COUNTY WORK RUNS SMOOTHLY

New Order Of Things Oahu County Inaugurated Welcomed By People

OLD POWERS PASS WITHOUT A MURMUR

The Counties have come into their own. The Territory has passed into the hands of County officers the departments to which the Act entitles the local governments. The transfer occurred without friction. The Oahu County Board of Supervisors is organized and ready for business. Without a break the public protective institutions, police and fire, passed from the centralized government into the hands of the people. County government is a fact—a permanent reality. Oahu County was born at midnight. Along the waterfront there broke a din of whistles loud and long; along the city streets gay crowds moved cheering and shouting; cannon crackers sent the noise of their explosion echoing between the walls of brick and stone; in the dark grounds of the Capitol the Oahu County band gave forth music that stirred and inspired; in the executive chamber of the government building champagne glasses clinked one against another as the success of the County was pledged by all; at the headquarters of the new local government, downtown, the Board of Supervisors was called to order and government for the people and by the people was started on its way amid general rejoicing.

When all had a glass in hand, and while the band was playing the Dead March for the passing of the old regime, the Acting Governor raised his glass and said: "Gentlemen: I was not here during the late tropical county election, and its wounds passed me by. I know that it has left wounds. But I think that I, not having been mixed up in the heat of the struggle, better than any other man, can ask that these wounds be allowed to heal, and that all bitterness shall be forgotten. I have asked you here partly to say this. "I want, the Territorial officials all want, to see county government made a success. I was on a commission that drew a county law that failed. The commission that drew this law deserves public thanks, for it put in arduous work upon it. The act has stood the test of the courts, and is here to stay. We have tried, on the part of the Territory, to start county government as effectively and as smoothly as we could. I want to ask of the county officials, now, that there (Continued on Page 4.)

PITCHER ANDERSON OUT OF THE GAME

Anderson, the speed merchant enticed by the Malles from the Midwinter League, is now out of the Honolulu League this season unless he wishes to quit playing for his regular team, the Aalas. He was billed to pitch for the Malles against the Kama this afternoon, but will not appear. The officials of the Midwinter League got together yesterday and declared that players taking part in the big league games could not play with the Midwinter. So Anderson decided to leave the Malles and cling to the Aalas. This move on the part of the Midwinter League is a mistake. There are few enough ball-players for the Honolulu league now, and if the smaller league sticks to its action, it will work hardship in more than one case. Burns or Freitas will be on the slab for the Malles today, with Reuter opposing them. The second game is the big scrap between the Elks and H. A. C.'s, Hampton and Joy being the opposing pitchers.

Early this afternoon the steamer Claudine got away on her long voyage to San Francisco. She was due to have sailed this morning at 10 o'clock, but delays in getting all the little final arrangements finished kept her for several hours.

W. Wright, formerly with the Inter-Island Company, is now with the cableship Restorer.

AVOID POLITICS SAYS ATKINSON

Officials Should Take
No Reprisals On Employees

ATTORNEY GENERAL IS WILLING TO ASSIST

SAM JOHNSON IS NOW POSSESSOR
OF MANY TITLES AND A MULTITUDE OF JOBS
ALSO.

"I do not want the Territorial officials to take any reprisals on their employees on account of political differences," said Acting Governor Atkinson this noon. "No man should be discharged on account of the way he voted. The Attorney General stated, in discussing the changes which the inauguration of county government would make in the work of his office, that the County Attorney of Oahu should prosecute in all the criminal cases. This would, however, probably be an impossibility and for this reason the Attorney General's Department at present kept its full force, so that it could assist in the prosecution of criminal cases when it was necessary. The County Attorneys in all the counties would attend to criminal work, although the Attorney General might at times have them handle civil cases, as they were still officers of his department. The Attorney General's Department is preparing to take up a number of civil matters, which it has heretofore not had a chance to work on. Road Supervisor Sam Johnson stated that he had turned over the road department and the sewer department to the county and these were at present working smoothly. Johnson is at present acting in a dual capacity for the Territory and for the County. He is now Territorial Road Superintendent for Oahu, County Road Supervisor, Superintendent of the Garbage Department, Superintendent of Sewers, and Superintendent of Laundries. By having Johnson and his clerical forces working in these capacities the Territory and the County of Oahu are saving about $300, a month between them. This afternoon a number of Johnson's men who were discharged from the service of the Territorial Road Department are giving their former chief a luau.

KINAU IN FROM HILO

The steamer Inau arrived in port this morning from Hilo and way ports with 76 cabin passengers and a cargo including 10 cords of wood, 14 pigs, 56 empty kegs and sundries. The steamer had a good trip throughout. The Kinau came in under no flag, the Wilder flag being pulled down, and having no Inter-Island flag to run up. The red band on the steamer's funnel is also in evidence, but will be painted out at once. Armstrong's taro flour 12½ cents per lb. on sale at C. J. Day & Co.

Hilo Company May Adopt Plan For Hamakua Railway

Superintendent of Public Works C. S. Holloway has notified the Hilo-Kohala Railroad Company that its charter has been revoked owing to a number of failures to comply with the various conditions, principally the time limits set. The first agreement was made between the railroad company and the Public Works Department June 26, 1899, when the company was given the right of eminent domain over the public lands through which it proposed to lay its line. This agreement was further extended July 25, 1900. The rights thereby acquired by the company it has now lost. It is more than probable that the Hilo-Kohala Railroad Company, which once showed such great promise for the development of the island of Hamakua, is now a defunct proposition. Its president, P. Peck, the Hilo banker, who was its life and soul, is said to have resigned and it is not thought the company will make any further efforts to carry its plan through. The company actually imported some rails to use in the construction of its line, but these are now being held by Brewer & Co. It was said today by good authority that in all probability the Hilo Railroad Company, which now has a road running from Hilo into the Puna and Oiaa districts, will buy the rails from Brewer & Co. with the intention of taking up the Hilo-Kohala Company's plan, to some extent at least, and lay a road up through North Hilo and Hamakua.

BOARD FLOTATION OF M'BRYDE TO BE RATIFIED

"As far as Attorney W. A. Kinney and the McBryde plantation agents (Theo. H. Davies & Co.) are concerned," said C. M. Cooke, president of the Bank of Hawaii, this morning, "the proposition of the Bank of Hawaii in regard to the flotation of McBryde bonds has been accepted, but it remains to take our proposition before the Board of Directors of the plantation at a meeting to be held on Kauai at an early date." Since the Bank of Hawaii, which has never floated any bonds that were not taken up, has the handling of the McBryde bond business, it is certain that the deal will result in satisfaction to all concerned. Briefly, the McBryde bonds have been floated, the mere ratification of the deal remaining.

HILO POLICE HAS TROUBLES COMING

(Special to The Bulletin) HILO, Hawaii, June 30.—The political situation in Hilo is an interesting one. Tomorrow the new county officers begin their duties and the Territorial officers step out. Sheriff Searle said in a conversation last night that he could find no clause in the new County Act which annulled his commission, so he intended to hold on to it and serve without pay until he received orders from Honolulu. Sheriff-elect Keolanui wants to remove the two present captains of police and a number of the policemen and clerks in the Sheriff's office, but they intend to stay right with their jobs until they see what the Supervisors have to say about the matter. The County Act states that no vacancy in an office of a county officer shall be vacated without the consent of the Supervisors and then, as in the Sheriff's case, there is nothing in the County Act which says anything about putting the Territorial employees out of office. Then again there are some who maintain that these captains of police and others here in Hilo have never been under a county official and that Keolanui would not be going beyond his power should he place others in their positions. Taking everything into consideration, the present situation is a complicated one, as none of those concerned seem to know just what is going to happen to them. The whole police force in Hilo, with the exception of one or two men possibly, worked tooth and nail for Sheriff Searle and, of course, Keolanui does not love them. The better class of citizens feel badly to think that Searle was defeated. They claim (at least many of them) that the voters were getting back at Governor Carter for removing Sheriff Andrews without good cause and without allowing him a hearing. The Komas usually have some Republican, but this election they snoved the Republican party under and came near defeating the whole ticket. The Hawaiians like Searle and would have elected him had he not been a Carter-Henry man, so it is claimed. Wm. Fernandez was awarded $8,500 damages yesterday against Evan de Silva for malicious prosecution. Keolanui, while captain of police, arrested Fernandez and a woman for fornication. Later on, it developed that Fernandez was living with his wife, they having been legally married quietly and unbeknown to de Silva and others. Then Fernandez sued de Silva for $15,000 damages, accusing him of instigating the arrest, with the above result. Frederick A. Hansen, a sailor, was arrested last night for carrying a deadly weapon, he having fired two shots at Akau Hapai. In the tennis tournament which began yesterday Mrs. Elliot and George Hapai defeated Mr. and Mrs. Metcalfe 6-1 and 6-2. Sam Woods and Miss M. Woods defeated Mr. and Mrs. Vicars 6-4 and 5-6. George Hapai defeated Dr. Elliot 6-2 and 6-2 in the singles and Metcalfe defeated Vicars 6-1 and 6-0. The engagement of a young Hilo couple will be announced next week, so it is said. Mrs. J. Wilhelm died Tuesday night and was buried Wednesday. Mrs. Wilhelm had been in Hawaii many years and leaves a large family. Ex-Sheriff Andrews telephoned from Mauna Kea last night, saying that he with his daughter Loraine had made the trip safely to the mountain house. Mr. Andrews and daughter with Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Carter of Waimea, are to ascend the top of Mauna Kea and explore the lake which exists there. Sister Albertina and Miss Taggart are visiting Hilo friends.

PREVENTION BETTER THAN CURE. Why wait until some member of your family is taken ill and then employ the best doctor to be obtained? Why not employ a sanitary plumber, and prevent sickness as much as possible. Sanitary Science is that branch of Biology that teaches men the correct mode of life. Sanitary Plumbing is that branch of Sanitary Science that aims at the prevention of sickness and disease, and the prolongation of life and health.

BIG RACE NEXT TUESDAY BOAT CLUBS ROW AT PEARL HARBOR

MYRTLE SENIORS AND HEALANI
JUNIORS LOOK BEST — THE
CREWS.

Next Tuesday morning the brawny oarsmen of the Myrtle and Healan boat clubs will meet for the twelfth time in the classic water races. With each club apparently pretty evenly matched, the races should be grand contests from start to finish. Odds seem to favor the Myrtle Seniors and the Healan Juniors, yet there is plenty of backing for the other teams. Each has improved wonderfully in the last ten days of active training, and the results are wholly in doubt.

The Healanis feel that it's up to them to pull down the Senior race. They have won four of these, and the Myrtle Seniors just one more. The Myrtle Juniors have to their credit six of the ten Junior races, the Healanis again getting the short end.

Both clubs have been training as usual at the Peninsula, but the Myrtle crews have had the advantage of permanent training quarters there. Tom King has been handling the Myrtle athletes and he has certainly been doing wonders.

