VICTORY CROWNS WORKERS FOR Y.M.C.A.

PITTSBURG JOHNSON AND YALE WIN

Johnson In Twelve Rounds

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Johnson knocked, Ketchell out in the twelfth round. A great crowd assembled in the big arena to witness the 20 round go between Jack Johnson, the black champion, and Stanley Ketchell.

The first round was quite tame, but after that things began to warm up, and the pugilists went at each other in good style. Jack Welch acted as referee. Johnson gets 65 per cent of the gross receipts, Ketchell 35 per cent. Johnson tipped the scales at 196 pounds on entering the ring, Ketchell 176 pounds. Both men were in perfect trim. The crowd was enthusiastic and the betting heavy, most of the odds being on Johnson. The last round was fought at 3:10 p. m.

Cruisers In For Portola

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16. — The British cruisers Shearwater and Algerine and the German cruiser Arcona arrived here today to attend the Portola festival.

APPROVE LUNALILO ESTATE ACCOUNTS

Twenty-Eighth Report Of Trustees Is On File

The master's report on the twenty-eighth annual account of the trustees of the estate of W. C. Lunalilo has been filed by Job Batchelor. The period covered is one year to July 31, the account of the trustees being accompanied by 413 vouchers.

The trustees charge themselves with $53,015.40 from all sources during the year and ask to be allowed the sum of $51,691.05. The total expenses for the year included $10,007.70 for the Lunalilo home

Capital of Paia and Haiku Trebled

At a meeting of the stockholders of Paia and Haiku plantations this morning in the office of Alexander & Baldwin, the capital stock of the two plantations was trebled, Paia from $750,000 to $2,250,000 and Haiku from $500,000 to $1,500,000. This increase in capital represents an accumulated surplus of many years which is represented by actual assets of the corporations.

The plantations form a part of the holdings of the Maui Agricultural company, the assets of which are five and a half million dollars and which in the last season shipped twenty-nine thousand tons of sugar. The Haiku plantation, which represents a holding of twelve thirty-fifths of the company, is capitalized at only half a million, and the Paia plantation, which holds eighteen thirty-fifths of the shares of the company, has a capitalization of only three-quarters of a million.

H. P. Baldwin, one of the heaviest stockholders in the two companies, was present. J. P. Cooke presided at the meeting.

Taft and Diaz Meet

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 16.—President Taft and President Diaz of Mexico met at Cudad Juarez today and exchanged courtesies as the chief magistrates oft heir nations. A large number of prominent persons were present at the meeting of the presidents of the two North American republics.

and for the estate $1,788.70.

The investments and securities held by the trustees, William O. Smith, Mary S. Parker and E. A. Mott-Smith as of Aug. 1, 1908, include bill receivable, $91,370; bonds, $53,319.34; real estate, book value, $63,956.83; cash on hand, $2,356.84—a total of $211,003.01. The investments and securities as of July 31, 1909, show $498.40 less, but is accounted for by the Kaulalii note for $220 written off by order of the court, and the excess of expenses for the year of $278.40.

The income for the year gives an average rate of interest on bonds and notes of 6.25 per cent.

The report states that "the trustees deemed it wise to dispose of some of the high-priced bonds and reinvest the proceeds in mortgages and a per cent interest bearing bonds, at a valuation below par, which are increasing in value steadily."

The accounts were approved by Judge Robinson this morning.

BUILDING AND LOAN FOR HILO

Papers Are Filed For Corporation On Hawaii

Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Hilo Building & Loan Association, Ltd., the incorporators being Charles E. King, John K. Kai, Charles K. Maguire, T. K. Lalakea and W. H. Beers.

The amount of the capital stock is $5,000, divided into shares of a par value of $100 each.

The company is to have succession to its corporate name for a period of fifty years, and its special purpose is to engage in the business of loaning money, erecting, selling and renting buildings, and general dealing in real estate.

HE MUST DIE

The Governor this morning signed a death warrant for the execution of the Japanese murderer, Higashi, who killed a fellow countryman on Kauai. The date of the execution has been set for Oct. 28.

CLUNEY NOT GUILTY OF HEEDLESS DRIVING.

Police Judge Andrade dismissed the case of J. H. Cluney, Jr., charged with heedless driving, the defendant being found not guilty.

According to the evidence it was shown that Cluney maintained the right side of the road when he is alleged to have run down with his automobile the carriage containing the Japanese Consul and his driver on the night of Sept. 16.

The Cluney case has occupied the attention of police court for the past two days.

Sunbeams Happy Work

The "Sunbeam" department of Central Union church representing children under six years of age, has for the last year been making birthday offerings which have been deposited in the savings bank, for the purpose of furnishing and endowing of a bed or room at the Children's Hospital.

As the hospital is completed and the sum in hand is not adequate, a "Stamp Day" has been planned for raising the necessary amount.

This "Sunbeam Stamp" has been ordered, and the business houses are asked to put them on all of the letters and packages sent out on a given day. As several of the business houses have suggested that were the day a bill day they would require many more stamps the first of November has been set for Stamp Day.

The "Sunbeam Stamp" will be placed on sale during next week and the public is asked to buy freely, as the stamps should also accompany outgoing mail. Though of no carrying value the price is set at two cents a stamp.

A perpetual endowment is the aim and it is the desire of the department that no further outside assistance need be sought.

This "Sunbeam Class" meets every Sunday morning in the Parish House of Central Union Church at 10 o'clock. There is an average attendance of seventy pupils and new scholars are always welcome.

Those who enjoy the sight of many bright and happy children are invited to visit the class at any time.

Following are lists of the members of the Sunbeam Class and Cradle Roll:

TOTAL IS RAISED FOR Y.M.C.A.

"In a great crisis Honolulu is the greatest place on earth to live," said ex-Governor Carter enthusiastically this morning, after the announcement that the money had been raised. "I'll tell you Honolulu is all right. We have raised in five days what we intended to do in ten. We have smashed all records, and set a pace for the world to follow. 'Honolulu United' wins every time."

There was music and much cheering in the Y. M. C. A. building campaign headquarters at noon today.

Chairman Carter said a mistake had been made in not going after $150,000 instead of $100,000.

The clock shows now $125 620.50.

This afternoon and Monday the canvass will be for the sole purpose of increasing the number of names on the list of contributors. This was urged by Mr. Carter, who led in the three heartiest cheers of the session—those for "Honolulu United." On the whisper of Mr. Super, Chairman Carter said that in doing in five days the work cut out for double the time and in reaching the mark shown Honolulu had beaten all records and this means for the whole world, for on every continent during the past five or ten years Y. M. C. A. building campaigns have been conducted along practically the same lines.

F. C. Atherton announced that $10,000 of the sum he added had been cabled from Germany by John F. Blackfeld.

Messrs. P. C. Jones and Geo. F. Davies were interested in the cable communication with Tom May, formerly of Honolulu, now living in England. Said Mr. Jones: "Tom May will subscribe $1,000. I'll guarantee that."

"If it's less you'll pay the cable tolls," suggested Mr. Davies.

"Certainly I will, but you must settle if it is more than $1,000."

"That's satisfactory," responded Mr. Davies.

The cable from Mr. May read: "I have remitted $2,000 to Atherton. Will add more if necessary." And of course George Davies pays the tolls.

The committees are out this afternoon and on Monday will make the most determined effort to give to every man in Honolulu the opportunity to become identified with the greatest public undertaking in the history of Honolulu.

Special Session To Amend Land Law

"If the Governor wants to have the principles of the land laws in the Organic Act amended it is best for him to call a special session to consider the matter with the representatives of the people."

Speaker H. L. Holstein of the House of Representatives, who arrived on the Mauna Kea, made the above statements to the Bulletin representative when interviewed this morning. He said that such matters of great importance which effect the interest of the people of Hawaii should be submitted for consideration to the representatives of the people at a special Legislature.

"Personally," said Holstein, "the calling of a special session would not do me any good, other than simply performing my duty, as one of the representatives of the people. My presence here during the sitting of the Legislature will eventually knock me out of my practice after I am pau here and on my return to my place.

"The question of land laws and the amending of certain clauses of the Organic Act is so important a measure that I fell it is best for the Governor to call a special session and submit his plans for consideration by the representatives of the people of the Territory. Personally, I know that the result of the conference of the Governor, the Delegate and a few other people will not be approved by the Congress of the United States without the sanction of the people here through their Legislative representatives. The conference of a few man and the result they might arrive at will not be considered by the Congressmen who visited the Islands recently."

Speaker Holstein, who had a personal talk with a large number of Congressmen who were here last, said that he could judge from the conversation had between them that they would not consider any matter which had not been considered and mutually agreed by the representatives of the people. This much, therefore, should enlighten the Governor to call a special session for the consideration of his plans, which he evidently expects to submit to the Congress without first obtaining the sanction of the people's representatives.

Holstein, when asked whether he would run again as a candidate for the House of Representatives, said that he was up to the people, and particularly to his constituents on the big island. Next Monday he will be present at the conference to be held that day to consider the forestry matters.

Cook To Prove He Ascended Mount McKinley

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Dr. Cook says he will send an expedition next year to climb Mt. McKinley and secure the records which he placed on the summit of the peak when he made the ascent. Should he produce these records the doctor will be able to refute the charges made by Barrill and the photographer who accompanied the Mt. McKinley expedition, to the effect that the data concerning the ascent and the photographs were faked by Dr. Cook.

Dr. Cook has not receded from the stand which he took at the beginning of the controversy and today he reiterated his belief that Barrill received money to make the affidavit that Mt. McKinley was not scaled and that the claims of Dr. Cook are without foundation.

The Cook-Peary controversy has more or less been lost sight of in the recent discussion as to whether or not Mt. McKinley was scaled by Dr. Cook. The affidavit of Barrill has occasioned widespread discussion. Dr. Cook appears to be sincere in his determination to send an expedition to the summit of Mt. McKinley and he insists that such an expedition will discover records which he placed on the top of the mountain when he made the climb.

WATERFRONT NOTES

A WIRELESS plant larger than any that have been installed in any of the stations of the United Wireless Company on the Pacific is to be installed on the Pacific Mail liner Korea during next week, and will be in readiness for operation before the liner leaves on her next trip to the Orient. Though it has been the declaration of the managers of the company that they would have nothing to do with the wireless until it was perfected to a working basis on distances up to 2000 miles it was recently decided that an experimental plant would be established on one of the liners.

The apparatus, which is a combination of the two-kilowat and the four kilowat plants, has been manufactured at the manufacturing plant of the United Wireless Company at Seattle and has just recently been completed. It was shipped on the City of Puebla and arrived yesterday afternoon. N. O. Nelson, manager of the plant at Seattle, arrived on the steamer yesterday with the apparatus and will superintend the installation of the apparatus on the Korea.

Before her last trip out the Korea was measured and preparations made for the installation of the plant, but at that time it was not completed. If the hopes of the makers are realized the plant will be able to pick up messages from San Francisco at Honolulu.

Manager Schwerin said last night that the company had decided to keep up tests of the wireless apparatus constantly until it is perfected to its highest power.—Chronicle.

AN ELABORATE suit of staterooms have been reserved on the Tenyo Maru, which is scheduled to sail on Tuesday noon, for Prince Kuni, grandson of the Mikado of Japan, and his wife and party of six. The party which has been touring the East and Europe, arrived early this morning on the Overland and will stop at the Fairmont until the day of sailing. The Tenyo Maru will carry a large passenger list and a light cargo.

THE MUCHLY advertised Clark excursion party sailing by the Hamburg American line steamer Cleveand is scheduled to depart from New York today. This vessel is a sister ship to the Cincinnatti. It is expected that the Cleveland will remain at Honolulu for two days. She is due here on January 23. About six hundred passengers are touring the world in the palatial German liner.

THE UNITED STATES army transport Sheridan, which arrved at Seattle with the Twenty-fifth Infantry, is reported as having proceeded to San Francisco. The Sheridan is scheduled to sail from the California port on November 5 with destination as Manila via Honolulu and Guam.

THE ARRIVAL of the American-Hawaiian freighter Texan is reported at Deleware Breakwater. The vessel sailed from Hilo on August 18th with over 11,000 tons of sugar.

THE UNITED STATES army transport Buford, which sailed from Honolulu for San Francisco on October 6th has arrived at San Francisco.

The property we are opening up are blocks No. 62 66, 67, 73, 74, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 83, 84, 85, 86 and 87. Take your pencil and mark them on the above map.

Do you know that every dollar invested in Honolulu for improvements or any legitimate enterprise is to your advantage?

Do you know that every dollar contributed to the Y. M. C. A. fund or any other worthy undertaking will benefit the city and increase the value of your holdings whether same is a four story office building or a fifty dollar position?

Do you know that every additional residential section properly opened up adds to the development and beauty of your city?

Do you know that Honolulu's geographical position and promising future has no parallel in the history of American cities?

Do you know that the conditions in Honolulu today are different from what they were ten years ago?

Do you know that Honolulu today is on the eve of receiving millions of dollars from the U. S. Government for military, naval, and other improvements?

Do you know that Honolulu's agricultural and commercial interest plays an important factor in the world of commerce?

Do you know that Honolulu, has more dependent territory than either Spokane, Portland, Los Angeles, Seattle, Denver, Cleveland, and a number of other large centrally located American cities?

Do you know that Honolulu has more wealth in proportion to her population than any other city in the world?

Do you know that Honolulu as a health and pleasure resort is universally recognized as among the best?

Do you know that Honolulu with her American spirit and modern methods will have a population of two hundred thousand people and for the present she is simply a child and heir to this progressive and panama age?

Now then if you know these things, this company wishes to call your attention to the Kaimuki district and announce that we are opening two hundred and four new lots on the Waialae side of the Kaimuki tract.

This property commands a magnificent ocean view extending from Koko Head around to Diamond Head. It has an elevation of about two hundred feet above sea and only a few thousand feet from sea. The excellent breeze from around Koko Head continually sweeps across the entire tract betewen Diamond Head and the picturesque Waimanalo mountains giving such a dry, cool and delightful effect that all the physicians recognize it to be far more healthful and beneficial than the damp heavy clouded atmosphere that usually appears in the valleys and in the lower parts of the city.

As this company controls all that part of the tract east of 15th. avenue as well as block 62, 66, 67, 73 and 74, every effort will be made to make this part of Kaimuki the select residential district of the city. Streets necessary to make it thoroughly accessable will be opened up and macadamized. Palms and other trees will be planted to give the streets a beautiful and tropical appearance and a number of other improvements will be made to make the district modern and up-to-date in every particular.

Our Price on this select residential property is $500 for corner lots and $400 for inside lots. Size of lots 75 feet by 150 feet, or 11,250 square feet each. Call and select your lot and see us for further particulars.

We have over 100 Lots on the Waikiki side at attractive prices

Rightly employed, the reason is not a check to piety, but is its regulator. It chastens and refines the flame of devotion in the human heart, but does not put it out.—C. W. Wendte.

What better could be asked of Honolulu than its Y. M. C. A. building record?

THE EXTRA SESSION.

If it be concluded that the time is ripe for the amendment of the Organic Act of this Territory, the Governor should call the Legislature in extra session, and the sooner he does it the better.

There is one very good reason why Organic Act amendments should be considered in extra session rather than during the regular session for general Territorial business — the attention of the Legislator and the citizens can be centered on one definite topic.

This is an all-important factor in the success of every political, governmental and legislative movement. Mixed issues and complications arising from a multitude of needs is what more than frequently makes legislation unproductive of the best results.

Some man of experience and wisdom has said that the people seldom go wrong when they are called upon to act on one definite issue. That is why the referendum has become popular among a class of people who at one time scorned it as socialistic.

With the Legislature in session to pass on the amendments to the Organic Act, the action on the matter in hand will not be complicated by an appropriation bill, a bond issue, county law amendments, liquor legislation or any other of the side issues on which votes are so often traded and which some very estimable citizens may believe are of more importance than the Organic Act.

One thing will be set for the Legislators to do.

Public opinion will center and develop about that one thing.

Every public servant will be watched. He cannot side-step the issue. He must face the people as well as his own conscience if by his acts and his votes he shows that he is giving those whom he would represent "the double cross."

There will be no doubt during an extra session as to where the various Legislators stand.

The issue will be clear cut, and that is what the intelligent people want.

But,

Before the Legislature is called in extra session, the information regarding the proposed changes should be spread abroad through the land, so that the people may know what is expected.

It must not be a secret program, hatched in secret, printed in secret, circulated in secret, and then passed up to the Legislators with the statement that they must stay with it to uphold the administration.

On an open-handed proposition of letting the people know what is going on and holding them to one issue, the Bulletin believes the extra session is not only justified, but would be a complete success.

It would be folly, however, for the executive department to make a long list of tactical errors and then try to lay the blame on the Legislature.

RESPECT FOR THE ANTHEM.

It does not appear whether or not "the man without a country" had a favorite national anthem, but it does seem quite plain to the observer that there are some patriotic Americans in the city of Honolulu who should be reminded of the fact that the "Star Spangled Banner" is the national anthem of the United States of America. This may appear to be a rather trifling fact, but it is accompanied by the natural assumption that when its strains are heard by an audience it should be accorded the respect that is given to the national anthems of the other nations of the earth.

"God Save the King" and the "Marsellaise" are heard with attention and respect by French and English audiences until the last strain has died away, and there is not a general rush for a theatre exit simply because one may endure some momentary inconvenience by reason of waiting until the national hymn is played.

Iconoclasts there are who can prove with logic and philosophy that patriotism is a mere pretense and that the selecting of one melody or song to personify the feeling of national unity is a gaudy appeal and not in keeping with the progressive components of socialism and anarchy. This may be so, but the fact remains that a national anthem is a firmly established custom and to show disrespect when its strains are heard is to betray a firmly grounded and ignorant provincialism.

CHURCHES AND NEWSPAPERS.

One notable feature of the present campaign for the Honolulu Y. M. C. A. building is the free use the campaigners are making of the columns of the press in order to bring about a United Honolulu and a great number of ready givers. It is also to the credit of the workers that they are seeing to it that their news matter is put in good form for quick handling by busy newspaper workers.

This is good business, and while the men of the churches, who make diverse and sundry demands on the newspapers — and sometimes telephone locals to take up time and space and are to be inserted for "the goo dof the cause" — are taking notice, we take this opportunity of calling to their attention some truths about newspapers uttered by Rev. Charles Scadding, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Oregon.

