CBLISHED WEEKLY BY HENRY M. WHITNEY.

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

To the Editor of the Commercial Advertiser:

Siz :- I enclose you something curious. A native born female (not very young neither) offered me the enclosed piece, (the one written as prose, in her own writing,) and asked me if I thought it was worth putting in the paper. She said she had seen many in the Kuokoa on the same sad subject, but she thought she'd try her hand in English.

I thought it so simple and pitiful, and I was so struck with the numbers, that I took the liberties with it which you see in my hand writing. I assure you the original is wholly original without assistance from anybody. You can publish one or both, or seither, as you see fit. A SUBSCRIBER.

Hawaii, April, 1864.

Original Lines. BY A NATIVE HAWAHAN.

Once when I was young, Young in my heart and glad, I saw around me growing, The roses blooming fair, And other flowers of Heaven,-Such sweetly scented roses ! Such fresh and radiant flowers! And in my garden there I grew among the flowers How happy and glad was I ! All that I loved lived there,-All that loved me lived there! And there I lived like a bird, I lived among the flowers, In the sunshine and the rain, Under the beautiful sky. Those happy, happy days ! Those happy days of my youth, They were the days for me? Why are they gone away? Why are my roses dead? Why are my flowers all dead ? Why is the sky so dark?

Why is the rain so cold? Why do my eyes drop tears? Why can I sing no more? Why am I left alone? She droops, she droops, she bends -She droops and bends her head, She hides her sorrowful face. Her eyes so beautiful once .-So bright with goodness once,-So good and pitiful now, So pitiful now with grief! She droops and bends her head

Over a shadow there, For the rose and the rain and the flowers And the bird that sang so sweet, Are all there under the tree,-Dead shadows under the tree,-Under the weeping willow. She droops and bends her head Under the weeping willow,-And the heavy dew of grief Falls down upon her hair From the leaves of that sad willow, The dew falls softly down From the leaves of the weeping willow, And it still keeps falling down, Westing her beautiful hair. It falls and it falls and it falls On the shadow of what she sees

In the river under the willow. The river of death she sees And the shadows of all she loved, The shadows of all she lost Rest on that dark river. Once the mother of one so fair, The plaything of a crown so high, That crown now lost for ever !

Wife and companion too Of that dear crown itself, That noble kindly heart, That noblest soul of all, The pride of all his race!

(For the Advertiser.) Can Our Sugar Mills be Improved! Honolulu, May 10, 1864.

MR. EDITOR:-The importance, to the prosperity of these islands, of the sugar growing interest, renders every information that tends to aid its successful development a public benefit, for it goes to advance the general prosperity. This view justifies the re-preduction of portions of letters from Messrs. W. & A. McOnie, of Glasgow, Scotland, which appeared in your columns not long since. These letters were written to J. B. Webster, Esq., late of Glasgow, now of Aberdeen, in reply to inquiries addressed to the Messrs. McOnie by the late lamented Wm. Webster, Esq., of this city, through his brother J. B. Webster and myself, upon points upon which the letters touch; and the inference, from the facts stated respecting the quality of sugar manufactured per day of twelve or fourteen hours in some of the West Indian estates, (Mr. Turnbull's, of Trinidad, being particularly mentioned) is, that we are deficient here in the knowledge and skill requisite for the advantageous manufacture of sugar. This refers to the time only that is occupied in evaporating the cane juice and not to quality, for no country perhaps produces its superior of raw sugar. Any one walking down to the lower end of the Esplanade, where the ship Brechin Castle is discharging the machinery for Onomea and Kohala, may see the Pans and Boilers mentioned by the Messrs. McOnie as being larger than the ones from which Mr. Turnbull moves a 16 to 20 horse-power engine and manufactures from " six to seven tons of sugar per day." The extracts are as follows: "This chimney should be 85 to 100 feet high with an opening of at least say 3 or 3½ feet square at the top inside. The chimney building may taper on the outside ½ of an inch to 1 inch per yard. Bottom part 18 to 22 inch brick work, middle 15 inches and top 9 inches brick work." The greater height of the chimney, than of those already erected at the islands, led me to write to the manufacturers as to its absolute necessity, inquiring also whether dispensing with one pan of the train, and thereby shortening the flue, would not obviate the necessity of so high a chimney. Mr. Webster also wrote to his brother on the same subject. In reply to me, they say: "We inclose a drawing of a chimney 85 feet high, showing the usual construction, thickness of wall, &c., put into such chimneys here-we do not think the taking out of one of your pans, should make you alter the height of your chimney. Many tube boilers in the West Indies have not steamed up to expectation simply because they were put to chimneys unsuited for them. Mr Webster here will communicate to his brother some notes and our opinion about the sugar boiling pans, steam boiler, chimney, &c., and as you will no doubt learn these otherwise we need not repeat them here."

Referring now to the manufacturers' letter to Mr. Webster, they say:

"Regarding chimneys for such boilers, [placed at the end of the train in line with it and to be heated from the fire under it

100 feet high, (we know of them being 120 feet high in the West Indies.) A little experimenting and close observation on these points, [the insufficient heat from the fire under the train for evaporating in all the pans and generating steam from the boiler] has to our knowledge had a wonderful effect in curing such defects. The carron pans may be said to be the only ones in the West Indies. Yet in Demarara where the juice is much more watery (and consequently requires more time in the pan for evaporating) than the Honolulu canes are likely to give-pans like yours will easily boil six to eight tons of sugar in twelve rours. Some of them have two furnaces at the end of the battery if local circumstances may require—such as low chimney, faulty flues, or wet fuel. In one of Mr. Turnbull's estates in Trinidad, where he has a tube boiler, like yours, behind the battery, with a small set of common carron pans, (both boiler and pans smaller than yours) they raise steam from a 16 to 20 horsepower engine, and make six to seven tons sugar daily. Attention to some of the points here alluded to will do more to accomplish what is desired than anything else we can recommend. We hope the wished for result may be obtained from the machinery after being put in operation. Yours, &c.,

Mary and Arminia. The Arms came in to repair damages caused by grounding at Howland's Island. She has some 600 tons of guane on board, which is being discharged on the Esplanade, after which she will be hove over and recoppered. Our port offers facilities equal to any in the Pacific Ocean to vessels in want of repairs, men or supplies, our neighbors in San Francisco to the contrast notwithstanding.

The Hamburg bark Hongkung comes with a cargo of China and Manilla goods to our enterprising Chinese merchants, it having been expressly selected for this market by Mr. Afting and will we understand be offered at auction next week, in the new store in Robinson & Co's block. An evening sale of furniture, pictures and curiosizies, by the same vessel, will take place soon.

The Am. whale bark Canton Focket has archored outside, to land 166 barrels sperm of caught on the passage out from home, previous to leaving for the northern whaling ground. The schooner Mary is from San Francisco, having been bought by Capt. English to be used as a trader in the South

The Am. schoozer Arminia is from La Paz, Mexico, via Hilo, having landed six passengers there. The Am barkentine Constitution was at Hilo on the 16th, discharging lumber. A portion of her cargo is to be landed at Kohala. She will arrive here early in the week to load for Among departures we report the Am. elipper ship Arracan for Hongkong, and the Eng. ship Breckin Castle fir the same

The Hawaiian Packet Line bark Susprujote sailed on the 19th, with a full cargo and a large passenger list for San

The Am. bark Cambridge sailed yesterday for Portland, Oregon, direct, with a full assorted cargo of produce. The clearing of a vessel for Portland direct is a new feature in our trade and which we have no doubt will prove successful under the management of Messrs. Aldrich, Walker & Co. By late papers we observe that Portland has been constituted a port of

We have now in poet waiting freights for San Francisco, the Am. backs A. A. Eldridge and Comet and schooner Arminia. For Hongkong, the Hamburg bark Hongkong is offering. The elipper ship Lookout is filling rapidly with oil for New Bedford, and will, as we learn, leave some 800 or 1000 barrels on the wharf to be shipped for Eastern ports via San Francisco. The Hawalian Steam Navigation Company's steamer Kilowen is rapidly approaching completion, and we look for a decided improvement in inter-island trade when she is again on her old route. Our spring trade has been very good, and has taken creakers about hard times somewhat by surprise.

