We crossed on an ocean steamer, And babbled of foreign scenes; I was more or less of a dreamer, And she well out of her teens,

We strolled on the deck together, And dived together at night-That is, when it wasn't bad weather And she had an appetite.

Or I wrapped her up in my tartan. Like a moth in its crysalis, While I bore the cold like a Spartan, And reckon'd it simply bliss.

She quoted me Burns and Heine, And sang of the Lorelei, And I held her hand, it was tiny, While she answered me with a sigh.

I wished the "Germanic" forever Would sail on a summer sea, But she thought that the gruff old skipper To this would never agree.

I vowed my life to defend her Should she split on an iceberg or reef; Her fiancee came out on the tender; My air castles all came to grief!

-Howard Paul in Ocean Wave. A Diversity of Taste.

Mrs. Tuxedo (who loves dogs)-Where are you going, Alfred? You look worried apout something.

Mr. Tuxedo (who hates them)-I thought I'd go out to the kennels and lie down awhile. I'm tired.—Life

His Memory Was Good. "And you pretend to say," remarked a lawyer to a witness, "that you remember the exact words this man said to you ten years ago?",
"I do."

"Well, if my memory serves me, I met you at Saratoga about five years ago, and I should like to know if you can swear to any expression which I then made." "I can."

"Now, Mr. J., I want you to remember that you are under oath. Now, under oath, you swear that you can quote with great accuracy a remark I made to you at Saratoga five years ago?"

"I can. "Well, what was it?" "You met me in the hotel corridor."

"Yes, quite correct." "And you shook hands with me."

"Naturally I did."

"And you said to me: 'Let's go and take something." " The crier of the court had to call silence for ten minutes, and the lawyer confessed that the witness had a remarkable memory. Washington Law Reporter. The Influence Was Good. A Boston lady prominently identified with Sunday school work and who is much interested in bringing our Chinese residents with-the pale of Christian influence, called the other day upon one of her Celestial proteges. John welcomed her visit to his laundry with evident pleasure, and when the greetings were over the Mongolian in response to her inquiry gave her to understand that he enjoyed very much attending the Sunday school, information that was exceedingly gratifying. Anxious, however, to receive more practical demonstration of the influence of the school upon him, she asked him if he did not think it did him good. "Yi, yi!" came the convincing response, "washe fol le whole conglegation."-Boston Budget.

One Arm No Use on a Sleigh Ride. Lucy- Why, Belle! Is it all over between you and Harry? Didn't I see you out sleighing last night with George?

Belle-That doesn't signify anything. I preferred to go with George; that was all. Lucy-But look at the difference between the two men. George is only a clerk on a Silks of small salary. He isn't handsome. Harry is rich, he is noble looking and he adores you. Belle-Yes, and he has only one arm. Lucy-Yes, yes! That's a fact. I forgot. You are quite right, dear.-Chicago Trib-

The New South. Editor Grady (of the Atlanta Constitution, after his return from New England)-Dinah, there isn't a thing on this table fit to eat.

Haven't you any baked beans? Dinah-No, honey. Editor Grady-Do you know how to make brown bread?

Dinah-Nebber learned dat, sah. Editor Grady-You can make pumpkin pie, can't you? Dinah-No, sah.

Editor Grady-Well, well, I can't see Silver and Gold Plate, where you were brought up-Omaha World.

No Protection. Old Gentleman (walking very carefully) -Hallo, bub! This fine snow sort of covers up the ice so that you can't see it, doesn't it? Small Boy (holding on to the fence-You're right, old man; but you feel it just as much when you slip down. - Lowell Citizen.

TONGAN AFFAIRS.

A letter from Suva, Fiji, dated March 23d, contains the following items:

