Patrick Nolan," said the captain again, "and you came on board to find a young woman—a friend of yours?"

"My sweetheart promised to me. We are to be married today," said Pat.

"If God wills it," said the captain.

"Ay, sir; we can do nothing without that, I well know," said Pat. "The good Lord above and Father Dunn will help me, but I'll do the best I can to farder it myself."

The captain looked down upon the pages of the book before him.

"And the name of the young girl you are asking for?" he said.

"Annie O'Brien," said Pat, beginning to think the captain very stupid—"Annie O'Brien. She's the Widdy O'Brien's daughter—a decent woman is the widdy, and well respected. They are neighbors there at home in the old country."

The captain ran his finger down a long column of names, and stopped at last and looked at Pat again.

"We had a very unpleasant voyage," he said slowly—"a very, very unpleasant voyage."

"The other gentleman was telling me that, sir," said Pat, wishing that this old gentleman would stop talking about the weather and tell him something about Annie. "Bad weather must be a throat on the say," he said, in order to be polite.

"And wid all thim passengers to be watchin' and carin' fer—worse than a stableful of bastes!"

"Yes," said the captain, "we try to care for our passengers, but the steerage is a little crowded. They are often very sick."

"Yes, sir, I was that sick myself I thought I'd be dyin'," said Pat.

"Some are severely ill," said the captain.

This time Pat made no answer, but stared at him with a hot flush rising to his face.

"Sometimes they are so very ill that they die," the captain went on. "Delicate women, you know—little children and delicate women."

Pat still looked at him in silence.

"When I said that we had a very unpleasant voyage I meant," said the captain, "that we had serious illness—that we had death on board. Two steerage passengers died. One was William O'Rourke, an old man coming over to live with his son."

"God rest his soul!" said Pat, crossing his forehead.

"The other, who was very ill, was a woman," said the captain, "a young woman, and very pretty. Mr. Nolan, we have to prepare for storms in this life—we have to brace up and bear them as well as we can. They are very hard to bear. I have had a great many myself. At my age that goes without saying; but you are young and full of hope. I am very sorry that I am afraid you are about to suffer a terrible shock. It is a painful task to tell you. Brace up, my lad. The other passenger was a young woman, and her name, as we have it written here, was Annie O'Brien."

All the color had gone out of Pat's face by this time. It was white, lips and all. He dropped his arms on the table and hid his face on them, and great sobs shook his frame.

The captain wiped the tears from his own eyes.

"Talk does no good," he said. "Time only can comfort you."

"It seems as if I could not believe it, captain," Pat cried, lifting his tear swollen face. "Annie—my little Annie! Are you sure it was Annie?"

"There was but one Annie O'Brien on our list," said the captain. "She gave her name just before she breathed her last. The only steerage passenger of the name of O'Brien died on the voyage of a fever. The doctor cared for her as well as he knew how. The women nursed her kindly. We buried her at sea, and the burial service was said by a Catholic clergyman who was on board. You might like to know that, so I tell you."

"My Annie—my Annie at the bottom of the sea!" moaned poor Nolan. "An' I'll never see her again, never kiss her red lips; never feel her two arms about me neck! Ah, Annie, I won't live after you—I won't live after you! Life is too hard to bear wid that to think of. It's turned me to a woman, sir, I'm thinkin'; but it's the worst blow I ever had in me life."

There was a knock at the door just then. Pat hid his face behind his hand.

"No admittance just now," cried the captain.

"I didn't mane to come in, please, sir," said a sweet voice, "but I'd like to speak to ye, captain, if ye'll let me. I'm waitin' this long time till me frind comes aboard to bring me home, and I'm gettin' anxious, ferin' something has happened him. What will I do, sir? I know no one in Americay. Perhaps he might be on board and me not know it. He'd be askin' for Annie O'Brien, and he'd be Pat Nolan, that I'm promised to. Would ye?"

But the captain had flung wide the door, and Pat was on his feet, and with a roar like that of a buffalo had flung his arms about her.

"Glory be to God and all the saints!" he cried. "You're not dead at all! You're alive! I've got you safe and sound! They've been tellin' me you were dead. God help the man that put the trick on me, for I'll lave but the bones av him!"

"Quiet, there!" shouted the captain. "Down with your fists, or I'll put you in irons! What did you mean by asking for Annie O'Brien, a steerage passenger, when you wanted Annie Bailey, a first cabin passenger? That is the girl that stands there. That is the name she gave us—Annie Bailey."

