HUSTED AT VOLCANO

The Directory Man Says It's a Great Sight.

Madame Pele is really on one of her periodicals and the show she puts up is quite superior to a three ring circus and menagerie, with side shows thrown in. Many people in Honolulu are sceptical about the genuineness of the performance, but it's a sure thing; all wool and a yard wide.

I saw the crater twelve years or so ago when it attracted tourists from everywhere, and conditions now are exactly the same as then, except that the lake of blazing spouting lava is down the pit of Halemaumau about 700 feet instead of 250. The distance adds to, rather than detracts from, the awe-inspiring grandeur of the spectacle. A lake of liquid fire a thousand feet across! From the margin, all around, jets of flaming lava spout up a hundred feet in all directions faster than you can count them. From the middle of the lake every twenty seconds or so a mighty column of fire leaps up, thrown high in air by volumes of gases escaping from below, while weird uncanny shadows chase each other up and down the jagged walls. It's a shivery, fascinating sight that sends a chilly thrill along your nerves and keeps you chained till the Indian guide gets sleepy and warns you that the lights go out at the Volcano house at twelve.

These are Madame Pele's playful models. You may sit upon the brink for hours basking in her radiant warmth and watch the gambols of her fiery elves, returning unmolested to your supper and your bed at the Volcano house (it is said there never has been an accident at the crater Kilauea), but let her be aroused to action and her wrath shakes earth and darkens heaven. She pours out a fiery flood that scorches and withers as it goes, drinking up all life and leaving in its wide swath only the "abomination of desolation."

On the highest point of the crater's rim serenely sits the Volcano House furnishing solid comfort and good cheer to the weary globe trotter. In sight of the furnace of Halemaumau the manager grows in perfection all the vegetables of the temperate zone, pastures his cows and horses, goes about his business, never losing a moment's sleep on account of the fact that Hades is located in his front yard. I wonder if the wicked will in time become accustomed to, let us say the inconveniences of the nether world and find it not so intolerable as Dante and some others would have us think.

SAGHALIEN WILL BECOME JAPANESE

A Russian paper, the Ssyn Otestchestva, recently published an article in which the view was expressed that Saghalien is already lost to Russia, since the Japanese may arrive there at any moment. Last January, it states, the wives and children of the privileged officials of South Saghalien were taken by steamer to Vladivostok, while many of the islanders of the northern part journeyed across the ice to Nikolaieffsk. The island has but very little sugar, flour, or petroleum, but there are supplies of vodka, salt meat, and black bread. Bands of volunteers have been raised among the settlers and convicts. There are nine guns at Korssakoffski Post; but if the Japanese appear the Russians will have to retire northwards to Vladimirk, a village twenty miles distant. About March 28 the roadstead of Korssakoffski Post will be ice-free, and the herring fishery will begin on April 14. These fisheries are of immense importance to the Japanese.

The Journal referred to says that doubtless the Japanese will take care to utilize the natural riches of the island, and that the role of the island to serve as a place for "the moral improvement of mentally diseased men is played out. But what will the Japanese do with the convicts? They can scarcely leave them on the island; probably they will transport the hungry people to the mainland somewhere near Vladivostok, and let them roam about in search of a living." According to the census taken in 1897, Saghalien had 25,000 inhabitants, comprising 6,000 convicts sentenced to hard labor, 3,000 soldiers and officials, 3,000 natives, e.g., Gilyaks, Ainzes, and Tunguses, 6,000 settlers who had served their sentences as convicts, and 6,000 wives and children of "involuntary colonists."—Kobe Herald.

PROBLEM OF THE MILITIA

What is to be Done With the National Guard?

Now it is the problem of the disposition of the militia that confronts Governor Carter. The appropriation has failed, as everybody knows, and the question now is whether to disband the organization, or call upon the people who want to keep up the militia organization to go down into their pockets and contribute to its support.

And, in connection with this stranding of the militia, there is one point that seems to have been overlooked. There is in the possession of the National Guard of Hawaii about $40,000 or $45,000 worth of arms and accoutrements belonging to the War Department. Now, the Territory is responsible for this military paraphernalia, guns and what not, and of course, with the lapsing of the military appropriation, there is no provision made for the care of it.

"It was a mistake," said Governor Carter yesterday, "to charge that the effort made to get the Legislature to appropriate money for boxing these accoutrements for shipment to Washington was childish, or spite work. I certainly had no feeling in the matter. The Legislature had a perfect right to cut off the militia, if it saw fit. But, we are responsible for the accoutrements, and provision should have been made for boxing them for shipment. That would be all we would have to do. I took $70 from my incidental fund some time ago to box some Springfield rifles for shipment. The government had called for them, and we had to send them back. And the militia had no money."

"But my incidental fund could not stand this strain. Some time before the militia bill was beaten, I had Colonel Jones make an estimate of what it would cost to box the stuff, and $500 was the figure. The quartermaster will receive the accoutrements, but we have to box them properly."

"But, I am in something of a quandary, and it is my present purpose to invite a number of leading citizens to conference on the point as to what shall be done with the militia. Of course, there could be no popular objection to the force being kept up by private subscription, if the men who think it is needed are willing to pay for it. I suppose it could be done for between $3000 and $4000 a year, provided that men would volunteer their time to keep the records and look after the property. I understand that they have been doing that now for about a year past over there at the bungalow."

"I do not like to ask for private subscriptions for a thing of this kind, but I would like very much to hear some expressions of public opinion upon the matter. And, to that end, I have about determined to invite a conference. But I have not settled, as yet, just how I will go about it."

GOLF LINKS FOR KAPIOLANI PARK

At a meeting of the Kapiolani Park Board yesterday afternoon the most important matter considered was the subject of park finances, the Legislature having failed to make any appropriation for the work at its late session. President Cleghorn, of the Park Commission, and Superintendent of Public Works Holloway were appointed a committee to wait upon the Oahu County Board of Supervisors, as soon as that body should have been elected, and endeavor to induce it to make a suitable appropriation for keeping up the park.

Alexander Young presented a request for permission to lay out golf links in the park, and the request was granted upon condition that the expense of the links should be borne by the parties making the request. The links are to be laid out under the direction of the superintendent of the park, and are to be so located that they will not interfere with the ball ground.

Several matters of minor moment were also considered by the commissioners.

POLITICIANS GET MONEY FOR COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Brown, Waterhouse and Adams Out on Collecting Tour. Governor Carter Says He is in Favor of Decentralization.

Following Arthur Brown's straddle of the question of whether he was or was not against the administration, the Republican candidate for sheriff went around town yesterday, accompanied by Ned Adams, candidate for supervisor and Treasurer Waterhouse of the County Campaign Committee, soliciting financial aid from the merchants for the campaign. It was said last night that they had done fairly well in the way of collections.

It is not true that the Republican Territorial Committee, at its meeting on next Saturday night, will take the county tangle into consideration. The Territorial Committee has no business to meddle in the affair—and could not stand behind an anti-administration move, if it had. Governor Carter is a Republican, put into office by a Republican President, and if the Republican Territorial Committee is a Republican body, it must of necessity hold up the hands of President Roosevelt and his appointee. Or, if it does not, then naturally it need not hope to be consulted in the matter of patronage. Also, if it rebels against the President—and the President should ever find out—there might be something doing. For, of course, Teddy would strain a good many points to stand well with the Republican organization down here. You know, there is beginning to be some talk on the mainland about his desire for another term.

The plain fact of the matter seems to be that the Republican county convention committed the discourtesy of failing to endorse specifically the administration of President Roosevelt. It is a thing no mainland convention would have omitted, but they know how better there, being accustomed to such things. The county committee merely sought to repair the error of the county convention, which, of course, must have been an inadvertence, and the anti-administration men tried to turn that inadvertence into a victory for themselves before the county committee acted.

It is an unfortunate situation, politically speaking, but it might be worse. There might be a condition under which independent Republicans would not consider themselves absolved from local party allegiance. Of course, a Republican candidate who does not acknowledge allegiance to the Republican President cannot claim anything from Republicans who do.

"I am not opposed to county government," said Governor Carter yesterday, discussing the matter that is of such wide interest to the people of the Territory just now.

"I am opposed to the present County Act. I do not think that it is constitutional, nor do I think that it would prove satisfactory in its working. If this act should stand, I believe that within a year the people who have most ardently supported it will be the ones to condemn it."

"Perhaps, after awhile, the people of this Territory will learn to know me. Maybe, too, I will learn to know them better. But if anybody thinks that I am trying to build up a political machine here, or that I want to perpetuate myself in power, he has but to wait until my term of office expires to see how gladly I will lay down power."

