ALAMEDA'S STORY TOLD

How the Accident Happened --- Struck on Fort Point --- List of Passengers and In-voice of Cargo.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The Examiner says: Suddenly enshrouded in a blinding smother of fog, that swept upon her almost at the harbor mouth, the Oceanic steamship Alameda, bound for Honolulu, with 200 persons aboard her, crashed bows on into the reef at Fort Point about 11:30 yesterday morning, surged into a cradle between two jagged ledges, and hung there helplessly. Fortunately no lives were lost, and it is expected that the cargo will all be saved, but in the face of the terrible disaster which might easily have occurred under the same conditions every mariner, ship-owner and sea-goer on the coast will insist upon knowing why neither of the government foghorns at Fort Point and Lime Point sounded any warning, and how the Alameda's pilot, C. B. Johnson, happened to be two points off his course without knowing it.

When the Alameda left her berth at the Pacific-street wharf, at 11 o'clock yesterday, the skies were blue and the face of the waters in the bay lay smooth as any floor. The tide was nearly at the flood, and there was no appreciable current to be reckoned with, and the great vessel backed into the channel and pointed her prow toward the Golden Gate with never a hint of danger anywhere.

NO THOUGHT OF DANGER.

Her pilot and her master, Captain Dowdell, lounged against the railing on her bridge, as they had done many times before. Her chief officer, Mate Anderson, paced the topgallant forecastle with the man on the lookout. Her passengers crowded the port gangway of the promenade deck to bid farewell to each familiar landmark of the city's rim as it slipped slowly past them.

All went well until the Alameda arrived at a point midway between Alcatraz island and Meigs wharf. In that location, the attention of her officers having been attracted by the wild whistlings of a small launch racing after her, far astern, the liner lay to for nearly twenty minutes. From the launch, once it came alongside, she took aboard a few pieces of baggage which had been left behind by a clergyman in her first cabin. And it was as the swirl of her screw began again after the accomplishment of this small task that the thick and heavy bank of fog swept in upon her and wrapped her round.

The first thing that Captain Dowdell and Pilot Johnson did in this emergency was to listen for the foghorn at Lime Point. They could not hear it, nor could anybody else aboard. Yet it is that horn which is better known for its sonorous voice than any other on the Pacific Coast, and on many a bad day its bellow has been heard in the city as far from the water front as Third and Market streets. Bereft of this guidance, master and pilot turned their ears toward the horn at Fort Point, a signal usually only less effective than its fellow on the opposite shore. But in that direction, too, there was no sound save possibly the gentle lapping of the waters round the Alameda's bows. So, with barely enough speed to give her headway, the good ship was set in a course southwest by west half west and steered for the open sea.

Captain Dowdell and Pilot Johnson knew of the ragged reef that stretches into the channel off Fort Point. It was there that the Rio de Janeiro struck and went down on a black night in February, 1901, sheering off into deep water and carrying to the bottom more than a hundred of her passengers. They knew of reef and wreck and so speculated anxiously about the silent foghorns on either hand. But for some reason which has not yet been explained they seem to have decided to take a chance, and it is asserted that instead of creeping on as cautiously as

THE CHE-FA AND FAN-TAN JOINTS THAT OPERATE HERE

Honolulu, Oahu, Oct. 12th, 1905.

Editor Advertiser: Allow me a space in your valuable paper to express my views on the subject of gambling in Honolulu. Really gambling is going on more openly now than during the time of High Sheriff Henry.

There is four che-fa bank now in operating in Honolulu, and the names mentioned in the Advertiser of former date is correct. Hop Lee Bank is under the supervision of Lau Ping Lum. Amana Bank is under the supervision of Siu Chin Dai. Ah Kee Bank is under the supervision of Chiu Ping. Alina Bank is under the supervision of said Alina.

In regard to the fan tan joint there are five running in full blast and are located as follows:

One joint is located on Smith street in a lane above Hotel street where nineteen men were arrested, but as no evidence caught by the police the case were nolle pros. and the place is running full blast at the present time.

Next joint is on Liliha street, in a stable on the Waikiki side of Liliha, few feet above King street. This same joint was raided by the police and over twenty men were captured, but the same as above, no evidence to convict, so the men were discharged, the place is running still.

The next joint is at a stable on the corner of Vineyard and College walk, this joint has been running for two or three years and only once the place was raided, and over twenty men was captured, but like the aforesaid joint, the police cannot get any evidence and the men were discharged, and the place has been running ever since. The place is all wired with electric wire and is a very dangerous place to raid, but as the supervisors has passed an ordinance granting more power to the police in making such raid, we will see whether the police will make such arrest or not.

This is the joint where all this fancy luau was given by the owner of the place on all Chinese holidays and lots of officials were seen going there and enjoying the same.

Next joint is on Hotel street near Maunakea street, and this place has been running for three weeks at the present time and never was molested by the police.

The next joint is at Waikiki, in the Joss house next to the Waikiki church, this place was raided and about twenty people were caught, they pleaded guilty the next day and were fined $1.00 and $1.00 cost, making a total of $2.00 each, and on the very same night they have been playing since. The place is reported to be in charge of two men, one is a cook for a judge, and the other is a cook for the officer who has something to say about police raid.

I will keep you posted as to all the new place that is going to start, but as they have not started yet, I will not mentioned it now.

Say, editor, if what you publish now, the public is still in doubt of it, I will make an appointment with you or with any of your reporter on any evening you say and I can pilot your reporter or any other person you wish to go with me and show you the whole place.

Trusting that you will keep my name out of the paper so that your informer may not be known to the police, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

ONE WHO WANTS TO SUPPRESS GAMBLING.

HEAVY CARGO WAS IN THE HOLD

The steamer Alameda was cleared yesterday for Honolulu with an unusually large cargo, the total value being $185,135. Probably the most notable features of the cargo were the enormous quantities of provisions and Christmas goods. The shipments of these commodities were more extensive this year than usual because of the highly prosperous condition of the people of the islands, following the harvest of the greatest and most profitable sugar crop in the history of that business. Within an hour after leaving her dock the Alameda ran upon the rocks between Fort Point and the buoy. Inasmuch as the people of the islands depend almost entirely upon San Francisco for their food supply there is strong probability that if this cargo is lost there will be a temporary shortage in several branches of the provisions line. This, however, will be of short duration, for the cable between San Francisco and Honolulu can be used for duplication of orders wherever the necessities of trade require such action. Among the leading shipments were the following: 1240 bbls. flour, 488 ctls. barley, 140 ctls. wheat, 37,380 lbs. bran, 31 ctls. corn, 4288 lbs. beans, 15,659 lbs. and 36 cs. millstuffs, 50,000 lbs. rice, 1824 lbs. hops, 41,100 lbs. malt, 32,976 lbs. sugar, 4073 lbs. dried fish, 2500 lbs. salt, 103 pkgs. prepared fish, 9042 lbs. and 9 cs. candy, 6 pkgs. olives, 30 cs. salad oil, 9434 gals. and 11 cs. wine, 629 gals. and 157 cs. whiskey, 40 cs. liquors, 105 gals. and 31 cs. gin, 33 gals. and 11 cs. brandy, 949 gals. and 11 cs. spirits.

