Sure Cure for Colds

When the children get their feet wet and take cold give them a hot foot-bath, a bowl of hot drink, a dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and put them to bed. The chances are they will be all right in the morning. Continue the Cherry Pectoral a few days, until all cough has disappeared.

Old coughs are also cured; we mean the coughs of bronchitis, weak throats and irritable lungs. Even the hard coughs of consumption are always made easy and sometimes cured by the continued use of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Your own doctor will explain this to you. He knows that wild cherry bark is the best remedy known to medical science for soothing and healing inflamed throats and lungs. You may rely upon Ayer's Cherry Pectoral to stop your cough.

Beware of worthless imitations. The name Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is blown in the glass of each bottle. Put up in two sizes.

TWO NOTABLE DIVORCES

Expert Medical Witnesses Fail to Clear
Up Questions.

Genesis of Act Making Leprosy a Cause of Divorce—C. A. Brown is Divorced
Without Defense.

Of the divorce applications heard this week, two important cases came up before Judge Perry of the Circuit Court. Mrs. Irene Brown was yesterday granted a divorce from C. A. Brown, both parties being well known persons, and the custody of the two children was awarded to the mother. The respondent made no appearance in court nor was he represented by any counsel. Mr. Robertson appeared for the libellant, whose application was based solely on the ground of refusal and continued failure to support the wife. The parties were married in 1886 by the Rev. Dr. Hyde, at the house of Chief Justice Judd, guardian of the bride in her minority, the petitioner being an only daughter of the late Hon. John II, at one time Justice of the Supreme Court, who left an immense estate which was recently incorporated.

The other case or cases were those of E. G. Hobron vs. Hikalani Hobron, the wife, and a cross libel against the husband by the wife, which were heard together. The husband's libel was based on the allegation that the wife had contracted the disease known as Chinese leprosy and is incapable of cure. Besides officials of the Board of Health as witnesses, several medical gentlemen were cited to appear before the court. Some were subpoenaed by the husband and some by the wife. Their answers were not altogether lucid on the question whether or not the wife had contracted "Chinese" leprosy, and whether if the disease was another kind of leprosy it would continue incapable of cure. Probably this lack of lucidity on the question at issue is not the fault of the medicals, but rather the faulty wording of the statute which implies several kinds of leprosy. Lawyers say the word "Chinese" ought not to have been in the statute, and why it is there is explained this way: The disease was first discovered in these islands on a Chinese person, hence the natives call it "mai pake." The law was originally a Hawaiian draft, and the translator literally put in the word "Chinese" because the Hawaiian draft mentioned it as "Chinese leprosy." However, the result was, at the end of the expert examination, Judge Perry could not discern from the evidence whether the disease was that stated in the husband's libel, or if another kind of leprosy, whether the allegation is borne out by the sweeping statement that it is incurable. This shows how careful legislators ought to be in their method of making laws. The court dismissed the husband's libel.

By the way, it was a coincidence to see so many of the doctors cited as witnesses to give their evidence at the very time of their considering a proposition to establish a fee rate for giving expert testimony in the courts.

At the conclusion of the wife's cross libel, the court granted her a divorce from the husband together with an allowance of $4000 for her support, there being a statute which authorizes the court to make such allowances commensurate with the circumstances of the parties. The husband has taken an appeal to the Supreme Court. Mr. Magoon, whose fee at $250 was also allowed, appeared for the wife; C. Brown for the husband.

IN THE HOUSE.

Hilo Gets Money for Its Own Band—
Adjournment Over Memorial Day.

In the House this morning the Vice Speaker had to wait thirty minutes for a quorum.

Representative Atkinson asked leave of absence for Representative Wilder, who he stated was confined to his home through illness.

Representative Robertson moved that the Passed Bills Committee be authorized to inform the President that the House desired an extension of time of the session in order to complete their work. Carried.

Senate Bill 4, current account appropriations, was taken up and the items under the Department of the Judiciary were passed as in the bill, with the exception of "Printing and Binding Hawaiian Reports," which was raised to $3200.

Under the Bureau of Conveyances an item was inserted, "Property and Dictionary Indexes," $25,000.

Under the Department of Finance an item was inserted, "Expenses of Taxation Commission," $5000.

Under the Department of Foreign Affairs new items were inserted, "Support of Hilo Band," $2000, and support of Kalawao and Kalaupapa Bands, $500.

Erecting tombstones over the graves of Privates Anderson and Hirsberg, $150.

A new item was inserted in the bill, Repairing and Macadamizing Campbell Avenue and Monsarrat Road, $2000.

Other new items were inserted. On motion adjourned until Tuesday.

Concert at Kamehameha Tonight.

The sale of seats for the concert tonight at Kamehameha Gymnasium has been very large and a good crowd is promised. The proceeds are to help pay off a debt the boys incurred in their baseball venture. Local talent will assist, as will also Mr. Charles Kreuter of the Government band. Those who bought tickets at Hobron's Drug Store noticed that to each ticket a coupon was attached which was good for car fare. Those who have not already procured their tickets may do so at the hall.

New Law Firm.

A circular from Hilo announces the formation of a law partnership between Gardner K. Wilder, W. S. Wise and F. M. Wakefield. Mr. Wise will have charge of law suits and court practice. He will be assisted by Mr. Wilder, who besides will conduct the insurance business. Mr. Wakefield will devote his attention to conveyancing and real estate. It is a strong combination.

Horse Race, Baseball and Cricket All
This Afternoon.