H. M. S. Diamond arrived from Hobart on Sunday, 20th. She leaves for Tonga tomorrow morning, taking Sir Charles Mitchell, the High Commissioner, to inquire into and report upon the late disturbances. The Chief Judicial Commissioner (His Honor Judge Clarke) accompanies him, to the Commission. From this it is evident that no time had been lost by Her Majesty's Government in sending an officer with sufficient authority to inquire into the cause and extent of the disturbance in the Tongan group. At present the only Power which could act effectually in this affair is England, because although the United States Commissioner recently negotiated a treaty of amity with King George, in which special privileges as to Consular Courts and coaling stations were accorded to that Government, the United States Senate adjourned without taking action upon it. England has long had treaty relations with the Tongan Government, and indeed the group had come to be regarded as in a measure under British protection. Its proximity to the Fiji archipelago and its relations thereto of recent years tend to strengthen this tie. Any great maritime Power that holds Fiji must ultimately possess Tonga. Of that there can be little doubt. Furthermore, the leaders of the two factions which have come into collision at Tonga are British subjects, and therefore strictly amenable to the authority of the High Commissioner. Sir Charles Mitchell, the present Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific, is an old Imperial officer who is spoken of by these who know him as a man of firmness and ability. It is prolable therefore that he may deem it necessary to the future peace of the group to remove those leaders and leave an officer to assist the aged King in the conduct of the Government. Such a step would infallibly lead to annexation, and could not but operate to the advantage of the aboriginal people. His Excellency Mr. Bush has been accredited to King George of Samoa, but we fear that he will be too late in arriving there to be of any use, even did his instructions warrant interference. In the Australian Colonies considerable indignation was expressed at Admiral Tryon's refusal to send a war vessel to Tonga when the Tongan Government gunboat reported the trouble on her arrival at the Bay of Islands, a port of New Zealand. It may turn out, however, that his apparent contempt of the incident when reported to him was for the best. The commander of any ship

Audience and Presentation to th King.

Yesterday at noon there was a Royal audience at Iolani Palace and presentation to His Majesty the King. At the audience His Excellency Hon. Walter M. Gibson, Minister of Foreign Affairs, presented H. B. M.'s Commissioner and Consul General, Major J. H. Wodehouse, who then presented Sir William Wiseman, Bart., Captain of H. B. M.'s S. Senior Lieutenant Lewis D. Sampson, Lieutenant Algernon Grenfell, Paymaster Horatio Howell, Chief Engineer Wm. B.

Matthews, of H. B. M.'s S. Caroline. His Majesty was attended on this occasion by His Excellency Hon. Walter M. Gibson, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Chamberlain of the Royal Household: Majors A. B. Hayley, Samuel Parker and W. H. Cornwell, Equerries in Waiting; Major John D. Holt, Secretary and Aide-de-Camp to the Commander-in-Chief, and Adjutant Isaac L. Kaiama, of the Royal Household. The Royal Household troops were LATEST NEWS.

The Prince of Wales will hold a levee at St. James Palace towards the end of next month, probably on Monday, April 25th.

That sensible woman, Queen Elizabeth of Roumania, has just managed to procure an opportunity of hearing the plain and wholesome truth about herself, after a fashion usually denied to royalties by the cringing courtiers who surround them. Her Majesty, who devotes much of her time to music, was so persistently assured by her attendants that her voice was more han equal to that of any prima donna that she began to consider whether she was justified in concealing such talent in a napkin, but before displaying her gifts coram populo she wisely resolved to obtain an unbiassed opinion. This she got straight from the eminent Professor Dunancis in Bucharest, to whom she went incognito, and who, after trying her powers, informed her bluntly that she had perhaps just sufficient voice to qualify her for a chorus girl in an operetta, to which however, her face and figure were unfortunately not adopted.

The Prince of Wales has sent a portrait of himself to the Boston Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, of which he was elected an honorary member when he was in America in 1860.

The Emperor Williams' physicians are anxious to get him away from Berlin as soon as possible, and it is expected that he will remove to Weisbaden for three weeks about April 12th. The Empress is then going to Baden Baden for a month, and she will not return to Berlin before No-