We wish that the powers that be would take a hint from one of our correspondents regarding the necessity of calling the Legislature together at an early day, lest our finances become deranged from the neessary helding of government funds subject to the bill of supplies for the coming two years. From present appearances, the appropriation bill may not be had till October or even later, and in the meantime, we may have a Wall street panic on a small scale, the bank may be compelled to refuse discounts, bulls and bears may appear in our gold market, and ills which we wot not of may come upon us. "A word to the wise," &c. An early session of the Legislative body would keep the blues off for the summer months, and no doubt in connection with the yearly meeting of the Hawalian Board of Missions, and the arrival of our six packets, give us a lively summer.

Ms. Encros: - Would it not be well for the residents of foreign extraction, subjects of His Majesty, and others, to hold a meets ing and take some action in conjunction with the natives in regard to the Convention soon to be held? The delay which seems imminent, in calling together the Legislature to appropriate the accumulations of the Treasury will seriously embarras trade or lead to the unlawful disbursement of them, which, in the end, may lead to reckless expenditure and increased taxation. Surely all are interested in the stability of a Government, which seems threatened by those who have sworn to uphold it. Let it be borne in mind that no King's Minister can advise at unconstitutional act without perjury, and the first proclamation published, under the advertisement of the cabinet, was decidedly in that direction. Let all well wishers to the King and people art torether for their good. Yours.

We consider him one of the best and most reliable pilots we have. This packet is the only wessel in the coasting trade that has stateroom accommodations, and passengers will find her all that a sailing vessel ought to be, -commodines and fast. The new landing at Kohala, Nathaku, about eight miles to windward of Kohala Point, Captain James frond to be better and safer than any other anchorage at the north end of Hawasi. He landed 114 heavy boat loads of brick and machinery in three days' time.

Is it not a shame that no steps have been taken to arrest this securge in its indiplency, which may yet prove more faial and far more inmierable in its suferings than the small-pex. The last Logislature provided ways and means for the government to act in establishing a Sanitary Commission, but, alas, government seems to care little for the salvation of its poor dying our population.

CRINA GOODS.-The bark Hongkong has placed in our market the largest and choicest assortment of Chinese goods, belonging to Chang Hoon & Co., that we have had here for many a year. The cargo embraces matting, teas, cigars, campber trunks furniture, silks and fator goods and toys in endless variety, selected by one of the firm expressly to suit the tastes of our people. They will be offered at auction, part at a day sale and the fancy goods at an evening sale, sometime next BARREL MANUFACTORY .- We would call attention to the card of Messes. Hoffschlaeger and Stapenhorst, as agents of this municitory. From personal observation, we feel able to say that an excellent article of sagar keg and barrel can be obtained bere in quantities to meet the demand. The manufactory has made arrangements to monity a steady and constant supply of the necessary lumber.

To us, and we think also to most of our readers, it would seem much better than the ministerial programme, as developed, to have called the constitutionally chosen Legislature, laid before it any proposed amendments, and published them till the assembling of another Legislature, just as the Constitution requires, and just as must still be done, if any amendments are lawfully incorporated in it, when another Legislature would be elected with especial reference to the constitutional amendments proposed, and which would have been before the whole people for consideration ample time. The Legislature could then have assembled at the usual time, the appropria-

The men who have been nominated as Delegates to the convention called by the King, as noticed in another column, are all firm friends of the King, chiefs, and common people, who have all had more or less Legislative experience, and who, if elected, will be found to act only according to the Constitution, and for the general good of all concerned. It would be unwise to bring forward an opposition ticket, and no good could possibly arise from it. There are other just as good men, and just as reliable friends of the Hawaiian people among us, but their election could be of no greater advantage to any class than that of those who have been nominated at a mass meeting of the voters of Honolulu.

To all intents and purposes, they are citizens or subjects, except that they prefer the allegiance of their mother country to that of their adoption. Although deprived of the right of voting, the privilege of holding property in the soil (which has been granted to them voluntarily) vests in them a right or kuleana to exert their influence in all measures that may affect the value of their property, and to share in the political disputes of the country. This right of foreigners here is different and greater than in other countries, where they may not be allowed to hold real estate. Consequently, if any act is brought forward by the government that even appears as if it might depreciate their investments, they have a certain right to remonstrate against it.

Respecting an allusion in one of the communications last week, and also in one this week, to a proposed alteration of the Constitution so as to allow of the establishment of a State Church, sheet, and in type and size reminds us of the Sandwich we are assured that no such proposition has been entertained, and that His Majesty the King is most decidedly opposed to any such change, and is firmly in favor of allowing to all religions the same equal rights and privileges that they have always enjoyed in this Kingdom. Whatever may be the advantages of a State Church in other countries, no similar advantages could be derived from one in this Kingdom, were its establishment possible.

The American war news by the vessels that arrived last week from the coast, put a less favorable aspect on the struggle between the North and South. After looking over the advices carefully, we cannot avoid the conclusion that the Rebels, although compressed into a much smaller circuit than they were a year ago, are fully as able as they then were, or even as they were two years ago, to continue the war for an indefinite period. It is in this quarter that we expect to hear of severe fighting by the first arrival. The N. Y. World says that Grant had 140,000 men under arms in Virginia, besides one army corps under Gen. W. F. Smith on the York River, supposed to be moving towards Petersburg, and also a large force and fleet under Burnside, which at the latest date (April 25) was moving up the Rappahannock to perhaps Fredericksburg. Taking these forces together, and allowing for some exaggeration respecting Grant's army, there must be nearly if not quite 150,000 National troops in Virginia ready to fight on the first of her trips to Hawaii, about or soon after the first of June. ### NOTES OF THE WEEK.

PUBLIC MEETING .- A mass meeting was held at Smith's Church on Monday night, for the purpose of nominating candidates to the convention called by the King to revise the Constitution. There was a haps 1,000 or 1200 persons present. James I. Dowsett, Esq., was nominated for Chairman, but not being present at the opening of the meeting James W. Austin, Esq., was chosen, and presided with great credit. The committee of nine, appointed at a previous meeting to nominate delegates, reported through E. O. Hall, Esq , and named the following gentlemen : W. N. Pualewa, Dr. G. P. Judd. James I. Dowsett, Therebillos Metcalf. Each of these names was taken up singly, discussed and voted on. The nomination of Dr. Judd brought. out a very spirited debate, in which a large number of speakers participated. On putting his nomination to vote, the house was well divided, but the majority was evidently for him, and the Chairman so decided. The business of the meeting was confined strictly to the nomination of candidates, and to the discussion of their individual merits. At one time, during the debate on Dr. Judd's fitness to represent the popular interest at this time, it seemed as if the meeting might break up in confusion, and it would probably had it not been for the decision of the Chairman. These popular meetings are instructive and beneficial to the natives, for few go there who do not learn something new from the various addresses made, and we hope they will be held oftener than they have been. 4.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.-We are indebted to Messrs. Aldrich, Walker & Co. for copy of a circular issued by the Mechanics' Institute of San Francisco Exhibition, which is to open in that city on the 30th of August. The Executive Committee, in their circular, " solicit articles for exhibition not only from the States and territories of the Pacific Coast in particular, but from every quarter." They solicit "products of every department of industry; works of art of every variety; choice specimens of ingenuity and skill; rare and valuable productions, natural or artificial; the delicate and beautiful handiwork of woman; useful later-saving machines; implements of mining and husbandry, new models of machinery; the products of the quarry and the mine, the hotouse, the orchard, the vineyard, the garden and the field, -in short, whatever nature or art can contribute, curiosity discover, or ingenuity devise." As any articles sent to this exhibition may be offered for sale, persons living on these islands wishing to prepare cabinets of curiosities, or specimens of our woods, or samples of sugars and other productions, to be sold during or after the exhibition, will find it an excellent opportunity to dispose of what might otherwise find a slower sale, either here or there. Messrs. Aldrich, Walker & Co. will take charge of any articles designed for the Industrial Exhibition.