"So far from that, I think that the decentralization of power is a good thing, and a wise thing in many respects, if the power upon its transfer goes into good hands. But those who are to receive power should begin and grow up to the use of it. Why, if I wanted to hold power myself, I certainly would not be in favor of municipal government."

Now, whether the political enemies of the Governor will permit him the American privilege of an honest difference of opinion from them upon a question of public policy is another question, but he certainly could not declare more squarely that in all or most of this county act controversy he has been decidedly misrepresented by his opponents.

As to the County Act litigation, there seems small doubt that the Supreme Court will decide the case today. And while there is no way of forecasting the decision with any degree of certainty, there was an impression among minor office holders at the Capitol yesterday that the decision would not be upon the merits of the act at all, but upon the secondary point of jurisdiction. And, as to that, there were all kinds of prophecies.

THE BALTIC FLEET BEFORE THE DISASTER OFF KOREA

The Kobe Herald says: The S.C. Morning Post states that the captain of a steamer which recently arrived at Hongkong reported that Saigon was simply inundated with provisions and that enormous quantities were being shipped to Kamranh as fast as they could be taken. So great had become the accumulation that part of the material was landed on the beach, from whence lighters were constantly employed in transferring it to the warships as required. The natives came down river in shoals—the news of the Fleet's wants having quickly spread far inland—and their boats and beasts were loaded with all manner of products. ELECTION INSPECTORS

List of Men to Serve in Fourth and Fifth Districts.

The Governor has completed his list of election inspectors to serve in the Fourth and Fifth Districts, at the coming county election, provided there is a county election. The list, which with that published in the Advertiser sev-

T. K. K. BOATS MAY RESUME RUNS AGAIN

Now that the Russo-Japanese war is practically over it is probable that the Toyo Kisen Kaisha company will be able to resume its steamship business with Honolulu and San Francisco in a couple of months. The company's three steamships, the America Maru, Nippon Maru and Hongkong Maru,
have formed a part of Admiral Togo's fleet of warships, the three vessels having been converted into cruisers and used as scout ships. All three have been heard of from time to time, and one or two of the T. K. K. fleet succeeded in capturing contraband vessels.
The three vessels are very popular in Honolulu. Their return to the old route will increase the number of our mail day.

CONSULAR NEWS OF THE GREATEST NAVAL VICTORY

More Details of the Battle of the Korean Straits---Afternoon Cablegrams From the Seat of War.

WASHINGTON, June 1, 1905.

To the JAPANESE CONSUL-GENERAL, Honolulu:

The eighth report from Togo is as follows:

"The commander of the Kasuga, who returned this afternoon with survivors from the Dmitri Donskoi, reports that the Donskoi on the morning of May 29, the Kingston valve having been opened by the crew, sank, and those on board, including survivors from the Oslabia and destroyer Bouinui, landed at Ulsung Island."It appears that the Bouinui took aboard Rojstvensky and his staff before the sinking of the flagship on the afternoon of the 27th of May, and also 200 men from the Oslabia, but finding navigation difficult, transferred Rojstvensky and his staff to the Biedoni, and, while running northward, met in the morning of May 28 the Donskoi, to which all aboard were transferred, and the Bouinui was sunk."The Oslabia, according to other survivors' statements, had her conning tower struck at the first straight shot of the battle on May 27, and Admiral Voelkersam was killed. After receiving a succession of shots she sank at about 3 p. m. The survivors of the Donskoi say that they saw two destroyers sinking in the thick of the battle at noon on May 27. This, if true, makes five Russian destroyers sunk."

TAKAHIRA.

WASHINGTON, June 1, 1905.

To the JAPANESE CONSUL-GENERAL, Honolulu:

The seventh report made by Admiral Togo from the reports of our various divisions runs as follows:"It appears that the Oslabia was seriously damaged in the early stage of the battle on the 27th of May, and left the line and sank at 5 p. m. The Sissoi Veliky, Nakhimoff and Vladimir Monomakh suffered heavily at midday on May 27, and were so damaged by the night attack of our destroyer and torpedo boat flotillas that they were completely put out of action. They were discovered next morning drifting near Tsushima by our converted cruisers, Shinanamaru, Yawatamaru, Tainanmaru and Sadomaru, but sank before the capture of the survivors. About 915 survivors were taken up by the converted cruisers above mentioned and by inhabitants on the coast."It is certain from the statement of prisoners that the Navarin was struck by four torpedoes from our torpedo boat flotillas and sunk. According to the reports from the commander of the Niitaka the Svetlana was discovered at 9 a. m. on May 28 off Chihuhen Bay of Korea and sunk by the Nii-taka and the Otowa."The Aurora and the Almaz are suspected to have sunk during our torpedo attack on the night of May 27. The fate of the Jemtchug, which was previously reported to have sunk, is uncertain after all."Eight battleships, three armored cruisers, and three coast defense ironclads, which formed the Russian main force, were sunk or captured and most of the second-class cruisers and other subsidiary vessels were destroyed, so that the whole Russian squadron was practically annihilated."Regarding the damage to our fleet, subsequent reports show that during the night attack of May 27 the torpedo boats 24, 25 and 69 were sunk, but most of their crews were rescued by their companions; otherwise no ship whatever was lost. The damages to our larger vessels, including destroyers, are very slight, and none of them is incapacitated for action. Our total casualties so far estimated are 800."As nearly the whole of the Japanese and Russian fleets were engaged in the battle, the line was greatly extended. Moreover, as the weather was misty, it was impossible to see more than five miles, and therefore I was unable to keep in sight of all the divisions under me even in day time. Besides the battle extended over two days and nights, and as our various divisions attacked the enemy scattering in every direction, and some are engaged in duties subsequent to the battle, it will be some days before details can be forwarded."

WILL HELP THE ISLANDS

Importers Asked to Enter the Shipments
Through Hawaiian
Ports.

The Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce have taken in hand the important matter of inducing island importers to have their goods
entered and cleared through the island ports of entry direct, instead of having them entered at Custom Houses on the mainland. And this is a much more important matter than it perhaps looks to be on its face. The ports of the entire United States are graded, naturally, and so are considered according to the amount of their imports and exports. That port carries the strongest appeal, to the Congress and to the mercantile world, which makes the largest showing of imports and exports. There is no good reason why all goods imported for the island market should not come to the islands direct, as such shipment would materially advance island interests.

The two bodies having the matter in charge have addressed the following circular letter to the principal importers of the Territory:

Honolulu Chamber of Commerce.
Honolulu Merchants' Association.
HONOLULU, May 20th, 1905.

To the Merchants of the Territory of Hawaii:

The attention of merchants who have occasion to import goods from abroad
for island consumption or distribution is invited to the importance of using the ports of this Territory as ports of entry for their goods whenever practicable.

An investigation of the conditions that prevail discloses the fact that while many merchants make it an invariable rule to order their importations shipped direct to island ports
when possible, or, if it is necessary to bring them into this country by way of other ports, to order that the goods
be forwarded to this Territory in bond and the property cleared through the various Island Custom Houses, such is not the universal practice. Some of our merchants apparently permit goods to be sent to the islands from abroad by way of other United States ports when ample shipping facilities exist for their direct importation, and such goods, as well as those necessarily imported via other ports, are often permitted to be entered at the Custom House at the port of arrival rather than at island
ports.

As a result of this practice the importations officially credited to the Territory of Hawaii are undoubtedly considerably below what they should be.
It has been suggested that in some lines importations have been encouraged via other ports in the past because of delays in handling at island ports,
due to imperfect system and organization at the appraisers' stores. However this may have been in the past,
there is general agreement among merchants who have dealings at the various Custom Houses that the present service at the appraisers' stores is excellent, and that delays are now reduced to the minimum; in fact, that ordinarily quicker service is given through local ports than through other large ports.

It is desirable, in the interest of the standing of the islands and the increased prestige which comes with elevation in rank among the great ports of the country, that these islands should be credited with the imports of all foreign merchandise consumed
within them or distributed from them.

In this connection it should be borne in mind that the volume of traffic
through these ports and the collections from customs duties have a very important bearing upon Congressional appropriations for harbor improvements and for other public works necessary to the commercial development of this Territory.

