Has a plague stricken Palolo valley—one of the garden spots of this island?

This valley is one of the most beautiful in the islands, and according to Sanitary Inspector McVeigh and Dr. Pratt of the Board of Health, it is an ideal place in which to live. It is between 400 and 500 feet above the sea level; the small settlement is located on the slope of a hill, affording ample drainage. The water supply is derived from a large spring, located at a considerable elevation and three-quarters of a mile above the settlement. There is no sewerage, of course, but the population has not been large and the awful death rate of the place could not be accounted for by reason of sewage or unsanitary conditions.

Despite this, eight deaths have occurred in that valley since June 4, and the entire valley is now depopulated. Everyone has fled thence, and when the subject is mentioned to the average native, he holds up his hand in horror and says kahuna—which, being interpreted, means witchcraft.

And little blame to him, with his light. Human instinct, reinforced by local customs and contemporaneous beliefs, and upheld by actual statutory laws taking cognizance of such excusable superstitions, will long linger in the mind, even after years of better teaching.

The eight men that have fallen in this unexplained epidemic in fair Palolo Valley have died from natural and not supernatural causes. Despite the fact that the autopsy physicians are somewhat at sea as to causes, it is quite certain that undue quantities of native gin had more to do with these deaths than kahunaism. The day by witchcraft and praying people to death has passed away with other obsolete matters in Hawaii.

The peculiar fatality of the disease in Palolo Valley is attracting unusual attention, but there is nothing supernatural about it. The laws of nature cannot be violated with impunity. There must be cesspools for sewage, and stagnant taro beds are not conducive to health.

The last Palolo victim was a native, aged 43 years. He came eighth in the series. An autopsy, and a critical one, was held on his remains. Dr. Pratt, who assisted in the autopsy, told a Republican reporter yesterday that Kane died from "natural causes, to-wit, myocarditis, an inflammation of the membrane of the heart." But other things were the matter with Kane.

According to Dr. Pratt, he had a slight pneumonia; pus was found in his kidney; he suffered with syphilis in its advanced stage, and nearly all of his organs were affected. These are physical conditions, in the face of which the unbalanced and superstitious faith in kahuna must fall. Neither black dog, white pig or red rooster with tail tail feather, offered in sacrifice to Pele, could have saved his life.

As with Kane, so with the rest. Here is the story of these deaths as told by the records of the Health Department:

June 4—A 13-year-old girl; cause of death, nephritis (disease of the heart).

June 10—A 29-year-old male native, who died of alcoholism.

June 21—A male, 24 years old, part Hawaiian; died of scirrhosis of the liver and nephritis.

July 3—A native male, 69, of age; cause of death, fatty degeneration of the heart.

July 6—A native male, aged 18; disease, typhoid fever.

July 10—Wife of foregoing, a native, aged 18; typhoid fever.

July 15—Native male, aged 35; cause of death, nephritis.

July 21—Kane, the eighth victim, a native, aged 43; myocarditis, as already noted.

An analysis of these causes of death ought to explain the origin of the so-called plague. To the average reader, this would be simple, even if the investigation made by the Republicans had not definitely determined the inciting cause. Of the eight deaths, every one is attributable to inflammatory causes, as follows: Alcoholism, 1; scirrhosis, 1; nephritis, 2; heart trouble, 2; typhoid symptoms, 2.

Gin is productive of all these, and excessive indulgence in that native product—kolokao—is undoubtedly the cause of all the deaths thus far reported from Palolo Valley. There has been a tremendous drinking of this native beverage, distilled from the roots of the ti plant. These roots are gathered, roasted in ovens, then macerated between rocks. It is later steeped in a barrel, a large tin bucket or a washbasin and allowed to remain there until fermentation has well advanced. Whenever the proper point of fermentation has been reached the mass is boiled, after the ordinary manner of distillation, the rising vapor being drawn off into a bottle. That's the native gin, possessing all the clearness of color and other qualities of Holland gin. The only difference is that its intoxicating qualities are much greater.

The stomachs, kidneys, livers and hearts of some natives may be "cupper-bottomed" or "copper-riveted," but those of Palolo Valley clearly were not. Hob-nailed livers—a more common term for scirrhosis of the liver—is a common ailment of gin drinkers the world over. So are diseased kidneys, weak and degenerated hearts, and heavy drinkers are specially prone to diseases simulating typhoid symptoms and pneumonia. The undue indulgence of gin will account for every death in the "Palolo plague."

The Board of Health and the sanitary inspectors have done more than their duty. The sanitary conditions are all right. The autopsies have been carefully made, but the health authorities cannot regulate what men and women shall eat and drink. Food Inspector Shorey is analyzing the stomach of Kane, and will report thereon later, though his facilities and apparatus are wholly inadequate.

Meantime the Collector of Internal Revenue may come to the assistance of the Board of Health and reduce the death rate. Uncle Sam has serious objections to the establishment of illicit distilleries.

Remembered Mr. Hassinger.

The clerks and attaches of the former Interior department made a handsome contribution to John A. Hassinger, who retired from the office of chief clerk on June 14. The token was a Hawaiian royal coat of arms watch charm, with the following inscription on the back: "John A. Hassinger, with a token from the Office of Interior Department, June 14, 1900." Accompanying the gift was an address—eloquent of the retiring officer and his eminent services and expressing deep regret at the sundering of pleasant ties.

ANTONE RODRIGUES ESTATE.

JUDGE HUMPHREYS RENDERS A DECISION IN THE CASE.

The Late Antone Rosa Declared to Be Remiss in His Duties As Guardian.

Judge Humphreys has rendered a decision in the estate of Antone Rodrigues. He finds that the late Antone Rosa, executor and guardian, was remiss in his duties and violated his obligations.