The all absorbing topic of interest among the horsemen for the past week has been the match harness race between Violin and Irish Lassie, which takes place at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Kapiolani Park. The race is for $1000 a side, best three in five heats of one mile. When the horses last met the Lassie ran away from Violin, but it was plain to see that the latter horse was not in even fair condition for a race. The horses have both been carefully trained and are working miles in 2:23 and better every day now. The wise ones seem to like Violin as a winner, arguing that the Lassie is not a repeater. The Lassie's backers have bet the Violin people to a standstill, however, and the result of the race will change a good deal of money. Bagsby will handle Violin, and the Lassie will be piloted by Gibson.

The baseball game this afternoon between the Honolulu and the Regiments will be a warm one. Last Saturday the latter team was "shy" two of its best men, Wilder and Lishman. They will both play today. The Honolulu have been faithfully practicing and will not be beaten if they can possibly help it.

The cricketers will be out in force at the old baseball grounds this afternoon. The game will begin at 2:15. Everybody interested in the game is invited to play. Those players whose names begin with one of the first eleven letters of the alphabet will play against the others. In this way the teams will be very impartially selected.

Circuit Court.

THE BATTLE OF CARDENAS

Action That Some Naval Men Think Rash and Illtimed.

Ten Men Killed and Wounded the Result of
First Battle in Which American Blood Was Spilled.

The dead:

Worth Bagley, ensign.
John Varverez, oiler.
John Denfee, first-class fireman.
John V. Meek, first-class fireman.
Josiah Tunnell (colored), cabin cook.

The wounded are:

R. E. Cox, gunner's mate.
D. McKeown, quartermaster.
J. Patterson, fireman.
F. Gray.
Lieutenant J. B. Bernadou.

BY LANGDON SMITH.

Key West (Fla.), May 12.—Down in a darkened rear room of an undertaking establishment on Duval street, with an American flag over his face and his shattered arms folded over his breast, lies the first man killed by Spaniards in the present war. It is Ensign Bagley of the torpedo boat Winslow. Near by on four black slabs are four more dead men. Two of them—J. Denfee and John V. Meek, were firemen. John Varverez was an oiler, and Josiah Tunnell, a negro, was cabin cook.

These five men were killed during the terrific attempt of the torpedo-boat Winslow to destroy five Spanish gunboats in Cardenas harbor at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. During the two hours' engagement one of the gunboats was sunk, the Spanish signal station at Diana key was desolated, a portion of Cardenas was burned, the torpedo-boat Winslow was disabled, and five Americans were killed.

In the attack on the Spaniards the Winslow was supported by the gunboats Machias and Wilmington and the auxiliary cruiser Hudson.

Naval men here are disposed to think that the attack on Cardenas was rash and illtimed. It was ordered by Captain Todd of the Wilmington, the commanding officer present. It undoubtedly came about through long-continued chafing among the men on the blockading squadron over the restraint imposed upon them by the Washington authorities.

In the burning flame of windless noon yesterday the Wilmington, Machias, Hudson and Winslow lay off Piedras key, eight miles to the north of Cardenas. Of this little fleet Captain Todd of the Wilmington was ranking officer, and upon him must fall the immediate responsibility for the attack. At 1 o'clock Captain Todd made up his mind to attack Diana key, near the mouth of Cardenas harbor, where the Spaniards had established a signal station and battery.

The Wilmington moved forward accompanied by the light draught boat Machias, until well within range of the enemy's guns. As the two boats approached the Diana battery opened fire with four-inch shells and a storm of shrapnel. The Machias and Wilmington, 2000 yards range, replied alternately with port and starboard guns, and in fifteen minutes the battery was hidden in a cloud of sand and a litter of broken timbers. In the midst of the uproar the gunners could be seen running for their lives. Flames burst from the signal station, and in half an hour the battery and all the buildings of Diana key were destroyed. The Wilmington and Machias drew off for consultation. At this moment a Spanish gunboat steamed out to the center of Cardenas harbor and opened fire at long range without hitting anything.

Nobody dreamed of the possibility of going into the harbor after her. Only a few days previous, however, the torpedo boat Winslow had whipped three of the five Spanish gunboats near Piedras Key. She is a light boat and can easily run around in the shallow water of Cardenas bay.

Such a thought as this must have passed through Captain Todd's mind. At 1:45 he hoisted a signal to the Winslow to go into the harbor and torpedo the gunboats.

There was not a sailor on the four ships who did not realize the terrific nature of the undertaking. The harbor was mined. The low margin of the coast inside the bay was lined with masked batteries, and five gunboats lay in a long black line around the western part, silent and ready for business. As the sharp prow of the Winslow turned dutifully toward the harbor and she swept smoothly past the Wilmington on her errand of death the sailors on the latter ship, ranged on the starboard rail, gave her three cheers. They were taken up by the sailors of the Machias and the Hudson. In the center of the wide harbor, like a globe of blood, swam a red buoy.

For days the Spanish had used this buoy as a target. They had it ranged perfectly. Right up to the target went the unsuspecting Winslow. She had halted and unslung the torpedo at the Spanish gunboats, when up from the southeast shore rose a billow of smoke about four masked batteries, and a moment later the air about the Winslow was shrieking with shells and shrapnel.

One of these four-inch shells burst six feet above the little crowd on the forward part of the vessel.

Ensign Bagley fell, with his head and the upper part of his body dreadfully shattered. The two sailors, Meek and Denfee, were killed so quickly that they never knew what struck them. Lieutenant Bernadou still stood unscathed, viewing the flying torpedo through his glasses. It reached its mark and utterly destroyed one of the gunboats.

At that moment another four-inch shell flew into the Winslow's engine room and exploded, mortally wounding John Varverez and Josiah Tunnell and injuring a sailor named Patterson.