As a further introductory note we would suggest to many good people that they are putting the good nature and high moral character of newspaper editors and reporters to the supreme test when they call up the editors and reporters by telephone, ask them to "put in this local," as they "really haven't the time to write it" themselves, "and would you be so good as to remember and put it in tomorrow."

They ought to know, if they don't, that they are imposing on the time of the reporter and property of the newspaper, which, if kind enough to give the free notice, should not in all decency be called upon to also do all the work attached to crealtng and bringing it forth.

Bishop Scadding had especial reference to ministers, and while we of course have none of the exaggerated types—Honolulu never has exaggerated types of anything — to which it refers, it may do some people a great amount of good to peruse what he has to say:

Bishop Scadding intimated while speaking on the topic "The Secular Press as a Missionary Agency," that the average minister does not know news. Frequently an item of vital importance is concealed in a mass of matter otherwise of not the least interest to the reader.

"If you could hear the righteous indignation and the unrighteous abuse, and, I fear, profanity, created in newspaper offices of Friday afternoons, when all hands are called to 'fix up the church notices' for publication, there would be instant reform in this direction. I am told that week after week and year after year there are poured into the newspaper offices these carelessly written notices, almost in undespiherable chirography, with no regard for the style of the paper for which they are written, frequently written on odds and ends of paper, and often on both sides, and thrown together in a haphazard sort of way.

"The task of preparing several hundred notices has become the most detested work in the newspaper offices, and every Friday our civilizing influence on the working staff is in a large measure undone. It is only due to the newspapers that we be courteous, even in this small matter, and take pains to secure uniformity and cleanliness and present well-dressed and carefully prepared copy.

"In preparing matter for the press you should observe newspaper rules of composition. Tell your story in the first three lines—three words are better — and elaborate afterward. Then the reader cannot 'ring off' before you have told him the gist of what you have to say."

Bishop Scadding said the value of the newspapers as a missionary agency depends upon the willingness of the ministers to make some effort in assisting it; "and," he added, "in considering the subject it is necessary for us at the outset to appreciate not the theoretical function of the secular press, but what it actually is, and what it actually does for the people. It is not the 'moulder of public opinion;' often it is not even the leader; but it does supply the facts, the fancies, the fallacies, if you please, on which public opinion is based.

"It must be borne in mind that the newspaper, even though it has twenty-four pages, has not a single line to waste. It pays thousands of dollars for matter it does not print, and it is safe to say that no newspaper uses half the matter poured in upon it by the press associations, its special correspondents and the public generally. The great bulk of this news matter is bought and paid for, though never destined to see daylight — not because it is not news, but because matters which the trained senses of the editor pronounce more important news crowd it out.

"Those same trained editorial senses are constantly on the alert for the important item. Just mention in the midst of three columns of really important church reports the mere incidental fact that Rev. John Doe has resigned and that the resignation was accepted, and be prepared to turn out of bed at night and explain to half a dozen reporters all about the affair. The next morning the line of resignation may appear as three columns, while the three columns of church news will occupy scarcely more than that many lines. The editor knows that only three lines in your article contained the real news of the day and would help the sale of his paper.

"Now, it cannot be argued that we should encourage sensational doings with the view of calling public attention to the church and its work. Even to a salacious morsel the editor himself would prefer a piece of news of an entirely different character; but he has his finger on the public pulse and he knows what is required. To me it is a certain indication when a newspaper shows disinclination to give space to an article that it will not be read if published.

"We can assume a different attitude to the newspapers. We can take a generous view of existing conditions ,accept the newspapers as having a right to all our news, and show them that we are in sympathy with them.

"If we are to make good use of the secular press we cannot overestimate the importance of the make-up of our articles and news notes. I believe that there is much of our work that could be presented in such dress that it would be attractive to the editor and, consequently, to the people. I fully believe that the establishment of a news clearing house in the eighth department under the management of our departmental secretary, to whom missionary experiences, news notes and brief church teaching could be sent for general publication in the secular press, would be an experiment well worth trying.

"It must be remembered that the secular press is a democratic forum. The clergyman or layman who comes into this agora and mingles with the Attic demos must gird himself The demos in its collective capacity is a juggernaut. It reminds me of what the colored porter in the barber shop said the other day, attributing his words to the 'good book.' 'The Lord,' he quoted, 'ain't got no respect for nobody.'"

GORMAN D. GILMAN CAREER IS CLOSED

Old Friend of Hawaii Died In Boston At Advanced Age

Newton, Octo. 3.—The Hon. Gorham David Gilman, ex-consul of Hawaii in New England, Master Mason and for many years a well-known druggist of Boston, died at his home, 39 Baldwin street, today of heart failure, in his 88th year.

In 1840 he shipped on a vessel bound for Honolulu, and upon his arrival there engaged in business as a merchant until 1848, when he returned to this country to seek his fortune in the California gold fields.

He was one of the first to recognize the resources of the Hawaiian Islands and returned there, remaining until 1861, when he visited England and Europe, remaining abroad for two years. In 1865 he returned to Boston and entered the wholesale drug business. He was a member of the first Newton City Council in 1889-90, and was representative to the Legislature and to the State Senate in 1891-92.

In 1893 he was appointed Hawaiian consul in Boston and later was raised to the rank of consul-general, which pose he filled until the islands were annexed to the United States. He was an honorary member of the Charles Ward Post 62, G. A. R.; a founder of the Newton Y. M. C. A., and its president for three years, a member of the I. O. O. F. for 57 years, and a 32d degree Mason. He was the oldest member of the Century Club and a prominent factor in the Hawaiian Club, having delivered many lectures on the islands. He was also connected for many years with the Boston Drug Association, and the senior member of Gilman Brothers' drug jobbers at 50 Franklin street, where he had been in business for the last 35 years.

Mr. Gilman was married twice, his first wife being Miss Elizabeth Field of Providence, whom he married Oct. 5, 1864. She died Nov. 2, 1872, and on May 6, 1874, he married Miss Adelaide Sears of Newton, who survives him with three children, Abbott Gilman, who was connected with his father in the drug business; Mrs. George Angier and Miss Ethel Gilman. He is also survived by a brother, John A. Gilman of Newton, and a sister, Miss Sophia Gilman of Hull.

The funeral services will take place from the Gilman residence, 39 Baldwin street, Newton, on Tuesday afternoon at 2:3 0o'clock. The Rev. H. Grant Person, pastor of the Eliot Congregational Church, will conduct the services and pall bearers will be chosen from the Young Men's Club a church organization in which Mr. Gilman was much interested.

The Boston Transcript says editorially of Mr. Gilman:

The late Gorham D. Gilman was one of those men whose vitality is such that the Psalmist's allotment of years finds them with all the activity we usually associate with middle age. It was his choice as much as his lot to be one of the history makers, for while the destiny of Hawaii had been a subject of American discussion while Mr. Gilman was young, his long residence in the islands and familiarity with their condition, and his zeal for the extension of our influence over them, made him one of the most strenuous advocates of their annexation when he was three score and ten. For a long time Mr. Gilman, who had been the unofficial medium of communication between the progressive element of the islands' population and its sympathizers in the United States, and while his activity brought him into collision at times with American anti-annexationists, even they never questioned his disinterestedness. Mr. Gilman had a creditable record as a Massachusetts lawmaker also, and taken altogether his life's story is an exemplification of the truth that a busy man always has time for new activities.

WHEN YOU CATCH A COLD

Always Take a Few Doses of Pe-ru-na. It Is Dangerous to Neglect a Cold.

Mr. George A. Nicholas, 76 Wellington street, Launceston, Tasmania (Australia), is a prominent grocer, having been in the business about 18 years. He writes as follows:

"I have on several occasions, when afflicted with a cough or cold, used Peruna with the best of results. I believe it to be a splendid remedy for such ailments."

MR. GEORGE A. NICHOLAS.

A LARGE per cent. of chronic ailments begin with a neglected cold.

A cold produces congestion of some internal organ. The congestion at last becomes chronic and organic disease is the result.

When an organic disease becomes thoroughly established, it is absolutely incurable. Thus it is dangerous to neglect a cold.

A remedy should always be at hand that can be relied upon to promptly relieve a cold.

There is no better remedy in the world for this purpose than Peruna, which has been in use for a great many years.

It has been the standby in a multitude of homes as a remedy for colds, coughs and catarrhal ailments of summer and winter.

We will give a few specimens of the many testimonials we have received from different parts of the world as to the efficacy of Peruna as a remedy for colds:

"I contracted a severe cold, and became afflicted with a bad cough. I began taking Peruna. In a short time my cough and cold were gone."—Mr. Louis Monpetit, 251 St. Elizabeth Ave., St. Henry, Montreal, Canada.

"I have received great benefit from Peruna, and hope to see it in my country, Cuba. The home protected by Peruna is free from catarrh."—Mr. Jose I. Soler, President Cuban Fruit Co., 2018 Jerome Ave., New York City, N. Y.

Mr. L. C. Figg, 2929 E. Marshall st., Richmond, Virginia, U. S. A., writes, that whenever he gets a cold Peruna drives it out of his system.

Consider how tender the baby's skin is, and the importance of selecting right garments is emphasized. The fine knit fabrics of the "ARNOLD" GOODS are made from soft, twisted yarns, chemically treated to make them highly antiseptic, sanitary and absorbent. These garments excel in beauty of finish, shapeliness and non-irritating qualities. Mothers seeking the best for their babies will by all means adopt the "ARNOLD" KNIT GARMENTS. See "Arnold" catalog for illustrations and full descriptions.

A verdict for the plaintiff was returned yesterday in the case of Alexander J. Lazarus against William R. Castle as administrator of the estate of Elizabeth Sniffen, the jury returning a verdict for the full amount of $299. The suit was based on a parole contract for borrowed money. Clem Quinn was attorney for the plaintiff.

In a Manila dispatch an account is given of Louis Grant, formerly of Honolulu, charged with complicity in extensive opium smuggling schemes, pleading guilty, and then took the witness stand for the prosecution. Grant admitted receiving $500 for allowing opium to come in some mining machinery consigned to him, but stated William Kennedy and a Chinese banker had arranged the plan without his knowledge.

WHAT YOU GET FOR YOUR MONEY

When you buy shoes, what you get for your money is not determined solely by the outside appearance. The cheapest kind of shoes can be made to look well for a while, but they don't wear well.

That's why the REGAL SHOE has and holds such a high reputation. It looks good on the outside, wears longer and stands up better than any shoe made for $3.50, $4.00 and $5.00. Every one is guaranteed. We insure you a perfect fit. Quarter sizes.

Neat shoe repairing done while you wait.

LITERATURE

A Planetary Proposition.

Not content with the prospect of a whole-hearted romping over the discovery of the North Pole, certain sections of the scientific world are busily fomenting a controversy over the existence of water-vapor on Mars. This is a question of considerable importance, since the absence of water-vapor would leave practically unassailable the old belief that Mars is not inhabited. With this idea in mind a party of scientists from Lick Observatory spent seven days on the summit of Mount Whitney, taking photographs of the planet. In this there seems to be a general impression that the astronomers were breaking new ground. As a matter of fact, eighteen months ago the discovery of the water-vapor was made at the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, and the amount measured by Very. The print of the spectrogram showing the vapor has been published in Professor Lowell's Mars as the Abode of Life. Without this knowledge Professor Lowell would hardly have become the enthusiastic believer in an inhabited Mars that he shows himself to be in this work and in his forth-coming The Evolution of Worlds. In this new book, to be published this fall, Professor Lowell discusses not only the possibility of human beings living on Mars, but the whole problem of the beginnings of the universe as we see it.

Crawford's Last.

The last novel from the pen of the late Marion Crawford is published this week (September 22), under the title Stradella. Stradella is an historical romance of the Italy of the seventeenth century, centering around the love of the great musician Stradella for the daughter of a Venetian nobleman. The barest outline of his plot Mr. Crawford found in the old chronicles of which he was an insatiable devourer. Incidentally, it may be said that he describes in the novel the genesis of the great song, "Pleta Signore," by which Stradella is today best remembered. How he came to write it and to sing it before the Pope is the climax of this story of love and courage.

History.

For those interested in history, the following books just published by Little Brown & Co. will be appreciated. "The Commonwealth of Australia" by Hon. Berthard Ringrose, Wise, formerly Attorney-General of New South Wales, is by an author who has done for this progressive commonwealth what James Bryce has done for America. Hubert Bruce Fuller's "The Speakers of the House" gives an account of our own development along governmental and political lines. Mr. Fuller's book contains accurate pen pictures of the various great speakers, and descriptions of notable scenes in our Congressional history. Jeremiah Curtin, the historian of the Mongols, relates in "A Journey in Southern Siberia" his experiences while travelling through the small and out-of-the-way towns of Southern Siberia. The book contains a number of hitherto unrecorded Mongol myths, a dearly earned and valuable contribution to the history of the human mind.

Robert Emmet, the new novel by Stephen Gwynn, will be published in America by the Macmillan Company. The book, as its title implies, deals with the life of the Irish patriot, and will be published in a few weeks. Mr. Gwynn is an Irish M. P., and the author of numerous books, his life for many years having been divided between politics and writing.

DRAMA.

"The Melting Pot," the new drama by Israel Zangwill, is recognized as one of the great dramatic successes of recent years. Its title comes from the conception of America as a melting pot in which the most diverse elements and unpromising material are fused into true citizens of the country of the future. The idea is worked out with the mastery of technique and the vigor of plot construction which have distinguished Mr. Zangwill's work in the past. It is probably the most eloquent representation of Jewish life and ideals in America that has ever been set before the people of this country. It has been issued in book form by Macmillan's.

Russian Writer Coming.

V. F. Shiels of the Parisian Geographical Society, an author and newspaperman, has written from San Francisco to the promotion committee that he is about to pay a visit to Honolulu. He states that he writes in some of American papers as well as for the Mexican Herald and many others in the English and French languages. He asks that he be given facilities, on arrival, to assist him in making his way easily. He believes his visit will be profitable to the Islands. He writes:

"I also write for Russian and Polish papers and I am able to make a vast propaganda for Hawaii in Russia—in what labor question is concerned."

The Chinese.

John Stuart Thomson in his new book THE CHINESE at once steps into the place of our foremost authority on Far Eastern questions at a time when America, by reason of her vast Pacific coast line, is taking her rightful place as arbiter of Oriental destinies; a place which England, engaged in the South African war, abdicated in 1900 to the United States under John Hay's leadership. The American press is alive with daily items of our battling for Chinese loans and development companies; opening a government Oriental bureau at Washington; new treaties; new ministers to and from China; receiving Chinese commissions and students; amity arising from America alone remitting the Chinese indemnity; opening of American news bureaus at Peking, etc. At the psychological moment arrives THE CHINESE.

The author writes throughout with a rare judgment, and the host of facts assembled is amazing. Mr. Thomson speaks not only as one who has traveled much and lived long in the Orient, but with the intimate enthusiasm of one who, in the sacrifices of tropical residence, has himself borne up the flag of a "forward Americanism" at one of the most torrid and bitterly competitive outposts of international trade. "In all this I had my part," you hear him keenly say, and it lends authority and the charm of the personal element to his emphatic views. He was in charge of the agency of the Pacific Mail and allied trans-Pacific steamship lines at Hong Kong. In this respect, his book is even more authoritative than those other epoch-making books by Anglo-Saxon visitors to the Orient: Curzon's, Krausse's and Beresford's.

Bobby Burnit.

A stage version of THE MAKING OF BOBBY BURNIT, the novel by George Randolph Chester, will be produced in November with Wallace Eddinger in the title role. Henry B. Harris is the producing manager and the playwright is Winchell Smith. Mr. Eddinger, it will be remembered, played "Howard Jefferies, Jr." in THE THIRD DEGREE. "Bobby" should present an engaging opportunity for his talent. The book continues among the most popular of the day.

Zangwill's "Melting Pot."

The "melting pot," as conceived by a young Russian, the hero of Mr. Zangwill's drama, is America, where exiles from every land, representing the most diverse elements and unpromising material, are fused into true citizens of the great nation of the future.

Characteristic of Mr. Zangwill's previous work, mastery of technique, vigor of plot construction and strength of dramatic action, distinguish this play which is marked with all the passionate fire of an oppressed race and of a genius that at last finds liberty of expression.

Mr. Zangwill knows the heart of his own people and has found in its passionate depths the material for THE MELTING POT which is probably the most eloquent representation of Jewish life and ideals in America that has ever been set before the people of this country.

The play has been produced for an entire season in Chicago and other cities, and is now published coincidentally with its first performance in New York.

Sayings of Miss Selina Lue.

SOCIAL NOTES

The charming and artistic little home of Captain and Mrs. Harrie C. Coburn at Port Allen, Kauai, was the scene on Saturday last of one of the most successful and thoroughly delightful card parties of the season given in honor of Miss Minnie H. Groeper, who has been the guest of the Coburns for the past month. The spacious grounds surrounding the Coburn residence were aglow with myriads of Japanese lanterns, which lent a festive air to the occasion. Mrs. Coburn, who proved herself a most capable and gracious hostess, was ably assisted in receiving her guests by her husband. About midnight a dainty repast was served, and later music and dancing whiled away the time until the we sma' hours. Among those present from Makaweli were: R. D. Baldwin and wife, Miss Day, Messrs. Truscott, Rankin and R. B. Robinson. From Waimea: Judge Hoffgaard and wife, Gustavus Hoffgaard and wife, Mrs. Hodge, Miss Hodge. From Eleele: Messrs. Bole, F. Maage, Chas. Hannah.

The swiftness and ease with which the United States attained the position of second among the naval powers of the world is to be paralleled by the swiftness and ease with which the United States is to lose that rank, observes a naval expert in the Paris Gaulois, quotes the Literary Digest. By the close of the year 1912 the world's second naval Power will be Germany, we are told. The calculation can be based upon the number of all-big-gun battleships, cruisers, corpedoboat destroyers and submarines then in efficient fighting condition and of an age limit to keep them in the fighting line. The supreme indifference of the American people to the loss of prestige resulting from the lapse of the United States from second to third or fourth rank on the seas—and that within the next few years—is not due, we read, to "degeneration" of the national fiber, but to ignorance of the importance of seapower in the twentieth century." If the masses of the American people understood how important to themselves sea-power is, they would insist upon a retention of their present importance as possessors of a superb fleet.

No aviator has been more conspicuously identified with the development of the heavier than air machine than Wilbur Wright. To him and his brother the credit is unquestionably due of making the first practical demonstration of the aeroplane, and the first flights which appealed in a large way to the imagination and challenged the admiration of the world were those of Wilbur Wright in France last summer, culminating on the last day of the year in a two hours flight.—New York Sun.