F. B. Damon coaches the Healan Seniors and Paul Jarrett the Juniors. Both teams are in top-notch form and good condition. The best time for the mile-and-a-half course is 9 minutes and 48 seconds, made by the Myrtle Seniors in 1897. Since then nothing under the 10-minute mark has been done. This time is liable to be smashed Tuesday, for both the Senior teams are going over the course very fast in practice. One man declared to the writer that several days ago the Healan Seniors covered the distance in 9:52, the Healan Juniors better than 10:10. The best race time for the Juniors is 10:16 made by the Healan crew in 1903. The crews are as follows:

ADMIRAL'S CAPTURE

Tokio, June 3.—Torpedo boat destroyers which have returned to Sasebo furnish details of the capture of Vice-Admiral Rojstvensky. The destroyers Kasumi, Usugumo, Sazanami and Kaguru were ordered to attack the Russian war ships the night of May 27th, and were steaming ahead when they suddenly encountered a number of Russian ships. The Kasumi narrowly avoided a collision with a Russian cruiser, the closeness of which seems to have saved the destroyers from being damaged by the heavy fire which the Russians directed on them. During the Russian attack the vessels forming the destroyer flotilla divided. The Sazanami and Kaguru continued the search for Russian ships throughout the night and in the morning discovered two torpedo boat destroyers. One of them steamed away, but the other was unable to do so. On approaching the latter the Japanese discerned a white flag flying from the foremast and the Red Cross flag astern. She proved to be the Bedovi, with Admiral Rojstvensky and his staff on board. The Bedovi signaled that her engines were damaged and that she was short of coal and water. An armed guard was sent on board the Bedovi to receive her surrender. The Russians requested the Japanese not to remove Admiral Rojstvensky and the other officers on account of their wounds, and the Japanese complied, with the understanding that the guard would execute Rojstvensky in the event of delay leading to a meeting with Russian ships, thus running the danger of his recapture. The Sazanami ran a line to the Bedovi and began towing her. The line parted twice. In the morning the Sazanami met the Japanese cruiser Akashi, which conveyed the two destroyers to Sasebo. During the trip the destroyers encountered heavy seas and their decks were awash during part of the time.

JOHN HAY, AMERICAN

The death of John Hay will be received by the American people with much the same deep sorrow as would be occasioned by the death of a President.

He was a genius without being a freak, a well rounded, whole souled, vigorous minded gentleman.

The death of Hay coming so soon after the incident of the resignation of Engineer Wallace of the Panama canal brings two characters into sharp perspective.

Every old woman in the Civic Fed can double bar his doors because Brown is in office if he wants to.

As no lists of dead and wounded have been telegraphed in from the other islands it is safe to presume that the Territory made an orderly and dignified retreat all along the line.

Whether the Anti-Saloon League sign is on the Supervisor door or not, the Acting Governor realizes that in binding up wounds it is always necessary to success that there shall be a soothing lotion.

Lots of men think they would like to be popular like Sheriff Brown. They would have nervous prostration trying to satisfy the applicants who claim that they were the individual John Jones solely responsible for carrying the election.

It is quite proper to forgive though you can't forget. And it is better to assist in building up independence of honest thought, than to promote servility and anxiety to jump for the winning side.

shall be no reverses worked out and no reprisal. Do not attempt, I ask you, to punish those men who worked against some of the candidates on the Republican ticket in the late election.

Chairman of the Board of Supervisors Geo. W. Smith, responding, said: "In behalf of the county officials of Oahu I want to say that there has been no friction. The Territorial officials have all worked with us and for us, and we appreciate it and will try to give the people an honest administration, and to earn their support at the next election."

Republican National Committeeman and Chairman of the Republican Territorial Central Committee A. G. M. Robertson called upon men of all parties to stand by the Counties, to back up honest and capable administration.

Commander Lucien Young had a few words to say in reference to his great affection for Hawaii.

Elks in Evidence. The Elks were in evidence last night. They were out in strength. They descended upon the Police Station and serenaded Sheriff Brown; Dougherty, Livingston, Richardson, and Frank Thompson doing great stunts in the singing line.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning a merry crowd gathered upstairs at the Union Grill. Tables were slung together to make one long board, and at one end sat Acting Governor Atkinson, while Sheriff Brown graced the other terminus.

Acting Governor Atkinson made the speech of his life. He dwelt on harmony and declared that all Territorial officials included, should work for the good of the government of the people, for the people and by the people.

Here loud cries of Cooper! Cooper! H. E. Cooper-Speech! arose from half a dozen throats.

Appreciates Dole.

Continuing his impromptu address, Atkinson said that too few people had appreciated the work done and the good accomplished by Sanford B. Dole as Governor.

Commander Lucien Young of the United States gunboat Bennington toasted Sheriff Brown in eloquent words, saying that he knew the man, had been shooting with him, in fact, and would wager that no ill word could ever in truth be said against him.

Sheriff Brown drank the health of the Acting Governor and a whole lot of nice things were said about "Jack County" Attorney Douthitt.

Supervisor Geo. W. Smith, after the County officers had been received by the Acting Governor at Capitol, seeing that midnight was close at hand, asked that the Governor excuse the Supervisors and other officers, as they had to meet at headquarters in the McIntyre block at 12:01.

The presentation of certificates of election was then called for and the attested oaths were passed on. The bonds of the Supervisors were taken up and approved as follows:

TO THE WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES.

Successful Home Treatment.

Dr. Hartman's Cure for Female Diseases—A Generous Offer to Women.

Invalid Women are Applying by Thousands for Dr. Hartman's Free Home Treatment by Letter.

MRS. J. P. COADY, Treasurer of the Ivy Leaf Club, 1,202 6th Avenue, Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "Peruna is no experimental medicine. I have used it off and on now for three years. At that time I was cured of irregular and painful menstruation. Since that time I have taken it for indigestion or whenever I felt overworked and in need of a tonic, and I have always found that it was of great benefit to me."

MRS. J.P. COADY

Miss Hattie Grace, 254 West 46th St., New York, writes: "Peruna has changed me from a fretful, irritable, nervous woman into a healthy and a happy one. Nothing seems to worry and to fret me any more. Since early womanhood I suffered with bearing down pains and nervousness. I was thin and worried, but Peruna restored me. Those who knew me before cannot understand the change, but I can sum it all up in the blessed word, Peruna."

MISS HATTIE GRACE

Mrs. Elizabeth Ferguson, No. 1st 31st St., Brooklyn, N. Y., President West Brooklyn Audubon Society, writes: "I am pleased to tell what a blessing Peruna has been to me. Several years ago my constitution seemed broken down and I cared little whether I lived or died. I had taken so much medicine that the sight of a bottle made me sick. I had read about Peruna curing women, and I thought perhaps it would help me. I bought a bottle and before it was finished I felt better. I kept on taking it, and after three months' faithful use I was a well woman and able to do the work and undergo the strain of younger days."

MRS. ELIZABETH FERGUSON

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some form of female disease and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned gynecologist, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as make application to him during the summer months without charge.

The treatment will be conducted by correspondence. The doctor will prescribe all medicines, applications, hygienic and dietary regulations necessary to complete a cure. The medicines prescribed can be obtained at all drug stores. This offer will hold good only during the summer months.

All cases of female diseases, including menstrual irregularities, displacements, ulcerations, inflammations, discharges, irritation of the ovaries, tumors and dropy of the abdomen, should apply at once and become registered as regular patients. All correspondence will be held strictly confidential.

As is well known, Dr. Hartman is the president of The Hartman Sanitarium, an institution which has a department devoted exclusively to the treatment of female diseases. He is thus brought in contact with thousands of such cases every year, the most of whom return to their homes to be treated by correspondence.

The principal remedy he relies upon in such cases is Peruna, which every woman should have who has any affection of this kind. Those wishing to become patients should address Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, U. S. A.

No one knows better than Dr. Hartman how much the women suffer with diseases peculiar to their sex. No one knows better than he does how many of them suffer with such diseases. Patiently, hopefully, wearily, and often silently, they eke out a miserable existence, year after year.

No martyr in poetry or heroine in romance makes a more touching appeal to human sympathy than the woman burdened with the cares of a family trying to carry the extra load of some tormenting and ever present female disease.

Dr. Hartman's sympathy for such a condition, and his willingness to help them limited only to his power.

For special directions everyone should read "The Ills of Life," a copy of which surrounds each bottle. Peruna is for sale by all chemists and druggists at one dollar per bottle or six bottles for five dollars.

Those wishing direct correspondence with Dr. Hartman can wait the necessary delay in receiving a reply should address Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, U. S. A. Benson, Smith & Co. will supply the retail drug trade in Honolulu.

Social Side of Life

Now that the hot weather is upon us it is natural to seek the cool hills, or to oneself to the country and bask in the breezes which come down from the mountains. Many are at Waikiki for the summer months, enjoying the sea bathing. Mrs. Parke and Mrs. Walbridge are among the latter, for they have taken the William Castle place for two months and expect to take possession next week. Miss Jennie Parke has gone to Hilo to spend some time with the Lawrences, who have a delightful place on the point. Mr. Bruce Cartwright and family are to be at Sana Souci for six months during the absence of the Hatches and the Rev. Mr. Usborne and Mrs. Usborne expect to occupy their pretty little villa at Diamond Head during July and August. The Swanzys will probably go to their country place on the other side of the Pali, and Ahuluanui will tour the other islands, and the Irwins, after a little while, will go over to Maunawili Ranch, where week end parties will be in order. A great vacation will be felt with the Alexander Icenbergs. Carters and Hatches away for the summer. They have always entertained quite extensively in an informal way during the hot months and everybody will miss them.

The Moana beach and the Annex are even now crowded throughout the day with jolly bathers, and when the Moana Hotel improvements are added there will be a more popular place for the summer months. Mr. Hertzke is always a popular manager, for he has the brains to make his guests comfortable.

Mrs. William Hayward has been the motif for many an entertainment during her visit here on Wednesday. Mrs. Gerrit Wilder gave in informal bridge party for the charming visitor. The vine-sheltered lanai with its unobstructed view of Diamond Head and the sea made a refreshing picture for the eyes to rest upon, and the fair guests at the little tables were united in saying "It's the first cool spot we have been in today."

Mrs. Hayward the guest of honor, wore a dainty frock of white muslin with real lace insertions. A picture hat was becomingly placed upon her head, and she carried a dull green parasol which exactly matched her shoes. Mrs. Gerrit Wilder in a white lace with a touch of blue looked lovely. At the conclusion of the game delicious refreshments were served, the table being set in the dining room. The prizes of American beauty roses and carnations were won by Mrs. Francis Swany and Mrs. William Hayward. Among those present were the guest of honor, Mrs. Hayward, Mrs. Fred Macfarlane, Mrs. Mary Widdifield, Mrs. M. M. Scott, Mrs. Archibald Young, Mrs. Charles Wilder, Mrs. Holloway, Mrs. Francis Swany, Mrs. Victor Blue, Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mrs. Harry Macfarlane, Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. Charles Wright, Mrs. Clifford Kimball, Mrs. Sam Wilder, Mrs. Jack Hawes, Miss Burr and Miss Margaret Walker.

The four-act drama, "Alabama," by Augustus Thomas, which was presented at the Opera House on Thursday evening was not only an artistic success but a financial one as well. The house was elaborately and beautifully decorated by Mrs. Camp, and the signal flags, bunting, paper flowers and greenery showed that great trouble and time had been spent to bring the decorations to such perfection. The two upper boxes, occupied respectively by the Healinians and Myrtles, were dressed in the colors of the two clubs and were most effective, and in the stage box were Mrs. William G. Irwin, Miss Irwin and Miss Hyde-Smith. Mr. "Jack" Atkinson was in the opposite box. When the curtain rose upon the first act there was a general expression of admiration for the stage had been transferred into a southern garden and a very realistic little scene was acted with much delicacy. Miss Charlotte Hall as Carey Preston, an Alabama Dossim, was graceful and natural. Her acting showed much talent and she pleased the audience. Miss Irving Schaefer made a stunning debut and her little side plays were very well done. Mrs. Wotkins as Mrs. Page, a southern gentleman, acted with quiet, grace and dignity.