Then began the utter riddling of the Winslow. Shells passed through her from right to left and from left to right. Her engines were crippled, her steering gear was broken. She lay helpless on the water. The Hudson was struck by several fragments of shells which cut up her funnels and ventilators to some extent before she began to haul the Winslow out. At 3:50 p. m. the Hudson brought her charge safely back to the Wilmington. The wounded were transferred to the Machias. Two of them, Tunnell and Varverez, died soon afterward. The

American boats went out to Pie dras Key, and at 9:10 last night the Hudson came slowly for this place with her cargo of dead.

And so it was that shortly after sunrise this morning the Hudson came slowly into port with ten human feet sticking out from beneath the folds of an American flag, lying across her after deck.

The funeral of the four dead sailors took place at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon. The four coffins were covered with floral gifts from the shipmates of the dead men, and the funeral cortege was composed of delegations from every vessel in the harbor. After a simple prayer at the cemetery the coffins were placed side by side in the grave.

THEY FOUGHT LIKE HEROES.

The Hudson's Gallant Rescue of the Winslow From the Mouth of Hades.

Key West, May 12.—From all sides shot and shell poured in on the little torpedo boat. The Wilmington and the Hudson still kept up their fire, but they could not turn aside the terrible storm of fire and death pouring in upon the torpedo boat.

The crew of the Winslow, however, never faltered for a second. At 2:30 a solid shot crashed into the Winslow and knocked out her boiler. In an instant she began to roll and rock helplessly. Then there was a moment of awful suspense. A cheer of triumph went up from the Spaniards on the gunboats and in the batteries, and again a storm of fire was opened upon the helpless boat.

The gunboat Hudson started to the assistance of the Winslow. She ran alongside the torpedo boat and tried to throw a line to the imperiled crew. Up to this time, with the exception of the one shot, which disabled the boiler of the Winslow, the firing of the Spanish gunboats had been wild, but as the Winslow lay rolling in the water the range grew closer and shells began to explode all about her. It was difficult for the Hudson to throw a line to the Winslow's crew, so terrible was the fire all about her.

Finally, after twenty minutes, the Hudson approached near enough to throw a line.

Ensign Bagley and six men were standing in a group on the deck of the Winslow.

"Heave her! Heave her!" shouted Bagley, as he looked toward the commander of the Hudson and called for a line.

"Don't miss it," shouted an officer from the Hudson, and with a smile Bagley called back. "Let her come. It's getting too hot here for comfort."

The line was thrown, and about the same instant a shell burst in the very midst of the group of men on board the Winslow.

Bagley was instantly killed, and a few others dropped about him. Half a dozen more fell groaning on the blood-stained deck. One of the dead men pitched headlong over the side of the boat, but his feet caught in the iron rail and he was hauled back.

Bagley's body was stretched on the deck with his face completely torn away and the upper part of his body shattered.

It was a terrible moment. The torpedo boat, disabled and helpless, still rolled and swayed under the fury of the fire from the Spanish gunboats.

When the shell burst in the group on board the Winslow another wild shout of triumph went up from the Spanish boat and batteries and again a heavy fire was opened on the torpedo boat.

Finally the Hudson succeeded in getting a line on board the Winslow and was towing her out of the deadly range when the line parted and both boats were at the mercy of the Spanish fire.

At 3:05 p. m. the Hudson managed to get another line on the deck of the Winslow, but there were only three men left at that time to make it fast. It was finally secured and the Winslow was towed up to Pedrias Island, where she was anchored with her dead and wounded on her deck.

Lieutenant Bernadou, with the surgeon bending over him tonight, told the story of the battle as calmly as if talking of the weather. He began:

"We went under full speed to attack the Spanish boats in the harbor, and you know the result. We went under orders from the commander of the Wilmington. Our boat is badly damaged, but she will be brought here for repairs, and I think she will be ready for service again in two weeks."

"The Winslow was the worst injured and had five of her men killed, and I don't know how many injured. We were ordered to attack the Spanish gunboats at Cardenas. We steamed in under full head and were fired upon as soon as we were in range. The Spanish boats were tied up at the docks and had a fair range on us. The batteries on shore also opened on us, and I think we received most of the fire. I don't know whether anyone was hurt on the Wilmington or the Hudson, but I think not."

"I have no fault to find with the Winslow's crew. They acted nobly all the way through. The men who were killed fell at the same time. We were standing in a group, and the aim of the Spanish was perfect. A shell burst in our very faces."

It is now known that the American boats made furious havoc with Cardenas harbor and town. The captain of the Hudson said:

"I know we destroyed a large part of their town near the wharves, burned one of their gunboats and I think destroyed two other torpedo destroyers. We were in a vortex of shot, shell and smoke and could not tell accurately, but we saw one of their boats on fire and sinking soon after the action began. Then a large building near the wharf, I think the barracks, took fire and many other buildings were soon burning. The Spanish had masked batteries on all sides of us. As soon as we got within range of their batteries they would move them. Our large boat could not get into the harbor to help us on account of the shallow water." Oilier Varverez had his throat cut open by a sharp piece of the shell, which had apparently severed his windpipe as if slashed with a razor.

Fireman Daniels had his left shoulder ripped up and the right side of his head torn open.

The body of Tunnell, the colored cook, shows no wounds.

Fireman Meeks was hit in the groin.

THE DISINTEGRATION OF A MULE.

"Our fleet engaged the enemy in a brilliant combat.
 The battle is a brilliant page in Spanish history. The Spanish Minister of Marine said it was difficult for him to restrain his joyful emotions."
 —[Spanish dispatches.]

