

MOLOKAI AND ITS IMPRESSIONS.

Scenes at the Settlement as Depicted by a Visitor

'Twas NOT A PLEASING SIGHT.

SOME OF THE HORRORS OF THE DREAD SCOURGE OF LEPROSY.

Peopel Existing in a Living Tomb to Whom Death Would be a Most Blessed Boon.

From the obscurity of their partial hiding he heard these words, the saddest, most dreadful, most utterly despairing of the human tongue:

"Come not near us—unclean, unclean." "The men flared their torches while they stared at each other.

"Unclean, unclean!" came from the corner again—a slow, tremulous wail, exceedingly sorrowful. With such a cry we can imagine a spirit vanishing from the gates of Paradise, looking back the while.

"She and Tirah were lepers." It was thus that General Lew Wallace, in his famous book, "Ben Hur," described the opening of the living tomb in which the mother and sister of his hero had been confined for eight years by order of the Roman Emperor.

And yet men told me on the trip to Molokai last Saturday that they looked upon lepers with complacency and could see nothing so very dreadful about it, excepting that it was hard for lepers to be separated from those near and dear to them.

Perhaps some men are thus constituted, but if so I cannot comprehend it. The sight at Molokai is the most awful, the most gruesome, the most soul-dispiriting of any I ever witnessed. And I have witnessed many horrible sights. I have seen men in the sight of those who could not help them. I have seen six young women, one after the other, leap from the sixth story of a burning building to the cruel pavement below, their battered and lifeless forms picked up by willing hands and carried out of the way of fire and falling walls. I have seen the killed and mangled and helpless of the wreck, some of them pined under car timbers, gasping in the last throes of the terrible agony of such a death. I have stood in the morgue and seen the wife and mother recognize the body of her son as disfigured.

"The body of her son as disfigured." "The father's reply: 'Just these three.'" "Brother Dutton, taking me through the Baldwin Home, showed me his treasures accumulated in the years of his life, his bath tub constructed for the brother-in-law, Father Damien, with whom Brother Dutton was a co-laborer for two years before the father's death. After the usual routine, he conducted me to the hospital ward, where the helpless lepers are. Of the eight or nine, four were blind, their eyes having been eaten out by the ravages of the disease. One's mind was a blank, the poor, simple fellow hurrahing at the top of his voice and crossing himself as he heard the sound of the brother's footsteps.

"One man's party striped, and the other gave me an opportunity to see the ravages of leprosy on other parts of the body, the face and hands and feet. Great sores covered the legs, particularly over the knees, being very much like those which had eaten away at the joints, but I shall not attempt to describe the sufferer some pain in the joints, but this nerve die with leprosy's advance."

"I shall not attempt to describe the grimness of the scenes in this ward for the helpless; I cannot. My pen fails me. It needs even more than a Dante to describe it as it appeared to me. It was the very acme of all that is awful, of all that is terrible in its offensiveness, of all that is horrifying in its loathsomeness," said to Brother Dutton as we emerged: "Dore should have seen this before he illustrated 'Dante's Inferno.' It is more horrible than even Dante could describe."

I had often thought I would like to visit the leper settlement at Molokai, but I would like to see what it was like and learn something of it. My wish has been gratified, and I wish it had not. The scene is one that will linger with me for years. To me it is inexpressibly sad, as well as terrible. It depicts an existence without help, without hope, without life; it portrays a living death. One can but away father, mother, wife or child into the silent watches of the tomb, and Time, Nature's great healer, finally sears the wound, but put a dear one away in this living death and nothing can save the wretched till death at last comes as a most welcome relief.

ing or striving. Do you wonder that she pines for her children, pines for her baby, believes herself not to be a leper, hoping against hope for the day when she may be pronounced clean and go forth to husband and family. The awfulness of that mother's woe, the striving to keep the mind from breaking for love of her children, for a sight of their childish faces, for a sound of their innocent voices.

Over in the Bishop Home is a little Norwegian girl 16 years old, who will never again see her four brothers and sisters. She is the child that the local papers told something about two years ago. Left an orphan at 14, she was sent to the Salvation Army Home in San Francisco. There it soon developed that she had leprosy, and she was returned to Hawaii to be sent to the settlement at Molokai. Is she unhappy? Does she pine for her family? No, not publicly, not ostensibly. Apparently she is happy, for she smiles as she talks to you, and does not seem to fully realize how the world looks upon the unclean. But study that smiling face closely, and underneath the smiles, almost ready to follow them, stand the tears of loneliness and longing—of a wish to go forth to a world to be free of leprosy, to be as other boys and girls she used to know, and of a wish to be in the world and of the world that was so bright and sunny and cheerful and pleasant in the long ago.

It has no brightness now. True, the sun shines just the same, the birds carol in the trees at Molokai, the roses in a cool, cruel, heartless world. A world of stony stare. A world with the life gone out, a world from which parting by means of death would be the sweetest boon that God could send. And oh, why don't he send it? Why delay so long the summons?

"A slow, tremulous wail, exceedingly sorrowful. That was the sound that greeted my ear as I came through the landing house and started to the visitors' building at Molokai. It was the wail of fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, who had come to the settlement by permission of the Board of Health to visit their relatives in the settlement. It was like a wail of a lost soul yearning for the gates of Paradise. This old world of ours is a Paradise itself, if we but think so and try to attain our lives to it. And then to be shut out from it all, to be set away from the haunts of men, to be set aside where the world and man shall know us no more forever, for fear of us only in bated breath, for the very mention of our name would conjure up some terrible, horrible thing that would pollute them, too."

Over at the Baldwin Home for Boys I met an old gentleman who was visiting his children. "This boy," pointing to a little fellow in khaki, about 10 years old; "this girl," a miss of about 15, who had come over from the Bishop Home with her father, "and that boy over there, sitting on the stone by the gate," pointing to a boy about 20 in the last stages of leprosy, "are the children of the leper who was with me in the States. His nostrils eaten away, his eyes almost gone, his lips protruding with the swelling and his fingers and toes all dropped away, while numerous sores covered his body. Could anything be more gruesome than this sight of three children, other no sympathy, telling of the scenes as they presented themselves to my eyes."

In talking with the father, I learned that he had five children—two other sons, now young men, who have no taint of leprosy so far as known. The wife and mother is dead, and she says the disease "Not that I know of." "The father's reply: 'Just these three.'" "Brother Dutton, taking me through the Baldwin Home, showed me his treasures accumulated in the years of his life, his bath tub constructed for the brother-in-law, Father Damien, with whom Brother Dutton was a co-laborer for two years before the father's death. After the usual routine, he conducted me to the hospital ward, where the helpless lepers are. Of the eight or nine, four were blind, their eyes having been eaten out by the ravages of the disease. MASTER OF SHERIDAN SOLELY RESPONSIBLE

The Court Appointed to Fix Responsibility to Fix Responsibility..

FILES ITS REPORT WITH MERCY.

PILOTS ARE NOT REQUIRED BY LAW TO DOCK SHIPS.

Examination of Wharf Indicates that Damage Was Done While Ship Was Going Full Speed.

The findings of the court of inquiry, appointed to investigate the cause of the accident and to fix the responsibility for the damage done to naval wharf No. 1, belonging to the Republic and Territory of Hawaii, by the United States Army transport Sheridan on June 9, 1900, were signed and submitted to Captain Merry of the United States Navy yesterday.