Everybody Reads the Newspaper

IT is a daily necessity, because the information it contains concerns the life of the the people. It is an educational agency, a guide and a constant helpmeet. Advertising in a daily paper broadcasts the knowledge of what the merchants can do for the people, and the people with their constant needs go to the merchant who gives them his knowledge.

The EVENING BULLETIN is an example of the sure reliance of the experienced business man in the upbuilding of his trade through judicious newspaper advertising.

The Clock and the Owl

On two shelves in his office a banker once kept
Cheek by jowl,
A clock and an owl.
The former for use and the latter for show—
A hollow pretence one, of feathers, you know;
An owl stuffed with sawdust, but looking as well
As though it were sleeping at noon in the dell.
Just as wise as a being can possibly look,
Who never wears glasses nor reads from a book!

But one night very late when the bank lights were out,
The owl called the clock a pestiferous lout,
A thing quite uncalled for, especially when
Polite to its partner the time-piece had been.
"Oh when will you cease" sneered the owl with a mock,
"With your endless twaddle and tiresome talk;
Cease holding the minutes-just of every hour
Like some old gauge holds the drops of a shower.
What good is it all, I would like to know,
To measure out minutes-just so and so?
You stand on the shelf and all through the night
Your pendulum sways from left hand to right,
And your hands are held up to your sallow face,
Like a child that has fallen into disgrace.
Not often one designs to hear what you say,
Though sometimes it is done in a casual way;
But often I see, and oft have I heard,
That no one has taken or trusted your word.
As you point to the hour and strike it again,
They will look at their watches, both women and men."

"Sneer and talk all you will,
I shall tick on still,
Though you snap out more wrath from your crooked bill.
I am doing my duty, while you, ugly owl,
Have nothing to do but to grumble and growl,
And all through the day
Not a word will you say,
But make people think, with your large, open eyes
You are learned and knowing and wondrously wise,

"I am plain, I confess it, my hands both are coarse,
And my voice very often is husky and hoarse.
Then fearing my memory, I tick through the night,
So the hours of the day be kept proper and right,
For I never go wrong-you may ask whom you will,
And this is the reason I never kept still.

"The busy consult me, the idle I warn
By showing how quickly the eve follows morn,
By counting each moment of time as it goes,
By telling it over, when everyone knows,
If I ticked only hours, the world would go by
Like a ship on the sea or a cloud in the sky,

And life would escape without thought or endeavor,
And minutes and seconds be lost us forever.
But now every second I call men to work,
With all of twice sixty less chances to shirk.
"Come, come," so I call, and they haste to obey;
"Come, come," every second I solemnly say,
Though totals deceive us, the details will tell
Us fairly our standing, you know very we'l,
Our fortunes by dollars may quickly be told
But by mills and by dimes they will greatly unfold.

"You sneer at my duties and think they are sma'l,
Because you are idle, and have none at all,
But sphinx-like you stand on your pedestal shelf,
Puffed up and all ruffled with glorious self,
You are laid on the shelf more senses than one;
If you ever were useful, your mission is done.

"When the banker comes down in the morning, he looks
At my face just asecond, then takes out his books,
For at seven precisely my orders I get,
And never one order I shirk or forget.
If you think I am useless keep awake for one day,
And see how they watch me and hear what I say.
At six one consults me and sweeps off the floor;
At ten one consults me and opens the door;
So they quiz me and ask me, 'What hour?' all the day,
And the answer I give them they never gainsay."

"Oh! you are for labor," the sage owl replied,
And puffed up his feathers in anger and pride;
"No gentleman truly, I have at my side.
I knew by your talk you belonged to the rabble,
I pity you now—but continue your babble;
Pay no notice to me, yes, talk when I talk,
You miserable, garrulous, plebian clock.
Though they quiz you and hear you, oh! do not believe
Their questions you answer or their minds you relieve,
For each question they ask, they give me a wink,
As much as to say, 'Now what do you think!
He's a babbling old fool, and he never keeps still,
But let him go on while there's gold in the till;
You are Capital, friend, that fellow is Labor,
We are catering now for his vote, O my neighbor.'

"So what are you here beside me, little clock,
Though you think you are much and chatter and talk?
They respect me and fear me, but you they can use;
If me they neglect, you for labor do stand,
I for dollars and cents, you for muscle and hand.
But I'll lose no more wit on you ticking old thing.
I am tempted to shove you plumb off with my wing,
I can do it so quickly and well if I like—
There! your'e wheezing and rattling and off on a strike!"

"I would rather be something than stand for a billion;
You are poor, boastful owl, though your master has million.
What are being and doing to having, I wonder!
As fire is to smoke, or as lightning to thunder!
'Time is money,' we say, yet you scorn time and labor;
Beware of your sawdust and feathers, O neighbor!"

"More room do I want," said the banker one day;
"I must move this old owl or our time-piece away,
The owl we can spare, but we cannot the clock."
So they took down the owl with its helf and its block,
And put them away in the vault with the money—
Up high in the corner, oh! wasn't it funny?

REP. SCOTT PRAISES HAWAII AND HER PEOPLE

Gives Home Paper Graphic Account Of Visit To Volcano

SAYS ONE OF HAWAII'S BEST DRAWING CARDS IS SCENERY

Believes the Islands Have a Great Future, and Says That He Was Royally Received by Rich and Poor Alike.

Representative and Mrs. Chas. F. Scott returned last evening from their trip to the Hawaiian Islands, glad they went, but gladder still to get back home again, says the Iola (Kans.) Daily Register of Sept. 30. Mrs. Scott expects to start to Washington in a few days to place the children in school, but Mr. Scott will remain in Kansas for several weeks, paying his usual "off-year" visit to the different counties of his district. Talking with a Register reporter this morning about his trip, Mr. Scott said:

"The people who live in Hawaii are fond of alluding to the Islands as "The Paradise of the Pacific," and in respect of climate and scenery the description is not extravagant. Lying wholly within the tropics, frost is unknown (except, of course, in the high mountains), and being in comparison a mere fly-speck in the eighty million square miles of the Pacific ocean, the cool breezes that are always abroad on the face of the deep sweep over the Islands constantly so that a temperature above 85 degrees is rarely experienced. Of course even this moderate degree of heat when it continues day after day and month after month becomes somewhat enervating; but when the need of a change is felt it can be had by going up on one of the numerous mountain sides a few hundred or few thousand feet. Mrs. Scott and I, with four others of our party, ventured to the summit of Haleakala, in the Island of Maui, where we spent the night in order to see the sunrise, and in spite of warm clothing and heavy blankets, and complete shelter from the wind, we suffered severely with the cold. Yet this summit is only 10,000 feet above sea level, while there are two mountains on the Island of Hawaii that are nearly 14,000 feet high. But altitudes count for much more by way of change in temperature in these islands than they do on a continent for the reason that they rise so abruptly from the sea. The volcano of Kilauea, for example, is only 4,000 feet in altitude, yet a blazing log fire in the sitting room of the hotel on its brink every evening is one of the attractions of the place. The people of Hawaii, therefore, do not need to take the long journey to the mainland in order to reach bracing atmosphere.

The reputation of Hawaii for scenic beauty rests, of course, upon its verdurous and wonderfully sculptured mountains, its vividly green valleys, its wide stretches of cane-covered plains, and its infinite variety of flowering plants and trees. But there are scenic wonders as well as scenic beauties. Two of these which can never fade from the memory of any visitor are Haleakala and Kilauea, one the greatest extinct crater and the other the greatest active volcano in the world. It is a long ride, though not a particularly hard one, from Kahului, the seaport, of Maui, to the summit of Haleakala, —12 miles by automobile, 7 miles by carriage, 8 miles on horseback; and it is not pleasant to shiver all night on the cold, cold ground. But you forget it all, the long ride, the loss of sleep and the cold, when the sun comes up in the morning. It is clear on the summit upon which you stand, with the sparkling, startling clearness of high altitudes. You can see to the very bottom of the great black pit—twenty-seven miles in circumference, three thousand feet deep—where the enormous masses of lava lie in such living shapes as to see mhardly yet cold. But surrounding the pit and the peak on which you stand, shutting out the sea and the lower mountain slopes, stretching away as far as you can see, are clouds—fluffy tufts of clouds, billowy oceans of clouds, snowy mountain ranges of clouds, interminable spreading continents of clouds, illimitable shining firmaments of clouds, —and the rising sun gilding and glorifying them all with a 'light that never was on land or sea.' Oh, it is a sight to see, as impossible to describe as it is to forget!

Kilauea, the living volcano, is not a mountain, not even a cone, as the pictures would lead us to believe all volcanoes are. You are riding through a wide spreading forest, on perfectly level ground, with the lofty summit of Mauna Loa looming above you in the distance, when all at once forest and ground disappear and you find yourself looking down a sheer thousand feet into a pit nearly circular in form, some twelve or fifteen miles in circumference, flooded with black lava so recently cooled that hardly a sign of plant life yet apepars upon it. Descending by a carefully made trail to this lava floor you walk toward the center of the pit, a distance of three miles, avoiding frequent yawning chasms, particularly steering clear of certain crevasses from which are pouring sulphurous vapors hot enough to scorch paper,—and all at once find yourself standing on the brink of another pit, as circular, with walls as perpendicular and as black as a great iron pot that has been hung over an open fire. Only the top of the pot is a third of a mile across, and its sides are 190 feet deep, and at the bottom—is a lake of burning fire and brimstone! Have you ever melted lead at night and seen the dull scum cover the surface and noticed how bright and fiery the molten metal was when the scum was broken through? Well, imagine your ladle of lead expanded till it is 1800 feet across, imagine the scum so thick that as it is drawn by an irresistible current from the outer edges to the center of the great cauldron, it looks like a solid black island, and then imagine it caught in what seems to be a great bubble of molten metal and hurled high in the air, to fall back in fragments and be instantly engulfed in the seething, white-hot mass. Call on your imagination again and feel the blast of hot air that strikes your face as you lean over the edge of the pit, so fierce a heat that wooden masks are provided to guard against it, and listen to the roar and crash, like the sound of breakers on a stormy coast, as the boiling masses of metal are hurled upward by the continuous eruptions or dashed against the black walls of the pit. If your imagination can compass all these things you may have some faint idea of how a real live volcano looks and acts and feels. I believe I said a little while ago that Kilauea is the greatest active volcano in the world. That may not be literally true, but it is certainly the biggest volcano that anybody can see. I was at Naples a few years ago, but I did not ascend Mount Vesuvius, although I could see its great column of smoke rising only a few miles away. The reason was that the nature of the ground about the crater was such that one could not get close enough to the pit to actually see the fire. But Kilauea is perfectly peaceable and well regulated. For miles around it one is apt to catch a whiff of sulphur and to see a thin blue vapor issuing from some hole or crevice in the ground. But the ground seems to be solid enough, nevertheless, right up to the very brink of the pit, and there is no record of a life lost in visting the crater. It is more active sometimes than others. A year ago it was so dormant that the fire sank a thousand feet or more and nothing was to be seen but an apparently bottomless pit filled with sulphur smoke. But it woke up for our benefit and certainly gave us a magnificent exhibition of subterranean fire works,—'the everlasting bonfire.' The singular thing about it is that while Kilauea has never been known to overflow, yet three times in the last hundred years great torrents of lava have burst out from the sides of Mauna Loa, several thousand feet above Kilauea and only a few miles away.

"But while, of course, we would not help seeing sights, our time was not by any means spent in sightseeing. The Congressional party had not been made up at random or through favoritism. Members of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors were invited because the Government is expending large sums in harbor improvements and yet further appropriations are asked for in each of the Islands. Members of the Naval Committee were invited because the work of building a naval base at Pearl Harbor has been begun and it is important that the men under whose direction the work is to proceed should be personally familiar with tre ground. Members of the Committee on Military Affairs were included because many million dollars are to be spent in fortifying the Islands and this committee must decide where the guns shall be placed. The Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee was represented because that committee has jurisdiction over light houses. I owe my own invitation, of course, to my connection with the Committee on Agriculture. Aside from their shipping interests the Islands have no other resource than agriculture. The sugar-industry, up to this time, has absorbed practically all the capital and energy of the Territory. But it has about reached the limit of its development, and the problem now is to find satisfactory crops for the lands that are not suitable for cane growing. To this end the Federal government has established an Experiment station and I was much interested in looking into the work it has been doing on the various Islands. The agricultural situation is much complicated by the fact that a large portion of the tillable land of the Territory is arid, or semi-arid. That probably sounds like a strange statement to make regarding tiny specks of land in the middle of a vast expanse of water; but the conditions are easily accounted for when the topography of the country is taken into account. In the warm tropics it takes but a slight fall in temperature to condense vapor into rain, and so a range of mountains only a few hundred feet high may pretty effectually squeeze all the water out of the clouds that rise from the sea. And for the reason that the mountains run in every direction, with deep valleys between there are astonishing differences of climate within very short distances. It is frequently said that all one needs to do in Hawaii to get out of the rain is to cross to the other side or the street. Of course this a jesting exaggeration. But one frequently hears a resident of Nuuanu valley declare in all seriousness that he "does not like the climate" at Waikiki—and Waikiki is three miles away! In the Island of Kauai they measure the rain fall on one side of a mountain range by the foot. Ten miles away, on the other side, they are happy if they get ten or twelve inches in a year. In the narrow limits of these little Islands, therefore, there is practically every variety of agricultural problem that confronts us here on the continent. The big question, of course, is "What can be done for the small farmer." It takes enormous capital to develop and operate a sugar plantation. Up to the present time, therefore, the population of Hawaii, outside the few and small towns, is made up almost wholly of a few very rich men who own or lease great bodies of land and of the laborers who are employed on that land. There is practically no middle class—men in moderate circumstances, owning and working small farms, such as make up the great bulk of our population here on the main land. The efforts of the Federal Experiment station are therefore directed toward developing the possibilities of diversified agriculture, to show if possible that the owner of forty acres, say, can make a living raising vegetables or fruit or some variety of field crop. The experiments thus far have been highly encouraging.— although I should not advise any Kansas farmers to seek out and go to Hawaii just yet!

Politically there is no problem in Hawaii—now. The native population, most of whom bitterly opposed annexation through a very natural sentiment of patriotic loyalty to their Queen and country, have already put away all feeling of resentment and take pride in the knowledge that they are American citizens. And nobody questions that conditions in the Islands have been immeasurably enhanced by American rule. Harbors have been improved, light houses have been erected, inter-Island freight and passenger traffic has been made more frequent and reliable, wireless telegraph has placed all the Islands in communication with one another, telephone lines reach into every neighborhood, hundreds of miles of country road have been built, city streets have been paved and water works, electric lights and sewer systems installed, schools have been established upon which attendance is compulsory, hospitals have been built and sanitary measures enforced, while the people have all the civil and political rights that are enjoyed by the citizens of any Territory upon the Continent. Times have been good on the Islands, also, good dividends for investors, good profits for merchants and rising wages for laborers. There is not a whisper, therefore, against American rule, and not a murmur of political unrest—now.

But what of the time when the Hawaiian born Asiatics, entitled to all the privileges of citizenship, shall become numerous enough to be a political factor? That is the great big overpowering problem of Hawaii. Is it in the long run to be Occidental or Oriental—American or Asiatic? The population now in round numbers is 170,000. Of these a beggarly 13,000 are Americans—including in that term English, Scotch, Germans, and all other Teutons or Anglo-Saxons. There are 72,000 Japanese and 23,000 Chinese. The rest are Hawaiian or part Hawaiian (35,000) and Portuguese (27,000) with a few of nearly every other race under the sun. There will never be any trouble, of course, about the Hawaiian or the Portuguese. They absorb American sentiments readily and fit themselves easily into American conditions. I could not find anybody either who was uneasy about the Chinese. It was the universal testimony that they are honest, industrious, unobtrusive, not clannish, peaceable, sober, that many of them intermarry with the natives and that the children of such unions are in conduct and sentiment, good Americans. The real problem, therefore, seems to center around the Japanese. Concerning these, local opinion differs greatly, but the predominant sentiment undoubtedly is adverse. It is said that they are tricky, and unreliable in business matters, (of course with honorable individual exceptions) that they are intensely clannish, never marrying and rarely doing business outside of their own race, that they are restless and aggressive, that they contribute nothing to the building up of the community, sending to Japan for everything they eat and wear and saving every possible penny, in order that they may return to Japan when they have accumulated a competency, that their children are sent to Japanese schools where they are assiduously taught that all their allegiance is due to Japan,—and so on down the line.

COLLEGE LIBRARY OPEN TO PUBLIC

Lots Of Good Things May Be Had From College Of Hawaii

A few years ago practically all of the publications issued by the United States Government were statistics and dry assertions by officials that had very little public interest.

During the last two or three years, however, the tone, appearance and manner of practically all of the Government publications has changed. Statistics are presented in an attractive form without too much detail, yet sufficient for general understanding. Live articles are written on all subjects pertaining to the Government interests and activities. The College of Hawaii has been made a depository for all Government publications and during recent months a large quantity of material, both of general and of local interest has arrived.

According to the regulations of the Superintendent of documents these publications are not allowed to be loaned out of the library, but may be consulted freely on the shelves and in the reading room. The scope of these publications is too broad to enable any brief and concise classification to be made. The allotment comprises a great many pamphlets and books pertaining to many phases of science, engineering, agriculture, sanitation, irrigation and the like.

There are also many books and pamphlets dealing with the work and activities of the various departments including the Bureau of Commerce and Labor, The Census Bureau, and the Bureau of Standards. There are also books and pamphlets relating to the activities of all the branches of army, navy and marine hospital service, also material of interest to pilots and navigators contained in pamphlets giving coast charts, location and kinds of lights and related matter. There are a large number of publications relating to and dealing with the commercial relations of the U. S. with other countries including the publications of the Bureau of American Republics. All of the acts, resolutions, speeches and statistics of the 60th and 61st Congresses are at hand. There are publications on almost every subject of interest, and are of a special value to both the business and professional public. The public is cordially invited to make such use of these publications as their interests demand.

The library is open both during the day and early evening.

It is not easy to sympathize with plotting the Secretary of War to intervent to save them, if possible, from the appropriate consequences of their wanton misdeeds. They knew when they "dared" a contraband that they were breaking the law, and they knew what the consequences would be if they were detected. Their appeal now for reinstatement is not exactly an appeal for pardon. It is a request that the law be nullified and made a mockery.—New York Tribune.