The undersigned, having been appointed a committee by their respective organizations to bring this matter to the attention of the merchants of the islands, take the liberty of suggesting that it is the patriotic duty of every merchant to see that all goods destined for this Territory that are necessarily imported via other United States ports are ordered forwarded to the islands in bond or by an immediate transportation entry, and the goods entered at local Custom Houses. By so doing they will render valuable assistance in building up the commerce of our ports and will also, we believe, serve in a very substantial manner their own interests.

Very respectfully,
W. LANZ, Chairman,
R. F. LANGE,
A. A. YOUNG,
E. A. MCINERNEY,
M. PHILLIPS,
J. F. HUMBERG.

lulu Chamber of Commerce
and Honolulu Merchants' Association.

STREETS OF NEW YORK TONIGHT

"Streets of New York" which the Ellefelds will present this evening is possessed of much literary merit and is filled with numerous situations of a sufficiently striking nature to keep the interest of the audience up to the highest pitch from the first rise to the final fall of the curtain. The scenes of the play are laid in New York city and it deals with the trials and tribulations

of the poor of that great metropolis.

The story deals with an old sea captain who makes a deposit with a banker, named Bloodgood, for the benefit of his family and after making the deposit hears rumors on the street that the banker is about to fail. He returns and asks for his money, but before he receives it he dies suddenly and the banker keeps the money on which he builds a fortune. The sea captain's family are in want and are helped out by an old Tater man. The banker is unmasked in the end by his old clerk and the money is restored. There will be the banker's office, the outside of the Opera House, Union Square, the tenement house and the burning of the tenement. There is a vein of rollicking comedy and all the climaxes are exciting.

At the matinee tomorrow afternoon
"Jack and the Beanstalk" and on Monday next, which will be the last week
this season of the Ellefelds, there will be the latest moving picture "The Japanese Hero."

GLEANERS' SALE WAS A SUCCESS

Under the spreading trees that shade
the broad lawn of the Castle residence at Victoria and Kinaiu streets the Missionary Gleaners held their Bag and Notion Sale "for sweet charity's sake" yesterday afternoon. The spacious lanal of the residence itself was devoted to the sale of the various dainty creations evolved by the skillful fingers of the girls and their mothers. There were bags of every conceivable size, shape and color. There were shoe bags, stocking bags, mending bags and all sorts of plebeian bags. Then there were dainty handkerchief bags, and shopping bags and money bags, all aristocratic looking affairs that may have sniffed at their neighbors, less gay but selling just as well. There was one table devoted to notions and here various souvenirs were sold, from grass card cases to woolly rabbits for the children.

Out on the lawn, under a giant algaroba tree charming young ladies in summers gowns laded out lemonade at five cents per. In a little summer house other fair maids presided over a table
loaded with "linked sweetness long drawn out" in the shape of "fudge," cocoanut candy and other concoctions
well calculated to make the mouth water. A large number of people visited the fair during the afternoon and $15 was realized which will be applied to the various appropriations published yesterday. The next sale will be a "rummage sale" which will take place
about July 5.

PRIORY CELEBRATES 38TH ANNIVERSARY

Yesterday marked the thirty-eighth anniversary of the founding of St. Andrew's Priory and the occasion was appropriately observed. During the day the girls went to Waikiki for an outing, being entertained at the home of Mrs. L. K. Kentwell, a former Priory girl. After eveninging in the cathedral at 5 o'clock the clergy and students marched into the Priory grounds. The girls sang around the coral cross and Canon Mackintosh delivered a brief address.

The Priory was founded by an English sisterhood during the time of Bishop Staley. Two of the sisters who assisted in founding the school reside on the grounds now and took part in the ceremonies yesterday. These are Sister Beatrice and Sister Albertina.
In yesterday's procession there was carried a very rich and handsome banner that was carried in the procession
when the school was founded thirty-eight years ago. The great coral cross was standing at that time and Bishop Staley preached the dedicatory sermon from its steps. The school has grown rapidly although it still occupies the buildings originally erected. It is hoped that new buildings will soon be erected and those in charge of the school are working toward that end.

CROWDS EXPECTED AT BUTLER RECITAL

The sale of seats for the Butler recital begins today at Wall, Nichols's.
There promises to be a good sized line in waiting at 9 o'clock. The churches have committed themselves to an enthusiastic support of this affair and Mr. Butler has already won his audience.

As to program Mr. Butler will do all the singing there is, which will be eminently satisfactory to the admirers of his rich, big bass. Some fine instrumental support will be furnished by Miss Remus who will have violin numbers and by Miss Maud Kinney
who appears twice as a piano soloist.
Miss Remus has been heard at least once in the Opera House. She is known to the lovers of music in this city and fits well into this excellent program.
Miss Maud Kinney has been heard only once (at Mrs. Cooke's musical) since her return from her studies in Germany. Only a few of her friends could hear her then.

FINE TENNIS ON BERETANIA COURTS

The Beretania Tennis Courts were used late yesterday afternoon for a mixed doubles tennis match, which was one of the most interesting of the season. That forty games were played in the three sets required to give the match to the winners indicates that it was closely contested. Miss Young and Will Roth won from Mrs. A. M.
Brown and Frank Atherton.

It was real tennis, the ladies sustaining their partners in a clever manner, and at times their plays called for hearty applause. The serves were of a kind to be classed as excellent. Returns were made with skill, and difficult racket work between serves was often times brilliant. Miss Young and Mr. Roth played a remarkably well-balanced game, both being steady, except in the last few games when Mr.
Roth missed some critical points. Mr.
Atherton did not play in his usual good form, but improved toward the end.
Mrs. Brown surprised the spectators by some really excellent returns at critical stages. Miss Young was a clever player and was especially brilliant in low volleying and returning smashes across the net.

The scores were as follows: 9-8, 7-8, 6-2.

ISLAND IMPORTS.

The joint committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association to bring to the attention of Island importers the matter of the importance of entering imports through the Island ports direct, instead of having them entered at mainland custom houses and transshipping thence, has issued a circular letter to various large importers upon the subject. There has been, in the past, perhaps a thought too little attention given to this kind of thing by the mercantile community of the Territory. Since annexation, it is possible Island merchants have argued that so long as imports and exports were made through American ports, it does not make a great deal of difference which port is used. And so far as the revenue is concerned, of course it does not.

But there is more than revenue at stake here. The duty on imports goes to the United States government, and must continue to go to the United States government in any event. The loss of revenue is part of the price Hawaii paid for annexation. But there is the element of local pride and the growth of the Island ports, and this growth is largely in the hands of Island importers. For, if they import direct, the Island ports at once rise in importance with relation to the world's commerce, and as the Island ports rise in importance, of course it becomes more and more easy to attract the attention of Congress to the needs of such ports in the matter of modern improvements in aid of commerce. A port that has a large import and export commerce is not lightly considered, either in Congress or in commercial centers. Trade follows the flag, but the flag also follows trade—and sees that trade has a smooth channel to flow in. And the port that has a large commerce attracts more, naturally, for men engaged in commerce are drawn to a place where things are doing, and capital follows the men in commerce, and new enterprises are born, and the whole life of the port is made stronger and its prosperity increased in growing ratio.

And because all this is true, it is to be hoped that the circular letter of the commercial bodies will bear fruit, and that the Island importers will take to heart all that the letter contains.

THE ORGANIC LAW.

The Bar Association did right in informing Delegate Kuhio that it had no amendments to the Organic Act of Hawaii to suggest or advise. The legal fraternity is in a position to realize how necessary it is to permit the foundation law of the Territory to remain undisturbed. The Organic Act is our local constitution. It moors our other laws and is the anchorage of public institutions. Apparently the Delegate thinks that it ought to be meddled with on general principles, as the constitution of the monarchy was, but that is far from being the part of wisdom. Kuhio would have done well to work against the surreptitious amendment which was made last winter, doubling the expense of litigation here by providing for appeals from the Territorial to the Federal Supreme Court; and we trust that the passage of that unfit amendment will prompt him to watch out next session lest private interests, operating through riders to appropriation bills, shall again drive wedges of their own into the organic law.

Capt. Sam Johnson and E. R. Adams were this morning seen driving around town in Johnson's rig, talking quite chummily.—Bulletin.

And the rig they drove is the same one that E. M. Watson, a leading Democrat, borrowed by mistake one evening from in front of the Hawaiian Hotel and took out toward the sixth precinct of the Fourth. There's dirty politics being done somewhere, mind that!

To say that "business demands the county law" about squares the circle of absurdity. What business demands is economical government, less grafting and low taxes. Talk to the contrary is made by people who are forever surrendering vital things to the worst elements in the community for the sake of keeping them quiet and obedient at the polls. The Advertiser's challenge to produce ten responsible taxpayers of Oahu, not connected with politics, who want a county law, has never been met and it still stands.