"The papers, at great length, narrate the proceedings and testimony on which the opinion is based. The opinion of the members, which is unopposed, is as follows: "The Hawaiian law does not require pilots to dock ships. Maritime usage and the regulations of the large mail steamship lines generally require that the master shall be on the bridge while the pilot is taking the ship into port."

"The responsibility of the master of a ship is not in any way relinquished to a pilot. Upon arriving within the harbor, it is the duty of the master to bring his ship to dock, and if he permits a pilot to dock his ship that does not make the pilot responsible nor release the master from any part of his responsibility."

"It appears that neither the pilot himself nor the Department of Interior of the Republic of Hawaii made any charge to the ship for the pilot's services, and that it has been the custom of the Hawaiian Government since the first American transport called at Honolulu, en route to Manila during the Spanish-American war, not to charge the United States pilot fees, and that this practice is still in vogue."

"Whether the failure to receive any compensation for the services rendered affects the status of the question is a legal point upon which the court does not care to pass."

"An examination of the wharf by the court indicates that the damage was done while the ship was going full speed astern. All the witnesses examined by the court agree that it was the second blow of the vessel, after the engine had been reversed, that did the damage to the wharf, and the master of the ship claims to have given the order for full speed astern."

"After a review of the law and the evidence and after having heard the individual opinions of the members of the court, it is held that the master of the United States Army transport Sheridan is solely responsible for the damage done by his ship to naval wharf No. 1 in Honolulu harbor on June 9, 1900."

"The court recommends that pilots in the employ of the Department of Public Works of the Territory of Hawaii take pains to inquire of masters of ships, upon boarding the same, as to the difficulties in handling such ships, and also that they keep themselves posted as to the facilities or lack of facilities upon the various docks for the handling of ships of the size of the United States Army transports."

"Judgment for the recovery of the Department of Public Works of the Territory of Hawaii against the United States Army transport Sheridan for the full cost of the repairs necessary to put said naval wharf No. 1 in as good condition as it was just prior to the time of the said accident."

COUNCIL MEETING MONDAY.

THE QUOTA OF LIQUOR LICENSES IS ISSUED.

New Regulations are to be Published Regarding the Disposal of Public Lands. At the council meeting held yesterday, Commissioner Brown brought up the matter of the Oiaa lands, which was discussed, and the following changes recommended: That the present shall begin improvements upon the land by end of the first year, and the limit of the amount preempted shall be fifty acres for one holder. Mr. Brown was directed to have these conditions published and to ask for bids for the sale of this land thereunder, as soon as convenient. This is forest land, which is owned by the government, and lies next to the valuable homestead tract. Mr. Lansing read an application from E. S. Cunha for a saloon on the south-east side of Maunakea street in Honolulu, but as it was outside of the liquor limits established by the council meeting, it was not granted. H. C. Vida's application for a license for a saloon on the corner of Smith and King streets was granted. The application of J. J. Sullivan for a saloon license for Hotel street, near Bethel, was also granted. An application from H. F. Wolters was refused, being outside of the retail liquor district, as laid down by the council meeting. The granting of the above two licenses makes up the quota of licenses as determined by the council meeting, which is still acting under the autocratic powers delegated to the former Minister of Interior. Under this ruling no further liquor licenses for Honolulu will be issued until after the first Territorial Legislature meets. F. L. Lister, who recently asked for a government patent to quiet title to land, again had his case called up, and it was referred to the Attorney-General and Commissioner of Lands for report. A petition was read from residents to open Kukui street from Fort street to Emma street. The matter was referred to Superintendent McCandless for further investigation and report. The Superintendent of Public Works submitted the matter of sidewalks around Thomas Square and suggested that a strip of grass be left between the sidewalk and the curbing. The council meeting recommended that this be done along Beretania and King streets, so that the members of the council could get an idea how the new departure would look.

A suit involving a vast sum of money will shortly be instituted in the courts of the Territory. Attorney F. J. Berry has been retained by the 30,000 Japanese, brought to the Territory by the planters under contract since the flag-went up on August 12, 1898. The action is to recover the amount paid by each laborer to the immigration companies for his return to Japan. Two dollars is, or was, taken out of each laborer's wages during the entire service of the contract. The sum involved in the coming suit will reach fully $400,000.

"I cannot say in what court I shall bring the action," said Berry to a Republican reporter last night. "The matter is plainly one for the Federal courts to pass upon, and it will go there eventually. I may bring action, as a preliminary move, in the Territorial courts. In my judgment, the Japanese have a strong case and can recover every dollar withheld from their wages."

"I shall bring the suit against the immigration companies, and probably shall make the plantations where these men have worked defendants in the action."

First Circuit Judge Humphreys yesterday issued the following rule: "All proceedings of any and every kind whatsoever and all advertisements, notices and publications of any matter or thing brought or pending in the Circuit Court of the First Circuit, shall, except in cases where the law otherwise directs, be brought, made, given or published—as the case may be—in the English language."

Judge Humphreys, in issuing a decree for the foreclosure of a mortgage in the case of W. O. Smith et al. vs. W. H. Winchester, says: "The mortgage provides for a counsel's fee upon foreclosure. Mr. W. O. Smith, appearing as counsel, asks for a fee of $50. I allow that sum, and as I do not believe in 'muzzling' the ox which treads out the corn, would have allowed a much larger fee had it been requested. This statement is made so that the order of the court fixing $50 as counsel's fee in an equity matter involving upwards of $2,400, may not be cited as a precedent."

J. A. Thompson is appointed commissioner to execute the decree. Judge Humphreys, at the request of Robert Davis King, William H. King, Samuel W. King, Daniel King and Helen King, minors, has appointed W. O. Smith their guardian. P. C. Jones has qualified as surety on his bond for $7,500. L. A. Thurston and the law firm of Robertson & Wilder is the latest monopoly formed in Honolulu. These gentlemen have a monopoly in filling annuities of insurance companies in cases brought against the corporations by Chinese merchants to recover insurance money on property destroyed in the great Chinatown blaze.

"We have filed sixty-two answers to suits," said Mr. Robertson yesterday to a Republican reporter. "Yes, it does look as if we had a monopoly. But the rest of the bar is on the other side."

The bond of Fred Wundenberg as trustee for Susan F. Cartwright and Ruth and Mary Muriel Cartwright has been approved by Judge Humphreys. It is for $25,000. J. Alfred Magoon qualified as surety.

"Do you know Kealia?" asked Attorney Gear in a suave voice that would cause compassion to flow at a funeral. "How long?" "For the last ten years." "What does he do?" "Sometimes he's a sailor and sometimes he's a laborer."

"Is he the father of Malaka?" "He is the father of Malaka." "This was said so decisively that the canvases of the dead jurists on the wall rattled in their frames."

Mrs. Murray, in answer to the seductive interrogations of Attorney Gear, said more. She affirmed with an affirmation that completely affirmed that Kuehu not only manufactured swipes for a living, but he drank it in order to prevent living. He lived fifty yards away from their house on swipes and a reputation that was blasted by traveling that road beset by so many picturesque fascinations in Honolulu.