A JAPAN PAPER.-We have received by mail, a copy of the Japan Commercial News, of Jan. 27, with a request to exchange, which we shall do with the greatest pleasure. The News is a small sized Islands News, published some thirty years ago. The number at hand contains a column from the Commercial Advertiser, announcing the death of the late King. The subscription price is $24 00 per annum in advance! What would our merchants think if the price of this journal were put up to that figure ! And yet, the cost of princing a paper here in Honolulu is probably as great as in Kanagawa. By an extra of the same paper, we learn that the American Minister Resident Hon. Robt. H. Pruyn, bas made a new treaty between the Japanese Government and the United States, embodying some important changes. The following are the principal points of the new Article I admits certain imports free of duty. Article I imposes 5 per cent, duties on other imports. Articles 5 and 4 relate to its application and time of going the effect, which was Feb. 1, 1864. On Tuesday, the 17th instant, the King gave a special audience at 11 A. M., to the British Commissioner, to place in His Majesty's hands a scaled letter from Her Majesty Queen Victoria.

Mr. Synge arrived in full uniform at the hour appointed, and presented to the King the letter from Her Majesty Queen Victoria, of which the following is copy:

VICTORIA, by the Grace of God, Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c., &c., &c.

TO HIS MAJESTY KAMEHAMEHA THE FIFTH, King of the Hawaiian Islands, Our Good Friend, sendeth Greeting! By the Letter which Your Majesty addressed to Us on the 10th of December last, We have been made acquainted with the death, on the 30th of November, of Your Brother and Predecessor King Kamehameha the Fourth, and Your Accession to the Throne in conformity with the Will of King Kamehameha the Third, and the order of hereditary succession re established by the late King. We request You to accept Our condolence on the premature decease of Your Predecessor, while at the same time We offer to You Our sincere Congratulations on Your Accession, and Our best wishes for the long continuance and prosperity of Your Reign. We desire You to be assured of the lively interest which We take in the Welfare and Independence of Your Dominions : and in pursuing the course which you have laid down for Yourself, to rule for the good of Your Sub. jects and of all foreigners residing within Your Jurisn, You may confidently rely upon Our Friendship and Good Will. And so We recommend You to the Protection of The Almighty.

Given at Our Court at Windsor Castle, the Twentyseventh day of February, in the Year of Our Lord 1864, and in the Twenty-seventh Year of Our Reign. Your Good Friend, VICTORIA R. (Signed) RESSELL.

The British Commissioner, while presenting the letter of his Sovereign, addressed His Majesty

SIRE :- MAY IT PLEASE YOUR MAJESTY :- I have received the commands of the Queen, my August Sovereign, to place in Your hands a letter from Her Majesty expressing Her sincere condolence on the death of the late King and Her hearty congratulations on Your own accession to the Throne of Your

Her Majesty feels every confidence that the cordial friendship which has ever existed between the Kingdoms of Great Britain and Hawaii will be still further cemented and strengthened under Your Majesty's happy Reign, and that you, Sire, following the example of your Illustrious Predecessors, will foster and encourage all wise measures for the moral, commercial and physical development of your People, and will continue to extend to subjects and citizens of other nations residing within Your Dominions, that wise and beneficent protection which has enabled several generations of foreigners to live here as happily, as peacefully and as securely as they could have done in their own homes.

My own humble efforts will always be honestly exerted, not only to keep unimpaired, but, if possible, to strengthen, the sincere friendship which the Rulers and the People of Great Britain have never ceased to entertain for each other.

I will only add that the ardent desire of the Sovereign and People of Great Britain is that the Independence of these Islands, so nobly maintained by Your Majesty's Predecessors, and so deeply cherished by the Hawaiian People, be preserved, free and invi-

After reading Queen Victoria's letter, it pleased the King to reply to Mr. Synge in the following

MR. Synge :- The kind and benevolent expressions in the letter from the Great and Glorious Queen of Great Britain which you have placed in my hands deeply move me. They will greatly affect the afflicted Widow of my late Brother.

The assurances given me by Her Most Gracious Majesty of Her lively interest in the Welfare and Independence of my Kingdom will encourage me in my determination, with the blessing of God, firmly to maintain it, and so to govern all who live under my jurisdiction as that not only my subjects, but all foreign nations, may find the Independence of my Kingdom a common benefit.

Such assurances, coming from the Mighty Ruler of the British Empire, will, I hope, forever extinguish those petty jealousies which have much annoyed my

For your own address, re-echoing the kind and noble sentiments of your Illustrious Sovereign, I may sincerely thank you. The political course that you have pursued here, just to your own Government, respectful to all other Governments, and never seeking any special right or favor for British subjects that could involve me in political difficulties, has my warm approval, and well accords with the policy which the British Government have always declared.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs, who was also in uniform, then delivered to the King, on behalf of the President of the Senate of Bremen, the letter of which the following is copy:

Most Gracious King :- On the notification of the demise of His Majesty King Kamehameha IV. and the ascension to the Throne of Your Majesty, we have the honor to express our heartfelt sympathy for the heavy loss sustained through the death of the late Sovereign by Your Majesty's Royal House and the Hawaiian Nation; as well as to utter our sincere wishes, which have been called forth in us by the happy event of Your Majesty's ascension to the

For the welfare of the Hawaiian Nation and all its friendly powers, may the richest blessings of Heaven be granted to the newly commenced reign, and may Your Majesty be pleased to continue towards Us and the Republic entrusted to our government, those feelings of friendship and good will which we are happy to acknowledge in Your highly esteemed letter of the 5th of December, a. p.

In this hope we remain, with feelings of constant esteem and devotion for Your Majesty. THE SENATE OF THE FREE AND HANSEATIC CITY OF BREMEN.

The following beautiful letter from a Lady of great literary celebrity, was received by the last mail, and is published at the desire of the Queen, through the Minister of Foreign Affairs : To Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Emma.

MADAM :- As an old friend of His Excellency the Hawaiian Minister for Foreign Affairs, I venture to trespass for a few moments on Your Majesty's notice, for the purpose of offering my humble tribute of condolence for the sad event which has overwhelmed you with affliction.

For a sorrow like yours this world can offer but few sources of consolation; but among those few may be numbered the wide-spread sympathy felt for your irreparable loss, and the high respect and admiration in which the late King was so justly held, not only in his own dominions, but throughout Europe. These are consolations which, it may be devoutly hoped, will administer some comfort under the bereavement with which it has pleased Providence to visit Your Majesty. King Kamehameha the Fourth was pre-eminently distinguished for those high moral and intellectual qualities whence exalted rank derives its brightest lustre: those qualities were nobly developed in the pious task which occupied the latter months of his well-spent life. The translation of our beautiful " Book of Common Prayer," and the desire to promulgate its sacred doctrines among his own people, must ever endear the memory of the late lamented King to Queen Victoria, as well as to all Her Majesty's subjects of the Anglican Church.