"Captain, dear," cried Annie, clutching her by the coat tails, "captain, darlin', Pat never knew—he did not. Since writin' him, my mother—a widdy—married again wid Mr. Peter Bailey, that laps a foinn tavern in our town. So long as I was goin' from her, and he proposin' to her, why wouldn't she? And he, havin' money to spare, said I should come like a lady, and paid me passage in the finest place; and out it was to him—being my mother's husband and so generous to me—I called us Annie Bailey. That is the way it was, captain; and I'd be glad to see you frim from home."

"I wanted Pat to find me in the biggest saloon, and he remained there waitin' for him."

"You'll excuse me, sir," said Pat, bowing low, "on account of what I've been through."

"All right, my man," the captain answered; and then Pat threw his arm about his Annie and led her away, the happiest fellow alive—Mary Kyle Dallas in Firoside Companion.

Pledged to neither Sect nor Party, But established for the benefit of all.

MONDAY, FEB. 22, 1892.

A country correspondent writes: "What has become of subscriptions collected for the Kalakaua Monument Association a year since? It is time for a report and statement of what has been done in the matter."

THE LANAI HORROR.

Frequently the most shocking crimes are committed amidst the most peaceful scenes. Isolation and solitariness appear to breed morbid conditions of mind in those subject to such situations. The darkest horrors in lands of civilization are often reported from sparsely settled backwoods districts, where each habitation is far from any other and remote from populous centers.

Such people run naturally into superstitious notions, and are liable to be carried away into the wildest actions by only slight excitation. This would appear to be the case of the family community of Awahua on Lanai, the account of whose shocking crimes is given today.

The case is not exactly parallel with the rebellion of Kaona, the religious fanatic, in Kona in 1867 and 1868, an account of which is given in the late Hon. W. C. Parke's "Reminiscences." That case was more like the recent "Messiah" craze among the Indians in the United States.

ALIENS IN OFFICE.

The following extract from the San Francisco Argonaut and notes are from a country correspondent: Congressman Bowers, of California, has introduced a bill to prohibit the employment of aliens in any capacity in the governmental departments, to which only citizens shall be eligible.

Is Chapter 28, Hawaiian Statutes, 1880, complied with? If not there will be a mess some fine day in commercial circles. The law last referred to relates to the registration of co-partnerships.

"ONE SUMMER IN HAWAII." Letter From the Author--Tribute From Cal. Spectacles. WASHINGTON, Jan. 30, 1892. EDITOR BULLETIN:—My Dear Sir,—I have read your review of "One Summer in Hawaii," and thank you for the kind words you were pleased to speak of the contents.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21, 1892. MRS. HELEN MATHER, Dear Madam,—I have read carefully your work entitled, "One Summer in Hawaii," and cheerfully and without hesitancy commend it to the earnest attention and study of all such as are desirous of obtaining a knowledge of the beauties of that comparatively unknown and still less appreciated Paradise of the Pacific.

The Ring Was In His Boot!

An interesting incident occurred at a wedding in Nyack, N. Y., recently, says the Albany Argus. All went merrily until the bridegroom was called upon to produce the wedding ring. In vain he felt in his trousers' pocket for the indispensable article. Nothing could be found except a hole, through which the ring had evidently fallen into his boot. What was he to do?

"Take your boot off," said the parson. The suspense and silence were painful. The organist, at the dominic's bidding, began a "voluntary."

The young man removed his boot, the ring was found, also a hole in his stocking, and the minister remarked, evidently with more than the ceremony in mind, "Young man, it is time you were married."

THE young guests of the fancy dress ball at the Palace to-night are not required to bring their invitation cards, but only requested to bring cards bearing their names and the respective characters assumed.

AT noon to-day a salute of twenty-one guns was fired from the U. S. S. Pensacola and the shore battery, in commemoration of George Washington's natal day. The vessels in port are making a gorgeous display of bunting.

THE Royal Hawaiian band will give a concert at the Hawaiian Hotel to-morrow (Tuesday) evening. On Monday evening another concert will be given at the same place in honor of the Raymond tourists, it being their intention of leaving on the S. S. Australia on Tuesday.

MR. DAVID WATSON, luna of the gang at work on the Pali road, denies the report that he was guilty of charging toll to certain fishermen who passed over from the other side on Saturday. He says the report was first started by Bush, in order to get him out of the job and the position awarded to one of his political agents at Koolau. The information reached the Board through a member of the Board, who had got it from one of the fishermen claiming to be imposed on.

