NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Investigators began a painstaking search Saturday for clues to the terrorist bombings of U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania, while American and Israeli rescue crews and sniffer dogs took over the hunt for survivors in Nairobi.

As of late Saturday, the number of dead from the blasts totaled 148, including 11 Americans. Victims and survivors were still being discovered team in the ruins. Thirty-six hours after Friday's attack, an Israeli team drilled through a wallatthe Nairobiembassy and pulled out a man from an adjacent building that had collapsed. He was weak, a cut on his forehead exposed his skull and he had a broken leg. Red Cross spokesman Tom Maina said. The rescue encouraged the search teams to drill through the night. The bomb at the U.S. Embassy in Nairobi went off in a rear parking lot, which upper peritored by cleared air which was monitored by closed-circuit television cameras, said American Ambassador Prudence Bushnell. They could provide importance evidence, but she said she didn't know whether the cameras or film survived the blast.

The FBI was sending 60 investigators to Nairobi and a separate team to the Tanzanian capital, Dares Salaam.

Its top priority is to determine the type of explosive device and the vehicle that brought it to the site, which spokesman Frank Scafidi said "can be like a fingerprint of who did it."

Popularity rating of HK's Tung drops

HONG KONG (AP) — Public satisfaction with the chief executive, which has been declining steadily since October, fell to a new low last week, according to a survey published Sunday.

In the survey, sponsored by the South China Morning Post, 56 percent of those questioned said they were satisfied with Chief Executive Tung Chee-hwa, down from 61 percent in June and the record high of 89 percent in October.

Those dissatisfied with Tung doubled to 40 percent since June 1997, justbefore the 61-year-oldshipping businessman took up the post from the last British colonial governor. China reassumed control over Hong Kong in July 1997.

The survey questioned 548 people between the ages of 18 and 64. No margin of error was provided.

Lau Siu-kai, a professor and political analyst at Chinese University, said Tung had a poor image among Hong Kong people.

"They think the government is detached from the people," the Hong Kong Standard newspaper quoted him as saying.

Criticism of the chief executive has grown as the territory's economy worsens and unemployment has risen to a 15-year high.

Since Hong Kong's handover to China, people have expressed concems over the administration's handling of a slew of problems ranging frompublichealthriskstofailedstock brokerages, which translated into heavy losses for both small businesses and investors. The bombings, just a few minutes and 450 miles apart, turned busy streets in two African capitals into bloody piles of concrete and knots of steel.

They caused outrage and grief in the United States and were national tragedies of immense proportions in Kenya and Tanzania, which have never before been targets of international terrorism on this scale.

With some 4.257 people injured and 154 people still missing from the Nairobi blast, medical facilities in Nairobi were overwhelmed. Some victims were taken to hospitals 30 miles away.

In Kenya, the death toll rose to at least 140, embassy officials said. The State Department said 11 Americans were killed and four other Americans were missing.

Ambassador Bushnell, who suffered cuts in the attack, said at a news conference that she saw at least one burning vehicle behind the embassy when, bloody and somewhat dazed, she wasled from an eighboring building. She said 14 Kenyan employees at the embassy died and 109 were unaccounted for. Embassy staffers were trying to find out if they were still buried under rubble.

Eight people died in the Tanzanian bombing; no Americans were killed there.

About 200 peopleremained inneed of urgent treatment Saturday at Nairobi's Kenyatta Hospital and there were shortages of syringes, needles and blood for transfusions, the Red Cross said, President Daniel arap Moi appealed for intravenous fluids, pain killers and antibiotics.

Anxious relatives and friends went from hospital to hospital, and finally tomorgues looking for missing loved ones.

"I am looking for my sister. I have looked for her in all the hospitals before finally I decided to come here." Daniel Maina said outside the mortuary.

He followed a trail of bloody footprints inside, holding a hand to his nose against the stench of rotten and singed flesh. The head of a woman wearing blue jeans was blown off: most of the 80 bodies were charred. Among the dead, Maina found his sister.

Exhausted Kenyan army, police and civilian rescue teams, which recovered eight bodies on Saturday, welcomed the arrival of 118 Israelis who brought eight rescue dogs and specialized equipment to search for victims, U.S. Air Force troops also arrivedFriday with the firstFBI agents and bomb examiners, and were helping with rescue efforts.

Some Kenyans complained that the Americans sealed off the embassy, refused to allow them to help with the rescue and were confrontational.

"When we tried to rescue a body from inside the U.S. Embassy they chased us away and threatened to shoot,"volunteerFawzAbubakarwas quoted as saying in the East African Standard.

Ambassador Bushnell acknowledged there could be misunderstandings, but stressed it was crucial to keep the area as intact as possible for investigators.

"It is in everybody's interest to find out who is behind the evil," she said. She spoke with a bandaged bottom lipandgestured with bandaged hands.

It was not known who was responsible for the blasts. News organizations received several claims of responsibility, although none of them could be confirmed.

Statements bearing the name of the "Islamic Army for the Liberation of Holy Shrines" were faxed to Radio France Internationale in Paris. They said the Tanzania operation was carried out by an Egyptian, and the Kenyablast by two men from Mecca, Saudi Arabia.

The statements said strikes would continue at U.S. targets until, among other things: Western forces and American civilians leave Islamic countries, especially the Arabian Peninsula: Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman is released from the American prison where the blind Egyptian cleric is serving a life sentence for plotting to blow up New York landmarks; the United States ends all support for Israel

THE NORTHERN Mariana Islands will still have to depend on foreign workers in some fields to be able to effectively run the local economy, but Gov. Pedro P. Tenorio said it is not time yet to lift the hiring moratorium law.

"It is premature to have the moratorium law lifted. The Legislature just passed the law and now they want to open the doors again. There are some areas where we still need to import foreign workers," Tenorio told reporters Friday.

Representative Melvin O. Faisao, apparently agitated by moratorium exemptions granted to some business sectors has suggested that the government repeal Public Law 11-6 which prohibits the importation of new guest workers to the CNMI.

Faisao said equal treatment should be accorded to all businesses in the Commonwealth would still have to depend on nonresident workers, said lifting the moratorium law may increase the discrepancy between the number of local residents and foreigners in the CNMI.

"We have a population of about 64,000 and of these, only about 20,000 are locals while the remaining percentage belong to other nationalities. I realize that there are areas that we have to look into consideration," he said.

The governor pointed out that there is a need to meet the manpower demand of the private sector and that the CNMI needs guest workers on some areas or fields which the local labor pool could not fill. He justified this by stressing the flexibility of the moratorium law which allows some businesses to import additional workers from other countries whenever they meet the requirement of the law.

