A POOR DEFENCE.

It seems to us a poor defence against charges of misconduct or inaction in public affairs to say that one's predecessors have done much worse in the same things, and have not been held up to public scorn for it. Because A has done wrong in the past, unchallenged, is that an excuse why B should do wrong now and his misdeeds be allowed to remain unnoticed. An sensible man will say, surely not.

Yet this is what Mr. Gibson relies upon, apparently, as a good defence. For in answer to the charges which the Gazette has made against him he says in effect—My predecessor did far worse. Why didn't you make these charges against him?

We expect to hear a better defence than that from Mr. Gibson or public opinion will certainly give a verdict against him by default.

HAWAIIAN HUMANE SOCIETY.

At the meeting of the above society last night, the following officers were elected: J. S. Walker, President; Major Wodehouse and Mr. Cruzan, Vice-Presidents; F. Godfrey, Secretary; A. F. Cooke, Treasurer; W. Kinney, Counsel; Mr. Cruzan and Mr. Kolm, Executive Committee. 350 members have already joined the society. A Committee was appointed to prepare By-laws and draw up and make application for a Charter.

USEFUL NOTES ON WATER.

One gallon of distilled water weighs 10 pounds, one gallon of sea water weighs 10.32 pounds, 1.8 cubic feet of water weighs one hundred weight, 36 cubic feet weigh one ton, equal to 224 gallons; one cubic foot contains 6 1/4 gallons. [The English standard, or imperial gallon, is here referred to.] The average daily consumption of water in towns is 16 to 20 gallons per head. In pipes the square of the diameter in inches equals pounds weight of water per yard. Example:—An inch pipe holds nine pounds per yard. One-hundredth inch of rain is about one ton weight to the acre. A nominal horse power for a boiler requires 1 cubic foot of water per hour. Circular apertures are most effective for discharging water, since they have less frictional surface for the same area. The vent contracta is the best form of orifice for discharging water. The ordinary speed to run a pump is 80 to 100 feet per minute. The pressure in pounds per square inch of a column of water is the height of a column in feet multiplied by 5.34, or, for an approximation, 1/2 pound pressure per square inch for each foot of height. Water, in flowing through an aperture, has a velocity equal to that acquired by a heavy body falling freely from a height equal to the distance between the centre of the aperture and the surface of the water. Doubling the diameter of an aperture increases the flow fourfold. A man can raise water from a well ten feet deep at the rate of thirty gallons per minute. The approximate time occupied in discharging equal quantities of water under equal heads through pipes of equal length varies from 80 for a straight line, 200 for a curve to 240 for a right angle. — Manufacturer and Builder.

A FEVERISH APPEAL.

"Gentlemen of the jury!" exclaimed a Western lawyer, summing up a case, "you have heard the testimony of my client, and you have heard the evidence of this red-handed railroad. Now, gentlemen, which do you believe? Do you believe that my client's cow walked on the defendant's track and allowed him to run over her, and with no other motive than to be run over? Do you believe that any cow is going to do such a thing as that while a humane government stands ready to protect us and our rights? Do you believe that a cow brought up in this country as this cow was, with every facility for knowing the character of this bloody-minded railroad, its locks dripping with the gore of your property and mine, gentlemen, will wilfully go upon its reeking track and stand there while one of this defendant's carnage-stained engines rushes upon her with its mouth watering for warm blood? I tell you no, gentlemen, you will not! As well ask you to believe that a smiling Jehovah looks down approvingly and bids the work proceed while this gore-stained railroad rushed headlong upon the dearest rights of man and clutters up the very gate of sweet heaven with the bones and pelts of the best cows that ever straddled a milk pail."

The jury were unanimously for the plaintiff.—Drake's Traveler's Magazine.

LONDON GOSSIP.

(Special for the Daily Bulletin.)

Lord Derby, in his new capacity of Secretary for the Colonies, has been interviewed by a deputation from the missionary committee of the Free Church of Scotland anent the affairs of the new Hebrides, the object of the church being that the natives should be protected from the dangers which threaten them from the abuses of the labour traffic on the one hand, and the possibility of being annexed to New Caledonia by the French on the other. The resolution submitted to him set forth the want of a settled Government in the group of islands, and concluded by praying "that her Majesty's Government will take such steps as the proximity of the Crown colony of Fiji makes easy and natural for permanently establishing British protection and British justice in the islands." This was a plain enough request, but Lord Derby affected not to see it. He spoke coldly and wisely on every aspect of the question, and ended by coming to no conclusion at all. Lord Granville was present, and Lord Derby hinted that the question belonged to his department, but the hint was not taken, and when the Secretary for Foreign Affairs opened his lips he changed the subject. Lord Derby asked if annexation or a formal protectorate was suggested, and Sir Fowell Buxton thought it was not. There was cowardice all round. Lord Derby is somehow terribly afraid of giving offence to France, and would not on any account take up the right side of a question if he thought that the French were going to take up the wrong side. Lord Granville had more backbone, and although he said nothing, it is quite likely that he will do something. It is a point in his favor that he did not say "ditto" to Lord Derby, who is incapable of doing anything, and has no other policy than that of leaving things alone. He would never dream of asking what the wishes of the inhabitants of the islands were in respect to their own destiny. There are other colonies than Fiji in the neighborhood, and what do they think of the matter?

ONE PRICE MECHANICS' BAZAR

Corner of Fort and Merchant Streets,

We respectfully ask a call from the community to prove to them how far we excel some dealers in our lines of Gent's Furnishing Goods. Not alone in Superior Quality and styles, but in prices. New invoices are constantly being received, and for choice selections and varieties in all our large assortment we can safely say no one will be disappointed who buys from us.

Read the following:—What are your reasons for purchasing at the Mechanics Bazar? Because they sell 25 per cent cheaper than any other store in the city.

How do they do it? Because they import direct from the manufacturers in the Eastern and California Markets, and buy for cash; thus we demand cash in return and allow 3 cents discount on all sales over $5; keep no book keepers or books, and every article is marked down to the lowest figure in full view of the customer and thus money is saved by curtailing these expenses, and unnecessary talk is set aside.