THOMAS IS IN PORT

Transport With the Thirteenth Infantry Arrives.

In the sunset's glow yesterday, the great wall-sided transport Thomas steamed stately into the harbor and shortly after 5 o'clock was safely tied up in the naval slip.

The Thomas left San Francisco on the 5th inst. and experienced an uneventful run down, making a trifle better than her usual time.

The transport was expected yesterday morning, but was not reported from Waimanalo until 2 p. m.

A great crowd awaited the Thomas' docking, for it was the end of the day and sight-seeing was in order.

The usual scenes witnessed when a soldier-ship arrives were enacted and the spectacle was an interesting and lively one.

Outside the dock gates hacks, autos, laundry-wagons and express wagons formed a long line, while a crowd of stevedores and loafers lined the mauka end of the naval slips.

Here and there a native seller of curios displayed her wares. On the wharf a khaki-clad guard tramped up and down and customs officers, soldiers, hotel runners, newspapermen, postal officials, newsboys, and a sprinkling of well-dressed women made a moving mass of humanity.

A few fortune-battered individuals paced the wharf and eyed the approaching vessel with interest, evidently calculating the chances of stowing away and commencing another chapter of life in the distant Philippines.

At last the vessel was made fast and the throng of warriors on the rail desisted from feasting their eyes on the verdure-clad hills and cloud-capped mountains and turned their thoughts to preparations for going ashore.

The Thomas is quite a favorite here, her famous sweetheating voyage having lastingly endeared her in the hearts of Honoluluans. Who can easily forget that trip she made to the fevered Philippines with a freight of school-ma'ams and masters on marrying bent? A wholesale splicing followed the transport's arrival at Manila and quite a few desultory knots were tied here.

Very spick and span the transport looked, even after her seven days' trip, and there was good reason for this for she has only just come off dry dock in San Francisco, having been laid up for a thorough overhauling since June 20.

Over $50,000 are said to have been expended on her in repairs and improvements, new boilers having been put in and capacity for 20 more berths added.

The Thomas has a big crowd aboard, including 803 enlisted men of the 13th Infantry commanded by Colonel A. C. Markley.

Among the officers aboard are Col. F. K. Ward of the Second Cavalry, Lt. Col. W. H. C. Bowen of the 13th Infantry, and Major B. A. Byrne, also of the 13th.

The only passengers for Honolulu were fifteen marines for the local naval station and J. Sutherland Ross. The latter is traveling representative of the Oceanic Steamship Co. and connecting railroad lines.

Ross was a passenger aboard the Alameda when she was wrecked and is the first eye-witness to arrive here since the disaster.

There are a large number of officers' wives aboard and when the news was learned that a dance had been planned to take place that evening for their benefit, there was some lively skirmishing after ball dresses.

The Thomas will remain here until Saturday at noon and all kinds of festivities are planned for the visitors. Tonight there will be another big dance at the Hawaiian Hotel and a concert by the band of the 13th Infantry, said to be the best musical organization in the service.

The University Club has extended the privileges of the club to the officers of the Thomas during their stay here.

Some excitement was created aboard the transport about 5:15 p. m., by a tremendous shock which fairly shook the vessel and set all hands to wondering what had happened. The shock was due to an unusually heavy blast at the Alakea slip.

WANTS A BANDSTAND.

Captain Berger of the Hawaiian Band is once again after a bandstand in Aala Park. He stated yesterday that the crowds from Palama at Wednesday's concert were such as to interfere with the proper playing of his musicians. "The people herded us like sheep," said Berger, "and it is nearly time we had even a little shanty to protect us. If we had that and a few movable benches everybody could enjoy the music and there would be no trouble at all. The bandstand should be on the Ewa side."

CITIZEN LABOR.

Since the first of the year the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association has found work on plantations for 300 Portuguese. Within three weeks past it has placed 75 skilled laborers, about one-third of the number being Americans and Portuguese, the remainder Hawaiians and Porto Ricans pretty evenly divided. Reports from Kahuku are that several Americans sent there are doing very well. All of the Portuguese distributed are contented and giving satisfaction.

A Manchester paper tells this story, which is appropriate to the season, and shows how Irishmen are gifted with discretion: One morning Mrs. Murphy, a customer, came into the tailor-shop and found the tailor busy with pencil and paper. She asked him what he was doing. "O'm makin' a list av the min in this block who Oi kin lick," said he. "Hev ye got Murphy's name down?" asked she. "Murphy heads me list," Home flew Mrs. Murphy and broke the news to her man. He was in the tailor-shop in a jiffy. "Me woman tells me that ye're after making a memorial tablet av the min that yiz kin lick, and that ye've got me at the head of it. Is that true?" "Shure, an' it's true. What of it?" said the tailor. "Ye good-for-nothin' little grasshopper, I could commit suicide on yez with me little finger. I could wipe up the flure wid yez with me hands tied behind me." "Are ye sure of that?" asked the tailor. "Sure? I'm shure about it." "Well, then," said the tailor, "if ye're shure of it, I'll scratch ye off the list."

before the Alameda was sent forward at a speed of ten knots.

OFF HER COURSE.

However that may be, it seems to be agreed by both captain and pilot that the ship was soon being steered two points out of her course, or if not steered thus at all events veered thither by the tide. Why the compass failed to make this grave digression plain or why no pause was made when the horn on Lime Point at last began to howl is a mystery. In any case the result of this muddle came quickly enough. The Alameda struck the reef, quivered from stem to stern and bumped and ground her bows into the mighty niche which held her fast and kept her right side up.

Few if any of the ship's passengers were on the decks when the accident occurred. Some were in the saloon, some were in the smoking-room, and many were busy unpacking their belongings in the staterooms. But at the first jar an instinctive premonition of what had happened appears to have affected them all. They made a wild rush for the stairways, crowded into the outer gangways, and were kept from absolute panic only by the calmness and presence of mind displayed by many of the crew. Assured that they were not in danger of drowning, they huddled together in comforting groups and stopped their ears to keep out the din of the siren, which now began to scream in token of the ship's distress.