All hail the sailors brave and cool
 Of Dewy's bold flotilla;
 For Spain has lost another mule,
 Away off in Manila.

A piece of shell took off his tail.
 He grinned the shattered bomb at.
 "It is our fleet," he said, "that meet
 The foe in brilliant combat."

A solid shot took off his ears;
 He smiled a smile of mystery.
 And said, "This will turn out a Brilliant page in Spanish history."

His tarboled legs were shot away.
 Yet still with smile sarcastic,
 "I am not mad," he said, "or said;
 I'm just enthusiastic."

Another shot! What fragments those
 That littered up the bay so?
 The mule, so coy just died of joy—
 The Spanish papers say so.

A HOME EXHIBIT.

At a Special Meeting of the Bureau of Agriculture Yesterday,
 Prof. Koebele, Entomologist,
 Was Given a Six Months' Leave of Absence to Hunt Pest Destroyers Abroad; and Secretary
 Clark Was Empowered to Arrange for a Permanent Public Exhibit in Honolulu of Island Productions.

From THE HAWAIIAN of to-day.]

A special meeting of the Bureau of Agriculture and Forestry was held at the office of the Minister of the Interior yesterday forenoon, the following members being present:
 Hon. Henry E. Cooper, president of the Board, T. J. King, E. W.
 Jordan, Wray Taylor and Byron
 O. Clark.

President Cooper stated the meeting was called to decide on what action should be taken regarding Professor Koebele making a trip to the United States to collect parasites for the horn fly, fluke, cut worms and other pests which are a menace to agricultural interests.
 On request of President Cooper;
 the Professor outlined the work to be done, saying the present was a dull time for his work here, and also the best time for carrying on the proposed work abroad.

Mr. Taylor said any work Prof.
 Koebele outlined should receive consideration.

Prof. Koebele said there are some birds that could be introduced as aids in keeping down the pests, but great care should be used, for any damage done by them is always noticed, and in such a case the benefits from them, be they ever so great, would not be appreciated.

It was moved by Mr. Taylor, seconded by Mr. Jordan, and unanimously carried, that Prof. Koebele be granted a six months' leave of absence to collect parasites, etc., one-half his expenses to be paid
 from the incidental expense fund,
 and one-half by the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association.

It was unanimously agreed that all soil importation, on plants or otherwise, when there was danger of introducing insect pests, should be prohibited; and any such soil attempted to be introduced should be destroyed at the expense of the importer.

The President stated that Secretary Clark wished to establish a permanent exhibit of the products of the Islands, also provide a suitable place for Professor Koebele to carry on the work of his department and arrange for the exhibition of his collection of insects, so the public can see them and become familiar with their appearance. This exhibit would make the results of the work carried on under the Bureau available as a source of information for the general public, as well as to show strangers visiting the Islands what can be produced here. It was moved by Mr. King and carried that Secretary Clark is instructed to carry out his plans under the supervision of the President of the Board.

On motion of Secretary Clark the rule prohibiting the forwarding of plants from one island to another, adopted August 4th, 1893, was repealed.

Adjourned to the regular monthly meeting on the first Friday in June.

SAURDAY, MAY 28, 1898.

With the good example of the Government in getting rid of unsightly and expensive wooden fences, the reform in appearances ought to move rapidly than hitherto extend among private landholders in town.

Church parades out of the expected visiting troops seem to have been overlooked. Another committee might come in well for this purpose, as there is a possibility of nine hundred soldiers arriving in the Australia tomorrow morning. Some of the ecclesiastical architecture, interior and exterior, of Honolulu is worthy of being classed among our "sights."

In Mr. Souza's letter on "Coffee Valuations," printed on Thursday, the average Brazil as quoted in London was given at 48s. 1d. per cwt. It should have been 28s. 1d., which anybody could discover who went over the figures of the sentence where the error occurred. The difference shown of 43s. 2d. in favor of Guatemalan, corresponding to Hawaiian grades, bears out what Mr. Souza and the BULLETIN had previously contended.

Owing to the misplacement of a copy for the editor, a valuable work on the agriculture of Hawaii has failed, for an undue time, to receive any notice from this paper. Reference is to a stout pamphlet of 186 pages, entitled, "Lavas and Soils of the Hawaiian Islands." Its author is Dr. Walter Maxwell, director and chief chemist of the Hawaiian Experiment Station and Laboratories, the subject matter being the result thus far of the investigations of that institution. Dr. Maxwell is competently aided by a staff consisting of J. T. Crawley and C. F. Eckart, chemists, and E. G. Clarke, field assistant. The pamphlet treats, first, of the origin and nature of Hawaiian soils, and, secondly, of the availability and loss of the elements of plant food in Hawaiian soils. It is of course too technical and elaborate for intelligible review in a brief newspaper article, but no argument is required to support the statement that the work is a body of information which is just what has been needed, and which must prove invaluable to further agricultural development of these islands. The work is embellished with a map and several engravings. Scientific information of the kind contained in this work is of the utmost benefit to farming men in every country and climate for which it is especially prepared. Most governments are giving increased attention nowadays to this branch of encouraging agriculture. There is all the more necessity for this sort of paternalism, from the evolution not to say revolution in tilling the soil produced by modern discoveries and labor-saving inventions, also from the fact that, with the increase of population, there is a contraction of available lands for cultivation which makes intensive farming imperative. Even with the prodigious operations in many lands for reclaiming desert wastes by artificial irrigation or draining as the cases require, the time is fast approaching when there will be more willing tillers of the soil than can be easily accommodated upon the available areas. Taking countries individually, on this consideration, it is not hard to calculate how long, under present circumstances, it will take to make a congested situation in Hawaiian agriculture. To make the most of the little area of land Hawaii contains, at the very best, is therefore one of the prime questions for solution. Dr. Maxwell's book is invaluable as promoting this end.