It is by no means certain that the Gromoboi is afloat though if she went down she is more likely to have been sunk by one of the Russian mines about the harbor entrance than by any Japanese contrivance. No report has ever been made of the appearance of Japanese mine-ships off Vladivostok where, for the last few months, the garrison and the local squadron have been keenly vigilant.

The conning tower of a man-of-war has usually been regarded as a death-trap. No one can get into a small cylinder and survive the concussion which a big shell makes in striking it. Usually an admiral directs a battle from the bridge. It was Voelkersam's anxiety to get behind something in the battle that cost him his life.

Months ago the Japanese lost the battleship Yashima, but they did not let the facts be known until yesterday. Probably no country except Russia could have concealed such a loss for so long a period. The circumstances show how easily Japan can blind the press and keep her own counsel.

The Russian man-of-war Izumrud, which escaped from the Japanese fleet by blowing herself up, is a small protected cruiser of the Novik class and not a battleship, as stated in an evening paper yesterday.

Kuropatkin has retired to his country residence. If Linevitch has one he had better instruct the servants to dust the furniture and get in a supply of coal. The taste for small farming is coming his way.

Russia's fourth squadron, which was just about to start east, has changed its course due west, and probably won't stop until it gets into shallow water up some creek.

When the brilliant virtues of the Mikado make a short circuit with the spirits of the imperial ancestors, it is time for the average outsider to take to the woods.

If Russia means to have a revolution, now is a good time to begin it. The demoralization of the Bureaucrats is the chance of the Socialists.

The buried gold near Diamond Head is probably the remnant of the Hearst treasure which Beverly Kidd interred last fall.

Those Russians who were going to take their holiday dinners in Japan are nearly all there now, either too late or too early.

Russia has one fleet left, that in the Black Sea, and is profoundly thankful that nobody can get at it but the Turks.

If King Alfonso does much traveling in Europe he won't be able to get any more insurance.

The suicide of the Czar is not least among the news possibilities of the next few days.

Brown is ready to knife the Governor personally and draw the knife out politically.

Those terrible Cossacks are among the also rans of Russia's Asiatic campaign.

Ikons ought to be cheap in the Russian market these days.

"One swallow does not make a summer"—no, nor a meal.
"Where's there's a will there's a way"—usually the wrong one.
"Forbidden fruit is sweet"—but you're very apt to choke on the seeds.
"Every cloud has a silver lining"—but usually it is made of German silver.

"It's better to give than to receive"—this holds good even to a blow.

"A squeaking door hangs a long time"—and no one ever thinks to oil it.

"Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow"—the cook will go on a strike.

"Virtue is its own reward"—at least it is the only apparent one up to date.

"If at first you don't succeed, try again"—even if you have to impress it with a club.

"The darkest hour is just before dawn"—at least it seems darker when you are trying to find the keyhole.

"It is a long lane that has no turn"—and sometimes it does not turn a hair; it just ends abruptly at a precipice.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath"—but it is just as well to be prepared and keep your hand near your pistol pocket.

"A good conscience makes a soft pillow"—as does also the knowledge that you have to-morrow's rent money.

"Love laughs at locksmiths"—but sometimes it laughs on the other side of its mouth, and has a mighty hard time in the divorce court, trying to find a skeleton key that works as easily as that love lock did.

HAPPY JOHNNY BURNS.

They wuz a man in Sundry-school last Sunday said 'at he Wished we would all be good and grow like Moses used to be.
But I don't care so much for that, as others meebly does—
I'd like to be like Johnny Burns, 'cause he wears gallus-uz.

My maw she never wants to let me play with Johnny, fer
She says his folks is ignerunt and ain't the style fer her.
And every time she scolds me when I do what Johnny does—
I wish he wore my waist and I could have his gallus-uz.

My paw's almost the richest man they are in this here town.
'Cause we live in a big white house and Johnny he lives down Beside the railroad track—I wish 'at I lived where he does.
'Cause nearly all the boys down there are wearin' gallus-uz.

I wish my paw'd git poor some day, and then we'd haft to go
And live down by the track and not be all stuck up, you know.
Then meebly maw'd let me be dressed the way 'at Johnny wuz.
And he'd be friendly with me, 'cause I'd have on gallus-uz.

TRIP TO THE
YOSEMITE VALLEY

F. H. HUMPHRIS.

We left San Francisco April 25, at 3:30 p. m., traveling all night by the Southern Pacific to a place called Raymond, where we arrived at about 6 a. m.; there we breakfasted. About 6:45 we started by stage, a wagon with four horses, capable of carrying eight passengers besides the driver. On leaving Raymond, we entered a fine open country, somewhat hilly; it is a granite district, and many of the fine buildings of San Francisco are built from granite brought from these quarries, notably the general postoffice. It is a fine pasture land, and haymaking has commenced. Now we reach Summit, 1850 feet above sea level; here we change horses which we do every seven or eight miles all through. Leaving Summit, we get some fine mountain scenery. Between Raymond and Summit we passed several gold mines, some at work, some resting. The wild flowers take our eye, and we see quantities of wild lupins, a very pretty blue and white flower, sometimes growing singly and sometimes in masses, when it is a very pretty addition to the scenery around; then there are also a number of wild lilacs, mostly white, but a few lavender; I say lavender, as they are not so deep a lilac color as ours. Then there is also a very pretty plant called Indian paint brush, and many others, while the ground is mostly strewn with a small white flower like a white forget-me-not. Of birds, too, there are some varieties, including the blue jay, which flits from tree to tree, some bright, crimson-breasted birds, larger than a robin and the breast much brighter.

On our way we pass a lumber "dumie." This is a wooden trench, carried on trestles, and is used for carrying down lumber for sixty miles, being filled with water and the lumber being simply floated down. Now we are really in mountainous country, rising all the time with the valley in which runs the South Fork of the river Fresno, flowing down far below, while we travel along a road with little to the left of us, but depths to the right of us. The valley and the opposite mountains are covered with pines, firs, cedars and other trees, more or less densely.

At noon we reach Ahwahnee, where we lunch. Then on again through denser woods, higher and higher we rise, the valley beneath looking deeper and deeper, winding around corners, zigzagging up hill till we reach at one point an elevation of 4950 feet. The woods are now grand, pine trees growing 130 to 150 feet high, and even higher; some of them are at least seven or eight feet in diameter six feet above the ground; then there is also the Manzanita bush, with a smooth mahogany-like bark, growing a pretty flower in pinky bunches; there is also the yellow elder, then there is a red star flower, very pretty, but the flower that we meet with on the higher ground and increasing in size and beauty all the way from here to the Yosemite is the snow plant, a beautiful, almost transparent, crimson plant; it grows close on the ground and is from three inches to a foot high. It is forbidden to pick it, and wisely, as it not only is very ornamental and pretty, but it fades away so soon that it is of no use to gather. We notice as we reach higher ground that the blue jays are of a deeper, brighter color than before, and flitting about in the sunshine look very pretty.

We reach Wawona at 5 p. m. 4928 feet above sea level, the hotel being situated in a very pretty level amidst mountains; it is decidedly cooler and a huge wood fire greets us in the office. We fix up our rooms, have a wash, which we very much need, dine and retire early, after having inspected a very good show of pictures of the Yosemite, painted by a local artist of some note.

The following morning we are astir in good time, though that may be a matter of opinion—some folks thought that we got up in the middle of the night. We were called some time before 5 a. m., breakfasted and started at six. Here we crossed a river, not unlike ours at Bolton, but larger, and entered a country like that over the wooden bridge at Bolton, but magnified, meadows running beside the river, rising then up a hill—as one does at Bolton—but a continuous hill, higher and higher, the trees bigger, then the valley deeper; in fact, everything magnified except the roadway—that keeps narrow enough to satisfy the most nervous person. Then the road itself is not as good as one would prefer, and bumping along, the stage giving a slight tilt just where the road is narrowest, or at turning a sharp corner just adds piquancy to the drive. Nine miles up hill we go, the country wilder, the valleys deeper, till the big river has become like a rivulet. Mountains covered with pines and firs everywhere, miles and miles of them; the valleys the same till one wonders whether there be not wood enough in these hills to supply all the world.