"There's a provision in the law which allows exemption and those granted are only those who meet the requirement of the law." he emphasized.

Chamber insists moratorium on new hiring 'not necessary' ^{By Jojo Dass} TINIAN — The Saipan Chamber of Commerce wants government to repeal the hiring moratorium law.

In an interview, lawyer David Wiseman, who chairs the Chamber's government relations committee, said House Bill 11-163 was enacted into Public Law 11-6 without its proponents gathering inputs from the local business community.

"We want a repeal of it. We don't think it is necessary," said Wiseman. He proposed that government instead put in place a regulatory mechanism where firms' manpower needs will be determined according to its operation or production output.

Wiseman said P.L. 11-6, which was meant to stop the entry of new nonresident workers, was enacted supposedly as a result from Washington D.C..

He added that the law was enacted and was immediately put into effect which, he argued, should have not been the case as a lot of business establishments were caught flatfooted.

"The most important thing," said Wiseman, "is that (P.L.11-6) is artificially interfering with the marker forces." "And we need those market forces to operate in a more natural level," he

During a 30 minute service at RitidianPoint, AirForce and Army personnel provided full honors to Aquero with a gun salute and presentation of the United States Flag to his widow Mrs. Dolores T. Aquero. Aquero was born and raised at Ritidian Point and served in both the Korean and Vietnam War.

A useless campaign-finance reform bill

THE do-nothing Congress finally did something last week. In keeping with recent practice, even this "something" will end up accomplishing nothing.

But in the process, we learned a lot about the true motivations behind many of the self-styled "reformers" in our nation's capital.

Campaign finance reform, left for dead by the Senate earlier this year, passed by a resounding 252-179 margin on Thursday despite four months of efforts by House Republican leaders to derail the measure. By hook and by crook, House Speaker Newt Gingrich and his lieutenants tried to keep the most popular and far-reaching reform measure from coming to a vote. The bill would, among other things, eliminate unregulated "soft money" contributions to political parties and curtail the right of outside groups to spend money to influence specific elections.

Nevertheless, the vote was largely symbolic. For the bill to become law, the Senate would have to pass a companion bill by the end of the year, and that effort is still eight votes short of breaking a filibuster.

Conventional wisdom in the capital these days holds that campaign finance is not an issue that gets voters very excited. But last week's shenanigans make it clear that House leaders didn't share that sentiment. If voters didn't care, why would Republicans go to such great lengths to defend the current system of legalized bribery that funds political campaigns?

Earlier this year, House leaders tried sidestepping the issue by bringing up a highly partisan, pseudo reform bill destined for failure. When the rank and file rebelled and demanded a vote on the most popular measure — sponsored by Reps. Chris Shays, R-Conn. and Martin Meehan, D-Mass. — Gingrich responded with an arcane plan whereby the Shays-Meehan bill would be judged alongside 11 other alternatives and littered with an endless array of amendments. The bill winning the most votes in the end would prevail. Guess which one won?

So now we know that Gingrich and his brass don't really care as much about reform as they would have us believe. Why should they? The current system, riddled with loopholes, helps the leadership more than anyone else.

More than that, the recent debate shows the intellectual bankruptcy of another so-called reform movement — the drive for term limits.

You remember term limits. This wholly idiotic idea was quite in vogue a few years ago. Republicans embraced the idea when they were in the minority, as it would help them dislodge some of the entrenched Democratic incumbents who had kept them out of power for 40 years. The idea was so successful that 18 states passed term-limit referendums.

Then, something strange happened. Voters woke up to the fact that term limits already existed. It's called the right to vote. Those entrenched incumbents were harassed like White House interns in miniskirts. Many of the ones who didn't lose chose the safer option of retirement. At the present time, more than 60 percent of the House is made up of members who were first elected in the 1990s.

The original intent behind term limits, of course, was to eliminate some of the perks of incumbency and to rid Congress of its dead wood. Members who stay around a long time find it easier to raise money, which makes it easier to stay in office.

But the best way to level the playing field is to lower the price of admission to political office. Campaign-finance reform does that quite nicely by putting challengers on a more even footing with incumbents.

So guess who was standing front-and-center against the Shays-Meehan proposal last week? U.S. Term Limits, the leading termlimits group that has spent the better part of this decade trying to get a term-limits measure through Congress.

These aren't easy times for U.S. Term Limits. The group was effectively neutered last spring when the Supreme Court struck down term limits for federal office as an unconstitutional violation of the "qualifications" clause in the Constitution.

Yet there were the term-limits advocates, whining that the Shays-Meehan bill would prevent groups like theirs from running "issue ads" on behalf of their favored candidates. The bill is "dangerous," said Adam Bromberg of U.S. Term Limits, and "it doesn't solve any campaign-finance problems."

How ironic that a group that spent so many years assaulting the Constitution is now wrapping itself in the First Amendment.

Maybe the term-limits crowd has become infected by the very problem it purported to cure: self-preservation.

When 'free speech' becomes 'net abuse'

By DAVID T. HUGHES

For the Variety

LITERALLY all my adult life I have attempted to fight censorship in any form. This is especially true when it comes to the Internet.

The old adage of "I may not like what you say, but, by gosh, I'll fight to the death for your right to say it," has been my constant companion.

Now, as junk email (SPAM) numbers increase daily, I'm wondering if-some-free speech shouldn't be curbed a bit.

During my previous life at a local Internet provider I got into screamfests with youthful technicians who wanted to go in and censor all manner of email to kill spammers and porn monger sales pitches. I explained the "Free Speech" concept of the Constitution, but the finer points seemed to escape them. However, cooler, legal minds intervened and said I was right and customer email should be left alone.

"There oughta be a law." is now on the lips of many email users as they go to their email boxes and find them stuffed with the electronic equivalent of fliers handed out on a supermarket parking lot. However, instead of being able to just ignore it, email is a lot like having those same fliers glued over your cardoor keyhole. You have to move it to go on.

I'm sure many of you are saying to yourself (especially if you DON'T have an email account somewhere) "what's the big deal? We all receive junk mail in our regular mail boxes."

Yes ... That's true - to a point. That mail pays its own way with postage costs. The onus is on the SENDER to provide a delivery method. Spammers get a free ride because they have little or no up-front costs such as printing, postage, etc. The recipient based on their monthly access fees and how much email space they are allowed essentially pays for their message.

How long would you put up with advertising sent to your mailbox being COD?

That's what spam is - COD junk mail.

ISPs also foot a big part of the cost because the junk messages are sent over the public Internet through their routers and stored on their servers until customers log in to retrieve.