The concluding portion of the decision is as follows:

"The executor will in this case, therefore, stand charged with the balance shown to be due to the estate as of the date of filing his accounts, with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum until date; he will be charged with interest at legal rates upon the $600 principal from the date of his appointment to date; he will be counter-charged with the commission with which he has credited himself, he will be charged with the sum of $85 claimed for which he has credited himself in probating this estate, the testimony showing that his administration of the estate has been a positive detriment to it rather than good; he will also stand charged with the items embraced in each and every one of the exceptions; a master's fee fixed at $50, and all the costs of this court."

J. Alfred Magoo for movants; Lorin Andrews for respondent.

OFFICERS OF THE GEIER DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED.

Frontline Members of a Local Firm Show Them Many At-tentions.

Paul Isenberg and other prominent members of the firm of H. Hackel & Co., extended the proverbial hospitality of Hawaii to the officers of S. M. S. Geier yesterday.

The visiting sailors were shown every attention. They were taken to the Pali, where they expressed wonder, amazement and delight at the panorama which suddenly burst upon their view.

After the Pali trip they went to Waikiki, where they were entertained at luncheon. Over 1000 boppers of sparkling wine, recollections of the fatherland were recalled, and Germany's great future as a commercial nation and maritime power discussed.

Tomorrow Secretary Cooper will pay his respects to the Kommandant and officers of the ship.

Rapid Transit to Waikiki.

It is said the Rapid Transit Company will go to Waikiki by an extension of Queen street, running parallel to the beach road, but avoiding it. This would save a popular boulevard and open up a new section of the city.

Brock Wins.

The quarter-mile race between Brock and Shandando at Kapiolani track yesterday was won easily by Brock in two-and-a-half seconds. The purse was $250 a side, and about $3000 changed hands on the result.

Arrested Again.

Fisher, who was arrested the first of last week for selling liquor without a license, was again arrested last evening. As this is the second offense, and the officers claim they have a good case against him, it is believed a severe penalty will be imposed.

Opening of Streets.

Vineyard street extension has been completed from the stream to Lilihi street. Practically a few days work this week will do it.

Beretania street is open to King in Palama. On both quick work was done.

VOLCANIC PHENOMENA MENACES TERRITORY.

That is the Opinion of Weather Observ-er Lyons.

RAIN OR ERUPTIONS TO COME.

EARTHQUAKES IN MAUI AND HAWAII GIVE WARNING OF TROUBLE.

The Local Savant Combats French Astronomer Flammarion's Theory About Sun Spots.

Great troubles never come singly. It is a trite, but true maxim. America is plunged into serious complications with China, which, possibly, may sever her friendly relations with European powers; Hawaii is greatly disturbed over labor problems.

But this is not all—volcanic phenomena menaces the Territory, so says Weather Observer Curtis J. Lyons.

"In my judgment this hot weather will be followed by rain or volcanic phenomena. They have had several earthquake shocks in Hawaii and Maui," said Observer Lyons to a Republican reporter yesterday.

"The weather," continued the speaker, "for June and July has been unusually hot. It has been from one to two degrees hotter during these months than for the same period in previous seasons in eighteen years, or since I have taken weather observations.

"The rainfall for the month has been a little more than two-thirds of the normal. The rainfall for twelve months previous to July 1 was 29.45 inches. The normal would be 38 inches. I expect more rain, a plenteous downpour, within the next few weeks.

"I am aware that the French astronomer, Camille Flammarion, attributes the excessive heat that is being felt all over the world to the solar spots discovered on the sun in June last. The spots, he states, are 44,000 miles in diameter. He declares that the eruptions show additional coal in the machinery of the sun, and that great heat will prevail during August.

"While all of this will be done, there is little doubt that the example set at other naval stations will have to be copied here to inclose the entire reservation with a substantial fence. I think I violate no confidence when I say that this has been definitely decided upon. The fence will be extended so as to include the coal sheds across the street and all the ground owned by the Government here. Such a course is absolutely necessary to the protection of public property and for the safety and expeditious handling of the Government's business. The war in China will make this station infinitely more important than it has been, and will impel the prompt carrying out of all the projected improvements here."

"But what of Pearl Harbor?" suggested the reporter.

"I fear it will be many a day before the Government will do much work pleasing, the order has ever had in Honolulu. There is a close bond of fellowship between these orders, both of which really carry into the world, and practically exemplify the doctrine of Father Widgery, which may be summed up in the motto—friendship, love and truth. Visiting Odd Fellows and Daughters of Rebekah are continually invited to attend this extraordinary meeting.

HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Paul Isenberg's Experience With a Frightened Horse.

Paul Isenberg had a narrow escape from serious injury on Friday afternoon. He was coming along Hotel street near Alakea when his horse suddenly shied at the steam roller. The animal made a wide circle and landed upon the sidewalk of the Masonic Temple, overturning the rig and throwing Mr. Isenberg to the ground.

The horse then ran back was caught at the backstand at the corner of Hotel and Richards streets. Mr. Isenberg, who was not injured, walked down to where his rig was and, getting in, drove off, none the worse for his tumble.

Portland Chinese Condemn Boxers.

PORTLAND (Ore.), July 18.—The Chinese merchants of Portland held a meeting this afternoon, at which the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That the Chinese citizens of Portland, Ore., condemn and disapprove the awful outrages perpetrated on peaceful foreigners in China by the usurper Prince Yuan and his hordes of Boxers."

HONOLULU, H. I. JULY 29, 1900.

Honolulu has no room for the walking delegate, whether he travels under the guise of unionism or as an evangelist.

There will be a naval park at the foot of Richards street, in due season, but Uncle Sam will have a fence around it.

The people generally will approve the proposed improvements on Thomas Square. This is rapidly becoming the popular park.