On and on we go, stopping here and there to change horses, up hill and down hill, through these denser and more dense woods, craning one's neck to estimate the height of the trees—looking down into the valley beneath—and at the grand mountain beyond, enjoying the fine air, perfumed by the pine trees. "Life is worth living." We hear that amongst these mountains are still to be found "Mountain Lions"—no mountain lions barred our way, but that there were other wild animals we had visible evidence of. The coyotes put in an appearance and a very fine specimen quietly crossed our road, smaller than a wolf, but not much, he was of a fawn color, and had a fine bushy tail. The grey squirrel abounded and bounded, too, from tree to tree, from rock to rock. Some of these are very fine fellows.

Now we are beginning to look into the actual valley of the Yosemite and most grand it is, till we descend a little and come to what is called "Inspiration Point." There the valley lies stretched out below us. The floor of the valley is dotted with pine trees, about the apparent size of those in a "Noah's Ark" box. Away beyond runs the Merced river, coming toward us, winding down the valley. To the right, standing in mighty strength and grandeur is the "El Capitan" rock, rising perpendicularly from the floor of the valley 3300 feet—guess what this great rock is like, when I tell you that its face presents to view a space of 400 acres. Almost opposite are some irregularly-shaped towering rocks, which with El Capitan may be said to form the grand gateway of the valley; these are 2700 feet high. I should tell you that the floor of the valley is 4000 feet above sea level, so you may estimate the total height of these great rocks. Coming down in front of the last named is the falls known as "The Bridal Veil," falling sheer down 860 feet. Then on and beyond our point of view—we are now about 1200 feet above the valley—away on are rocks after rocks, all towering to the skies, while the extreme distance is bordered by snow-capped mountains. We see here and as we pass along the great Cathedral Rocks, and strange to say, growing on one of these natural towers, is a tree in the form of a cross, high up and away from reach of man; then, almost adjoining and as it were part of the gigantic building, are two pointed gables that give effect to the idea of a magnificent cathedral building, whose builder and architect is God.

Once looked upon the Yosemite Valley from "Inspiration Point," the pretty floor of the valley, guarded on either side by the El Capitan and by the great rocks on the opposite side, backed by the "Half Dome" and other towering rocks as far as one can see, with snow mountains in the far end for a background, one feels overpowered with the beauty and grandeur of the scene—peaceful, grand and beautiful, calm in its quiet beauty, magnificent in its mighty strength, fascinating beyond description.

We sweep down the mountain road, turning this way and that till we are running along at the foot of the valley passing the "Bridal Veil Falls," on past the Yosemite Falls on the opposite side with a fall of 2624 feet, seeing more and more of these giant rocks of granite, the "Three Brothers," "The Sentinel Rock," "The North Dome," almost as perfect a dome as that of the Capitol at Washington, St. Peter's at Rome or St. Paul's, but rising 3000 feet above us, and many others, till overwhelmed with the majesty of the whole scene one is almost glad to arrive at the pretty hotel and its adjacent buildings, so puny compared to all that one has passed through.

We arrived at "The Sentinel" hotel at 1 p. m., lunched, washed and refreshed, we took a carriage and drove to see the Cascade Falls, which though only a fall of 500 feet, small by comparison with the others, is still a very fine falls, to say nothing of the pretty drive, with the Merced running swiftly and furiously beside us all the way, a perfect cataract, the hills above us, first one object, then another, attracting our attention. Then turning and crossing a strong wooden bridge, we came to the foot of the lovely "Bridal Veil" Falls, as I said, above 860 feet high, coming sheer down from so great a height, the water becomes disintegrated toward the bottom and forms a mist, giving it the lace-like appearance from which, no doubt, it takes its name. The light, vaporous nature of the water is such that the little wind that is stirring and possibly also the striking of this light causes it to rise and wave about like a gauze and rise some hundreds of feet from the earth, spreading, as it did when we were there, out over the roadway, where it fell upon us like rain. Often, in fact, nearly every afternoon when the sun begins to sink, there is to be seen a beautiful rainbow across the foot of the falls. Alas! the afternoon clouded over and we are to be disappointed in this. No, not we waited a few minutes and the sun broke through, and behold! there was the most gorgeous rainbow ever seen on earth. Perfectly arching across the misty water, out shone the rainbow—all the colors of the rainbow, we often say, but not only were there all the colors of the rainbow there, but shining with a depth and intensity inconceivable unless seen.

Back to the hotel, a rest, a visit to the photo stores, dinner and early to bed after a long, interesting, beautiful day's traveling and thorough enjoyment.

Next morning up betimes, breakfast at 7:30, at eight we started up the valley, driving to the "Mirror" lake, the sun was up and brightly shining. Presently we drove into the shadow of the rocks, till we reached the lake, a calm, still water, in which was clearly reflected the great "Half Dome," which looks like the "North Dome," split in two, 5000 feet above us, and other hills as we moved from point to point around the lake. The reflections were wonderfully clear and perfect by reason of the stillness of the water. Now we stood at a certain point and watched. We saw as we looked down a light coming over the top of the "Half Dome," then a peep of sunlight, till the glare of the sun rising over the hill top dazzled our eyes; turning away and moving to another point, the same thing was repeated, and three times we saw the sun rise over those great hills. Of course, we could have seen the sun direct by looking upward, but what is more fascinating than reflections? But was it not a curious thing to see the sun rise three times after we had already seen it high in the heavens?

We then drove on to the "Happy Isles," dismounting here, we crossed a little wooden bridge, or rather a bridge formed by laying a big fir tree across the stream, with a light handrail fastened thereto, there were three or more islands thus connected. On all sides there rushed foaming waters, from some falls above, while the islands were well wooded. Wandering along amidst sylvan paths we came toward the source of the stream; here rushed down a mighty foaming cataract, to which the "Swallow Falls" in Wales is a mere splash. It was grand in the extreme. Alas! time is a hard master and called us peremptorily away before we had stayed half as long as we should have wished.

Back along the beautiful valley—gazing, ever gazing, at all the wondrous formations around us.

A pleasant, pretty walk in the neighborhood of the hotel, then to lunch, then, alas! on the stage again to turn our backs upon this enchanting valley. We left at 12:30, noon.

The time at our disposal would not permit of our taking any of the trails, the most important of which is that to "Glacier Point," but it is in itself a hard day's work, being a climb of fourteen and one-half miles up hill, with many a dizzy height, on horse or mule. True, the animals know their work, but as they turn and twist around and seem to themselves enjoy the scenery, looking over every precipice in a calm, unconcerned way, it is not a trip for the nervous ones, though I should have liked to have had the time to do it. Indeed, I should like to have spent at least a fortnight there. The views, of course, on the way up are most grand, and reaching the top one looks down over a fall of 3200 feet. In such a district one can almost imagine what this would be like. Thence one can sleep at "The Glacier Hotel" and go next morning to the still higher eminence of "The Sentinel Dome." But this is only one of many trails to heights various and beautiful, and there is hardly an end to all one might do if only time be given. At "Glacier Point" there is an overhanging rock standing out over the depths below—let those stand there who like it. I do not reckon myself over nervous, but is it just one of those places where I should be content to take a back seat.

I fear I have not half described the beauties, the grandeur, the sublimity of the scenery of the valley, but why attempt to describe the indescribable? Farewell, fair Yosemite, so sweet in thy fair beauty, so mighty in thy magnificence.

We retrace our way along the valley, give a lingering last look at the graceful "Bridal Veil Falls," then on and around corners, climbing all the way until we reach "Inspiration Point," pausing there for a few minutes for a farewell view on this magnificent vale, one could but think that Gustave Dore drew some of his inspirations from these towering rocks and pinnacles. Then on and upward four miles up hill and on through the same scenery by which we approached, passing many snow flowers on our way, a herd of wild deer, and many pretty and rare birds, till we arrive at Wawona at 6 p. m., after a somewhat rough and hazardous journey, for, as we afterward discovered, our driver was the which commences running next week, driver of the "Limited Express," and he was evidently getting his hand and his horses in, for that rapid journey. Away we went, once having climbed the hill, down for nine miles. The road is just a little raised in places, to guide the water coming down off the roads, and over these places he bumped till we felt like golf balls; around corners we swung in a way I have only read of before, and the ladies were certainly a little nervous. It is not quite a pleasant sensation to go bumping down hill, twisting corners with precipitous edges at a mad gallop, but we survived it and arrived at Wawona in safety, if a little bruised.

The next morning at daylight, or rather before, we were called. Breakfast at 5:50 a. m., started at six for Mariposa and "Big Tree Grove." Our road is much as previously, along and looking down into valleys, more or less precipitous, our drive being more pleasant than yesterday, by reason of our giving a stage to ourselves and a careful driver. On we go through big trees until we come to a point 7500 feet above sea level, then descending a little, we enter the "Big Tree Grove."