That Heaven may be mercifully pleased to fortify and sustain Your Majesty under this heavy burthen of affliction, and that you may be long spared for the exercise of the many Christian virtues of which your life presents so bright an example, is, Madam, the fervent prayer of Your Majesty's

Most devoted and obedient humble servant,

London, February 25th, 1864.

The Right Rev. Bishop Kip, of California, in a letter to the Minister of Foreign Affairs, sent the following message of condolence to Her Majesty the

The Bishop wrote me of the loss the Church had sustained by the death of His Majesty and the Christian conduct of the Queen under this bereavement. I have wished to convey to her an expression of my sympathy, in some way which would be in accordance with your customs and forms. **** May I ask your Excellency, as a State Officer, to express to Her Majesty my deep sympathy for the loss she has sustained as well as the church in the diocese, and assure her of my prayers that she may be strengthened and upheld in these days of sorrow.

The following is a translation of an interesting extract kindly furnished by the Commissioner of France, Monsieur Desnoyers, to the Minister of Foreign Affairs:

Extract from the report of the President of the Supreme Court of Peru, at the opening of the Judicial term, 7th

The want of laborers all along the coast of Peru, the fertility of the lands and the great demand for their produce, tempted some speculators to offer to the proprietors of lands to bring them Coolies from the Islands of the South Pacific. The proprietors were in hopes to make permanent settlers of these Islanders, who were just beginning to value the advantages of civilization, and to understand the necessity of labor. They intended to improve their position, to remunerate them for their labor, by providing them with board and lodging, with good food, and with a salary calculated so that on the whole they should be paid as our own field hands. This arrangement was to rest upon a contract freely entered into by them, and so drawn as to convince them that they were not defrauded by the more intelligent contracting party, and that their removal and settlement amongst us were to secure to them advantages and comfort. Unfortunately, cupidity interfered; the thirst of lucre made the speculators deaf to the voice of justice and the claims of conscience.

Their intention and that of the Captains was to receive on board parties willing to engage their services; they acted as pirates under peculiarly aggravating circumstances; the acts of Blanfield, Turner, Williams and others, amounting to enslaving free men. The Code is silent upon this crime. This omission may be excused, the culprits were not Peruvian. Since there is amongst us a class of foreigners, who, under their nationality, enslave free men, it is important that the Code should enact a penalty, so as to avoid, for the tribunals, the necessity of applying old laws or of adopting arbitrary interpretations to reach the authors of so abominable a crime as that committed by these Captains.

MR. EDITOR :- The lapse of another week renews the opportunity of communicating with our fellowcitizens through your columns-an opportunity of which I gladly avail myself, that I may clear away, if possible, misapprehensions that may have arisen in some minds, and point out some changes in the Constitutional Law which may be made with advantage to the people, whose good is sought.

But first permit me to refer to the preamble to the resolutions, published in your last Saturday's paper, as having been passed by a meeting at Kaumakapili. The preamble reads as follows :

WHEREAS-The Reyal Proclamation, published last Saturday, the 7th inst., convening "the Delegates of the people, for the purpose of consulting on the revision of the Constitution of our Kingdom, and consulting upon the public good as well as to provide ways and means to carry on our Government," aims at unlawful measures to alter or abrogate the Constitution under which we live, depriving us of its protection and those rights and privileges which it now grants and are so sacred and dear

WHEREAS-It is alleged and believed that a revision of the Constitution as foreshadowed in the Proclamation, would pave the way to the establishment of an undesired Church, as an appendage of the State, to be supported by tithes or taxes imposed upon the people at large, &c I have read the Proclamation over many times and earnestly invite my fellow-citizens to read it again and again and see if they can find a single word which even hints at or can be tortured in to an intimation of any ideas attributed by this preamble to the Proclamation, which I have stated in my former letter to mean just what it says and no more. Sure it is that it never entered into the heads of any of His Majesty's Ministers to carry on their shoulders the Christian Church er any branch thereof-nor can it be made apparent how a proclamation, inviting the people to meet in a Convention, aims to deprive the people so invited " of rights and privileges which are sacred and dear to them"-or that a revision in the way pointed out, i. e., by a Convention of the estates of the Kingdom, "can pave the way to the establishment of an undesired church as an appendage to the State," etc. It seems to me that the State has as much as it can do to look after itself, without troubling itself with the polemical disputations which engage the attention of the able and zealous champions of the various divisions of the Christian world. That the way pointed out for revising the Constitution is "justifiable" and not "unlawful," and tends in no way to deprive any one of its protection, must have become apparent to every one; and if it is not so apparent, I beg of them to suspend their judgment until they have had time to ponder over the general principles of free governments, and to read and reflect upon the very short history of this country, and its present political Constitution. And in the meantime it is to be hoped that no one will attribute to Judge Allen any dissension from his colleagues, for he most assuredly fully concurred in the propriety and lawfulness of the method, which has been suggested to the people. Surely to talk over the matter can do no harm, and indignation at being invited to talk it over would certainly appear to a disinterested person to be singu-

If one shall say, "we have got along very peaceably, and therefore there is no need of change," the same remark would have afforded equally as powerful a reason-for it cannot be called an argumentagainst the adopting of our present Constitution in 1852, and would be an overwhelming argument, if it rose to the dignity of argument, against any one seeking to improve or even to speak of improving any condition of life.

In my conversations, one says to me "the Constitution is very good as it is." But sir, " have you ever read it?" to which my interlocutor readily answers "No." Another says, " the amendments will be rejected with scorn," for hard words are the weapons of such speakers. Sir, "have you ever heard any amendments proposed, or asked any person what they would probably be." Answers, t'no, sir." Now I submit that the conversation of all-such persons is quite as baseless as the assumption that the " church is to be added to the State, or that His Majesty's Ministers propose to burden themselves with the religious convictions of the nation, or to burden the Treasury with taxes for the support of any theory of religion or church government.

Scarcely any man who has been at all conversant with the public affairs during these last ten years that does not say that the Constitution may be revised with advantage. If this be a fact, then most certainly it becomes the duty of Government not to wait till the difficulties become oppressive, or until the people become restive, but to take the initiative, and to offer to join in the revision on the cheapest, most conclusive and most satisfactory way

For this reason, a Convention has been called at which every constituency may be heard on any point that its Delegate or Delegates may see fit to suggest, and that they may all deliberate on any propesition undistracted by any consideration of other public business. Certainly, sir, if the King is willing to do this, the people can not and will not complain of his liberality. Some of the faults of the present Constitution arise from having paid too much deference to the then existing state of things, without looking sufficiently to the future and providing against as contingencies. In some cases it has deprived the Legislature of its just power of regulating the government of the country, leading to the ex-gencies thereof. And in several instances it is afflicted with verbiage and surplusage which render it obscure or lead up to inconsistencies. But the King is not desirous of DICTATING any Constitution, ar any change in the Constitution to the people, but is desirous of meeting in a free and hearty menner a free people, which has the power to refuse any changes not clearly demonstrated to be for the public good, and who he may reasonably hope will meet him free from all prejudices and foregone conclusions. The Convention has therefore been called at such a time that if they see fit to make any changes, the Legislature may be called within the time prescribed by the present Constitution; that is to say, before the 23d of August. Now it may well be asked if the people, chiefs, and King choose to unite in all foreigners residing among us, and not derogative of any foreign treaties, who remains to find fault? Let us now refer to the 25th Article of the Constitution, which I forbear to quote, but to which I beg to call the attention of your readers. It will be seen that its provisions were made for a childless King, with especial reference to the situation of Kamehameha III., not regarding the principle of the perpetuation of the form of government and the rights of the dynasty. If left to stand as it was, and construed literally, without reference to the preceding, then existing or subsequent events of the history of the country, it would render the succession uncertain, by leaving it to the whim, caprice or negligence of the reigning Sovereign, and expose the country to the danger of expectant heirs, endeavering to win the favor of the reigning Sovereign-by subserviency to his caprices-or even more reprehensible means, and to the great dangers arising from the intrigues and jealousies of an uncertain succession.