Mrs. James Dougherty made a good impression and looked very pretty. Mr. James Dougherty, as Lathrop Page, did a fine bit of acting, his southern accent and general appearance were to the manner born and he showed his professional training of the part in every movement. Captain Henderson was ably sustained by Mr. Raymond Brown, and Mr. Allison Jordan in his role of Squire Tucker was especially good. Decatur, an old southern servant, cleverly acted by Mr. Coleman Schwartz, was a humorous hit, and Mr. Murphy, Col. Moberly, was a distinct success. He showed great appreciation of the character. Col. Preston, an old planter, made a very good impression. Altogether the drama was one of the best pieces of acting ever presented here, and the Kunalu Club have every reason to be proud of their maiden effort. The Dillingham Quartet sang most sweetly several plantation melodies which invested the drama with the real southern atmosphere. The play will be repeated this evening, and many parties have already engaged boxes and boxes. The girl ushers in their white frock and their large hats decorated with miniature oars made a fetching appearance, and did their difficult task nobly.

The cast is as follows: Colonel Preston, an old planter..... Mr. A. J. Blackman Moberly, a relic of the Confederacy..... Mr. A. E. Murphy Squire Tucker, a Talladega County Justice..... G. Allison Jordan Captain Davenport, a northern railroad man..... Mr. Raymond C. Brown Mr. Armstrong, Capt. Davenport's agent..... Mr. Harry Jeffrey Lathrop Page, a southern boy..... Mr. James D. Dougherty Raymond Page, a party of business..... Mr. A. S. Brown Decatur, an ante-bellum servant..... Mr. Colman Schwartz Mrs. Page, a widow who thinks twice..... Mrs. B. S. Wotkins Mrs. Stockton, a rich young widow..... Miss Irving Schaefer Carey Preston, an Alabama blossom..... Miss Charlotte Hall Atlanta Moberly, Col. Moberly's daughter..... Mrs. Dougherty Patronesses..... Mrs. G. R. Carter, Mrs. H. W. Lyon, Mrs. A. T. Hays, Mrs. A. G. Hawes, Mrs. F. M. Swany, Mrs. C. E. Camp, Mrs. E. D. Tenney, Mrs. Francis Judd, Mrs. C. Junior Crew - Alice Roth, Renny Catton, Alice Hedemann, Sara Lucas, Belle McCriston, Helen Girvin.

One of the most delightful affairs of the week was a bridge party given by Mrs. Henry Lyon. Mrs. Lyon is a most popular hostess and on Thursday afternoon her guests thoroughly amused themselves with the fascinating game. For a looker-on bridge is a character study, and many a hidden character is revealed under the strenuous pace. The prizes, lovely sets of forget-me-not, violets and pansies, were won by Mrs. Andrew Fuller and Miss Annie Parke. Refreshments were served on the lanai and a very pleasant half day was enjoyed. Among those present were Mrs. J. O. Carter, Mrs. William Taylor, Mrs. Walter Hoffman, Mrs. Kiebah, Mrs. Francis Swany, Mrs. Edna Adams, Mrs. Edward Tenney, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Richard Ivers, Mrs. Rannie Scott, Mrs. T. A. Hays, Mrs. Carl Holloway, Miss Margaret Walker, Mrs. Gartley, Mrs. Victor Blue, Miss Annie Parke, Mrs. Bissell, Mrs. W. Monsarrat, Mrs. F. M. Humphris, Mrs. Andrew Fuller and Mrs. Jack Hawes.

Captain Lucien Young of the Bennington was the host on Thursday at a luncheon at which thirteen guests were bidden. It was a very charming affair, and most deliciously cool for the dining-room is on the mountain side, and the breezes sweep down throughout the day. The table was most invitingly set out and the lunch, the perfection of southern cookery. The guests who enjoyed the hospitality of Captain Young on Thursday were Mrs. William Hayward, Mrs. Gerrit Wilder, Mrs. Charles Cooper, Mrs. F. M. Hatch, Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. C. W. C. Deering, Mrs. Harvey Murray, Mrs. Frederic Church, Mrs. Florence Macfarlane, Mrs. Humphrey, Miss Ben Taylor and Mrs. Jack Hawes.

The Senior dance at Oahu College given on Monday evening was a very enjoyable affair. The hall was decorated with palms, greens, flags and bunting, and, of course, the class colors prevailed. Solomon's Quintet Club furnished perfect music and dancing was continued throughout the evening. Among those present besides the faculty were Stanley Ashford, Spencer Bowen, Gerrit Judd, Lawrence Judd, Hamilton Pratt, George Renton, Jr., Gilford Whitney, W. H. Whittington, Richard Ahrens, James Hattie, Robert Paris, Robert Thurston, Kenneth Brown, Wallace Cooper, William Castle, Allen Lowrey, Paul Schmidt, Ray Rietow, Robert Catton, John Catton, May Fraser, Catherine Goodale, Alice Brown, Florence Hall, Eunice Pratt, Mabel Kinsey, Marion Waterhouse, Margaret Waterhouse, Elsie Waterhouse, Claire Williams, Edith Williams, Fanny Hart, Dagmar Sorenson, Julie Damon, Ethel Damon, May Schweitzer, Sara Lucas, Lydia Wagner, Isabelle McCriston, Edith Spaulding, Richard Catton, Andrew Catton, Ernest Smith, Lewis Renton, Ed. Mrs. Margaret Waterhouse was the hostess of a luncheon given at her home last Saturday. It was a very gay affair and much enjoyed by her guests. The table was artistically decorated in pink and white. The guests were Misses Eunice Pratt, Alice Hedemann, Ethel Bishop, Sara Lucas, Jessie Shaw, Katherine Hopper, Helen Girvin, Justine McClanahan, Marion Waterhouse, Alice Roth and May Fraser.

A unique lunch was given by Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Harry Cousins for Mrs. Hieburn on Wednesday. A huge Jock Horner pie was in the center of the table, the crust of which was covered with the Mexican creper, and from the lid were ribbons which were attached to each plate and they bore the names of the guests. These ribbons were pulled during the lunch and each guest drew a prize. At each place were Mother Goose sketches and at Mrs. Hieburn's plate was a calling card, a charming souvenir for the guest of honor to carry away. The guests were Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. Henry Lyon, Mrs. Walter Hoffman,

The marriage of Miss Caroline Castle to the Rev. W. D. Westervelt, which will occur on Monday, probably at the Manoa Valley residence of Mrs. S. N. Castle, will come as a surprise to many of their friends. Miss Castle is a cultured musician, and one of the best known women in town. She is a sister of Mr. James Castle, and is a great favorite in her own circle. Mr. Westervelt is well and favorably known in Honolulu and both Miss Castle and Mr. Westervelt can be heartily congratulated. The Rev. Mr. Kincaid will perform the ceremony.

Mrs. Edward Tenney has cards out for an "At Home" to meet Mrs. William Hayward next Thursday.

Captain and Mrs. Henry Lyon are going to give a picnic lunch on the Iroquois on the 4th of July.

Judge Francis Hatch, who goes to Banff for his health, Miss Jessie Kaufman, who is returning to her home in San Francisco, Miss D. Sorenson, who will study music in Boston, Mrs. McCrossen and Miss McCrossen, who will visit on the Coast, are also outgoing passengers.

Mr. Harry Armitage and Miss Spitz of Kauai were married on Wednesday by the Rev. Canon Mackintosh at St. Andrew's Cathedral.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Iseberg were among the passengers on the Alameda.

The fifteen ladies selected by Mrs. George Carter to assist in the reception and entertainment of the Taft party are as follows: Mrs. F. M. Hatch, Mrs. D. Tenney, Mrs. A. T. Atkinson, Princess Kalaiananok, Mrs. S. B. Dole, Mrs. H. W. Lyon, Mrs. F. W. Macfarlane, Mrs. W. F. Fraser, Mrs. R. C. Van Vleet, Mrs. Restarick, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. C. B. Cooper, Mrs. Samuel Parker, Miss Alice Jones, Miss Nellie White.

There will be great excitement in Honolulu on the arrival of the Taft party, but local friends will have little opportunity to entertain them. The luncheon at the Hawaiian Hotel will be quite a feature of the day and Miss Host Fred Church is just the one for the occasion. He has tact and great charm of manner and will do all in his power to assist the committee. The reception at the Moana in the afternoon will give the public a chance to gaze their fill upon Miss Alice Roosevelt, who, by the way, may not like it half as well as the public.

The reception given by Lieut. Victor Blue on board the U. S. S. Bennington on Friday afternoon was a brilliant and successful affair. Lieut. Blue received his guests at the head of the gang plank assisted by Lieut. Lacy; and Mrs. Victor Blue, most charmingly dressed in embroidered chiffon of a delicate aqua mariner shade, wore a large picture hat and looked extremely pretty. The ship, most attractively decorated with flags, bunting and palms and protected from the sun's rays by a large canopy, was a cool and delightful spot. Potted plants were arranged about the deck and there were cozy little corners where one could sip for a few minutes' chat from the meddler crowd. The uniforms of the officers and the smart frocks of the fair guests made a very attractive appearance. Refreshments consisting of salads, sandwiches, cakes and champagne punch were served throughout the reception. The Quintet Club played for dancing midships and on the upper deck were placed chairs for those who did not care to dance. The ward-room officers were kept busy looking after the wants of the guests. The magnificent Angora cat attached to the ship came in for a great share of admiration as well as did the interesting ant-eater—the mascot of the Bennington. When seven o'clock approached many of the guests departed, but others stayed on to supper and danced late into the evening. Lieut. and Mrs. Blue entertained their friends in a most delightful fashion, and when the last guest did finally depart expressions of regret were heard on both sides, for everybody united in saying "What a delightful afternoon!"

Among those present were ex-President and Mrs. Dole, Acting Governor Atkinson, Captain and Mrs. Lyon, Captain and Mrs. Niblack, Col. and Mrs. McClellan, Dr. and Mrs. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mr. and Mrs. William Hayward were the guests of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tenney on Friday evening. Mrs. Hayward wore a ravishing white frock, and her ornaments were pearls and diamonds. Mrs. Tenney in pink was most becomingly gowned. The table was beautifully decorated in yellow. The other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Focke, Mr. and Mrs. Faxon Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Suh, Mr. and Mrs. Holloway and Mr. Walker.