We are now amongst the wonderful trees of a kind of redwood, something of a cedar. There are firs, pines and other trees in the forest, but those we want to see are towering giants, of which there are 623, 300 of which are from 40 feet to 104 feet in circumference. The most perfect is the "Mariposa," which is 100 feet in circumference. The finest trees are all

JAPANESE ROMANCE

Has a Honolulu Angle
but Heroine is Married.

The Manila newspapers occasionally get up some pretty good yarns, but the following story, involving the alleged love affairs of a heroic Japanese army officer and an American actress, is rather improbable. First of all the heroine named, Miss Viola Gillette, already has a husband in New York. She is "Miss Viola Gillette" on the stage, but she is, in reality, Mrs. George Gillette off the stage. She was formerly Miss Viola Pratt, a member of the celebrated Mormon family of Pratts of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Miss Gillette is a beautiful singer. She played at the Hawaiian Opera House during the summer of 1899. She was a guest at the Hawaiian Hotel, but owing to illness was able to appear on the stage but twice. Here is the story told in the Manila Times of a recent date:

The good old days when a gallant knight was rewarded by being given a beautiful bride have not vanished from the earth, for they still linger in Japan. The most romantic story of the Russo-Japanese war is that of how a Japanese won the lady of his heart, and to add interest to the romance, it began in Manila.

The story has taken a round about way to reach Manila, where the scene of its opening chapter is laid. It has traveled from Japan to the United States, thence to Australia and now appears in a Sydney, New South Wales, newspaper, as follows:

The Japanese have conducted the war in a unique manner in more ways than one. The hero of 203-metre-hill, Major Sayasha, has been awarded a charming bride by the mikado as a reward for his distinguished services on that occasion. This sounds rather romantic, but is nevertheless a fact. While the major was attached to the American garrison in Manila during the war against the Filipinos, he became acquainted with the young American actress, Miss Viola Gillette, and fell in love with her, which was reciprocated. Unfortunately, "the course of true love never did run smooth," and as the young lady was under five years' agreement to play in America and Australia, the lovers had to part. When the mikado was looking about for some suitable reward for the gallant major, the love affair came to his ears, and he at once charged his relative, Prince Fushimi, who at present is traveling in America, to open negotiations for the annulment of the contract at any cost. This was accomplished, and Miss Gillette has started for her new home in Japan, where the wedding will take place.

NOT RELATED TO
CHESTER A. DOYLE

He was a minister of the Gospel, and a very pleasant gentleman indeed. Having business with one of the deputies in the office of the Attorney-General, it befell that he had to wait in the ante-room, as many another man has had to do, and while he was there he fraternized with the attaches. Presently Chester Doyle drifted along the horizon, and the reverend gentleman, being introduced, warned to him.

"Doyle!" he said. "Ah! How long have you been connected with this department?"

"Why," answered Chester, "about sixteen or seventeen years, I should say."

"Yes! Doyle? Doyle? Ah, you know Chester A. Doyle?"

"Oh, yes; I know that fellow. Everybody knows him. You know him, I suppose?"

"Very well, of course. You are not related to him?"

"To that fellow! I should say not."

"I am glad of it—very glad of it. They say he is a very—well, noisy fellow."

In Italy, whenever a famous criminal trial is on, the newspapers take sides violently, search for evidence, and assume all the prerogatives of the court. That they are even more sensational than the American press in this regard is indicated by the fact that Italians reading accounts of great cases in the American papers are always struck with the moderation of tone shown, and wonder how it is that Americans take so little interest in what interests the whole world. "The Americans are a great people," say the Italians, "but cold; they don't even warm to their own criminals!"

OPERATION AVOIDED

EXPERIENCE OF MISS MERKLEY
She Was Told That an Operation Was Inevitable. How She Escaped It

When a physician tells a woman suffering with ovarian or womb trouble that an operation is necessary, the very thought of the knife and the operating table strikes terror to her heart, and our hospitals are full of women coming for ovarian or womb operations.

There are cases where an operation is the only resource, but when one considers the great number of cases of ovarian and womb trouble cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after physicians have advised operations, no woman should submit to one without first trying the Vegetable Compound and writing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is free.

Miss Margaret Merkley of 275 Third Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— "Loss of strength, extreme nervousness shooting pains through the pelvic organs, bearing down pains and cramps compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said I had ovarian trouble and ulceration and advised an operation. To this I strongly objected and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The ulceration quickly healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared and I am once more strong, vigorous and well."

Ovarian and womb troubles are steadily on the increase among women. If the monthly periods are very painful, or too frequent and excessive—if you have pain or swelling low down in the left side, bearing down pains, leucorrhoea, don't neglect yourself—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

TRIP TO THE YOSEMITE VALLEY.

has not, that has happened? Well, named, some of them after great generals and statesmen, others after States of the Union and the large cities, thus you meet one labeled "General Grant," another "McKinley," another "Massachusetts," another "New York," and so on. The highest is the "Columbia," which is 322 feet high; then there is the "Grisly Giant," 104 feet in circumference and 224 feet high; there are "The Bachelor and Three Graces," one big tree facing three others supplying the idea. One of the oldest, if not the oldest, is the "Texas," supposed to be from 5000 to 7000 years old. Strange thoughts arise in one's mind as one gazes on these wondrous old giants of the forest. What has happened during their lifetime? Ah! indeed what dead monster. Well, one gets tired of even craning one's neck to try to see the tops; we drive on in the stage and pull up under the big tree with an archway cut through it—this arch holds the stage and the wheelers, the two leaders being through the archway. Here our photo's are taken and will be to us a memento of one of the grandest holidays amidst some of the grandest scenery and the mightiest works of nature that we have ever beheld or are likely to behold.

GREAT AMATEUR FARMER.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain's favorite hobby is amateur farming. He has at Highbury (at his father's country residence, for the same home serves for father and son), a little farm, separated from the garden only by a high wall. He has stocked on this farm some of the choicest cattle to be found in England; in particular, a herd of Jerseys, which he obtained originally from Lord Rothschild. His model farm supplies the home with the best quality of milk and butter.

CHANGES IN NILE VALLEY.

The Nile valley in Egypt has experienced remarkable climatic changes since the completion by the British of the great Assouan irrigation system, and there have been electrical storms of a character hitherto unknown to the country, during one of which the Khephern pyramid, as was cabled weeks ago, was struck by lightning, an occurrence that has never before been recorded.

CRUSHED BY A CAR Japanese Boy Jumps Under Wheels and Dies.

The life of a little Japanese boy was crushed out beneath the wheels of an electric car on the King street line at Pawaa Junction at half past nine last night. The boy, who was about ten years old, was a passenger with his father, Okumoto and his mother on one of the cars arriving at the junction at the hour named. His parents alighted from the car and stopped to talk with friends while the boy clambered into the Waialae road car which was standing on the mauka track on King street. The parents did not notice that the car had started and left them but the boy soon discovered that his parents were not on the car and jumped off right into car No. 44 which was following the Waialae car but on the mauka track. Motorman Schute threw on his brakes at once but to no purpose as the boy had struck the car as he jumped. The wheels passed over his neck, the head and left arm being practically severed. The body was otherwise terribly mangled. The patrol wagon was summoned and the remains taken to the morgue where they were examined by Drs. McDonald and Moore. A coroner's jury was sworn in and viewed the body. The inquest will be held at 7:30 tonight. As far as the police could learn no blame whatever attaches to the motorman as the boy struck the car the moment he jumped. There were some witnesses who were of the opinion that the boy leaped out too far and lost his balance and fell accidentally although most are agreed that he jumped.