making changes, which will commend themselves to

Seeing this, amendments on the point were first proposed in 1858, but were not put on their passage before the Legislature, agreeably to the Constitution, until 1860, when they passed by the requisite twothirds vote. But on account of an accidental omission in the publication thereof, three months before the election of the Legislature of 1862, the action of the preceding Legislature became useless, so that they were again put on their passage de novo, in 1862; and would in due course have come before this year's Legislature, when if they received the two-thirds vote, they would become part of the Constitutional law; but if they should fail to receive that vote, all previous action would have been futile. In the meantime Kamehameha IV. and his son have both died, and their death has called the attention of the thoughtful to the fact that the amendments themselves are faults, and that whereas they were intended to make all things clear and certain, yet in the case of the death of His present Majesty and the Princess Victoria, without heirs, the Constitution was open to the argument that the Monarch was elective forever, than which all history shows that no worse form of government has existed on the face of the earth, or the successor would be appointed by each King in the same manner as has been previously shown to be so objectionable. So that, to provide against an unfortunately not very improbable contingency-the extinction of the present Royal Family-it is thought that the amendments themselves must necessarily be re-amended, so that the Sovereign who may thus succeed by appointment or election should be declared to be the Founder of a new Family, having succession in like manner as the present Royal Family. Let it be understood that I do not say that it is clear that in such a case the Monarchy would be held to be elective-out it is open to that argument, and the community would be exposed to the agitations and uncertainties incidental

The Kuhina Nui has always been thought to be a most objectionable feature in the Constitution of this Kingdom, and indefensible on any grounds whatsoever. Let us turn to it, and see whether its abrogation by the consent of the people would deprive them of " any rights and privileges sacred and dear to them, or would pave the way to a church establishment with tithes and taxes imposed on the whole people." And here let me pause, Mr. Editor, to ask whether after so full and explicit denials of any such folly, the reiterated statement of such an intention is entirely consistent with morality when oue writes over a nomme de plame. If any one wishes to reassert what is plainly denied, would it not be well to subscribe his own name, so that all may know what weight to give to his testimony. But to resume: The section constituting the Kuhina Nui has been called a dead letter. And you hear it in the mouths of those who "think they think" that it has done no harm, because it has been a dead letter, and therefore it should be allowed to continue, though it has done, and by no possibility can do any good. Now the idea that a provision is to be left alone which can do no good until it has done harm, is an extremely unsound one, for those well read in history or observant of events around them know on how small foundations claims to great rights are often based, and prosecuted to successful results.

By the 45th Article the Kuhina Nui may nullify any act of the King; and by necessity, makes a double veto on any act of the Legislature.

So that a law may pass the representatives, come to the Nobles, and pass, the Kuhina Nui debating it in his place and voting in the minority, and receive the approbation of the King, and then be vetoed by the Kuhina Nui-at least such has been the construction hitherto universally given. Surely this is a restriction of the just authority of the Legislature, formidable of itself, and completely unjustifiable on any principles of Constitutional liberty. During the twelve years the Constitution has been in force, I have not only not heard this provision justified, but bave never heard any one attempt to justify it. The abrogation of it will certainly not trench upon any rights of the people, but on the contrary will strengthen them much. Should the Convention take the same view, it may be suggested to them to add an article providing that in case of the minority of a King for whom his deceased Parent has not, by his will, constituted a Regent, the Legislature shall by joint ballot, elect a Regent or Council of Regency. THE GOVERNORS may be very necessary,-to the degree of being at present indispensable. On this point opinions may differ. But Sheriffs are absolute ly indispensable. Yet you see that they are not placed in the Constitution. It is certain that the Governors are not such a necessary safeguard to either the civil or religious liberty of the subject as to render it necessary to place them in the Constitution. May they not fairly be trusted to the wisdom of the Legislature. By placing them in the Constitution it becomes obligatory to appoint them, whether the Legislature pleases or not. By removing the provision,the Legislature may keep them as long as they are advantageous to the State, and when it becomes apparent that they have ceased to be of use, may dispense with them. And the same remarks are applicable to the Circuit Judges whose appointment is rendered necessary by the 85th article.

The length of the tenure of the office of District Justice, (Art. 91)-the manner of their appointment or dismissal, or whether there should or should not be any such officers, may well be left to Legislative action. The 98th Article may well be modified, since it takes away the right of one to hold any office of honor or trust, or a seat in the Legislature, though he may have been fully pardoned, for good cause shown, if he has once been convicted of the crimes enumerated. So that by the letter of the law, even though one's conviction may have taken place from misconception of facts, or on false testimony-or one may afterwards have brought forward most convincing testimony prove his innocency, and obtain the fullest pardon-he may not be restored to his right. I would suggest that the pardon may be of three degrees, the first from punishment alone, such would be the case of two Chinamen recently pardoned, one of them for ill health; the second degree of pardon would restore to civil rights, i. e., the right to testify or to vote; the third degree would be complete and would be granted only when subsequent life seems to have purged all fault, or wrongful conviction, or other good cause may seem to point out the propriety of such a pardon. This certainly may well be trusted to Executive dis-cretion, more particularly as the pardons are granted in Privy

I feel that I ought not to occupy any more of your space this week. Possibly if I should write more it would not be read. If you are willing to grant me space, perhaps I may again avail myself of your kindness next week.

Yours very truly, C. C. H.

The Constitution and its Amendments. "Any amendment or amendments to this Constitution may be proposed in either branch of the Legislature, and if the sam shall be agreed to by a majority of the members of each House, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered or their journals, with the year and nays taken thereon, and refer red 'to the next Legislature; which proposed amendment o amendments shall be published for three months previous to the election of the next House of Representatives; and if, in the next Legislature, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be agreed to by two-thirds of all the members of each House, and be approved by the King such amendment or amendments shall become part of the Constitution of this Kingdom."-Constitution Art. 105

MR. EDITOR :- It cannot be denied that the anxiety and alarm felt by this community was partially allayed on reading the revised edition of the Royal Proclamation, and the explanations of the Attorney General in the last number of your paper. All will gladly accept it as an indication that the Legislature will be convened according to law, and that the convention will make no attempt to violate the 16th Article of our Constitution, which ordains that "No subsidy, impost, duty or tax of any description, shall be established or levied, nor any money drawn from the public treasury under any pretext whatever, without the consent of both Houses of the Legislature." Still, after carefully reading the Attorney General's explanation, one is unable to find in it any definite answer to the most important question that now agitates the public mind, viz: Is it the intention of His Majesty's Ministers that the proposed convention shall alter or annul our present Consti-

That is the question. Now no one knows better than the Attorney General that that convention HAS NO RIGHT to alter one word of the Constitution. The unly lawful method of doing so is that prescribed in the Constitution itself. Any other method is unlawful, revolutionary and would constitute a dangerous precedent; for if a convention can at any time be called together on a month's notice at the instance of the Ministry, and can change or annul the fundamental law of the land, the charter of all our liberties, and if there is no appeal from their decision, then the ship of state is indeed adrift on an unknown sea, without compass or rudder.

