ALLIED BOERS QUARREL

Buller Does Not Report British Ladysmith Losses--Preparing For Attack at Tugela --Cape Colony Boers Happy Over Victories--General Methuen Recalled --Roberts Arrives.

London, Jan. 11.—The Durban correspondent of the Standard, telegraphing Tuesday, says that 1200 Indian retcher bearers started for the front the previous night and that their departure was regarded in Durban as indicative of a renewal of the fighting.

The War Office announces that the list of British casualties at Ladysmith last Saturday has not been received.

The following dispatch, dated at Frere Camp, January 10th, noon, has been received from General Buller: "A Transvaal telegram gives the enemy's loss at Ladysmith on Saturday as four killed and fifteen wounded, and after this, as is admitted, they had endured a withering fire from six masked batteries and had been defeated at all points."

"Natives here assert that the Boer loss in one command alone was 150 killed and wagon loads of wounded. The heaviest loss is said to be among the Free Staters, who were forced by the Transvaalers into the most dangerous places."

This curious dispatch is all the War Office issued. It makes not the slightest mention of the position or the doings of the British forces. It may be interpreted to mean that Ladysmith is safe, but it is more likely intended to prepare the British public for a terrible list of casualties.

A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph, dated Monday, January 8th, at noon, at Frere Camp, says: "Firing from the Boer positions around Ladysmith began early today. It still continues, but the cannonading is light and irregular."

The Standard has received the following, dated January 9th, from its special correspondent at Frere Camp: "I hear on good authority that President Kruger sent word to the Boer headquarters asking why Ladysmith had not been attacked, and that the reply was: 'We should lose too many men.'"

His answer to this excuse was the suggestion that the Free Staters might be put in the forefront. This hint was taken and the attack delivered. President Kruger's advice was so far good that the Free Staters behaved better than the Transvaalers have done. At all events they managed to seize a hill. Later in the day the Transvaalers re-appeared amid the jeers of the Free Staters, who actually stuck to their position until they were bayoneted in the ditch. After this affair it is almost certain that the allies will quarrel. "A heavy gun mounted on Umbulwan hill has been firing since daybreak. Evidently the siege of Ladysmith is still maintained."

The Daily Mail has the following dispatch, dated January 8th, from Frere Camp: "With the exception of the usual shelling of the Boer position by the naval guns, the British force was inactive. Eight Boer camps were seen today by a patrol along the Tugela in a westerly direction. All were quiet. Natives say that where the British reconnoitered near Colenso on Saturday the Boers hurried from Springfield. This supports the belief that Colenso was weakened to attack Ladysmith."

METHUEN HAS BEEN RECALLED

New York, Jan. 11.—A cable to the Tribune from London, dated January 11, 6 a. m., says: Lord Methuen has been recalled to England. I learn this on the highest authority.

It is learned that he was laboring under great mental excitement after the battle of Modder river and that the War Office has considered it necessary to displace him, as he is evidently not in a condition to command troops.

Two members of his family are said to be weak minded. General Wauchope's last words quoted in yesterday's dispatches have created a most painful impression.

How Suffolks Were Caught.

Rensberg (Cape Colony), Monday, Jan. 8.—It is reported here, officially, in reference to the disaster of the first battalion of the Suffolk Regiment, that Lieutenant Colonel Watson marched the regiment in close column to the top of the hill at midnight. He assembled the officers and was addressing them just at daybreak when the enemy volleyed at a distance of thirty paces. The Colonel, his adjutant and two other officers were killed. The Suffolks, who had scarcely fired a shot, fled back to the picket, about 1,000 yards away, some one having shouted "Retire!" About 150, however, remained, lost heavily and finally surrendered. Our operations have been unimportant. Several reconnoissances have been made and these show that the enemy is jealously guarding his communications to the north.

Cape Colony Dutch in Open Rebellion

London, Jan. 11.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing Monday, says: The Boer successes have been followed by a tremendous outburst of enthusiasm and Boer sympathy in the western part of the colony. Reports from Paarl say the whole district is made hideous at night by bands of young men parading in the villages and singing the Transvaal Volkslied, while the children are everywhere practicing the national songs of the republics. The following are specimens of statements believed by the western Dutch: "Buller and Rhodes are prisoners" and "Two thousand Boers secretly sailed and captured Cape Town."

Dispatches to the Cape Times from Indare, dated January 6th, say: "All the of the Colonial Dutchmen, forming the deputation sent by Commissioner of Public Works Sauer to protest to the Boer commandant against the invasion of Cape Colony, are either prisoners awaiting trial for sedition or have openly joined the rebels. Symon, who accompanied Commissioner Sauer on a tour through the colony, now commands 1000 rebels, who have seized Dordrecht."

The Times in a leader comments on the capture of Kuruman as an example of Boer rapacity. It says the place was unimportant as a strategic position. The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, telegraphing Monday, says: "The Boers assert that eighty natives fought on the side of the British at Kuruman. They say their object in capturing the place was to open the way for a commando to go south into the Prieska and Konhard districts, where the Boers hope to foment rebellion. It is reported that the Boer leaders allow every burgher to return home one week out of every seven."

Gen. Roberts Arrives and Makes Report

London, Jan. 11, 4 a. m.—During the interlude of apparent military inactivity and official secrecy Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener have arrived at their clear vision, supported by 30,000 fresh men who are due to arrive in South Africa within thirty days, will alter the situation and that the fourth month of the campaign will witness the beginning of victories for the British arms. They are not, however, expected to produce definite results for some days, but their mere presence will restore the shaken confidence of the men at the front in their generals.

Lord Roberts finds 120,000 men on the defensive or watching for an opening. Lord Methuen's health, according to the Daily Mail, has broken down, and the Field Marshal may relieve him. Possibly some others will be relieved of important commands. There is certainly plenty of rank in evidence in South Africa. In addition to the Field Marshal, there are two full Generals, four Lieutenant Generals and twelve or fourteen Major Generals. There is an uneasy suspicion that when Ladysmith casualties are announced they will be disheartening and will partly destroy the patriotic glow produced by General White's "victory."

BRITISH PREPARE TO MOVE.

New York, Jan. 10.—A cable to the Sun, dated Modder River, January 8th, says: The British pickets are using billhooks in systematically cutting away the patches of brushwood in front of the Boer lines. The work is risky, and is only done when a good opportunity offers. Thus far there have been no casualties among the men detailed for the work. The demolition of farmhouses between the forces has also commenced. These preparations are taken to mean that the British intend to make a move shortly.

Transport News.

The horse transport Aztec sailed yesterday for Zillo with a full cargo of live stock. Captain Mattson of the Hawaiian ship Falls of Clyde, went down to act as a pilot in docking the big steamship at Hilo.

For the first time since the transport service was inaugurated orders were issued last night to knock off all the men employed on the dock. There are no transports in port and nothing more for the men to do at present. Over 200 men are temporarily out of employment as a result.

FLAMES RUN RIOT

Fire in Block 15 Gets Beyond Control--Kaukapili Church Destroyed--Residents of Quarantine District Marched Out by Thousands -- Fire Laddies Hard Fight.

3:30 p. m.—The fire is not yet under control. It has reached the Independent Office on King street and is moving toward the sea. The residents of Chinatown are quartered in Kawaiaho church yard.

There was a panic in Chinatown this forenoon and even now, the excitement is intense. What has been the result no man can tell until the flames have ceased their work of destruction and chaos has been reduced to order. A change in the strength of the wind and the lack of sufficient water caused consternation on all sides and it was not until the relief of the National Guard and the police force had been called out that the situation was gotten in hand and people prevented from doing all manner of foolish things that the loss of property and perhaps life prompted them to do.

The wind was not blowing very hard when the engines were placed about block 15 at about 8 o'clock this morning, nor was there any fear on the part of the firemen that the flames would get beyond their control.

Shortly after the hour mentioned kerosene was poured on the floor of one of the shacks Waikiki of Kaumakapili church and the torch applied. Soon three or four buildings were aflame but the fire laddies felt no fear. The intention was to burn on the Waikiki side of the church up along the lane or opening, along Beretania and up Nuuanu as far as the buildings of Block 15 extended but this program was soon changed.

Churches in Flames.

The wind suddenly increased in strength and sparks were carried to the tower of Kaumakapili church. Again the wind died down and the tower burned along slowly for a little while. Again the wind freshened considerably and sparks from the buildings along Beretania street were carried to the joss house near Kaumakapili. The Boys' Brigade building had been ignited several times, but the people on duty had been able to control the situation. However, when the joss house caught fire, the end could readily be seen and everyone moved out as speedily as possible, taking along only books and papers necessary to the work of the place.

Then came the great trouble. Kaukapili church caught fire from the steeple, the headquarters of the Japanese inspectors was in flames and the fumigating headquarters was beyond the power of the firemen to save. The wind from the northeast blew in gusts and carried burning particles of wood in all directions.

Panic Among Japs.

Evidently the course of the fire was toward the river. There were shouts and cries on the part of the Japanese in the vicinity of the church and then masses of humanity came pouring out of the nearest guildhalls carrying with them their most valuable possessions. In the alleys people fell over each other in the attempt to get out into the streets and inspectors hurried back and forth warning people of their great danger. In one place an inspector found two Chinamen under the influence of opium and it was with the greatest danger that he succeeded in getting the men out of the building that was already afire. This inspector expressed the fear that there might be more such people in the burning buildings. Indeed it is not certain that babies have not been burned to death on account of the intense excitement.

Flames Spread.

The flames spread on and on toward the river and from Beretania street to Pauahi. The people along the thoroughfares and toward the river were soon in a tempest of excitement. Cries of consternation could be heard on all sides and, following the example of the people near the church, natives, Chinese, Japanese and a few white people, were soon pouring out of the buildings with what they could carry. Ropes were brought into use and, from the second stories of buildings along River and Beretania streets, beds, chairs and all manner of things were dropped into the street. The old and infirm were not lost sight of and, even in the excitement, the greatest care was shown in their removal to a place of safety near the bridges or along the river wall.

Then came the greatest danger of the day. Hundreds upon hundreds of Japanese and Chinese carrying various articles were hurrying toward the river and not a few tried to pass the guards. For a little while it looked as if there would be a general break for liberty and if such a thing had occurred infection would have been spread all through the city for the people mentioned were bent on taking their goods with them.