The lifeboat from the station at Bakers Beach responded promptly to the siren's appeal, and finding matters aboard the Alameda temporarily lacking in peril, hastened back to the shore and telephoned to the city for tugs and lighters. Oddly enough, the tugs that quickly came steaming down the bay at the first summons were none of them the property of the company which owns the Alameda, but all belonged to a rival concern. Yet they could not have hastened to the stranded vessel any faster than they did, and could not have accomplished the work of taking off her passengers with greater dispatch or care. These tugs were the Sea Fox, the Sea Rover, the Sea Prince and the Sea Queen. Other help came at the same time from the army transport service tug Slocum and the Pacific Mail tug Arabs.

Once the passengers had been safely disposed of, the officers of the Alameda turned their energies to transshipping some of her more precious cargo. The contents of her hold were valued at about $185,000, and among them was $10,000 worth of opium, which was the first commodity removed. While this work was going forward no less than fifty launches belonging to Italian fishermen appeared upon the scene and scurried back and forth in a search for possible plunder in bottles and jars. Additional excitement was created at this time by the snapping of the tow-rope which joined a big lighter to the lifeboat trying to bring it to the Alameda's side. Strenuous efforts were immediately made to recapture the clumsy craft, which carried fifty longshoremen, but before it could be made fast it was caught in the maw of the tide and drifted out toward the sea. Pursued by two tugs, the second attempt at capture was rewarded with success.

FOG SOON LIFTS.

Though the fog which enveloped the Alameda was so thick when she struck the reef that the soldiers in the garrison at Fort Point could not see her when they ran down to the beach, less than a score of yards away, there was no trace of the opaque mist when the work of rescue was fairly under way. As soon as possible hawsers were passed from two of the tugs and fastened to bits in the tilted vessel's stern, preparatory to a determined endeavor to pull her out of her predicament. This method was found to be of no avail, however, as the tide had now begun to fall, and it was finally decided to postpone further operations along this line till early this morning, when the tide should be again at the flood.

Just how much damage was done to the Alameda can not be exactly estimated until she has been removed from her present precarious position. She is twenty-five years old, but one of the best known liners of the Pacific, and worth about $450,000. This is the first serious accident she ever sustained, or, for that matter, which was ever sustained by any of the Spreckels boats.

YOUNG OFFICERS MUDDLED.

The work performed by the officers and men of the Alameda in transferring the passengers to the government tug Golden Gate was severely criticised by officers and crew of the latter boat, who asserted that the former made serious blunders which might have resulted in disaster to boats and loss of life, that the boats which brought the passengers to the Golden Gate were undermanned, and that one officer of the Alameda while in charge of one of the boats made such a serious error as to badly hurt H. Kiley, one of the Alameda's passengers, and endanger women and men who were in the boat with him.

"I don't know what in the world was the matter with the officer who commanded the third boat to leave the Alameda," said a petty officer of the Golden Gate. "He acted in the most muddle-headed manner you could think of. When he put away from the side of the Alameda his boat was loaded down with women and men and he had only two men to row the boat, and the tide was running strong.

"Then, to make a bad matter worse, he steered the boat beneath the heavy hawser stretched from the liner to the tug Sea Rover, which was trying to haul off the Alameda from the rock. It was taking a terrible chance, for at any moment that great hawser might dip and swamp the boat or sweep the

MRS. EFFINGER ON BRAVERY OF OFFICERS AND CREW

Mrs. John Effinger, one of the passengers on the Alameda, in speaking of the grounding, said:

"I was sitting on the starboard side of the vessel with my three little daughters when the accident took place. I can never express the peculiar sensation we experienced when the vessel struck the rocks. There was an awful, sickening sort of feeling and a rasping, grating noise as the ship kept on grinding over the rocky ledge. While I suppose in reality it was only a minute or so before we came to a standstill, it seemed an eternity to me.

"My little daughter Louise was terribly frightened and I had great difficulty in keeping control of her. I have traveled all over the world, and I knew the moment we struck what was the matter. A dense fog was about us at the time and it was impossible to see anything. Coupled with the fog there seemed to be a dense haze. When we left the dock at 11 o'clock the sun was shining brightly, and we had only just passed Melges wharf when all of a sudden the fog dropped on us, and we might just as well have been enveloped in the darkest night for anything we could see.

"No sooner had we struck the rocks than the fog began to lift. It disappeared as suddenly as it had come. I occupied from it. And the hawser did dip, while we on the Golden Gate were watching the progress of that dangerous trip with our hearts in our mouths. The hawser struck one of the Alameda's passengers, H. Kiley, across the chest, hurting him so badly that he was laid out on a berth all the time we were coming back with the passengers, being attended to by Dr. Drew of the Marine Hospital Service.

"Some of the younger officers on the Alameda certainly lost their heads. They were all at sixes and sevens. When they reached our side with the passengers they had to borrow men from our crew to help them row back and assist in the work. When we reached the Alameda with a boat on at least one occasion we could get nobody to catch our rope and one of our men had to jump for the Jacob's ladder and take it aboard."

Some of the Alameda's passengers also criticised the conduct of some of the younger officers, saying that they lost their heads.

WHAT PASSENGERS TOLD THE PAPERS

H. P. Wood, who has been secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at San Diego for the past six years and who was on his way to Honolulu to enter upon the position of secretary of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, was standing on the forward decks of the Alameda when the ship struck. Standing by him were his wife and George W. Fishburn, cashier of the First National Bank of San Diego.

"It was very foggy," said Wood, in telling what he knew of the disaster. "We ran into a thick bank of fog while proceeding down the bay, and it was impossible to see anything beyond the bow of the vessel. We could hear fog signals very distinctly, but I could not say where they were located. The first warning I had of the impending disaster came from a sailor on the lookout forward. He shouted and pointed over the port rail. Peering out through the fog I could see a dark object looming up ahead, but it was so indistinct that I could not tell whether it was a ship or a rock, or whatever it might be. In another instant we struck. There was a grating sound and we slid up on the rocks with scarcely any jar. I remarked to my wife, with less emotion than I thought myself capable of under the circumstances, that we were aground. We could then see Fort Point quite distinctly, less than a ship's length away. There was absolutely no excitement on board then or subsequently. Perfect discipline was preserved. The boats were lowered instantly, but it was some time before the passengers were put off. Everyone took the situation quite calmly, and I might say, good naturedly. I didn't hear a harsh word uttered, and about the only expressions I heard from the passengers were words of sympathy for Captain Dowdell, who had been running on the Alameda for many years and who was well known and highly esteemed by many of the passengers.