REVOLTING TRAGEDY!

Three Murders by Fanatics on Lanai.

A Fourth Victim Shockingly Tortured by Fire.

THE WORK OF A CRUEL FEMALE KAHUNA.

Puuloalo and Ten Accomplices Under Commitment in Oahu Jail for Murder.

A much worse tragedy was enacted on the island of Lanai this month than the first dark and vague reports of the uncanny conduct of a family there made evident. By the Kinau on Sunday morning there arrived in Honolulu two officers in charge of eleven persons committed to jail for trial on the charge of murder. There is a twelfth person who has been accused of murder, in connection with the same blood-freezing horror, left lying in jail at Lahaina charged with participation in the crimes, while being himself one of the sufferers from the brief but frightful reign of fanaticism at the hamlet of Awalaui.

The prisoners comprise five women—Puuloalo (the principal), Kanoa, Kanoana, Nawai and Kahikina, and six men—Kala, Kakaio, Kealaka, Keola, Keliikuewa and Kealakaalili. Puuloalo is charged with three murders, one of them wholly her own cruel work. The others are charged with participation in one or both of two of the murders with which the principal is charged. According to the commitments, the first murder was the killing of Kalaalili, a nephew of Puuloalo and a child of only six years, in which the murderous kahuna was assisted by nine of the family group, on the night of February 11. Puuloalo is charged singly with the murder of Puni, whom she beat to death with a club, the night of February 12. The same night Kaholokai was seized by the assistants of the priestess, while she beat him with a club into unconsciousness. She is supposed to have finished him after the retirement of the others. Early in the morning the hut was burned down, and the fanatics threw Kaholokai's body into the flames.

Paa, who is in jail with his wife at Lahaina, was one of the first ones to be attacked for his scepticism of the powers of the priestess. He is a brother of Puuloalo and his treatment gives some idea of the intensity of her malignant frenzy. By her orders he was held down, while the devilish wench roasted his face, arms, and body with a burning torch composed of rags dipped in grease. The foregoing is a summary of the crimes for which the prisoners await trial. Below will be found a history of the awful tragedy, in which the motives already hinted at are made more clear.

The following facts are gathered from the report of Deputy Sheriff Sam. F. Chillingworth, Wailuku, to Marshal Wilson: On Monday the 15th inst. a boat arrived at Lahaina from Lanai, bringing information of several deaths at Awalaui, Lanai. A constable from Lanai and two witnesses came by the boat, on hearing whose statements Captain of Police Hose rode to Olo-waui, and thence telephoned an account of the affair to Wailuku. Sheriff T. W. Everett instructed Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth to send Deputy Sheriff Makalua of Lahaina and Capt. Hose at once to Lanai, make a thorough investigation, and report to the Sheriff at Wailuku with all possible despatch. Deputy Makalua having enroute confined himself to holding a consultation with the Police Justice and finally swearing out a warrant for twelve persons named by a woman Kahue, who had come from Lanai with the officer. Capt. Hose taking some officers with him went in a boat to Lanai, where, employing horses for himself and three others, he proceeded to Awalaui. Arriving there he arrested the twelve persons named in the warrant, and brought them together with a number of witnesses to Lahaina on Wednesday.

Capt. Hose after lodging his prisoners in jail rode to Wailuku and reported his action to Sheriff Everett. The Sheriff directed that Mr. Chillingworth should go to Lahaina and attend to the case, and in pursuance of his instructions the Wailuku Deputy arrived at Lahaina early Friday morning the 19th inst. He found that the prisoners (with the exception of Paa and his wife Awili) had been arraigned Thursday morning and charged with murder, and their cases postponed, awaiting the return of Hose from Wailuku, until Friday morning. On Mr. Chillingworth's arrival the prisoners were again remanded until Saturday morning. In the meantime the Deputy-Sheriff worked up the case, and that day presented charges as follows:

Puuloalo (w.), for the murder of Puni (w.) on Friday, February 12, 1892.

Kala (k.), Kakaio, Kealaka, Keola, Keliikuewa, Kanoa, Kanoana, Nawai, Kahikina and Puuloalo (ten in all), for the murder of Kalaalili on February 11, 1892.

Puuloalo (w.), Kakaio, Kala, Keola and Kealakaalili (five), for the murder of Kaholokai, on February 12, 1892.

Defendants had a local lawyer for counsel. They pleaded not guilty, waived examination and were committed for trial at next June term, Circuit Court at Wailuku.