Consumers who don't want spam are then forced to buy software that will filter out the unwanted messages. Worse still, they have to 'figger out' how to set up message filters that won't trash good messages along with the bad.

Spammers retaliate by changing the wording of their messages to sound more like personal emails that you do not want filtered. It's a war between them and us ... and - folks, we seem to be losing.

The time for Band-Aids is over. Congress needs to act on this problem. I am not advocating that sending unsolicited advertising be banned on the Internet. What I would like to see is a legal requirement forcing any kind of advertising to be easily identified in a uniform manner. One way might be to manner that spammers use the same wording such as ADVERTISEMENT: in the message title. Then, anyone could delete those messages with one filter.

You've heard of "smoke free dining," why not "spamfree email" as a come-on from Internet Service providers?

Congress banned advertisers from sending junk messages to personal and business fax machines because the end recipient had to invest in a fax machine and expendables such as paper and toner to receive them. Until that happened, if your fax number was known the chances of getting a junk fax.

Perhaps if you keep copies of the spam you receive and then about once a week or so write a letter of complaint (it could be the same letter each time) and email - even better - fax - your concerns to your member of Congress, along with copies of the offending mails, the problem might get higher attention. You won't technically be breaking the law because you aren't sending - unsolicited - faxes. The elected officials - ask - constituents to mail or call (grin.)

Elections are coming up soon for many members of Congress and when they hold town meetings or rallies one of the questions they should be asked is their stand on unsolicited email. If I had enough money to run for that august office, I would make regulating spammers one of my campaign planks. Notice I didn't say "ban spam," just "regulate" it. After all, "free speech" still applies in the good old U S of A.

Spammers should have the right to say or sell whateverthey wish. By the same token those who do not want to - read - their sales pitches should not have to read it if we so choose. Where there's free speech, "free listening" should also enter somewhere in the equation.

NETSCAPE STRUGGLES ON

Netscape has made the first beta of their version 4.5 browser available online at their web site (www.netscape.com) download area. I guess the powers that be there saw their market share continued to erode and decided - something - needed to be done.

Rumblings on the Internet are saying their touted Version 5 is having some problems on the drawing board. Perhaps 4.5 is better than nothing.

Cosmetically, 4.5 is just about the same, but I noticed in my short test of the product that it seems to run faster. Netscape seems to be getting back on the browser track, jettisoning such losers as their push technology and chat.

Is it worth dumping Microsoft's Internet Explorer? Not yet Ö if ever. It's my - personal - opinion that Microsoft will eventually win the browser battle - not because they give their product away, but because it's a better browser.

'DOF just reviewing returns'

By Aldwin R. Fajardo Variety News Staff

GOVERNOR Pedro P. Tenorio insists the CNMI government has enough funds in its coffers to pay tax refunds and rebates, dismissing allegations that the installment release of checks were made to "stretch the money.

"There was no intention to delay the release of the checks by issuing two separate checks for refund and rebates. It was not intended, we have the money [to pay refunds and rebates]"Tenorio told reporters Friday.

Te explained that the refund checks are released first because the Department of Finance is thoroughly reviewing the more than 30,000 tax returns filed during the last Fiscal Year.

"They were reviewing the returns thoroughly in order for them to deduct the balance of those who have outstanding account to the government. They know what they are doing. As a matter of fact, I want to see these people receiving their checks as early as possible," he added. Delinquent taxpayers will not re-

Those who have issued bounced checks may not also receive their refunds or rebates until they replace cashier's check. The government re ceived more than 38,000 tax returns this year.

According to the finance department, rebate checks will only be processed after all tax refunds have been paid which is expected to be completed in the next two weeks, while those who filed income tax returns on or before March 27 should have received their refund checks within the next few weeks.

Finance Secretary Lucy Nielsen, in previous interview, said the amount that will be processed first will be the refund portion or overpayment of tax. She added that refund process will be on a first-in-first-out basis, depending on the filing date of the tax return, stressing that rebates be processed

MONDAY, AUGUST 10, 1998 - MARIANAS VARIETY NEWS AND VIEWS-7 New rooms for MHS, SVES

By Haidee V. Eugenio Variety News Staff

WITH 14 newly-built and fully furnished classrooms, the Marianas High School opensits doors to day to around 1,700 students, while the San Vicente Elementary School received six new rooms.

MHS Principal James Denight, saying that the school is "absolutely ready" for opening, told reporters that the new airconditioned rooms will accommodate a total of 420 students for their social studies, mathematics, home economics and language arts subjects.

"I hope the students will take care of these rooms," Denight said.

He also remarked that existing MHS classrooms will also be upgraded to be able to have a more conducive learning place for students.

"The first thing we'd like to do for the old rooms is to upgrade the lightning system so that the students can see what they're working on.

"We're also getting new airconditioners and they should be put up within two months. We'll also do refurnishing," said Denight.

Fletcher Pacific, the contractor for the Public School System's 40 new classrooms for this school year, said the new structures are made up of cement board and metal framing which is ideal for school application.

"This is a pre-fabricated modular building system, and the cement board and steel beams are fully rated for typhoons. It's actually a very nice system, ideal for this kind of application to classrooms," said H. Chieng

Inos to schools: 'Be resourceful'

By Haidee V. Eugenio Variety News Staff

PUBLIC School System Commissioner Rita H. Inos has asked the 'resourcefulness' of school officials to provide continuous service to students amidst the worsening economic slump.

"This is a time of crunch for all of us, and I'm asking schools to be very resourceful and to prioritize their needs," Inos told the Variety.

She remarked that it is hard to do somebelt-tightening, especially when schools have so much in the past, but "it would be for the best interest of the school children to do this."

The PSS official said "resourcefulness" is all about "making full use of existing things" rather than pinning hopes on buying new ones.

"I want teachers and all PSS staff to look at the things we have within our own existing environment and making them useful," she said, but added that PSS will definitely get new things.

She also urged schools to find ways in bringing in other "resources" not just through the PSS' regular process of procuring.

She cited as an example the tapping of business sectors, as well as the parents themselves in making education more meaningful for the chil-

SVES Prinicipal Martha Habermann said a total of 180 students will be using the six newly-built rooms

"These rooms are conducive for learning. The payback is when the students do their part which is to learn. If they put a lot in their learning, all of these are worth it," she said. Meanwhile, PSS Commissioner Rita H. Inos said there is no reason why school officials and government leaders should not help the whole educational system. "The kids are fortunate enough to have new rooms. With government leaders who came to join us and are always willing to help, then the school system should also do its best," she said.