A mighty royal welcome to the German warship, the Geier. The officers and the crew will find hospitality of the genuine sort at every American port.

Chinese return certificates are now quoted at $200 each. This is as cheap as office appointments in San Francisco, but they do not work at the port of Honolulu.

The Iroquois is safe, and so are all abroad, as will be seen by the local columns of The Republican, and the vessel may be expected here by the middle of next month.

The Republican has arranged to publish the advertised letter list each week. This is done for the convenience of the public, which is so generously showing its appreciation of The Republican's efforts to furnish Honolulu a real newspaper.

As the drill shed will not hold near one-half the people who will want to hear the speeches next Saturday night, it is likely that arrangements will be made for an overflow meeting, when able speakers will address the people.

Turn in every reason to believe that the recent deaths in Palolo valley were due to mysterious causes, supernatural or otherwise, but really to the excessive use of native gin distilled from the roots of the ti plant. Wood alcohol and Hawaiian gin are side partners to the Old Reaper in Hawaii.

The Republican has arranged with a prominent young society woman to furnish a society column for the Sunday paper. It will be a feature of the Sunday morning Republican, along with other subjects equally as interesting, which will be added as fast as the mechanical facilities of the office will permit.

The general committee in charge of the Republican ratification meeting proposes to make next Saturday night's parade the grandest affair of the kind ever seen in Honolulu. All the present clubs are expected, and undoubtedly will take part, while special marching clubs will add very much to the attractiveness of the display.

Judge Humphreys' decision in the case of the Antone Rodriguez estate against Antonio Rosa, guardian, will meet with general approval. It is in line with his recent refusing to allow an excessive attorney fee in a small estate, and means that so far as Judge Humphreys is concerned economy and honesty shall prevail in the administration of probate affairs.

Why should not a doctor receive more than the ordinary witness fees who is called to give expert testimony? As Judge Humphreys well said in rendering his opinion yesterday, doctor spends years of effort and large sums for his medical knowledge, and he should not be required to give of that knowledge without reasonable compensation.

Members of the Wahiaia colony are showing what can be done in fruit-raising on apparently barren land. Under the most adverse circumstances, they have gone ahead planting pineapples, guavas, oranges, bananas and other fruits, and now their work is beginning to show. In a few years the formerly barren land of this colony will be the most productive, as well as the most valuable, in the Territory.

The employees of the Honolulu Iron Works and the friends of the late Emil Uhlebrecht generally have taught the world a practical lesson in benevolence. When Mr. Uhlebrecht was accidentally drowned, two weeks ago, he left his wife and babies in anything but affluent circumstances. Then his fellow-workmen and friends got together and determined to raise a sum of money sufficient to enable the widow to engage in some light business downtown—in something in which they could further help her. They raised $1,000, a splendid sum, representing the most substantial sort of sympathy and sorrow.

It is quite likely that it will be many years before Uncle Sam will utilize Pearl Harbor as a naval station. The gringhiness of contiguous property holders has led to this result. The government officials have concluded not to pay $1000 an acre for periodical submerged islands and shore lands. The United States has ample room at the present naval station in the city of Honolulu. It holds here eight and one-half acres, with ample wharfage, and facilities for machine shops and drydocks. It is the purpose of the Government to inclose these grounds by a substantial fence, after the manner of Eastern naval stations. This course has been reluctantly decided upon, but the necessities of the Government, accentuated by the crisis in China, render it absolutely necessary.

HOW THEY LOVE HAWAIIANS.

The Republican published several days ago the utterances of Mr. Baumgardner, the Maryland member of the Committee on Platform at the Democratic National Convention at Kansas City. This expression of Mr. Baumgardner's was used to show how the Democratic party of the mainland loves the Hawaiians. Of course, Prince David says he is a Democrat because his great and good friend, Grover Cleveland is one, but the party of Cleveland has no use for Prince David or any other Hawaiian. That stanch Democratic sheet, the Baltimore Sun, which is the personal organ of that greatest of Democratic statesmen, Arthur Pue Gorman, says of the action of Hawaii's delegate in the committee:

"The adoption in committee of the plank in the Democratic platform was due, it seems, to the voice of 'Prince David,' of the Hawaiian delegation, together with the declination of the representatives of the District of Columbia and Montana to record it. It may, perhaps, be regarded as deplorable that it should come to this—that the fate of a great party, if not a nation, has been made dependent upon the vote of a Hawaiian 'Outlander,' who knows probably about as much of finance as a monkey and who, it is likely, has only recently become sufficiently civilized to wear anything more than a big leaf. This incident illustrates one of the blessings and consequences of expansion, and if we continue this policy, the future will hold many more of the same kind. While it is not flattering to our national pride to think that the destinies of the United States may be decided by the votes of 'Prince Davids' and other distinguished savages from our Oriental possession, there is some consolation in the fact that in the present case there were not tools enough in this country to carry out this piece of astuteness, but that it was necessary to secure a recruit from a distant island in the 'tropics.'

Of course, the Sun is slightly off in the name of the member of the Committee on Platform from Hawaii, Mr. John H. Wise occupying that position instead of Prince David, but the feeling of Democratic bitterness toward Hawaii and Hawaiians holds just the same, whether it be directed against Mr. Wise or Prince David.

Yes, indeed, the Democratic party, which opposes expansion and everything that tends to the glory of the United States, just love the Hawaiians. It loves them so much that its leading exponents wish they could condemn the Hawaiians to the bottom of the sea. Prince David and his friends must feel proud of the Prince's political associates on the mainland.

How things change! What changes have come over Honolulu within a few years!