Just at the most critical moment the relief from the N. G. H. and every soldier that could be communicated with, reached the Pauahi street bridge on River street and Major Ziegler soon had the guards doubled and a line of sentries placed along the river wall to prevent escape.

In the meantime the police force with Marshal Brown afoot and Deputy Marshal Chillingworth on horseback, had arrived on the scene and the native policemen, armed to the teeth were placed along Nuuanu street and the other thoroughfares in the Waikiki Half of the infected district.

News of the danger of the escape of people from the infected district spread through the town with lightning rapidity and soon Board of Health guards and volunteers were hurrying to the scene armed with axe handles obtained from E. C. Hall's and other places of the city. Those without passes into the district remained at the crossings to assist the already doubled guards while the others went into the district and placed themselves at the disposal of the various military and civil authorities in charge of the situation. The services of every man were accepted. The Japanese and natives were hustled along on River street toward the upper bridge while the Chinese were surrounded and herded together on King street.

In the midst of all this consternation a pretty Hawaiian girl sat on a box on River street and, accompanying herself with a guitar, sang "Aloha Oe" as if nothing were taking place.

Everyone is helping. Where there are carriages without horses white men are taking the places of animals and pulling along small footed Chinese women and their babes or old and infirm people of all nationalities. The scene is one calculated to move the hearts of the strongest but the situation is critical and everyone must needs put his shoulder to the wheel.

2 p. m.—The flames have reached as far as the Chinese United Society building and have levelled everything to the ground along Maunakea street to the sea and river. The wind is increasing and there is danger that everything as far as Nuuanu street will be burned. Several ships are preparing to get out of the way. An attempt was made to stop the fire by blowing up with dynamite a couple of brick buildings near No. 3 engine house but this was unsuccessful.

As the fire is coming toward town everyone should be on the watch to save their homes in case the sparks should fly about.

Set Fire to His Place.

When the flames were spreading along on Smith street a well known Chinaman, fearing perhaps that his store at 105 Hotel street might escape the flames, deliberately went in and set the place afire. Fortunately firemen and others discovered the smoke before any damage was done. Although the Chinaman is now held in detention his wish has been satisfied for even now the place is in flames.

Reaches Hotel Street.

At 1 o'clock all the buildings along from the church to hotel street on Maunakea were levelled to the ground. This of course includes No. 3 fire engine house. The buildings as far as King street and toward Waikiki as far as Smith are afire and it is certain that all the lower portion to the river and as far as King street will be delivered over to the flames. It is fortunate if there is no further spread.

Citizens are standing on all corners, fifty strong, guarding against break through the lines.

Thousands at Kawaiaho Church Japanese and Chinamen are being marched by the hundreds to Kawaiaho church yard, guarded all the way from Nuuanu street by a line of volunteer citizen guards. There they will remain until some accommodations can be prepared for them. Included in this mass of Asiatics are a great number of women with their children and all that can be done for them is being done.

The citizens have the situation well in hand. Every man is out with some kind of a club and there is a set determination that there shall be no outbreak from Chinatown.

Engine No. 1 Lost.

While the fire was in progress this forenoon there was a sudden twist of flames from the building near Kaumakapili church and Engineer Renear, the tears streaming from his face, was forced to leave his engine of Fire Company No 1. It was not long before it was warped completely out shape and rendered useless.

Council of State Adjourned.

There being no quorum present, the Council of State has adjourned till 2 p. m. Monday.

One Plague Case.

1:30 p. m.—Up to this hour today's record stands: No. of suspicious cases, 6. No. of plague cases, 1. No. of plague deaths, 2. The new plague case is that of a Chinese-Hawaiian male, age 20, found in Achi lane, at Lewis place, Kamanuwal, and authenticated by Dr. Garvin. The deaths have been of a native man found in Kaumakapili church district, and a native girl taken at the kerosene warehouse detention camp.

Board of Health.

The regular forenoon meeting of the Board of Health was delayed about a half hour this morning because of no quorum. When a quorum was finally obtained there was found to be present the following: President Wood, Dr. Day, Dr. Emerson and F. M. Hatch. A communication from the Citizens' Committee stating that expenses were being incurred by that body for various purposes was read and it was voted by the Board that the committee be authorized to make such expenditures as may be found necessary to carry on the work.

Another communication from the Citizens' Committee spoke of the necessity of providing people recently freed from detention camps with a certain form of permit allowing them to locate in parts of the city outside the infected district. No action was considered necessary.

The Board, by motion, condemned the Boardman house and this place will soon be given to the flames. On the recommendation of Judge A. W. Carter it was voted that Attorney R. D. Silliman be appointed an agent of the Board of Health with authority to appraise personal effects in houses condemned to be burned, this with an idea of preventing unjust claims being made when the plague has been stamped out.

Boardman Dogs Killed.

The eight little Japanese dogs that belonged to the late Mrs. Boardman, were chloroformed yesterday by a veterinary surgeon on account of the danger that they might be as a source of infection if allowed to pass into the hands of another. These dogs were undoubtedly the very best of the breed in Honolulu. One was pure black, but was an offspring of two of the regular white and black Japanese dogs owned by Mrs. Boardman, showing that at one time the breed must have been produced by a cross.

Judge Wilcox Challenged.

Judge Wilcox showed his pass to the coronal at the corner of King and Nuuanu streets during the greatest excitement and was refused admittance and knocked down. The judge grappled with the unruly fellow who made some motion at running him through with a bayonet. If any bodily harm had come to the judge there is no doubt that there would have been a considerably damaged coronal for there were many people around ready to do something desperate.

Churches Must Close.

At a meeting of the Board of Health this forenoon the matter of closing of churches was brought up by President Wood and it was finally moved by Dr. Emerson that the recommendation of the Citizens' Committee that church and other indoor meetings be prohibited until further notice be adopted. Carried unanimously.

Electricity Cut Off.

MEETING OF INSPECTORS AND SUB-INSPECTORS.

There will be a general meeting of Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors in Progress Hall on SUNDAY MORNING at 11 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing methods of making the work of the committee more effectual. CITIZENS' SANITARY COMMITTEE, S. M. BALLOU, Secretary.

Extending Constitution.

Appropos of the despatch published exclusively by the Bulletin relative to the extension of the constitution to new territory. A Chronicle despatch of the 11th adds:

"Congressman Newlands suggested that the whole subject should be investigated. This led to a general discussion of the question as to whether the provision of the Constitution providing that the customs and revenue laws of the United States should be uniform did not cover the territory acquired under treaty with Spain.

"Daezell urged strenuously that the territory acquired was not subject to these laws until it had been formally annexed, and in support of his contention cited several Supreme Court decisions, among others The Insurance Company vs. Canfers, in the first book of Peter's Reports, in which Justice Marshall, after acquisition of Florida, decided that the United States had the power to acquire foreign territory.

"Swanson of Virginia, taking the opposite view, cited the case of Cross vs. Harrison, in which the Supreme Court decided that the customs laws of the United States were extended to California as soon as that territory was annexed to the United States. He also cited the case of Lansborough vs. Blake, in which Chief Justice Marshall gave the opinion. As a result of the discussion the resolution offered by Newlands was unanimously adopted."

The Burned Church.

Kaumakapili church, unfortunately destroyed, was built in the years 1884 and 1885. It succeeded a wooden building erected under the pastorate of Rev. Lowell Smith, D. D., one of the American missionaries and father of Mrs. B. F. Dillingham. Dr. Smith and his wife lived to see the noble new structure opened for worship, and were buried from it. The church was of brick. It cost between $30,000 and $40,000 and was for some years past free of debt. Kaumakapili was fitted with opera chairs to seat about 400 people. It had the finest pipe organ in Honolulu, and only chime of bells. King Kalakaua is honored as having taken the initiative in building the new Kaumakapili. Several prominent men, while expressing regret at the loss of the church, freely say that the community will build a new edifice for the congregation.

Committee to Confer.

Messrs. C. M. Cooke, T. Rain Walker and J. B. Atherton, the finance committee on claims appointed by the Board of Health, met Minister Young this forenoon. They arranged with the Minister of the Interior, who is chairman of the Citizens' Committee on detention camps, for a conference between the two committees at 3:30 this afternoon, or after adjournment of Council of State. The Cabinet was engaged this forenoon in considering proposed amendments to charters of corporations. No conclusion was reached in any case.

Central Union Closed.

There will be no services of any kind at Central Union church tomorrow.

A. E. C. Atkinson in charge of the detention camp at the kerosene warehouse, this afternoon notified the Board of Health that he can accommodate 250 people from the burning district. Also that he can provide food for several hundred people.

LONDON VETERAN COMMENT

New York, Jan. 10.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: If a complete embargo upon news be one of the conditions of successful strategy, something really Napoleonic must be going on along the Tugela river.

At the clubs nearly all well informed men were confident that the army had been set in motion on Monday and officers lingered at the military service till midnight, in the expectation of receiving tidings of some great stroke.

Veterans at the clubs and the military writers of the morning journals busied themselves with patching up their theories. Changes were rung upon the two main themes, the necessity of the clearance of the south bank before the passage of the Tugela could be attempted, and the probability that Warren's division would make a wide detour and cross the river seventeen miles below Colenso. General Buller's delay in operating in front of his forces, seemed an insuperable objection to the first theory and there were only two facts to be cited in support of the latter conjecture. These were the establishment of Warren's headquarters as far down as Estcourt and the apparent occupation of Weenen by British troops, since one press dispatch which slipped through the censor's hands described an exchange of flashlight signals with those of the village.

General Buller has succeeded in confusing and bewildering the English public, if he has not dazed and confounded the Boer generals.

General French has reported a reconnaissance on the enemy's flank in which a considerable force was drawn out, then allowed to retire. A squadron of the Household Cavalry had an accounting in this movement. French's objective point in these maneuvers has not yet been disclosed, but it is probable that General Cronje has sent reinforcements to the Free Staters on the southern frontier and that the occupation of the bridges over the Orange river will be rendered difficult.

Battalions of the sixth division continue to arrive at Cape Town and the Princess of Wales, the hospital ship, is also at anchor there. Lord Roberts can now be looked for any day.