If on the other hand the convention is merely to discuss the new Constitution, which has been drafted by members of the Cabinet, and to recommend to the Legislature such amendments as may be agreed upon, then there can be no objection to make, although the haste with which it has been convened, is condemnable, as also the refusal of the Ministry to publish the changes which they propose. The people have a right to demand their publication, and we hope that they will do so in tones that cannot be unheeded. Why should the Ministry hide their intentions like " midnight conspirators?" Such a course is unworthy of the government of a free people. Let them publish the Constitution which they intend to lay before the convention, and thus set at rest the numerous exciting rumors which are in circulation. For instance, it is said that it prescribes a high property qualification, that it opens the door for the Union of Church and State, that it unites both branches of the Legislature in one House, thus depriving the Commons of their principal safeguard, viz, their exclusive right to originate all money bills, and that it destroys the independence of the judiciary by making the Chief Justice removable at the pleasure of the King. On the other hand the ignorant natives are told that it will relieve them of the poll tax, that it is intended to check the decrease of population, and other stories equally absurd.

Is it strange that many of our most intelligent people believe that the King's Ministers, in giving the people an interval of only five weeks in which to choose their delegates, (and it will take half of that time for the news to reach the remote districts.) intended to get a PACKED convention; to "rush" through the new Constitution, which is already cut and dried, and substitute it for the present one, and then to usurp the functions of the Legislature elected

Let them therefore hasten to publish the alterations which they propose to make in the Constitution. and give us an assurance that no such illegal and revolutionary proceedings are intended, or we shall be constrained to believe them to be " enemies to our MAKAAINANA. civil and religious rights."

Pro Bono Publico.

To the Editor of the Commercial Advertises Sin :- " Prevention is better than cure," even when cases are curable, and it behooves the government to take at once vigorous and effective measures to prevent the further spread of that dreadful disease, Mas Pake, which is at present taking such giant and deadly strides through the life of this people.

One year ago there was but one case of Mai Pake in this part of the district, and that poor native is now in a state shocking to humanity, still no measures have been taken for his removal from amongst the people, but on the contrary, hundreds of natives have been compelled to go or send to the very house he lives in to pay their taxes! And now within a distance of five miles from that house cases of this incurable disease may be counted by the dozen, who are all left to mingle with and spread still further its deadly ravages amongst our population !

This surely, Mr. Editor, is a state of things which calls loudly for immediate steps to be taken to prevent the further spread of this disease from contagion, by having all the diseased cases collected and strictly kept apart in buildings for that purpose, there to be treated by the skillful hand of the

This will require money, but the life of this people is worth more than money, and while we can point to such a monument of public liberality as the Queen's Hospital, we need have no fears that any vital sanitary measure will fail for want of public support, nor that the Legislature would refuse to appropriate the necessary funds when the immense importance of the nuisance is fully understood.

We have the high authority of Dr. Hillebrand, that the Mai Pake is the real leprosy; that it is now in our midst and attacking the best of our populasion, is evident to those who go amongst the people; and as it is highly contagious, the foreigners no less than the natives are alike subject to its deadly and incurable attacks. This is, I think, a subject that vitally affects us all, and exertions should be made by all classes to have preventive measures at once

The Ministry and the Constitution.

If the alarm and distrust excited in the public mind during the past week is not a sufficient evidence of an entire want of confidence in the cabinet, the vote, by acclamation, of such want of confidence, is a sure indication that the present advisers of His Majesty are not the men to longer hold office with the approbation of the people. The high-handed attempt " to provide ways and means to carry on the Government," in some other way than that prowided by our Constitution and laws, is well ventilated by " One of the People," in the last Advertiser: and the sudden withdrawal of the clause by the ministers, shows that they had developed their purposes too soon, and that an indignant public sentiment would not stand such an attempt to subvert its rights. and the long-enjoyed peace of the land.

And now we have the conceited and flippant twaddle of C. C. H., -one of the very men whom the people ask the King to dismiss from his counsels,trying to explain away the real purposes of himself and his co-advisers! Is the dislike of the leading member of the cabinet for the last twelve years to the present Constitution so easily appeased, that a few simple amendments not affecting the rights of the people, will satisfy him? Who believes it? He has too openly and too persistently expressed his views, that the people had to much power, to justify such a conclusion.

The fact is, the public, native and foreign, have so little confidence in the Ministry, that C. C. H.'s explanations are offensive, and the Government could not more damage its cause in any other way, than by making him its exponent. The poeple do not accept him and his colleagues as " the guardians of the public weal." Quite the contrary.

Does C. C. H. suppose that the convention to assemble in July will have the power to "adopt an improved Constitution" that will be a constitutional one, without submitting it to the Legislature, and if passed by them, to the people at large? Such would seem to be his opinion, in which I do not coincide.

Another reason why the people have lost confidence in the cabinet is, that the proposed upsetting of the Constitution has been secretly hatched up by them. and has not been submitted to, nor approved by the Privy Council. What is a Privy Council for? it merely a pendant, to show off at a reception? If the persons called to that position are not to be consulted when such an important subject is to be considered as the digging up of the foundation upon which our whole civil and religious rights are based, it is a farce to have such a body. Are the cabinet incumbents afraid of the Privy Council? If so, the public are afraid of them. Art. 34, Constitution.

Another reason is, that the public are of opinion that the cabinet, -and particularly its senior member,-is responsible for our imperfect constitutional organization of the Government, since the death of his late Majesty. And they are responsible for the imperfect legal titles that may have been given, and the litigation that may follow from otherwise legal acts, but which are not believed to be legal, because the King has never sworn to the Constitution of the land. Art. 94, Constitution.

The language of the Constitution, "The King, after approving this Constitution," doubtless was necessary for the then reigning sovereign, as the Constitution had not then been adopted, or gone into operation. But in reference to any subsequent sovereign, after the Constitution had once gone into operation, the words, "after approving this Constitution," evidently have no reference. "The King shall take the following oath," is doubtless just as necessary to give legal effect to his official acts, as. Every member of the House of Representatives shall take the following oath," to give their acts a legal character. If this is correct, -and that such was the opinion of His late Majesty, is certain, from his acts. Of what legal force is a Royal Patent signed by His Majesty who has never been inducted into office by the requisite constitutional formality? For this reticence, the public holds the cabinet re-ANOTHER OF THE PEOPLE.

Mr. EDITOR :- You will please allow me to correct your marine report as far as it concerns the passages of the barks Comet and A. A. Eldridge. The Comet towed out from San Francisco on Sunday, the 24th of April, anchored on the bar, and got under way at daylight on the morning of the 25th, and arrived off Honolulu between 7 and 8 o'clock A. M., on the morning of May 13th, 18 days and some two or three hours passage-not 17, as reported. The A. A. E. towed out on the 26th, anchored on the bar and got under way at daylight on the morning of the 27th. She arrived at Honolulu at 6 P. M., May 12, making the passage in 15 days and some 12 hours-not 16 days, as reported. Yours, FAIRPLAY.

The London Globe hopes that one of the first acts of the Dano-German Conference will be to compel * the belligerents to desist.

The bombardment of Duppel was vigorously sustained during the 7th. The bombardment of Sonderberg recommenced on the 3d with extraordinary vigor. The Prussians had completed their second parallel.

The [ Dano-German ] Conference meets in London on the 12th.

All difficulties as to the Mexican Crown have been adjusted. Maximilian was to receive a deputation on the 10th to formerly accept it; and would sail on the 11th or 12th for Mexico.

Cardwell, M. P., in a speech at Oxford, said that he thought the conference on the Danish question made a satisfactory result ; and strongly urged neutrality in the American war.

The Emperor of Austria has allowed the formation of a corps of 6,000 volunteers and 300 sailors for the Mexican Empire.