FAREWELL SHOW TONIGHT.

Last Performance of Circus-The Proprietor Will Locate in Honolulu.

Tonight Willison's Circus bids farewell to Honolulu. The season has not been from a pecuniary standpoint the success that was anticipated, but nevertheless the proprietor has done his utmost to maintain the excellent standard of his entertainment. On this great occasion will be presented a long program of equestrian events that promise to eclipse anything yet witnessed in the big tent. Young Kitchell will do his hurdle act for the last time, and appear with the acrobats.

The final scene in the tug-of-war will take place between the Kian team and the School street boys. This promises to be the great pull of the season. The Kian team is the strong favorite with the public, and there is sure to be great excitement over the contest. The show will exhibit at Wai-anae and Wai-anae next week prior to its departure from the islands. Mr. Willison has decided to remain in Honolulu with his wife and family, and start a business which he believes there is a good opening for. He has strong financial support in his new enterprise.

A New Departure.

We are very anxious to show the public what a co-operative store can do in the way of supplying the table with fresh imported groceries. So please don't forget that the Palama Co-operative Grocery Co.'s store is now open for business. First shipment of goods arrived per Mariposa from the coast. Among the many good things she brought are fresh frozen oysters, delicious smoked halibut, plate corn beef, 6 lb kits salt mackerel, smoked beef hams, 1 lb blocks creamery butter, and many other choice articles. This store has always enjoyed the reputation for low prices, but now under the co-operative plan we are better able than ever to compete with even our celestial competitors. No harm in giving us a trial. Telephone 755 till new issue of book. Goods delivered to all parts of city and suburbs. PALAMA CO-OPERATIVE GROCERY CO., LTD. Old stand, opposite Railway Depot, King street.

How Coffee Grows.

Translated from the Spanish Agricultural Encyclopedia, especially for THE HAWAIIAN, by E. Souza.

Description of the plant: Coffee belongs to the family of the Rubiceae, the plant being of a beautiful and elegant aspect. Its main root is cylindrical, or turnip shaped, and penetrates perpendicularly into the soil, and from the main root the secondary and capillary roots branch out. The trunk of the tree is thin, tender and flexible, and in Arabia it grows to a height of from 10 to 12 metres, but in some countries of America it is only allowed to grow from 4 to 6 feet, to facilitate the picking of the berries. Its bark as well as that of its branches is fine and of a dark color, and when dry it splits. The branches are somewhat cylindrical, and knotty at certain distances, and generally horizontal, being opposite, alternating two by two in the shape of a cross, the lower branches being less knotty and more horizontal than the upper ones. That is why in giving an idea of the state of development of a tree it is said to have one, two, three, four or more crosses, as the case may be. The wood of this tree, which is always green, has the noticeable peculiarity of forming a homogeneous mass, and for this reason it is one of the woody species that is free from the annual layers (medular radius) so well noticed at first sight in the trunks of the dicotyledonous plants when they are cut down horizontal, by which the age of the tree can be ascertained. The leaves are opposite to each other, are plain, even spear-shaped, undulating, and lustrous in the upper part and in general very much like the leaves of the laurel tree. The flowers are found in the axillae of the leaves; they are white, odoriferous, with an aroma that recalls that of the jasmine, being generally of five stamens (tubular-corolla) generally with five divisions, sharp pointed anthers, (limbs of the calyx) short, globular and adherent to the ovary.

The fruit is a red berry about the size of a small cherry; it is composed of a sweet pulp which encloses two small berries covered with a parchment; said berries when dry form the coffee of commerce. The berry is convex in the exterior part, flat and furrowed in the length of the interior face.

Climate: Coffee needs a medium temperature of about between 68° to 75° Fah.—therefore the coffee, next to sugar cane, is the plant that needs more heat, and for this reason it does not thrive well at elevations subject to frost.

In localities where heat and humidity act simultaneously the vegetation is more fertile and luxuriant and manifests itself under more varied aspects, but as the variety of special conditions that the plant requires for its development to a perfect physiological state, having such a powerful influence, it is not enough to fill the conditions of temperature alone, but these should be united to the necessary degree of humidity and light, together with the soil of suitable nature, which coffee needs perhaps more than any other plant growing in the equatorial regions.

Last week we drew your attention to the good qualities of the Aermotor Steel Windmill but did not mention the fact that although the Aermotor will pump more water than any other mill, even with a poor Pump, still even it will not do its best work unless attached to a good pump.

We keep in stock to go with our 16ft. geared mills the

The only place to go to get your decorations for the troops expected to arrive here on Sunday or Monday is the I. X. L. corner King and Nuuanu streets. They have on hand Stars and Stripes bunting; red, white and blue festooning, etc.

The new cars building for the Tramways Co. will be fitted with acetylene gas lamps. One already so equipped was out for a trial the other night and the light gave complete satisfaction. As soon as possible all the cars of the company will have the new illuminant.

RECORD DECISION.

Made in Summer Case - Probate and Other Matters at Chambers.

In the case of John K. Sumner, a non compos mentis, by his next friend Maria S. Davis vs. Robert Wilcox, Theresa Wilcox, Abin and Ninito Sumner, Judge Perry has filed a decision on the motion to dissolve the temporary injunction which is one of the shortest on record. It reads verbatim: "Under all the circumstances of this case, the motion to dissolve the temporary injunction heretofore issued herein is denied. Kinney & Ballou and J. A. Magoon for plaintiff; A. S. Hartwell for Ninito Sumner and W. R. Castle and P. L. Weaver for the other respondents.