"As an evidence of the perfect composure of the passengers most of them went down into the saloon for lunch when the lunch hour arrived. It was not long after the Alameda struck that the Custom-house boat Golden Gate was alongside, and the transferring of the passengers, with all their stateroom baggage, and the mails was accomplished in orderly manner. I looked at my watch almost the moment the Alameda struck, and, as near as I can come to it, the accident happened at 11:47 o'clock."

Mrs. Wood, in speaking of her experience, said she was not at all excited when the ship went on the rocks or afterward, although she felt quite nervous while the ship was proceeding down the bay in the fog.

"There have been so many disasters on account of fog that I had a presentiment of fear while we were proceeding out toward the Golden Gate. Everyone on board seemed to feel such a sense of security after we struck, however, that I did not get at all nervous. Everybody behaved beautifully. The hour of the day and the calm weather, I think, had a great deal to do with it."

L. B. KERR'S STATEMENT.

"I was in my bed at the time of the grounding," said L. B. Kerr, one of the most prominent merchants of Honolulu, "and I thought that we were going to sink. I remember that I thought it was did not hear any of the bells or whistles blowing from Point Bonita, although I was listening attentively for them. Some of the passengers said they heard them, but I did not. Our captain was blowing our whistle repeatedly. The passengers were very cool after the vessel grounded, and I must compliment Captain Dowdell and his officers and crew for the complete self-possession they maintained and for the able manner in which they allayed any excitement that might have taken place at such a time."

Mrs. Effinger is the wife of John Effinger, a prominent merchant of Honolulu. She had been spending the summer in Portland, Ore., to see the Lewis and Clark Exposition, and was the guest there of her mother, Mrs. George H. Flanders.

One of the amusing incidents of the wreck was the action of little Louise Effinger, daughter of Mrs. John Effinger. The child absolutely refused to leave the wreck until she was assured that her rag doll had been saved. The beloved doll had a head almost as large as its body and painted eyes like saucers. It looked as though it might have been a "hand me down" doll, but that only increased the love the little girl had for it, and she would rather have died than leave her treasure behind. The doll was finally secured and the happy child, with her treasure in her arms, was put safely aboard the Golden Gate.—Chronicle.

too bad for us to go down when we had barely started on our journey. I found my wife and daughter already on the deck and I soon saw that there was really no danger.

"We were lying so close to the land that the passengers felt perfectly safe. The crash when we struck was awful and many of the women on board screamed with terror. The people were quickly taken off the Alameda and were landed in San Francisco with very little inconvenience. The officers of the ship were cool all of the time and the presence of mind prevented a panic. To them I give my thanks."—Chronicle.

BUCKLAND GIRLS NOT SCARED.

The Misses Vivian and Hazel Buckland, daughters of C. R. Buckland, were, with their father, passengers on the Alameda. When the grating crash of the ship on the hidden rocks came jarring through the ship they were hurried to the deck by their father, who understood at once what had happened. Both young girls—their ages are between twelve and fifteen—are musicians, their instruments being guitars. They audibly and emphatically voiced their resolves not to leave the ship until they had secured their instruments, a purpose which they carried out despite the anxious urgings of their father to hurry to the boats.

"We just could not leave the ship without our guitars," they said when seen at the Oceanic company's dock after landing with the other passengers from the Golden Gate, which took them from the Alameda. "Just to think of our pretty instruments sinking into the water with the ship if it had gone down!"

"And were you not frightened on your own accounts?" was asked.

"Oh, no, really, not at all. We thought it a great adventure, a fine piece of sport. Just fancy, we can tell all our friends how we were in a really, truly shipwreck. Father told us that there was no danger after we got to deck and could see the shore barely peeping through the fog, and, of course, we knew that he knew all about it, and so we just clung to our guitars and had a fine time. It was so exciting. We would not have missed it for anything, now that it is all over and nobody was drowned or hurt."

So the two young girls talked in chorus, and their manner plainly showed that they had no regrets. Their self-possession and bravery attracted the notice of many of the other passengers, who said they were the real heroines of the disaster. They were still clinging to their beloved guitars when they landed from the Golden Gate and looked as if it would not take much urging to induce them to tune up and celebrate the jolly occasion with music. They might have been characters in Joseph Conrad's famous sea tale of "Youth," wherein it is shown how all the terrors and dangers of the ocean were to the hearts of the young but thrilling phases of the romance and the joy of living.

SHIP'S CREW VERY COOL.

M. M. O'Shaughnessy, who is well known throughout this State and the Hawaiian Islands as a civil engineer and water expert, was returning to the islands, where he is in charge of several large water schemes, which involve several million dollars. Mr. O'Shaughnessy commended the officers and crew upon their coolness and bravery and stated that everything was so nicely handled that the majority of the passengers did not realize they were in the slightest danger.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy was one of the passengers on the lifeboat that was caught in the hawser and came near being knocked overboard. In speaking of it afterwards he said that the lifeboat attempted to cross under the hawser, when an unexpected sag, caused by one of the tugs ceasing to pull, came near swamping the boat. The officer in charge called to the passengers to look out, but one man was a little slow and was struck, but not seriously hurt.—Examiner.

CHRONICLE'S COMMENT.

On Tuesday, October 3, the Chronicle had the following editorial comment on the wreck of the Alameda:

The stranding of the Oceanic Steamship Company's liner Alameda on Fort Point reef at noon Saturday is one of the most extraordinary marine disasters which has ever occurred in San Francisco bay. The vessel was outward bound for Honolulu with a full cargo of miscellaneous merchandise

If the Supervisors are going to stop the heavy blasts on the waterfront they can't begin any too soon to please the downtown property-owners. Daily the business section is shaken as by an earthquake.

The first floating mines on record were launched in the Hudson river from West Point, during the revolutionary war, to destroy the British warship Vulture. They are called "powder kegs" in history. When the Vulture saw them coming she slipped her cables and made off.

German soldiers have not made much of an impression in South Africa. Nor did they in the Samoan fights of a few years ago. German victories have been mainly won in the mass fighting of large armies where certain fixed rules of warfare are observed on both sides. When it comes to the personal initiative required in fighting savages, the German soldiers are as badly off as the British under Braddock were about a century and a half ago in the Pennsylvania wilderness.

It is not likely that the War Department will concern itself deeply over the military drill being given in this city to Chinese and Japanese schoolboys. The lads are not being prepared for filibustering and many of them are born citizens anyhow. The drill they get is intended to provide regular and healthful exercise, to build up the physique, to impart obedience, discipline and a habit of neatness. As such it will probably commend itself to the War Department which admits aliens to West Point and encourages military schools all over the country.