"Why do you want to adopt Malaka?" asked Attorney Gear. "To give the child a home; a better home than she can ever have with Kuehu. I am a cousin of her late mother. I love the little girl, and a fortunate fate cascaded down Mrs. Murray's cheek."

Yesterday Judge Humphreys rendered a decision in the case. The proof adduced, in the opinion of the court, did not sustain the allegations in the bill. The court ordered that the bill be dismissed. Davis & Gear for complainants; J. T. De Bolt for respondent. Delegates Will Celebrate. The Democrats have awakened from their lethargy. They are now talking about giving a man to the returning delegates from Kansas City. C. J. McCarthy will kill those two roosters sent to him from Kauai that won't crow.

OVER FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Big Suit to be Brought in Federal Court.

PLANTERS MAY BE DEFENDANTS.

Judge Humphreys' Disbelief in Muzzling the Ox that Treads Out the Corn—Robertson's Monopoly.

A suit involving a vast sum of money will shortly be instituted in the courts of the Territory. Attorney F. J. Berry has been retained by the 30,000 Japanese, brought to the Territory by the planters under contract since the flag-went up on August 12, 1898.

cold, and straightaway he began to shiver and his teeth to chatter. Then he was told it was warm; it was very warm, and he went through all the motions of cooling off. It was not suggested to him to break out into a running perspiration, however, and so he did not. He was taken into an orchard and made to eat a paper flower under the impression that it was a luscious mango. Had he been a goat he would probably have been allowed to finish the artificial rose, but he was not and the flower was taken away from him.

All the time the test was going on the operator, a charming young lady, who any young man would be pleased to let hypnotize him, went through many graceful gestures. She was continually casting the influence from her finger tips over the subject. He was finally brought out of his trance and the next subject introduced.

Mr. McLaughlin took the new subject in hand. He was a young man who stuttered. McLaughlin undertook to rectify the imperfection in the speech. The subject stated that he wished to be cured and was ready and willing to be hypnotized. From the way the operator went at his man it was evident he was no novice at the business. He first squared the young man up in his chair and then stood in front of him. He fixed his attention with a steady gaze and transfixed him with a glance. He shot magnetism at him by handfuls. The professor was agile, and the gymnastic evolutions he went through in getting the subject chock full of the power were wonderful to behold.

The operator's eyes were bright; their gaze was concentrated on the subject. The operator was on a rigid expression, just like he had run up against his bill for a cup of tea and some toast at a King-street restaurant. His body swayed, and he was around all sides of the subject. He drew away from the young man who stuttered, all the time keeping his eyes riveted on him. He looked as if he was going to tear him to pieces. He appeared to be reaching to the floor to get extra magnetism to throw at the young man, and went through the motions of loading him up with great gaubs of the electric fluid.

When the subject was thoroughly under the influence the professor began talking to him. He placed his head close to the subject's stomach and fired questions at him, which were answered by the subject without stuttering. Then the professor made the startling announcement that the reason he talked to the young man's stomach was because the young man was dead for the time being and the only way he could hear was through his stomach. It was not stated whether the subject saw through his stomach. Questions were put to the subject by some of the audience, and they were answered without a stutter. He was brought to a normal state after the magnetism had all been withdrawn, and when he recovered told how it felt.

Several other tests were made, which were as satisfactory as the two principal ones. One of the attempts, however, which was made on a young lady subject, failed, because she insisted on giggling, and the operator said she would not concentrate her mind. The evening's entertainment was concluded by McLaughlin hypnotizing two subjects at the same time. He stated, in answer to inquiries, that the reason he went through the motions was to gather magnetism. He said that when he felt himself growing empty he could gather vast quantities of it by scooping it up from the floor or a wall, or by waving his hands about.

Professor McLaughlin is quite proud of his pupils and thinks that in a short time Mr. and Miss Davis will become very clever operators. He has been at the business about eight years.

Stevenson's Samoan Grave.

To many English people—to the majority, one may almost say—the cessation of Upolu to the Germans was regrettable chiefly because it was the place where Robert Louis Stevenson spent the last years of his life, writes the London correspondent of the Brisbane Courier. He rendered no small service in creating respect for the British among the natives and where in his end his remains were laid in accordance with his own previously expressed desire. It is, therefore, satisfactory to be now assured that the Germans intend to respect this sentimental interest of the English in the island.

"Be so good as to tell Mrs. Stevenson," said Count Von Bulow to Mr. J. G. Leigh, the other day, "that there is no spot in Samoa which will be more treasured than the grave of her noble and distinguished husband. He was at times a stern critic, but we always honored him, and we feel no shame to-day in admitting that much that he wrote and said may have been well deserved."

Later on he added: "I am sure that I speak for His Majesty the Emperor when I say that the grave on Vaea shall ever be honored as would be the resting place of one of Germany's most distinguished dead."

A Fifteen Thousand Dinner.

LONDON, July 11.—The most lavish entertainment of last week was Mrs. Bischoffsheim's dinner party for the Prince of Wales Wednesday. The papers announce that it cost over $15,000. It began with a dinner, which was not over until 11, and ended with a supper. The first test was made by Miss Davis as operator and a young man as subject, who had been under the influence several times before and was what would be called a good subject. He was first made to close his eyes, and when told he could not open them found that the statement was true. Try as he would, the eyelids remained closed. He was, by suggestion, made powerless to rise or to move his arms. It was suggested to him that he was out riding with a charming young lady, and when the suggestion was made that they were in a dark place on the road the subject went through the motions of doing what any young man, under ordinary circumstances, would do. He put his arm gently around a chair placed next to him and snuggled up close, while a wistful expression spread over his features. After he had embraced the chair for awhile he was told the weather was extremely cold, and straightaway he began to shiver and his teeth to chatter. Then he was told it was warm; it was very warm, and he went through all the motions of cooling off. It was not suggested to him to break out into a running perspiration, however, and so he did not. He was taken into an orchard and made to eat a paper flower under the impression that it was a luscious mango. Had he been a goat he would probably have been allowed to finish the artificial rose, but he was not and the flower was taken away from him.

Death in Alcohol.

Louis and Kekumu, two Hawaiians, formerly employed on the water front, on Saturday procured some methylated spirits, then went to the home of Louis, the Duke of York and Prince Christian, with their hostess and aer draught, occupied the center seats in the front row. "It goes without saying that the ride to the volcano was full of interest, and we went between steamers, taking plenty of time, but abler pens than mine have dwelt on the grandeur of the spectacles there presented, and I will spare the readers of The Republican the ride there all the time discloses the great possibilities awaiting the development of the resources of the country, and the eye of the prophet can easily picture the island teeming with sugar plantations and kindred industries and Hilo a great commercial center. The place has two very creditable weekly newspapers, managed by enterprising gentlemen, and we can be sure the Tribune and Herald will be heard from in the time and in no uncertain death resulted from alcoholism." THE FUTURE OF HILO AND OF THE ISLAND.

Hawaii Regarded as Most Promising Field for Effort.

VIEWS OF AN EASTERN EDITOR.

RESIDENTS DO NOT VALUE THE MANY NATURAL ATTRACTONS.

Beauties and Wonders of Nature that Should be Made More Widely Known to the World.