The annual dinner of the Bar Association which took place at the Alexander Young Hotel last evening was a very enjoyable affair. The dining-hall was elaborately decorated, red and white carnations being the flowers used. Potted plants and ferns gave the room a most attractive effect, and the table in the form of a dumbbell was decorated with white daisies in bowls of cut glass. A tent-like effect was obtained of ropes of malle and red carnations which were carried to each plate. The cloth was sprayed with red carnations and malle in a most artistic manner. The center of the table was filled with silver, a pagne of red carnations and maidenhair. Silver candelabras with red shades surrounded by pots of ferns completed a charming table decoration. Overhead hung American and Hawaiian flags. The place cards, done by Miss Justine McClanahan, bore a Latin inscription. The decorations of both the room and table were the work of Mrs. McClanahan and Mr. Harry Davison. Those present were: Hon. A. G. M. Robertson, president of the Bar Association, toastmaster. Near him were distinguished guests, The President of the United States—Acting Governor A. L. C. Atkinson. The Bench—Mr. Henry Holmes. The Unsuccessful Bidder in Contracts for Public Works—Mr. Charles F. Chapman. The Prosecution—Hon. Lorrin Andrews. The Law of Libel—Hon. Robt. W. Thompson. Opening and Closing—Mr. Frank E. Thompson. Address: Some Questions of Practice, Hon. Sanford B. Dole.

Mrs. F. M. Swany gave a bridge party on Tuesday afternoon. After the prizes of flowers had been given to Mrs. Fred Macfarlane and Mr. Herman Focke, the guests sat down to a dainty little repast. Among those present were Mrs. William Irwin, Mrs. M. M. Scott, Mrs. Rannie Scott, Mrs. Fred Macfarlane, Mrs. Focke, Mrs. Gerrit Wilder, Mrs. Sam Wilder, Mrs. Charles Wilder, Mrs. Kiebah, Misses Walker, Ms. Carl Holloway, Mrs. Harry Macfarlane, Mrs. Walbridge, Mrs. Blackman, and Mrs. Edward Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ivers gave a bridge party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William Irwin on Wednesday evening. About thirty were present, and the evening passed most agreeably. Mrs. Irwin looked very handsome and was beautifully dressed as usual.

H. I. Japanese Majesty's Consul General Miki Saito and Mrs. Saito gave an elaborate dinner in honor of Commissioner of Immigration Sargent on Tuesday evening at the Japanese Consulate. The dinner, a la Japanese, was delicious from beginning to end and much merriment was created by the mis-use of the chopsticks by the American guests. Handsome gifts were bestowed upon the guests during the evening as souvenirs of a very delightful affair. The Japanese ladies wore kimonos and very dainty and pretty they looked. Mrs. Miki Saito is much liked in Honolulu and is noted for her gracious manner and charming personality. Mr. Miki Saito is always a perfect host.

Mr. and Mrs. George Davies returned on the Aorangi after a very pleasant trip.

Mr. Cyril Lancaster arrived on the Aorangi and will be a guest of the Swanzys for a month.

A banquet was tendered Honorable Frank P. Sargent at the Chinese Consulate on Thursday evening. The house as well as the grounds were beautifully decorated and many talks were exchanged. Donahue, private secretary to Commissioner Sargent; F. M. Bechtel, J. K. Browne, Mr. Cullen, Mr. Halsey, George Currey, United States District Attorney R. W. Breckon, United States Marshal E. R. New York, June 4.—The suit for divorce of Mrs. Robert Lees Armit, the favorite daughter of "Al" Adams, who made millions of dollars out of the policy game in this city, will be heard at Newport tomorrow, where Mrs. Armit has lived for two years.

Mrs. Armit alleges desertion and non-support. Her husband is a wealthy mining operator in Mexico, but one of the chief reasons for the separation was Mrs. Armit's intense loyalty to her father when he was sent to Sing Sing prison, which brought about a disagreement between husband and wife.

The divorce suit is the final chapter to a romance and an elopement in picturesque Mexico.

Mrs. Armit met her husband at Guanajuato while visiting her brother there in 1902 and, without waiting for parental approval, went to an old church and was married.

One year later Mrs. Armit appeared in Newport and attracted a great deal of attention with her beautiful gowns and superb horsemanship when she rode her shaggy cob on the avenues.

WHEN YANKEE CAPTAIN WHIPPED THE JAPANESE

Incident That Opened Japan--Sudden Attack Similar To That Against Russians--Three Against One.

In these days of Japanese prowess on the sea it is a matter of satisfaction to the people of the United States that it was through their influence that the island nation received its first introduction to Western civilization. Furthermore, though few people remember it, the United States is the only nation that has ever conquered Japan on the seas.

The chapter of history in which Uncle Sam taught the Mikado's people that his ships and seamen were something to be feared was written away back in 1853, and its usages are almost hidden in the mass of stirring events that were occurring at that time. For our civil war was at its height, and happenings in far-off Japan, no matter how important, were too far away to attract attention. But the story of the conflict between Japan and the United States, read today, makes the affair seem so important that the only wonder to us is that it did not result in something more serious.

In fact, President Roosevelt, in speaking of it, said: "Had that action occurred at any other time than during the civil war its fame would have been echoed all over the world."

The United States steam frigate Wyoming, Capt. David Stockton McDougal, was the ship that figured in the battle. She had been sent to cruise in Asiatic waters, to keep an eye out for Confederate commerce destroyers, especially the Alabama, which was pursuing its course of destruction at the time.

The Wyoming carried two 11-inch Dahlgren guns on pivots amidships, and had four 32-pounders in the broadside. Her complement was 160 men.

The Mikado of Japan issued an edict in 1863 expelling all foreigners from his country. The Japanese were very bitter against all aliens at that time, and eager to plunge the Mikado into trouble with other powers, thus exhib-ing at that early date their present warlike tendency. This was notably the case with the men of the Choshu clan, the most bellicose of the Mikado's subjects.

What McDougal Had to Face. The first move of the Choshu men was to erect immense batteries of the straits of Shimonoseki, the western entrance to the inland sea, called the "Gibraltar of the Japanese Mediterranean." The straits are three miles long and a mile and a half wide, edged with high bluffs. On these bluffs the Choshu men erected seven batteries, mounted with 32, 24 and 12 pounder guns of the latest pattern, some of them having been purchased in America and others in England.

Besides, they had a navy of three ships, the iron steamer Lancefield, the brig Lanrick and, with the irony of fate, the bark Daniel Webster! These ships were armed with 24-pounders.

With their fleet and the batteries, the Japanese commanded the Straits completely, and it was a difficult matter for a ship to pass without being shot to pieces, for the Mikado's men were good shots even then.

First Treacherous Act. The American steamer Pembroke was the first vessel to find this out. On June 25, 1853, she entered the Straits, bound for Nagasaki. She followed the custom of dropping anchor and waiting for slack water. The account of what happened next is given in Edgar Stanton Maclay's "History of the American Navy."

"Soon after the Pembroke came to anchor, the Daniel Webster moved by and dropped anchor a short distance from her. No suspicions of foul play seem to have been entertained by the captain of the Pembroke, for he had shown his colors.

"About an hour after midnight the Daniel Webster, without the slightest warning, opened fire on the Pembroke, and soon the Lanrick approached, her crew shouting, and anchoring near the bark opened on the steamer. Realizing that the Japanese were determined to sink his vessel, the master of the Pembroke retraced his course and eluded his assailants. Complaint was made to the officials at Tokio, and indemnity to the amount of $10,000 was demanded and paid."

A fortnight later the French dispatch boat Kienchang was attacked in the same manner, and nearly sunk, while many of her men were killed. A Dutch cruiser, the Medusa, went to the Straits to see about the matter, was attacked by the batteries and the small Japanese fleet with such success that four of the Medusa's men were killed and five wounded, and thirty-one shots took effect in her hull, nearly sinking her.

Next, a French gunboat, the Tancrede, got in range of the batteries and war boats of the Japs and was sunk; and not long afterward a Japanese steamer, which the warriors mistook for a foreigner, was sent to the bottom after nine officers and nineteen seamen had been killed.

American Runs the Gauntlet. It may be seen by this that the Choshu men were having all kinds of fun, and it really was a shame to spoil it.

But Capt. McDougal and the Wyoming were in the neighborhood, and in no too good humor, and when the news of the indignity to the Pembroke reached the doughty American commander he proceeded to take the matter into his own hands, though the Wyoming was all ready to sail for home.

Determining to proceed to the scene of hostilities, "he dropped anchor," says Mr. Maclay, "at the eastern end of the Straits on the evening of July 15, having first learned that the Lancefield drew no more water than his own ship. Early the next morning the Wyoming rounded a point of land, when one of the batteries opened fire, the first shot striking the ship just above the engine room, cutting away some rigging--ample evidence of the accuracy of Japanese gunners. Making no reply to this, the Wyoming steamed on until she rounded another promontory, when she came within full sight of the town and within long range of all the batteries and the Japanese warships.

Japs Were Cocky. "The shrewd American commander had noticed a line of stakes driven into the mud, evidently marking the edge of the main channel. Rightly guessing that the enemy had long got the precise range of this water-way, McDougal ordered his pilots to take his ship toward the northern shore, close under the batteries on that side. The Daniel Webster was anchored close to the town, the Lanrick about fifty yards beyond, and a length ahead and near her was the Lancefield. All these vessels were rigged with kedg anchors and grapples at their yards, ready to close on the Wyoming and carry her by boarding. Their decks were covered with men, shouting and defying the Americans to come on.

"Making directly for these vessels, McDougal shook out his colors but reserved his fire, intending to attack the Japanese first and give his attention to the batteries afterward. The sight of the American flags seemed to have acted like oil on the fire, for now the Japanese opened from other batteries with savage ferocity. McDougal's shift from the main channel somewhat disconcerted their plans, as seen by the fact that most of their shot took effect on the Wyoming's rigging. Observing a good opportunity to deliver a few blows, McDougal opened with his pivots and starboard guns, and with such effect that one battery was torn to pieces and silenced at the first broadside.

Japanese Had Three Good Ships, Supported By Batteries And Good Arms And Amunition--Final Victory.

"Keeping steadily on for the ship, line, pierced the boiler and came out on the other side, tearing a great hole in the hull. As if not satisfied with the work, the shell speeded over the water and exploded in the town, a quarter of a mile away.

Sunk Two Ships. "In an instant the Lancefield was enveloped in a mass of steam, smoke, flame and cinders. Scores of men threw themselves into the sea. Two more shells were then sent into the Lancefield to insure her destruction. The pivot guns were then turned on the Daniel Webster, which ship had been keeping up a destructive fire. A few well-directed shells settled her fate, and she followed the Lancefield to the bottom. McDougal was now able to devote his entire attention to the shore batteries. He deliberately retraced his course through the straits, keeping up a most effective fire, so much so that, although greatly exposed, his vessel was scarcely injured.

"After passing the last battery and getting beyond the reach of the Japanese guns, the Wyoming came to, and the men had time to count their losses. The action had lasted just one hour and ten minutes, in which time the Wyoming had been struck more than twenty times, ten shot having pierced her hull. The ship had fired fifty-five rounds, or nearly one for every minute of the action. Six men were killed and four wounded.

"Four days later the French frigate Semiramis and gunboat Tancrede entered the straits and, after landing a detachment of 250 men, captured the batteries.

"Speaking of the brilliant action, Griffis says: 'To the Choshu clanmen, brave and capable as they themselves were, it seemed as though McDougal possessed more than human nerve in thus running his vessel into the fierce fire which they had prepared for him. Long afterward they spoke respectfully of the "American devils."'