The Johannesburg (Transvaal) Star makes the curious statement that the suffering among the rural Boers is due to their inability to work. The Boer farmers have never learned how and are unable to settle down to a routine of drudgery. Their women, the Star says, regard household service as degrading. A reader at a distance is left to infer that the Boer farmers of the past have simply been cowboys and hunters and that something has happened to cattle and game which now forces them to rely on crops which are unfamiliar to them and which call for a kind of labor they are unfitted to perform.

The Advertiser gives notice that its gambling crusade is ended, for the time at least. This is very strange. Why cease just as soon as the man it claimed is the main gambler has been arrested? Now is the time to begin increased efforts. Will not the Advertiser supply the evidence it has been claiming and thus insure a conviction?—Star.

The Advertiser is quite willing to supply "all the evidence it has been claiming." Now, will the Star, which boasts in one column of its civic virtue and in another of the superior ability of its reporters to enter Honolulu's gambling places, put its own knowledge at the disposal of the supervisors and the grand jury? Or does the job-work subsidy prevent?

The Markel concession, which the Panama Canal Commission has just annulled, was granted in an illegal way. According to Collier's, the contract was awarded to J. E. Markel of Omaha, in competition with Hudgins & Dumas and H. Balfe & Co. The unsuccessful holders have protested against the award, and Hudgins & Dumas assert that there was a leak in the office of Chairman Shonts of the Isthmian Commission, by which one entire section of their bid, comprising sample menus for a week, was transferred bodily to the tender of their successful rival. They also complain of undue haste in awarding the contract. Mr. Shonts explains that all the sample menus were open to all the bidders. He holds further that haste was necessary, and that as the matter was under the Panama Railroad the Canal Commission's formalities were not required.

LIVELY TIMES YESTERDAY IN PARKER RANCH CASE

The examination of Ikua Purdy in the Parker case came to a close yesterday. There was a lull between the opposing counsel as to the responsibility for undue protraction of the case, and some remarks of the court as to the inadvisability of prolonged cross-examination on minor matters may have hastened the early closing of what promised to be a longer examination.

The breaks in the water pipe at the dairy proved to be cases where workmen had left the water running. Ikua had reported the matter, but was closely pressed by Kinney as to why he had not closed the valves himself.

The cover at the Mana cistern was elusive. There was no cover—the cover was rotten—there was half a cover—there was a cover, but the witness had other work and could not see that it was kept open. The witness admitted that he was luna in immediate charge at Mana, with four men under him, but thought that he had fulfilled his obligations by reporting the matter to Fred Carter. Carter had sent up a white carpenter, who had repaired the floor but was too lazy to make the cover.

"Why did you not nail two or three boards together yourself and make a cover?" asked Kinney.

"When the white man was too lazy to do the work," said the witness, "I left it as it was in order that the manager might see for himself what sort of a man he had sent up."

"Then you have made the horses drink bad water for a series of years in order to teach the manager a lesson?"

"Yes, I wanted him to see for himself."

From the cistern at Mana, Kinney turned to the cistern at Makahala, and his first question precipitated a clash. He asked, "You remember yesterday that when I asked you why you had not testified on direct examination that the cattle confined in the Kekuanahan pen had been taken out at times and given water, you said you had not been asked. Now I ask you in regard to this cistern at Makahala if you know any facts that will make the testimony you have given seem less black against Carter?"

Magoon objected that this was not a proper mode of examination and Kinney defended the question vigorously. He stated that over half a day had been wasted on the question of confining cattle without food or water before he had been able to get the admission referred to from the witness. He accused Magoon of bringing out only half the truth on direct examination and leaving the defense to bring out all circumstances in extenuation or explanation; and claimed that this showed the fallacy of entrusting the power and authority of "next friend" to a person with animus against the guardian or other interests to serve. He claimed that the proper duty of the next friend was to bring out the whole truth on direct examination.

MOTHERS

should know. The troubles with multitudes of girls is a want of proper nourishment and enough of it. Now-a-days they call this condition by the learned name of Anemia. But words change no facts. There are thousands of girls of this kind anywhere between childhood and young ladyhood. Disease finds most of its victims among them. Some of them are passing through the mysterious changes which lead up to maturity and need especial watchfulness and care. Alas, how many break down at this critical period; the story of such losses is the saddest in the history of home. The proper treatment might have saved most of these household treasures, if the mothers had only known of WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION and given it to their daughters, they would have grown to be strong and healthy women. It is palatable as honey and contains all the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. In building up pale, puny, emaciated children, particularly those troubled with Anemia, Scrofula, Rickets, and Bone and Blood diseases, nothing equals it; its tonic qualities are of the highest order. A Medical Institution says: "We have used your preparation in treating children for coughs, colds and inflammation; its application has never failed us in any case, even the most aggravated bordering on pneumonia." The more it is used the less will be the ravages of disease from infancy to old age. It is both a food and a medicine—modern, scientific, effective from the first dose, and never deceives or disappoints. "There is no doubt about it." Sold by all chemists here and throughout the world.

amination and narrow the issue against the guardian, thereby saving the time of the court.

Magoon replied in kind. He said that the proceedings had already been of immense benefit to the minor in depriving Carter of the management of the ranch and of forcing the sale of Pauuhau. If Carter had been allowed to retain the management five years longer, the minor would have been ruined. He argued that his direct examinations were proper, and that anything in favor of Carter would be immaterial and outside of the issues of the case.

Returning to the cistern, Kinney said that he was prepared to prove that it was in a house long since abandoned; that Carter had built another camp nearby with a new redwood tank and that there was pure water in the adjoining paddock. Magoon promptly admitted all these facts, but claimed that even under these circumstances it was still necessary to use the water from the cistern. With the issue thus narrowed, the cistern question occupied but very little time.

The witness testified that between the annual drives, steers were driven into the fattening paddocks but that many were turned loose because the paddocks could carry no more. The trap pen at Kemale had been used only about three or four times during Carter's management.

The responsibility for injured horses was put by the witness upon Bonny Judd and his employees. No other horses have been injured or killed to the knowledge of the witness. He was shy about putting in figures the number that had been killed and did not know about how many horses Judd had trained.

The witness could not tell the number of cattle branded in Jarrett's time as compared with Carter's. In Jarrett's time the land was bad, being covered with fern, which made catching difficult. The same number of men could now do much more work than in Jarrett's time. Carter had also repaired the paddock fences, putting in new posts and wires.

Upon the question of handling wild cattle, the witness gave in detail the method which he would pursue, which he claimed would tame the cattle in two or three weeks so that they could be easily handled and shipped to Honolulu.

The re-direct examination was confined to a few questions about the horse trade, the visits of Fred Carter to the dairy and the repairs to paddock fences and fences.