These thoughts, transitory, perhaps, came to me as I entered the basement of the State House the other day. The State House was formerly the living palace of King Kalakaua the First and also the Last. The basement of the State House was, in years gone by, occupied by the royal household. On my visit I found in what was the royal pantry, Wray Taylor, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry and Acting Registrar, snugly ensconced. Andrew Brown, Superintendent of the Waterworks, occupies the apartments of the King's chamberlain. Professor Koebele, the entomologist, is off in another of the late sovereign's pantries, where he studies the formation of new bugs on a shelf where formerly reposed custard pie and the succulent water-melon.

M. H. Flint, Postoffice Inspector, occupies the old Land Office. Manson Campbell, Road Supervisor, has an office in a former sleeping apartment, and Collector Haywood of the United States Internal Revenue takes in money and issues licenses from the butler's old room.

But the most startling transformation about the basement, in my judgment, is the kitchen. As I passed I expected to hear the waiter call out in stentorian tones: "One porterhouse-steak, rare, for the King, with French mushrooms; six eggs on toast." But instead I heard a rumbling, tumbling noise, which went something like this: "Hear ye! Hear ye! The Honorable District Court for the Second District of the Territory of Hawaii is now open."

Judge Lyle A. Dickey was holding forth.

How things change! Sometimes I think it's too bad.

MISS ZULA HARTS, who was a popular and efficient teacher of the schools at Hilo, where she was latterly connected with the Select school, is now located at Manila, Philippine Islands. She is there following her profession of teaching, and very flattering reports come thence as to the success that is attending her efforts. Her health is excellent, and she looks for a prosperous future therewith.

The work of A. T. Atkinson as supervisor of the United States census is about completed. The returns of all the enumerators are now in and tabulation is under way. The Pearl City district, from which Enumerator McDonald disappeared so mysteriously, taking his notes away with him, has been re-enumerated, thus practically completing the work. Under the rules of the department, the local office is prohibited from giving out any information bearing on any of the features of the subjects covered by the census, but from an unofficial source it is learned that the population of Honolulu will be under 40,000, probably about 36,000, despite the large exodus of Japanese, and that the population of the islands will exceed 100,000. The exact figures will not be given out until the reports have been canvassed by the census officials at Washington.

I would suggest that the well-paid officials of the Territory and attaches take up a collection and buy a decent garrison flag for the State House. The flag now daily displayed over the Capitol is a measly sort of a thing, inadequate for its uses as to size, even if it had not been frayed until it is badly tattered. While about it, too, a second flag should be secured to be daily raised over the Courthouse. There are many reasons why the nation's emblem should find a place over the temple of justice.

In the front yard of the Roman Catholic Cathedral stands the father of all the aloha trees on these Islands. It was brought over here by Father Bacheler, the pioneer missionary on these Islands, in 1837, and it has prospered ever since. It is a fine old tree, but has been distanced by many of its scions, which have perhaps been more advantageously situated, the old tree suffering from its crowded condition in the heart of the city. The aloha is a valuable tree, useful alike for its wood and its medicinal barks, which afford excellent medicine for asthma. Its spreading branches afford shade and comfort, and thousands of Hawaiians owe the pioneer missionary a debt of gratitude for his thoughtfulness in bringing this plant to these shores.

It is not true that the threatened beer famine in town had anything to do with the arrival of the German warship Geier. That had dawned us long before. Charlie McCarthy of the Criterion showed that he was "on to himself," however, by serving Frankfurters as lunch yesterday.

I hope to see the Orpheum prosper under the new conditions. The people of Honolulu want healthful amusement, and they want it at reasonable rates, and in the informal way in which one may enjoy them in such a place as the Orpheum. The community will be sure, I feel, never to regret that a license was issued to this place of amusement. All persons who enjoy an evening's clean and first-class entertainment will await with interest Mr. Cohen's announcement of his first regular company.

A meeting of the resident members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was held at the Hawaiian Hotel on Friday evening and again yesterday. It was decided to organize a Lodge here, and some thirty-five applicants were passed upon as charter members. Mr. Lovrkin of the First American Bank was elected treasurer. There are 8 or 9 members of this order resident in Honolulu, representing almost as many States, and they have been drawn together by a universal bond of good fellowship. The splendid brotherhood and has been exemplified in the intercourse between these exemplars of the order that has not been faintly called, "The Best People on Earth" has raised a desire in others to become members. The Elks is a distinctive American order, not political, but by origin, tradition and social obligations. It is only recently that the Grand Exalted Ruler and the Grand Lodge, urged to do so by Mr. Horace Craft, who is a member of Butte (Montana) Lodge, and others, consented to the institution of a Lodge in Honolulu. A dispensation for a Lodge here has been promised, and the steps now being taken are preparatory to institution.

The establishment of Honolulu Lodge will mark an epoch in Elkdom. It will be the first step of the extension of the order to the new American possessions, and the delivery to those possessions of an order whose members "wrote the virtues of its members upon the tablet of memory and their faults upon the sands of the sea."

Fraternally and socially the Order of Elks will be most welcome to Honolulu.

GOEBEL LAW THE ISSUE.
Kentucky Republicans Nominate John W. Yerkes for Governor.

LOUISVILLE (Ky.), July 17.—The Republican State Convention today nominated for Governor J. W. Yerkes of Danville, adopted a platform declaring the issue of the election to be the Goebel election law and adjourned within three hours.

This was the nomination to be made by the convention except for Governor Goebel, this year's election in Kentucky being an extraordinary one to fill the vacancy in Governorship made by the death of William Goebel. The present Governor, J. C. W. Beckham, will hold office only until his successor is elected, when he will again become Lieutenant-Governor. John W. Yerkes, the nominee of the most prominent Republicans in Kentucky. He is at present a Collector of Internal Revenue.

CRUSERS READY FOR IMMEDIATE SERVICE.