THE BALTIC FLEET.

five to ten cents were readily bought up by the armada at three times the amount. Chickens and eggs had greatly advanced, but the supply was quite equal to the demand and it was simply a case of making hay while the sun shines. There was a report that a number of pilots had left Saigon to join Rojstvensky, as he dreaded the perils of attempting to navigate the China Sea without such assistance.
The Slovo Polskie, of Lemberg, publishes a letter from a naval officer, dated Nossi Be, Madagascar, February 26, in which the demoralization of Admiral Rojstvensky's fleet is stated to be so great that discipline can only be preserved by the severest measures. Rojstvensky, states the writer, is thoroughly hated on account of his arbitrary orders, and his officers have lost all faith in his strategical competence. Among other brutal orders given by him was one that anthems and chants for the dead should be performed day after day on board the hospital ship Orel, a measure which exercised a terrible depressing effect upon the invalid sailors and marines.
In view of the arrival in the China Sea of the Third Baltic Squadron, a good deal of interest attaches to the following recent telegram from the Jibuti correspondent of the Daily Mail:
The battleship General Admiral Apraxin has left the harbor and is coaling with the other warships ten miles outside from the German coilers which are still here. Yesterday I visited all the ships of the Third Baltic Squadron, and found on board much anxiety to hear the latest news from the seat of war. The defeat at Mukden has produced a mournful impression on everybody. The majority of the officers are young students whose education is incomplete, and whose character has not yet been formed. Admiral Nebogoff has not come into Jibuti. Several of the superior officers assured me that, though he is personally a brave man, he does not hope to be of much use in the present war, considering the nature of the fleet which he commands. All approve of Capt. Claudio's criticisms, and deplore his fate.

An old officer told me that the voyage of the Third Baltic Squadron was not a crusade, but a voluntary suicide, to which those young officers in their teens were going. It was heroic, but useless. The fleet will leave Jibuti in about three days. The Captains of the four German coilers informed me today that they had received instructions to wait for Fourth Squadron.

A Consular report from Seattle states that owing to the advent of the Russian fleet in Asiatic waters, the marine insurance rates on cargoes for the Far East have advanced from 1-10 per cent to 1-2 per cent.

According to a telegram from Moji navigation between Gensan and the Korean coasts north of that port has been suspended since the 6th inst., owing to the reported appearance of Russian warships.

A SONG OF THE COTTON-FIELD.

Yonder on de green slope-shelter in de pines,
Hummin'-bird a-hummin' roun' de y'lets
Sunflower at de gate
Wid his torch a-burnin' late,
En he light me 'long de big road whar de 'll' chillun wait.

Hoe de co'n en cotton—
Sing acrost de wheat;
Night-time is 'rue' time—
Res' 'at home is sweet!

I up ter meet de mawmin', 'fo' de light break overhead
Or de larks is gittin' 'rueless; en I ketch de sun in bed;
I tell 'em: "Work ter do!
I mus' run de furrow true;
De grass would ketch de cotton ef I sleep ez late ez you!"

Singin' in de co'n-fiel's,
'Crost de cotton white;
Day time is work time—
Res' 'at home is sweet!

Mister Rabbit see me comin', en I tell 'im: "Howdy-see?"
Is you feelin' well dis mawmin'? Is yo' fambly settin' too?
You got rabbit-foots a heap
Fer ter help me sow en reap!
But he mighty hard en heart'n, en I lef' 'im fas' asleep!

Sowin' en reapin'—
Happy all de day;
De home lights bright en shinin'—
But my heart—'it know de way!

So I workin' in de sunshine, I singin' in de storm;
De co'n 'll feed de chillun, en de cotton keep 'em warm.
Mister Rabbit, sub, good night—
De crow done took his flight.
An' singin' on de home-road whar de lamps is shinin' bright!

WAS BIG SUCCESS Many Society People Attend Barton Concert.

Some four hundred society people gathered at the Moana Hotel last evening to listen to the Barton concert and participate in the informal dance that followed. The spacious breakfast room of the hotel was crowded with people when the concert began and many stood in the hall. Mrs. Gerard Barton opened the program with two pianoforte selections, Arensky's Prelude in A Minor and the beautiful Schubert-Friedenthal Ziguener Marsch. Mrs. Barton well deserved the applause she received for she not only played with faultless technique but with unusual feeling and expression.

There is little need to comment upon the work of Mr. Fred. Butler, the basso. His work during the evangelistic campaign has given him a reputation among Honolulu musical people as a soloist of the very first rank. His three songs last night, Tchaikowsky's "Pilgrim Song," "To My First Love" by Lohr and "Honour and Arms" by Handel, showed his magnificent voice to advantage and brought him well merited applause.

The third part of the program was the cantata, "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" by Coleridge-Taylor sung by Mr. Arthur Wall and the chorus. It was excellently rendered and much enjoyed by the audience. Following the musical program there was an informal dance. A quintet club was in attendance and many remained to dance until the extra car left for the city at 1 a. m.

The following were patronesses: Mrs. C. M. Cooke, Mrs. C. Montague Cooke Jr., Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. A. G. Griffiths, Mrs. T. A. Hays, Mrs. A. G. Hawes, Mrs. H. M. von Holt, Mrs. E. W. Jordan, Mrs. A. P. Niblack, Mrs. W. L. Stanley.

The members of the chorus were: Sopranos, Mrs. C. B. Cooper, Mrs. L. T. Peck, Mrs. Rannie Scott, Mrs. E. D. Tenney, Mrs. R. D. Walbridge, Miss Louise Day, Miss Kulamuna Ward; Contraltos, Mrs. C. B. Damon, Mrs. L. F. Polson, Miss Julia Damon, Miss F. Polson, Miss Werthmuller; Tenors, Mr. J. L. Cockburn, Mr. Clifford Kinball, Mr. Arthur Wall, Mr. Clarence Waterman, Messrs. A. Hugo Herzer, A. J. Peck, Mr. V. L. Stanley.

Now is the Time to Wear Dr. Deimel Underwear (LINEN-MESH)

A great deal of the sickness in the world is caused by unsanitary woolen underwear. Most underwear is made of linen which while being clean has the great disadvantage of being cold and clammy.

By a special process of manufacture, a soft, warm, porous fabric has been evolved by Dr. Deimel, called Linen-Mesh, which is simply linen with the coldness taken out.

Dr. Deimel Underwear has obtained the unqualified endorsement of the foremost members of the Medical Profession and in every part of the globe gives health and comfort—summer, winter, spring and fall.

This underwear is made in such a wide variety of sizes that we can fit everybody.

LAST WORDS
TO THE JURYAndrews in Midst
of His Closing
Speech.Great Forensic Contest
In Naone Murder
Trial.Getting a Jury for Ba'ou-Parker
Libel Suit—Probate
Items.

Closing argument to the jury in the trial of Philip H. Naone for the murder of his wife was not concluded yesterday. J. J. Dunne for the defense spoke for three hours. It was 3 p. m. when Attorney General L. Andrews began his address for the Territory. Although several jurors said they would like to have the trial concluded that day, it was out of the question.

Judge De Bolt said the delivery of the court's instructions would take an hour and Mr. Andrews intimated that the case was too important to have the argument for the prosecution unduly compressed. Accordingly, when the Attorney General had been speaking for about an hour his remarks were continued until 10 o'clock this morning. The court adjourned for the day at 4:10 p. m.

Mr. Dunne made an able address as an effort to convince the jury that not only the evidence for the defendant but that for the prosecution sustained the theory of Naone's insanity. Calling the rebuttal evidence "rubbish" he argued also that the evidence in general of the prosecution was merely "negative." Mr. Dunne abused Dr. Moore without stint, giving him a variety of nicknames. In summing up his points he urged the jury "not to go off at halfcock, or fly off at a tangent," but to consider the evidence of Naone's career as a whole.

Attorney General Andrews was at his best from the start, showing he had the case for the Territory completely in hand. He also proved before going very far that he had perfectly sized up all of the grounds upon which the defense had based its theory of insanity. Mr. Andrews called attention to the fact that not one of the expert witnesses for the defense had testified directly on the facts that they considered Naone an insane person. They had only gone as far as they could in answering a hypothetical question, that was in many respects not in accordance should know. The troubles with multitudes of girls is a want of proper nourishment and enough of it. Now-a-days they call this condition by the learned name of Anemia. But words change no facts. There are thousands of girls of this kind anywhere between childhood and young ladyhood. Disease finds most of its victims among them. Some of them are passing through the mysterious changes which lead up to maturity and need especial watchfulness and care. Alas, how many break down at this critical period; the story of such losses is the saddest in the history of home. The proper treatment might have saved most of these household treasures, if the mothers had only known of WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION and given it to their daughters, they would have grown to be strong and healthy women. It is palatable as honey and contains all the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. In building up pale, puny, emaciated children, particularly those troubled with Anemia, Scrofula, Rickets, and Bone and Blood diseases, nothing equals it; its tonic qualities are of the highest order. A Medical Institution says: "We have used your preparation in treating children for coughs, colds and inflammation; its application has never failed us in any case, even the most aggravated bordering on pneumonia." The more it is used the less will be the ravages of disease from infancy to old age. It is both a food and a medicine—modern, scientific, effective from the first dose, and never deceives or disappoints. "There is no doubt about it." Sold by all chemists here and throughout the world.

with the case at bar, to carry out the purpose for which they were paid.