Magoon then asked for adjournment, stating that the cross-examination had been unexpectedly brief and that he had scoured the town for his witnesses but had been unable to find them.

"You ought to keep them in fattening paddocks," remarked the court, but as his Honor had already arisen to leave the bench, the remark was probably unofficial.

ENGINEER BOYD IN FINANCIAL FIX

W. W. Boyd, engineer in the Fire Department, is in financial straits through his dealings with a usurer. When laid aside by illness he borrowed money at 10 per cent a month, and when he recovered signed a note for $300 to the money lender to ward off garnishments of his salary by his creditors. A judgment was recovered on the note in the Honolulu District Court, yet Boyd seems to have regarded the transaction as a matter of form and of the usurer's friendship.

That Boyd meant no fraud on his creditors is shown by the fact that he set about paying them, and to this end made an arrangement with County Treasurer Trent to have one-fourth of his salary retained for the purpose. John A. McCandless raised $250 among Boyd's friends and gave it to Trent, who paid his bills at voluntary disbursements of the money lender, gave Trent a receipt for $43 in full of amount owing to him by Boyd to date, September 22.

Now Ferreira has filed a garnishment of Boyd's salary for the $300 note judgment. Messrs. McCandless and Trent are reported to have advised Boyd to seek relief in bankruptcy from his pursuer.

WITH ARBOR DAY PLANS

In the course of a talk with an Advertiser reporter yesterday, regarding the setting apart of Friday, November 3, as Arbor Day for the Territory of Hawaii, Mr. Ralph S. Hosmer, Superintendent of Forestry, said:

"I am greatly interested in the establishment of an Arbor Day in this Territory. It is in keeping with the interest that the people of these Islands have always shown in tree planting that Arbor Day should be observed in the schools and I am sure much benefit will result from its observance here.

"Arbor Day was first proposed by Hon. J. Sterling Morton, ex-Secretary of Agriculture, and was first officially recognized in Nebraska in 1872. The first association of Arbor Day with school-ground planting was in Cincinnati in 1882, in connection with a meeting of the American Forestry Association. Since then its observance has become general. All the states have followed the example of Nebraska in establishing an Arbor Day and the movement has spread as well into many foreign countries.

"We want to make this Arbor Day a great success. Mr. J. C. Davis, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, has issued instructions that the day be generally observed in the public schools and the government nursery stands ready to supply trees as they are needed. On many of the school grounds throughout the Territory much has already been done in the way of tree planting. One of the things there is great chance for improvement and I welcome this Arbor Day because I believe it will lead to the making attractive of many of these grounds.
Mr. Davis has always taken a great interest in school ground planting. One of the things that impressed me most on my first trip to Kauai were the school grounds at Hanalei, of which school Mr. Davis was then principal.
Trees and shrubs and beds of flowers, together with a school vegetable garden and well arranged play grounds, made that school one to be remembered. The same spirit which prompted Mr. Davis to make the school at Hanalei attractive has led to his active interest in this Arbor Day celebration, for to him belongs the credit of starting the ball rolling.

"While Arbor Day will be observed primarily in the schools, we want also to help individuals and improvement associations to celebrate the day.
Tree planting on private grounds and along streets, as well as on school grounds, should be encouraged. To this end trees suitable for street or lawn planting will be furnished free at the government nursery to persons who will use them for this purpose.
Application may be made in person, or by letter addressed to Mr. David Haugh, Forest Nurseryman, Box 331, Honolulu.

"There is one thing that should be said in regard to Arbor Day planting and that is that the proper observance of Arbor Day does not end with the mere setting out of a tree. Unfortun-nately too many of the Arbor Day celebrations have stopped there. The trees planted with elaborate ceremonies and speeches filled with noble sentiments have been promptly forgotten and allowed to die, neglected and unweeded for. We want to make this Arbor Day of ours one that will awaken a continuous interest in the trees set out, so that at the end of the school year the trees planted on Arbor Day will have become permanent and attractive features of the school grounds.

"The idea of giving a prize in each school for the best tree at the end of the year is an excellent one. It is based on the right Arbor Day spirit.
And as a finely growing tree is as good a memorial as any man should want, I hope that the money to make up the other half of the prize fund will be speedily forthcoming."

ARBOR DAY AND HOW IT ORIGINATED

In order that the pupils of the schools of Hawaii may have some exact notion of the origin and meaning of Arbor Day Superintendent James C.
Davis, of the Department of Public Instruction, has prepared the following memoranda which will be used by teachers in instructing their schools:

Arbor Day owes its origin to Mr. J.
Sterling Morton of Nebraska, a former secretary of agriculture. Mr. Morton took up a quarter section of land in his state; he found it contained about fifty acres of brush and forest trees. He immediately set to work to improve this natural forest by thinning out, pruning and planting. He made a great success of his undertaking and agitated the subject of tree-planting to the extent of having the legislature of Nebraska set apart a special tree-planting day—Arbor Day —in 1872.

This was the first legal Arbor Day in the United States. Two years later Kansas set apart a similar day and the states and territories, one by one, followed suit until now every state and territory has an Arbor Day of its own. The day occurs in different months in different states, each state designating the day most suitable to its conditions.

The purpose of Mr. Morton in working up a scheme for the replenishing and improvement of the forests and of making forests where none before existed, seemed to be a purely utilitarian one, but gradually there was incorporated the idea of the beautiful, so that when the day was first celebrated in the schools the esthetic side of the tree planting was emphasized.

School premises were beautified and the landscape of the community was brightened. This, while being one of the most results sought in the celebration of Arbor Day, was by no means the most important.

Whole sections of the United States had been cleared of trees. The rate of the consumption of forests for fuel, manufactures and soil cultivation

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing This Fatal Disease.

Mrs. J. W. Lang and Mrs. S. Frake

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for woman's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles.
The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the feminine organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing down pains, urine too frequent, scanty or high colored, producing scalding or burning, or deposits like brick dust in it; unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet, swelling under the eyes or sharp pins in the back running down the inside of her groin, she may be sure her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.

The following letters show how marvelously successful it is.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound: a Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect Plain, N. J., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—
I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the womb.
My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing-down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to stop doctoring with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all the bad symptoms have disappeared.

I cannot praise your medicine enough, and would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it.

Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 626 Third Avenue, New York, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—
I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and I was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure kidney disease, and I began to take it; and it has cured me when everything else had failed.
I have recommended it to lots of people and all praise it very highly.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than likely she has the very knowledge that will help your case.
Her advice is free and always helpful.

His Cure CompleteMR. PORTER NOW ENTIRELY FREE FROM NEURALGIA.

Remedy Found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Relief Began with First Box and Pain Now Gone Altogether.