Personally, I am not quite so pessimistic. It seems incredible to me that plastic children can spend eight or ten years in a school, saluting the Stars and Stripes every day, singing American patriotic songs, reading American sentiment every hour, and still come away more Japanese than American. Nevertheless it remains true that to Americanize Hawaii, in view of the heavy preponderance of alien races, is going to be a stupendous task, and the stout hearts that have undertaken to do it should have every possible help and encouragement. It is for that reason that I shall favor liberal appropriations to carry forward the agricultural experimental work of the Islands, for the best possible way to Americanize any Territory over which our flag flies is to put the greatest possible number of people on their own land, building up their own homes."

"I do not want to close any comment upon our trip to Hawaii without an expression of gratitude to the people of the Islands for the delightful hospitality with which we were treated and the cordial reception given us everywhere we went. It was more like the loving welcome of old and intimate friends than the ordinary formal courtesies which we might have had a right to expect. Not only the Territorial and Federal officials, not only the prosperous merchants and planters, but 'the plain people,' the men and women and children whom we met on the public highway or at informal receptions, made it perfectly clear to us that they were really glad to see us and wanted us to come again. Maybe it was only 'a way' they have; but it is certainly a most delightful way."

Mr. Scott added that when the fortifications on the Islands which are now under way are completed they will be as impregnable as Gibraltar. It will cost many millions of dollars, but it will protect the whole Pacific coast as military experts declare that no foreign power would dare to make an attack on any of our coast cities, leaving a great naval and army base such as Hawaii will be, still unsubdued.

REMINISCENCES

(By E. S. Goodhue, M. D. of Holualoa.)

It was after these pleasant days among the Riverside orange groves, that I returned to San Francisco, and, many months later, persuaded my father to sell out his Eastern interests and come to Riverside to live. Shortly after our arrival I began newspaper work.

As I have said already, the boom surrounded us, but hardly altered the steady growth of the city whose residents were not easily excited. On the whole a good climate, good soil, abundance of water, and law-abiding, progressive people.

To this day I am impressed with the optimism of all classes living in the valley, and the kindly spirit shown new-comers, particularly those who engaged in business or professional pursuits.

There was room for all. No seeming jealousy, or contempt, or wish to belittle. The papers vied with each other in saying nice things about visitors and residents alike, without regard to whether they were rich or poor, and certainly the Christian charity shown covered a multitude sins.

A big, wholesome way had Riverside, taking each man for what he seemed, never critical or sneering, never envious of the successful or popular, never harking back to where a man came from to discover if he hadn't arrived on false checks, never socially shadowing a man, or a woman either.

"If we are deceived in any one," said one of the best residents to me, "he hurts himself and not us. We are always uplifted by looking on the good side of even a bad man."

To my mind, such a spirit carried out in a community, is worth more as an inducement to settlers and visitors, than any other advertisement. It is not based on the almighty dollar, but on good will to men. Many of our residents were from the South, but they took part in the ceremonies of Decoration Day with the rest; the Blue and the Gray being honored alike.

I will give in some later issue of the "Bulletin" part of an address I was asked to make, published at the time, and sent by my friend Singletary to Gen. Joe Wheeler who was kind enough to write me a note:

"I have read with deep sympathy your tender words. I am glad to see such a spirit in the new West, where so many of our people have gone. We are brothers; let us be friends."

It was my duty as a member of the "Management Committee" of the Y. M. C. A. with others to entertain a full-blooded negro minister and lecturer (a brilliant speaker whose name I have forgotten), driving him about, and showing him the sights.

This was done without provoking the least criticism, though in many respects this negro and his wife were not socially au fait. Even so, they were not picked to pieces as some better people have been in less cultured towns.

Our newspaper relations were cordial too. There was, of course, a good natured rivalry, and we twitted each other in a jocose way, but I do not remember any bitterness or injustice in printed word, so common in some localities.

Even the San Bernardino editors who looked upon Riverside as rather "goody-goody," provoked no decided anageuisms.

The only real quarrel that I remember, was that between the Pomona Times and the Progress, and though only a youth, I made up my mind never to waste brain tissue and printer's ink in scurrilities. As the result of a little "Press Meeting," it developed upon the "Enterprise" to attempt to separate the Pomona editors, so I came out with an editorial entitled "THROWING MUD." I quote only a few extracts from this:

"Two daily papers in Pomona, the Times and the Progress, are busily engaged in throwing adobe at each other. Like two naughty boys who fight, they will not find out until the fun is over, how little the satisfaction of being able to say 'I beat 'em' makes up for black eyes, sore bones, and a bespattered appearance generally. One pitches over a handful of mud and cries: 'Oh, you undignified unjournalistic thing,' while the other returns with: 'None of your hog-wash now.'

Let us hope that these otherwise sensible papers will either stop their nonsense, or be content to rest buried up in their own rubbish. As a rule, a newspaper quarrel is like a Kentucky feud,—interminable. Cresit eundo.

We see no reason why editors should not be good friends. If a certain business man hated every other business man engaged in competitive trade, what a world of confusion this would be!

When a man keeps digging at his brother competitor, biting and nagging like a malevolent cur, it is a pretty sure sign that either he is suffering from demijohn meatsnaps, or that he is being forced out of the lists by the laws of evolution.

While this fight may prove damaging to several persons, it is interesting to none.

For our part, we dislike to fight under any circumstances. If we should be forced into a fray, it will be in defence of a principle.

To live unneighborly neighbors; to be enemies in the midst of churches and Masonic Temples, is to give hostages to the devil.

In this wide California-land, at least, where theair is pure and the skies balmy, let us be as sunshiny as the climate."

Wit hthe help of many other newspapers throughtout the State which copied and elaborated our paragraph, the two billigerents were shamed off the arena.

The Y. M. C. A. reading rooms were now transferred from their small quarters on Eighth street, opposite the "Enterprise" office, to their own splendid apartments in a new stone building, built expressly for the Association. The day the corner stone was laid I issued a four-page paper called The Corner Stone, a copy of which was placed with other souvenirs in the south corner of the foundation. A lot was given for this building by Mr. F. A. Miller proprietor of "Glenwood Cottage," now Glenwood Inn.

Mr. S. L. Alderman succeeded my brother as President of the Association. This work was near my heart, as it appealed to those who real needs could be met each day by genuine sympathy and help.

The Rev. W. H. Robinson, general secretary, was a splendid man, untrameled by undue orthodoxy, gentle, actful, in all respects fitted for his work. I was intimately connected with him for several years, especially in our personal work among young man. As a delegate to the 5th Annual District Convention, and Chairman of the District Committee which issued an appeal to the young men of Southern California to make Riverside their headquarters during the Convention, I had ample opportunity to meet many bright and interesting lads who had come West for a start.

Public speaking was still rather irksome to me, so, at the request of the editor of the Y. M. C. A. "news," I took up a department entitled: "Talks In Our Parlor."

Though at home in my own specific field, I was at the outset of my experiences in Riverside, reluctant to assume any office which would require public speaking, which certainly was my bete-noir.

So, of course, I was chosen President of the Prohibition Club, before which I made my first sad break.

It was a bad one, I think, before our own members, where I was literally forced to take the position although I disclaimed all knewledge of parliamentary law.

I went home angry at myself, but determined to master the matter. Afterwards came many public meetings, with introductions of public speakers as well as addresses, which at least cured me of any stage fright I may have been afflicted with.

During this period, the Baptist church then a very popular congregation, gave an entertainment called a "Japanese Wedding," the proceeds of which were to go towards a local charity. Mrs. Holt (Kendall) the actress then in Riverside, drilled the dozen or so of pretty bridesmaids, as well as the bride and myself (the bridegroom). The thing proved a great attraction and was a roaring success financially. My bride was the wife of Robert Jack of whom I have already given an account in the "Two Bobs."

And here let me tell a little story somewhat personal to myself as all these records are, but relevant, I think.

Many years after the moc kmarriage, I met in Chicago the young woman who became my wife. At the very moment of my proposal of marriage to her, an impulse of mischief seized me, and pausing with a serious face, I said: "At such a time as this, I believe there should be no lack of confidence ebtween us, and I must tell you, dear, that I was married years ago in California."

The expression of disappointment which followed this statement, prompted me to offer an explanation at once.

aHd this not been forthcoming, my wife says that she would never have accepted me, but I am masculine enough to doubt this!

One day while in my sanctum, Senator Washburne of Minnesota called in to have a chat. He was visiting Riverside, he said, and never filled to look up a "Goodhue," as one of his dearest friends in Minnesota bore that name.

My uncle had gone to Minnesota in early days, leaving his name to a town and county in that state besides several descendants. And only last week some person unknown sent me a postcard of the "prosperous town of Goodhue County, Minnesota."

Among my chums was a quiet young man from Brockton, Mass., who afterwards achieved considerable fame as a painter in Santa Barbara where he died o ftuberculosis. His name was Ames, and one of his pictures in the Paris salon was talked about.

Miss Marcia Craft now a successful Grand Opera singer, was then puming her wins. Mr. Miles, the actor, was a young man working as a bookkeeper in a bank, as I remember, a strong socialist and Knight of Labor.

There was no dearth of social events in the littye city, and the air was charged with the gayety and life of buoyant youths of both sexes. In summer we all went to Laguna Beach, then the Riverside seaside colony, 60 miles distant by carriage, through Santa Ana and Tustin.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Scott of Holualoa, were then residents of Santa Ana. Things musical, artistic and litterary which my work did not give me time to attend to any extent, formed a large part of the amusements of the colony.

I always availed myself of opportunities to be among the children, and as a member of the Committee of Awards in the Demorest contests, I saw much good work, and some remarkable work done by very small children of the district. One little Miss I remember particularly, Lach her name was, I think, showed great promise in her papers. All these aids, with the indefinable but none the less real atmosphere of earnest endeavor towards higher things, are sadly missed here, at least outside of Honolulu, and one's spiritual nature must go hungry.

I think that I miss young people—their dear bright faces ,their songs, their laughter, the meeting of them in churches, Sunday school, and the social contact with them all, more than anything else.

We are sadly isolated. If there is anything which will be strong enough to take me away from Hawaii, it will be the desire to satisfy a hunger for the companionship of optimistic and kindly men. And as for the children—God bless them all of whatever color or condition—the world would be a sorry place without them. Every hotel which refuses to entertain families in which there are children, ought to be boycotted by respectable men and women. And every man except a sick one (who should never be in a hotel), that dislikes to have children around, or that is annoyed by the laughter and play of our little ones, ought to be sent to the Crank's Asylum and kept there until he is cured of his dreadful distemper. I cannot understand even how a sane man will allow himself to be disturbed by a crying baby. Every altruistic sense of love and pity should be called into play by the sob of a helpless child. And the really naughty child (they are few), is a thing to be interested in and not an object of annoyance.

In 1889 I went to Sa Fracisco to compelte arrangements for the publication of a book of verses entitled: "Verses from the Valley."

This volume with lilies and elgantines on the outside cover by Mr. Roe, contained lines contributed for many periodicals in California and the East. Every poem had seen the light in some reputable journal. I shall ever remember with gratitude the iknd1y reception given this wall by the press of California, more, I am aware, because I was a fellow craftsman than because of any literary preeminence. The following notice in a local paper is a sample of over 800 from a paragraph to two columns in length:

"E. S. G. well and lovingly known as a writer of prose and verse throughout California, is about to issue a book of poems entitled 'Verses from the Valley.' It will be a gem.)" Of course theeditor did not know whether it would be a gem or not, but he just said so out of his heart. In San Francisco I went to my old room at the Palace which I have occupied at occasional intervals up to 1898, my last visit. It has never been the fashionable or popular hotel, by any means, but I always found it homelike and comfo table.

In 1900 while on a visit to Los Angeles, we attended one of two lectures delivered for the benefit of a Girl's Home in the city, which we were told was now a prosperous institution.

If so, Mrs. H. A. Watson should she be living, must feel well rewarded for her hard work continued with faith and struggle.

As editor of the "Enterprise," I took the matter up with our people, and was successful in securing quite a number of names to the subscription list.

The following letter from Mrs. Watson is self explanatory:

Los Angeles, May 5, 1887.

, "eDar Sir:—I notice in the Herald that you have started a subscription list in your office for the stray girls' home. Many thanks for your interest in the work. But few of our citizens realize how much we need such a home in Southern California. There are young girls today in our houses of ill-fame, asking God to help them break the chains that bind them, and yet knowing that there is nothing for them outside but scorn and contempt. No helping hand or cheerful home to bring influences about them, and raise them up to a higher nobler life. There are so many young girls too that ew can save, who have not taken many false steps, but are on the sure road to ruin. We expect to establish an unsectarian christian home, to which girls can be committed from the courts—girls that are refractory and need restraint. We have legal power to hold them, till we can bind them with the cords of love.

Many thanks for your help and encouragement. It is only through the press that we can reach the people:

At last after a variable and desultory study of medicine accomplished between tasks of necessity, I sold my cottage and lot in the city, and prepared to go to Chicago. Much pressure was brought to bear upon me to continue in newspaper work, by friends I knew and those who had been strangers to me. A positio as an editorial writer on the Youth's Companion staff was secured for me, as well as a position on one of the Boston daiamin, offering to buy out a half interest for me in one of the successful newspapers of the town.

But I remained inflexible, and in a few weeks was on my way to Chicago where I expected to remain, and did remain nearly four years in the study of medicine.

PETITION FOR PROBATE OF WILL

A petition has been filed in the Circuit Court for the probate of the will of the late Helen W. Kelsey of Hilo.

The will was executed June 30, 1912, and bequeaths all property to a son, Theodore Kelsey.

The will stipulated that in the event of the son's death before his majority, all of the property of the estate was to go to William L. Whitney, now Judge of the Circuit Court, subject to trust.

NAMES WEAVER AS EXAMINER

Owing to the large increase of business in the Court of Land Registration, Judge W. J. Robinson today appointed P. L. Weaver, former Judge of the Court, as examiner of titles, the other examiners being Wade Warren Thayer and J. M. Monsarrat.

Under the provisoins of Chapter 154 of the Revised Laws of Hawaii, M. T. Simonson, registrar, today appointed George F. Wright as assistant civil engineer and surveyor of the Court of Land Registration, the appointment of Mr. Wright being approved by Judge Robinson.

The worn of the Court of Land Registration is increasing rapidly lately as to volume and importance of the business transacted.

COST HIM $20 TO SEE PRINCE

Failure Of Japanese On Subpoena Expensive

A fine of $20 was imposed by Circuit Judge De Bolt this morning upon the Japanese hack driver, Uzeno,, who, in answer to a patriotic impulse, went to see the arrival of the Prince instead of obeying a subpoena issued for him as a witness in the trial of Fushimo and Kakwokami, charged with illegal imprisonment. When Uyeno was subpoenaed by Chester Doyle he stated that he was "too busy," his engagements apparently consisting in frequenting a Japanese billiard parlor and occasionally driving a hack. His excuses were not accepted by Judge De Bolt, his contempt of court as shown in his failure to obey the subpoena being shown by the statements of Attorney Prosser and the testimony of Doyle.

Saito, a Japanese charged with selling liquor without a license, secured a suspension sentence for 13 months on the motion of Deputy City and County Attorney Brown. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge, but according to Brown's statement there were mitigatory circumstances in the case.

Ah Hoy, guilty of selling opium, secured a suspension of sentence on his promise to leave for China within a month. If he does not he will be arrested and sentence imposed.

Ah Ko, in reply to a question by Judge De Bolt as to whether he was guilty or not guilty of selling opium said:

"I am guilty and ask your honor to pardon me."

"Pardoning power lies with the Governor," replied Judge De Bolt. The Chinese was not "pardoned," but secured a suspension of sentence.

Fifteen Chinese gathered in from an old established lair on Pauahi street this morning are now of the opinion that they must have been handed the wrong pipe. Some wise personage has been passing through that portion of Chinatown spreading the cheering news taht Chief Leal had taken a trip for his health.

The chief of detectives and henchmen swooped down upon the bunch shortly after 9 o'clock this morning and caught the crowd red-handed in a game of sub-chai.

Men, money and markers were taken to the police station.

2 Poisons

THERE are very few farmers, nurserymen, horticulturists, etc., nowadays who don't appreciate the necessity of spraying. It has been proved that spraying improves both the yield and the quality. But spraying involves time, labor and expense, which are wasted if the poisons used are not effective. There are two poisons which you can rely on absolutely. They are carefully and skillfully made of the purest raw materials—S-W. Paris Green and S-W. Arsenate of Lead.

S-W. PARIS GREEN

ARSENATE is the killing agent in Paris Green. There must be sufficient arsenic to kill all the insects or the Green will not be effective; but if too much Arsenic is left "free," or not fully incorporated with the other ingredients, the Green will blight or burn the foliage. There is about 9% of "free" or uncombined Arsenic in S-W. Paris Green. S-W. Paris Green contains 56% of arsenious oxide. It is light in gravity and will stay well in suspension in the spraying can, providing a uniform mixture that will not readily wash off the foliage. The economy of S-W. Paris Green lies in the purity of the ingredients, the strength of the poisons and the skill of the manufacture.

S-W. ARSENATE OF LEAD

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS Arsenate of Lead is made by a new process which renders it the most effective and economical insecticide on the market. It is manufactured from a finely divided flocculent base and is prepared in softer form than any other. It conforms to Government specifications in every respect, and in order to keep it always in a condition easily worked up for use, we do not press out all the moisture as do most other makers. We market it in this form, and to conform to the Government specifications, which demand 50% dry arsenate of lead, we ship 125 pounds for every 100 pounds invoiced. Our lead in this form is also more effective, pound for pound, than that put up in the stiff paste form in which it is usually sold. Our free Booklet B-241 contains full information on Arsenate of Lead. Write for it.

Young Housekeepers

If you are about to buy a refrigerator, take our advice and give the matter of selection great care, for there are many things that depend upon your choice. First, your health; select a refrigerator that can be easily cleaned and is so constructed that there is very little chance for any dirt to collect in it. Second, economy; some refrigerators fairly eat ice, others keep it for the maximum length of time. There are other reasons almost equally as important.

See our stock and we will point out to you how to choose.