DEQ marine water report

THE DIVISION of Environmental Quality (DEQ) analyzed water samples collected from Saipan's recreational beaches and storm drainages this week and found that the samples collected at the beach in front of Hafa-Adai Hotel contained excessive concentration of fecal coliform bacteria, which exceeded the CNMI Marine Water Quality Standards.

High concentrations of fecal coliforms may be the result of high surf conditions or stormwater runoff due to storms. Fecal Coliform bacteria are not usually disease causing.

The bacteria can indicate the presence of human and animal waste in the water.

In order to adequately address public health concerns, DEQ maintains its policy of advising the public not to fish or swim within 300 feet of these locations within 48 hours of this notice.

Bill seeks to bar non-US citizens in advanced pregnancy from entering

By Haidee V. Eugenio

Variety News Staff IN AN EFFORT to curb "contrived" practices of acquiring US citizenship. a legislator filed a bill that prohibits the entry from CNMI of non-US citizens who are in their seventh month of pregnancy.

House Bill 11-263, introduced by Rep. Max "Timmo" Olopai, noted high-risk pregnant persons come to the CNMI after seven months gestation to deliver their babies, sprouting adverse local consequences.

These effects involve using pregnancy as a front to acquire US citizenship for newborns and health risks for pregnant women and their babies.

The bill said there are nearly 3.4 million newborn infants die within the first week of life every year due to gestational diabetes, poor health, childbirth and inadequate care during pregnancy

"While travelling after seven months pregnancy is in itself a deadly gamble, the CNMI seems clearly to be a site for contrived US citizenship acquisition," Olopai said.

Known as the "Control of Illegal

Max "Timmo" Olopai

Alien Childbirth Act," the bill said ignorance of this practice will evoke undeserved, vicious sentiments and ill will from the US.

"It will lead to rejection of the CNMI political and legal system, and further tarnish CNMI credibility as a protector of US borders and defender of US citizenship," Olopai said.

The bill also mandates the mobilization of resources between the Department of Public Health and the Department of Labor and Immigration to ensure the enforcement of the bill once it becomes a law.

It particularly directs both agencies to use a continuum of prevention for high risk pregnant persons. This includes air carrier and tourism industry public education about the requirements of pregnant persons who seek entry into the CNMI, and the consequences of surreptitiously attempting to enter the CNMI to give birth

The bill added that any person who commits a violation of this Act may be assessed an administrative civil penalty by either DOLI or DPH, and a fine of not more than $1,000 for each offense.

Olopai's bill also authorized three years funding of $20,600 per year for immigration inspector training and public education costs associated with the requirements of the Act.

"Political will and community desire support the necessity of this legislation . . . Making it illegal for a pregnant alien to enter the CNMI during or after seven months gestation is in the compelling best interest of the CNMI," the bill said.

Babauta has been charged with murder in the first degree for the gunslaying of his cousin, Jose Boki Babauta, in As Matuis on Feb. 1, 1997.

His trial has been set for April 20 of this year, which was then reset to Sept. 8.

nurses presently employed by the CHC are NCLEX-certified. According to Villagomez, there

The health chief remarked that DPH gave the nurses three chances to take and pass the NCLEX. Their third and last chance to take the exam will be this September.

THE US District Court has handed down 17 years and six months of jail term to a man who was involved in a conspiracy to import and export 14 kilograms of heroin.

Citing that the case was the largest drug operation so far in the CNMI. Judge Alex R. Munson slapped the maximum sentence to King Wa Kwan. The heroin involved in the case was estimated to cost between $8.4

million to $14 million, according to the US Attorney's Office. Munson during Thursday's sentencing said the court wished to deter any other individuals who might otherwise be inclined to use Saipan for drug importation. According to investigation conducted by the Drug Enforcement Agency/ CNMI Drug Task Force, Saipan had been used by Kwan's group as the transhipment's "jumping point" of heroin from Thailand and Hong Kong to Australia and Canada.

Assistant US Attorney David T. Wood said the investigation conducted by the DEA/CNMIDrug Task Force involved drug operations in Thailand, Hong Kong, Australia, Canada, and the United States (Saipan).

Wood said the DEA and the US Attorney received information that Kwan and his group had successfully transhipped heroin using the same routes four to five times in the past.

US surgery for Filipino baby

LOS ANGELES (AP) --- A Filipino baby with a rare defect called prune-belly syndrome will undergo lifesaving surgery next week thanks to his parents' search for help on the Internet and an anonymous donor who funded the boy's travel and hospitalization.

Éleven-month-old Paul Anthony Estares and his mother, Menchi Estares of Manila's Paco district, arrived from the Philippines last week.

Surgeons will operate on the child Monday at the University of California, Los Angeles Medical Center's Children's Hospital, where reconstructive surgery for the syndrome was developed. They are confident the surgery will give Paul a normal life.

Prune-belly syndrome is a congenital birth defect. Victims have a lack of abdominal musculature, undescended testes and severe urinary tract dysfunction. More than disfiguring, the condition is usually fatal without corrective surgery.

Families mourn bomb victims in Kenya

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright (right) talks with members of her staff about the bombings of the U.S. embassies in Nairobi, Kenya and Dar es Šalaam, Tanzania Saturday at the State Department in Washington.

By Brent Kallestad

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)-Clara Aliganga was not thrilled about her son going to Africa, but he seemed to love his job so.

"He was just so proud to be a Marine," Mrs. Aliganga said of her son, Marine Sgt. Jesse N. Aliganga.

"He was so proud he made it through boot camp at Parris Island," she said referring to the South Carolina boot camp. "It was something he was really good at."

Aliganga, 21, was one of two Florida residents killed in the bombing attack Friday in Nairobi, Kenya, where he served in the Marine Security Unit. The Pentagon also said Air Force Senior Master Sgt. Sherry Lynn Olds, 40, of Panama City, was among at least 11 Americans killed in the blast.

At least 148 people died when terrorist bombs exploded at the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania.

Thousands more were injured. No Americans were believed to be among the eight killed in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania.

The Army had already identified Sgt. Kenneth R. Hobson II, 27, of Nevada, Mo., as one of the victims.

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright released the identities of victims Jay Bartley, son of Consul General Julian Bartley; Prabhi Kavaler, of the general services office; Tom Shah of the political section; Jean Dalizu, of the defense attache's office; Michelle O'Connor, who worked for the General Services Office; Arlene Kirk, 50, of South Bend, Ind., who worked for the Air Force, and Molly Huckaby Hardy, 51, of Valdosta, Ga., a 26-year veteran of the State Department. Relatives identified the eleventh victim, Louise Martin of Atlanta.