Mr. Gladstone's Speech on the Coer-

LONDON, March 29th .- In the Commons to-day Gladstone resumed the debate on the Irish criminal law amendment. He said that in an issue so grave proposals as those now put forth by the Government required ample time for consideration. He found himself bound to support Parnell's amendment, because the ground on which Balfour based the Government's case was absolutely insufficient and unsatisfactory. The Government's bill, instead of being a cure for Irish ills, or even a palliative, was a measure that would aggravate deepseated disorders. "With this coercion bill," exclaimed Gladstone, "the prospect of conciliation vanishes into the air. Take the instance given of threatening letters. In 1885, 432 such letters were received, and in 1886 but 75 more were received. That hardly furnished a ground for asking Parliament to assent to an extreme measure of coercion. The other classes of crime amounted in 1885 to 512, and in 1886 to 517. This increase is described as the main reason for the extreme demands of the Government. If Balfour has further private information let him speak. Gladstone's speech is widely commented upon as an effective exposure of the feebleness of the Government's reasons for demanding coercion. The strength of his reasoning is admitted by the Conservatives and felt keenly by the Liberal-Unionists, many of whom have threatened to secede unless the Coercion bill be reduced to a simple provision against boycotting and the plan of campaign. Conservatives already talk of dropping the proposals relating to the transfer of jury trials. Especially will the Unionist papers in the provinces declare them untenable. Gladstone renewed his defiance of the Government's attempt to enforce the closure. The Gladstonians are confident that they can delay the passage of the bill until May, and in the meanwhile are hopeful that the evolution of events will overthrow the whole scheme. The whips on each side have forbidden members to be absent during the holidays, unless paired. the Coercion bill, pronouncing it impolitic and unjust. The English Radical press denounces the measure in language of passionate indignation.

Parnell's Appeal to the American

LINCOLN (Neb.), March 29th.-The following cablegram from Parnell was received by Hon. John Fitzgerald to-day and a suitable reply was sent to Parnell:

House of Commons. LONDON, March 28, 1887. To Hon. John Fitzgerald, Lincoln, Neb. The Coercion bill proposed to-night in the House of Commons is the eighty-seventh since the Act of Union, eighty-seven years ago. It is also the most stringent, tyrannical and uncalled for by the state of affairs in Ireland. Never before has a Coercion bill been proposed when crime was so rapidly decreasing as compared with previous years. The measure is aimed against all open agitation, and appears to be expressly designed for driving discontent beneath the surface. It places all public speakers, writers and conductors of newspapers absolutely at the mercy of stipendiary magistrates, holding their office at the pleasure of the Crown. It consigns the Irish-speaking peasant of rack-rented Kerry to the tender mercies of a packed jury of Orangemen or landlords, or to a jury of Englishmen at the Old Bailey in London. The Liberal party, headed by Gladstone, stands as one man against this measure, and will fight shoulder to shoul- publishers, who notify dealers of the inpresent House of Commons will continue The Right Honorable Chief Secretary for to follow the Tory Government in their are first or last impressions. The first immad course, and good judges consider that the measure will be the wreck and ruin of the Cabinet. We must, however, prepare for the worst; and I confidently appeal to the American people for that sympathy and support which they have never withheld from a people struggling for liberty. C: S. PARNELL.

A determined opposition to the Coercion bill has been developed by this appeal, and the Tory Government has aroused a spirit of hostility among all classes of American

A BRAKEMAN'S LIFE IN WINTER.

Dangerous Work in Bad Weather-Jump. ing from a Train While in Motion. The freight brakemen wear very heavy clothing, although it is always short, as they have to get around in a hurry sometimes. I have known the time when I was braking on a freight train, when the train was running fifteen or twenty miles an hour, against sleet and snow, and a call had come for "down brakes." At such a time I have been sitting on top of the car, so stiff and frozen as to be unable to work the brakes at all.

We do not mind the cold weather so much on the freights as when there is snow on the ground and on the cars. Then it becomes very dangerous, as when the train is running twenty miles an hour the snow and sand will be hurled up between the cars enough to blind a man, and with the ice-covered cars and running as we do, from one car to another, perhaps with our lanterns blown out, it is pretty dangerous, and a man has to be sure-footed and have his wits about him to brake on a freight in the winter time. * * * Many of the passenger brakemen live at the way stations down the road, and when they finish their work at one end of the road they take an express train back, and as it passes the station at which they live, although the train may be going at the rate of from fifteen to twenty-five miles an hour, they will jump off and keep their feet, although they have to run perhaps the length of the train before they stop themselves, but still they seldom, if ever, lose their feet.

It is quite a trick to jump off, and takes considerable practice before it can be done successfully. The way to jump is always with the train and on the left hand side of the latter, letting the right foot rest on the step and the left foot swing from the step. Then jump so that the left foot will strike the ground first and the right foot immediately follow it, so as to be able to run. Some of the men jump from the middle of the train or front, but most of them go to the rear car and jump, so that if they fall they will not roll under the cars. The only regular train, hand I ever heard of being hurt by jumping was a man who lives in Dorchester, and who was struck on the head by the car steps as he jumped and was badly hurt. The best man I ever saw, and the only man who could hold his feet and stop himself without running at all, was a man who is now conductor on the Derby road. He could jump from a train running thirty-five miles an hour and stop without cunning a foot.-New Haven Journal.