S. W. Nichols, editor of the Jacksonville (Ill.) Daily Journal, who is spending a vacation time in Hawaii, has just returned from a fortnight's visit to the island of Hawaii, making its chief port, Hilo, his base of operations. Mr. Nichols was much impressed with Hilo and the chief island of the group. He foresees great things for both.

"Understand, of course," he said to a Republican reporter yesterday morning, "that what I say is with becoming modesty, for a stay of two weeks on the islands doesn't give one an opportunity to learn it all, by any means. It may have been accidental, but it appeared to me before I went to Hilo that the good people of Honolulu seemed to speak rather disparagingly of the second place in the islands and to make rather light of the attractions of Hawaii. In fact, if I had listened to some of the advice I received I should hardly have gone to see the volcano at all, and I know of some who were dissuaded. Of course, this may have been an experience peculiar to myself, for the people of the great metropolis can well afford to be magnanimous toward the rest of the islands. The trip down is full of interest, and to one at all acquainted with the history of this part of the world is full of suggestion. Molokai, with its flourishing town on one side and suggestion of the leper settlement on the other; the grand lagoon of Maui, with the greatest extinct volcano in the world, suggesting what mighty convulsions took place in ages gone by; the various landing places, with the primitive methods of transferring passengers and freight, all awaken deep interest in the tourist making the trip for the first time, while the best is left for the last, for as the boat skirts the shores of Hawaii, many miles before reaching Hilo, the high bluffs covered with a lovely carpet of green reaching down to the water's edge and embellished here and there with beautiful waterfalls all remind one of the evergreen hills on the blissful shores of the better land."

"Of course, Hilo has a primitive appearance, but when the facts of its history are taken into account it has a remarkable growth and doubtless a prosperous future awaits it. I was delighted with the cordial hospitality and uniform courtesy of the people of that faraway place. Every person to whom I addressed a word seemed anxious to do all possible for me. Especially are my thanks due Mr. Charles Parsons and Judge Lipman for valuable information and kindly suggestions regarding the islands, its attractions, history and other things known best to them. Rev. R. K. Baptist, M. G. Santos and Aug. Gomes, former residents of Illinois, were most attentive, also, but aside from a very few who have made a remarkable growth and doubtless a prosperous future awaits it. THE HONOLULU REPUBLICAN. Published Every Morning Except Monday by the Robt. Grievy Publishing Company, Limited. EDWIN S. GILL, EDITOR. TELEPHONES: Business Office, 475; Editorial Rooms, 123. Entered at the Post Office at Honolulu, H. I., as second-class mail. The boxer uprising doesn't seem to be a pipe dream, but the "layout" must be smashed. There is reason for thinking that the head of the Empress Dowager is longer than her feet, which are said to measure only four inches.

The shoe output of New Hampshire last year was valued at nearly $23,000,000. This helped to put the State on a good business footing, as it were.

According to the figuring of the political managers, there are no doubtful States this year. But "the eagle bird" still shrieks from every platform.

This year's convention of the Ohio Democrats was the smallest for the past quarter of a century. Yet, Chairman Jones predicts Democratic success in Ohio this year.

The Boer war has dwindled down to such insignificance that it looks as though the time had come for Lord Roberts to return to England, if he expects to have a really enthusiastic reception home.

A fortune of three million dollars has just been left to Miss Erna Ide of Milwaukee by a rich merchant of Berlin, whom she had nursed to health. Be a bright ide for some poor youth to shine up to this fair Milwaukeean.

Washington exercised the veto power twice, Monday but one time, Lincoln three times and McKinley four times. Tolerance and confidence in the coordinate branches of the Government have characterized the actions of our greatest Presidents.

The press of the Eastern portion of the United States is clamoring for the return home of all foreign missionaries to devote themselves to the Christian fruit farmers, "who pack peaches for market with the rotten spots down."

When the German eagles get ready to attack the Chinese dragon, then will come the tug-of-war in China, for the German troops carry imperial orders not to rest until those eagles have vanquished the monstrous winged serpent which the Celestials have adopted as their war god.

Eight thousand three hundred and thirty-two men have left the Australian shores, including New Zealand and Tasmania, to serve in South Africa. The British Australasian of May 17 says: "Who would have thought a few years ago of Australasia raising an army of 8000 men for service beyond her shores?"

Even so early in the season there are said to be more than three thousand penniless men at Cape Nome. The secret agents of the Government evidently foresee a serious time in Alaska next fall, and the administration is considering the advisability of sending vessels North later on to bring home the stranded gold hunters.

The New Orleans Picayune suggests that "governments should have the appointing of the missionaries when the governments are expected to fight the battles they instigate." Not a bad idea; a bureau of missionary effort might be erected in the Department of State. Why should the "ministers" be made to suffer for the aggressions of the missionaries?

The Crescent Ice Company of New Orleans publishes the following advertisement in the local papers: "If you pay more than our present price for ice you pay too much, viz.: 100 pounds, 25c; 50 pounds, 15c; 25 pounds, 10c. These prices hold for the entire summer." Lucky housekeepers of New Orleans. And then, too, they get ten pounds and not six when they pay for ten pounds a day. There is neither morality nor justice in the ice company making consumers stand wastage.

Some Political Pointers. Says the Hilo Tribune: "There is little agitation in political circles at present, and though no doubt the pipes are being laid, there is little open electioneering. It is currently reported that John Brown will run for the lower house on the Independent Democratic ticket, from Hilo, and there is little doubt that he will pull the solid Hawaiian vote. A. B. Loebenstein will probably be a candidate for the upper house, and he has assurances of backing in influential quarters, and is perhaps the only haole who can depend upon the Hawaiians quite generally for support. In Kau his name also stood at the head of a list of four decided upon at a mass meeting as the men who should be chosen for the Senate from this island."

vertiser in setting forth reasons why municipal government for Honolulu and Hilo should not be granted. How do you like that, merchants and business men of Honolulu, with your present high taxes? Don't you think it would be lovely to go on paying the major part of the cost of public improvements for all parts of the Territory to the detriment of the pressing needs of the municipality?

The Tacoma Ledger makes the following pertinent comment on the presence of delegates from Hawaii at the Democratic National Convention: "Delegates from Hawaii sat in the Republican National Convention and others will attend the Democratic convention. The Hawaiians were warmly welcomed at Philadelphia, but if the Democrats are consistent they will receive the cold shoulder at Kansas City. These delegates from our recent acquisition represent expansion, which is so utterly opposed by Bryan Democrats, although all expansion of territory previous to that which acquired Hawaii came under Democratic administrations. The Democratic policy was reversed when Grover Cleveland hauled down the American flag in Honolulu. Just how the Democratic anti-expansionists will receive the Hawaiians remains to be seen. These delegates are Democrats because President Cleveland approved of a monarchy and did his best to maintain it, and these views are also out of joint with those of the anti-imperialists who will gather at the Bryan convention."

AN IMPOTENT EXCUSE.

"If we had the evidence we would proceed in the case," said High Sheriff Brown to a Republican reporter Friday night, in explaining his failure to make any move towards prohibiting the illegal sale of liquors in the Grill restaurant on King street. Then the High Sheriff went on to say: "The way in which liquor is furnished patrons of the Grill I do not believe constitutes a sale, the liquor being purchased at a regularly licensed saloon."