In the estate of Kate S. Tregloan, bankrupt, Judge Perry this morning granted the petition of the assignee authorizing him to release all his right, title and interest to the family premises on Beretania street and execute a deed therefor, under an agreement made with the creditors of said estate. J. A. Magoon for the assignee, W. H. Baird.

In the case of Maria Fernandez vs. J. M. Camara, administrator of the estate of Jose Catano Pacheco, a bond for costs in the sum of $100 was filed this morning.

In the case of F. Botelho vs. Frank Ferreira satisfaction of judgment has been filed by plaintiff's attorney, Charles Creighton.

In the case of J. M. McChesney vs. J. H. Fisher, defendant's notes of exceptions of the trial have been filed, together with an amended motion for a new trial. Humphries & Gear for defendant.

Bills of exception were filed this morning in the cross suits of E. C. Hobron vs. Hikaalani Hobron and Hikaalani Hobron vs. E. C. Hobron.

In the case of Victoria Ward vs. C. S. Desky et al. a motion has been filed to set the demurrer for trial in June.

Band Engagements.

The band will not play at Emma square Monday, as it is Memorial Day. On the three following evenings it will play as follows: Tuesday at Makee Island, Wednesday at Thomas square and Thursday at the Hotel.

STOCK RANGE AND DAIRY.

From THE HAWAIIAN of to-day.

The article by Dr. Rowat on the Horn Fly, published in last Saturday's HAWAIIAN, was very interesting to me, as it must have been to all ranchers and dairymen on this Island. This pest in other countries (especially in America) appears periodically and for a short time only, but owing to the evenness of our climate we can scarcely expect it to be anything less than a perpetual source of annoyance.

It resembles the common house fly in general appearance, except that it is only a little more than one-half its size, and has perhaps a trifle more color in its wings. It is armed with a proboscis which it protrudes or retracts at will; with this it punctures the skin of the animal it attacks and sucks the blood, causing thereby intolerable irritation and annoyance.

The poor infuriated beast endeavors, as best it can with head and horns, to ward off these attacks. The first effect of this irritation is that the hair is removed in patches, the skin cracked and excoriated, in which state the common house fly quickly finds an opportunity to bite and further irritate the animal. High bred animals, owing to the thinness of their skin, scanty coat and nervous temperament, seem to suffer most.

There is at present no known treatment except that which will give temporary relief, such as the application of washes, lotions, oils, etc., the smell of which is offensive to the pest.

Those recommended are decoctions of the leaves of the water pepper, walnut, etc., carbolic washes, and such oils as fish oil, crude petroleum, cade, carbolic, etc.; but these must be re-applied from time to time to be effective.

When it is known that it only takes fifteen days for the fly to mature, it can readily be realized how rapidly this pest may increase.

Yours respectfully,

A. R. ROWAT,
Vet. Surgeon.

Honolulu, May 23rd, 1898.

Horn Fly in the United States.

The Horn Fly is given considerable attention in the published report of the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States. In the report of 1889 it is stated that "much time has already been given to the thorough investigation of the horn fly, a pest to horned cattle newly imported from Europe. This insect was first noticed in the United States in about 1887, in the vicinity of Philadelphia, and has since greatly increased and spread to the southward along the Atlantic States until, in 1889, it had reached southern Virginia. It is a serious drawback to the stock and dairy interests of the localities which it has reached, very greatly reducing the condition of cattle and the yield of milk. The complete life history has been followed out, and field experiments have been made, which result in establishing satisfactory remedies and preventatives."

There are several popular names for the horn fly, and also many errors in regard to it. The name "horn fly" has been quite generally adopted, and, as was stated by Professor Koebele in THE HAWAIIAN last week, has reference to the habit which the flies, have particularly early in the season, of settling in large numbers around the base of the horns. It has also been called the "Texas Fly," the "Buffalo Fly" and the "Buffalo Gnat." These names indicate erroneous popular impressions that the insect came from the western part of the United States. It is an error to suppose that the fly damages the horn, yet this has been often stated in the newspapers. Some persons believe that the fly eats into the horn, causing it to rot, and lays eggs in it which hatch into maggots and thus penetrate the brain. There is absolutely no foundation for this opinion.

The eggs are deposited during daylight, chiefly between 9 A. M. and 4 P. M., and more particularly during the warmer morning hours.

They are laid singly and usually upon their sides upon the surface of wet dung the moment the latter is dropped. So far as known they are laid upon no other substance, and never upon old dung. The larva upon hatching descend into the dung, remaining, however, rather near the surface. When full grown they are about two-fifths of an inch in length and of normal color and form. The puparium is formed in the ground beneath the dung. The time elapsing from the egg to the adult is from ten to seventeen days, averaging, say, two weeks, and there are probably seven or eight generations annually. The winter habits (in the United States) have not been definitely determined. Hibernation doubtless takes place normally either as an adult around stables, or as a puparium below the surface of the ground. The flies make their appearance in May, becoming most abundant in July, and gradually dwindling (in the United States) until November, or until sharp frosty nights become frequent. The characteristic habit of clustering about the base of the horn is developed only when the flies are quite abundant. When they average only one hundred or so to an animal comparatively few will be found on the horn. Moreover the horn-clustering habit seems to be more predominant early in the season than later. The horns are not the only resting places as vast numbers cluster also upon the back, between the head and the fore shoulders, where they can be reached by neither head nor tail. In the feeding position the wings are slightly elevated, and are held out from the body at an angle of 60° from the abdomen; the legs are held out widely, and the beetle, inserted beneath the skin of the animal, is held in nearly a perpendicular position. The fly, before inserting its beak, works its way through the hair close to the skin, but it is able, at a fling of the tail or an impatient turn of the head, to rise instantaneously in flight, settling back as quickly. The fly itself may be readily recognized from the figures. It is about one-half the size of the housefly, which it resembles in general appearance.