Paa (k.) and Awili his wife are in the jail at Lahaina. Paa was the first one abused, having been terribly burned about the face and upper portion of the body, with a torch in the hands of Puuloalo, Paa being held by the others during the burning. He is under the treatment of Dr. Davison and, although his injuries are shocking, he will probably recover. It is quite evident, in the opinion of Deputy-Sheriff Chillingworth, that Paa could not have had anything to do with the subsequent terrible occurrences. His wife would testify as to what was done after his torturing. Mr. Chillingworth gives the following connected narrative of the case, as gathered from his investigations:

"All of the defendants now in jail and the murdered persons resided at Awalaui, a small landing place on Lanai, there being at that place only four houses—two storehouses belonging to Mr. Hayselden and two other houses, one a frame house owned by Kahue (w.) and the other a grass house occupied by the parties to the tragedy.

"Puuloalo went to Honolulu and returned from there about two months ago, and on her return claimed to be possessed of supernatural power, especially in the curing of diseases, which she claimed were all the results of evil spirits that entered into the bodies of people and destroyed them. After her arrival back from Honolulu, Puuloalo had opportunity to show her skill by the treatment of two young people (one of whom was the boy Kala whom she since beat to death). These patients she appeared to cure by necromancy, and her power was at once acknowledged by the rest of the villagers (who by the way were all related to each other either by blood ties or marriage).

"Probably emboldened by her success and power Puuloalo went from one extravagance to another. She claimed that at intervals she had a spirit or god that entered her and gave her the power to detect the evil spirits that had entered other people, and she played the role of kahuna with sovereign power. In fact, as some of the unfortunate, misguided people say, she was their 'Queen and God.'

"The different murders were committed under her instructions, that a devil needed to be driven out of the person attacked. Any attempted questioning was promptly punished by her orders to the people round her. They were afraid of her and afraid of each other, none knowing whose turn would come next, and each and all afraid to refuse the execution of her orders, fearing that his fellow would be ordered to inflict summary punishment to drive out the devil that had prompted the disobedience.

"So the dismal details of crime, fanaticism, and superstition, followed rapidly on one another through the days and nights of the week of the murders, until, encouraged by the presence of some outsiders, some of her deluded followers turned on her and tied her and her husband up, to be so found by the officers on their arrival with the warrants of arrest.

"Last night I went to the jail and had Puuloalo brought to me for examination. She impresses me as a more than clever schemer with a cruel nature. She unhesitatingly admitted the deaths of the three persons and the burning of Paa, but denied altogether any knowledge of the cause of death of the woman Puni or of the boy Kala. She says that Kaholokai (k.) must have been killed by the burning of the house. She admits that she was present at the other two deaths, but knows of no cause. I sat with the woman for over an hour, questioning her closely as to the facts of the case, but could not either confuse her or gain any admissions from her.

"So far as I can detect, there is not the slightest trace of insanity about her, and, coupling the results of my examination with the statements of the others as to her instructing the burning of the house, and other movements to conceal the crimes committed, I believe her to be perfectly sane, but given over entirely to her love of power and the indulgence of a terribly cruel nature."

Mr. Chillingworth asks for instructions as to the examination of the bodies for the purposes of evidence. Dr. Davison having advised him that decomposition would have destroyed traces of violence in tissues and flesh, and fractures of bones could be discovered later as well as now. The Deputy-Sheriff gives high praise to Capt. Hose, for the energy he displayed in arresting the accused and securing witnesses.

A BIG SCARE

Usually has some foundation to start on. It is always advisable, however, to be prepared for emergencies. Smallpox is a terrible scourge spreads rapidly by contagion or infection, and proves fatal nearly always. The doctors appreciate the importance of vaccination and we judge a great many are influenced by their medical knowledge, and are taking this necessary precaution.

We had some Vaccine Virus arrive in the last steamer. We believe this is the first lot that has come since the smallpox 'scare' and is the only fresh vaccine to be had in the realm.

A special inducement is offered you to lay in a stock of choice Toilet soaps at wholesale prices. Colgate & Co.'s Soaps have a worldwide reputation for being one of the best grades manufactured. # HILO JOURNAL.

The new Hilo Journal, under the new Governor, Hon. John T. Baker, at his residence on the 17th inst.

The steamer Claudine, took us all by surprise on the 16th inst., by bringing to Hilo 34 passengers, most of whom went next day to the Volcano, to return on the 19th inst. and take the Kinau to Honolulu.