We would like to ask you, Mr. High Sheriff, is it a part of your duty to interpret the law or is that a matter for the courts? Does the license for the saloon that the Grill secures its liquors from say that it may sell liquor at two places in the city, or does it specifically name the premises where liquors may be sold as the law requires that all licenses shall do?

And, too, Mr. High Sheriff, does the license for this particular saloon say that the proprietor of it shall have the privilege of selling liquors on Sunday or between the hours of 11:30 p. m. and 5:30 a. m.? Is it, then, so very difficult for you to secure evidence of the fact that the Grill sells liquors to its customers on Sundays and between midnight and 5 o'clock in the morning? If so, then you are utterly unfit to be an officer of the law, for the Republic can have no trouble in securing evidence to this effect.

Come, now, Mr. High Sheriff, why don't you honestly declare that this is a case of a man with a pull, who can violate the law as he pleases, and if the Republican or anyone else who believes the law should be honestly enforced for all alike don't like it, "they can be d—d," as someone is reported to have said.

HOW THEY LOVE HAWAIIANS.

An idea of the love of the Democrats of the mainland for the Hawaiians can be gleaned from the following in the New York Herald of July 7. In describing the insertion of the free-silver plank in the Democratic platform, the Herald said:

"Mr. Baughman of Maryland, who was one of the most efficient leaders of the fight against 16 to 1, was particularly exasperated by the action of the Hawaiian delegate. He had been with Mr. Wise during much of the night and had understood that he was one of the firmest of the conservative men. "It was a great fight," said Mr. Baughman, "and we were beaten by a Hawaiian. Just think of it! By a Hawaiian!"

"And we were beaten by a Hawaiian! Just think of it! By a Hawaiian!" declared Mr. Baughman, and he but echoed the sentiments of hundreds of Eastern delegates to the convention. Oh, yes; the Democrats just love the Hawaiians—in a horn.

The Trouble With China.

(From the New Orleans Picayune.) If the Chinese were an expansive people, they would send their Confucius missionaries to this country to make converts and back them up with guns. But for centuries they have developed the dull and heathenish habits of minding their own business.

MICROSCOPIC LIFE OF PONDS AND DITCHES.

Interesting Scientific Field is Pointed Out.

A PAPER READ BY DR. SLOGGETT.

SOME ACCOUNT OF THE MINUTE FORMS OF LIFE.

How the Student With Hand Lens or Microscope Can Seek Pleasure and Instruction Out of Doors.

The following abstract includes portions of the very interesting paper read before the Teachers' Normal Association, held in Honolulu. The paper was prepared at the request of Professor Wood by Dr. Sloggett, president of the Hawaiian Microscopical Society, and was read at the High School on the 16th inst.

"It may be premised that in the marshes and low districts around this city there are miles of ditches which have no perceptible current, only varying in height during wet and dry seasons, or in the salt marshes varying slightly under the influence of the tides, ditches in which vegetation appears to run wild, three-fourths of the surface being covered with the leaves of aquatic plants, or a green scum, and whose dark waters impregnated with the decay of plants, have sometimes an unmistakable odor. Such ditches swarm with living creatures too numerous but for the briefest notice in a short paper such as this; again, there are ponds and reservoirs, fish ponds, duck ponds, horse ponds, rice fields and the much in evidence taro patch.

"It is my object to introduce to your notice a number of very minute organized beings, not necessarily requiring a high power microscope to examine them, but that can be seen with an ordinary pocket lens, creatures whose whole world is a little puddle of water, who are born and die and leave behind them a progeny like themselves, and yet their place in creation may be represented by the punctuation point at the end of this sentence.

"Now, it is impossible for me to describe in the limits of this paper what objects of interest would be found even in a single dip into any semi-stagnant or still water in the environs of this city. I cannot even begin to name them, so numerous are they, but among the beautiful water lilies and lotuses and the bumble duckweeds, as well as among the large class of fresh-water algae, and attached to their leaves and stems the minute forms of animal and vegetable life will be found to swarm.

"The algae, known as cladophora and oscillaria, are to be found in great variety and beauty, and that most interesting object of pond life, the volvox, is quite plentiful here. Diatoms and desmids of rare form and startling beauty can be found in every taro patch. Diatoms, as you all, I expect, know, being minute plants, in life, moving freely by a swimming movement, or fixed to plants, and having as a characteristic feature an almost indestructible skeleton of the same substance as glass; that is to say, of silica, or flint—two thin plates of flint applied to each other by their surfaces and united by their marginal band. This is the type of structure in the diatom skeleton. The endochrome, or vital portion, is colored, but when the plant is dead and the endochrome is dissolved the skeleton still remains, indestructible as flint. Century after century these delicate skeletons remain, until they accumulate and form immense beds, consisting of the skeletons of myriads of diatoms. This is a fact that Richmond, in Virginia, is built on a stratum of diatomaceous remains, sometimes eighteen feet in thickness. There are other large tracts of fossilized diatomiae found all over the world.

"Foraminifera, which swarm in these tropical seas, are among the simplest of all animal life, and their carbonate of lime skeletons are the most important factor in the formation of limestone rock, and chalk also is made up almost wholly of them, the microscope revealing this to us. These foraminifera can be found all round these islands, as well as in the ditches of the salt marshes, and will well repay for examination in the beauty of their form. The gray ooze or mud of the great ocean bottoms is composed largely of the skeletons of these foraminifera, and soundings of the great depths of the Atlantic, made during the voyage of the Challenger, in which now famous expedition I had the honor of serving as a lieutenant, showed that the ocean bottom, at the greatest depths, was covered with a thick and ever-increasing deposit of these dead foraminiferae.

"From what I have said, therefore, the ponds and ditches around Honolulu are a happy hunting ground for diatoms, and many new and beautiful varieties are awaiting the searcher in this field. The movements of the diatoms excited the wonder and curiosity of the earliest observers, and was a great argument in favor of their animal nature. However, we now know that they are aquatic plants, classed as unicellular algae, and in life usually colored a pale golden brown.

"Those who search in this field will also be rewarded by finding numbers of the great family of desmids, also algae of one cell, green in color and in such numbers as often to give a green tint to the water or mud when most prolific, and when found coating the bottom of a pool with a green stratum. They may be taken up with a spoon and placed in a wide-mouthed bottle, placing the bottle in the light, the sediment will sink to the bottom and the desmids rise to the light gradually, and then can be separated by decanting. If poured into a white soup plate the floating desmids may be taken out on the tip of a camel's hair pencil with the aid of a pocket lens, and thus the largest specimens may be isolated. In order to see them well, a microscope with an inch objective, or even a higher power, will be necessary.

"Now, though the desmids and diatoms look very much alike in many of the varieties, the desmids have no flint-like skeleton to leave behind them when they die as an almost imperishable record to mark where they have existed, as is the case with the diatoms. Now, moreover, to the student commencing to work with the microscope, either among the ponds and ditches or in any line he may feel an inclination for, it is, I am sure, better to take up some definite line and master it as far as possible, rather than to aimlessly wander among the immense varieties of minute animal and vegetable life, which he will find if he hunts in this field. To such a searcher, I would say, take up the study of the diatoms and you will derive endless pleasure and profit therefrom.