COIN FOR INFECTED GOODS

Council of State Discussed the $200,- 000 Appropriation.

Mr. Kaulokou's Amendment—Committee Calls on Board of Health—Will Meet Again
Today and Act.

At the meeting of the Council of State yesterday afternoon there were present: President S. B. Dole, Ministers E. A. Mott-Smith, Alex. Young, S.
M. Damon and John Nott, W. C. Achi,
A. G. M. Robertson, J. Lot Kaulokou,
M. A. Gonsalves, P. C. Jones, C. Bolte,
A. V. Gear.

After Secretary Bolte had his minutes of the previous meeting confirmed, President Dole called on the Minister of Finance to submit the business for which this meeting was called.

Minister Damon read the resolution of wholesale merchants relating to destruction of merchandise from infected districts, published in yesterday's Bulletin, also the minutes of the Executive Council containing a resolution, passed at the instance of the Board of Health, to call a meeting of the Council of State and ask this body to appropriate $200,000 for the settlement of claims on account of merchandise destroyed in the interest of the public health.

President Dole recited the reasons offered by the Board of Health for the proposed action. It would save much trouble and expense in taking care of goods, which had proved in vain so far as preventing infection was concerned.
A source of danger to the men handling the merchandise would be removed.
The men would be released for urgent work in building places of refuge and detention. As to the power of the Council of State in the matter, the President construed the constitutional provision as placing no limit upon this body, under the head of "pestilence" alike with other matters of emergency mentioned.

Minister Cooper urged the passage of the bill. They were face to face with one of the most serious crises in the history of the country. It was most desirable that all the inhabitants of Chinatown be removed as early as possible. Cases of infection had been traced to the handling of merchandise from the infected districts. It was utterly impossible to properly disinfect the merchandise crowding warehouses to the rafters. They ought to be destroyed.

Mr. Jones, on being informed that the expenditures would be made under the supervision of the Executive Council, spoke of the great responsibility he felt as a Councillor in facing the question. The proposed amount would bring appropriations by this body for suppression of the plague up to nearly half a million dollars. When the trouble was over they might be criticised for having acted in haste. Nevertheless, the situation was most serious, their fellow-beings being taken by the pestilence day after day. In the case of a young white woman seized the previous day, he learned from the papers that infection was traceable to goods that had been fumigated. Therefore, he moved that the bill pass.

Mr. Achi raised a legal point as to the authority of the Board of Health to destroy goods without paying for them.

Mr. Cooper replied that the burden of proof was on the Board to prove that goods it destroyed were infected. The responsibility on the Board was too big a contract, hence it asked for this relief.

Mr. Robertson asked if it was the intention to destroy goods in brick buildings, that had not been condemned.
Minister Cooper believed it was not, as the goods in such buildings were considered less likely to be infected.
Mr. Robertson was further informed that the rough valuation of goods from condemned buildings was $300,000, the amount asked for being calculated as a reasonable compromise. The speaker was not satisfied that the information on the subject was sufficiently definite.

Mr. Brown suggested and then moved that one or more members of the Board of Health be requested to appear before the Council to answer questions. This was seconded.

Mr. Kaulokou moved in amendment that the bill be referred to a committee of the Council of State. This was ruled out of order by the President.

Mr. Brown's motion carried, and a message was sent to the Board of Health.

Mr. Gear at this point seconded the motion of Mr. Jones to pass the bill, when Mr. Kaulokou renewed his amendment to refer to a committee.

The amendment carried and the President appointed Messrs. Kaulokou,
Jones and Robertson.

WOMEN CAN HELP.

Now as never before should the women of the city come to the assistance of their sex. Hundreds of women and children have been made homeless, and to-night have nothing but the clothes on their backs to protect them.

The men are doing what they can, but at best it is impossible for them to give more than passing attention to the needs of these people. A woman's corps of helpers is absolutely necessary. What though the women are Asiatics? they are human, they must be cared for.

What the next twenty-four hours means to these homeless people words can hardly picture, but their sufferings can be largely allayed if the good women will lend their effort to the great task of relief which is now the duty of the hour.

If a million dollars is needed to stop the progress of the plague, let the million be expended. A guarantee for the safety of the community is cheap at twice a million dollars.

The loss of Kaumakapili is one of the great misfortunes that often follow in the wake of good work accomplished by means of fire. If Honolulu does not have more similar losses before the purification of Chinatown is completed, it will be lucky. After all nothing has been destroyed that money will not replace and it is better that Kaumakapili or any other public edifice should go rather than allow life to be menaced by surrounding filth.

LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN?

The Advertiser this morning makes the plaintive wail that its files by the transport Tartar were either lost, strayed or stolen. Thus it attempts a weak apology for failure to furnish news.

The fact of the matter is that the morning paper with its usual ponderous compositely waited for late papers to be offered on a silver platter by the officers of the Tartar. While the government organ was waiting, the Bulletin was on the move to get the news for its readers, and the exclusive foreign news published in today's paper is good evidence of what success attended its efforts.

There were no regular files on the transport Tartar and every newspaperman in town knows it. The captain of the Tartar left one file of papers with the pilot boat and the Bulletin being the only paper having the enterprise to send out a representative with the pilots, got the late news.

Today, as is ever the case, if you don't have the Bulletin, you don't get the news till it is copied by contemporaries.

APPROPRIATE THE MONEY.

There is not the slightest question that the Council of State stands ready to appropriate every dollar needed by the community in forwarding the fight against the plague. It is useless to discount, however, the great responsibility which this body assumes in appropriating immense funds from the public treasury.

The Council by its action yesterday showed that it appreciates its future responsibility to the people as well as the immediate demand. The money will be appropriated. The Council of State will not refuse a dollar that is required in dealing with the present situation. This body, however, is not called upon, it is not justified in acting upon the mere say so of the Executive Council. It is a business proposition in which every member of the Council of State should have full knowledge of every detail. This is mandatory.

The $200,000 for which the Board of Health calls should be and we believe will be appropriated by the unanimous vote of the Council this afternoon. The twenty-four hours delay asked for investigation does not increase the dangers of the situation. The fire department has not yet caught up with the work set for it in destroying Chinatown shacks and several days must necessarily elapse before it reaches the destruction of goods. Meanwhile the Council of State makes a thorough investigation of the financial situation with which it has to deal, in order that the balance sheets may not be subject to question when the final accounting is made.

Our officials must not run away with the idea that the emergencies of the situation make less necessary a strict accounting for every dollar expended. Spend the money and spend it liberally. If the Board of Health calls for more, give it, but see to it that liberality of expenditure does not result in any lax methods of accounting.

The Court decided to pass upon the question of whether or not the case should be continued at next term in the event of the non-return of the commission, also, so far as the trial was concerned, upon the question as to the admissibility of the testimony obtained by such commission. E. P. Dole for the Republic; C. C. Biting for the defendant.

Mamie L. Smith, as sole heir, petitions for letters of administration to Cecil Brown on the estate of her late father, D. B. Smith. The value of the estate is put at $90,000, being as follows: 2,500 shares Ewa Plantation Co.; $25,000 life policy in the Equitable; 104 shares Olaa Plantation Co. paidup; 200 shares Kona Sugar Co.; 100 shares Waihalu Agricultural Co.; 200 shares Kihel Sugar Co.; 25 shares Oahu Plantation Co., furniture, etc.

On the day the Legislature of 1886 opened, the writer and a citizen now some years dead were looking at the ruins of some small buildings burned on the esplanade the previous night. It was soon after the great fire that wiped out most of Chinatown. The two persons mentioned were accosted at the place indicated by a well-known merchant and rice planter, who proceeded to give a strange theory of the visitations of fire.

He pointed across town to Kaumakapili church and lugubriously observed: "We have pilikia always so long two spires that church. They make big fire Chinatown, and now all same another fire here. Plenty pilikia till they take one spire down." It would be curious to investigate, in connection with today's events, whether the superstitious Chinese tried to induce their losses to hoodoo the firemen and the water works against saving the church with its two malefic spires.

Another interesting reminiscence of Kaumakapili church is that of a speech by King Kalakaua. The lamented, genial sovereign was assisting one Sunday at a booming of the building fund. He talked against any presumed objection to the twin spires on the ground of extravagance, arguing that the duality of construction was in harmony with characteristics of the human form divine. "Men have two legs, two arms, two eyes and two ears," he king argued, "and it is fitting that our new church should have spires pointing heavenward." This is quoted from memory, but the curious will find the speech reported in newspapers of the time.

Moved and carried that the ditch beginning at King street and running by the corner of South and Queen streets to the sea be at once cleaned out and that the material be carted to the garbage scows and dumped at sea.

Moved and carried that the merchants of Honolulu be informed that in the opinion of the Board of Health great assistance would be rendered the Board in its efforts to suppress the plague, by the merchants agreeing to open their places of business at 10 a. m. and close at 3 p. m.

Moved and carried that a finance committee of three members be appointed by the president of the Board of Health to recommend methods to be followed in handling and disbursing the funds placed at the disposal of the Board by the Council of State; and also to nominate cashiers and disbursing agents and accountants.

President Wood appointed the following as members of the Finance Committee: C. M. Cooke (chairman,) J. B. Atherton and T. Rain Walker.

A petition from Surgeon Major Taylor of Buena Vista hospital asking that he be allowed to put up at the horse camp on the Waikiki road six tents for the accommodation of those of the United States soldiers who might be taken down or exposed to the plague, was granted.

In response to a communication from Postmaster General Ott, asking about mail to Hawaii and how it would be affected by the regulations of Sheriff Andrews, President Wood stated that these special regulations had been annulled.

Residence Lots on Pacific Heights

ARE NOW OFFERED FOR SALE.

No residence property having similar advantages and attractions, as for healthfulness of location, having an elevation of from 170 to 800 feet, and affording the grandest marine and scenic views; as also its proximity to the business part of the city, being less than a mile from the Progress Block,—has ever before been presented to the people of Honolulu.

One of the main features of this property, and procured at great expense, is the abundant supply of pure spring water, pronounced by Dr. C. B. Wood as being the purest and best drinking water obtainable in the island, which is now being conducted into storage reservoirs upon the property by an independent pipe line, and will be supplied to residents at Government rates.