"The United States lost a very important person and a lot of people are going to be affected by it," Olds' younger sister, Marsey Cornett, told The News-Herald of Panama City.

"She led a very fulfilled life. The family is very proud."

Aliganga joined the Marines shortly after graduating from high school in Tallahassee in 1994. He had agreed to a 30month extension last year on his original three-year enlist-

"I wasn't particularly fond of the idea when he had put in for Nairobi," Mrs. Aliganga said. "But I stood behind my children 100 percent, whatever their decision.

Arlene Kirk, a civilian who worked as an accountant in the Air Force budget department, had just returned to Kenya with her husband after spending leave in the United States. Robert Kirk was not injured. Arlene Kirk is survived by a 14-year-old son and 23-year-old daughter.

"She was a terrific mother and wife. She was just a very supportive person, whatever was happening," her brother, Dennis Bradley of Chicago, said.

Relatives and friends gathered Saturday to mourn Ms. Hardy.

Ms. Hardy was to return to the United States from Nairobi on June 15, but had to wait for a replacement first, said longtime friend Marsha Bates.

"We were anxiously awaiting her to come home," she said. "I had just finished a new house and thought, 'As soon as Molly comes home, I'm going to make sure she comes over and spends one night so we can talk all night like we used to.""

Meanwhile, Susan Bryson of Lawrenceville, Ga., was informed by her brother-in-law that her sister, Ms. Martin, was killed in the blast.

Ms. Martin worked for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Kenya, along with her husband Douglas Klaucke. She would have turned 46 on Tuesday.

"I still don't believe it's real," Mrs. Bryson told WSB-TV. "The only thing, she died in a country she loved, she died doing the things she liked.... She's left behind so many people who loved her."

US won't recall troops, envoys

By George Gedda WASHINGTON(AP)---President Clinton said Saturday he has no intention of withdrawing diplomats or troops from global hotspots despite the terrorist bombings at two U.S. embassies in East Africa.

Any pullback "would give terrorism a victory it must not and will not have," Clinton said in his weekly radio address. "We will continue to take the fight to terrorists."

The American death toll from the bombing in Kenyarose Saturday from eight to 11.

The Pentagon identified the military casualties as Air Force Senior Master Sgt. Sherry Lynn Olds, 40, of Panama City, Fla., assigned to the Air Force Security Element in Nairobi; Marine Sgt. Jesse N. Aliganga, 21, of Tallahassee, Fla., part of the embassy's security unit; and Army Sgt. Kenneth R. Hobson II, 27, of Nevada, Mo., assigned to the office of the defense attache in the embassy.

Albright said one American diplomat remained unaccounted for. Earlier statements indicated at least two other Americans were missing.

Expressing sentiments similar to Clinton's, Albright said the United States "will not be intimidated by terrorists, and we will never forget their victims."

Twelve American citizens, all victims of the Kenya bombing, were hospitalized — 10 embassy officers and two private citizens. Of the 12, 10 were to be flown to Ramstein Air Base in Germany. Five injured Kenyan employees of the embassy were to join them on the trip.

The eleven American fatalities compared with seven U.S. terrorism victims worldwide for all of 1997.

Clinton discussed the events in East Africa on Saturday with French President Jacques Chirac, who expressed sympathy over the loss of life. Regrets over the bombings were offered by countries as diverse as Israel and Cuba.

A White House meeting involving Albright and other high-level officials was held Saturday to take stock of the situation and to weigh future

Officials remained mum on likely suspects, while acknowledging that it would be foolish to ignore the possibility that exiled Saudi militant Osama bin Laden may have been involved. He has threatened a holy war against Americans elsewhere overseas In an interview with ABC News last May, he said Islamic terrorists would "send the bodies of American troops and civilians home in wooden boxes and coffins" and added that "we don't differentiate between those dressed in military uniforms and civilians. They are all targets."

There was no immediate assessment of a claim of responsibility by a group calling itself the Army for the Liberation of Islamic Shrines.

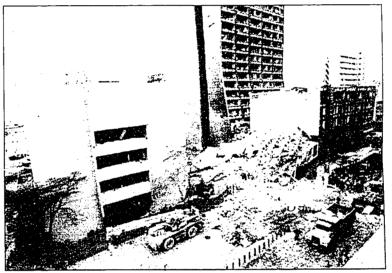

Statements were circulated Saturday claiming the bombings for the Army for the Liberation of Holy Shrines. Neither name has been used before, and it was unclear whether they represented different groups.

Clinton urged Americans to have faith in the government's resolve to hunt down terrorists.

While acknowledging that those who killed 19 U.S. servicemen in Saudi Arabia in 1996 remain at large. he cited breakthroughs in the struggle against terrorists such as resolution of cases involving terrorist acts at the CIA and the World Trade Center. both in 1993.

Friday's explosions killed around 140 people, and the number of injured topped 2,200. In addition to the dead Americans, five Kenyan employees at the embassy died.

PUBLIC NOTICE US President Clinton released a Clean Water Action Plan in February, 1998. This plan provides a blueprint for restoring and protecting the nation's waters, and emphasizes a cooperative watershed approach to solving our water quality problems. The President backed the plan with an additional S568 million in new funding to restore impaired water- sheds. To be eligible for this money, states and territories are required to conduct a United Watersheds Assessment, which identifies their highest priority watersheds requiring res- toration (Category I); and those watersheds that need preventive action or an extra mea- sure of protection.

The CNMI's Watersheds Group (including representatives from DEQ, NRCS, SWCD, CRM, DFW, DPW, DPL, and the private sector) analyzed existing water quality data, Geographic Information System maps, and status of natural resources to categorize the CNMI's watersheds. The Watersheds Group has made some preliminary determinations on the fol lowing watersheds to be placed in "Category I."

Saipan	Takpochau, Susupe, Kagman, Lau Lau, and Achugao
Finian	Makpo and Puntan Diaplo-Lamanibot
Rota	Sabana/Talakhaya/Palie, Songsong, and Uyulan Hulo/Teteto
Northern Islands	Pagan and Alamagan

These watersheds should be restored to solve water quality problems. The President's additional funding can only be spent to address problems in these watersheds

The Watersheds Group is asking for the public's comments, questions, and concerns regarding this designation. Copies of the complete Unitied Watersheds Assessment can be obtained at the NRCS, DEQ, or Mayor's office on Saipan; the DPW or Mayor's office on Tinian; and the DEQ, DPL, or Mayor's office on Rota. The watersheds group will revise the assessment to reflect the public's comments. Rain storms in Korea lull

By PAUL SHIN

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The worst rains to hit Seoul in nearly 80 years eased Sunday, but storms in central South Korea caused new flooding and mudslides that reportedly left six dead.