JAPANESE OFFICER'S STORY OF THE BATTLE OF KOREAN STRAITS

Tokio, June 4.—A Japanese officer who has returned to Sasabo gives the following account of the sea fight off the Tsu islands: At 5:30 o'clock Saturday morning a wireless message reading "The enemy's squadron is in sight" reached the naval base. This message was transmitted to all our ships, with instructions to get ready for action. Our squadrons left their rendezvous and headed for the eastern channel off Tsushima. Our men seemed to be filled with new inspiration and were eager for the long-delayed fight to begin.

When Tsushima was sighted to the southwest the sea was rough and the torpedo boats were forced to run for the shelter of the island. Our third fighting squadron with the Takashio to port reconnoitered the Russian squadrons. The cruisers Vladimir Monarch and Dimitri Donskoi were detached from the left column and sent to their aid. They were repulsed by the Japanese cruisers, but not before the Ural had been brought to a sinking condition.

The battle continued until 5 o'clock without any further noticeable change in the situation. Soon thereafter the battleship Alexander III began to list badly and dropped out of the line, but was quickly repaired, resuming her place and reopening fire. The battleship Borodino was then heading the line. The Japanese, noticing the condition of the Alexander III, concentrated their fire upon her. She again dropped out of the line, this time finally, and disappeared.

Such a heavy fire from the Japanese 12-inch guns was then directed against the Borodino that she was disabled and sank. This was at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. The battleship Sissoi Veliky was now abaze, but was firing every available gun. At this hour the onslaught of torpedo boats from the coast of Japan and the closing in of the battleships from the left broke up the Russian fleet, all of which except four battleships and the converted cruiser Ural had been holding together.

During the night the Japanese torpedo attacks continued, the result of which was not known here until the report of the commander of the cruiser Izumrud was received from Vladivostok.

During the battle a mass of Japanese junks is said to have obstructed movements of the Russian fleet. The Russian officers assert that these junks scattered mines in the paths of their vessels.

The bodies of Lieut. Machilis of the cruiser Almaz and of other officers and sailors brought here by the Almaz and the torpedo boat destroyers, were buried today. Captain Reiff of the destroyer Grozny, describing the capture of Admiral Rojestvensky, said that his vessel, in company with the destroyer Bedovi, on which Admiral Rojestvensky escaped, was steaming northward when they encountered two Japanese destroyers. The Bedovi signaled the Grozny, "How many knots can you make?" and on receiving the reply, "Twenty-three," ordered full speed for Vladivostok.

The engagement now became very fierce. The Borodino was seen to be on fire. A little later the Russians headed west and we changed our course accordingly. Five ships of our second division concentrated their fire on the Borodino.

"Our first division now began firing vigorously, proceeding parallel with the Russian line, and as we began to press against the head of the Russian line, our division veered to the Russian rear, thus enveloping their ships. The engagement proceeded hotly. Our second division followed a course parallel with the northern side of the Russians and this movement completed the envelopment.

The Russian ships were seen trying to break through, and our destroyer flotilla intercepted their new course. This state of envelopment continued until the following day, with the ships at varying distances. Thus enclosed on all sides, the Russians were helpless to escape the circle.

Previous instructions had been given the destroyers and torpedo boats to attack the Russian ships. Following instructions, the fifth destroyer flotilla advanced against a Russian ship, upon which the second division had been concentrating its fire, signalling, "We are going to give the last thrust at them." The Russian ship continued to fight and seeing the approaching torpedo boats directed its fire on them. Undaunted, our destroyers pressed forward, the Chitose meantime continuing its fire. The torpedo flotilla arrived within 200 meters of the Russian ship and the Shiranous fired the first shot. Two other torpedo boats fired one each. The Shiranous received two shells but the other boats were not damaged. The Russian ship was sunk.

Sundown saw the battle raging furiously. Our shells were evidently telling on the Russians, who showed signs of confusion. Our fifth torpedo flotilla, after destroying the Borodino, followed in the wake of our second division, the signal reading: "Something like the Russians' submarines have been sighted, attack them." The flotilla followed and located the object, which proved to be a sinking ship with its overturned bottom showing. Thirty survivors clung to the wreck crying for assistance. Firing ceased with the approach of darkness.

According to orders previously given for a torpedo attack after dark, all the destroyer flotillas, dividing into two squadrons, proceeded to attack the Russians during the whole night. The Russians frustrated the first and second attacks with searchlights. A third attempt was carefully made and the Yugiri sank a ship of the Borodino type and also hit others. During the night the Russians continued to move and we preserved our enveloping movement some distance from the Russian position. The Russian ships headed northeast after daybreak hoping to reach Vladivostok. Our officers and men were determined that not a ship should escape and resolved not to relax their efforts until they had succeeded in either sinking or capturing every Russian ship.

Our ships always kept ahead of the Russians. The battle was resumed at 9 o'clock Sunday morning twelve miles east of Chuyppon bay and lasted all day. Here the Russians suffered the heaviest losses. They seemed quite unprepared to repel night attacks. During our first night attack the Russians showed nine searchlights and frustrated the attacks, but clearly gave us the location of the fleet, which teachings of experience.

The battle shows no novel features. Nothing was more notable than the Japanese skill in using torpedoes, contrasting markedly with their previous ill successes and evidently resulting from the special course of training they recently pursued, together with the Course Of The Battle As Seen From Russian Ships

Vladivostok, June 4.—From the accounts of participants in the battle of the Sea of Japan as given here can be constructed a picture of the first day of the fight in the morning of May 27, when the Russian fleet found itself 120 miles south of Tsu island. It was headed for the straits in three columns, the battleships and five cruisers on the left, the light cruisers on the right, and the transports and torpedo boats between. The weather was foggy and the view therefore difficult.

At 8:30 o'clock in the morning the Russian fleet was discovered by the Japanese cruiser Idzumo, which blundered upon it in the fog, and narrowly escaped capture.

At 10:30 o'clock four Japanese cruisers, the Chitose, Kasuga, the Sushima and Nitaka were discovered to the northeast of the fleet and were fired upon by the battleships. The Japanese cruisers disappeared and the Russian fleet proceeded through the strait.

Suddenly at 1:20 o'clock in the afternoon a gaunt silhouette of Japanese vessels, their greenish-blue paint making them scarcely visible in the fog, loomed up to the westward of the Russian vessels. These Japanese consisted of four battleships and the armored cruisers Tokiwa, Nisshin, Kasuga, Iwate and Idzumo. They immediately opened a heavy fire, which was especially directed against the flagships of the various squadrons of the Russian fleet.

Admiral Rojestvensky signaled to the transports to place themselves on the right of the squadron of light cruisers, so as to increase their distance from the fighting portion of the fleet, which was now hotly engaged and suffering under the well-aimed fire of the Japanese.

Owing to the precision of the Japanese gunners and the concentration of their fire on the flagships, within an hour and a half the Kniaz Souvaroff and the Ocellabia were reduced to wrecks and soon sank.

Almost at the same time as the opening of the engagement between the battleship divisions a column of light Japanese cruisers appeared from the eastward and fell upon the retreating Russian transports and the light cru-

Russia's Batteries Were All Weak

St. Petersburg, June 10.—The Russian General who under the signature of "S. K." has been making a series of scathing attacks on the War Ministry in the "Russkaya Vedomosti" declares that the inferiority of the Russian artillery is alone sufficient to account for Japan's victories.

The Putiloff field gun of 1900 was pronounced to be inferior almost as soon as the model was adopted. Yet at the beginning of the war almost the whole of Kuropatkin's army was armed with it. In 1902 a new and improved type of field gun was decided upon; yet a year later the War Office, seeing a crisis imminent, began to manufacture guns of the old, condemned type of 1900. Up to the end of March, 1905, only three batteries of the new 1902 guns had been sent to the Far East.

During the first six months of the war, when the fighting was exclusively in hilly country, there was two batteries of horse artillery and these were a type dating back to 1883. Yet as far back as the beginning of 1903 the Japanese army had no less than 410 quick-firing mountain guns of the Arisaka system.

As regards heavy artillery, the War Office was no less remiss. Up to Liao yang Russia had no heavy field artillery at all, and even as late as December, 1904, there were only ten batteries of mortars. As regards weight of shell, initial speed and mobility, the Russian guns were inferior to the Japanese.

The Russian artillery was hopelessly outclassed from the outset.

FACTS ABOUT NORWAY

Norway marked another turning point in its history when it declared itself independent of Sweden, with which it has been associated since 1814. Norway's historical period stretches no farther back than the ninth century. Behind that time are the ages of the sagas. The petty tribal kings were united under Harald Haarfagr, or Fairhair. Harald died about 933, after having established his government at Trondhjem in the north. The Danes and Norwegians were the terror of all Europe at this time through their plundering forays and invasions.

In the hundred years that followed the death of Harald Haarfagr Christianity was introduced. In the year 1028 King Olaf, the Saint, was driven out by King Canute the Great of Denmark, but Olaf's son recovered possession, and until 1319 Norway continued to be governed by native kings. During these centuries the Norse adventurers established permanent colonies in Iceland and Greenland and for a while the Orkney and Shetland Isles and the Hebrides were in the possession of Norwegian kings, whose last lord into Scotland was repelled in 1263.

In 1319, there being no male heirs to the throne, the Norwegian national assembly chose Magnus of Sweden to be king. His grandson, having been elected king of Denmark in 1376, became ruler of both Scandinavian kingdoms on the death of his father in 1380. The last died without male heirs and his mother, Queen Margaret, of Denmark and Norway. Later she became mistress also of Sweden. The three kingdoms were bound together by the union of Calmar in 1397.

Thence till 1814 Norway continued united with Denmark. The wars of Napoleon severed the union which had existed for more than 400 years. Denmark had sided with Bonaparte and after his defeat the allies compelled her to purchase peace by abandoning her sovereignty over Norway. After the treaty of Kiel in 1814, by which Denmark's claim to Norway was extinguished, Sweden and Norway became associated under one king.

Norway's coast along its outer belt of rocks measures about 1,700 miles, but its entire shore line, including the fjords and the large islands, is close to 12,000 miles in length, enough to reach half way around the world. Norway is about 250 miles wide in the south and in the north a little more than sixty miles. Its area is 124,129 square miles, a little more than the area of New Mexico. Its population in 1900 numbered 2,239,880 and Sweden's in the following year numbered 5,175,228.

THE VOICE IN THE TELEPHONE.

"Suppose you are paying an early morning visit to the Chicago Stock Yards," says Charles E. Russell in Everybody's June installment of "The Greatest Trust in the World." "The Yards open at seven o'clock. In the old days selling began at that hour, but now the drovers stand idly by their pens waiting, waiting. Certain men that will be pointed out to you as the buyers for Armour, Swift, Morris, and the National Packing Company go about observantly, noting all but buying nothing. Before long these disappear, to presently return. You do not know it, but in their absence there has been a mysterious conference over the private telephone wires in Packing town. If the day be Monday, let us say, the buyer for Armour now goes briskly along the line inspecting cattle and offering up to a certain figure, perhaps $4.50 for good stock. If the drover accepts the offer, well and good. If not, the gental buyer walks his way serene—he does not care. Take it or leave it, is his motto.

"And behind him moves the buyer for Swift & Co., and he goes languidly among the offerings, and nothing he sees suits him. And if the drover becomes insistent and will not let go without a bid, Swift's man bids, but it is at just the same price as Armour's always the same. And after him may come the head buyer for Morris, and he is of the mind of Swift's man, exactly the same. And after him may come the head buyer for the National Packing Company. And he is of the mind of Morris's man. One price among them all, and only one ready to buy.