OUR GUARANTEE: We guarantee to all purchasers of lots on Pacific Heights, that we will, within six months, provide rapid transportation to the highest lots on the property, connecting the same with the Honolulu Rapid Transit Co.'s line on Pauoa Road, at the beginning of Kauai Drive.

TRANSPORT TARTAR.

The U. S. Transport Tartar appeared off the harbor at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was spoken by the pilot boat with Captain Sanders, Dr. Emerson, Louis T. Kenake and a Bulletin reporter. As soon as the two had arrived within hailing distance, the Tartar in the meantime having slowed down, Captain Sanders asked if a pilot was desired. "No," replied the captain. "We have a little ship's mail aboard and want to land it. Here are a few late papers for you, Captain Sanders." Then the bag of mail and the file of papers was lowered into the pilot boat. The signal to go ahead was given and, in a few seconds the Tartar was on her way again, the captain shouting: "We are not going to Hilo but will make straight for Manila. The plague here is what is keeping us away."

The Chronicle of the 11th inst., the only late San Francisco paper left by the Tartar and for which the Bulletin is greatly indebted to Captain Sanders, contains the following in relation to the Tartar:

The transport Tartar, which was to sail yesterday afternoon, put out into the stream on time, but will be held until some time this morning before finally sailing, in order to allow thirty members of the Hospital Corps from New York to embark upon her for the Philippines. These men left Fort Columbus in New York harbor, where they have been on duty, on the 4th of this month for service in the Philippines. Their train was delayed, and considerable anxiety was felt lest they should not arrive in time to sail with the Tartar. As the hour of sailing approached it was learned by telegraph that they would arrive at Oakland about 1 o'clock this morning. Orders were therefore issued to hold the transport until these men could board her. They will remain in Oakland until early this morning, when they will be taken across the bay on the McDowell, and, after being refitted with tropical clothing, will be put aboard the Tartar, which sails this forenoon.

The Tartar has about 2,300 tons of commissary stores. As passengers she takes about fifteen army officers, two female nurses and about 500 recruits for the Philippines.

U. S. S. Nero.

Naval men here are expecting the Nero in the near future. According to latest advices she was to sail from Guam to Japan and then, perhaps, back to Guam again. A great quantity of mail has already collected at the post office for her. Mail is also collecting for the training ship Adams, but it may be that she will not stop here on account of the existence of the plague.

SHARKEY WANTS TO FIGHT.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Tom Sharkey left the Lyric theater last night announcing that he would retire from the ring, unless he could fight Jeffries again. The declaration was made in response to the clamorings of the crowd which witnessed the fight pictures and just after Sharkey made his appearance on the stage in ring costume. After the auditor had bowed his acknowledgments, he said:

"I am obliged to you all for your kindly feeling after seeing those pictures. I hope to be given another chance to face Jeffries and if I don't get it I want to announce right here that I will retire from the ring."

"I feel that I am entitled to the first chance against Jeffries and feel assured of my ability to defeat him should we ever face each other again in the ring. He is a good man, but not my equal, in my way of thinking and all I now desire is another chance at him."

"If I am not given this chance within a reasonable length of time I will retire from the ring. There is no reason on earth why I should be called upon to fight three or four men who are not in my class. Or why should Jeffries make matches with second rate? If I can't meet a first class man I will drop the fighting game for good."

London, Jan. 10.—The American flour seized off Delagoa Bay has been released. United States Ambassador Choate had an interview with the Marquis of Salisbury this afternoon and received a verbal reply to the representatives of the Washington Government.

Salisbury's Reply to the United States

New York, Jan. 19.—A special to the Journal and Advertiser from Washington says:

The essential points in the tentative answer of Lord Salisbury to the demand made on him by Ambassador Choate for a declaration of policy and a concession of liability in the matter of the seizures of American flour in cargoes on the Mashona, the Beatrice and the Maria are:

First, Great Britain offers to pay an indemnity to the American citizen whose corn, meal and flour were seized by the British cruisers near Delagoa Bay, the extent of the claims to be determined by a commission.

Second, Great Britain will not declare corn, meal and flour to be contraband when proof is not positive that the foodstuffs are intended for the camp of the enemy.

Third, Great Britain contends that she has not violated the rights of a neutral power by the seizure of this corn, meal and flour, but that, on the contrary, under her old common law, she has a right to seize food supplies absolutely necessary for the maintenance of her soldiers and sailors in time of war, her right being subject to the equities of indemnity.

The attitude of this Government on the three propositions submitted in justification by Lord Salisbury is as follows: The United States accepts Great Britain's offer to pay American citizens in interest the face value of the cargoes, with a reasonable profit Great Britain's plea in justification is regarded as inadequate and evasive in that it avoids a general declaration as to whether corn, meal and flour are contraband of war, but the answer is reasonably sufficient because it declares specifically that the articles on the vessels named were not contraband of war as they were not destined for the camp of the enemy and that was one important contention of the State Department.

As to the third proposition, the United States accepts in good faith the plea that the goods were seized as a military necessity for the supply of the British army and navy and that such necessity justified the act of seizure without prejudice to any other international questions involved.

A high State Department official said that there was no doubt that Great Britain's inability to supply her army and navy actually engaged in the Boer war could be demonstrated. That condition, he said, is fairly inferable from the fact of the immense army in the field, the consequent emergency drain on the home base of supplies, the distance of the local South African bases of supply from the armies in the field, the danger in the transportation of them, great distances in land and the practically isolated position of her cruisers off Delagoa Bay beyond the international limit from shore.

The United States, he said, had agreed to this contention of Great Britain because it was defensible by international law and by the facts as submitted.

The State Department, notwithstanding this tentative reply, which precludes any chance of serious friction, is still anxious to obtain a specific declaration as to whether Great Britain will maintain the general proposition that flour, corn and meal are contraband of war. It is probable in view of the fact present amicable adjustment that the United States will not insist on an immediate reply to her demands for a comprehensive declaration of policy.

It is thought, however, that inasmuch as Germany, Holland and France have asked Great Britain for a definition of contraband as applied to foodstuffs, the scope of the answer to the United States may be enlarged in the near future.

VIEW OF THE BOARD.

At the conclusion of the Board of Health meeting yesterday afternoon Messrs. P. C. Jones, J. L. Kaulukou and A. G. M. Robertson, a committee from the Council of state dropped in the conference with the Board for the purpose of learning more fully the wishes of the Board in asking for $200,000 for claims.

President Wood spoke for the Board stating that the matter was of such importance that the members would like the privilege of speaking directly to the Council of state assembled in order that every member of that body might obtain the exact views of the Board of Health.

President Wood then referred to the meeting of the Board with the executive in the morning and the matters discussed, the most important of which was the removal into quarantine as soon as possible of the people of the infected district. "We feel that the plague is gaining on us and that we are not throttling it as we should," said President Wood. "We have not been able to remove the population as expeditiously as we would like. One reason was that we were wasting time and energy in handling the large amount of merchandise. Another reason, and the most important reason, to my mind, was because we had no place to put the people. We undertook to do the whole thing at one time; but we have learned that this method has impeded our handling the people and getting them out of the district."

Then was referred to the matter of the disinfection of the bulk of the merchandise from the infected district. Most of this had been stored in special warehouses and it should not go out from under the control of the Board. It might be that nothing was being saved by the handling of the infected district freight and everything necessary to its safe storage in Board of Health warehouses. President Wood said he referred particularly to food-stuffs great quantities of which would be destroyed anyway by fumigation.

The next matter dealt with was that of passes into the infected district. The list had been kept down as much as possible but this traveling in and out might carry infection into the outer districts. This had been clearly shown in two cases. President Wood then referred to the danger to young men of prominent families who had gone into the infected district for the purpose of assisting the Board of Health in the matter of handling freight. Should some of these be taken down there would be a panic.

Mr. Jones asked if the Board was of the opinion that $200,000 would be sufficient for all the property destroyed. President Wood answered as follows: "We consider that the $200,000 would be a starter, at least. The Board feels so strongly in the matter that they were willing to accept any amount now, and after that they could figure out how much more would be needed."

His Birthday.

Dr. R. P. Myers, regimental surgeon of the National Guard of Hawaii, this day attained another milestone in an active life. He wore the gray through the troubled sixties, and now wears the blue, and none who know him but will declare he is a credit to his colors whatever they may be. The genial doctor carries his never mind how many-years with the sprightliness that comes with duty cheerfully done. In short, he has the secret of being always young.

THE HISTORY OF THE WATCH.

By OPIE READ.

[Copyright, 1899, by Opie Read.]

Broomberry was on his way down town, intending to get off at the Van Buren street station. Just before reaching that point an acquaintance sat down beside him and began to talk about a murder that had been committed just a year before on the North Side, Chicago. Being a city hall man, Broomberry's acquaintance knew a great deal about the murder. He knew old Kloptock, the victim, and in an exceedingly discreet and unken voiced manner he intimated to Broomberry that he had a pretty shrewd idea as to who committed the deed.

By this time the train had passed the Van Buren street station—was just pulling out, in fact—and Broomberry, determined not to miss an appointment, jumped off the train. He looked at his watch a minute later and found that in jumping off he had broken the crystal. He kept his appointment and then stepped into a jeweler's to get a new crystal.

"Where did you get it?" the jeweler asked when, after completing his work, he handed the watch to Broomberry.

"I got it from a friend of mine. Why?"

"Nothing. Only you've got a rare watch, not in value, but as to number. About 30 years ago a company of men built a factory at a little town called Romney, in Massachusetts, and began to manufacture watches; but, as some sort of disaster befell the concern, only three watches were ever completed, and this is one of them."

"You don't say so!" exclaimed Broomberry. "Well, well, and I should not have known of the rarity of my property if I hadn't broken the crystal in jumping off a train this morning! Do you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to trace this watch back to the factory if I can, and I'm going to write a description of the hands through which it has passed and make a book of it. Won't that be an odd little volume, 'The History of the Watch'! I am much obliged to you, sir. You've given me an idea, and, to a man who is so unfortunate as to be compelled to make his living by thinking, an idea is almost a necessity. Ah, but pardon me for not answering your question! I got the watch from Henry Lucas; gave him $45 for it about two months ago. If the history should be interesting enough to print, I'll give you a copy of it. Good day!"