"There is an old story of the Greeks which narrates that there was a celebrated monster, to which the name of hydra was given, which infested the neighborhood of Lake Lerna. It had a hundred heads, according to Diodorus, and as soon as one was cut off, two immediately grew up, unless the wound was cauterized. It was one of the labors of Hercules to destroy this monster, which he accomplished. The modern hydra obtained its name from this fable, and at one time its story created as much excitement in the scientific world as that of the monster hydra could have done among the Greeks.

"The little animals to which this name applies are solely the inhabitants of fresh water and common enough in ponds and ditches adherent to aquatic plants. By placing portions of these plants in a vessel of water exposed to the light, it is probable that in half an hour we can see the hydra in his native element. No pocket lens will be required to find it, since it sometimes attains nearly an inch in length, but as the species most likely to be observed at first, is a green one, nearly the color of the plants to which it is attached, some little care will be required in looking for it, until its forms have become familiar. This little animal and all its operations may be watched in a glass vessel with the unaided eye.

"The hydra is mostly celebrated for its marvelous powers of reproduction. This is usually by budding from any part of the body, except the tentacles. A little tubercle rises on the body of the parent. This enlarges every hour, and ultimately tentacles appear at the apex, and no sooner are the young thus furnished than they commence catching prey on their own account whilst one or often may be seen the young one and often may be seen the young one and the old one struggling for and gorging different ends of the same worm together. Again, if the body is halved or cut into four or eight pieces, or even minced into forty, each piece in a short time grows into a perfect hydra. If the tentacles—the organs with which their existence might seem to depend—are cut away, they are reproduced, and the lopped off parts remain not long without a new body. You may even split the animal up and lay it out flat, like a membrane, with impunity—nay, it may be turned inside out—so that the stomach surface shall become the epidermis, and yet it will continue to live and enjoy itself.

"Time will only allow me to briefly touch on one other of these most interesting forms of life found in our ponds and waterways, namely the rotifers. The older naturalists recognized among aquatic animals a group of singular creatures, which appeared to them to differ from all others in bearing about their heads or upper extremities certain organs, constantly in motion, and resembling wheels. These they called 'wheel animalcules.' The modern name, rotifers, perpetuates the old romance of wheel bearers, and yet the organs are not wheels, but simply expanded discs, varying in form according to species, and having the margin fringed with one or more rows of delicate hairs, which by their continual and successive motion round the disc certainly had the appearance of rapidly revolving wheels. The concept is dead, but we have as inhabitants of ponds and ditches, as well as of slow-running streams and a few marine forms, a great number and variety of rotifers, which seem to bear a wheel on their heads. Water spiders, mites and water bears will be found in endless variety and strange form. The water flea, so called because of their brisk, jerking motions, almost leaping in the water, being in reality a group of crustaceans allied to shrimps and lobsters, but differing in size, the very largest not exceeding a fifth of an inch. Their scientific name is Daphnia, first called Daphne, probably because in classic story Daphne was a daughter of the River Peneus, albeit the water fleas are rather the daughters of the horse pond than the river. They are only to be found in fresh water, and oftentimes where there is much duck weed; others in ponds where cattle come to drink. In such places they may be found in myriads nearly all the year round, and as they are often of a red or ruddy color, they have been said to have tinged the water with the hue of blood.

"Any person who takes an interest in this subject will sooner or later obtain a microscope for him or herself, and the use of this marvelous instrument is not only the addition of new eyes, but an introduction to a new world. What better encouragement and direction, then, can possibly be given to the exercise of the observing powers of a child than to habituate him to the employment of this instrument upon the subjects which immediately surround him, and then teach him to search out novelties among those less immediately accessible. The more we limit the natural exercise of these powers the more we take him from the fields and woods, from river side and sea shore and shut him up in close schoolrooms and narrow playgrounds, limiting his attention to abstractions and cutting him off, even in his hours of play, from those sights and sounds of nature which are the appointed food of the youthful spirit, the more does it seem important that he should in some way be brought into contact with her, and that he should have his thoughts sometimes turned from the pages of books to those of creation and from the teachings of man to those of God."

WAILUKU MEN TO HAVE PLEASURE CRAFT.

Two Ships Loading With Sugar—Dance in Honor of Miss Lowrie.

(Special Correspondence of The Republican.) WAILUKU, July 21.—A company is being organized in Kahului for the purpose of purchasing a craft for deep-water sailing. It is proposed to obtain from the Coast a single-sticker of from 35 to 40 feet in length, fitted up as a pleasure craft and up to date in all respects. Already a number of applications from Wailuku aquatic men have been received by the originator of the scheme, who has sent to San Francisco for plans and specifications. The idea is viewed with delight by almost all the "boys," and the possession of such a craft will provide much-needed recreation for those whose tendencies run to water.

A delightful dance was given at Spreckelsville last night by Mr. and Mrs. Lowrie, in honor of their daughter, Clara, who leaves shortly for the Coast, where she will resume her studies. A large number of friends responded to the invitation and boarded a special train, which left Wailuku and ran through to Paia and thence to Spreckelsville.

The only vessels in port at this writing are the ship Emily Reed, Captain G. A. Baker, loading sugar for San Francisco, and the ship Bangalore, Captain Blanchard, loading sugar for Philadelphia.

The Robert Searles sailed in ballast for the Sound yesterday, and the Lurline, also in ballast, this afternoon for San Francisco.

STEVENSON A HAS-BEEN.

That's What An Illinois Neighbor Says of Him.

"The nomination of Adlai E. Stevenson for running mate with Mr. Bryan will cause surprise in many circles where the gentleman is best known, said S. W. Nichols, editor of the Jacksonville (Ill.) Daily Journal, on his return from Hilo this morning. "In the first place, anything connected with the late administration of Cleveland has no very savory odor in the nostrils of the average free-silver Democrat. Then, too, Mr. Stevenson is well along in years and comes perilously near being one of the 'has-beens,' a sort of back number. I live within eighty miles of his home in Bloomington, Ill., and since his retirement from the Vice-Presidency he has very seldom been heard from. It would certainly seem to an unprejudiced observer that the man most wanted for the nomination, the one who could add most strength to the ticket in the East didn't care to be sacrificed. It will also be interesting to see how he gets along with the labor unions, as he has had some experience in that line which has not added to his popularity. His nomination is on a par with that of Al Schuler of Illinois for Governor. The Democrats all over the State wanted, and even demanded Carter Harrison, Mayor of Chicago, but he, too, had something of which he felt reasonably certain—another term of the office he now holds—and he, too, refused to let the State convention be stampeded for him, much as the leaders and rank and file desired it."

GROWING HILO.

Improvements Made in Hawaii's Metropolis in Six Years. Mrs. A. V. Inman has returned to town after a four-weeks' visit to Hilo. Prior to her trip she hadn't been in Hilo for six years. Mrs. Inman says she was greatly surprised in the many improvements made in the metropolis of Hawaii in six years. The town now has electric lights, a railroad, handsome business blocks and good roads.

AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE.

At last the tide seems to have turned in favor of the American merchant marine. From the report of the Commissioner of Navigation dealing with the condition of the American merchant marine during the fiscal year ending June 30 last, we learn that a substantial addition has been made.

marine during the last four decades:

Table with columns: Year, Tonnage, etc. for 1861, 1871, 1881, 1891.