"Can you indict a voice? I don't know. But that voice in the telephone every day is the instrument by which the combination in restraint of trade lives and moves and has its being. One little voice! To this stage has trade consolidation and industrial monopoly come at last. One man's voice in a telephone determines how much a million farmers shall lose on their cattle."

ENGLISH INFLUENCE IN AMERICA

In the discussion of a book on Americans Mr. Joseph Jastrow ("Dial," March 1st) says:

"Specifically does it fall by lack of comprehension of the underlying sterling English group of ideas and modes of reaction which still constitute the core of Americanism. The point would bear elaboration. In spite of the many variations, the intrinsically English temper of our civilization is most effective. American self-restraint is not English self-restraint; but it serves as a common differentiation when the American is to be contrasted with the German or the Frenchman. The same insistence on this factor of good form and of propriety—pervade English and American life."

"Thoughts for the Occasion" Fraternal and Benevolent, compiled by Franklin Noble, 12mo., cloth; 576 p.p. E. B. Treat & Co., 241-243 West 23rd St., New York. $2.00 net.

This admirable printed and bound volume, uniform with "Thoughts for the Occasion" series, will be greatly appreciated by the large number of members of the different fraternal organizations.

Such members often find themselves urgently in need of the particular information furnished.

Dr. Noble calls his book a "reference manual of historical data and facts; helpful in suggesting themes and in outlining addresses for the observance of timely or special occasions of the various orders."

It is more than that—it is an interesting collection of speeches, addresses, sermons and accounts which any one can read with pleasure as well as benefit. The history of Free Masonry is full.

There are addresses on the same subject by Roscoe Pound, Wm. McKinley, Rev. A. E. Barnett, Gilbert Patten Brown and Jesse Jones.

The statement of Benjamin Franklin, who was himself a Mason, is given. Other orders fully represented in the same manner are: Knights of Pythias, Woodmen of America, Odd Fellows, Royal Arcanum, United Workmen, Foresters, Knights of Maccabees, Order of Red Men, Elks, Knights of Malta, Chosen Friends, and many more.

The compiler claims to have considered every secret and fraternal order. In his preface the author makes some very interesting statements. He tells us that six million persons belong to fraternal societies in America. "They are a growth for the most part of the century just closed." They met with much opposition particularly from the church, but they lived on, and many of them flourished all the better for the anathemas. In many of them membership is increasing and new orders are being established to meet new needs.

In America no order is suspected of treason and plotting, and few are under any religious ban.

"We believe also that members of different Orders, looking forward to public occasions, and wishing perhaps to take effective part in them, will be glad to see how such things have been done in the past, and may find in what others have said valuable suggestion for themselves. Many of us do not know how good things have been said for a cause which lies near our hearts, and the record of it can hardly fail to kindle our thoughts to a happy and profitable expression."

"We wish to present a series of able and interesting addresses in which some of the most distinguished men of our time have expressed their appreciation of these fraternalities."

The "secret" which some churches have magnified into a bugaboo, is nothing more than a matter of privacy and self-protection. Each family has a form of secrecy—and if it hasn't it is because its matters have passed into the hands of a divorce court.

The church (which has been very meddlesome at times) tried to control family secrets as well, but it has given that up as a bad job. Each government has its secrets, each corporation, and, Lord bless us! each individual. Why not the lodges?

Dr. Noble says that the "real secrecy of the Orders is their active charity, which abounds in unpublished deeds of helpfulness, and watches over the needs of members and those dependent on them."

And a man possessed of good health, reason, and money enough to pay his dues, who doesn't belong to some secret organization—fraternal, beneficiary or domestic—has no business to be an American citizen. He is most likely a crank.

"Thoughts for the Occasion" will, I am sure, meet with a hearty welcome in Hawaii where so many belong to the fraternal societies, and where the standard of membership is said to be so high.

HILO SHERIFF PROBLEM

Hilo, June 27.—A question which is puzzling Sheriff-elect William Keolanui and other fusionist leaders is whether the enactment of a county law ipse facto terminates the terms of office of members of the Sheriff's department. There is a feeling of unrest in the police force, and it has been rumored that none of the present incumbents will resign. It was reported that Capt. W. A. Fetter, who as a Republican was elected Deputy Sheriff for the district of South Hilo, would refuse to serve under Sheriff Keolanui, but Capt. Fetter denies this statement most emphatically. If there is no express provision in the County Act providing for the termination of office of the present officers, the public may see the County of Hawaii presided over by two distinct and separate executive law officers. This would mean that before Sheriff Searle can be displaced by Sheriff-elect Keolanui, he must either resign or be removed by the Governor.

When interviewed by a Tribune representative, Sheriff Searle was non-committal on the subject: "I have nothing to say for publication," said Sheriff Searle.

It is understood that the matter has been regarded as such a serious matter, that Sheriff-elect Keolanui has retained C. M. LeBlond, special counsel to protect his interests.—Hilo Tribune.

HILO'S HIGH SCHOOL

Hilo, June 27.—Superintendent Davis of the Department of Education appointed Representative Jas. D. Lewis, Normal Inspector C. E. King and School Agent L. Severance as a committee to determine on a site for the new Hilo High School, for which $30,000 was appropriated at the last Legislature. After considering the various sites suggested, the committee practically determined on the lot on which now stands the Riverside School. The present lot is not quite large enough to accommodate both the Riverside and the High Schools, which latter will be a nine-room building, and if a portion of the hospital grounds can be secured, the mauka portion of the Riverside lot will be used for High School purposes.

Overtures have been made by the Masonic Hall Association to exchange their large building lot above the Mason residence for the government property where the Masonic Hall is now located. It is understood, the proximity of the Masonic lot to the Union and Riverside schools, makes it very desirable for school purposes, but no definite decision has been reached on the subject. Normal Inspector King returned to Honolulu Friday and will make a full report to the Department.—Tribune.

Immigration Problem Is To Be Tackled By Roosevelt

Chicago, May 21.—In a Washington dispatch to the Record-Herald, Walter Wellman says President Roosevelt has taken up the immigration question and is preparing to call it to the attention of Congress and the country. The President believes that one of the most serious problems now confronting the American people is how to deal with the horde of undesirable immigrants Europe is pouring upon our shores.

During the fiscal year which ends June 30th next, all immigration records will be broken. In those twelve months well on toward nearly a million steamer passengers will have arrived in the United States looking for homes and work. The greatest number arriving in any previous year was $87,046, during the twelve months ended with June, 1902. For 1904 the total was $12,870, and for 1905 it will be between 900,000 and 1,000,000.

These are appalling figures. They are more appalling when they are analyzed and their significance more fully understood. They mean that in a single year there pours into the country a multitude of humble people equal to or greater than the present population of eighteen states of the Union. It means that if all of these newcomers, poor of purse, and most of them poorer yet in qualifications for citizenship, were to assemble in one place they would alone make a city exceeded in population by only New York, Chicago and Philadelphia.

It means that to every eighty men, women and children in the United States at the beginning of the year, one is to be added during the twelve months from the steerage of the trans-Atlantic steamships. It means an increase of about 20 per cent in the number of men in the United States whose means of livelihood is such that they are officially classed as laborers in the census reports.

In view of these amazing facts, it is not surprising to learn that President Roosevelt has upon his desk collections of reports bearing upon immigration which he is carefully studying with the intention of urging consideration of the problem upon Congress at an early day.

HONOLULU JAPANESE TO SUE THE PACIFIC MAIL

The Chronical of May 26 says: It may cost the Pacific Mail Steamship Company something for the treatment accorded U. Hara, a Japanese, by Chief Officer Andrew Dixon of the liner Mongolia. Hara has, in fact, according to some authorities, the best case that has developed for a long time, and he seems disposed to make the most of it.

When the Mongolia was at Honolulu a week ago a search of the steamer was made for Japanese stowaways, and seven out of the eight known to be aboard were routed out and transferred to the Coptic, bound back to the land of the crysanthemum. The eighth man could not be found, although every nook and cranny of the big vessel was gone over. When the officers had finished the search a Japanese was seen to jump overboard and strike out for the shore. The Mongolia was at that moment getting under way for the trip to this city. The Jap was immediately picked up by a skiff from a pilot boat and returned to the Mongolia. As the fellow landed on deck, drenched and shivering, Chief Officer Dixon, exasperated in consequence of the long search for the stowaway, and believing that this man was the fellow wanted, met him with a blow. The assault was witnessed by many of the passengers, who did not hesitate to voice their displeasure and make comments regarding the alleged brutality of the mate. The Japanese was then placed in irons and kept on deck for some time before being sent to a room and given dry clothing.

Some hours later, or when the Mongolia was far at sea, the real stowaway appeared, and the officers of the Mongolia realized that they had made a mistake. It developed then that the fellow taken from the water and put in irons was an innocent victim. He was a plantation hand, who had gone aboard the Mongolia to chat with his countrymen, and upon discovering that the vessel was under way, had jumped overboard with the intention of returning to shore. Coincident with this discovery, different treatment was meted out to Hara. He was provided with good clothing and released from confinement, and was permitted to pay his fare to this city, for he had decided en route to forsake Honolulu and look for employment here. He speaks English, and he confirmed the story of the assault by Mate Dixon.

Dixon denies having struck the man with his fist, declaring that he only slapped him to hurry him up as he came aboard and save further detention of the steamer. Dixon is upheld by some of the passengers, who say that the assault on the Japanese was not particularly severe. But the fellow thinks he has a pretty good case against the Pacific Mail Company for abduction, assault, humiliation and a few other things.

We offer those having Bright's Disease a 36-page report on many test cases put on FULTON'S RENAL COMPOUND for Bright's Disease. It shows 87 per cent of recoveries in this hitherto fatal disease. The pamphlet is free. The Honolulu Disp. Co. local agent

These figures are stirring up health officials all over the country. However, here are some additional census facts that throw new light on the increase:

In 1880 the census reported deaths from kidney disease, but none from Bright's Disease.

In 1890 of the 37,549 deaths that year from kidney disease, over half, viz., 22,330, were recognized as Bright's Disease.

In 1900, of the 63,612 deaths, 58,748 (over nine-tenths) were known to be Bright's Disease.

These figures disclose that the distressing increase in Bright's Disease is not so much due to the sudden development of the disease as to the fact that what we have in the past called kidney disease is in about nine-tenths of all cases Bright's Disease, and the deaths are now so reported.

When to suspect Bright's Disease—weakness or loss of weight, puffy ankles, hands or eyelids; kidney trouble after the third month; urine may show sediment; falling vision; drowsiness; one or more of these.

ROJESTVENSKY'S LOSS

EXPERTS DISCUSS DETAILS IF HOW IT HAPPENED

PLAYED IN POOR LUCK AS TO WIND AND WEATHER AND HIS MEN COULDN'T SHOOT STRAIGHT.