Broomberry called on Henry Lucas. He found his friend absorbed in the work of "running up" figures in an immense book.

"Ah, Broomberry! Sit down!" "No, I haven't time. Say, where did you get this watch? Only three of them made and all that sort of thing. Just want to get the history of it, you know."

"I bought it from a fellow named Martin Kelly."

"Where do you suppose I can find him?"

"He works in the postoffice."

Broomberry went to the postoffice. He had struck a new line of work and was delighted. Mr Kelly was easily found.

"I got it from Mark Hammonds," said he.

"The dence you did!" Broomberry exclaimed. "Why, he was the cause of my breaking the crystal this morning. I was talking to him and passed my station and then had to jump off. I'll go right down to the city hall and see him."

"Where did I get it?" Hammonds replied in a careless sort of way. "Well, let me see. I got it from J. H. McPeal, a big furniture dealer on the West Side."

"All right. I'll go over there and see him."

The great furniture dealer—a smooth, well fed, baldheaded man—was busy in his office when Broomberry entered.

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?"

"I came to ask you about this," said Broomberry, taking out the watch.

"Don't know anything about it, sir. Good day!"

"Excuse me," said Broomberry, "but my friend, Mark Hammonds of the city hall, told me that he got it from you."

"Ah! Let me see it. Yes, that's so," he added, when Broomberry had handed him the watch, and then, with an air of business, as though he had been rather lax with the ethics of trade and must now, as a recovery of principle, make a show of briskness, he asked, "But what about it, sir—what about it?"

"Nothing. Only I should like to know where you got it."

"Yes, but I am very busy today—exceedingly busy, sir. Can't you call some other time?"

"Oh, of course! But it won't take a minute to tell me where you got it if you know."

"Yes, yes, that's so. But I'm extremely busy. Let me see. We took it in part payment on a lot of furniture—from, let me—Stevens," he called.

A man entered and said, "Yes, sir."

"What's the name of that boarding house woman that couldn't, or rather wouldn't, pay for her furniture in money, and we had to take a watch? What is her name? Quick, I'm busy."

"Mrs. Caddo, sir, 742 Limbill street."

"Yes, that's correct. Good day, sir!" Broomberry hastened to the boarding house of Mrs Caddo. She would have talked an hour about the watch, or by it either. She would have told of the myriad of trials that came to the widowed keeper of a boarding house, and was one of a certain harness maker named Sam Haines, who had boarded with her, who was drunk nearly all the time, who positively refused indeed in a most insulting manner to pay his board, but who, after being threatened by the law, and by a certain enormous policeman who knew the widow quite well, consented to give her his watch. This Mr. Sam Haines could be found in Madison street, near Robey.

Broomberry found the harness maker drunk and communicative. He got the watch of a certain pawnbroker, and would neglect his work to go and show Broomberry the place.

"Oh, no! I can find it easily enough," said the visitor, taking down the number.

"But you can't find it as well as if I went with you," the accommodating harness maker insisted. "You bet I'll go with you. Bet your life on that. You're my friend. Bet your life on that."

Broomberry hastened away and heard something that sounded like, "You go to hades, then. Bet your life on that!" as he went out.

The pawnbroker remembered the watch and, turning to his books, said that it had been sold to him by one H. J. Miles, 426 Rockland street.

Broomberry started out to look for the street and soon discovered that there was no such place. He returned to the pawnshop.

"The fellow that sold you this watch must have come by it dishonestly," he said to the broker.

"Very likely, sir. We have no means of finding out, you know. All we can do is to take the name and address, or what we suppose to be such."

"Yes, that's true, I suppose. But do you think you'd know the man if you were to see him again?"

"Yes, I think so."

"Have you ever seen him since he sold you the watch?"

"No, I think not."

"I have," said a boy standing at the back end of the place.

"Good! But do you know where he can be found?"

"I don't know where he stays, but I have seen him go up into a gambling house."

"Well, now, if you will go with me and point him out I will pay you well for your trouble."

Every day for four days the boy went with Broomberry and stood near a narrow stairway on Clark street, and, just as they were about to leave the place on the evening of the fourth day, the boy clutched Broomberry's arm and said,

"That's him going up now."

"All right. Here." He gave the boy $5.

Broomberry went up into the gambling den. He closely studied the man that had been pointed out. The fellow lost his money and went down. Broomberry followed him. He went to a sort of hotel in Canal street, and Broomberry kept him in view. He went into the barroom and sat down at a table. Broomberry approached him—indiscreetly, too—and said:

"Will you please pardon me if I ask you a few questions?"

"I don't know whether I will or not," the fellow growled, but Broomberry, taking no notice of his ill humor, sat down.

"I am about to write a little history," said he, "and think you may be able to help me out on it. I have in my possession a watch which I have traced to you, and I should like to know where you got it."

The fellow jumped up, knocked Broomberry down and disappeared through a back door. When the historian got up and brushed himself, he was told that a policeman had caught the fellow—a singular outcome surely.

The fellow was brought back and then, together with Broomberry, was taken to a police station, where the historian related his story, and then there came a sensation. The watch had belonged to old Kloptock, and Broomberry had found the murderer.

UNDERGROUND SMITHS AND THE MAGIC PLOW.

A farmer one day left his home in the bright early morning to go into his fields. His road led him past a cross of stone, which was one of many that dotted the landscape in that faraway country, the Scandinavian peninsula.

As he reached the cross he knelt a few moments in prayer, as was his wont every day, before passing it. But as he rose this morning from a customary worship he saw on the base of the rock a strange looking insect that attracted his attention by its brilliant color. Nor was that all. The little creature seemed very restless, running about here and there over the cross and at its foot, as if it were trying to leave the spot, but could not.

For some little time the farmer watched the insect. Then he went on his way to his fields and forgot all about the incident. But the next morning it was recalled to him, for on his way to his work he saw it again as he knelt at the cross, still running about here and there as if it were still trying to get away, but could not.

"Can it be," he thought, "that this creature is one of those that live in the heart of the earth? Perhaps it came unwittingly too close to the cross and now cannot get away."

Breathing a prayer and calling the name of Deity, he caught the beautifully colored thing in his hand. But it did not yield to his touch as he had expected. Instead it seemed to resist him with supernatural force and clung to the rock with all its strength.

The farmer, however, gave a strong pull, and found that he held by the hair a creature in appearance like a man, but only about six inches in length, while it screamed and kicked in a most energetic manner.

"Ho, no, friend," the farmer cried, "this is your trick, is it? Now tell me who you are and what trade you know that enables you to earn your living in the world."

The little one, however, would not answer his questions, but continued to scream and struggle with all his might.

"So be it," the farmer said at last when he found his efforts unavailing. "We'll see to what tune you'll sing by and by."

And with these words he turned back to his house with his little one, clapped him into a huge sooty iron pot, put the cover on it and carried it into the cold cellar.

"Remain there in the cold and the dark until you are ready to answer civil questions."

Twice a week the farmer visited his prisoner, but with no result. So six weeks passed by, and one day the little one begged to be released, promising to answer all questions.

"First, then, tell me who you are and how you got where I found you," the farmer said.

"You have guessed it as well as I can tell you," the black one said. "I am one of those that live far down in the earth. We feed the great central fire. That is why I am so black. One day I came up to earth and happened to pass near the cross. You know that when that happens we cannot get away and are compelled to become visible. I feared to attract attention in my natural form, so took that of the insect you noticed. Well, you know the rest. Now let me go if you are honest."

"You have told me all truly, I believe. But I have heard that you are also clever smiths. Is that so?"

"Yes, it is true."

"Well, then, you should give me a present before I let you go. Would that not be fair?"

"Yes, yes," eagerly said the black one. "Ask what you will—gold, silver, jewels, fine clothes or furniture. It shall be yours in an instant."

"All that you mention I do not want, but since you are clever smiths make me a plow so light that the smallest fool may draw it and not be tired."

"Agreed! But free me now!"

"There! Go!"

The minute after the great pot was uncovered the little being disappeared, but so suddenly that the farmer almost believed that he had been dreaming.

In the morning, however, in the yard outside his cabin door the farmer found a new plow. He fastened his dog to it, much to the amusement of his neighbors, but their astonishment was great to see him pull it without effort or weariness. And such tremendous furrows as it turned had never been known before.

Well, that farmer grew very, very rich, for he farmed more than any one else and required few horses, for the smallest horse could draw the magic plow, which was the wonder of the country round.

"I don't know whether I will or not," the fellow growled.

as they were about to leave the place on the evening of the fourth day, the boy clutched Broomberry's arm and said,

"That's him going up now."

"All right. Here." He gave the boy $5.

Broomberry went up into the gambling den. He closely studied the man that had been pointed out.

The fellow lost his money and went down. Broomberry followed him.

He went to a sort of hotel in Canal street, and Broomberry kept him in view.

He went into the barroom and sat down at a table. Broomberry approached him—indiscreetly, too—and said:

"Will you please pardon me if I ask you a few questions?"

"I don't know whether I will or not," the fellow growled, but Broomberry, taking no notice of his ill humor, sat down.

"I am about to write a little history," said he, "and think you may be able to help me out on it.

I have in my possession a watch which I have traced to you, and I should like to know where you got it."

The fellow jumped up, knocked Broomberry down and disappeared through a back door.

When the historian got up and brushed himself, he was told that a policeman had caught the fellow—a singular outcome surely.

The fellow was brought back and then, together with Broomberry, was taken to a police station,

THE EXPOSURE OF LORD STANSFORD.

By ROBERT BARR.

(Copyright, 1899, by Robert Barr.)

The large mansion of Louis Heckle, millionaire and dealer in gold mines, was illuminated from top to bottom. Farriages were arriving and departing, and guests were hurrying up the carpeted stair after passing under the canopy that stretched from the doorway to the edge of the street. A crowd of on-lookers stood on the pavement watching the arrival of ladies so charmingly attired. Lord Stansford came alone in a hansom, and he walked quickly across the bit of carpet stretched to the roadway, and then more leisurely up the broad stair. He was an athletic young fellow of 26 or thereabout. The moment he entered the large reception room his eyes wandered searchingly over the gallant company, apparently looking for some one whom he could not find. He passed into a farther room, and through that into a third, and there his searching gaze met the stare of Billy Heckle. Heckle was a young man of about the same age as Lord Stansford, and he also was seemingly on the outlook for some one among the arriving guests. The moment he saw Lord Stansford a slight frown gathered upon his brow, and he moved among the throng toward the spot where the other stood. Stansford saw him coming, and did not seem to be so pleased as might have been expected, but he made no motion to avoid the young man, who accosted him without salutation.