NEW YORK, July 16.—A special to the Press from Philadelphia says: The crusaders Columbia, Minneapolis and Yankee have been got into readiness for immediate service. Steam is up and no one not connected with the ships is allowed on board. Berths have been put into the Yankee. It is surmised the vessels are to be used in transporting troops, though the Columbia and Minneapolis have comparatively few accommodations for that service.

THEY DANCED AT HALEIWA A New Feature Introduced at the Pretty Seaside Resort.

A new feature at Haleiwa is Saturday night hop, for the guests at Waiakea. Last night's hop was the first to be held, a native orchestra furnishing the music, vocal selections accompanying the instrumental set. Among those from this city who were present were Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Merrill, Mrs. Campbell and family, Mrs. Cecil Brown and family, Mrs. Pinkham, Mr. and Mrs. Chase and Miss May Egan of Los Angeles.

The Republican office was treated to the pleasure of hearing some of the music over the long distance telephone.

SOCIETY

I overheard an interesting conversation the other day. A prominent man of this town, or some other, said that he was obliged to take his family of young girls away from the beach on account of the queer habits obtained there. It seems the young men are in the habit of carrying on lengthy conversations in their more or less abbreviated bathing suits before and after bathing.

He did not seem to object to the young people bathing together, but, as he tersely expressed it, "If you come here to bathe, bathe; if to talk to the girls, for God's sake put on some clothes." I rather think he had the right of it. It had never occurred to me before, for, after Narragansett Pier and a few other noted Eastern summer resorts, what I have seen in Honolulu in that respect has been a bit mild.

After all, it is rather shocking to have a young man dripping with water, like a Newfoundland dog, rush up to one with all the aplomb and assurance of correct ballroom attire, and begin a long conversation. I do not know as I would encourage that young man if my 16-year-old sister were along.

Young girls ought to be helped to preserve that fineness of feeling and innate modesty which is their heritage. I am much afraid the free and easy manners of the beach will tend to lower the standard more or less. Not that there is any real harm to a right-minded girl, but nature is nature, and why need their eyes be opened too wide?

Of course, the young men will say: "Noni soli qui mol v' pense," but that is not the point. I know there is no real wrong. I would talk very differently if it were otherwise.

If the young men were aware how unbecoming and how undignified they appear in bathing suits they would never transgress in that way.

I wish them to avoid even the appearance of evil, so that the stranger within our gates will not gain a wrong impression of us. We do not wish to be accused of too free and easy manners.

I heard a funny thing the other day. A girl with a freckle on her nose was reading "Sapho" in a Chinese chair on a certain hotel veranda. "Here," said a San Francisco boy, "is the sort of girl you read about!" He straightened his necktie, put on a sporty gait, and in a moment he was bowing before the girl with his hat in his hand. "I beg your pardon, but are you using this chair?" Now, there were nothing but chairs on the veranda, but he was alluding to the chair next to the girl. She raised her turpentine eyes to his. "No, thee may have it if thee wishes," she said sweetly. The young man from San Francisco gasped and dragged the chair along as far from the girl as possible, sat down and fanned himself. The Quaker City has found us out, evidently.

I saw a charming costume straight from Paris the other day. It was a white linen coat and skirt, with pale blue stripes; a yellow linen shirt, with tiny white stripes and turned down collar, with cream tussore, tied in a sailor knot, the ends of which were to be held by a pearl pin. A yellow straw hat coming well over the eyes accompanied the costume, and was trimmed with a thick bouillonne of buttercup-yellow silk muslin, and on the side were two white wings, rather long, and curving over the back.

With this was to be carried a cream silk sunshade, lined with yellow, and the shoes were white chamois. The stockings were of pale brown open-work lisle thread—the coolest stockings of all for this climate.

I should think all womanhood would welcome the young of black and white, as it is so universally becoming. Mausies can only be worn by the clear-complexioned, and dove-grey by a very few.

I heard one of the great artists of Paris say once upon a time to a noted American belle: "Dress up to your birth, Mademoiselle, and you cannot go far wrong."

So few seem to know that simple truth. Imagine a golden-haired beauty in gold yellow gown, relined in darker tones by those elongated palllettes sewed on even a darker tone yet, and you would see a picture an artist would rave over. Then again, a brunette with a clear skin looks so well in black. I mean, of course, the gauzes, tissues and all light blacks. I should think they would be almost tempted to murder, for black is so becoming, and, as one must die sometime, it ought to be a comfort to think one's relations are at least mourning becomingly.

In a letter from an English friend who prides herself upon keeping "up to date," I am informed that "P. P. C." are no longer fashionable. Your simple visiting card is quite enough. Only you must leave it at the door yourself.

Miss Henrietta Hatch gave a delightful birthday party to about forty of her little friends one day this week. The spacious lawn, dotted here and there with stately palms and flowering shrubs, presented a charming picture, with all the little fairies in white or light-colored frocks, and their faces reflecting the pleasures of the hour. They played all manner of games, and, although some older ones had been invited with a view to entertaining the little folk, they soon found out that children are best left by themselves, and are only made conscious and constricted by too much attention. There were presents for all, and lots and lots of cake, and, I assure you, there was no self-consciousness when the candies were passed about.

One little girl, in tones of great regret, was heard to say: "Oh, dear me! I want some more cake, but I haven't any room." I think there were many in that same sad state.

Children's parties are always a pleasure, for children can be frank and say what they want, while we "grown-ups" must keep our joys and sorrows to ourselves, and say we are happy, whether or no.

The engagement of Harry Macfarlane, son of Henry Macfarlane, Esq., of this city, is announced to Miss Pollie Dunn of San Francisco.

There have been quite a number of card parties, sub rosa, where the nimble dime exchanged hands quite frequently. More anon.

A little bird is whispering of an engagement which is still in its embryo state. It will create much surprise in our local set.