Tokio, June 2.—Admiral Togo, telegraphing yesterday, says: "The ships sent northward to search for Russian ships returned yesterday. The cruisers Iwate and Yakumo and other vessels sent southward to find Russian ships returned today. They thoroughly searched the Shanghai course from Taushima and vicinity, but on both sides found no trace of the Russians." Admiral Shimamura, on board the cruiser Iwate, reports: "During the battle on May 27th, at 3:07 p. m., the cruiser Iwate vigorously attacked the protected cruiser Jemtechug at a distance of 3000 meters. The Jemtechug sank in one minute. The loss of the Jemtechug is therefore confirmed. During the engagement fire broke out on the Jemtechug and smoke concealed the hull of the vessel. Consequently the remainder of our fleet were unable to see the ship."

Causes of Russian Defeat. The cardinal causes of Rojestvensky's defeat have been the subject of general discussion here. One Japanese expert gives the following analysis: "First, an imperfect reconnaissance and incomplete, faulty and misleading intelligence. Second, an imperfect battle formation, which indicated that Rojestvensky did not expect to meet Togo off Taushima. Third, the weather, the direction of the wind and the sunlight were unfavorable to the Russians, Togo having the sun behind him and firing with the wind, while the Russians had the sunlight in their eyes and fired against the wind. Fourth, the Russians wasted their ammunition and eventually ran short. It is believed that the surrender of Nebogotoff was necessary because his ammunition had been expended. Fifth, the marked inferiority of Russian gunnery."

Some experts criticize Rojestvensky for essaying the Taushima channel. Others uphold him, saying that his only chance lay in going through that channel. The impression prevails that Rojestvensky was totally unaware of the presence of Togo's entire fleet off Taushima. Many believe that it was necessary for Togo to take a station at a pivotal point from which it would be possible to intercept the Russians entering either Taushima, Tsugaru or Soya channels. Calculations placed this pivotal point on the west coast, near the western entrance of the Tsugaru channel. Togo's real whereabouts were known to many Japanese, but the secret was successfully guarded; another example of the willingness and ability of the Japanese to preserve military secrets.

Well Trained by Togo. Leaving aside the questions of preparedness and superior conditions, the superiority of the personnel fresh from fifteen months' successful campaigning, under all possible conditions, must be taken into consideration. Many ascribe the victory entirely to the superior marksmanship of the Japanese. Togo, realizing that it would probably be necessary to fight in the open sea, gave his crews long training in firing during rough weather with a heavy wind blowing and the ships rolling. When the hostile fleets met the superiority of the Japanese immediately became evident. The sinking of battleships and armored cruisers by shell fire testifies to the deadly accuracy of the Japanese guns, and destroys the theory that it is impossible to sink such ships by shell fire.

The attitude of Japanese naval men toward victory is curious. Togo's message to the Emperor saying that the victory was the result of the Emperor's superhuman influence strikes the keynote of the navy's attitude. The officers openly say that the marvelous result obtained was impossible by mere human achievement alone.

Japan Has Free Hand. With the destruction of Russia's naval power interest is returning to military operations on land. Togo's victory tremendously alters the military situation and removes all limits to offensive operations against Russia's maritime provinces. It is now possible to effectively close Vladivostok, seize Saghalien, the mouth of the Amur river, Kamtschatka and any point between the Tumen river and the Arctic circle that the Japanese may desire.

A foreign military observer discussing the question with a correspondent said: "Togo's victory may drive Russia away from the Pacific coast of Asia. Japan now has a free hand in Russia's maritime provinces, and her offensive capability is limited. Nothing bars the way except the Russian force at Vladivostok, whose speedy isolation is possible. The Amur river is open to Japan, and Russia's defensive capability is now entirely limited to the capacity of the Chinese Siberian railway."

The Captain of the Janizaries

By JAMES M. LUDLOW

Copyright, 1886, by Dodd, Mead & Co. Copyright, 1890, by James M. Ludlow

The padishah's bugle sounded the call. It rang over the waters, evoking echoes from the triple shore of Stamboul, Galata and Scutari, which died away in the distant billows of Marmora. As it was to be the last evening before the pageant of the grand reception, the time was occupied in making final arrangements for the order in which the boats should move, so that it was growing dark when the padishah reminded the chief marshal that they must have the race for the admiral's badge. Katub, a fat and indolent eunuch, was ordered to moor his calque for the stake boat as far out toward the swift current as safety would permit.

The two competitors darted to the side of Mahomet's barge. From a long staff, just high enough above the water to be reached by the hand, hung a tiny streamer of silk, the broad field of which was dotted with pearls. This was to be the possession of the fair rower who, rounding the stake boat first, could return and seize it.

The boats kept close company. The Egyptian was expending her full strength, but her companion, with longer and fewer strokes, was apparently reserving hers. They neared the stake. The Egyptian, having the inside, began to round it, but the Albanian kept on, now with rapid and strong strokes. The spectators were amazed at her tactics.

"She is making too wide a sweep," said the sultan.

"She does not seem inclined to turn at all," observed the kishar agent.

"She will strike the current if she turns not soon," rejoined Mahomet excitedly.

The prow of her calque turned of westward.

"She is in the stream!" cried several.

"She will be overturned!" But on sped the calque, heading full down the current, which, catching it like some friendly spirit from beneath, bore it quickly out of sight around the seraglio point, and on—into a thick mist, which was rolling up as if sent of heaven to meet it, from the broad expanse of the sea.

"An escape!" cried the sultan. "After her, every one of you black devils!"

The eunuchs wasted several precious moments in getting the command through their heads, and even when they started it was evident that their muscles were too winded, their spines too limp and their mind not full enough to overhaul the flying skiff of the Albanian.

"To shore! To horse!" cried the racing monarch.

A quarter of an hour later horsemen were clattering down the stony street along the water front of Marmora, passing now and then to stare out into the sea mist, dashing on, stopping and starting, and on again. The foremost to reach the Castle of the Seven Towers left orders to scour the shore and to set patrol to prevent any one landing. Some were ordered to dart across to the islands. Within an hour from the escape every inch of shore and the great water course opposite the city was under complete surveillance.

Just before this was accomplished a man arrived at the water's edge close to the south side of the great wall of which the Castle of Seven Towers was

"After her, every one of you!" the northern flank. He held two horses, saddled and bridled, as if for a distant journey. A second man appeared a moment later, who came up from a clump of bushes a little way below.

"In good time, Marcus," said the newcomer, who stooped close to the water and listened, putting his hand to his ear so as to exclude all sounds except such as should come from the sea above.

"Listen! An oar stroke! Yes. Keep everything tight, Marcus!"

Darting into the cove, in a moment the man was gliding in a calque with a noiseless stroke out in the direction of the oar splash of the approaching boat. Nearer and nearer it came. The night and the mist prevented its being seen. The man moved close to its line. It was a light calque, he knew from the almost noiseless ripple of the water as the sharp prow cut it. The man gave a slight whistle, when the stroke of the invisible boat ceased and the ripple at its prow died away.

"Morsinia!"

"Aye, thank heaven!" came the response.

"Speak not now, but follow!" And he led the way cautiously toward the little beach where the horses were heard stamping. They were several rods off, plotting themselves by the sound.

"Hark!" said the man, stopping the boats. Hoofs were heard approaching, and voices—

"She might have put across to the Princess Island," said one.

"Nonsense!" was the reply. "She would only imprison herself by that! More likely she has gone clean across to Chalcidion. But I hold that she has played fox and turned on her trail. You know she is here by this time in Galata with some of the Genoese galleons. If so, she will try to escape in a galley, but that can be prevented. For the padishah will overhaul every craft that sails out until he finds her. But hoot, man! What have we here? Two horses! A woman's baggage! She has an accomplice! An elopement! The horses are tied. The runaway couple haven't arrived yet. Dismount, men! We will lie in wait along the shore here. Yes, let their two horses stand there to draw them to the spot by their stamping. Send ours out of hearing. Now, every man to his place! Silence!"

"Back! Back! We are pursued on land," said the man in the boat to Morsinia, and both boats pushed noiselessly out again from the shore.

"I had prepared for this, Morsinia. You must come into my boat. We will row below for a mile, where we can arrange it at the shore."

Quietly they shot down in the lessening current until they turned into a little cove made by a projecting rock. As lightly as a fawn the girl leaped to the beach. Her companion was by her side in an instant. She drew back and gave no return to his warm embrace, but said heartily:

"Thank heaven and you, Michael!"

"Michael!" exclaimed the man. "Indeed I do not wonder that you think me a spirit and call me by the name of my dead brother. But this shall assure you that I am Constantine and in the flesh!" cried he as he pressed a kiss upon her lips.

Morsinia was dazed. She tried to scan his face. She felt as one lifeless into his arms.

He seated himself on the rock and held her to his heart. For awhile neither could speak.

"Is it real?" said she at length, raising her head and feeling his face with her hand. "But how?"

Voices were heard shouting over the water.

"We must be gone," said Constantine.

The excitement of her discovery that her lover was still living and her bewilderment at his appearance instead of Michael were too much for Morsinia. Constantine carried the exhausted girl into his boat, which was larger than hers. Towing her little calque out some distance, he tipped it bottom upward and let it drift away.

"That will stop the hounds," muttered he. "They will think you have been overturned."

With tremendous but scarcely audible strokes he plowed away westward. It was not until far from all noise of the pursuers that he paused.

Imminent as was the danger still, the curiosity of both at the strangeness of the providence which had brought them back to each other as from the dead was such that they must talk, and the freshness of the newly kindled love stole many a moment for endearing embrace. Indeed an hour passed, and the night might have flown while they loitered were it not that the rising wind brought a distant sound which awakened them to the remembrance that they were still fugitives.

Constantine at length insisted that his companion should lie upon the bottom of the boat and take needed rest.

"If I had now my cloak," said she.

"I have provided for that," replied Constantine. "Yours would be recognized. I have one belonging to the common women, which will be better." In addition, the foresight of Constantine had laid in warm wraps and a store of provisions. These were packed in bundles that they might be carried conveniently on horses, in the hand or in the boat, as necessity should compel.

"I cannot rest," said Morsinia, "when there is so much to say and hear."

"But you must lie down. I will tell you my story; then you can tell me yours."

"But can we not stop?"

"No. It will not be safe to do so yet."

"I have learned to trust your guidance as well as your love," said she and reclined in the stern of the boat.

The moon rose near to midnight. The fog illuminated by it made them clearly visible to each other, while it shut out the possibility of their being seen by any from a distance.

"It is the blessing of Jesu upon us," said Morsinia. "The same as when he stood upon the little lake in Galilee, like a form of light, and said, 'Be not afraid.'"

Constantine gave his story in hasty sentences and detached portions, breaking it by pauses in which he listened for pursuers or gave his whole strength to the oars or more frequently did nothing but gaze at his companion, more than once reaching out his hand to touch her and see if she were not an apparition.

He told of his escape from the Turks, his arrest as a lunatic and the scene before the sultan, his return to Constantinople after its capture and the apparent evidence he there had from the old beggar of Morsinia's death, with all of which the reader is familiar. He also related how he had gone to Albania. The report of Morsinia's death had caused the greatest grief to Kabilovitch and thrown General Castriot into such a rage that he found a means for it in a special raid upon the Turkish camp, which raid was remembered and was still spoken of by the soldiers as the "Call of the Maiden."

After that Sultan Mahomet sent a special embassy and proposal of peace to Albania. In the royal letter he stated:

"She whom the emperor of the Greeks was unable to keep for Scanderbeg is now in the custody of the royal harem safe and inviolate, to be delivered into Scanderbeg's hand as a pledge of a treaty by which Scanderbeg shall agree to cease from further depredations and invasion of Macedonia and to submit to hold his kingdom in fief to the Ottoman throne."