Hilo Literary and Musical had an entertainment on the 13th inst. at the house of L. Severance. Program as follows: Piano solo, Miss Hele Severance; Piano duet, Mrs. Goodale and Miss Curtis; Readings, Miss Hattie Hitchcock, Mr. E. E. Richards, Mrs. J. A. Scott; Vocal solo, Mrs. E. E. Richards; Zither solo, Mr. Wolff; Recitation, Dr. Wiggins; Vocal solo, Dr. Wiggins; Scene, "Under the Mistletoe," Miss Severance, Dr. Wiggins, Mr. H. C. Austin.

This entertainment was greatly enjoyed, in fact these meetings are bang-up treats. There is considerable work to get them up, but it pays always. We wish often there was a nice place where we could treat the ladies to ice cream after each performance. Mr. J. Vierra, who now keeps the only hotel, used to make delicious ice cream, and made more money than he is making now in the hotel business. Some imagine that he will have to close up the hotel unless he is better patronized and he will have to take down his beautiful sign, "Hilo Hotel," and we shall have no hotel which so many thought we needed so much.

Many Hiloites were glad to welcome Mr. B. F. Dillingham to Hilo, for all know he is a gentleman who takes great interest in the success of this Kingdom. Also glad to welcome another gentleman of the same stamp, Hon. L. A. Thurston. Wish there were more of such gentlemen on these islands.

An old resident of these islands leaves by this Kinau. Mr. Edward Smith has sold out his watch-making business and leaves for the State of Oregon, which will be his future residence. His father's death makes it necessary for him to leave the islands. Mr. John Spear will occupy the store and carry on the same line of business. We all wish Mr. Smith prosperity and in time we shall expect his return, as a twenty-four years' residence on these islands unites one for a residence in a State where the weather is more variable and colder than it is here. So, aloha nui, Mr. Smith. Inside one year you will return here, sure pop, to remain.

On the 17th 14 persons came to Hilo who had visited the crater and seen it booming. They came by the Hall to Punaluu. At night the reflection of the crater looms up high. They took the Claudine to Honolulu the same evening, glad of the opportunity to avoid the crowd on the Kinau.

The large clock to which Hilo residents went for the correct time, which was in the jewelry store of Mr. Edward Smith, has been purchased by the residents and placed in the telephone office. It will be attended to by Mr. John Spear, who has cared for it for some time.

It is expected that at the spot on the Volcano road that is occasionally covered many feet with water—a very dangerous place—a ditch will be constructed to obviate the difficulty, or if that is not successful a bridge will have to be made. The Volcano road should have this difficulty removed, and men will soon be at work to prevent all dangers in the future.

The new road board are at work at a lively gait. The traction engine that has so long been laid aside will be put in use. The streets of Hilo will be put in the best of condition. The chairman of the board, Mr. Loebenstein, has been all over his district and we shall expect he will immortalize himself and the entire board before their time expires.

It is said a fine looking gentleman came here a short time since to form a stock company for the purpose of lighting the streets and houses of Hilo by electric light, but he departed for California, whether to return or not we know not. No one can seem to enlighten us, although the subject is a light one. The idea of having such light gave us great delight, but when we found that the projector had departed our hearts were not light. We trust he will return soon with a big supply of material to use in lighting our village. We don't want Honolulu to have all the good things when we can afford them. Our new Governor is a splendid specimen of a man, and we want about 25 lights placed at his palace at once; for he is a worthy man and just the gentleman to be our Governor—is a good missionary.

Arrived at Hilo, Feb. 11, 4-masted schooner Puritan, Capt. Peterson, 12 days from San Francisco.

Sailed from Hilo, Feb. 11, brig Lurline, Capt. Chas. Matson, for San Francisco, with a full cargo of sugar. Passenger, Mr. Lockwood, electric lights.

STRANGE, IF TRUE.

A Full Rigged Ship Made by Unknown Hands Found in a New Zealand Cave.

A story which smacks of the marvelous is the theme of much speculation at Sydney, Australia. In May, 1890, George Henry Wethersby left the Australian metropolis for a prospecting tour in the mountains of New Zealand, accompanied by his two nephews, R. S. and C. T. Cook, aged respectively eighteen and twenty-one. During July and August they had done much hard work around the base of Mount Esmeraldi and in the immediate vicinity. In the following month they penetrated the unknown wilds on the headwaters of the River Waikato.