The Prussians had canonnaded Duppel without warning. Sonderberg was bombarded on the 3d and burned. The Austrians and Prusians had turned the position of Duppel by crossing to Alsen Island. Denmark sends one Minister to the Conference. A telegram says 6,000 Danes had defeated the Prussians

The Courts of London, Rome, Vienna, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Spain and France, agree to recognize the Emperor of Mexico immediately on his accession. The Prussians had driven in the Danish outposts and occupied a position 250 paces nearer Duppel than the first parallel. The works were uninjured by the bombardment. The bombardment of Sonderberg has ceased. The town was burning in several places. Eighty women and children were killed. It was reported the town would be destroyed.

The Tories are mustering their utmost strength for well organized attack on the Government in Parliament. The Paris Pays speaks of a serious conflict which is said to have taken place in Jutland between an Austrian regiment and a Prussian regiment. The Vienna papers give a positive official denial of the report that a revolt had been planned among the Hungarian troops in the Austrian army, and that, in consequence, wholesale executions had taken place.

Lord Palmerston has pronounced his belief that so long as the Government pursues a policy of unremitting endeavoring to maintain peace, it will have the support of the country, and Earl Russell also considers that for the peace of Europe everything that conference and negociation can do ought to be done before any hostile steps should be taken.

In the divorce case O'Kane vs. Lord Palmerston, the petitioner has withdrawn and consequently petition is dismissed. In concluding the case the judge ordinary remarked "the court cannot part with the suit without one word with respect to the respondent. It is a matter of great satisfaction to the Court that a name which is never mentioned in England without just pride should pass from its annals without a stain." This remark met with considerable applause which there was no attempt to Honolulu, May 14th, 1864.

The death of the King has been a great blow to the Church Mission, but the new King promises fair, and has appointed the Bishop a member of his Privy Council. The Bishop of Honolulu writes the following full account to the London Guardian:

" Sir: -You will regret to learn the sad news I have to communicate. Our King Kamehameha the Fourth, under whose auspices a branch of our Church was planted in these Islands, died on the 30th of November last. His Majesty had been for some time in a weak state of health, but no danger was apprehended till an hour before his decease. For several days he had suffered from diarrheea and was greatly reduced. When his state was pronounced by his medical attendants to be critical, I was summoned by the Queen, but arrived a few minutes too late. His old and faithful Prime Minister, Mr. Wyllie, was however present, and in my absence read the commendatory prayer. His Majesty expired in the arms of his loving consort at 9 A. M. When I entered the room she was fondly endeavoring to restore animation by breathing into his mouth her own warm breath. It was indeed a touching sight. When she saw all her efforts were of no avail, she begged me to pray. Most of the members of the Royal Family were present, and we all knelt down and implored our Heavenly Father to grant us resignation to His will, and strength to endure with meekness, the sudden and unexpected chas-

We were all overwhelmed with grief. The body lay in state the following Tuesday, the first of December. Between 3,000 and 4,000 people, residents and Hawaiians, passed through the Throne room to take a last fond look of their beloved Sovereign. The wailing of the natives was truly piteous, and must have been heard far and

The funeral will not take place for a month. A new Royal cemetery is being prepared, which I am to consecrate, and it is the national system to give every one the opportunity, even if they have to come from remote islands, of visiting the remains of a deceased Sovereign before they are interred. Meanwhile the Queen sits almost incessantly by the coffin. She has prayers in the room night and morning in the Hawaiian language, so that all present may understand, taken from the Book of Common Prayer, and I read to her from the Psalms or other consolatory passages of Holy Scripture every day. It is beautiful to see how she seeks for consolation only in God. Twice since her bereavement I have administered to her the Holy Communion. Among all classes of people there is one common sympathy with her in this hour of her anguish, for by her works of charity and mercy she has endeared herself to

The late King had received the Holy Communion on Sunday, November 15, two weeks before his death. That day he was too unwell to be at church. He requested me, therefore, to celebrate in the Palace with him and the Queen. On Sunday, the 22d, he was at the native litany at 64 P. M., and the English evensong at 74 P. M., and I was struck with the earnest and devout manner in which he joined in the responses. This was the last time he was at church. No one loved our services more devotedly, or attended them more regularly. Often he would be present at the 6 o'clock celebration. Let me give a proof of his correct views with regard to the Holy Eucharist, as the highest act of Christian worship. Two months ago he and the Queen were thrown out of their carriage, they escaped with a few bruises and sprained ankles. The King sent for me the next morning at 6 o'clock to give him the Holy Communion, "for" he said "when he received signal mercies, there is no higher form by which we can express our gratitude than a 'sacrifice of praise and thanks-

At 71 o'clock on Sunday mornings before his last indisposition he used to breakfast with his dependants in the verandah of the Palace, some fifty or sixty natives; and he used to conclude always with prayer, selected from the Hawaiian Liturgy. The death of his only son, the little Prince of Hawaii, who was to have been educated by us, gave a shock to his system from which he never recovered. There can be no doubt from thenceforth he was a broken hearted man. But he sought comfort in the forthering the work of the church he loved so much, and in translating the Book of Common Prayer. The latter was no mere occupation of his leisure moments. He gave his whole energies to it, and I can testify that it was indeed with him a labor of love. Often he has aided me in the preparation of my own Hawaiian sermons.

A man of rare physical powers, of elegant tastes, keen perceptions, who could enjoy Kingsley, Thackeray, Tennyson, and was ever quoting Shakspeare, the bent of his mind was still theological. He had the strong religious instincts peculiar to his race. Those he felt could never be satisfied by truths which addressed themselves only to the logical faculty. The Catholic faith, as taught in the Church of England, in its integrity, seemed to meet fully the cravings of his soul. He loved to dwell on the regularity of the religious orders, and few laymen could vindicate with the same ability every link in the chain of their transmission. He was familiar with the works of Wheatly, Palmer, Courager, Percival. A true churchman on conviction. He was no less opposed to Roman error than to Congregationalism. But no one ever heard from his lips an uncharitable word with regard to other systems. He used to remark on the soundness of our position as a church, that of scripture interpreted "by the old fathers," for he would say, the waters become purer as you approach the fountain." My last conversation with him, was on the evening of the Thursday before he died, Nov. 26. That morning we had a national thanksgiving service for the American residents who belong to our congregation, agreeably with the proclamation of the President of the United States. The Queen, Ministers, and Foreign Representatives, attended. The King remarked, "I highly approve your attempt to soften down na-tional feelings of irritation. The church is Catholic and knows no nationalities."

Speaking of my projected extension of the mission into the large Island of Hawaii, he said, "I want the church to permeate my people; but we must keep strong at the centre." He then talked over his plan of visiting England next year with the Queen. He said, "I want to go as a member of the Anglican church myself, and ask my fellow churchmen to aid me in saving my poor people." His love for the book of Common Prayer, was something beyond what I had ever met with. He saw in its wide diffiusion through the islands the great spiritual instrument for raising his subjects to a higher moral life. I might name many other instances of his devotion and zeal in the cause he had embraced. But these may suffice. The Sunday following his decease, the church was crowded at all the services. The Ministers and Court attended at the Hawaiian service, and I preached on the occasion. The sermon has been printed in the native newspaper. The church was almost lined with black; the altar cloth and reredos in deep mourning (this was done at the expense of the Legislature.) Two large ka-hi-li's, the symbols of Royal Authority, and the King's military hat and sword, were placed conspicuously in the Royal pew. A beau-tiful lament in Hawaiian was sung by the choir to the air "Can those eyes in death reposing." All was most touching and solemn. We felt that | 25 Cts. the nursing father of our infant church had been taken from us. The friends of our mission will be naturally anxious to learn what attitude the Crown is likely to assume hereafter toward the work we are Kamehameha the Fifth is brother to the late King, he is thirty-three years of age, a man of strong will, well educated, a thorough gentleman, and he has had a considerable experience in the details of government, for he has served the office of Minister of the Interior for some years. He is likely to be a popular Sovereign. He speaks and writes English with accuracy.