HOW PITTSBURG WON FIRST GAME

Playing gilt-edged ball at every stage of the game, the Pittsburg Pirates took the first game of the world's championship series from the Detroit Tigers this afternoon by a score of 4 to 1, says a Pittsburg dispatch of October 8. It was the Pirates all the way after the fourth inning when Manager Fred Clarke tied up the score with a home run. The National League champions out-hit and out-played the Detroiters and had little trouble in winning. The Tigers were first to score, but Clarke's home run tied it up, and after that there was scarcely any doubt about the ultimate result. Thus does Pittsburg get the big advantage in the series, for it is general supposed that the first game is about 40 per cent of the series.

The score shows that the Tigers out-hit the Pirates, but when the total bases are taken into account, it was much the other way. Doubles by old reliable Hans Wagner and Catcher Gibson and Clarke's home run count up five extra bases for the home crew, while Detroit was unable to get a single additional sack on its drives.

In the matter of fielding the Pirates outplayed the Tigers by a wide margin. The National Leaguers did not commit one bobble, while the American League champions were guilty of four glaring misplays. The Pirates, too, showed great confidence on the bases and ran the sacks like demons. They stopped up well in everything they did, while the Tigers bent and snapped under the strain of battle before the hostile Smoky City crowd.

Youngster Pitches for Pirates.

Adams, a youngster in major league circles, did box work for the Pirates. After the first inning, when he showed signs of nervousness before the large crowd, the Pittsburg flinger pitched a masterly game. When a Detroit hit would count most, Adams settled down and the heavy hitting Michiganders were unable to connect. Mullin, the veteran of the Detroit staff, held the locals well in hand until the fourth inning when Clarke's four-bagger seemed to take the ginger out of him. After that, hits came frequently and, mingled with costly errors behind him, Mullin was put in many mad holes.

Tommy Leach, the Pirates' diminutive out-fielder, was the star of the day. Although he had chances for but two put-outs, both were of the sensational order. His catch of Cobb's liner with two on bases brought the 30,000 spectators to their feet. Leach had to travel to the score board after the ball. His spectacular catch robbed Cobb of a home run, and shut off three possible Deroit scores.

Wagner Outhits Cobb.

Much interest was manifested as to how Cobb and Wagner would compare in batting honors. The former is the leading batter in the American League and the latter for several years has been the champion sticker of the National League. Cobb did not get a hit in to-day's game, and made one costly error, while the "Flying Dutchman" knocked out a double, thereby carrying off the honors of the day.

The Tigers were first to score, getting a man over the plate in the opening round. D. Jones was given a base on balls and Bush's sacrifice sent him to second. Cobb also drew base on balls, but Crawford laid down a weak tap to Adams and Jones was forced at third. Delehanty was there with a single, however, and the fleet Cobb raced to the plate. The inning ended when Moriarity's hit came in contact with Delehanty's person, and the base runner was called out.

Neither side threatened in the second and third innings and two Pirates were out in the fourth when Clarke hit out his homer. The ball cleared the fence in right field and fell into the bleacher seats.

In the fifth Abstein hit to Delehanty, who let the ball get through him, and the Pirate went to third on the error. Wilson fell a victim to Mullin's curves, but Gibcon, the Pirate catcher, poled out a double to center, which sent Abstein home. Adams was safe at first when Bush fumbled his roller, and the bases kere filled when Bobby Byrne was hit on the head by a pitched ball. Leach lifted out a long fly to Davy Jones, which enabled Gibson to score, and Clarke went out on a grounder, Delehanty to Tom Jones.

Wagner Hits Out a Double.

Hans Wagner inaugurated the sixth inning with a two-bagger into left garden. Hans took a big lead off second, and Schmidt, who tried to catch the Dutchman napping, threw the ball into center field and Hans skidded for third. After Miller had gone out on a pop-up to Schmidt. Wagner scored on Abstein's out. Wilson then singled and stole second, but Gibson ended the run-getting with a fly to D. Jones.

Leach saved the day for Pittsburg in the seventh. With two out, Davy Jones singled to left and Bush drew a base on balls. Then came Cobb's terrific hit and Leach's spectacular catch.

Deroit was retired in order in the eighth and ninth. In the last inning Jennings sent McIntyre in to bat for Tom Jones, but the best he could do was to fly to Clarke, Schmidt sent an easy fly to Leach, and Mullin ended the game by striking out.

There were 29,265 paid admissions, a new record for attendance in a world's series game. Every seat in the amphitheater was filled when Umpire Johnstone called "Play ball." The total receipts of the game today were $40,271.50, which will be divided as follows: To the National Commission, $4027.15; to the players, $21,746.61; to each club owner, $4248.87. The score:

SCORE BY INNINGS.

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Johnson-Ketchell Contest Today

This afternoon the much talked of and advertised fight for the world's championship is being pulled off between Jack Johnson, the present champion, and Stanley Ketchell, who challenged the negro to the contest.

The result of the fight will be published in another colum of the Bulletin today and it is safe to say that more interest is being shown in this match than has been shown in any other for some time past.

For one thing the contest will be between two men who differ very materially as regards weight and height. Johnson will step into the ring scaling 197 pounds and, as Ketchell was exactly 174 pounds when weighed last week, the difference will be 23 pounds.

Both men are reported to be in good condition and as far as the ultimate winner is concerned, the betting would seem to infer that Ketchell has not much chance against the big "smoke."

Ketchell's manager, Willus Britt, is seemingly confident that his man can whip Johnson by holding back until the champion tires, but Stanley will probably find out his mistake if he changes his natural way of fighting. Ketchell is a rushing fighter and his only chance, and a poor one at that, would seem to be in forcing the fighting from the tap of the gong.

Jack Johnson, in an interview a few days ago, stated that he did not expect to have much difficulty with Ketchell and, judging by the way the fight fans are tumbling over one another to lay 10 to 4 on the chances of Johnson knocking the so-called "Assassin" out, this afternoon's scrap should go just about as long as the negro wishes it to do.

Jack Johnson had a hard row to hoe before he got a chance at Tommy Burns for the world's championship, but once he got rid of that false alarm, landed on easy street. All the fights he has had since he defeated Burns in Australia have been easy snaps, and the negro never bothered about training properly for the events.

However, the fight which is to come off today was treated more seriously, and the champion has worked hard to get himself fit, as witness his reduction in weight from 225 pounds to the respectable fighting limit of 197 pounds.

Johnson's next apponent will probably be Jim Jeffries, and then the whole world will sit up and take notice, for it will be a battle of the giants.

If Ketchell, by any chance, defeats Johnson, a peculiar state of affairs will exist. Jeffries would not be likely to make a match with the "Assassin," and the latter would then hold both the heavy and middleweight championships.

Big Tennis Games This Afternoon

This afternoon it is probable that the two American tennis players, Long and McLoughlin, will play Gee and Roth, our crack pair, a few sets on the Beretania courts.

The two men who are going to Australia in the hopes of recovering the Davis cup, which is held by Brooks and Wilding, are traveling on the Aorangi, which arrived here today.

The local men make a strong pair, and both of them know the game right through. Although it is too much to expect that Gee and Roth defeat the champions of the mainland, still, after watching Gee at work, it is hard to conceive how anyone could be so very much better than he is.

McLoughlin is a youngster about twenty years of age, and is reported to be a wonderful player. His partner, Long, is also a champion, and the two men win most of their matches by hard smashes from all parts of the courts.

The match this afternoon will probably start at about 3 o'clock, and there should be a tremendous crowd present at the Beretania courts when the crack coast men meet our pair of players.

It will be remembered that a few years ago Parker, the New Zealander, passed through Honolulu on his way back from England, where he had been taking part in the championship games. The man from Maoriland played Will Roth a couple of sets, and the local man was defeated easily; however, Parker was not in really the first flight of Antipodean tennis playeRs, and it makes people wonder what sort of a player Norman Brooks is; he could probably give Parker 1-2 30, and a beating.

It will be very interesting to see how our two best players stacn up against the top notchers, and if Gee and Roth make a good showing all Honolulu will be delighted.

No More Rowing At Stanford

Boating as an intercollegiate sport was formally dropped at Stanford University through the action of the executive committee of the Associated Students last night, says the Examiner of Sept. 30. This action comes as the result of a strong movement against which was started last semester immediately after the annual regatta.

Three objections were raised against boating at Stanford—that it was too expensive, that the severe training was injurious to the members of the crew squad and that, owing to natural conditions, the sport could never be otherwise than fostered and artificial at this university.

Last year the combined expense of boating, including the doctor bills of the crew men, totaled about $4,000, while the appropriation was only $2,000. In view of the fact that the replacement fund for the expensive bleachers erected in 1905 places a large financial obligation upon the student body, it has been pointed out, the action of the executive committee was inevitable.

Permission was, however, granted by the committee for the entry of a crew to compete in the regatta to be held at San Francisco during the Portola Festival.

Crew Captain J. C. Huston, '10, in discussing the action of the committee, said: "Until the crew men have been called together it will not be known exactly what will be done regarding boating. If it is favored by the men, a boat club may be organized similar to the one which existed here before rowing was taken over by the student body."

First Game In Schools Series

Yesterday afternoon on Alexander field there was a practice game of football between Punahou Prep. School and Kamehameha. The Puns had no trouble with their opponents and beat them by the very large score of 36 to nl.

Much interest was taken in the match, which was the first of the Interscholastic series, and the form shown by the boys was very good considering how early it is in the season.

George Quintal, the captain of the Kamehameha team, played a fine game and his tackling was good. Will Coney, for Punahou, was good all round, and George Murray was all there in his plunges for the line. The referee was Howell Bond and his decisions were satisfactory to everyone. Gay and Nott acted as linesmen and Steven held the watch; two periods of 20 and 15 minutes were played.

Swimming Record Is Broken

Philip Patterson was chosen to represent the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club in the acquatic events to be held at San Francisco in connection with the coming Portola festival, as a result of having won two main events in competition with the other clubmen at Portland, Oregon. Patterson broke the Pacific Coast record for the 440-yard swim, negotiating the distance in 5:52. This clips thirty-two seconds off the Pacific Coast record. Patterson also won the 100-yard event in 1:35.

There were two other entries in the 440-yard event, Leads Thomas and David Welch. Thomas was showing well until he became ill and was forced to drop out. Patterson had to finish the race alone, as Welch also dropped out, and was swimming against time. Had there been a competitor at the finish Patterson, his friends say, would have shaved a few seconds more from the time. In the 100-yard race Patterson was pressed close at the finish by Ira Clark, but by a final spurt won out with a four-foot lead.

All-Star Team To Tour The Coast

Frank C. Bancroft, who will act as business manager for a baseball team that will play exhibition games with the Philadelphia Americans on a tour extending from New York to San Francisco, announced lately the make-up of his combination, which will be known as the All-Nationals.

Its pitchers are Johnson of Washington, Marquard of the New York Nationals, Curtis of the Boston Nationals and Moore of the Philadelphia Nationals; catchers, Meyers of New York and Bliss of St. Louis Nationals; infielders, Konetchy of the St. Louis Nationals, Doyle of the New York Nationals, Lennox of Brooklyn and Egan of Cincinnati; outfielders, Beacher of Cincinnati, Hummel of Brooklyn and Enss of the St. Louis Nationals.

Snodgrass of the New York Nationals will make the trip as a substitute catcher and infielder. The first game will be played in Chicago October 19th. The schedule calls for four weeks' play in San Francisco.

Papke Defeats Willie Lewis

Billy Papke proved himself the master of Willie Lewis at the National Sporting Club on October 8, battling for six rounds before one of the greatest fight crowds ever brought together in Pittsburg.

For two rounds the fighting was fast, clean and of a brand that convinced sports they were being handed the real thing. In the third round Papke began with a right to the head that sent Lewis to the floor, but the latter was up in an instant and returned to the milling. In the fourth Lewis went down twice, but his staying qualities brought him through.

In nthe fourth round Papke fought systematically, swinging for the head and jabbing at the body. Papke clearly outclassed his opponent, but should have knocked Lewis out in the fourth round, when he had him greatly distressed.

Should party discipline prove sufficient to make the boycott effective many distillers would be obliged to go out of business, as the effect of a relatively slight reduction in sales will be the cancellation of their rebate privileges.

Fifteen Miles Race Proposed

As the different runners and their "managers" do not seem able to come to any definite understanding as regards a race over any distance, the Athletic Park people have come through with a proposition that certainly looks good to most of the local followers of the game.

The directors of the Park will hold a free-for-all race on November 7, and the distance will be fifteen miles. No entrance fee will be charged and the prize money will be two-thirds of the net proceeds of the gate receipts.

The first and second man in the race will get the largest prizes, and the sum should be a substantial one.

It is good to see the Park management coming through with this proposal, and there can be no doubt as t othe success of the race. All the runners of the Territory should enter for the event, and with the available talent a fine field could be made up.

Connie Hayes and Dal Fahy will get the opportunity they have been seeking, and the two men will run well in the race. Most of the other pros will have a cut at the fifteen miles race, and even if some of them do not care to compete, they wont be missed terribly.

The move of the Athletic Park people is thought well of by all the sports who want to see another race as soon as possible, without any further bickering and squabbling about coin.

Roller Travels In Bad Company

Joe Carroll, the wrestling promoter for a long time Frank Gotch's manager; Bert Warner of Minneapolis, a well-known middle-weight wrestler, and Winn S. Harris of Spokane were arrested at Curfew, Douglas county, Wash., as members of the Mabray gang of wrestling swindlers recently indicted at Omaha and Council Bluffs, says the Call.

Carroll and Warner arrived in Seattle recently, attracted by the prosperity of the wrestling business, for Dr. B. F. Roller was meeting all comers before large audiences in the world's fair arena, and generally winning. Carroll matched his athlete, Warner, against the physician, but a hitch occurred at the ringside that has caused all wrestling matches to be viewed with suspicion. Warner, as soon as he entered the ring, lay flat on his back. A man in the audience then read a statement from Warner that in order to get a match with Roller he was obliged to agree to lie down twice and let Roller win. There was great excitement, while Roller and his manager indignantly denied Warner's statement.

Warner said he would lie down again to save his honor, and then, if Roller wished, the third encounter would be squarely contested. Roller won the fall after a contest that savored of pugilism and jiu-jitsu, finally disabling the smaller man by hurling him to the floor and dislocating his shoulder. Since the match much harsh language has been used by the wrestlers, and Dr. Roller is under bonds to answer to a charge of criminal libel.

Sir Thomas Lipton To Try Again

Sir Thomas Lipton has decided to make another attempt to "lift" the America's cup, says the Examiner's London correspondent. The baronet sails for New York on October 9th for the purpose of looking over the ground and consulting the authorities of the New York Yacht Club in an endeavor to induce them to permit him to challenge under the universal rule.

"I am as hot on the America's trail as ever I said," said Sir Thomas tonight. "I am willing and anxious to challenge, but it must be under the universal rule that prevails at every regatta in America. I think what is a good enough rule for all American yacht clubs to race under should be good enough for the cup races.

"I will build and sail any size boat the New York Yacht Club wishes under the universal rule, which was adopted to prevent freaks like the Shamrock, Columbia, Reliance, etc., sailing in the American cup races. No builder of any repute will build under that antiquated fifty-six-year-old rule as it would mean a more magnificent freak than ever before.

"It is all very good to sail freaks around Sandy Hook and Long Island Sound, but to sail a freak across the stormy Atlantic is a different matter.

"I don't say that if the New York Yacht Club is willing to accept a challenge under the universal rule, that I would win, but I would try my hardest and would certainly give the American public good sport. I cannot understand why the New York Yacht Club wishes to make the conditions suit themselves, and thereby debar me from participating when the deed of gift has a mutual clause inserted that makes it quite easy for the committee to meet my request.

"I am sure that if the man who drew the deed of gift were alive, he would be the first to say, "Give Lipton a chance under the rule obtaining in every other race in American waters."

"I am going to America without a challange in my pocket, but with the hope in my heart that the officers of the New York Yacht Club, after a personal consultation, will see the reasonableness of my contentions and intimate that a challange under the universal rule would be acceptable. With the slightest assurances to that effect I shall challenge at a minutes notice."

New York, October 1.—Members of the New York Yacht Club, discussing to-night the reports of another threatened challange for the America's cup by Sir Thomas Lipton under the so-called universal rule, made it clear that there has been no change of sentiment in the club since a similiar proposition of the Irish baronet was rejected two years ago, and that the club still holds that the famous trophy stands for maximum speed on the required water line length.

Fine Record Is Put Up By Filly

The $5,000 Transylvania purse for 2:12 trotters that has furnished a good many sensational contests was easy picking for the Iowa mare Penisa Maid, which spreadeagled her field from the time the word for the first heat was given at Lexington, Ky., on October 7, until the necessary three miles had been trotted. She did them in 2:04¼, 2:07¼, and with the exception of a short distance in the home stretch at the finish of the first heat there never was a time when she was put to a drive.

The 3 year old pacing Futurity attained a degree of interest from the fact that Maggie Winder, which won in hollow style paced the third heat in 2:06¾, lowering the record for 3 year old fillies a quarter of a second, the previous best performance also having been made by her.

The most important news of the day was that C. K. G. Billings had decided to have John Dickerson train his two fillies, Lou McKerron and Gertrude B, which are sired by J. A. McKerron and were out of the champion trotter Lou Dillon.

Tommy Burns Is Still Talking

Tommy Burns, who was in Auckland, New Zealand, at the end of the last month, sends word that he has decided to take another crack at Jack Johnson if the chance presents itself.

In a letter to the writer Burns says: "I have had a successful tour, and am leaving for Sydney again in a few days. If I don't start a fight club in Sydney I'l be off to America for a visit but will return to Australia, as I like the country and the people.

"I would like to get a return match with Johnson while he is champion. My wife says it is a matter about which I must use my own judgment. I know that public opinion will be that I have not much of a chance against Johnson, but I think the opposite. I did not do myself justice in our last fight, and at that, it never should have been stopped. I can beat that negro as sure as your're alive in a long fight, and I'll prove it if he will give me another match. I was out of luck that day, and that's all there was to it. I did not use my head enough. If I had let Johnson do some of the leading, there would have been a different story to tell. I know that once or twice when he assumed the aggressive he nearly fell over himself. After that he went on the defensive again, and I like a fool, played into his hands. I rushed and rushed, and his superior reach and strength told its tale.

"I know one thing. Johnson had to go to a hospital the day after the fight. He may not admit it, but two of his ribs were splintered. This is one of the things that makes me feel satisfied that I can beat him in a finish fight."