"Look here," said Heckle gruffly. "I want a word with you." "Very well," answered Stansford in a low voice. "So long as you speak in tones no one else can hear I am willing to listen." "You will listen whether or no," replied the other, who nevertheless took the hint and subdued his voice. "I have met you on various occasions lately, and I want to give you a word of warning. You seem to be very devoted to Miss Linderham; so perhaps you do not know she is engaged to me." "I have heard it so stated," said Lord Stansford, "but I have found some difficulty in believing the statement." "Now, see here!" cried the hoarse young man. "I want none of your cheek, and I give you fair warning that if you pay any more attention to the young lady I shall expose you in public. I mean what I say, and I am not going to stand any of your nonsense." Lord Stansford's face grew pale, and he glanced about him to see if by chance any one had overheard the remark. He seemed about to resent it, but finally gained control over himself and said: "We are in your father's house, Mr. Heckle, and I suppose it is quite safe to address a remark like that to me!" "I know it's quite safe—anywhere," replied Heckle. "You've got the straight tip from me; now see you pay attention to it."

Perhaps you do not know she is engaged to me.

Heckle turned away, and Lord Stansford, after standing there for a moment, wandered back to the middle room. The conversation had taken place somewhat near a heavily curtained window, and the two men stood slightly apart from the other guests. When they left the spot, the curtains were drawn gently apart, and a tall, very handsome young lady stepped from between them. She watched Lord Stansford's retreat for a moment, and then made as though she would follow him, but one of her admirers came forward to claim her for the first dance. "Music has just begun in the ballroom," he said. She placed her hand on the arm of her partner and went out with him. When the dance was over, she was amazed to see Lord Stansford still in the room. She had expected him to leave when the son of his host spoke so insultingly to him, but the young man had not departed. He appeared to be enjoying himself immensely and danced through every dance with the utmost devotion, which rather put to shame many of the young men who lounged against the walls. Never once, however, did he come near Miss Linderham until the evening was well on, and then he passed her by accident. She touched him on the arm with her fan, and he looked quickly around. "Oh, how do you do, Miss Linderham?" he said. "Why have you ignored me all the evening?" she asked, looking at him with sparkling eyes. "I haven't ignored you," he replied, with some embarrassment. "I did not know you were here." "Oh, that is worse than ignoring!" replied Miss Linderham, with a laugh. "But now that you know I am here I wish you to take me into the garden. It is becoming insufferably hot in here." "Yes," said the young man, getting red in the face, "it is warm."

mansome face ran upon him, "why have you avoided me all the evening?" "I haven't avoided you," he said. "Tut, tut; you mustn't contradict a lady, you know. I want the reason, the real reason and no excuses." Before the young man could reply Billy Heckle, his face flushed with wine or anger, or perhaps both, strode down the path and confronted them. "I gave you your warning," he cried. Lord Stansford sprang to his feet; Miss Linderham arose also and looked in some alarm from one young man to the other. "Stop a moment, Heckle! Don't say a word, and I will meet you where you like afterward," hurriedly put in his lordship. "Afterward is no good to me," answered Heckle. "I gave you the tip and you haven't followed it." "I beg you to remember," said Stansford, in a low voice with a tremor in it, "there is a lady present." Miss Linderham turned to go. "Stop a moment!" cried Heckle. "Do you know who this man is?" Miss Linderham stopped, but did not answer. "I'll tell you who he is. He is a hired guest. My father pays 5 guineas for his presence here tonight, and every place you have met him he has been there on hire. That's the kind of man Lord Stansford is. I told you I should expose you. Now I am going to tell the others."

Lord Stansford's face was as white as paper. His teeth were clinched, and taking one quick step forward, he smote Heckle fair between the two eyes and felled him to the ground. "You cur!" he cried. "Get up or I shall kick you and hate myself forever after for doing it." Young Heckle picked himself up, cursing under his breath. "I'll settle with you, my man," he said. "I'll get a policeman. You'll spend the remainder of this night in the cells." "I shall do nothing of the sort," answered Lord Stansford, catching him by both wrists with an iron grasp. "Now, pay attention to me, Billy Heckle. You feel my grip on your wrist. You felt my blow in your face, didn't you? Now you go into the house by whatever back entrance there is, go to your room, wash the blood off your face, and stay there; otherwise I'll break both of your wrists as you stand here!" And he gave the wrists a wrench that made the other wince, big and bulky as he was. "I promise," said Heckle. "Very well. See that you keep your promise."

Young Heckle slunk away, and Lord Stansford turned to Miss Linderham, who stood looking on, speechless with horror and surprise. "What a brute you are!" she said, with a quiver in her under lip. "Yes," he replied quietly. "Most of us men are brutes when you take a little of the varnish off. Won't you sit down, Miss Linderham? There is no need now to reply to the question you asked me. The incident you have witnessed and what you have heard have been its answer." The young lady did not sit down. She stood looking at him, her eyes softening a trifle. "Is it true, then?" she said. "Is what true?" "That you are here as a hired guest?" "Yes, it is true." "Then why did you knock him down if it was the truth?" "Because he spoke the truth before you." "I hope, Lord Stansford, you don't mean to imply that I am in any way responsible for your ruffianism?" "You are, and in more than one sense of the word. That young fellow threatened me when I came here tonight, knowing that I was his father's hired guest. I do not wish exposure, and so I avoided you. You spoke to me and asked me to bring you out here. I came, knowing that if Heckle saw me he would carry out his threat. He has carried it out, and I have had the pleasure of knocking him down." Miss Linderham sank upon the seat and once more motioned with her fan for him to take the place beside her. "Then you receive 5 guineas a night for appearing at the different places where I have met you?" "As a matter of fact," said Stansford, "I get only 2 guineas. I suppose the other 3, if such is the price paid, goes to my employers." "I thought Mr. Heckle was your employer tonight?" "I mean to the company who let me out, if I make myself clear—Spink & Co.; telephone 100,803. MENU FOR SATURDAY. We shall all be perfectly virtuous when there is no longer any flesh on our bones.—Marguerite de Valois. BREAKFAST: Fruit, Porridge, Fricassee of Dried Beef, Stewed Apples, Toast, Coffee. LUNCHEON: Oysters Baked in the Shell, Mashed in Tomato Sauce, Sandwiches, Tea. DINNER: Onion Soup, Baked Wild Ducks, Jelly, Lettuce Salad, Cheese, Carrots, Celery, Olives, Chestnut Pudding. CHESTNUT PUDDING.—Bake or boil 50 fine chestnuts, rub their pulp through a sieve and place this in a stewpan with a pint of cream, four ounces of butter, six ounces of sugar, a rounded stick of vanilla and a very little salt. Stir these ingredients over a stove fire until the preparation thickens and then quicken the motion of the spoon so as to prevent the mixture adhering to the bottom of the stewpan. As soon as it leaves the sides of the stewpan remove it from the fire, add eight yolks and the whites of six eggs whisked firm; pour the pudding mixture into a plain bowl, previously spread with butter, and then strain it and let it stand for an hour and a half. When the pudding is done, turn it carefully out of the mold on to its dish, pour over it some warm apricot jam diluted and serve.

MENU FOR SUNDAY. The morals of today are made up of appearances.—Mme. Louise Colet. BREAKFAST: Orange, Plain Omelet, Pig's Feet, Stewed Potatoes, Fried Tomatoes, Walnuts and Sugar, Coffee. DINNER: Puree of Celery, Olives, Radishes, Celery, Spinach, Potatoes, Braised Turkey with Chestnuts, Garnish of Turnip, Tomatoes, Mayonnaise, Cold Rice Pudding, Cheese, Fruit, Coffee. PIG'S FEET A LA PERIGORD.—These should be braised and bones taken out and, before they become quite cold, filled inside and partially covered with forcemeat of fat livers in which have been mixed some chopped truffles. When this is placed on the feet, some scallops of truffles must be inter-mixed with it. The feet must next be wrapped up in appropriate sized pieces of pig's caul and then bread crumbed over this. When about to send to table, broil the feet upon oiled paper placed upon the grilliron to prevent their burning or falling to pieces, which, from the delicacy of the forcemeat (if properly prepared), they are liable to do. When nicely broiled on both sides, glaze and dish them up and serve with cullis sauce.

MENU FOR MONDAY. Physical beauty in man has become as rare as the moral beauty has always been.—Mme. Louise Colet. BREAKFAST: Fruit, Boiled Rice, Omelet with Bacon, Fried Apples, Creamed Potatoes, Toast, Coffee. DINNER: Onion Soup, Rabbit a la Chasseur, Carrots, String Beans, Potatoes, Pumpkin Pie. RABBIT A LA CHASSEUR.—Cut the rabbit into small joints, as follows: First, take off the hind legs even with the loin, then remove the shoulders, split the head into halves, divide the loins into six pieces; trim these neatly without waste and place them in a saute pan with two ounces of clarified butter, pepper and salt. Fry them of a light brown color with rather a brisk fire and add a tablespoonful of chopped fine herbs, consisting of mushrooms, truffles, parsley and shallots; then put the lid on and set the rabbit over a slow fire for about ten minutes longer; next pour off all the grease, add a large ladleful of cullis sauce, some scallops of mushrooms and truffles, two dozen small quenelles of rabbit, a small piece of glaze, a little nutmeg and the juice of half a lemon; simmer the whole together on a stove fire for three minutes, then pile up the pieces of rabbit in the dish, arrange the ragout over this in neat groups and pour the sauce over the entire.