"It seems like a miracle that Dr.
Williams' Pink Pills should have cured my neuralgia," said Mr. Porter. "They are certainly a marvelous medicine and I shall always be glad to recommend them.

"For two years," he continued, "I had suffered almost unendurable pains in my head. They would start over my eyes and shoot upward most frequently, but they often spread over my face, and at times every part of my head and face would be full of agony.
Sometimes the pains were so intense that I actually feared they would drive me mad.

"My eyes ached constantly and there was always a burning sensation over my forehead, but the other pains varied, sometimes they were acute, and again they were dull and lingering. I could not sleep. My temper was irritable and I got no pleasure out of life.

"I tried remedy after remedy, but finding no help in any of them, I became a despairing man. Even when I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I had no great hope of a cure.

"That was in December of 1903. To my surprise, a change in my condition took place right away. The pains grew less intense and the acute attacks were further apart, as I kept on using Dr.
Williams' Pink Pills. The improvement began with the first box, and when I had used six boxes I stopped.
My cure was complete and has lasted ever since."

Mr. Charles H. Porter lives at Raymond, New Hampshire, and is well known as the proprietor of the Hotel Raymond. He is one of many grateful people who have found that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure diseases of the nerves that have stubbornly resisted every other remedy tried. The nerves are fed through the blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, by making new blood, cure the cause of nervous troubles. They do not simply deaden pain, but they cure the disease that causes the pain, and build up the strength by purifying and enriching the blood. Not only neuralgia, but sciatica, partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia yield to them. They are sold by all druggists, or may be obtained directly from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

amounted to more than 20,000 acres every twenty-four hours. Something had to be done. Therefore the celebration of Arbor Day has gradually come to have as its purpose the replenishing and enlarging of the forests.
Trees suitable to different sections have been planted by the millions.
This work has been done in part through the celebration of Arbor Day, but mostly by the division of forestry under the Department of Agriculture under the general government.

While this idea of replenishing and increasing forests for economic purposes is cultivated among the children in Arbor Day celebrations, other lessons may also be taught: how trees absorb hurtful gases, how they retain moisture and increase the rainfall, how they prevent the ruinous effects of floods, how they furnish houses for the birds and shade for all.

INSURANCE METHODS.

The syndicate transactions and the relations with subsidiary corporations, which had excited so much criticism against the Equitable, were found to be equally prevalent among the other companies. The value of handsomely printed official statements was neatly illustrated by the exposure of the New York Life's stock transactions. That company publicly emphasizes the fact that it owns no stocks. It had to adopt this policy to satisfy the requirements of the Prussian Government. But now it appears that large blocks of stock were simply transferred to the New York Security and Trust Company in the form of collateral for nominal loans, and that some of these loans were made on notes signed by clerks and $50-a-month messengers. The acceptance of notes for millions signed by messengers was declared to be a very common thing among financial institutions. Incidentally the committee was favored with some valuable sightings on the etiquette of syndicate transactions. Mr. Edmund D. Randolph, treasurer of the New York Life, explained that it was customary for promoters to send a polite note inviting the company to participate in a new bond purchase. Then in due time there would be a check for the profits. There was never any means of knowing whether the company got its rightful share. That was always left to the honor of the syndicate manager. Asked if an itemized statement would be furnished if it were demanded, Mr. Randolph replied:
"Yes, but we would probably be left out of all future syndicates by that syndicate manager. Such a demand would not be regarded as good form."

GUAM'S GOVERNOR ASKS FOR STEAMERS

WASHINGTON, September 28.—Commander G. L. Dyer, naval Governor of Guam, in his annual report to the Navy Department says:

"The absence of a line of freight-carrying craft between San Francisco, Guam and Manila, throws all of the trade of the islands into the hands of the Japanese. They have established stores, regular lines of schooners, practically monopolize trade and fix prices. Under these conditions living expenses for the natives are cruelly high."

The Governor urges the placing of two freight-carrying steamers on the route between San Francisco and Manila, via Honolulu and Guam.

MISS VIDA OF HONOLULU IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

The Examiner says: As a result of an automobile accident Tuesday night, on Forty-ninth avenue, near L street, George A. Warder, a prominent mine-owner, with offices at 137 Montgomery street, is likely to die from a fractured skull. The occupants of the wrecked automobile besides Warder were his wife, Arthur Scott, a mine-owner of Siskiyou county, and Miss Vida of Honolulu. The party was having an automobile outing as the guests of Scott. Miss Vida is visiting the city as guest of the Warders. Beyond a severe shaking-up none of the party was hurt save Warder.

Why Scott should have given fictitious names for himself and his friends at the Park Hospital is a mystery. He was entered on the hospital register as Edward Mahon of the Hotel Cecil, while he gave Warder's name as Arnold Booth of 3230 Sacramento street. He represented Mrs. Warder to be Mrs. Booth, while he called Miss Vida Mrs. Mahon.

Scott and Warder own adjoining mines in the northern portion of the state and have been friends for many years.

The automobile was running city-

QUINTET CLUB ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

The annual banquet of the Ellis Quintet Club given last evening at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel was one of the most elaborate affairs of the kind given here this season. In connection with the banquet a dance was also given, under the patronage of Princess Kawananakoa, Mrs. Tenney, Mrs. Cunha, Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Balleentyne and others. The dance was attended by a large number of society folk of Honolulu, and the officers and ladies on the transport Thomas were also present.

Mr. Paahau, president of the club presided at first but the toastmaster-ship was later turned over to Wm. S. Ellis. Others present were Prince Kawananakoa, Prof. Berger, Prof. Jos. Stockton, A. P. Taylor, E. Buffandau and Messrs. Kano, Kapule, Kulolo, Manu, Koko and Baker of the club. Prof. Berger gave some interesting details of the beginning of proper instruction in music in the reign of Kamehameha V and spoke in eulogistic terms of King Kalakaua and Queen Liliuokalani, who had done much to bring Hawaiian music to the fore.

The 13th Infantry band gave an excellent concert in the hotel park, alternating with the Hawaiian band. The 13th Infantry band made a most favorable impression.

Dancing continued until long after midnight.

Tests Patience

The Most Patient Honolulu Citizen Must Show Annoyance at Times. Nothing spoils a good disposition. Nothing taxes a man's patience. Like any itches of the skin. Itching Piles almost drive you crazy. All day it makes you miserable. All night it keeps you awake. Itch! Itch! Itch! with no relief. Just the same with Eczema.

Can hardly keep from scratching it. You would do so but you know it makes it worse.

Such miseries are daily decreasing. People are learning they can be cured. Learning the merit of Doan's Ointment.