Mr. and Mrs. Lufkin have left the Annex and taken a cottage on College street.

A young man, a recent arrival from the Coast, is creating quite a sensation by his too prolonged calls on a certain family, where there are a number of young ladies. The stern parent was heard to remark: "Are late hours the custom in San Francisco?" Honolulu people are in the habit of retiring early." I expect the young man will cease his calls, or take his departure by the next steamer.

Mrs. Forbes of the Lunahio Home, who has been quite ill at the Honolulu Sanitarium for some time, has returned to her post much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Estee are expected on the next steamer. They will be warmly welcomed by their old friends, and many receptions and dinners will be given in their honor.

Mrs. Walter gave a very pretty luncheon to a number of her friends on Friday. She also has cards out for a dinner on Sunday.

Mrs. Herbert and children are going to Hawaii for a few weeks.

Mr. Harold Sewall is expected on the Australia with Mr. Oscar Sewall.

Mrs. Montrose Graham goes to Maui for the summer.

Mrs. Swanzey will spend the summer at her country place at Koolau.

The von Holtz are camping in the Waianae mountains.

Mrs. Homburg contemplates a trip to England on account of her health. She will probably remain a year.

Mrs. Willis gave a very pleasant afternoon reception at her home in Maiaoa valley Thursday.

Turk and Lewis Fooled
the Union Sailors Yesterday.

THE INCA'S CREW SHIPPED QUICK.

HARD LUCK OF SEA CAPTAINS
WHO ARE NOW AT CAPE NOME.

The Old Germania Condemned—The Geier Goes to Sea Tomorrow.

Vessels Being Overhauled.

There is an apparent effort on the part of Evangelist McCombe to try and keep sailors from shipping. The Inca was all ready to go yesterday and could not get a crew because a gang of men who called themselves union sailors hung around the ship all day holding out for $45 and $50 for the trip and keeping others, who were willing to go, off the vessel. Captain Rasmussen did not know what to do. He was all ready to go and could not get men. The men hung around, singing psalms and threatening anyone who wanted to ship. Most of them were drunk. Captain Rasmussen had signed several men in the morning, but the unionists had beguiled them off the schooner.

Lewis & Turk were appealed to to get a crew for the vessel, and they did so, but the crew they got was not from shore. The E. B. Sutton, from San Francisco, was just entering the harbor, and before she was docked six of her crew had signified their willingness to go on the Inca. They were taken to the schooner and over the side before the unionists on the wharf knew what had happened. As soon as they saw the sailors aboard, the men on the wharf tried to get them to desert and come ashore, but the shipping masters charged the crowd, and they scampered like sheep. The Inca got away in tow of the tug, and the union sailors ran up town, where they gathered together a crowd of people of their ilk and came back to the wharf, threatening dire vengeance on the shipping men.

When the crowd came up with the shipping men who had shipped the crew, each one waited for the other to tackle the two, but of the crowd of eighteen or twenty not one had the nerve to make the first break.

The Sargent, Mary E. Foster and Diamond Head got away without trouble with their men. There is likely to be a "hot time" getting the Star of Italy away for the Sound to-morrow.

use since the vessel first went to sea hangs a painting of the Germania as she appeared under full sail. The picture, like the furniture, has been in the cabin since the first voyage.

Thirty years ago the Germania was brought around Cape Horn to this Coast by P. P. Cornwall of the Black Diamond Mining Company, and has almost ever since been in the coal trade between Puget Sound and this port.

Twelve years ago she was made into a bark and staterooms amidships were taken out. All her trips have been successful, and, despite the bluff bow and square stern, the old Germania has always shown good sailing ability.

She has made a round trip from here to the Sound in fourteen days, coal laden one way, and has made three trips to the Sound while other more modern ships were making one. She was in the great storm that swamped the steamers Montserrat and Keeweenaw off Cape Flattery a few years ago, but sustained no damage.

According to her log and her present master, Captain Peter C. Rasmussen, the Germania has lost not even so much as a spar during all her long life. For several years after she came to the Coast, Captain Lane, now of the steamer Valencia, was her master, and Captain Pearson also commanded her for several years.

COMMITTEES REPORT ON UHLBRECHT FUND.

The machinery of the Honolulu Iron Works was hardly dead at noon yesterday before the employees met to hear the report of the committees appointed to collect money for Mrs. Uhlebrecht. The first report was read by George Barker, the engineer of Kipahulu plantation, Maui, who announced that he had collected $1,064.50, which he had turned over to the widow. Mr. Barker made a short speech in which he set forth the circumstances leading to the subscription.

Mr. W. C. Roe reported that he had collected $268.50 on the part of the immediate employees of the works, and, after a fitting tribute to the worth of the deceased brother, said that he was happy to say that there was now placed on deposit in bank to the credit of Mrs. Uhlebrecht $1,433. There was a round of applause from the employees when this announcement was made.

It Saved His Baby.

"My baby was terribly sick with the diarrhoea, we were unable to cure him with the doctor's assistance, and as a last resort we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. J. H. Doak, of Williams. "I am happy to say it gave immediate relief and a complete cure." For sale by all dealers and druggists. Benson, Smith & Co., general agents, Hawaiian Territory.

THE PICTURESQUE WAHIWA COLONY.

Great Transformation in a Barren Plateau.

WHAT EIGHTEEN MONTHS CAN DO.

HOME OF THE PRACTICAL SMALL FARMER AND HIS WORK.

The Many Obstacles Met and Overcome by Former California Horticulturists in This Island.

What can be done in this Territory in small farming is being practically and most successfully demonstrated at the Wahiwa colony.