Problem of Heating and Lighting. The problem of heating and lighting becomes more and more complicated every year by the electric light and natural gas discoveries. Thirteen years ago Gen. J. S. Casement, of Painesville, Ohio, put down the first natural gas well in this country. He told me about it recently. "I ran a pipe down 662 feet," said he. "At that depth the drill dropped two yards in one jump. The gas immediately began to pour, and it has supplied my house with heat and light ever since. The only trouble I find about it is that it deprives the women folks of a fire to poke. It is | 582 apr18 my standing joke at home that in the absence of a fire they poke at me.

There have been a number of wells put down in Painesville, but none of them were successful except mine. Mr. De Pauw, at Albany, Ind., has spent $500,000 in ineffectual e forts to strike natural gas by boring. It exists in veins and you must strike one of them before you get the gas. Its beauty is in cleanliness and convenience. I heat my house by steam. The boiler is heated by gas, fed automatically. The heat register is automatic, and the water feed in the boiler is automatic. All that is necessary is to look the thing over once a day. In The Radical societies throughout the cooking, we can have a hot fire or a modcountry are passing resolutions against erate one in a second, and no kindlings to split."-New York Trioune.

An Abnormally Sharp Young Man. A young New Englander landed in New York with nothing but his carpet-bag and a license to practice law. An old lady fell on him in the street breaking his arm. The cause of the disaster took him to her house, nursed him and insisted on his taking a vacant room and becoming a member of the family. The young man remained in his pleasant quarters, opened a law office, and began to

After awhile he made money so rapidly that he laid his plans to leave the house and cut the acquaintance of the family. Just then the younger daughter inherited $100,000. The lawyer paid court to her and they became engaged secretly. One day the old lady was on her death-bed and urged an immediate marriage. The young rascal hurried off, secured a license and a preacher and returned. When everything was ready the bridegroom without a word joined hands with the younger daughter. The ceremony was over before the other girl found voice and protested. The dying mother saw what had occurred and went off in a spasm .- Atlanta Constitution.

Artist's Proofs and Second Impressions. The artist's-proof pictures are always good investments for the reason that there are only so many struck off, and after a certain time they become scarce and valuable. The price is fixed by the der with us in opposing it to the last. It creased value of the picture as the price seems impossible to believe that even the increases. The same plate is used in all pictures, yes, but there is a difference in ressions are the re-marked proofs. These have a certain mark, a little design of some kind just beneath the plate and are signed by the artist and etcher. These are the most valuable. The second impressions are the artist's proofs. These do not have the design, but have the autograph. The third and so on are the regular editions. A remarked copy of a new picture can be purchased with the certainty of feeling that its value will go up just as all the copies are sold. It is a sure and safe investment.-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Oysters Said to Promote Health. Raw oysters before breakfast are now indulged in by many people who believe this process promotes and enhances health. This is a belief in which some medical men coincide. It is related of the celebrated Dr Leroy that he was in the habit of swallowing two dozen raw ovsters every morning before breakfast, and used to say to his friends, presenting them with the shells: "There, behold the foundation of my youthful strength!"-San

The supposed necessity for their passage in a particular line or direction to any lot of land is created not by the relative situation of that lot to the surrounding lands, but by the manner in which that lot has been built upon. The actual enjoyment of the air and light by the owner of the house is upon his land only. -Washington Star. President Kirkland Indorsed the Flip. When Dr. Kirkland was president of Harvard college, Porter's famous hostelry in North Cambridge was a favorite resort. One of the chief attractions of Porter's was the 'flip," a delectable compound of a decidedly spirituous flavor, which the college students keenly appreciated and did not hesitate to brave the coldest weather to enjoy. Of Galvanized Iron Roofing. course these practices did not escape the attention of President Kirkland, who went up to the hostelry and asked to see the landlord. Porter, who knew the president, was greatly disturbed, as he knew he should receive a severe rebuke from the head of the college for catering to the tastes of convivially inclined

"Mr. Porter," said Dr. Kirkland, "I understand my young men come up here and drink