In Sosan, 150 kilometers (93 miles) southwest of Seoul, where up to 32 centimeters (12.5 inches) fell overnight, six people were reported killed in two different mud-slides.

Effective August 1st

In a nearby village, two others were killed by lightning, the state KBS-TV said.

That brought the total death toll from this week's storms to Sixty-nine others remained missing and more than 80,000 people were left homeless. Property damage estimates ranged from $200 million to $2 billion. The rains — dubbed by local media as "guerrilla-style rain unpredictability --- were moving slowly south Sunday, deluging many western coastal regions, weather reports said.

As the rains moved south, millions of people in and around Seoul got a lull from storms that dumped more than 1 meters (39.3 inches) in the past four days.

Most of the deaths and property damage were reported in storms" because of their the capital and its surrounding areas, where nearly half of South Korea's 44 million people reside.

Wide parts of Seoul, with a population of 12 million, remained flooded Sunday after receiving torrential rains incessantly in the past four days. On Saturday, 33.2 centimeters (13 inches) fell in Seoul, the most to fall in one day since Aug. 2, 1920, weather reports said.

Millions of people in Seoul's low-lying areas stayed at their homes or makeshift shelters overnight, keeping an uneasy vigil on the Han River and its tributaries, which government officials warned could overflow if more rain falls.

But the rains over upper South Korea eased after midnight Saturday. The skies over Seoul were heavily overcast Sunday with only scattered showers.

"It's really difficult to make an exact forecast. The rain storm is highly unpredictable and may reappear any time," weatherman Kim Sung-soo told The Associated Press. Kim said the rain storm was swept in from China.

Three national television networks that had continued weather-related broadcasts nonstop for the past three days returned to normal programming Sunday morning, saying that "the worst appears to be over."

Most of the deaths from th storms were caused by landslides. On Saturday, at least seven people were killed, including two U.S. Army soldiers buried under mud-slides. About 37,000 U.S. soldiers are stationed in South Korea under a mutual defense treaty.

The death toll so far was the worst since 350 were killed by a typhoon in 1987.

A flood warning remained in effect in Seoul's low-lying areas along the Han River as five dams upstream were discharging more water from swollen reservoirs

At least two Han River tributaries had already overflowed Friday and Saturday, submerging some 30,000 homes in and around Seoul, anti-disaster government officials said.

On the front-line, U.S. and South Korean soldiers, using mine-detectors and metal sticks, were combing valleys and stream beds in search of 10 tons of artillery shells and land mines swept away in mud-slides and floods.

The deluge was brought by the same storm system that a week earlier sent flash floods raging down mountain valleys in the southern tip of the Korean peninsula, killing 67 campers and leaving 29 missing and feared dead.

floods triggered by record torrential rains laid waste to many low-lying towns near Seoul on Friday. AP

Brunei prepares for future ruler

By RANJAN ROY

BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN, Brunei — Brushing aside nagging worries of the present, Brunei's royal family, counted among the world's wealthiest, Sunday prepared to firm its grip on the future.

At the 1,788-room palace, workers gave finishing touches to a facelift as cranes mounted kingsize canopies under which a procession will pass Monday after the formal proclamation of future ruler of one of the last outposts of absolute monarchy.

Decorated arches with smiling portraits of royals flanked the broad ways, streamers heralded the future king and gold-domed mosques and government buildings were festooned with shining lights

Prince Al-Muhtadee Billah, the 24-year-old eldest son of Sultan Hassanal Bolkiah, will receive a broad, jeweled traditional Malay knife, called the Kris, from his father, ensuring his future right to ascend to the all-powerful throne.

The heir to the Bolkiah family's Rolls-Royces, private jets, prize race horses and oil riches is the third child of the monarch, the two older daughters being ineligible for the crown because women aren't allowed to rule.

In the blitz of local publicity ahead of Monday's festivities, the prince has been portrayed both as modern and traditional.

Official pictures show him sitting cross-legged with Muslim tutors as well as engrossed at a school desk, wearing a tie or aiming a cue stick on a snooker table, wearing a bow-tie and waistcoat.

His love for Islamic studies has been highlighted along with passing references to his fondness for Western music.

It may be sometime before Prince Al-Muhtadee inherits the throne from his 52-year-old father, but for now the Sultan probably needs all the help he can get from his grown up son.

The ceremony comes at a time of crisis both for the family and the tiny kingdom of 300,000 people on the tip of the Borneo land mass flanked by the South China Sea.

As the Bolkiah family assembled for ceremonies and prayers over the weekend, one prominent member was missing from Istana Nurul Iman, the royal palace.

Not far from Oxford University, where the prince recently received a diploma in diplomacy, one of the king's brothers, in self-imposed exile somewhere in Europe, has become a major embarrassment and strain on the kingdom.

Prince Jefri, the Sultan's brother, is alleged to have squandered billions of dollars in bad business deals. Stories of his wild orgies and extravagances have dented the Sultan's attempts to portray a clean Islamic image of the family that has ruled Brunei for four centuries.

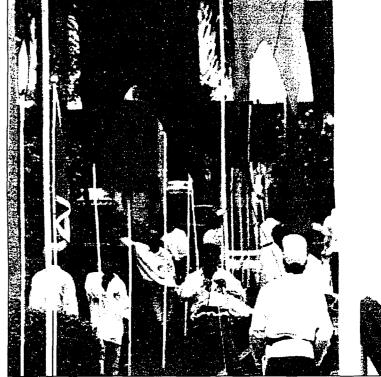

Because the country's annual budgets are never made public and the royal finances remain a secret, it may never be know how much Brunei has hurt from the wayward prince's actions.

But last week, officials announced plans to hire foreign consultants to prevent it from slipping into an economic mess.

Abdul Rahman Taib, deputy chairman of the newly formed Ministerial Economic Council, said it had nothing to do with the collapse of Prince Jefri's Amedeo company and its estimated $16 billion loss.

"Brunei's economy is strong and totally viable. The country has enough money to carry out all its infrastructure developments," he said.

After stories about Amedeo's scandals surfaced, the Sultan moved quickly to strip his brother of control of the failed company and his position as chief of the Brunei Investment Agency, which is responsible for overseas invest-

Workers put up banners at the Palace Nurul Iman for upcoming proclamation ceremony for the crown prince of Brunei in the capital Bandar Seri Begawan Sunday. Al-Muhtadee Billah, the 24-year-old eldest son of Sultan Hassanal Bolkiah, will formally ensure his future right to ascend to the throne Monday.