Amount of Damage.

It is true that the accounts of the damage done by the horn fly have been greatly exaggerated, and probably no deaths have resulted from the bites of the flies. There can be no question, however, but that, when numerous, they effect stock injuriously, reducing flesh, while in the case of milk cows the yield of milk is unanimously stated to be reduced from one-fourth to one-half. This is a point on which dairymen cannot possibly be mistaken. There is, moreover, quite a common belief that the bites will eventually produce sores. It seems, however, that the flies are only indirectly the cause of such spots. The irritation caused by the bites causes the animals to rub themselves violently and severely against trees and fences, and to constantly lick such points as the neighborhood of the bag and the inside of the hind thighs, which they cannot well reach in any other way. The sores are probably brought about in that way.

Preventative Applications.

The interesting and valuable communication of this department this week, written by Dr. Rowat, gives a list of the best preventatives. Almost any greasy substance will keep the flies away for several days. Train oil, axle grease, tallow and fish oil have been used with success. If a little carbolic acid is added it will have a healing effect upon sores that may have been formed.

To Destroy the Fly.

As stated by Professor Koebele last week, kerosene emulsion spray, and proprietary substances sold to kill the flies, are of not much practical value. That is doctoring the effect, not the cause. The larva must be destroyed before much headway can be made against the pest.

In the special consular report on the Australian sheep and wool industry, issued from the Bureau of Statistics, Department of State, Washington, D. C., is this reference to the fluke pest: "Fluke prevails in some portions of this (Australian) colony, and the following preventatives are used, viz: turpentine, sulphate of iron, Liverpool salt, and sulphur. As this disease originates in swampy, low, innutritious country, means are being taken, by surface draining, to get rid of the swamps or stagnant water. Where practicable the sheep are removed to salt-bush country or to country partaking as much as possible of saline properties, and if they are not very badly affected they fatten for market."

Condition of Stock on Hawaii.

Dr. Elliot has made a trip up the coast the past week as far as Laupahoehoe. He reports less cases for the veterinary than usual through the country.—[Hilo Tribune.]

Murray and Black Leg in Cattle.

W. B. M. wants a cure for murrain and black leg in cattle. The word murrain is applied to the foot and mouth disease and the word dry murrain is applied to impaction of the third stomach with dry food. We do not know which disease is meant. Black leg is caused by turning young stock from poor food to rich. Such animals thrive with great rapidity until they attain a high degree of plethora. The lymphatics and blood vessels become overfilled by fluid which exudes through their walls into the tissues, causing inflammation of the part, terminating in mortification and death. Prevention and treatment: Do not turn cattle into rich pastures and leave them there. After the animals have been on such pasture for an hour, turn them back to the poor pasture for the remainder of the day and there will be no danger of black leg. If the animal is not too far gone give from 1 to 1½ lbs. Epsom salts dissolved in ½ gallon of water at a dose. Follow this with tincture of iron, tincture of ginger, tincture of gentian, 1 oz each mixed in ½ pt. of cold water three times a day for a week. Open the swellings and wash them out with carbolic acid ½ oz. to the quart of water. A little of this should be injected with a hypodermic syringe all around the swelling. If matter forms wash out the part once daily with a little of the carbolic lotion.—[American Agriculturist.]

Weakness and Nervousness.

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for weakness of the spine and nervousness, and in a short time it had done me a great deal of good. I cannot recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla too highly. I have never been troubled as much with weakness since taking Hood's." Mary E. Lewis, E. University Ave., Guthrie, Okla. Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Easy and yet efficient.

Feast of the Holy Ghost.

From THE HAWAIIAN of today.

For about two weeks past the attention of passers-by on Fort and Beretania streets has been arrested by elaborate preparations that were being made in the grounds of the Roman Catholic Church of Honolulu; and those whose curiosity prompted them to make inquiries were informed that the Portuguese residents of the city were getting ready to celebrate the Feast of the Holy Ghost, to-day and to-morrow. Booths and platforms have been erected, as well as a somewhat pretentious building with open front and sides, and an altar in the rear end. In this building is to be held the feast given to twelve poor men, who are to represent Christ's apostles at the Last Supper. Besides the preparations named, the right-angular court has been lined on each side by framework from which many colored electric lamps have been hung, and which, being aglow to-night, will give the premises, thronged with people, an enchanting, if not a fairy-like appearance. Father Valentine, of the Cathedral, has kindly furnished THE HAWAIIAN the following notes, which are fully explanatory of this festival, and which will no doubt be interesting reading to people of all religious faiths:

Origin: St. Elizabeth, or Ysabel, Queen of Portugal in the beginning of the 14th century, on the occasion of an epidemic, made a vow; if the disease would cease, to offer her royal crown and sceptre to the Church of the Holy Ghost in Lisbon. After the calamity was over she went herself to the said church and offered the crown. At the same time a banquet was given to the poor of the city, and Elizabeth served at the table of twelve poor men, in commemoration of the Last Supper of the Lord. This festival was renewed every year, and spread all over the country. In emigrating the Portuguese carried their custom with them.