From my conversations with him I am able to assert that we shall continue to enjoy the same sympathy and support we have hitherto received from the head of the nation. His Majesty has given me a commission to act as his Chaplain, and has afforded further proof of his confidence and regard for the church. Among these I may name his nominating me a member of his Privy

I have now to ask my fellow churchman at home whether in these days, when men are undermining the foundations of the faith, they will allow the testimony which this distant Ocean King has borne to revealed truth, as expounded by our own reformed but truly Catholic communion, to be forgotten? With the ability and opportunities to form a judgment, Kamehameha the Fourth studied the prayer book and constitution of the English church. He believed and testified fearlessly that there was the purest form of Christianity in the world. He embraced it with all his heart, sought as an humble penitent to live by it, felt its transforming power in his own soul, aided by every legitimate means in its diffusion among his peo-

Is it too much to beg that every one who in England values his Christian privileges will contribute towards building a suitable memorial church on the plot of ground which the deceased monarch himself gave as the cathedral site? We have some thousand pounds here in hand, or promised for the purpose. But without the liberal assistance of friends at home it is useless to attempt the erection. There never was a mission, I believe, which in the short space of twelve months had accomplished more. I might name, for instance, how a month ago we opened a free English school for Hawaiian ragged boys, acting on the advice of our late King. It has now in it seventy scholars. Upwards of two hundred children male and female, are already under our training. Is this work to stagnate for want of funds? Are we still to worship in a miserable shed unworthy of England and England's church, and that in the central station of the line of traffic over the Pacific?

(Signed,) T. N. Honolulu. Honolulu, 10th Dec., 1863."

Mr. M. Hopkins, of the Hawaiian Consulate, London, has addressed the following letter to the Times, respecting the death of King Kamehameha IV:

Sir,-I received on Saturday letters from Honolulu confirming the reports which had previously reached England from the United States of the death of this interesting and enlightened Prince.

closed suddenly before the King of Hawaii had quite reached the age of thirty. The death of their only child, the Prince of Hawaii, a noble and forward boy of between four and five, which happened 16 months ago, inflicted a blow from which his parents have never recovered. On the powerful frame and the passionate and concentrative character of the King the affliction fell with proportionate force, and he never after the shock recovered his health completely. In the deep retirement which the King and Queen sought after the death of their child, Kamehameha occupied his time and thoughts in making a translation of the English Prayer Book, some copies of which, together with the King's original preface, have just been received in this country. The work was a strangely selected anodyne for a chieftain of the Pacific in his grief, and its execution is more remarkable even than the undertaking, the Royal translator having worked out the tables for finding Easter, &c. The transendental ideas of the Athanasian Creed were the only difficulties the King could not surmount, there being no corresponding expressions for them in the meagre languages of Polynesia. So little was the death of Kamehameha expectedthat it had been announced that on the 28th of November their Majesties would put asple their mourning, and hold a public reception at the Palace. The Queen attended for a short time, but the King was unable to make his appearance, and on the 30th he breathed his last. He is succeeded by his elder brother, who assumes the name of Kamehameha V. Out of the five successive rulers whi have borne this patronymic, three have visited Euroge-the new King being one of them. The little leaven which the last Kamehameha gathered in the Eastern World leavened his whole lump, and made him ig ideas, preferen-

A Morrible Slander.

From the New York "Tribune" of 23d March.] The following is from the New Hampshire Patriot, a Copperhead Democratic paper: Private advices from Port Royal say the female Abolitionists who went to Port Royal to teach the little niggers how to read and pray, have been obliged within the past few months, to open nurseries of their own. An officer informed us recently that no less than 64 spinsters had contributed to the population in and about Port Royal Harbor. The information furnished us by the officer concerning the 64 mulattoes has been confirmed by the Rev. Mr. Billings, Lieut. Col. of the 1st South Carolina siment, who is here in consequence of ill health. He says

We reluctantly copy this paragraph in order to pronounce it a falsehood, and to say that it is so absurd and so wicked that neither the officer -if any such there be-who first coined the lie, nor the Rev. Liberty Billings, who is said to have confirmed it, nor the Patriot, which first printed it, nor any one of the Copperhead papers which have lately circulated it, nor any one blinded negro-hater who has read it, can possibly have believed it to be anything but an infamous slander without a shadow of foundation or excuse.

We demand of the Patriot the name of the officer who is alleged to have told the story. We demand of the Rev. Liberty Billings that he shall publicly affirm or deny the statement of the Patriot that he "confirmed" the falsehood. We demand of the journals which copied it, that they will give equal publicity to the contradiction. The women who are so grossly libelled by the friends of slavery and the enemies of freedom are natives of New England; graduates of the common schools and seminaries of that section of the country, and members of some of the most respectable families in Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, Maine, Rhode Island and New Hampshire. Each teacher, now employed in the Department of the South under the auspices of the Freedmen's Society, had to furnish a certificate of character from the pastor of the parish to which she belongs, and to appear before the Auxiliary Clergymen's Committee for examination as to her character and qualifications. That Committee consists of the following gentlemen: Rev. O. B. Frothingham, Rev. George Whipple, Prof. John W. Lindsey, Rev. Nathan Brown, Rev. J. R. W. Sloane, Rev. Prof. Henry B. Smith, and the Rev. Henry Blanchard. The schools to which reference is made are under the immediate supervision of the Rev. Mr. French, the Rev. Mr. James and the Rev. Dr. Barrows. A number of the teachers are the wives, daughters, sisters and near relatives of the elergymen in charge of the schools. Not one word of complaint in relation to the moral character of the teachers has ever been made to the Examining Board. It is not even true that there are 64 teachers employed at Port Royal, or on the adjacent islands. The number is but 46. And in addition to the names above given, we are authorized to say that Francis George Shaw, President of the National Freedmen's Association; Edgar Ketchum, Corresponding Secretary, A remarkable career and a reign of nine years have | and Joseph B. Collins, Treasurer, indorse the character of these teachers. If any one thinks we treat this matter too seriously, and that a libel so transparently false and malicious deserves no refutation, let him consider the cruel wrong done to these innocent, pure, Christian women, who took upon themselves the labor of educating the emancipated blacks, who have made all sacrifice in their humane and generous efforts for a despised race, and who are nevertheless held up to scorn by these unprincipled and unmanly slanderers. We cannot believe that even the conductors of the journals who have printed the story can reflect on their conduct without shame and regret. To wantonly make such a charge against women, to give it the publication of a newspaper circulation—it is a new revelation of the baseness of human nature, which we should like to forget as soon as possible. Meanwhile we demand that those who have done the wrong shall do what they can to atone for it by a prompt and unequivocal contra-

THESE MACHINES HAVE BEEN IN A the market nearly six years, during which che have acquired a reputation second to none in the world. For excellence, durability, and elegance of finish they are unsurpassed; while for cheapness, simplicity, ease, and noise-lessness of action, they have never been equalled.

Among the many advantages that may be enuserated in favor of our machine, we will mention the following.

It uses a straight NEEDLE, which is little liable to break, and sews directly from the original spools, without it winding. It has no BELT or BAND to become slack by stretching, but is The BALANCE-WHEEL may be revolved either way without deranging the action of the machine. The sewing in both cases, being equally perfect.

The "FEED-MOTION," which is secured by pate, is much superior to any before invented, ensuring great evactness in stitching, and perfect freedom in turning the work.

It makes the "POUBLE-LOOP STITCH," sometime; called the Grover & Baker stich," which is strong, durable and elastic. It will not rip, though every fourth stitch be cut; \$\int_{\circ}$ it can be taken out with facility, when desired, as in altering \( \chi_{\chi}$ it ments.