Further along in his letter Tommy speculates on the possibilities of Jeffries and Johnson getting together. "If they do, mark my words, Jefferies will be close enough to his old form to beat Johnson. It may be that Jeff's iron hands have to some extent last licked for all that."

Concerning Big Jim Jeffries

Certain remarks appearing in the press recently, purporting to be a statement made by the boxer Jim Jefferies regarding his chance of beating Jack Johnson in the forthcoming encounter for the world's championship, have caused a considerable feeling of antagonism against the first named pugilist, for it is felt by many who have read the sable message that the display of animus against the colored champion was unworthy of a white sportsman, and such Jim Jefferies was always understood to be, says the Sydney Referee. A recognised authority on boxing matters, Mr. Barney Reynolds, Melbourne, says that Jeffries never made the vindictive and boastful remark that is attributed to him in the cablegram, for he is too listless and lazy a man to worry himself about these things, and too good hearted a man to express the sentimentsalleged.

"Well, how did the statement get into print? More lying reporters?" Mr. Reynolds was asked.

"In a statement made by Jefferies' manager, Sam Berger, I fancy," was the reply, "and I am strongly of the opinion that Jefferies knows nothing about it, nor will he ever read it in the papers because he is too lazy to read anything He just wants to be det alone, to rest, for he loves that best of all. When he was married, his wife found seven hundred, unopened letters in his boxes, some of them from women. Jefferies used to gather up his letters when they accumulated in heaps during the period he was training, and say to his trainer, 'Guess I'll just go away to my room and read these letters. Don't let anybody disturb me for three or four hours. I'll lock the door.' And he would throw the whole lot into a box and sleep solid all the time. He loved to sleep and his trainer was so hard on him at times that it was only by this plan he could get a bit of rest on his own account. I'm sure he never said what's in the cable about Johnson; he'd rather sleep than worry. He thinks it time enough to take an interest in the affair when he steps into the ring—and then he fights."

Local and Coast Auto Doings

The little Hudson has already made a record of which it may justly be proud. Driven by M. E. Pinkhard, during a rain storm—when only one other car, and that a touring car of great power, attempted the trip over the mountains—the little machine made the treacherous stretch of grade up the Russian river canyon without the slightest difficulty, and went over the Pieta road to the summit, much of the distance on the high. It arrived at Lakeport with a time record but slightly inferior to that made by the big cars during pleasant weather. The round trip was made, coming back by way of Ukiah over roads that were very bad, in places being almost impassable by reason of water from two to three feet deep. Pinkhard stated that on the way back he made the run from Lakeport to Cloverdale in three hours, which considering the condition of the roads, is very good running time. He had absolutely no trouble and did not even lift the hood, except for oil.—Exchange.

V. Hyde Baker, agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway Townsite office at Cranbrook, B. C. has owned a 20 H. P. White Steam Car for three years and has driven it continuously in that period for business and pleasure. Oftimes the roads in his section of British Columbia are impassable in which event Mr. Baker "takes to the rails" of the C. P. R. R. Whenever the automobile is on the tracks Mr. Baker carries a conductor of the railroad and orders as a regular train.

R. D. Chapin, treasurer and general manager of the Chalmers-Detroit Motor Co., has returned to San Francisco from a two months trip abroad in the course of which he visited various automobile factories and studied conditions generally in the automobile industry. He also attended the aeroplane carnival at Rheims.

"Our business depression of 1907 affected the automobile industry in Europe rather seriously, as of course the panic reflected in the business of all European countries," said Mr. Chapin. "The industry is again just coming into its own over there, however, and the big comptnies who are producing well made cars are all busy. I went through the factory of almost every large manufacturer in Europe and found that as a rule they are equipped with very fine machinery and capable of turning out high quality cars. Almost without exception the plants are of angle story construction, whereas most modern type of American automobile factory construction is of the re-inforced concrete three or four storied type.

"Unfortunately for the European factories their output is limited, and it is very hard to attain a large volume of business. The figures I gave them as to the size of the production of some of our large manufacturers, seemed incredibtable and it was hard to convince them that the American public would buy such a tremendous number of cars. Over her, every American thinks he must own some type of automobile, whereas sales on the other side are confined to the wealthier classes. For this reason, the European manufacturer today finds it difficult to approximate the value for the price in his cars which is to be had in America. This result the American makers obtain through spreadng the overhead expense of their factories over a great production, so that the actual charge per car is smaller compared with our foreign brothers. Nowhere is this so much in evidence as without light. American cars sold at a moderate price, for where our factories make thousands of cars yearly, theirs make hundreds."

F. H. McFarland of Fort Worth, Texas has been spending the summer in New England and in the course of that period has been making tours throughout that region with his Franklin runabout. Speaking of one of his experiences, he recently said:

"I have just returned from a trip through the White Mountains. I heard a great deal of talk about the steep grades and high hills in the White Mountains, and I have had no trouble whatsoever in negotiating the hills with four passengers and a load of hand luggage, notwithstanding the fact that in one place I was given kerosene instea dof gasoline.

"I ran in all 420 miles on seventeen gallons of gasoline and six gallons of kerosene.

"I am confident that this car can take any of the hills in the White Mountains without overheating. I did not have to tauch a wrench to the car the entire trip."

Mr. McFarland's motor car is a double-rumble runabout of 1910 model.

SHORT SPORTS.

Charles R. Wheeler, a second-year student from Modesto, died of heart failure last night after a friendly tussle with his roommate and several friends. He was a well-known athlete says the Call of October 8.

Wheeler had been wrestling with several companions in his room at one of the campus boarding-houses and complained that he was exhausted and not feeling well. His companions thought that he was only naturally tired from his efforts, but he became rapidly worse, and Dr. Williams, the resident physician of the campus, was summoned. Before the physician arrived Wheeler was dead. At the inquest held in Palo Alto this afternoon the verdict was to the effect that death was caused by acute dilation of the heart.

Wheeler was a track athlete, making his second team letter on the varsity squad last semester. His parents live in Modesto.

NEWS NOTES FROM KAMEHAMEHA SCHOOLS

The first game of the two color-teams started Thursday afternoon on the School grounds and resulted in a close score of 6 to 5 in favor of the Blues.

Both teams had their rooters out and then made a noise like a brass band.

Many new players were in the two nines who showed up pretty well. Kalai pitched a fine game for the winner. The series is looked forward to as an interesting one. The score by inning was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Whites	0	1	0	2	0	2	0	0	0	—5
Blues	2	1	0	0	0	1	1	1	*	—6

Whites—J. Kauhi, c; McGowan, p; S. Bush, 1b; W. Apau, 2b; J. Bal, ss; Kamau, 3b; J. Poepoe, lf; Hapai, rf; Kaleialii, cf.

Blues—E. Noah, c; D. Kalai, p; G. Kaluna, 1b; Opunui, 2b; Lugau, ss; Waialeale, lf; Spencer, cf; Wilcox, rf.

At a meeting held at the Kamehameha School on Thursday evening the boys voted to work eight hours on the new Athletic field which will be on the Ewa side of the School grounds.

There are about six acres to be cleared up and there will be room for about two baseball games going on at the same time.

The trustees have put aside a certain sum of money to help build up the field.

A new quarter mile running track will be placed on the field. The boys are to put in their eight hours work at different times. It is expected that the new field will be finished about March.

IN BUSINESS CIRCLES

Most everybody wants to know why the stocks should be dropping in price when the selling price of raw sugar is the highest it has been this year, and more than one Hawaiian cargo has reached the market in time to get the best of the prevailing quotations.

First there is no more reason for what the Honolulu stock market does sometimes than there is in the answer to the query, Why is a hen?

Secondly the time appears to be ripe when bugbears are taken up seriously and the pessimistic reports are accepted with avidity.

Nothing has occurred to change the situation so far as this Territory's main industry is concerned, except that some of the large holders in sugar properties are predicting a lower range of sugar prices, although each day there is an advance and a nearer approach to a level between the European and New York quotations. Consequently selling orders are general, and those who have the money to buy are holding off until the increase of selling orders puts the stocks down to bedrock or lower, when they will bring their money out of the bank, and while the little fellow is standing on the sidewalk with his mouth open, make a good sized profit on the advancing market.

Everybody is talking beets again, and of the prospect that the European shortage will not be as large as anticipated. That is what the Sugar Trust circulars are saying, but among some of the best known manipulators in Wall street, it is a rule to put their money in directly the opposite direction from that recommended by inference by the expressions in the circulars issued by the "big ones."

Representative business men recently returned from Europe report that the beet shortage is not so very serious but the increase in consumption has kept up, so whether you figure it as a shortage or an increase of consumption, the European source of supply is sufficiently small in indicate a continuation of higher prices.

Some people locally have suggested that the sag in the price of stocks is due to the near approach of the tax period. If this be true it shows what tremendous excuses can be hatched up to account for what cannot be explained. Taxes should have no effect whatever unless the men with large supplies of money wish to keep the coin out of the city pending the approach of January 1, when they are assessed on the amount of coin they have on hand.

The stock market has slumped the last week, and during the latter part of the week there has been considerable activity at the lower prices. Ewa has dropped to a sale of 30. Oahu has sold in good sized lots at 31.75. The Pioneer mystery still continues, some of the stock selling through the week at 183, and the plantation is said to never have been in better condition. Waialua is pretty firm at 118, but the hammers are at work to put it to 116. Hawaiian Commercial is hardly heard of these days, and the last sale was six shares at 34. Just to keep everything on the same plane the cheaper stocks have been carried down but with mighty few sales at the prices offered. In connection with the cheaper stocks the Bulletin this week published the facts regarding the water find on McBryde plantation. It amounts to this: further development of a good well that sometimes went salt has brought out a good sized area of "water rock" that gives a million gallons a day of the purest water. This means a great deal to McBryde as salt was one of its old dangers, and the new tunnel not only gives better but more water.

The reduction in the price of stocks has occurred in the face of the nicest array of dividend payments that has favored the local market in many years. All of the regulars have been paid, and in addition the Hawaiian Commercial two per cent extra was paid on the 15th and Brewer & Co. announced another of their three per cent specials paid on the 15th. It is impossible that there should be a lack of money in the market.

Haiku and Paia stockholders are holding their meeting today to pass on the increase of the capital stock of those properties. Plans are set for the Haiku stock to be trebled, making the total $1,500,000 and Paia doubled making it also $1,500,000. The general policy of stock increase is regarded as a very serious matter by many who hope to see a steady improvement in the condition of labor in the Territory. When cheap sugar comes the stockholders will want just as large dividends and it will be up to the manager to make good by getting cheap labor. That's the danger of it all, is now and ever has been in every industry that was ever carried on under the corporation system.

Sugar prices have been splendidly sustained. Beets went to 11s. 6d. or a parity of 4.43 last Saturday, and has dropped back gradually during the week till it closed at 11s. 1½d. on Friday. Centrifugals that have been ruling at 4.235 went to 4.30 on Monday and remained at that figure long enough to allow the Texan's cargo of 11,100 tons to get in at that high price, and on Thursday went to 4.25 or $85 per ton. This is just as good a price as Hawaii could possibly ask, and the fact that our present crop is off should have no more effect than during previous years at the same period.

Real Estate is now striking a pace that is in keeping with the assured future of the city. The launching of the Kalmuki Land Company to handle the suburban property of the Gear Lansing estate, represents one of the best organized real estate movements that has ever been put before the local people. The management is in charge of Mr. Stanton, who has the experience associated with successful work in this line elsewhere coupled with several months spent quietly looking over the local field to size up the situation and make up his own mind as to what was the best proposition for buyers. These people are putting some magnificent suburban property on the market in a section of the city that has a perfect climate, and the whole proposition is well backed financially.

All real estate is fairly active, the Hawaiian Realty Company report during the week handling the sale of the Beiser property on Kinau street to Mr. Meyer of Waianae. Inquiries are general for homes, and building is active though unfortunately the cars carrying the skilled labor to their work in the morning carry a preponderance of Orientals. Honolulu is bound to grow and the virtue of real estate is not dimmed by the fact that some years ago Honolulu overdid the thing because it thought that the fortifications and forts were to be put up at that time. Now they are actually going up and the military and naval population we knew was coming is beginning to get settled, that is the advance guard.

In this connection, the Federal government is contemplating and probably will soon take over the beach property extending from the present fortification at Waikiki toward town to the John Ena road. The time may even come when the property to the Moana Hotel will be taken by the Government, but not just yet.

The trust companies in America have increased from less than one thousand in 1904 to fifteen hundred in 1909. Resources in the same time have gone up from three billions to $4,609,088,800.50, figures which are eloquent of the usefulness of this new form of banking. In Edward T. Perine's address before the trust company section he said, in conclusion:

"The growth of the trust companies since 1904, enormous as regards the older institutions and substantial in the case of the newer ones, is clearly proven by the summaries made of each year's figures. With a volume of wealth nearly approaching 5 billions of dollars, the entire number of trust companies are approximately equal in size to the national banks of ten years ago, the fact being that 3.583 national banks reported on June 30, 1899, to the comptroller of the currency that their total resources and liabilities were 4 billions 708 millions, or only 99 millions of dollars more than the total wealth of the trust companies of today. During five years past the percentage of increase in the total resources of the national banks has been 42 per cent, that of the trust companies 47 per cent. Today the deposits of the trust companies, exclusive of amounts due other banks are a sum approximating 70 per cent of the same liability on the part of the national banks; while the total resources of the company's 1,496 trust companies are nearly 47 per cent of those of the country's 6,926 national banks. In this fact there is reason for much congratulation, there is cause for every encouragement. May the growth and abounding success of the trust companies continue in other years—and always!"—Chicago Banker, September, 1909.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market." J. E. Simpson, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere." J. B. Alexander, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood." Chas. Edward Gammeter, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result." F. Gerald Blattner, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble." C. A. Wilson, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children." J. A. Boarman, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

STARS AND STRIPES ARE INSULTED

Victoria (B. C.), Oct. 10.—The United States flag flew today from the United States Consulate upside down with a Canadian flag fluttering above it. Following a drunken squabble, two young men climbed to the roof of the consulate during the night and ran the Canadian flag above the United States flag, which was reversed and hoisted in that position. An investigation into the affair will be made tomorrow.

SOCIAL CHATTER AND HOME TALK

ON the road to Waikiki
Where the oderous duck ponds be,
There the waddling ducks disport
All day long in merry glee
On the road to Waikiki.

It has been decreed that the sportive duck must go—where, no one cares, unless it is to furnish the piece de resistance of a good dinner. A miniature city will be created on the unsightly spot, which has marred the beauty of the approach to the resort which Honolulu is so justly proud of. Many a protest against the unsavory odors which have assailed the nostrils of the stranger within our gates, as well as those domiciled in this earthly paradise, and the good tidings of the metamorphose, so near at hand, will bring gratitude to the enterprising men who have this improvement in charge, and are making rapid strides to dredge, and build the "Bungalow City," which cannot fail to be a thing of beauty" for the bungalows in themselves will be attraction, made doubly so, by their surroundings of green lawn, flowering plants and vines, and last but not least. The stately palm, ever with us, will be a welcome change, and fill a long felt want for those desiring a home at, or near the beach. This should appeal to the vaerage home seeker, the easy access to the ocean and the fact, that the houses will be well equipped with every convince, augurs well for the success of this project.

Moana Hotel Hop.

The hop given at the Moana hotel in honor of the Army people on board the transport Thomas was one of the most successful affairs of the season—and that is not a mere conventional remark! All the young people who attended the affair—both from town and from the transport, were eager for the dance, the women looked unusually well, for they had donned their prettiest gowns for the occasion, the officers looked natty in their white uniforms, while the town men wore the conventional evening dress. A number of the visitors had never heard the Hawaiian music and were most enthusiastic over "Cunha's singing boys," the dancing kept up until the last car, which alas! came all too soon! was the general comment.

Frank Damon's Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Damon entertained Thursday evening complimentary to Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury at their charming home at Moanalua. Over the round table was suspended beautiful hanging baskets, the long fronds of maiden hair fern, and the trail asparagus vine, combined with the center piece of sweet scented star jessamine and white begonias presented an exquisite and novel decoration. Candelabra with delicate green candles and shades, contributed to the decoration of white and green. After dinner a delightful musical programme was rendered, the chief participants being Miss Violet Damon, who is an accomplished violinist, Mrs. L. Tenney Peck whose singing was much enjoyed, and Mrs. Wadhams, wife of Major Wadhams, whose sweet mezzo-soprano appealed to all the listeners. Those present at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Damon, Judge and Mrs. Selden Kingsbury, Major and Mrs. Wadhams, Mr. and Mrs. L. Tenney Peck and Miss Violet Damon.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams' Dinner.

Most enjoyable was the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williams at their home at 240 King street Sunday morning. The function was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. Paul Haag of San Francisco. Pink roses made a beautiful ornamentation for the table, leis of sweet scented pink carnations were found at each place. Different views of the house, mounted on artistic cards were used as place cards, after dinner a musical evening was enjoyed, Mr. Kenneth and Mr. Willard Ables, nephews of the host and hostess, are proficient in the piano and violin, and contributed a number of selections to impromptu musical. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williams, Mr. and Mrs. C. Paul Haag, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Ables, Mr. and Mrs. Levy, Mr. Kenneth Ables, Mrs. Zeave, Mr. Willard Ables and Mr. Charles Osborne.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Castle's Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Castle entertain informally at dinner Wednesday, in honor of Judge and Mrs. Selden Kingsbury of Maui. The table was in yellow, feathery yellow chrysanthemums formed the center piece, coffee was served on the large circular makai lanai, after dinner, and an enjoyable evening was spent at this meautiful home. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Castle, Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury, General and Mrs. McClellan, Major and Mrs. Wadhams and Miss Beatrice Castle.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Klamp's Dinner.

At their beautiful home at 1518 Thurston Avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Klamp entertained at dinner Sunday evening in honor of Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury. A delicious dinner was served, and the table was artistic in red roses; those who enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Klamp were Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury, Major and Mrs. Wadhams, Mrs. Waldo Evans, wife of Lt.-Commander Evans of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Mannie Phillips, Mrs. S. G. Evans, wife of Surgeon Evans of Pacific Fleet, and Mr. H. F. Wichman.

The Misses McClellan's Luncheon.