"Yes, sir," replied the tavern keeper, in a voice which told how he deprecated the admonition, "they do." "Let me have some of that flip," said the dignified president. Whereupon a mug of the beverage was brought out and was tasted by Dr. Kirkland. Then, fixing a stern glance upon Porter, who almost trembled under it, the president said: "And my young men come out here and drink this stuff, do they?" "Yes, sir," meekly replied the tavern

Obtaining Materials for "Impressions." A French tourist, who went to England a few years ago on one of the now popular "all around the world" tours of observation, inquired, as soon as he had reached Liverpool, where he could find the then prime minister, Mr. Gladstone. The hotel people told him that Mr. Gladstone did not live in Liverpool. "Not live here," said the Frenchman, "you much mistake. Here I have take some notes from Milord Gladdiston, which say 'born in Liverpool.' " The ingenuous Gallican was hard to convince that a man born in Liverpool could be anywhere else; but to his great delight he learned that the premier of England was not many miles away, and monsieur was given directions to Chester and thence to Hawarden, in Wales, where, to his great delight, an agricultural laborer said to him: "Mr. Gladstone? Why, bless you, he's easy enough to be seen. That's him in the big straw hat chopping away at that big tree yonder." The kindly Frenchman was suffused with joy, and, taking out his notebook, wrote in it that one of the peculiar customs of the British empire was that every prime minister of England had to take off his coat and wear g, wideawake and cut down trees for a certain number of hours daily, by the queen's command, during the intervals of legislation in parliament.-Brooklyn Eagle.

Mysteries of a Laboratory in the North

Carolina Mountains. ASHEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 13.-Last week I went out into the mountains for the purpose of securing a holly tree with red berries on it for Yuletide. I had noticed in all my pictures of Christmas festivities in England that the holly, with cranberries on it, constituted the back ground of Yuletide. A Yuletide in England without a holly bough and a little mistletoe in it wouldn't be worth half price. Here these vegetable grow in great profusion, owing to the equable climate, and | World. so the holly tree is within the reach of all.

I resolved to secure one personally, so I sped away into the mountains, where, in less than the time it takes to tell it, I had succeeded in finding a holly tree and losing myself. It is a very solemn sensation to feel that you are lost, and that before you can be found something is liable to happen to the

I wandered aimlessly about for half an hour, hoping that I would be missed in society and some one sent in search of me. I was just about to give up in despair and sink down on a bed of moss with the idea of shuffling off six or seven feet of mortal coil when, a few rods away, I saw a blue smoke issuing from the side of the mountain and rising toward the sky. I went rapidly toward it and found it to be a plain dugout with a dirt floor. I entered and cast myself upon a rude nail keg, allowing my feet to remain suspended at the lower end of my legs, an attitude which I frequently affect when fatigued. The place was not occupied at the time I entered, though there was a fire and things looked as though the owner had not been long absent. It seemed to be a kind of laboratory, for I could see here and there the earmarks of the chemist. I feared at first that it was a bomb factory, but as I could not see any of these implements in a perfected state I decided that it was safe and waited for the owner to arrive.

After some time I heard a low, guttural footstep approaching up the hill. I went to the door and exclaimed to the proprietor as he came, "Merry Christmas, colonel."

MERRY CHRISTMAS, COLONEL. "Merry Christmas be --!" said he in the same bantering tone. "What in three dashes, two hyphens and an astonisher do you want here, you double dashed and double blanketed blank to dash and return!!"

The wording here is my own, but it gives an idea of the way the conversation was drifting. You can see by his manner that literary people are not alone in being surly, irritable and unreasonable.

So I humored him and spoke kindly to him and smoothed down his ruffled plumage with my gay badinage, for he wore a shawl and you can never tell whether a man wearing a shawl is armed or not. I give herewith a view of this chemist as he appeared on the morning I met him.

It will be noticed that he was a man about medium height, with clear cut features and retreating brisket. His hair was dark and hung in great waves, which seemed to have caught the sunlight and retained it together with a great many other atmospheric phenomena. He wore a straw hat, such as I once saw Horace Greeley catch grasshoppers in, on the banks of the Kinnickinnick, just before he caught a small trout.

I spent some time with him watching him as he made his various experiments. Finally he showed me a new beverage that he had been engaged in perfecting. It was inclosed in a dark brown stone receptacle, and was held in place by a common corn cob stopper. I took some of it in order to show that I confided in him. I do not remember anything else distinctly. The fumes of this drink went at once to my brain, where it had what might be termed a complete walkover.