The complete figures for 1900 are not at hand, but from the partial report of the Commissioner of Navigation, above referred to, we learn that during the year ending June 30, 1900, the total tonnage of American vessels officially registered amounted to 417,034 gross tons.

The most important additions to the marine during the year have been the large steel vessels built for trading on the Great Lakes. They include the James J. Hill, 6925 gross tons, the largest merchant vessel ever built in the United States.

THE KAISER'S SHIP.

The German warship Geier is expected to-day from San Francisco. She is on her way to the Orient, and will take coal at this port.

IT WAS AWARDED TO MIDSHIPMAN WARRIMOO LUCAS.

How he Gained the Distinguished Honor

The Hero, Cousin to the Lucas Brothers. On the termination of the Crimean war a new naval and military decoration, known as the Victoria Cross, was created by Great Britain.

ing the inscription: "For Valor." The cross is suspended from the left breast by a blue ribbon for the navy and a red for the army.

The cross measures one inch and two-fifths square. The actual weight of the medal is 434 grains, just three and one-half grains less than an ounce.

In England it is illegal for a pawnbroker to accept the Victoria Cross as a pledge under any circumstances.

On June 21, 1854, Midshipman Lucas was aboard H. M. S. Hecla. During the bombardment of a Russian fort, smoking, blazing shell fell on the forward deck of the Hecla.

George Lucas, father of these gentlemen, was born in Ireland. His brother, John, was father of Captain Lucas, the first man to receive the Victoria Cross.

THEY WANT HAWAIIAN TRADE.

EVIDENT COMPETITION BETWEEN SEATTLE AND SAN FRANCISCO.

Seven Hundred Thousand Brick Coming by Ship Troquois for Rapid Transit Co.

The estimation in which the trade of the Territory of Hawaii is held along the Pacific Coast is very clearly shown by the following, published in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer of June 27th: "The first consignment of Seattle brick in Honolulu goes as part of the cargo of the American ship Troquois, now loading at this port.

"Seven hundred thousand brick of local manufacture, are being taken by the Troquois to be used in the construction of a power house for a street railway company at Honolulu. The placing of the order for brick in Seattle recently provoked the Building Review, of San Francisco, to remark:

"We fail to see why orders should be sent a thousand miles north of this city to furnish brick for the Sandwich Islands. Our facilities for making brick in the near neighborhood are such that capitalists should embrace the opportunity and resolve that this section shall and must control, as far as possible, every particle of trade connected with the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands. It seems that a goodly portion of the trade that naturally belongs to this port is being absorbed by the more enterprising merchants down in the southern part of our own state, and those in the two grand states immediately north of California."

"Referring to the order and to the comment thereupon, Secretary E. A. Strout, of the Seattle Brick Exchange yesterday said:

"This will be the first shipment of brick from Seattle to Honolulu, but it is certain not to be the last. In fact, the prospects are such as to warrant the statement that regular shipments will be made from now on. The first order was placed in Seattle after interested parties had made a careful examination of the brick manufactured here and had become satisfied both as to the quality and the price. California yards tried hard to secure the order and considerable credit is due the Seattle Brick Exchange for its successful effort to meet the southern competition. The brick were sold at the regular price charged at the kilns here—$8 per thousand—which is about the same as the price fixed in San Francisco.

"Seattle's superior facilities for loading turned the scale in our favor. In addition to the brick, the Troquois is taking a general cargo of building material and machinery, mostly of local production, for use in street railway construction in Honolulu.

"The brick yards of Seattle, embraced in the exchange, are now making over three million of brick every month. The facilities are such that the output can be increased at any time so that we are in a position to fill all orders of any size for local and export trade.

"The one thing that would give Seattle absolute control of the Hawaiian trade," added Mr. Strout, "is the location here of a sugar refinery. The chief present drawback is the fact that we offer no local market for the principal product of the islands. Hence, while we can send from here vessels laden with everything they need, there is seldom a chance for a return cargo. We are sending to Honolulu coal, lime, lumber, brick and other of our native products and with our railway advantages, could handle the whole export trade to the islands; but we cannot at present receive their sugar, which is sent to California ports. A local refinery would at once assure Seattle's supremacy in the island trade."

Election Bets.

Sixteen to one is not the prevailing price offered in Honolulu that McKinley will sweep the field at the coming election. Two to one is about the thing. Two to one on hats, caps, boots and shoes, etc.

SACRAMENTO STREET FAIR.

A Honoluluans Wants a Similar Spectacle in this City.

"When I was in Sacramento," said R. C. Gere, who has recently returned from the coast, to a Republican reporter yesterday, "I attended a gorgeous spectacle. It was the street fair. I never expect to see such a sight again. The capital city of California was a blaze of light. Nearly every residence in town was illuminated together with its grounds. There were hundreds of variegated incandescent lights in the trees and shrubbery. There were marvelous conceptions of electric light designs. Figures and mottoes confronted the spectators on every side. No carriages were allowed on the principal streets, they being given over entirely to pedestrians.

"I was thinking when I saw the spectacular effects why Honolulu could not have a street fair. It would be a great thing for the town."

Good Medicine for Children

If you have a baby in the house you will wish to know the best way to check any unusual looseness of the bowels, or diarrhoea so common to small children. O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind., who has an 11-months-old child, says: "Through the month of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach. His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water, and he got better at once." For sale by all dealers and druggists. HILO NEWS.

Condensation of Happenings in the Rainy City.

Opportunity will be afforded, says the Tribune, in the near future, for the dwellers of the Queen City and adjacent districts to listen to the "silver tongues of General Robert Wilcox, the hero of many a defeat. Major Kaula and Adjutant Kalanokalani, who comprise the triumvirate which is supposed to have the fate of the Hawaiian voters in their hands. They have just returned from a Kauai trip and will probably visit Hawaii before canvassing Maui.

It has been learned through a gentleman interested in Olaa real estate that it is proposed among the land holders of the upper part of the district to make arrangements with the Hilo Railroad for transporting their cane from twenty-three miles and below down to the Olaa Plantation Mill at nine miles, or if satisfactory arrangements cannot be made with that mill, to Hilo and one of the mills here.

C. H. Brown who came up on the Kinau reports that Mr. Busch who is authorized to start another newspaper and job printing establishment in Hilo, has already secured a large plant, in Honolulu, instead of on the Coast, and will send the same down by a schooner in the near future. Mr. Busch says he will issue an eight page semi-weekly and it will be independently Democratic in politics.

The Japanese charged with the murder of a compatriot at Laupahoehoe has been found guilty and sentenced to be hung. This, notwithstanding the fact that the Grand Jury hardly found evidence enough to hold him for trial. The condemned man will be executed in Hilo.

The Volcano House management reports a most prosperous year for that locality. Since July 1st there have been over seventy visitors to Pele's abode.

Waiakea Mill Co. have been approached by Upper Olaa land holders during the past week, with a request that the Waiakea Railroad be extended to Upper Olaa for the purpose of transporting the cane to the Waiakea Mill for grinding.

W. D. Schmidt formerly kook-keeper at Honouliuli, who resigned that position a few months ago, returning to Germany to reside permanently as he thought, has repented of that decision and is again on his way to Hawaii.

A Japanese employed by the Olaa Plantation Company, at nine miles, was kicked so violently in the head by a mule he was driving, on Thursday, that the skull was crushed in, and the man expired in about twenty minutes.