Friday, Miss Rose McClellan and Miss Josephine McClellan were hostesses at a luncheon given at their home in Nuuanu Valley. The dining room, where the repast was served, was decorated in Pink Duchess roses, these exquisite flowers formed the center piece of the well appointed table, pink place cards ornamented with violets were much admired by those present. The color scheme of pink and violet was extremely pretty; the guests of the Misses McClellan were Miss Irma Ballentyne, Miss Alice Hedeman, Miss Mosher, Miss Alice Spalding, Miss Marie Ballentyne, Miss Ethel Spalding, Miss Harriet Hatch, Mrs. Samuel Damon, Miss Dorothy Wood and Miss Katherine Stephens.

Mrs. Clifford B. Wood's Bridge Luncheon.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of the week, was the Bridge Luncheon given Friday, by Mrs. Wood at her home on Thurston Avenue. Ten guests were seated around the table, which was appropriately decorated in white asters, beautiful European place cards representing views of Italy were used. After luncheon the all absorbing game of Bridge was indulged in. The fortunate guests were Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. Widdifield, Mrs. Belle Jones, Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, Mrs. Kingsbury, Mrs. Wadhams, Mrs. Mannie Phillips, Mrs. Harry Lewis and Mrs. Jack Dowsett.

The Misses Walker's Luncheon.

Miss Margaret Walker and Miss Agnes Walker entertained a number of old friends at an impromptu luncheon, Tuesday, at their home at Waikiki. The affair was very delightful, principally on account of its informality. Small tables were arranged on the Waikiki lanai, four guests were seated at each table, which were decorated in cut flowers; after luncheon the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to Bridge. Among the guests were Mrs. James Wilder, Miss Barnes, Mrs. Jack Dowsett, Mrs. Alexander Campbell, Mrs. Gertrude Wilder, Mrs. C. B. Wood, Mrs. M. M. Scott, Mrs. Charles Bryant Cooper, Mrs. Frederick Klebahn, Mrs. Charles Wilder, Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mrs. Frederick Klamp, Mrs. Samuel Wadhams, Mrs. Humphreys.

Major and Mrs. Wadham's Dinner.

Saturday evening, Major and Mrs. Wadhams gave a jolly little dinner in honor of their house guests, Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury. The table was prettily arranged for the occasion, covers were laid for twelve, pink roses were lavishly used in the dining room as a decoration. Those present were Major and Mrs. Wadhams, Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Prosser, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Deering, Doctor and Mrs. Charles Bryant Cooper, Miss Blanche Thatcher and Mr. Charles McAvoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Gartley's Dinner.

The Honolulu Country Club, was the setting for a very pretty dinner Monday evening, which was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elston, by Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Gartley. The party motored to the Club, dinner was served at seven o'clock; the table was tastefully decorated in purple astors. During dinner Sonny Cunha's Quintet Club, sang beautiful Hawaiian airs. Later in the evening, dancing was indulged in until a late hour. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Gartley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elston, Miss Phinney, Miss Sue Clarke, Miss Elston, Mr. Bond, Mr. Jordan and Arthur Mackintosh.

Mrs. Ned Jones Luncheon.

Mrs. Ned Jones entertained in honor of Mrs. Charles Elston, Thursday, at her home in Nuuanu Valley. The affair was a luncheon, the scheme of color for the table was pink and green. Large double pink hibiscus were banked in the center, white trailing similax was festooned from the chandelier, to the corners of the table. Attractive pink place cards designated each place. Those present beside the hostess and her guest of honor were, Mrs. Walter Frear, wife of Governor Frear, Mrs. Samuel Wilder, Mrs. Albert Waterhouse, Miss Elston, Miss Sue Claike of California, Miss Phinney, Miss Kopke, Mrs. Ernest Ross and Miss Irmgard Schaefer.

Launch Ride to Pearl City.

Mrs. Reed chaperoned a party of young people on a launch ride to Pearl City. The party left on the "Waterwitch" about ten o'clock Saturday, on reaching their destination luncheon was served in picnic fashion, under the palms and trees. Later the young people about thirty in all, danced in the pavilion. After a pleasant outing the party returned to town about five in the evening.

Mrs. Milo M. Potter and her beautiful daughter Miss Nina Jones, who spent several months last spring at the Moana Hotel, and who made many warm friends during their visit in Honolulu, entertained in a novel manner at their country home near Santa Barbara—the following is copied from one of the Southern California papers:

A "Barn Dance," which was given Friday evening of last week at the Potter Country Club, situated on the beautiful Houe ranch, near Santa Barbara, was one of the most elaborate and original affairs of this season. It is of more than passing interest to us inasmuch as it was given in compliment to one of our pretty debutantes of last winter. Miss Harriett Alexander, who was the guest of Mrs. Potter's daughter, Miss Nina Jones.

The clubhouse was converted into a New England farm house— and the typical scene was made of bales of hay about the grounds which served as seats, and along the driveway improvised haystacks were used to support lanters, while the wall and rafters were adorned with pumpkins, cornstalks and cabbages, flowers and fruit. Outside the barn doors were crocks of cider, while unique refreshments consisting of pies, doughnuts, ginger bread, cold chicken, were served the merry guests. The barn dance old-fashioned reels, a grand march for supper, and the almost forgotten square dance, were part of the programme:

Mr. and Mrs. Milo M. Potter led the grand march, and among their guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Welch Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Salano, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Garland, Dr. and Mrs. John Page, C. O. Alexander, C. Brown, Miss Harriet Alexander, Miss Dolly MacGavin, Miss Lolita Burling, Miss Margaret Stow, Miss Elisabeth Newhall, Miss Marian Newhall, Miss Martha Calhoun, Miss Delphina Dibblee, Miss Louise Clark, Miss Marguerette Park, Mr. Eldridge Green, Mr. Melville Bowman, Mr. Harry Gregory, Mr. Arthur Woolworth, Mr. Sherman Stow, Mr. Harold Chase, Mr. Ashby Keeney, Mr. Albert Spaulding, Mr. Robert Elmore, Mr. William Walters.

Our Shriners in Los Angeles.

Many of our local people sometimes make fun of the phrase "among the others present," but they use it elsewhere as is shown by the relative prominence given United States Senator Flint and other more or less prominent personages of California who placed in line with the Shriners from Honolulu and San Francisco who visited Los Angeles:

Avalon, Oct. 2.—Entering the harbor by the light of a great display of fireworks and a marine band playing, the steamer Cabrillo, bearing 800 Los Angeles Shriners, arrived at 6:40 tonight. The entire crowd was taken to the barbecue grounds, back of the big pavilion, where they enjoyed a dinner of meats, fish, salads and many other barbecued dishes. After the dinner the Shriners took in the town until 8:30, when they went to the big dance hall, which had been fixed up especially for the benefit of the hundreds who were to make the journey over the hot sands to become members of the Mystic Shrine. The steamer will leave tomorrow night at 6:30.

With dull care entirely discarded and joy and mirth unconfined, upwards of 800 Shriners left Los Angeles at 3:30 yesterday afternoon to cross the "hot sands," or rather salt water, to Catalina. The members of the Arab and Bedouin patrols were attired in their fatigue uniform.

Charles G. Bockus, potentate of Aloha Temple, Honolulu; Past Potentate George Filmer, Islam Temple, San Francisco; Past Potentate and Representative to the Imperial Council James S. McCandless of Aloha Temple, Honolulu; the officers of Al Malaikah Temple and the patrol were among the guests.

Among others making the journey were Senator Frank Flint, Motley Flint, Leo Youngworth, W. H. Harrison, W. P. Jeffreys, Robert Wankowski, W. D. Deeble and L. J. C. Spruance.

St. Andrew's Sale.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Guild are working to make their sale of garments, home-cooked delicacies, home-made candies and fancy articles a success. It is to be held at the Parish House on the afternoon of November 24th. Booths of various sorts will be in evidence, possibly on the lawn of the Parish House. There will be ice cream and tea booths, and the delicatessen table under the management of Mrs. Kopke will have many kinds of cold meats, turkey, tongue, chicken, ham, etc., besides cakes, pies, rolls, bread, jellies and jams for sale. It will be an opportunity to supply your own Thanksgiving table with delicacies at a medium price. The practical side will be represented by a table of garments of all kinds for children, also ladies' hand-made underwear, aprons and dressing sacques. Orders for one garment or a number of garments are solicited. The work is done by careful needle women. On the afternoon of the Delicatessen sale there will be music on the lawn, and it is hoped to make it a social success. The proceeds are to go toward the furnishing of the new priory.

Mrs. Tauner's Dinner.

On Sunday evening at the Moana Hotel, a prettily appointed dinner was presided over by Mrs. T Tauner, who has been a guest of this popular Hotel, for the past two months. Mrs. Tauner resumed her contemplated 2 year's trip around the world — in company with her daughter Ruth—on the Mongolia. Later Sunday evening the party motored around the suburbs of the city, those to whom Mrs. Tauner extended this compliment were Paymaster and Mrs. Hornberger of the Navy, Captain and Mrs. Marix, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. J. Morton Riggs, Mrs. William Glassford, Miss Tauner, Miss Katherine Stephens, Mr. Percy Cleghorn, Mr. Charles McAvoy and Mr. James Page.

Mrs. Ables Thimble Party.

Mrs. L. C. Ables gave a charming thimble party Monday at her beautiful home on Kewalo street, each guest was requested to bring her thimble and sewing. Many dainty bits of fancy work were seen, and a happy as well as a profitable afternoon was spent in the art of needle work, so dear to a woman heart. Delicious refreshments were served, as well as cooling lemonade and fruit punch, during the afternoon, those present were Mrs. L. C. Ables, Mrs. Atwater, Mrs. Raymond Brown, Mrs. Harry Webster, Mrs. H. H. Williams, Mrs. Auerbach, Mrs. Dennison, Mrs. W. W. Dimond, Mrs. Grieves and Mrs. W. M. McLean.

Captain and Mrs. Ramsey's Luncheon

Captain and Mrs. Ramsey entertained at a charming appointed luncheon, Wednesday, in honor of Colonel and Mrs. Pendleton of the U. S. M. C. The table presented a picture in its decorations of large yellow chrysanthemums; the place cards were appropriate for the occasion, with the Marine Corp device in the corner, out of compliment to the gallant officer that was the guest of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis' Luncheon

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, who understand entertaining to perfection, entertained Thursday, at luncheon in honor of Colonel and Mrs. Pendleton, American Beauty roses were used in great profusion. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Col. and Mrs. Pendleton, Captain and Mrs. Ramsey, Mrs. Brooks, wife of Paymaster Brooks, U. S. N. and the Misses Brooks.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elston's Theatre Party.

Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Clarles Elston entertained twenty of their friends at a theatre party at the Opera House, and Carter the Mysterious as usual delighted the audience. After the performance the party adjourned to the Alexander Young, and indulged in a delicious supper.

Governor and Mrs. Frear's Dinner.

One of the artistic dinners of the week, was given at Arcadia Tuesday; the Governor and his charming wife entertained in honor of Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury who are old friends. The beautiful koa table sparkled with cut glass, and silver, while shaded candles, cast a beautiful glow over the table.

Bowen's Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bowen entertained at a mid-day dinner in honr of Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury, Sunday.

* * *

The dinner given at the Alexander Young Hotel on Monday evening, October eleventh, for the purpose of setting the ball in motion for the building of a fitting place for the Young Men's Christian Association to hold their various meetings, was a great success. To get the support and sympathy as well as the hearty co-operation in this project for a new edifice, this means was taken—that it was a step taken in the right direction has been proven by the response to the invitation extended, and the enthusiasm and vim with which the ways and means was handled as to the best way of conducting this campaign, committees were appointed, the best method for collecting money for the enterprise discussed—in fact no detail was omitted, and the pledges of moneyed support are groiwng each day. A structure such as Honolulu will look upon with pride will be put up—a monument with an open door to a higher and broader development, and serve as a beacon light for the youth of our city, and others who tarry with us for a while.

Mrs. Pourie, wife of Captain Pourie of the artillery, U. S. A., arrived on the transport Thomas. Mrs. Pourie has been one of the social leaders in San Francisco, and will be an acquisition to the "Upper Ten" in Honolulu. The following is copied from the San Francisco Chronicle:

Mrs. Pourie, wife of Captain J. R. Pourie, U. S. A., will be greatly missed after she sails for Honolulu on September 5th, for she enjoys quite as much popularity in the civilian life of this city as in army circles. During the time Captain Pourie was stationed at the Presidio theirs was one of the most delightful of homes. And from all accounts their quarters at Honolulu will be a repetition of the hospitality their friends so much enjoyed here.

Tuesday evening a dance was given on board the transport Thomas, in honor of Brigadier General and Mrs. Pershing. The deck was decorated in flags, and bunting and music was furnished by the famous Constabulary Band,—that in itself would enthuse the most unenthusiastic person to "trip the light fantastic," and it most certainly did! Everyone—among the gentler sex—appeared in their most fetching toilette, while the officers wore service white, as one of the passengers remarked, "it was a beautiful affair, and every one enjoyed the evening, and only regretted when it was over." About 11 o'clock refreshments were served. The guests of honor entered into the spirit of the affair, as much as the younger set, and won everyone by their enthusiasm, and affable manner.

In compliment to Mrs. Kingsbury of Maui, and Mrs. Frank Morrow, wife of Captain Morrow of the 7th Infantry, Mrs. Wadhams entertained at an informal tea, Thursday. Her home at Fort Shafter looked unusually pretty in its garb of palms and cut flowers. This trio of attractive women received in the drawing-room. Tea and ices were served in the dining room. Miss Josephine McClellan and Miss Beatrice Castle poured tea and coffee, while Miss Rose McClellan and Miss Violet Damon presided over the ices. During the afternoon Mrs. Wadhams sang, and Miss Violet Damon played beautifully on the violin. About forty guests were invited.

A rare treat was given to the lovers of music when the famous Philippine Constabulary Band stopped off on their return home after a successful engagement in the Eastern cities, eighty four artists have the wonderful gift of music, and under the able leadership of Captain Walter Howard Loving, they are welcomed wherever they go, and appreciate audiences greet them. This wonderful band has been here before but such music never wearies one—a strong desire to hear it repeated is the best evidence of its quality, crowded houses greet them wherever they play and the well filled houses on Thursday afternoon, and evening has been no exception to this rule.

The brief visit of Count Soncho Otani, was a great privilege to the thousands of Japanese who did him honor. Their respectful and reerv ential manner of receiving their leader, soon to be their priest, was proof of their love and veneration. He gave them not only absolution, but much wise and good counsel as to their attitude toward their adopted country. The Count is young and handsome, and has a most pleasing personality. His reception of those not his own countrymen was dignified and affable, and his courtly manners, bore the hall mark of the polished and true gentleman.

Philanthropic society is greatly interested as well as pleased over the fine work that the Humane Society has accomplished during the past year; much of the credit is due to Miss Rose Davison, the humane officer that is employed by the society. Miss Davison besides being a hard and conscientious worker, is a sympathetic one as well, which counts a great deal in the work. In the near future a charity fete will be given, in order to raise funds to carry out some of the different projects proposed at the last meeting.

Judge and Mrs. Quarrel's Dinner.

Judge and Mrs. Quarrels entertained at dinner Monday evening, complimentary to Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury. The oval table was artistically decoated in pink carnations and maiden hair fern, after dinner coffee was served on the artistic lanai of the Quarrels bungalow. Among those present were Judge and Mrs. Quarrels, Judge and Mrs. Selden Kingsbury, Lieutenant and Mrs. Calhoun Ancrum and Miss Helen Quarrels.

* * *

Mrs. Frank Robards, wife of Captain Robards of the U. S. M. C. was an arrival on the Alameda; this charming young matron will be an acquisition to Honolulu society; Captain Robards has been stationed in Honolulu for several months, and has made a great many friends during its short sojourn in Honolulu. The Robards have rented the Fred Macfarlane's cottage at Waikiki Beach.

* * *

A pleasant little incident in connection with the christening of the Matson steamship Welhelmina occurred at a banquet on the evening of the launching. In a neat and appropriate speech Captain Matson presented Miss Tenney with a beautiful bracelet set with sapphires. The young lady was equal to the occasion and responded in a nappy and witty manner.

* * *

Among the most stunning women who have visited Honolulu was Mrs. H. R. Van de Boe, who left Thursday on the transport Thomas to join her husband, Ensign Van de Boe, who is station on the U. S. S. California. Mrs. Van de Boe will return in February; this young matron is so charmed with the islands that she and her mother are planning to spend several of the winter months in the Paradise of the Pacific.

* * *

Judge and Mrs. Kingsbury, who have been the guests of Major and Mrs. Wadhams for the past week, have been besieged with invitations since their arrival last Saturday, their old friends making every effort to give them a good time. Judge Kingsbury returned Friday on the Claudine to Maui. Mrs. Kingsbury after Monday will be the guest of Mrs. W. R. Castle, and Miss Beatrice Castle, at their home on Kinau street.

* * *

On Friday Mrs. B. F. Dillingham entertained some of her girlhood friends, at her home on Beretania avenue, in compliment to Mrs. S. W. Alexander, an old-time friend. The luncheon was an exquisite floral picture, with its decorations of beautiful chrysanthemums. Among those present were Mrs. B. F. Dillingham, Mrs. Alexander, Miss Armstrong Mrs. Atherton, Mrs. P. C. Jones and Mrs. Gulick.

* * *

Mrs. William Glassford, daughter of Admiral Phelps, Commandant of the Navy Yard at Mare Island, left last Monday, on the Mongolia for Manila to join her husband, who is Admiral Barry's aide. Mrs. Glassford was extensively entertained during her six weeks stay at the Moana Hotel, and her many friends are even now planning forms of entertainment for her, when she returns in February.

Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. F. Klamp entertained at dinner in honor of Major C. C. Smith, of the Cavalry. This gallant officer—who by the way is a Virginian by birth—has the distinction of being considered one of the bravest officers in the army, and has won quick promotion for acts of bravery, while in active service. Major Smith is a cousin of Mrs. Klamp's.

* * *

The marriage of Albert Sutton of San Francisco, to Miss Marie Hewett of Tacoma, eldest daughter of Henry Hewett, a wealthy lumberman, was quietly solemnized at the bride's home, Miss Hewett in company of Mrs. John Scott also of Tacoma spent a short time in Honolulu about a year ago on their way to the Orient.

* * *

Mr. James Page will be an outgoing passenegr on the steamer Siberia. Mr. Page is being sent to New York on an important mission by his firm, The Gregg Company, Ltd., this young business man will possibly return to the Islands in January.