I now have no hesitation in saying that the fluid must have been alcoholic in its nature, for when I regained my consciousness I was extremely elsewhere. I found myself on a road which seemed to lead in two opposite directions, and my mind was very much con-

I hardly know how I got home, but I finally did get there, accompanied by a strong leaning toward prohibition. A few days later I received the following letter:

SIR-I at first thought when I saw you at my laboratory the other day that you was a low, inquisitive cuss, and so I spoke to you in harsh tones and reproached you and upbraided you by calling you everything I could lay my tongue to, but since then I have concluded that you didn't know any better.

You said to me that you found my place by seeing the smoke coming out of the chimbley; that has given me an idea that you might know something about what's called a smoke consumer, of which I have heard.

I am doing a fair business, but I am a good deal pestered, as you might say, by people who come in on me when I do not want to mingle in society. A man in the chemist business cannot succeed if he is all the time interrupted by Tom, Dick and Harry coming in on him when he is in the middle of an experiment. I am engaged in making a remedy for which there is a great demand, but its manufacture is regarded with suspicion by United States officials who want to be considered zealous. Rather than be drawn into any difficulty with these people, I have always courted retirement and avoided the busy haunts of men. Still, some strolling idiot or other will occasionally see the smoke from my little home and drop in on me. Could you find out about this smoke consumer, and see what the price would be, and let me know as soon as possible?

If you could do so I can be of great service to you. Leave the letter under the big stone where you found yourself the other day when you came out of your trance. I call it a trance, because this letter might fall into the hands of your family. If you will find out about this smoke consumer and leave the information where I told you, you will find on the following day a large jug of mountain dew in the same place, that will make your hair grow and give a roseate hue to your otherwise gloomy life.

Do not try to come here again. It might compromise me. A man in your position may not have anything to risk, but with me it is different. My unsullied reputation is all I have to bequeath to my childen. If you come often there will not be enough of it left to go around, as I have a large family.

If you hear of anybody that wants to trade a good double barrel shotgun for a small portable worm and retort that is too small for my business, I can give him a good trade on it if he will let you know. This is a good machine for experimental purposes, and being no larger than a Babcock fire extinguisher it can be readily conveyed to a place of safety at a very rapid rate. You might say to your friends that we shall try in the future as we have in the past to keep up the standard of our goods, so as to merit a continued patronage.

Citizens of the United States, or those who have declared their intention to become such, will always be welcome at our works, provided they are not office holders in any capacity. We have no use for those who are in any way connected with the public teat. I. B. MOONSHINE.

ANECDOTES OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Overcome by Too Much Tail-Help Me

Let This Hog Go. President Lincoln was fond of impressing a point or illustrating his opinion or desire through the medium of a story. When Gen. Grant was appointed lieutenant general the president called him aside to speak to him privately; and after a brief reference to the military situation he said he could best illustrate what he wanted to say by a story which he related. The anecdote is in Grant's own words and was contributed by Col. Fred. Grant to Mr. Allen Thorndike Rice's "Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln, by Distinguished Men of His Time." The president said: "At one time there was a great war among the animals, and one side had great difficulty in getting a commander who had sufficient confidence in himself. Finally they found a monkey, of the name of Jocko, who said he thought he could command their army if his tail could be made a little longer. So they got more tail and spliced it on to his catidal appendage. He looked at it admiringly, and then thought he ought to have a little more still. This was added, and again he called for more. The splicing process was repeated many times, until they had coiled Jocko's tail around the room, filling all the space. Still he called for more tail, and, there being no other place to coil it, they began wrapping it around his shoulders. He continued his call for more, and they kept on winding the additional tail about him until finally its own weight broke him down." Gen. Grant saw the point, and, rising from his chair, replied: "Mr. President, I will not possible to do with the forces I already have." He used the same means likewise to give vent to his deepest feelings. Mr. Rice gives an anecdote related by Ex-Governor Curtin, war governor of Pennsylvania, which contains a striking instance of this kind. Governor Curtin had returned from the battle of Fredericksburg, and described it to the presilent as rather a butchery than a fight. The account of the horrors he had witnessed threw the president into a state of nervous excitement, and Gov. Curtin, in taking his leave of the sorrowful executive, said: "I trust matters will look brighter when the official reports come in;" and then he added, impulsively: "I would give all I possess to know how to rescue you from this terrible war." Immediately the president's manner changed, and he relieved his mind by telling the following story: "This reminds me," he said, "of an old farmer out in Illinois that I used to know. He took it into his head to go into hog raising. He sent over to Europe and imported the finest breed of hogs he could buy. The prize hog was put in a pen, and the farmer's two mischievous boys, James and John, were told to be sure not to let him out. But James, the worse of the two, let the brute out the next day. The hog went straight for the boys, and drove John up a tree. Then it went for the seat of James' trousers, and the only way he could save himself was by holding on to the hog's tail. The hog would not give up his hunt nor the boy his hold. After they had made a good many circles around the tree, the boy's courage began to give out, and he shouted to his brother: 'I say, John, come down quick and help me let this hog go.' Now, governor, that is exactly my case. I wish some one would come and help me let