MENU FOR TUESDAY. All women are fond of minds that inhabit fine bodies, of souls that have fine eyes.—J. Joubert. BREAKFAST: Stewed Green Gages, Eggs a la Chipolade, Bacon, Stewed Oyster Plant, Sweet Potatoes, Coffee, Popovers. DINNER: Cream of Game, Squabs on Crapandine, Olives, Radishes, Stuffed Tomatoes, Lettuce Salad, Peach Pie, Cheese Cossee. TURKEY BRAISE WITH CHESTNUTS.—Lard turkey with few large, square pieces of bacon; season with a little ground spices, pepper and salt, a little parsley; take a pot about size of turkey and line it with thin slices of bacon and cover turkey with same; season turkey pretty high with onions, carrots, turnip or two, such herbs as you like, a little spice and pepper and parsley, a head or two of celery, fill up with broth and water mixed, cover it down close and let it go on gently until every part of your turkey is tender. The chestnuts should be first prepared by blanching and peeling and putting into the body of turkey, with a little forcemeat in the crop, and skewered up. Let your turkey lie in the braise until toward dinner time, and now prepare your sauteon sauce. Take a thin slice or two of boiled ham, a wafel sweetbread, yolks of two hard eggs, pickled cucumber or two, two or three mushrooms; cut all into small dice and put into as much cullis as is suitable for your dish, dash in a glass of champagne or other white wine, boil all this for little while, throw in little minced parsley, try if it is seasoned to please, squeeze in juice of a lemon and pour over your turkey (well drained) and serve up.

He Got the Money. The youngest son of a distinguished citizen of Chicago went abroad with a liberal amount of money for a boy of his age, not long ago, and after a month in London, he cabled to his father, "Please send £100 quick," and signed his name, Willie Blank. Mr. Blank took this cable to the office of his eldest son and said, in a puzzled way: "Willie has just cabled for £100. Now, I wonder what the boy wants to do with it." "Cable and find out," was the suggestion, and Mr. Blank sent to Willie Blank this message. "What do you want money for?" A few hours later came the reply, "For Willie."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

REPLY OF TRAMWAYS CO

To the Complaint of Honolulu Rapid Transit and Land Co.

Statement of Defendant's Chartered Rights— Allegations of Bad Faith Toward Public Made Against Plaintiff—Law.

In the suit of the Honolulu Rapid Transit and Land Co. against the Hawaiian Tramways Co., the defendant has filed an answer. It is signed by W. H. Pain, manager, and countersigned by F. M. Hatch and Paul Neumann, attorneys for defendant.

Defendant denies that in pursuance of plaintiff's powers or privileges the plaintiff located its road upon King street, and denies that it had any powers or privileges in that respect except under Act 69 of 1898, which gives the Rapid Transit Company the power to occupy the streets and use the tracks of the Hawaiian Tramways Co. in accordance with the latter's franchise granted in 1884, provided that the Rapid Transit association should comply with the provisions and requirements of Section 3 of the Act of 1884.

The section referred to allows the Legislature, or the Minister of the Interior when authorized by the Legislature, to "grant to one other corporation and no more the right to use either of the aforesaid streets for a distance of seventeen hundred feet and no more, upon the following conditions: That each company, person or corporation using the said track jointly shall pay an equal portion for the construction and maintenance of the portion of the track so used jointly."

Defendant denies that it trespassed upon plaintiff's location, or that defendant's track had been laid, so that it would be impossible for plaintiff to occupy or use King street.

It is asserted that the track laid by plaintiff on King street is not laid for the purpose of operating a street railroad thereon, but solely for the purpose of forcing the defendant into litigation, and is laid in such manner as not only to be useless but to constitute a nuisance to the public using King street for legitimate purposes, and defendant denies that it has at any time threatened to tear up or destroy any portion of plaintiff's track, but admits that it intends to occupy said street in so far as may be allowable under the law.

The answer goes on to cite the powers given to defendant by the acts of 1884 and 1886, which included the right to lay a double track, and then alleges that in July, 1899, the defendant announced to the Minister of the Interior its intention to lay double tracks on King and Beretania streets, to which intention the Minister consented on the 21st day of July. It mentions its moving of track to make room for the second track, asserting that by this action it did not abandon any of its rights of location.

When the work had proceeded as far as Alakea street, in substance the defendant continues, the plaintiff, without right or justification of law, trespassed upon the lower side of King street and upon the rights of defendant, and laid, in various places, rails known as T rails, and, as defendant is informed and believes, without the consent or approval of the Minister of the Interior which was incumbent upon it to obtain thus interfering with the operation of the proposed double track of defendant.

Defendant reiterates its right to lay its double track as begun, and denies that its acts, as set forth in the complaint, are contrary to equity or good conscience or in violation of plaintiff's right, and denies that plaintiff has any rights in the premises.

Finally, defendant submits that all the matters in the plaintiff's bill mentioned and complained of are matters which may be tried and determined at law, and with respect thereto the defendant asks to have the same benefit of this defense as though it had demurred to plaintiff's bill.

RUSSIA AND SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, Jan. 10.—At the Russ House is a party whose presence in San Francisco is exciting a good deal of interest and speculation. It consists of A. Bodyusky, V. Patapoff and F. Berisoff of Russia, P. Deemans, also a Russian, who resides in Los Angeles, and W. H. Holabird, who is from the East.

The party arrived yesterday in a special car from Oregon. W. H. Mills, of the Southern Pacific Company, who went as far north as Portland to join it, accompanied the members back to this city.

Bodyusky, Patapoff and Berisoff are supposed by the commissioners appointed by the Russian Government to come to the United States to report upon the point best suited for a terminus for the great Siberian Railway Company, which will run steamers across the Pacific from Vladivostok to some place on this coast. They were met in British Columbia by Mr. Holabird, who came from the East for that purpose. At Portland they were joined by Mr. Mills and Mr. Deemans, acting as interpreter for the Southern Pacific official, and brought to this city.

The visitors deny that they are the agents of the Russian Government looking for a Pacific Coast terminus for the steamship line and refuse to tell what their business is here, as they claim that publicity would defeat their plans. Mr. Mills says that a dispatch recently published in one of the evening papers is entirely without foundation as far as it credits the Russians with being Government agents.

Whatever their business here it is evidently something of great moment as all of the party are of the first consequence in their own country and anything that would bring them thus far

STORY OF PILCHER'S RAID

Cape Colony, Monday, Jan. 1.—A dispatch from Dover Farm, dated January 1st, says: "The Colonial troops, who have been longing to be allowed to meet the Boers, have at last been given an opportunity to do so, and scored a brilliant success. The raid conducted by Colonel Pilcher was very difficult owing to the fact that the movements of the troops were immediately communicated to the Boers by natives. In order to prevent this Colonel Pilcher, in making his forced march from Belmont, left a British trooper at every farm house with instructions not to allow the natives to leave their homes, the patrols calling the names of the natives hourly in order to prevent their escape. In the maneuver at Cooks, Pilcher sent patrols east. One of these, consisting of four men commanded by Lieutenant Adie, suddenly encountered fourteen Boers, who opened fire. The lieutenant was severely wounded and Private Butler gave up his horse in order to carry the lieutenant out of range.

Another private, whose horse had bolted, pluckily returned to render assistance. He was wounded in the leg and his horse was killed. Meanwhile, Lieutenant Ryan, who had worked magnificently, reported that the veldt on the right of the enemy was clear, whereupon Major Derougemont ordered the guns to a trot. They arrived within fifteen hundred yards of the laager, unlimbered and planted five shells in as many minutes within the laager. Immediately the enemy could be seen streaming over the kopje. They were completely surprised, but opened a well directed fire. A representative of the Associated Press had the privilege of carrying an order to the Toronto company to double quick into action. The order was received with great satisfaction. The company rushed forward until within a thousand yards of the enemy's position when it opened a hot fire upon the kopje and completely subdued the Boer fire.

The British artillery shelled the position with wonderful accuracy, while Lieutenant Ryan, with mounted infantry worked around and completely uncovered the fire of the Boers who had been ensconced in the bushes.

Meanwhile Colonel Pilcher, with the Queenslanders, taking advantage of every cover, made a direct attack, the Australians moving slowly but surely and only shouting when they saw the enemy retreating under their steady fire. The Queenslanders behaved with great coolness, laughing and chaffing even at the moment of greatest peril.

During the advance the Boer fire suddenly ceased. Thirty-five Boers hoisted a white flag and surrendered. A portion of the Torontos moved across the front of the guns and entered the laager. The Boers had fled. Fourteen tents, three wagons, a great store of rifles, ammunition, forage, saddles and camp equipment and numerous incriminating papers were captured.

The Boers lost six killed and twelve wounded. The Torontos stood the galling fire with admirable patience, never wasting a shot.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 6.—Dr. Henry A. Rowland, professor of physics at the Johns Hopkins University, has made a discovery of great importance to the scientific world. It is in the nature of an explanation of the cause of the magnetism of the earth.

It was nearly a year ago that Dr. Rowland commenced his experiments. He was attracted to the subject, he says, by the lack of explanation or theory for the earth's magnetism. The experiments have been continued by Dr. Rowland and his assistants and their efforts have recently been productive of satisfactory results, which will soon be reported fully for the benefit of science.

The apparatus used by Dr. Rowland is a simple metal wheel revolved upon a shaft by means of an electric motor. The wheel is wound with several miles of fine wire and in its magnetism is developed when the wheel is revolved. About the wheel is a casing or sheet of brass at a distance of about half an inch from its circumference, but leaving an air space between which may be said to represent layers of atmosphere about the earth.

With this simple apparatus Dr. Rowland is working to show that the faster the revolution of the wheel the more magnetism will be developed. He has shown already that magnetism is produced in this revolving body and although on such a small scale in the laboratory experiments Dr. Rowland says he is convinced that the principle holds good for the earth and other heavenly bodies as they revolve through space. Of course the immense weight and great speed of these bodies add to the amount of magnetism which they produce.

Dr. Rowland, however, is so highly pleased with the result so far attained that he will continue the work for some time to come.

THE FAMILY FRIEND. No remedy has as good a right to that title as Kickapoo Indian Oil. It is good for internal and external use; it is pain's most powerful panacea. No one can say "I won't" have neuralgia, rheumatism, earache or any other acute pain, but everyone who has a bottle of Kickapoo Indian Oil in the house can say with confidence "I won't" have neuralgia or any other pain long. The power of this oil over pain is marvelous. Terrible Pains

In the Stomach—Dreadful Headaches—Face and Neck Covered With Bolls—Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla—Skin is Now Clear.