The colony is seven miles from Waialae and ten miles from Pearl City. It comprises 1,340 acres of land. The land is part of a plateau between two mountains, 825 feet above sea level. The tract is four and a half miles long by half a mile wide. A year ago last February it was practically a barren plain, devoid of all vegetation, except a tangle growth of coarse, wild grass. Today one sees a wonderful transformation. A number of attractive homes, nestled in patches of green, dot the colony lands; broken earth and growing crops everywhere attest the industry of the husbandman; the laughter of children is heard, and everything denotes prosperity and contentment.

There are thirteen families, comprising fifty people in the colony. All of the land has been settled upon, and no more can be secured from the government for colonization purposes. The majority of the colonists are from Southern California and are agricultural horticulturists. The following is a list of the head colonists and the number of acres that they are at present cultivating: L. G. Kellogg, 80; T. P. Hollo, 31; Byron O. Clark, 25; W. R. Thomas, 15; J. H. Townsend, 15; A. W. Hayes, 10; Carl Pullman, 5; T. H. Gibson, 5; Edgar Wood, 5; J. W. Welte, 5; Dr. E. C. Rhodes, 5; H. R. Hanna, 5; W. B. McCormick, 5.

Nearly all the colonists contemplate setting additional acres to cultivation this season. The principal plants thus far set out by the colonists are tomatoes, pineapples, bananas and sorghum. The latter is extensively cultivated for feed. The land is a deep, red soil, free from rocks, brush and weeds. The virgin soil has to be plowed twice before it is planted. This is owing to the humid acid that collects under the sod of the coarse grass.

In the face of the most trying difficulties and seemingly insurmountable obstacles the colonists have waged warfare. They have built miles of roads to make the tract accessible. The first season their crops were nearly all destroyed by insect pests. The ewrows and the Japanese beetle were particularly destructive. Colonies of chickens were distributed at given intervals on the tract, and a small amount of salt sprinkled over the upturned land.

When the land began to yield returns transportation difficulties were encountered. The war with Spain lessened the number of steamers plying between Honolulu and Coast cities. Then came the plague and the inhibition of Hawaiian products such as fruit and vegetables, in the markets on the mainland.

The plague sorely tried the colonists. It cost them $1.25 a day to feed a horse. Then, too, lumber went up to fabulous prices. The railroad lumber freight rate to Pearl City is $3.25 a thousand. It costs $10 a thousand to freight it from Pearl City to the colony, and there is nothing made at this apparently exorbitant figure. Notwithstanding this drawback, there is considerable building going on at the colony.

Wahiwa Colony is neither socialist nor communistic. Every colonist works for himself, owns his tract, or will when he gets his deed from the government. The members of the colony, however, see the advantages of cooperation or centralization for educational purposes and the successful marketing of their crops. Two and one-half acres have been set aside by the colonists in the center of this tract. On this they have erected quite a commodious building, called Association Hall. Here public meetings of a religious and social character are held. It also answers for a schoolhouse. In the building is a reading-room, where papers and magazines are kept on file.

The colonists have incorporated a company known as the Hawaiian Fruit and Plant Company, of which L. G. Kellogg is manager. All the colonists are stockholders in the company. The company is for the purpose of successfully harvesting and marketing the crops of the colonists, for breaking ground, constructing buildings, purchasing and hauling supplies, feed, hay, grain and groceries. All this is done at actual cost.

The company has its own cannery, with complete facilities for canning pineapples, manufacturing jams and mango jellies, etc. The cannery, when in operation, will give employment to the junior element of the colony.

Stock in the company has been sold at par. There is none on the market, and it would readily bring a premium. A 25 per cent assessment was called in when the stock was first issued a year and a half ago and only one 5 per cent assessment since then.

The colony site is picturesquely situated. On either side mountain peaks pierce the clouds. In the distance Diamond Head and the broad Pacific are distinctly seen. Broad acres of waving cane in the foreground accentuate the picture.

LAND VALUES AT WAHIWA.

The Large Figure Realized for a Colony Tract.

A sensational sale of 61 acres of land of the Wahiwa colony took place yesterday at the court house. Edward Boyd, acting for Commissioner Brown, was the auctioneer. The conditions were these: The purchaser had to make a payment upon the premises for four years. No one of the colonists was permitted to bid.

The highest price was $300. Mr. Boyd called for bids. A woman started the ball rolling at $35. The bidding was brisk, $100 offers coming in quick succession. Then $100 bids came with the rapidity of discharges from a Gatling gun until $4,000 was reached. The land was knocked down to J. D. Dole, neophyte of Governor Dole. Dole thought $700 would be a fair price for the option, for that is about what it is.

Byron O. Clark and L. G. Kellogg, promoters of the colony, were much pleased at the price obtained. "When I was soliciting organizing the colony," said Clark to a Republican reporter, Mr. von Holt declared to me that the whole tract, comprising 1,340 acres, wouldn't support a litter of pigs. I wonder what he thinks about it now? Let him go out and see what we are doing."

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETS.

INSPECTOR GENERAL HENRY S.
TOWNSEND RESIGNS.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction Announces a Lot of Appointments.

At the meeting of the Board of Education yesterday Superintendent Atkinson announced the resignation of Inspector H. S. Townsend of the Territorial schools, which was tendered Friday to take effect August 31. Besides Mr. Townsend's resignation, Superintendent Atkinson announced a number of changes and new appointments, many of which came as a surprise. He stated that the changes were the result of the report of the recommendations by the Teachers' Committee.

After complimentary remarks to the retiring inspector by Mr. Atkinson, the latter gentleman proposed that Mr. T. H. Gibson, who was formerly a teacher on Kauai and more recently one of the leaders in educational matters here, be recommended to the position.

Superintendent Atkinson recommended that Mr. Charles Baldwin and Mr. S. Kellino be appointed normal instructors at a salary of $250 per month, the appointees to pay their traveling expenses.