Oct. 9 their crowbars loosened an immense ledge of rock which arose like a precipice from the bed of a small creek tributary to the Waikato. When the debris was cleared away a small crack some ten inches wide was revealed. Within two feet of the opening this crack became a wide monthed subterranean chamber. A little more labor admitted the men into the opening. Priming their miners lamps they started on a tour of exploration. Bones, charcoal and rudely constructed pottery were found everywhere. Some mummified remains of a small race of people, with long plaited hair, and a few copper weapons were also found.

Finally they emerged into an immense chamber, the dome of which was several hundred feet above their heads. But the Titanic nature of the cavern did not excite their curiosity as much as a strange shaped object which was dimly outlined in the center of the chamber. In their unbounded amazement they approached the uncanny object, and found it to be a sailing vessel of marvelous symmetry and surprising beauty. The deck was of rosewood, or of some material much resembling that valuable cabinet timber, and the masts of ebony, polished as finely as the case of a music box. The remains of sails which hung idly around copper wire ropes or cables proved that they had been of pure yellow silk, almost as thick as a farmer's grain sack.

The vessel was upward of 100 feet in length and some thirty broad. Although there were many copper wires and bands used in its construction, not a single nail or screw of any metal was to be seen, every joint being secured by hardwood screws of pins. Here for once is room for unbounded speculation. When, how and under what circumstances was this piece of unknown marine handiwork transported to this south Pacific island and buried hundreds of feet in the interior of a lofty mountain? No means of egress or ingress were found except the narrow opening revealed by the crowbar's work.—St. Louis Republic.

In Trouble Because of a Kiss Withheld.

Seymour Thompson, a young man, was employed for the fourth year to teach a district school in Marion township. The trustee has just asked the county superintendent to revoke his license because he has been guilty of improper conduct toward the scholars.

Thompson was in the habit of kissing three of the best looking maidens as they arrived for the morning session. Friday he showed indifference toward one of them. The jilted girl told her mother, and from that the entire neighborhood rose up in arms against him. The parents refused to let their children go to his school. When his school was called to order Monday but a single boy was present. Thompson came to Lebanon Thursday and engaged counsel to defend him in the action to take up his commission, claiming that the kissing was done in a brotherly way.—Cor. Indianapolis Journal.

Lifting Bridges by Electricity.

The ease with which electricity can now be applied to the moving of heavy weights has led to its employment for that purpose in many operations where steam or hydraulic or other power was formerly used. Among these may be mentioned the lifting of bridges, for which the electric motor is peculiarly fitted. It is stated that in the city of Rochester all the bridges over the Erie canal are to be operated electrically.

Of the fifteen bridges for which it is proposed to provide power, it is assumed that at least four will at times be lifted simultaneously, and that a period of fifteen seconds will be occupied for each lift; furthermore, that each bridge will be lifted at least eight times per hour during a period of ten consecutive hours of the day of greatest canal traffic.—New York Telegram.

Aged Senators.

General Palmer will not be the oldest man in the senate by a long way, though the oldest senator for many years. Mr. Payne, of Ohio, has just retired to private life. Senator Palmer is still considerably short of eighty years, while Senator Merrill is eighty-one, and as for Senator Harris, of Tennessee, no one knows how old he is. He does not print his age in the Congressional Directory, and all inquirers on that score are given a lecture for their impertinence and sent about their business. Senator Harris is between eighty and one hundred years old. As many guesses approximate the latter figure as the former. He is one of the remarkable old men of the senate.—Chicago Herald.

Clothless Diners.

A radical innovation is the clothless dinners, several of which have been given recently. It has heretofore been usual only on occasional luncheons and teas to strip the smooth polished mahogany bare of its cloth. Now dinners as well permit. Nothing can make a more effective setting for silver, glass and wax lights than the dark, shining surface of this rich wood. Those who own such will do well to leave them uncovered.—New York Times.

SAFE AND RELIABLE.

"In buying a cough medicine for children," says H. A. Walker, a prominent druggist of Ogden, Utah, "never be afraid to buy Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it and relief is always sure to follow. I particularly recommend Chamberlain's because I found it to be safe and reliable." 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents.

AN OPPORTUNITY!

At the request of a number of our patrons, we have concluded to offer the services of our artist, Mr. W. Y. Itow, as a practical instructor in Oil Painting and Water Coloring, free of charge.

Mr. Itow has been in our employ for the past two years and we feel confident that, by practical demonstration, he can teach his pupil just what he wants to know in the matter of handling colors, etc., without the tiresome course usually adopted by instructors.