Palace problems apart, Brunei also is beginning to be whacked by the Asian economic turmoil Tourism has sagged, the construction and trading sectors are in a gloom.

People are complaining, something rare in this tightly-controlled kingdom where there is no income tax, education and medical care is free and the per capita income is among the highest in the world.

"I keep wondering how come most of the goods sold in this country cost so much more than the same goods sold in our neighboring country." said a letterwriter in the weekend's edition of Borneo Bulletin, the only Englishlanguage newspaper. The daily does not publish names of the authors of letters for fear they may be persecuted.

Another complained about the exorbitant rates charged by Brunei's only mobile phone service provider.

Probe takes toll on Clinton

By TERENCE HUNT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seemingly immune from scandal. President Clinton has so far avoided a falling out with the American public over the Monica Lewinsky investigation. But the embarrassing probe unmistakably has weakened his presidency, diminished his power and darkened his future.

A Republican Congressionce eager to cooperate with Clinton on reforming welfare and balancing the budget now thumbs its nose at the beleaguered president. A White House that had been instrumental in setting Washington's agenda is instead preoccupied with the president's survival.

Democrats hopeful of taking control of the House fret that Clinton's troubles will drag them down in November's mid-term elections. America's allies around the world worry that a U.S. president who needs to be strong in global affairs is distracted and even endangered.

"Who's looking after Kosovo? Who's worrying about Iraq?" said Vanderbilt University political scientist Erwin Hargrove. "I don't get the impression the president is at all involved in foreign affairs. There seems to be some concern abroad that he's not in charge."

"This has been in many respects a tragic episode in American politics," said Thomas Mann, director of governmental studies at the Brookings Institution. "We have weakened the presidency and criminalized the political process."

"Whether the president can recoup, whether we can repair the damages caused by the zealousness of Ken Starr and the frenzy of the media and the lack of discipline by the president, who knows?" Mann said.

By any measure, 1998 has been a bust for Clinton.

The tobacco settlement that the White House hoped would be 1998's crowning achievement was shelved. So were Clinton proposals to raise the minimum wage, hire 100,000 new teachers, spend $21.7 billion on childcare initiatives and allow Americans as young as 55 to buy into the Medicare system.

"Congress really hasn't done anything, except name the Reagan airport," said University of Rochester historian John Mueller.

White House counselor Rahm Emanuel insisted Clinton still has clout — as demonstrated by the shrinking of tax-cutting proposals by GOP leaders in the face of opposition from Clinton and the Senate. "The president has stared down the Congress,"Emanuel said. "If that's happening in the eye of the storm, I don't know how one concludes the president's power is diminished."

Constitutional scholars lament that court rulings have narrowed the boundaries of presidential privacy and privilege and established that presidents could be forced into civil litigation during their terms. Secret Service agents sworn to take a bullet for the president now may have to testify against him.

The Lewinsky scandal has had "a much greater impact than many people realize," said University of Pennsylvania presidential scholar Mark Rozwell.

"This is the stage of a second term when a president should be looking toward establishing his legacy and capitalizing on his popularity," Rozwell said.

"Instead, this president and his administration are in a defensive mode trying to protect himself. Right now it's more about self preservation than creating an enduring legacy for the future."

RepublicanpollsterLindaDiVall said, "The mark of an excellent president is one who is willing to use his political capital to move significant issues. This president uses his capital only to save himself."

Many people who watch the political world were stunned that Clinton's approval ratings climbed rather than fell after the Lewinsky investigation was revealed.

"You look at his approval rating, you could make the case that this has helped his approval," said analyst Norman Ornstein of the American Enterprise Institute.

He summed up Americans' view this way: "We think he's done this stuff. Our sense of him as a moral character is low. But we think he's doing a good job as president. He's trying to focus on things that matter for us. This is not relevant for us. We just want this to go away." But, of course, it will go on for many more months. In the meantime, analysts are trying to assess the damage and what lies ahead for Clinton. The conventional wisdom is that Clinton will survive in some fashion.

"The bully pulpit authority of the president has been eroded by all of this," said Omstein.

University of Wisconsin historian Stanley Kutler, a specialist on Richard Nixon's fall from power, said, "These things cost. They cost the nation. I think this is a very, very crucial time with the Chinese, and the president is playing the game with one hand tied behind his Continued on page 28

US panel votes to cite Reno

By KEVIN GALVIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an extraordinary confrontation, a U.S. House of Representatives committee voted to cite Attorney General Janet Reno for contempt of Congress.

Republicans on the House Govemment Reform and Oversight Committee recommended to the full House on Thursday that Reno be held in contempt for resisting a committee subpoena ordering her to turn over reports recommending that she seek an independent counsel to investigate campaign fund raising.

Reno has called the subpoena "a form of political tampering that no prosecutor in America can accept," and argued that giving the committee the documents would damage the Justice Department's investigation.

The 24-19 vote was along party lines, with Independent Rep. Bernard Sanders of Vermont joining the Democrats in opposition.

The full House will not consider the issue before September, when lawmakers return from their August recess, said committee Chairman Dan Burton. "I hope that she complies so that we don't have to do that," he said.

Rep. Henry Waxman accused Burton of trying to force Reno to seek the appointment of an independent counsel to probe allegations that Clinton-Gore '96 and the Democratic National Committee violated campaign finance laws.

"Every member of this committee, Republican or Democrat, should be embarrassed by this strong-arm tactic," Waxman said.

Reno has said she expects to make a decision on seeking an independent counsel within three weeks. FBI Director Louis Freeh and Charles LaBella, former head of the department's campaign finance task force, wrote separate recommendations to Reno that she seek an independent counsel.

In testimony before the committee Tuesday, Freeh said he believed the fact that the people under scrutiny include White House officials and their associates should leave Reno no choice.

"I couldn't think of a stronger argument for an independent counsel," said Freeh, who made his recommendation nine months ago.

LaBella's report was filed July 16. But Freeh and LaBella sided with Reno on the question of turning over the reports, saying that divulging the details would damage the investigation and have a chilling effect on prosecutors elsewhere.

Nevertheless, Burton maintained that access to the reports was essential if the committee were to assess Reno's reluctance so far to seek a counsel. "The committee has a need to see these documents," he said.

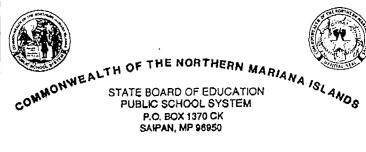

Sen. Fred Thompson, chairman of the Senate committee investigating fund raising, added his support. "The Burton committee stands on sound legal ground," he said.