She Bought it from Charity. "Where did you get that watch?" said her husband, as she very ostentatiously pulled out a watch and looked at it. "I bought it."

"No; I bought it for myself. I couldn't help it. I couldn't see a poor family starve, and I bought the woman's watch." "Just like you," he said. "You're always doing something kind-with my money.'

"I'll tell you how it happened. I was passing along the street and there was an auction going on in a store." "An auction! Oh!"

"Yes, I was listening and looking, and as I stood there a poor, distressed man came up. He pulled out this watch and he asked the auctioneer if he'd auction it for him. He said his wife and family were starving, and this was an old family heirloom and he wanted to sell it. Well, the auctioneer he said he'd sell it, and he put it up, and all they'd bid for it was $7. The poor fellow began to cry. 'It's worth $100,' he said. 'Won't somebody give more than $7. I can't sell it for that. I've had an offer of $45.' And I got mad and sorry for the poor man, and I bid $8, and somebody bid $9, and I bid $10, and finally they got it up to $40, and I bought it. Poor fellow! The man went off quite relieved and happy, and I felt so glad that I'd done a good deed at a bargain." "Yes, the poor chap was relieved, I don't

"Well, couldn't you arrange to give me a half rate ticket and take my note for the amount. It will be all right, you know." "No; our rules are very strict now, and it would be as much as my position's worth to make out a half rate ticket for any one." The stranded Thespian looked pained and thoughtful a moment and then whispered:

"Well, say, could you lend me a quarter and direct me to the nearest drug store?" "Why, what do you want-whisky?" "No, strychnine. I'm going to leave St. Louis somehow. ''—Chicago Herald.

Conclusive of Insanity. Lawyer A-I've gained my case, old boy, and my client escapes the halter.

Lawyer B-How did you do it? A-Now you ask me a hard one. The case had been given to the jury and they had been out a couple of hours when they sent in a communication asking for instructions. It turned out that they only wanted to ask a very triffing, irrelevant question. They wished to know if the senior counsel for the defense, meaning me, was employed by the defendant or assigned by the govern-ment. They were told that I was engaged by the defendant. The Fine Exhibit Made at the Fair by the Fredericksburg Brewing Co.

One of the most novel and unique exhibits of the Mechanics' Fair was that of the Fredericksburg Lager Brewing Co. It was in the form of a bower, the roof being formed of hop vines, while around the sides were arranged the various packages of the famous Frederi cksburgbeer. This company was the pioneer in the manufacture of lager on the Coast. After overcoming many obstacles they have succeeded in producing an export

Lager Not Surpassed

By any other made in the United States. A proof of this is seen in the fact that their goods are sold as far East as Chicago, despite Eastern competition. How can they do this after paying freight over 3,000 miles of railroad, it may be asked. In the first place hops are better and cheaper here than in the East; again, California barley is the best grown in the United States; but the chief reason is the superior quality of the brew. DEFIES COMPETITION.

Their Export Lager is so perfect that it will keep any number of years in any climate, and is sold largely in Mexico, Australia, the Islands, South America, and in short throughout the Western Hemisphere. In three years their output has quadrupled; last year it amounted to 33,000 barrels, and this year will exceed that amount. Since writing the above we learn that the Fredericksburg Brewing Co. was awarded the first prize, a silver medal, "for the best Export Lager," also the first prize, another silver medal, for the "best Keg Lager Beer." - | Journal of Commerce, San Francisco.

Having been appointed SOLE AGENTS for the Hawaiian Islands for the above celebrated Brewing Company, we are now prepared to fill all orders for the trade and family consumption at bedrock figures.