* * *

Mrs. J. Brooks, Miss Marion Brooks, Miss Ruth Brooks, wife and daughters of Paymaster Brooks of the Navy have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis. The Brooks arrived on the Mongolia Monday from San Francisco, and sailed Thursday on the transport Thomas for Manila, where they will join the Paymaster.

* * *

Mrs. Monsarrat wife of Julian Monsarrat of Kapapala ranch has been visting her mother Mrs. L. A. Coney for a week. Her friends who are legion are welcoming her with every attention, luncheon, dinners, teas and theatre parties have been showered upon her.

* * *

Mrs. Albert Waterhouse and Miss Bertha Kopke will leave on the Siberia for New York, where they will meet Mr. Waterhouse, who has been in Ceylon, investigating the rubber plantations; the Waterhouses and Miss Kopke will probably spend the winter in the East.

* * *

Mrs. Cree and Miss Cree, wife and daughter of Major Cree, who is in command at Fort Ruger, were incoming passengers on the Transport Thomas; Mrs. Cree and her charming daughter, will be an addition to Honolulu's smart set.

* * *

Captain and Mrs. Rees and Mrs. Uriel Sebree are spending several weeks at the W. R. Castle house on Mt. Tantalus; Mrs. Francis Swanzy was their guest over Saturday and Sunday of last week.

* * *

Lieutenant Chilton, who has been on the mainland for the last few months, returned on the Thomas, and is being welcomed by his fellow officers of the 20th Infantry and by his numerous friends in Honolulu.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Baldwin will arrive next week in Honolulu en route to the Volcano. Mr. Baldwin is manager of Makawe'i plantation on Kauai and will spend several weeks at the Volcano House.

* * *

Governor Frear was host at a luncheon for sixteen given Monday at the Alexander Young hotel. The entertainment was given in honor of friends who were passing through on the Mongolia.

* * *

Mrs. Francis Swanzy entertained at luncheon Monday, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Carter, who were through passengers on the Mongolia for Japan.

Every Young Man
Can Own A Library

ABRAHAM LINCOLN realized the importance of good books, but his stock consisted of only a half a dozen volumes. Think how much greater are the opportunities of today.

Five dollars puts you in possession of fifty dollars' worth of the best literature, and you can pay the balance at the rate of $5 a month. In this way every person who wishes to keep up with the culture of the times can have access to the world's greatest writers in his own home.

Think how Lincoln would have rejoiced over this opportunity.

Scandinavia
Belting

Is solid woven, and cannot, under any circumstances, go to pieces.

It is far more uniform than leather belting and is entirely free from any side to side wavering, but runs true as an arrow.

The proved tensile strength is approximately 40 per cent. greater than the best quality short lapped leather belt.

A special feature is the impregnation. The composition is such that it gives a superior grip, keeps the belt well lubricated and pliable, as well as rendering it impervious to moisture of any kind. It will run through water or oil.

Compare SCANDINAVIA to rubber or stitched canvas belts. SCANDINAVIA if far stronger, far more durable, far more pliable, and will transmit far more power.

Write to us or call at our office and we will be glad to give you information as to the right belt for your needs.

If a man is as old as he feels, then these fellows must be about ten years old. They don't intend to grow old. They know that Ayer's Sarsaparilla gives new life, strength, vigor. Makes them feel like boys again. Improves the appetite, aids digestion, keeps the nerves strong and steady, and the brain clear and active.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

is a great preventive of Bright's disease and other kidney affections. It purifies the blood, restores good appetite, sound digestion, and robust health.

As now made, Ayer's Sarsaparilla contains no alcohol.

There are many imitation Sarsaparillas.

Be sure you get "Ayer's."

He would have led her to the sofa, but again she repulsed him rudely. He went to the table and took up the acquittal he had laid on it.

"Found my accounts to be correct," he muttered. "That means he will have the books fixed up and nothing will show. Did he say much about me?"

"Not very much."

"But I bet he gave you an awful argument. Williams is not an easy man to get to give in. But here it is in black and white, and he can't go back on this. Did you ask him to put it in writing?"

"No."

"Then he did it of his own accord. Wonder if he called the detectives off. Did he say anything about them?"

"No."

"But it's all clear sailing now," he went on, selfishly jubilant, already planning for the future. "I can get another position and a better one. There's enough money left to give me time to find one. Do you think he'll interfere any more, Emma?"

"I don't know."

"What do you think? You must have some idea."

"I haven't the slightest."

"Well, anyway, Emma, you did splendidly. You came right to the front."

As he uttered the commendation he tried again to caress her.

"Please don't, Joe!"

This time she rebuffed him sharply and moved away from him.

"Oh, all right, if that's the way you feel about it!"

He turned from her with an injured air and, lighting a cigarette, began to pace the room. Although in his remorse during her absence he had resolved not to ask her what had passed in the captain's rooms, curiosity, now that his confidence had been restored by the proof of immunity, tormented his vicious mind. He was not only ready, but desired to know everything that had occurred even to unavowable details, if any such there were.

"He was there when you arrived?" he questioned, seeing that she showed no disposition to talk.

"Yes."

"Anybody else?"

"He was alone."

"You must have caught him in a good humor. He'd never have done this in one of his usual gronches. I didn't know you were such a diplomat. What did you say to him?"

"A good many things."

"Didn't tell him I sent you, did you?"

"He knew."

"He knew? How did he know? Who told him?"

"I don't know. He just knew."

"Somebody must have told him, and you were the only one who knew."

"No; he knew too. I didn't tell."

"But how did you open the conversation?" he demanded impatiently. "What did you say? What's the matter? Can't you answer me?"

"I don't see why I should."

"I do. I want to know, and I've a right to know."

She vouchsafed no reply.

He dropped his authoritative tone and became persuasive.

"You say he was alone when you arrived. How did he receive you?" he coaxed.

She remained silent.

"What did he say to you? What did he do?"

Still she did not answer, but sat as though in a stupor.

"Come, Emma, don't be contrary. Tell all that took place. You know that it is between us— Did he ask you to kiss him?"

"I wonder what time it is," she said, with a shiver, as though she had not heard him.

"Never mind the time. What did he say when you asked him to let me off? He must have said a lot. You were gone long enough."

"Will you please tell me what time it is?"

"It is about 11:30. What of it? Why don't you tell me what happened at Williams'?"

She rose, still in her stupor of weariness.

"Goodby, Joe," she said.

"Goodby?" he echoed, amazed. "Where are you going?"

"To mother's. Jimsy's coming back for me."

"You didn't say anything to your mother while she was here about this?"

"That was for your sake. Every one doesn't need to know."

"What are you going to your mother's for? This is where you belong—your home. And what's Jimsy got to do with it?"

"I said goodby."

"What's the reason you can't stay here?"

"You couldn't expect me to live with you after what happened tonight."

"Why not?"

There was consternation as well as anger in his voice.

"Because it is quite impossible. You ought to realize that."

"I don't see why it is impossible. Everything is all right now unless you have got some reason that makes it impossible."

"Yes, I think I've all the reason in the world to make it impossible. I think it's time for you to realize it."

CHAPTER XVII.

EMMA moved toward the door, but her husband ran and intercepted her.

"Wait a minute. You can't go that way," he said determinedly. "You are my wife, and you can't leave here without some explanation."

"I've no explanation to make," she retorted coldly. "You will please let me go. I've done my part, and it's my right to leave."

"I tell you I won't let you go until you tell me the truth. What happened with Williams, and how did you induce him to agree?"

"You've no right to ask that. The price I paid for that letter is none of your business. You set that price at the highest possible figure a woman can pay. Now, how I bargained or what I paid is none of your affair."

"It is my affair. I want to know, and I will know!"

"When you sent me to that man, Joe Brooks, I told you that if I made the bargain I was to make it alone, that it was to be my business alone and that I should never be asked. You agreed. I've carried out my part. You carry out yours. I gave you your freedom. You give me mine."

"There is only one reason why you should leave here now, and that is Williams. Are you going back to him?"

She stepped back from him and swept him with a look of cold disdain.

"If there was one thing left for you to do to make you the most contemptible cad you've done it now!" she exclaimed. "When you sent me to Williams I thought you'd sunk as low as you could, but I see I was mistaken. There was a depth that even in my disgust, my loathing of you, I never imagined existed. But now you've reached it. I don't hate you. I just pity you."

"I won't let you go until you tell me the truth."

A gleam of fury glowed in his eyes under this merciless castigation, and he moved toward her menacingly.

"That's not the answer I want," he said harshly. "You're quibbling. Tell me the truth about Williams."

"You'd better let me go."

"You'll tell me the truth about Williams before you leave this room!" he shouted. "Make up your mind to that now, because that's just the way it's going to be!"

She realized that she had gone too far in her denunciation, that his anger was dangerous and that he would stop at nothing, not even blows, not even murder. He was white, his teeth were set, and on his quivering face was an expression of ferocious determination that warned her that she must temporize and appear to give in to him.

"Very well," she assented, turning from the door; "if that's the way it's going to be I'm perfectly willing."

"Then answer me."

"I intend to do that, but I intend to do something more than merely answer that question. If you don't mind we'd better sit down."

She motioned him to a chair and seated herself so that the table was between them.

"In the first place," she went on, very calmly, "in order to relieve your mind I might tell you that I have done nothing tonight which can reflect upon me as a good woman. I had no intention of doing any such thing. So far as I can find out, you are the only person who had my degradation in mind and was willing that it should happen if it resulted in your escaping the consequences of being a thief."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that Captain Williams did not have the slightest idea of putting a price on your freedom toward which I in any way would have to contribute. You seem to be the only one who thought that I, with all I hold precious, was a fair figure to offer. Had I gone, had he demanded, had I submitted and brought back that paper and given myself to you again, as well as your freedom, you would have been contented and happy."

"You know that's not true, Emma," he protested. The white heat of his ire had been dulled by her quietness, and little by little he was becoming cowed.

What Army and Navy Folk Are Doing

Dreams of Empire.

The opening of the Panama Canal is already breeding dreams of empire. The latest to expect a great future from the wedding of the two oceans is Honolulu. Vice President Scherwin, of the Pacific Mail Company, a graduate of the Naval Academy, who resigned from the Navy in 1893, in an address delivered in Honolulu before the Chamber of Commerce, said, according to press advices, that the opening of the canal would mean a future for Honolulu that the imagination could hardly exaggerate. Honolulu should be made one of the greatest harbors of the world, and building of wharves out into the harbor should, therefore now be avoided; it is not that Honolulu harbor needs to make, but water. "Pearl Harbor has been a natural breakwater here which the United States Government," said Mr. Scherwin, "that unwisely cut away, and the space that the United States filled in would better have been out for docks." With all due respect to the knowledge of the shipping interests possed by Mr. Scherwin, the United States Army Engineers, when they dealt with the question of the defense of Hawaii, realized that problem was the weightiest now confronting those interested in the welfare of the islands. On account of her isolation Hawaii's defenses must be of the strongest, on the advantages she may offer to commercial ships will in the end suffer if the port is to be the easy prey of marauding expeditions of belligerent nations. Security in these days, when risks count heavily against enterprises is a sine qua non to commercial supremacy, and in planning to give this to Honlulu the Engineers may be relied upon to have done the best thing. The plans for defending Honolulu were decided upon only after long consideration and a thorough study of the problem from every point of view.

Appointing Privates.

A Philippine correspondent says: "The practice of appointing privates and corporals first sergeants a week or two before retirement is not for the best interests of the Service, and it does not accord with the expectations of the benefits and improvements of the new pay bill in the matter of bringing the best material for the non- commissioned officers into the service. I have personally served for many years in the same company with a soldier who could neither read or write. Of course, he was never a non-commissioned officer, and in fact was far from being even a good soldier in many respects, yet he retired with the rank of a regimental non-commissioned staff officer of the highest grade. He was promoted as a reward for his services for many years as the butler and major-domo to his captain. There is no uniformity in the promotion of these favored sons at arms; some company commmanders will work overtime and on Sundays to turn out first sergeants for the retired list, while others have to be overcome by months of perusion before they are convinced that it be for the benefit of the Service to promote Private Jack Turbulent a corporal for the same purpose. It is only fair that there should be some rule or regulation covering these promotions; for instance, promote every enlisted man one grade higher than the grade he'd hi him for at least one year preceious to retirement."

Turbine Engines.

Washington, October 4. — Both the new American dreadnaughts of 26,000 tons displacement, for which contracts were awarded, will be equipped with Parsons turbine engines.

This decision was reached at a conference today between Secretary Meyer and Admiral Cone, chief of the bureau of yards and docks, who has just returned to the United States from an extensive tour of European ship yards.

The New York ship building company, which will construce the Arkansas, was notified some time ago that turbines would be installed. Decision as to the motive power of the Wyoming, to be constructed by the Cramps was postponed temporarily, but Secretary Meyer and his associates today decided favorably for the Parsons turbine, feeling satisfied, as Secretary Meyer expressed it, that this would be themore advantageous to the government than the proposed combination of turbines and reciporating engines, which had been insistently urged by some of the naval officials.

New Kitchen Cars.

The commissary general of the army has furnished the quartermaster general with information with information regarding the kitchen cars which are available for the movement of troops and recruits. These are of a new model sixteen-section tourist car, with two sections removed, to make room for a range and cooking equipment.

Each car is capable, with the two cooks provided by the Pullman company, of preparing meals for 300 men. In all, fifteen tourist cars are available for the purpose. The detachment mess car is an old-style fourteen-section tourist car, with one reading room removed, and the space turned into a kitchen.

The cooking appliances are adequate to supply meals for fifty men using the garrison ration, or if traveling rations and hot coffee only were used 100 men could be subsisted.

Torpedo Run by Wireless.

M. Gustave Gabet, the engineer who has built a dirigible torpedo, made a first test of his extraordinary invention in the Seine at Paris recently. The test was wonderfully successful.

This new rotary automatic torpedo is in shape like a submarine. It is nearly ten yards long. At the top of it is a long cylindrical floater with two small masts and two acetylene lamps. The torpedo is divided into compartments, the front division being reserved for the explosive. This will consist of 1,980 pounds of dynamite. This charge is enormous, when it is remembered that the present type of torpedo contains from 130 to 190 pounds.

In another compartment are fitted the 200 horse power motors, accumulators and steering apparatus. M. Gabet hopes that his machine will reach a speed of twenty knots.

When the torpedo was placed in the river M. Gabet entered a small motorboat about seventy yards away. In this boat was fitted the wireless apparatus.

Amid great enthusiasm from large crowds on the banks M. Gabet set his wireless directing machinery to work. The propeller of the torpedo at once began to revolve, and for several minutes the torpedo, under the mysterious influence of the electric waves from the machinery in the motor boat, moved to and fro, to right and left, according to the desire of the inventor.

Shafter's Fat Soldiers

General Shafter's little joke about the fat soldier which has been going the rounds these several years, has been neatly dressed and issued in the following form by a recent number of Tit-Bits:

The late American commander, General Shafter, although a man of corpulence, had a deep dislike to fat soldiers. "They're no use!" he would bluster in his tremendous basso. "They pant, they wheeze, they snort, they choke, they grunt, they groan, they waddle, they slouch through the world! Not a particle of good on earth, fat soldiers! I would not have one of 'em if I could help it!"

"Er—but—er—youwould not exactly call yourself slight, would you, colonel?" a major once asked Shafter after one of there outbursts.

"Slight? No!" Shafter thundered in reply. "I've been a fat old nuisance ever since I tipped the beam at over 200 pounds, and then I ought to have been court martialed and cashiered for outrageous and malicious adiposity, sir—for scandalous corpulence to the prejudice of military discipline!"

Lieut. James McGaw Pickrell, U. S. N., retired, died in his home, Millwood, in Powhatan county, Va., Sept. 18, 1909, of heart failure, after a long illness. He entered the Naval Academy as a cadet engineer Oct. 1, 1874, and was graduated in 1879. He was promoted assistant engineer June 10, 1881, and passed assistant engineer May 16, 1892. He was given the rank of lieutenant March 3, 1899, and was retired on Sept. 22, 1902, for disability incident to the Service. He was married in Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, to Miss Mary Evelin Putnam, daughter of the United States Consul General at that place. Percy Pickrell of New York, is his brother.

From an excellent source it has been learned that the reason the American government remains apparently so little concerned about the advances in aerial navigation made by foreign experimenters is that an officer in the United States Army stationed at Fort Omaha has worked out an electric invention which is likely to paralize all all other existing or proposed engines of war. The invention, he says, is to be exclusively the property of the United States Government and up to the present time the essential details are carefully guarded. The machine is said to project through the air a column of electric energy of almost any desired strength at any given object for a distance of many hundred of yards. The informant, who is an expert in war, said:

"Such an electric column would queer every mechanism on a warship, stop the engines, annul the dynamos, kill signal apparatus, make the guns unworkable, slay hundreds of men by shock alone and might even explode the magazines. Its possibilities for offensive warfare are almost unlimited. Of course I don't say its absolute efficiency yet is assured, but from certain knowledge I can say in entire confidence that the experiments made point convincingly in this direction."

During the period between September 10 and October 5, the eight armoured cruisers of the U. S. Pacific fleet were eacher coaled twice and the U. S. S. Glacier, H. M. S. Bedford, S. M. S. Arcona and Hr. Ms. Noordbrant, each supplied once, making a total of twenty-one vessels loaded and over 24,000 tons of coal delivered during the visit of these ships. The contractors for hauling were equal to the emergency and earned the praise of the commandant.

The view taken by Brig. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, U. S. A., former Governor of the Moro Province, and other close students of racial and religious conditions in the Philippines, that the strong hand of the United States is needed to keep the races from flying at each other's throats, was affirmed by Hon. W. Morgan Shuster in the final address on the Philippines recently delivered in the Clark University conferences on the countries of the Far East, at Worcester, Mass. Mr. Shuster has lived in the islands for eight years, during which period he has held the office of insular collector of customs, and for two years and a half subsequently hes was secretary of public instruction and a member of the Philippine Commission. Mr. Shuster recognizes what the Army and Navy Journal has often referred to—the existence of intense religious differences, inextricably mingled with racial hatreds.

Among those who recently received medals from the government for life saving are Capt. F. J. Dodge, Harold Dodge, Wilbur L. Dodge and Peter Petersen for rescues at Mackinac, Mich.

When Melons Are Ripe

there is joy unbounded. The Georgia Coon gladly takes chances on birdshot and dogs to land one. If bottles of PRIMO BEER grew on vines the melons would be safe enough. PRIMO is positively the finest thirst-quencher and tonic beverage ever brewed; and its "always in season."