In proposing this change Mr. Atkinson said that the question had been carefully gone over by the board and that it was thought best under the new conditions to arrange for the salaries as proposed. This view had been taken by the auditor, whose opinion would go far in questions of finance under popular government.

Upon the recommendation of Mr. Atkinson, Mr. Townsend was at once appointed to be principal of the Beretania school (Kahaluu street). The following appointments were also announced:

wounded men by Admiral Seymour, to keep them from falling into the hands of the Chinese, is untrue. He had talked with many of the refugees taken to Japan on the Peking and if anything so terrible had happened they would have spoken of it.

Dr. G. P. Smith, a thorough passenger in the Peking, who was in charge of the military hospital in Tientsin at the time Seymour's column reached there in retreat, also brands the published statement as a fabrication. He also thinks that the massacre of the legations in Peking is greatly exaggerated.

REPUBLICAN RATIFICATION MEETING NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT.

Original Plans Will Be Enlarged Upon
Great Display by Marching Clubs.

At a well attended meeting of the general committee in charge of the republican ratification meeting and reception of the delegates to the national convention, held at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon it was decided to hold the ratification Saturday evening, August 4th, whether the delegates reach here by that time or not.

The program as originally arranged will be carried out with a number of additional details which will make the meeting a much grander affair than was previously planned. Instead of having a torchlight parade on the lines formerly suggested it was decided to not only have all the precinct clubs, turn out but organize four special marching clubs which will give fancy evolutions during the parade.

Major Zeigler and Captains Murray, Johnson, Wilcox and Custer were appointed a committee to organize these drill clubs with authority to add to their committee such members as they saw fit. W. H. Wright was appointed a committee of one to organize a company of Roosevelt Rough Riders to take part in the parade. The drill companies expect to have out four companies of about fifty men each and it is believed a company of fully fifty rough riders can be organized. This in with the precinct clubs, all of which will undoubtedly be well represented, and the Young Men's Republican club and the bicycle corps, it is expected to have much the largest parade ever seen in Honolulu.

Owing to the fact that some criticism had appeared in certain quarters in regard to the selection of speakers, J. H. Boyd said he would be pleased, as one of the speakers selected to withdraw in favor of "A. P. Jones." A. W. Pierson, W. O. Smith or any other Jones or Smith that the committee might see fit to select. Mr. Boyd's suggestion was not acted upon.

It was decided to reserve a section of the drill shed for ladies, so as to insure them seats.

The committee unanimously adopted a resolution directing the chairman to request all presidents of precinct clubs and the president of the young mens club to meet with the general committee Monday evening at 7:30 at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce to discuss ways and means for getting out a full representation from all the clubs.

AMUSEMENTS.

A crowded house—crowded to its capacity—was the result of the opening of the Orpheum last night. The crowd awaiting the ringing up of the curtain demonstrated that vaudville is a fixture and that people will patronize this class of amusement.

Each and every number was well received and the sentiment of the public was that they were more than willing to put in a few leisure hours at this house. The next performance will take place Thursday evening when the program will be further augmented by more of the McAdoo Company, which will arrive on the Orangi.

NEWS OF HILO AND HAWAII.

BASE BALL AND RACES THAT PROVED DISAPPOINTING.

Interesting Comments on Plantations and Resorts of the Big Island—Personal.

The following is the latest news from Hilo to the 28th inst. taken from the Hilo Tribune:

HILO, July 28.—Saturday last was a day of joy to the Hiolite, who usually wears a sad and doleful countenance because he is not a resident of Honolulu. Everybody who could raise a dollar and fifty cents for expenses and two bits for speculative purposes set his face toward Hoolihi Park early in the afternoon that he might feast his eyes on Apollo-like balltossers and swift Arabian steeds. The former proved to be a little short on the "Apollo," and the latter on swiftness; but the spectators didn't mind, and had just as much fun as if the Volcano Stables' team had run on four legs, instead of three. Hilo people are getting over that bad habit of kicking at everything, especially since they have found out that it doesn't do any good.

INFORMAL DANCE.

How Festive Hilo Enjoys Itself in Quiet Times.

One of the pleasantest social affairs that Hilo has seen in many moons was the informal and impromptu dance given at Spreckels' Hall on Tuesday evening for the people leaving on Thursday for the Rodriguez Dhu. It was attended by most of Hilo's society people and lasted until an hour that rather exceeded in lateness the ball of the Fourth of July. Music was furnished by the Quintette Club, whose efforts proving a trifle inadequate, these were helped out (and the dances as well) by Mrs. Elliott and Messrs. Noyes and Williamson at the piano. The usual cakewalk was more than usually well gone through by volunteers, who were vigorously applauded.

HAWAIIAN RESORTS.

Mr. McCuskey Tells the Tribune About a Three Weeks' Trip.

Waimea, nestled among the mountains, is an ideal retreat for the holidays. If some enterprising man were to provide a suitable hotel.

North Kohala is progressive and attractive. Kohala plantation is preparing for irrigation, which will do much for cane on that fertile soil.

At Puako and South Kohala is the most unique affair on the Island. There, a little pocket of alluvial soil covering an area of 300 acres, lying between lava flows and fronting the ocean, has been secured from the great landowner, Sam Parker, and converted into the Parker plantation. Wells have been bored and an abundant supply of good water secured for irrigation. The cane is of the Lahaina variety and grows as rank as the banana kinds. A mill with a capacity of 2000 tons is to be erected soon. A good road to Kawaihae, a distance of four miles, is greatly needed. The enterprise is under the management of Mr. Vredenberg.

Good Medicine for Children.

If you have a baby in the house you will wish to know the best way to check any unusual looseness of the bowels, or diarrhea so common to small children. O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind., who has an 11-months-old child, says: "Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach. His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy in the house and gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water, and he got better at once."