Not a single physician in this town—the Attorney General hammered this assertion home—could be placed on the stand for the defense who had ever been called to attend Naone for any epileptic fit or sickness of any kind. His mother had named two doctors as having attended him many years ago, but both of those doctors were dead and regarding one of them it had been proved in rebuttal that he was not in this country at the time specified.

Mr. Andrews dealt with the "negative evidence" proposition advanced by Mr. Dunne, pointing out that several of the witnesses whom he named had particularly good opportunities—in some instances in line with sacred duties—of observing Naone from childhood to maturity and of knowing if he were a victim of epilepsy.

The Attorney General wove from the evidence a web in which Naone was represented as having become infatuated with a woman and on her account schemed, first, to blacken his wife's name as preliminary to putting her away by divorce, and, second, in desperation over failure in that regard, to murder her. Replying to the argument that Naone's firing at his wife five times, inflicting four fatal wounds, was an evidence of insanity he held that it simply showed the determination of one inept with a pistol to make sure of his murderous purpose.

Most of the jurors, as well as the spectators, smiled when Mr. Andrews sarcastically spoke of the "insane" condition of Naone when he told Wright in prison that he considered it a good thing for him that the jury would not be locked up while trying his case.

BIG LIBEL SUIT.
In the drawing of a jury to try Attorney S. M. Ballou's libel suit for $50,000 damages against Sam. Parker, the panel became exhausted and Judge Lindsay ordered a special venire for fifteen additional jurors returnable at 10 o'clock this morning. A. G. M. Robertson is attorney for plaintiff, while J. A. Magoon, W. A. Whiting and R. W. Breckons appear for defendant.

PROBATE MATTERS.
Jessie K. Kaue, administratrix of the estate of Margaret V. Carter, deceased, yesterday under citation filed her accounts before Judge Lindsay. They were referred to W. R. Sims as master. C. W. Ashford appeared for the administratrix, and W. S. Fleming for Edgar Henriquez, guardian of the minor children of decedent.

Judge Lindsay confirmed the sale of property in the estate of Ely Peck, deceased, conducted by Fisher, Ables Co., auctioneers, whereby S. S. Peck became the purchaser of real estate in Vineyard street for $20,000, and also of 100 shares of Hustace, Peck Co. for $5500.

Judge Lindsay appointed John D. Paris administrator of the estate of Isaac H. Sherwood, deceased, on the petition of David Sherwood, son. The estate consists of land on Hawaii valued at $2300 and personality at $200.

MORE INDICTMENTS.
Six indictments were returned by the grand jury before Judge De Bolt yesterday, which were placed on the secret file pending the arrest of the accused.

SUPREME COURT TO TAKE A VACATION

On Tuesday next Chief Justice Frear and Justice Hartwell will leave for the mainland on their vacation, going by the transport Thomas. Chief Justice Frear will go to Harvard to attend the commencement exercises at his alma mater, and it is probable that Justice Hartwell will go to Yale at the same time. The two Justices will be absent for several weeks.

NO DECISION YET
ON COUNTY ACT

Chief Justice Frear alone opened the Supreme Court yesterday, only to adjourn for the day. Any expectation there might have been of a decision in the County Act case was disappointed. The court stenographer was in attendance on Judge Hartwell during the day.

The Bulletin offers the following attempt at discovery of a clue:
"It was noticed as a very significant fact that the books from which High-ton had taken his authorities this morning remained in the court room, while those used by the defense had been taken away, evidently by the court. The court yesterday asked that the authorities be left in the room in order that it could refer to them."

As Mr. Highton left no books in the room at the conclusion of argument, the theory of significance does not count for much.

EDUCATION OFFICE
IN IMPROVED SHAPE

Handsome new furniture has been placed in the rooms of the Department of Public Instruction. New matting has also been laid. There has been a new arrangement of various contents of the rooms, including the St. Louis exhibits that St. Louis never saw. As arranged on the walls and shelves the specimens of school exercises and handicraft make a local exhibit worth seeing and taking visitors to see. Superintendent Jas. C. Davis is at present busily engaged in codifying all of the rules and regulations in force governing officers and teachers of the department, examinations of teachers and classification of salaries.

HER WEAKNESS GONE

HOT FLASHES AND SINKING SPELLS CONQUERED AT LAST.

Mrs. Murphy Tells Her Fellow-Sufferers
How She Got Rid of Serious Troubles
by Simple Home Treatment.

"I had been bothered for several years," said Mrs. Murphy, "by stomach disorder and finally I became very weak and nervous. Flashes of heat would pass over me, and I would feel as if I was sinking down. At such times I could not do any household work, but would have to lie down, and afterwards I would have very trying nervous spells."

"Didn't you have a doctor?" she was asked.

"Yes, I consulted several doctors but my health did not improve. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She assured me that they had proved of the greatest benefit in the case of her daughter. In fact, she praised them so enthusiastically that my husband got me a box."

"And what was the result?"
"Before I had taken half of the first box my condition was greatly improved. The quickness with which they reached and relieved all my troubles was really surprising. After I had used only three boxes I had no more heat-flashes or weak spells. Thanks to them, I have become a well woman." Mrs. Mary D. Murphy lives at No. 1903 Force street, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the remedy which she found so satisfactory, furnish directly to the blood the elements that give vigor to every tissue of the body. They can be depended on to revive failing strength, and to banish nervousness. Their tonic properties are absolutely unsurpassed.

As soon as there is drag, or dizziness, or pallor, or poor circulation, or disordered digestion, or restlessness, or pains, or irregularities of any kind these famous pills should be used. They have cured the most obstinate cases of anemia, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous prostration and even partial paralysis.

If you desire information specially suited to your own case write directly to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Every woman should have a copy of Dr. Williams' "Plain Talks to Women," which will be mailed free to any address on request. Any druggist can supply the pills.

CHINESE BOY A GOOD WITNESS

Editor Advertiser: The following incident came to my knowledge recently, and I pass it along as an interesting contribution to our many race problems.

A Chinese boy about ten years old came alone into the police court as the principal witness in a criminal case. The lawyer for the defense, whose cross-examinations are considered very severe, proceeded to question the lad—

"What is an oath?"

"When you tell God that you will tell all the truth," the boy replied in good English.

"Who is God?" continued the questioning lawyer.

Here the lawyer for the prosecution interposed, saying that this is a question which has vainly been seeking an answer since the creation of the world.

But the first lawyer insisted upon an answer to the question, and this is what the Chinese boy quietly replied:

"God is King of all who will surely punish all liars."

"Well, it's evident he'll do," said the lawyer, and proceeded to cross-examine the boy for three quarters of an hour, without being able to discredit his testimony in the least.

"Say, Bill, come and have a glass of beer at the CRITERION."

"Assuredly Michael." (They have it and incidentally several savory dishes served at a daintily appointed table by a Jap waiter.)

"How much did that blow-out cost, Jimmy?"

"Only a quarter a piece, Bill, the beer is thrown in for nothing."

"Let's come tomorrow."

A French literary man, proud of his really excellent English, visiting a British cabinet minister, had spent a delightful afternoon viewing the picture galleries and art treasures of his host. In expressing his pleasure to that gentleman, he observed that, "charming though the experience was, he must not venture, he felt sure, to cockroach longer on such valuable time." "You speak English so beautifully, monsieur," replied his host, "that I think you may like me to tell you that we do not say 'cockroach,' but 'to encroach.'" "Encroach, of course, of course, encroach; oh! your genders, how they do puzzle me!" said monsieur; "oh! encroach, of course."

Jamieson, directors.

District Magistrate C. S. Dole yesterday rendered a decision in the two speed-limit cases against the Rapid Transit Co. A fine of $100 and costs in each case was entered against the defendant. The theory of average speed between switches was not accepted. Neither was the contention that the law of the recent session repealed the speed clause of the company's charter. It only placed discretion with the Superintendent of Public Works and the Governor to modify that provision.

Mrs. Makahiki, a native woman of nearly ninety years, is said to have a jar of gold coin buried somewhere across the road from the Campbell cottage at Diamond Head. It being about two years since she concealed the treasure, the exact hiding place has passed from the aged woman's mind. Now, with the assistance of friends, she is hunting for her wealth, being alarmed over talk about the proposed widening of the road. Mrs. Makahiki owns the lot where she buried the money. She has been a retainer of the Campbell family for many years.