Plenty of proof that Doan's Ointment will cure Piles, Eczema or any Itchiness of the skin. Frank Leibly of 326 S. Main st., Wilkesbarre, Pa., U. S., says: "It is with much pleasure that I testify to the merits of Doan's Ointment in cases of itching piles. I suffered from that tormenting affliction for the past year. I tried nearly everything that was recommended to me and what I saw advertised, but I could get no relief. Finally I procured Doan's Ointment. After a few applications I was much relieved, and, continuing the treatment, I was soon completely cured. I have felt no signs of that intolerable itching

NO FRAUD WAS FOUND

Kerr Judicially Cleared of Wrecking Charge.

A unanimous opinion of the Supreme Court affirms the decree of Judge Gear dismissing the bill in equity of V. O.
Texeira et al. vs. the American Dry Goods Association et al. Judge Lindsay sat in place of Justice Hartwell, and Justice Wilder wrote the opinion of the court.

Complainants were minority shareholders in the American Dry Goods Association, Ltd., with which L. B. Kerr & Co., Ltd., and L. B. Kerr were correspondents.

The complaint was that Kerr & Co. and Kerr conspired to wreck the American Dry Goods Association, and complainants prayed for an accounting and a decree awarding them $3900, the par value of their shares, or what might be found due them.

It is found by the appellate court that it was not correct practice in equity for the court below to have dismissed a bill before the respondents had presented or rested their case. Yet on the evidence it is found that there was no conspiracy, Kerr and his corporation having acted within their rights in acquiring a majority of stock in the American and closing out its business. Therefore the decree is affirmed.

H. E. Highton and E. C. Peters appeared for complainants, and Kinney, McClanahan & Cooper and S. H. Derby for respondents.

LONG TRIAL BEGINS.

Trial of the ejectment suit of Kapiolani Estate, Ltd., vs. L. A. Thurston was begun yesterday before Judge De Bolt. Kinney, McClanahan & Cooper for plaintiff, Castle & Withington for defendant. In opening the case Mr.
McClanahan said the trial would probably occupy seven days. The following are the jurors:

C. L. Sprinks, John K. Inch, John
M. Davis, Fred Goudle, A. Newhouse, G. F. Bush, Milus Parkhurst, Chas. S.
Desky, Albert Waterhouse, W. C. Bergin, James Steiner and J. P. Howatt.

H. KAPEA SENTENCED

Goes to Prison Thirty
Months---Bribery
Trial.

Henry K. Kapea, having pleaded guilty to indictment for embezzlement, was sentenced by Judge Robinson yesterday to be imprisoned at hard labor two years and six months. He was indicted for having, while a clerk of the Hawaiian Trust Co., embezzled and converted to his own use a bond of the Wai'alua Agricultural Co. for $500.
The crime was charged as having been committed on December 14, 1903, and Kapea was indicted in February, 1905.
In the meantime he had absconded to foreign parts, but being discovered under an assumed name in London was extradited home.

Prior to the passing of sentence acting Attorney General Peters gave an extended history of the case, from which it appeared that Kapea had hypothecated $5000 worth of bonds, in his custody as bond clerk, on which he raised $1950, besides which he stole $1000 of rents collected by him. The money on the bonds was obtained from Bishop & Co., Claus Spreckels & Co., W. F. Allen and J. E. Fullerton. According to Kapea's confession to Mr.
Peters, he was induced to take the bonds by one Fernandez, now an ab-sconder somewhere in the Orient.

Kapea, on being asked the usual question, made a statement in court.
He said he was sorry and would never repeat the offense. Fernandez gave him $400 or $500 in Japan out of $2000 he had paid him, the amount being the proceeds of a sale of bonds to the Henry Waterhouse Trust Co. Kapea stated that he was born on Kauai but had lived in Honolulu since graduating from Kamehameha. His father was living. His mother died when he had absconded.

Judge Robinson, while recognizing the duty of punishing the defendant in manner deterring to others, acknowledged the mitigating circumstances alleged. The sentence of two and a half years pronounced might have been ten years under the statute.

MORE JURORS CALLED.

Fishimura's trial for attempting to bribe an executive officer was retarded before Judge Robinson through exhaustion of the jury panel. A special venue for additional jurors was issued, returnable this morning.

The libel case brought by K. Ono against Editor Shiozawa of the Hawaii Shinpo, for attacks on the Japanese consul, was under investigation by the Territorial grand jury yesterday.

A. S. Humphreys will go to Wailuku as counsel representing Japanese Consul Saito in the trial of Albert Douse for the killing of Yamagata at Puunene mill.

SOLDIERS
WILL PLAY

Infantry vs. Honolulu at Baseball This Afternoon.

There will be a game of baseball at Punahou this afternoon between a Honolulu nine and the 13th Infantry, said to be the best team in the U. S. army.

Game will be called at 4 o'clock.

The visitors are the only military nine that has succeeded in lowering the colors of the crack San Francisco Presidio team.

They wrote to Major Van Vliet recently, challenging Honolulu to a game of ball.

It is to be hoped that they will put up a better article of ball than has been the case with almost every other army nine that has played here.

The local team will probably line-up as follows: Joy, catcher; Desha, pitcher; Cogswell, first base; Sheldon, second base; Meyer, third base; J. Desha, shortstop; G. Desha, left field; Ahrens, center field; Hannah, right field.

NOT BLOWN UP.

WAILUKU, October 11.—It had been reported that the ship Spartan, the hull of which was purchased by "Kiondike" Brown, was to be blown up on last Sunday afternoon, with about 250 pounds of dynamite. However, to the disappointment of several people who expected to see the explosion, there was nothing done on last Sunday. Even had Brown so desired, it probably would have been a difficult task, as the wind was blowing very strong from the northeast. The Japanese have taken out somewhere in the neighborhood of four hundred tons of coal and in the agreement between the Japanese and Brown, the latter is not to touch the ship until all the coal has been discharged, or as much of it as they could get at.

ENTERPRISE DEPARTS.

The U. S. Co.'s S. S. Enterprise left for San Francisco via Hilo at 2 p. m. yesterday. Among the passengers was Fred Angus, who goes to the Coast for a vacation and will return, it is said, with a bride. A. W. Judd and L. A. Marks also took passage. The Enterprise took 1800 bags of refined sugar from the Honolulu Plantation and will pick up freight and bananas at Hilo.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

One of the Dollar vessels scheduled to arrive shortly will bring the remainder of the apparatus for the harbor dredger. Lieutenant Slattery, the army engineering officer in charge of the dredging work of the harbor, estimates that between 100,000 and 200,000 cubic yards of material will be dredged out next month. He hopes to be able to spend $10,000 for work done this month.