The letter ended with a boastful reference to the sultan's conquest of Constantinople, Caramania and other countries and the threat of invading Albania with a host so great as to cover all its territory with the shadow of the camp.

Castriot's reply, when known, filled the Dibrans and Epirota with great enthusiasm. It closed with the words:

"What if you have subjugated Greece and put into servitude them of Asia? These are no examples for the free hearts of Albania!"

The news contained in Mahomet's missive led Castriot to allow Constantine to go to Constantinople that he might discover if possible whether Morsinia was really living and was the person referred to by the sultan. On reaching the city Constantine had sought out the monk Genadius, with whom he had been often thrown before and during the siege. From him he learned nothing of Morsinia except the old story of her self sacrifice by the side of the altar, which story had become so adorned with many additions in passing from mouth to mouth that the "fair saint of Albania" was likely to be enrolled upon the calendar of the holy martyrs. Constantine had just left the little gate of the monk's lodging when Morsinia's message was put into his hand by a little old woman.

"But how did you know of my arrival in Constantinople?" Constantine asked as he concluded his account.

The question led to Morsinia's story and the revelation that his brother Michael was still living, an officer of the sultan, as like to Constantine as one eye to the other, their mistaken identity by Kala Hanoum having led to the present happy denouement. The mutual narrative of the past grew into plans for the future, the chief part of which related to the restoration of Michael from the service of the Moslem.

While they talked the day broke over the Asiatic coast. The faint glow of light rapidly changed into bars of gold, which were transformed into those of silver and melted again into a broad sheen of orange and purple tints.

But there was a fairer sight before the eyes of Constantine, one more suggestive of the heavenly. It was the face of his beloved, now first clearly seen. It seemed to him that she could not have been more enchanting if he had discovered her by the "River of Life" in the golden city, where only he had hoped ever again to gaze upon her.

The fugitives landed a good score of miles from Stamboul, on the northern shore of Marmora, and struck the highway which runs westward, following the coast line to Salonika, where it divides, bending south into Greece and branching north through Macedonia. The fugitives followed the latter highway. The country through which they passed was at the time conquered by the Moslems, but was dotted over with the settlements of the adherents to the old faith, who kept the watch fires of hope still burning in their hearts, though they were extinguished on the mountains. It was by this route that Constantine had gone to Stamboul. He was therefore familiar not only with the way, but with the people, and easily secured from them concealment when necessary and help along the journey. His belt had been well filled with gold by Castriot, so that two fleet horses and all provisions were readily supplied.

Their journey was saddened by their solitude for the fate of Albania. Before Constantine had left that country Moses Goleme, wearied with the incessant sacrifices he was compelled to make and discouraged by what he deemed the impossibility of longer holding out against the Turks, had quarreled with Castriot and thrown off his allegiance. He had even been induced by Mahomet's pledge of liberty to Albania, if only Castriot were overthrown, to enter the service of the enemy. The wily sultan had placed him in command of an invading army, with which, however, he had returned to his country only to meet an overwhelming defeat at the hands of the great captain and to flee in disgrace to Constantinople.

This swift vengeance administered by the patriots did not entirely crush the dissatisfaction among the people. Their fields were wasted by the long war, for half a generation had passed since it began. Only the personal magnetism of their chief held the factions to their doubtful loyalty.

After several weeks' journeying our fugitives reached the camp of Castriot. It resembled the gorgeous canvas cities of the Turks they had passed. The overspreading trees were in many instances the only shelter of volveds and princely leaders, the story of whose exploits floated as an enchantment to the lovers of the heroic in all lands.

WHEN THE RETREAT BECAME A ROUTE AT MUKDEN BATTLE

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Newchang, March 25.—(The following story of the retreat from Mukden was given to The Associated Press by a trader.)

"I went with the retreat to Tie pass," said the trader. "I saw it all. I don't want any more. I knew that the retreat was coming. I've seen 'em before. I saw the Boers clear out of Pretoria. I know the signs. The Russian officers jeered when I suggested such a thing, but I knew. They were packing their stores, getting their papers together in the various offices. Trunks, boxes, valises of all sorts were ready to be sent off at a moment's notice. They tried to keep up their bluff until the very last. Cherchoff, the head of the gendarmerie, was a bad one. We had to get our passes from him. We left our passports in his office and he gave us a permit to stay a week, ten days, two weeks, as the case might be until we sold our milk or brandy, whatever it was. Sometimes we had to pay, sometimes not. If Cherchoff sized us up as easy, it went badly with us, otherwise we got off with only a small squeeze. Just the day before the evacuation commenced, Cherchoff charged two Greeks $500 apiece for two weeks' permit and then cleared out at midnight leaving the men without their passes.

"There was another fellow in the commissary office who gave a dinner one night. 'We have been successful,' he boasted in his after-dinner speech. 'The Japanese are in retreat. Maybe they will make a stand at Liaoyang, maybe not. I do not think they will. I say they are demoralized. Long live the Czar. You see, you said we should retreat. Look at me. I was frightened too. I sent my things to the station, to-day I have brought them all back, see,' and he pointed to his hallway full of trunks and boxes. He was very drunk but he left that night for the north. It was for that very purpose he had packed his boxes.

"All during the weeks fighting from the time the Russians first heard the Japanese guns to the west of Mukden, their preparations for flight had been going on."

"In Mukden many were drunk. Officers came in from the front, went to the restaurants and drank themselves stupid. Chinese servants threw their masters into their carts like so much wood and started them on their journey north. Officers and men, senseless with vodka, were plied in the waiting trains. When the news came that the railway had been cut the retreat began in good earnest. The Russian army was working north in five columns, the great masses of infantry in the centre, the men struggling along as best they could.

"We went with them for we still had some goods in Tie pass. The Russians went to the east of the railway, through a hilly country. On either side of the center column came the commissary wagons laden with all sorts of supplies. Outside again were the lines of guns and ammunition wagons. The hospital train was mixed hopelessly with the hurrying, panic-stricken infantry. On the flanks squadrons of cavalry were scouring the country, watching for the Japanese.

"We had started in the afternoon with a cart. All about us were men jostling, pushing in their hurry.

"Many didn't seem to care at all. They were quite content to be leaving Mukden to its fate. Others were stupid, dazed, deafened by the roar of battle, grimy with smoke, yellow with dust. Their eyes were fixed and staring. Some cursed Kurapatkin.

"The Japanese were way off to the west and shelled us as we went along. If they wished to do so, they could have cut off the whole army. It only needed a sudden dash to throw the Russians into hopeless confusion. It was very bad as it was. There was little order. The men threw away their boots, their heavy overcoats, their mess kettles. When they had to pass through a valley the crowd crushed together fighting its way through the defile. Many dropped from fatigue. They were left in the deserted Chinese houses.

"The commissary wagons had been throwing away cases of soup tins, great bags of bread, provisions of all sorts, that they might make greater haste. They lightened their loads to save the carts. They had no time to stop and supply the men.

"The artillery men abandoned gun after gun. The ice was already weakening in the smaller streams and the heavy carriages crashed through as they slipped and bumped across. No one thought of trying to drag them out again. The gun teams were hurried on and hitched up somewhere else, or seized by the men who had been riding on the caissons.

"Covered with dust, red eyed, we finally reached Tie pass. We had had no sleep, hardly any food or drink, but still there was no rest. Here there were only a few Russians, the fringe of the retreat. Most of the army passed to the east. Tie pass had been a great place before, music, women, lots of drink, many traders. Now it was all upside-down. The women all had gone. The retreating soldiers looted all the shops and sold the stuff to their comrades. Champagne at a rouble a bottle, brandy, gin, rum, everything and as cheap as water. What they could not dispose of they threw into the street. They set fire to the store houses, great piles of provisions, thousands of tons of hay and fodder. The ruffians among them robbed right and Indigestion Loss of Strength And Appetite.

The testimony of Mr. R. Dennis, Adelaide, South Australia, who was cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is like unto that of many thousands of others. He writes:

"It is with very much pleasure that I testify to the great benefit I received from using your wonderful blood-purifier. I was a sufferer for years from indigestion, loss of strength and appetite, and constipation. My whole system seemed to be thoroughly out of order. A friend finally told me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I followed his advice, though feeling discouraged at the fruitless results of other treatment, and I am thankful to state that a few bottles completely cured me."

left, and no one had time or inclination to prevent them.

"The town was in a turmoil. More troops were coming in, others were going north. They said the Japanese had cut the railway between Kalyuan and Tie pass, that they would be surrounded.

"We did not have any map. We could only speak a little Chinese but we decided to make for Fakuman, about 20 miles away. To the east we could see lines of carts and long columns of men and guns wearily journeying northward. All about us, however, guns and soldiers and horses were going down to meet the Japanese. The men seemed very fresh. They had not been in the retreat.

"Mischenko was out on the Russian flank with 6000 cavalry and a couple of batteries. Splendid men they were too. He is lazy, Mischenko, or he would have done something.

"We managed to get through Fakuman. There we saw the Japanese flags again, but there were only eight regulars in the place. The town had been occupied by the Chinese bandits. They held us up, but we told them we had no money. The women who went through from Tie pass before us had to pay 100 roubles apiece, but they let us off."

HILLO SOCIAL ASSEMBLY.

Hilo, June 27.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hayes on Waiuanu street presented an animated scene of color and beauty on last night, when about twenty couples traced the pretty figures of the german, given in honor of Miss Genevieve Venable, a cousin of the hostess. The parlors had been cleared and were tastefully decorated with ferns and evergreens, clusters of fragrant roses being conspicuous in the decorations. Settes and chairs were arranged along the verandas for the dancers, and the figures of the german were led by Miss Venable and Mr. Thos. C. Ridgway, with grace and dexterity. There was a profusion beautiful and artistic favors of roses, butterflies, buttonholes, bouquets, etc., which lent color and variety to the dance. Mrs. S. C. Ridgway, Mrs. John Holland, Mrs. M. Rice and Mrs. W. T. Balding presided at the favor tables. Cooling refreshments of rose cake and sherbet were served during the evening and the dancing continued until long after the midnight hour. Miss Venable, who has been a teacher in the public schools of the islands for the past eighteen months, leaves shortly for her home in Virginia. She has been a general favorite in social circles here and her presence will be greatly missed after her departure.—Tribune.

PRIVATE CAR AND REBATES.

"Calculations as to the effect of car mileage on beef prices to the consumer are all hosh," says Charles E. Russell in his detailed consideration of Garfield's Report on the Beef Trust, in Everybody's June installment of "The Greatest Trust in the World."

"Whether the profit on car mileage is four cents a hundred pounds or four mills a million tons is not worth a moment's thought. The real point, over which this report skates with airy ease is that the privately owned car in the dressed-beef trade is merely a disguise for illegal railroad rebates, that it was designed for that purpose and none other, that it is and was merely a way to cover lawbreaking, and that the breaking of the law at which it connived enabled the Trust to be formed, competitors to be crushed, and the people to be robbed. The private refrigerator car meant $15 rebate on every carload of beef shipped from Chicago to New York. The houses in the combination got that rebate; their competitors did not get it, and that ended the competitors. If we are to have government reports we might as well have them tell the truth."