Emblems of the Feast: Crown, royal gift of the queen. Sceptre, same significance. Dove: in the Catholic Church this is the emblem of the third person of the Holy Trinity, the Holy Ghost. See in the New Testament, at the baptism of the Lord by St. John, the Holy Ghost appeared under the emblem of a dove.

Banquet of twelve poor men: The good works of charity are always united with religion. The distribution of alms is in commemoration of the first feast in Portugal.

The banquet: To defray the expenses of the feast. In the olden time money was scarce, and therefore the poor people contributed to the feast by offering all kinds of products, as fruits, vegetables, cattle, etc. Those offerings were sold during the day to the highest bidder.

As in all institutions, in course of time different abuses have been introduced; but this does not destroy the good effects of the original feast. It became a national holiday kept by every true patriot—as in other countries are kept the days of independence, or something similar. No idolatry is intended in paying respect—not adoration—to the image of the Holy Ghost, as every well posted man in religion knows very well that the Catholics do not adore, but pay respect to, the image of the Saint to whom their demonstrations are directed.

This feast of the Holy Ghost is celebrated on the day of Pentecost, which is the day of the Holy Ghost in the liturgy of the Roman Catholic Church, as in many others. One thing is sure, that the principal aim of the feast in the origin, as in these days, is laudable in religious and national views, and that an abuse introduced later on is not the condemnation of the whole affair. Too much religion is superstition or bigotry, as no religion creates infidelity.

"Pentecost" is defined in the en-cyclopædia as being one of the principal festivals of the Jews, celebrated on the fiftieth day after the Passover. It was originally called the "Feast of Weeks," took place at the beginning of harvest-time, was characterized by the offering, as "first fruits," of two loaves of leavened bread made from new grain, and was a period of liberality to the poor. In modern times the Jewish festival of the Pentecost lasts two days, and the anniversary of the giving of the Law on Sinai has been combined with the earlier festival.

In the Christian Churches the word has a different meaning, derived from the occurrences related in Acts II., viz: the descent of the Holy Spirit upon the infant Church ten days after the Ascension, the gift of tongues and the conversion of 3,000 persons. In the English Church Pentecost is known as Whitsunday, or Whitsuntide (occurring to-morrow) from the white garments formerly worn by candidates for baptism.

Synopsis of second chapter of the Acts: 1. The Apostles, filled with the Holy Ghost, and speaking divers languages, are admired by some and derided by others. 14. Whom Peter disapproving, and shewing that the apostles spake by the power of the Holy Ghost, that Jesus was risen from the dead, ascended into heaven, had poured down the same Holy Ghost, and was the Messiah, a man known to them to be approved of God by his miracles, wonders and signs, and not crucified without his determinate counsel and knowledge. 37. He baptizeth a great number that were converted. 41. Who afterwards devoutly and charitably converse together: the apostles working many miracles, and God daily increasing his Church.

We Know By Experience

Wise men use the experience of others and make it their own. Those who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla are the ones who are competent to speak of its merits. The testimonials of cures by Hood's constitute a vast mass of testimony which proves the power of this medicine to cure a great variety of diseases. These cures often seem marvelous, yet they are perfectly natural and are easily explained. They are the necessary result of purifying and enriching the blood. "I have been troubled with scrofula all my life, and it effected my eyes so that I was obliged to remain in a dark room. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Now my eyes are so strong that the light never troubles me, and my health is good." Mrs. CARRIE WEEKS, Lompoc, Cal.

Interesting to Collectors.

What is of interest to collectors of debt and trustees happened the other day in Judge Stanley's court in the case entitled Wm. L. Peterson vs. M. A. Titcomb, defendant, and Henry Smith, garnishee. The defendant is a beneficiary under the will of the late Charles Titcomb. In the District Court of Honolulu judgment was awarded to plaintiff for the sum of $60, and the garnishee was held liable. The latter disputed his liability and took an appeal to the Circuit Court, on the ground that he did not think he could be held liable to two courts, namely, the District Court and the Probate Court. In the Circuit Court the garnishee gave testimony that he had not yet had any adjustment of his account before the probate judge, and he could not say whether the balance would stand either for or against the beneficiary, consequently there was nothing tangible which could be attached at the time of serving the summons. It may be that, upon rendering an account, the beneficiary would stand indebted to the trustee, and so the court discharged his liability. In other words, there can be no attachment upon prospective earnings in any estate.

NEW ZEALAND INTEREST.

That Brave Insular Colony Has Strong Sympathy With America.

"Our Letter Home" of the New Zealand Herald has references to the war, which are here condensed:

"A very lively interest has been taken here in the war between the United States and Spain. The balance of sympathy has all along been with America. To some extent, New Zealand is affected by the war. From Auckland we send to America a large portion of our kauri gum exports, while from the United States we obtain kerosene and many other articles of considerable consumption. The price of kerosene has been materially increased, while the kauri gum market is dull, and the prices offered are lower.

"Previous to the outbreak of hostilities, and more particularly since, public attention has been strongly directed to the defence of the colony. At a recent volunteer meeting in Wellington, the Premier stated that the Government had decided to increase the volunteer force to 7000, and had ordered 5000 rifles and 1000 carbines, besides 4,000,000 rounds of ammunition."

Here is a news item from the Herald:

"The singing of 'The Star Spangled Banner' evoked a display of wild enthusiasm among a Dunedin audience recently."

Memorial Service.

The following is the program for the Grand Army Memorial Service to be held at the Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow night:

Hymn, "God the Nation's Guardian."
Prayer.
Scripture Lesson.
Anthem.
Hymn, "Our Native Land."
Sermon, by the Rev. G. L. Pearson.
Hymn, "Battle Hymn of the Republic."
Hymn, "America."
Benediction.