C. D. Pringle's kulana in Coconut Island has been jumped. Two families have during the past week been camping there by permission of the government authorities.

Messrs. Carr and Hall, representing the U. S. Postal service on the Islands, came up to Mahukona on the Kinau, and will make a tour of inspection between that port and this.

Strikes of greater or less magnitude at Honohina and other plantations of North Hilo and Hamakua are reported. At some places the Japs refuse to either work or leave the plantation.

The Misses Rice and Miss L. Hapai of Hilo were passengers by the Roderick Dhu.

John T. Baker and Mrs. Baker of Hilo have gone to the coast.

DEMOCRATIC PAPER BOLTS.

The St. Paul Globe Repudiates the Platform and the Nominees.

ST. PAUL, (Minn.) July 7. The St. Paul Globe, the only Democratic daily in the twin Cities, and the leading Democratic paper of Minnesota, has bolted the Democratic platform and candidates. A more complete repudiation could hardly be found than the Globe's editorial this morning. It says, under the caption, "Crime Repealed."

"The St. Paul Globe is now, has always been, and will remain, a Democratic paper. It has never compromised its convictions on questions of large public or party concern, and never intends to do so. The Globe to-day stands where it stood four years ago. It is now, as it was then, opposed to free coinage. There is less, possibly, to justify compromise or condonement now than there was then. The party went blindly to its fate then; it goes open-eyed now, and because of its domination by the one-man control of William J. Bryan, which, under threat of withdrawal, forced the free-silver falsehood down the throat

DOBLEY'S REVENGE.

"John, there's a burglar trying to get in the house."

"Is there?"

"Yes. Aren't you going to do something about it?"

"No, Maria. I'm a humane man, but if that fellow falls over Johnny's tin wagon, and steps into a toy drum, and gets frightened by treading on a rubber doll that says 'papa,' and barks 'his shins the same as I did when I came here in the dark-to-night,' 'twill be all his own fault. I don't feel called upon to interfere with my advice or to offer a helping hand, for it won't be a deserving case. 'G'night.'"—Collier's Weekly.

 manner. One strong drawback at present is the infrequency of communication with the island of Hawaii and the character of the transportation. Perhaps the Wilder Steamship Company does the best it can, but it would seem as if they could afford somewhat better accommodations and more frequent service. They strongly remind one of the transportation in the backwoods days of the States, when there were few travelers and little business. If the company would get a move on itself, take pains to make known the various attractions of the places to be seen, certainly a good business might be built up and one satisfactory to the public. I shall always treasure the recollection of my trip down there as one of the delightful features of my island tour."

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Makaweli will finish grinding this week.
 Miss Perley and Miss Myrick are visiting Kohala.
 Three hundred Japanese are reported to be on a strike at Koloa.
 Mr. and Mrs. Rolf of San Francisco are visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Hild of Kohala.
 Nakunina was arrested by Humane Officer Miller yesterday for cruelty to animals.
 Lieutenant Bohman of the mounted patrol is on duty again after quite a spree of sickness.
 Mr. C. L. Rhoads of the Star has resigned the secretaryship of the Democratic Central Committee.

Sixty dollars was raised for the Kiki Church at a document given at Waialua on Saturday evening.
 Max Schlemmer, the genial host of Waimea, Kama'i, will visit Honolulu next week. He is one of the leading Democrats of the Garden Isle.
 The kola nuts sent out by the Agricultural Department for distribution here have thus far proved a failure, the nuts being too old and decayed to grow.
 The funeral of J. A. Mehrten took place Sunday. It was largely attended. It was under the auspices of Mystic Lodge Knights of Pythias, of which order the deceased was a member.

A Hawaiian boy of thirteen with his five year old sister, lately from Molokai, are supposed to be lost somewhere in town. The mother has given notice of their disappearance at the police station.
 The Christian Church has raised within $625 of the amount necessary to erect a new church and a mission chapel at Keawalo. W. C. Weedon will contribute the material for the chapel to cost not less than $1,600.

Possible Racing Next Month.
 The match race between the Maui celebrated trotters McKinley and Mary Mack has fallen through, consequently there will not be any races on August 12th at the Kahului track, Wailuku. Lahaina racing men are arranging for racing on August 12th at the Lahaina track, but doubts are expressed that the track could be repaired and be in readiness on that day. The people of Lahaina have contributed $200 to repair and restore the track.

Revenue Collected at Hilo.
 Treasury Agents Drake and Driscoll have returned from their Hilo trip, where they have been to collect the internal revenue on liquor and tobacco shipped here on the Rhoderick Dhu. While in Hilo they collected the special revenue tax from the various retail liquor dealers. It is probable there will be a treasury agent permanently located at Hilo as soon as the Treasury Department can be heard from.

BORN.
 In Honolulu, July 19th, to the wife of A. T. Brock, a son.

ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF CHINA'S EMPEROR.

No Cold Tea and no Contents of Col'd. Bottles at Chinese Consul's Pagoda.
 What a change has taken place among the Chinese of Honolulu within the past year!
 A year ago to-day Consul Yong Wei Pin was entertaining the diplomats and the vulgarious with Chinese hospitality. Chinese bands made the air discordant, and cold tea and the contents of cold bottles made kow-towing agreeable and the glad hand clapping. And what was it all about. It was the anniversary of a birth—of the Emperor.
 To-day is the thirty-first anniversary of the birth of the Emperor of China, but there will be no cold tea, hot small birds and square, cold bottles on the sidewalk of the Consul. The Consul don't know where he's at; he's waiting to hear returns from China. The Queen Dowager and the Emperor are at outs, alternately he turns their pictures toward the wall.
 But readers of The Republican must not labor under the impression that the anniversary won't be celebrated. The Bow Wongs are with us, and they will whoop it up like patriotic Chinamen. There will be firecrackers, liquid refreshments and Chinese hospitality galore.
 The blowout will take place at the corner of River and Kukui streets.

REPUBLICAN CLUBS PREPARING FOR PARADE.
 J. H. Fisher and Curtis P. Iankea Will Lead With Young Republicans in Line.
 J. H. Fisher has been appointed grand Marshal of the Republican ratification parade and Curtis P. Iankea has been designated as chief aide. All the members of the young men's Republican club, which was organized at the drill shed before the primary elections, are especially requested to turn out in full voting force on next Thursday evening. President Lorin Andrews has already sent out notices to all member of the club to assemble at headquarters on lower Nuuanu street at 7 p. m. sharp on next Thursday evening. From the headquarters the club will march to the drill shed to take part in the procession. Mr. George W. Smith, president of the Republican central committee of the Territory of Hawaii requests that all the chairmen of the precinct clubs will be prompt in calling meetings for this evening at 7:30 p. m. to make arrangement for the parade.

Rain on Lanai.
 Fred H. Hayseldon, who has just arrived from Lanai reports there has been rain on the higher uplands of Lanai since January 1st. "Their have been 85 rainy days this year with a rain fall for the season of over 30 inches," said Mr. Hayseldon. "The rain this year has been better distributed than usual and the dry season has not thus far been seriously felt on the island."

A lame shoulder is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles, and may be cured by a few applications of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale by all dealers and druggists. Benson, Smith & Co., general agents, Hawaiian Territory.