"I was covered with bolls all over my face and neck. I had dreadful headaches and pains in my stomach. I took medicine, but was not much benefited, and I procured six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking the first bottle I could see an improvement. When I had taken a few more bottles the bolls had all gone, my skin was clear, my appetite returned, and my health was entirely restored. I am thankful I ever found such a blood purifier as Hood's Sarsaparilla. I paid out a good deal of money for useless medicines before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. F. BECKWITH, Hurlock, Maryland.

THE EXPOSURE OF LORD STANSFORD.

"Oh, it doesn't matter very much," said Stansford, rising. "It's all included in the 5 guineas, but I'm pleased to think I have some self respect left and that I can refuse your lady and will not become a hired husband at £2,000 a year. May I see you back to the house, Miss Linderham? As you are well aware, I have duties toward other guests who are not hired, and it is a point of honor with me to earn my money. I wouldn't like a complaint to reach the ears of Spink & Co."

Miss Linderham rose and placed her hand within his arm.

"Telephone—what number?" she asked.

"Telephone 100,803," he answered. "I am sorry the firm did not provide me with some of their cards when I was at the office this afternoon."

"It doesn't matter," said Miss Linderham. "I will remember." And they entered the house together.

Next day, at a large studio in Kensington, none of the friends who had met Miss Linderham at the hall the evening before would have recognized the girl; not but that she was as pretty as ever, perhaps a little prettier, with her long white pinafore and her pretty fingers discolored by the crayons she was using. She was trying to sketch out on the canvas before her the figure of a man, striking out from the shoulder, and she did not seem to have much success with her drawing, perhaps because her mind was preoccupied. She would sit for a long time staring at the canvas and then jump up and put in lines which did not appear to bring the rough sketch any nearer perfection.

The room was large, with a good north window, and scattered about were the numberless objects that go to the confusing make up of an artist's workshop. At last Miss Linderham threw down the crayon, went to the end of the room where a telephone hung and rang the bell.

"Give me," she said, "100,803."

After a few moments of waiting a voice came.

"Is that Spink & Co.?" she asked.

"Yes, madame," was the reply.

"You have in your employ Lord Stansford, I think?"

"Yes, madame."

"Is he engaged for this afternoon?"

"No, madame."

"Well, send him to Miss Linderham, 2044 Cromwell road, South Kensington."

The man at the other end wrote the address and then asked:

"At what hour, madame?"

"I want him from 4 till 6 o'clock."

"Now," said Miss Linderham, with a sigh of relief, "I can have a model who will strike the right attitude. It is so difficult to draw from memory."

The reason why so many women fail as artists as well as in many other professions may be because they pay so much attention to their own dress. It is an astonishing fact to record that Miss Linderham sent out for a French hairdresser, who was a most expensive man, and whom she generally called in only when some very important function was about to take place.

"I want you," she said, "to dress my hair in an artistic way and yet in a manner that will seem as if no particular trouble had been taken with it. Do you understand me?"

"Ah, perfectly, mademoiselle," said the polite Frenchman. "You shall be so fascinating, mademoiselle, that—"

"Yes," said Miss Linderham, "that is what I want."

At 3 o'clock she had on a dainty gown. The sleeves were turned up as if she were ready for the most serious work. The spotless pinafore which covered this dress had the most fetching little frill around it. All in all, it was doubtful if any studio in London, even one belonging to the most celebrated painter, had in it as pretty a picture as Miss Maggie Linderham was that afternoon.

At 4 o'clock there came a ring at the telephone, and when Miss Linderham answered, the call the voice which she had heard before said:

"I am very sorry to disappoint you, madame, but Lord Stansford resigned this afternoon. We could send you another man if you liked to have him."

"No, no!" cried Miss Linderham, and the man at the other end of the telephone actually thought she was weeping.

"No, I don't want any one else. It doesn't really matter."

"The other man," replied the voice, "would be only 2 guineas, and it was 5 for Lord Stansford. We could send you a man for a guinea, although we don't recommend him."

"No," said Miss Linderham. "I don't want anybody. I am glad Lord Stansford is not coming, as the little party I proposed to give has been postponed."

"Ah, then, when it comes off, madame, I hope—"

But Miss Linderham hung up the receiver and did not listen to the recommendations the man was sending over the wire about his hired guests. The chances are that Maggie Linderham would have cried had it not been that her hair was so nicely yet carelessly done. But before she had time to make up her mind what to do the trim little maid came along the gallery and down the steps into the studio with a silver salver in her hand and on it a card. Miss Linderham picked up the card and read, "Richard Stansford."

"Oh!" she cried joyfully. "Ask him to come here."

"Won't you see him in the drawing room, miss?"

"No, no; tell him I am very busy and bring him to the studio."

The maid went up the stair again. Miss Linderham, taking one long, careful glance at herself, looking over her shoulder in the long mirror, and, not caring to touch her wealth of hair, picked up her crayon and began making the sketch of the striking man even worse than it was before. She did not look round until she heard Lord Stansford's step on the stair; then she gave an exclamation of surprise on seeing him. The young man was dressed in a wide awake hat and the costume which we see in the illustrated papers as picturing our friends in South Africa. All he needed was a belt of cartridges and a rifle to make the picture complete.

"This is hardly the dress a man is supposed to wear in London when he makes an afternoon call on a lady, Miss Linderham," said the young man, with a laugh, "but I had either to come this way or not at all, for my time is very limited. I thought it was too bad to leave the country without giving you an opportunity to apologize for your conduct last night and for the additional insult of hiring me for two hours this afternoon. And so, you see, I came."

"I am very glad you did," replied Miss Linderham. "I was much disappointed when they telephoned me this afternoon that you had resigned. I must say that you look exceedingly well in that outfit, Lord Stansford."

"Yes," said the young man, casting a glance over himself. "I must admit that it is rather becoming. I have had the pleasure of attracting a good deal of attention as I came along the street."

"They took you for a cowboy, I suppose?"

"Well, something of that sort. The small boy, I regret to say, was so unfeeling as to sing 'He's got on' and other ribald ditties of that kind, which they seem to think suited the occasion. But others looked at me with great respect, which compensated for the disadvantages. Will you pardon the rudeness of a pioneer, Miss Linderham, when I say that you look even more charming in the studio dress than you did in ball costume, and I never thought that could be possible?"

"Oh!" cried the girl, flushing, perhaps because the crimson paint on the palette she had picked up reflected on her cheek. "You must excuse this working garb, as I did not expect visitors. You see, they telephoned to me that you were not coming."

The devoted young man actually thought this statement was correct, which in part it was, and he believed also that the luxuriant hair tossed up here and there with seeming carelessness was not the result of an art far superior to any the girl herself had ever put upon canvas.

"So you are off to South Africa?" she said.

"Yes, the Cape."

"Oh, is the Cape in South Africa?"

"Well, I think so," replied the young man, somewhat dubiously, "but I wouldn't be certain about it, though the steamship company guarantees to land me at the Cape, wherever it is."

The girl laughed.

"You must have given it a great deal of thought," she said, "when you don't really know where you are going."

"Oh, I have a better idea of direction than you give me credit for! I am not such a fool as I looked last night, you know. Then I belonged to Spink & Co., and was sabbled by them to old Heckle; now I belong to myself and South Africa. That makes a world of difference, you know."

"I see it does," replied Miss Linderham. "Won't you sit down?"

The girl herself sank into an armchair, while Stansford sat on a low table, swinging one foot to and fro, his wide brimmed hat thrown back, and gazed at the girl until she reddened more than ever. Neither spoke for some moments.

"Do you know," said Stansford at last, "that when I look at you South Africa seems a long distance away?"

"I thought it was a long distance away," said the girl, without looking up.

"Yes, but it's longer and more lonely when one looks at you. By Jove, if I thought I couldn't do better, I would be tempted to take that £2,000 a year offer of yours and—"

"It wasn't an offer of mine!" cried the girl, hastily. "Perhaps the lady I is very foolish to let himself out at a guinea an evening."

"Do you know, Miss Linderham, that was just what I thought myself, and I told the respectable Spike so too. I told him I had an offer of £2,000 a year in his own line of business. He said that no firm in London could afford the money. 'Why,' he cried, waxing angry, 'I could get a duke for that!'"

"Well," he replied, "it is purely a matter of business with me. I was offered £2,000 a year as ornamental man by a most charming young lady, who has a studio at South Kensington, and who is herself, when dressed up as an artist, prettier than any picture that ever entered the Royal Academy. That's what I told Spike."

The girl looked up at him, first with indignation in her eyes and then with a smile hovering about her pretty lips.

"You said nothing of the sort," she answered, "for you knew nothing about this studio at that time. So, you see, I am not going to emulate your dishonesty by pretending not to know you are referring to me."

"My dishonesty!" exclaimed the young man, with protest in his voice. "I am the most honest, straightforward person alive, and I believe I would take your two thousand a year offer if I didn't think I could do better."

"Where? In South Africa?"

"No, in South Kensington. I think that when the lady learns how useful I could be around a studio—oh, I could learn to wash brushes, sweep out the room, prepare canvases, light the fire, and how nicely I could hand around the cups of tea when she had her 'at homes' and exhibited her pictures! When she realizes this and sees what a bargain he is getting, I feel almost certain she will not make any terms at all."

The young man sprang from the table, and the girl rose from her chair, a look almost of alarm in her face. He caught her by the arms.

"What do you think, Miss Linderham? You know the lady. Don't you think she would refuse to have anything to do with a cad like Billy Heckle, rich as he is, and would prefer a tumble, hardworking farmer from the Cape?"

The girl did not answer his question.

"Are you going to break my arms as you threatened to do his wrists last night?"

"Muggie," he whispered in a low voice, with an intense ring in it, "I am going to break nothing but my own heart if you refuse me."

The girl looked up at him with a smile.

"I knew when you came in you weren't going to South Africa, Dick," was all she said, and he, taking advantage of her helplessness, kissed her.

Some Encouragement.

Mrs. Darlington—John, I spoke to papa about having him take you into business, but he couldn't do it because you have too many vague ideas.

Mr. Darlington—Hurray! That's clever of the old boy. My first wife's father used to say I had no ideas at all. —Chicago News