Thompson noted that the committee had offered to let the Justice Department delete "all sensitive investigative matters" from the reports before turning them over.

If the House approves a contempt citation against Reno, she would not participate in the case. Deputy Attor-Continued on page 28

Japan gives China more flood aid

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government decided Friday to send flood-ravaged China additional financial support amounting to U.S. $500,000, the Foreign Ministry announced.

Additionally, Japan will also send tents, water purifiers and electricity generators totaling 49.4 million yen ($342,000), the ministry said.

Japan already provided $700,000 in financial support and material assistance worth 29.5 million yen ($204,000) last month, the ministry said.

The latest aid comes as the death toll from China's devastating summer flood season has officially passed 2,000.

The massive floods have affected, to varying degrees, 240 million people, or a fifth of the population, according to the Chinese government.

Chinese soldiers stationed in Jiujiang put steel tubes into flood waters to prevent sandbags in there from moving in Jiangxi province Saturday.

Vietnam devalues again

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) - Vietnam effectively devalued its currency by about 7 percent Friday, the fourth cut in the last year as the government continued its go-slow approach to avoid the precipitous plunges that have ravaged other Asian countries.

The devaluation was part of a two-step move that began late Thursday when the State Bank of Vietnam narrowed the trading band within which the dong can trade from 10 percent to 7 percent.

On Friday morning, the bank set the target rate at 12,998 dong to the dollar from 11,815 on Thursday, making the new floor 13,907. The dong has been constantly trading at the low mark of the trading band all year.

Immediate reaction was confusion. Analysts have been predicting another cut was imminent for months, but many still were caught off-balance by the state bank's moves.

One trader said just after trading opened Friday that the prices were "crazy" and that no one was quoting rates.

Japan student missing in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska(AP)-Police are searching for a 36-yearold Japanese student who arrived alone in Alaska in June and failed to arrive at her destination in Valdez on Prince William Sound.

Police say Hiroko Nemoto came to Anchorage on June 3, bought a train ticket to nearby Whittier and a ferry ticket to Valdez, 80 miles (130 kilometers) to the northeast.

Sgt. Tim Kasper said both tickets had been used but Nemoto never arrived at the Valdez hotel where she had reservations.

Nemoto is a Japanese student studying English at Michigan State University in East Lansing. She had just finished the spring semester and is 10 credits away from earning a bachelor's degree, East Lansing police say.

Nemoto's mother, who lives in Ibaraki east of Tokyo, contacted authorities in Michigan in July.

Detective Dave Vincent of the East Lansing department. said Nemoto, a straight-A student, did not appear to have a troubled life but may have been unhappy after receiving a B in a class.

Authorities say Nemoto bought a one-way ticket aboard Northwest Airlines, telling a friend she planned to stay in Alaska for a month.

Anchorage police are investigating the disappearance as a missing person but conceded that foul play or suicide are a possibility.

Gingrich begins visit to Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) House Speaker Newt Gingrich on Saturday began a weeklong survey of the Northern Ireland peace process, Ireland's economic success — and his own Irish roots.

Accompanied by four Democrat and two Republican lawmakers, the Georgia Republican arrived in Dublin Saturday, saying that it was important for American politicians "to demonstrate our joint commitment to the peace process."

He said he'd talked Friday with President Clinton about the efforts to forge a new cross-community government of Catholics and Protestants for Northern Ireland.

Two crewmen rescued after crash of F-14

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — An F-14 Tomcat fighter jet based at Oceana Naval Air Station in Virginia Beach crashed into the Atlantic Ocean on Saturday and both crewmen ejected and were rescued within 15 minutes, the Navy said.

The jet, assigned to Fighter Squadron 32 and operating from the aircraft carrier Enterprise, was on a routine training operation when the crash happened at about 3 p.m. approximately 62 miles northwest of the Virgin Islands.

The pilot and the radar intercept operator were in excellent condition aboard the Enterprise after being rescued by the destroyer Thorn, Navy Cmdr. Joe Gradisher said.

The cause of the accident has not been determined.

Gingrich on Sunday will meet senior government ministers. On Tuesday he plans to help build a Belfast house for a U.S.-funded project called Habitat for Humanity, which helps poor people construct their own homes in international trouble spots

He expects to meet David Trimble, the Protestant first minister of the new Assembly, and Gerry Adams, leader of the IRA-allied Sinn Fein party.

On Thursday and Friday, Gingrich heads to Ireland's remote northwest corner of Donegal, where his grandmother's O'Doherty clan and its genealogical research center are based.

"My grandmother always told me I had the gift of the blarney," he said. "This will definitely be the most interesting part of the visit for me."

Before leaving Ireland Aug. 15, Gingrich will visit factories of U.S. computer makers. The Irish Republic currently enjoys the best economic growth in western Europe.

FAA orders fuel tank inspections dered immediate inspection of the center fuel tanks of Boeing 747 jetliners after receiving reports of worn fuel line parts that could result in fire or explosion.

The airworthiness directive issued Friday directly affects about 300 planes registered in the United States. For the 800 registered elsewhere, most other national regulatory agencies and airplane operators follow the FAA's lead.

U.S. operators affected by the order include Continental Airlines, FedEx, Northwest Airlines, TWA, United Airlines and United Parcel Service.

The hazard is that sparks could be created when worn metal components collide inside the fuel-intake lines for two devices called override-jettisonpumps. The pumps feed fuel to a 747's four engines or, in an emergency, send fuel overboard.

Although the action is one of a series of directives resulting from the investigation of the 1996 explo-

SEATTLE (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration has or-sion of TWA Flight 800 off New York's Long Island, parts similar to those involved in Friday's directive were recovered after the Flight 800 crash and were not found to be worn, the FAA said. The National Transportation Safety Board has said the center fuel tank exploded on Flight 800, but it does not know what triggered the blast.

Boeing got two reports of the wom fuel line parts some months ago, said company spokeswoman Leslie Wilder, but laboratory testing "found no condition under which these components could have generated an ignition course."

Until inspections are performed, the FAA ordered operators of the jumbo jet to keep about 7,000 pounds of fuel in the center tanks to keep the parts submerged.

The safety order essentially makes mandatory urgent maintenance bulletins that Boeing sent 747 operators in April and May, and procedures for pilots the company suggested in June.

Colombia reels from rebel attacks

By JARED KOTLER

A huge rebel offensive in the run-up to Andres Pastrana's swearing in Friday as Colombia's president has demonstrated just how strong the leftist insurgents have become and how difficult it will be to make peace.

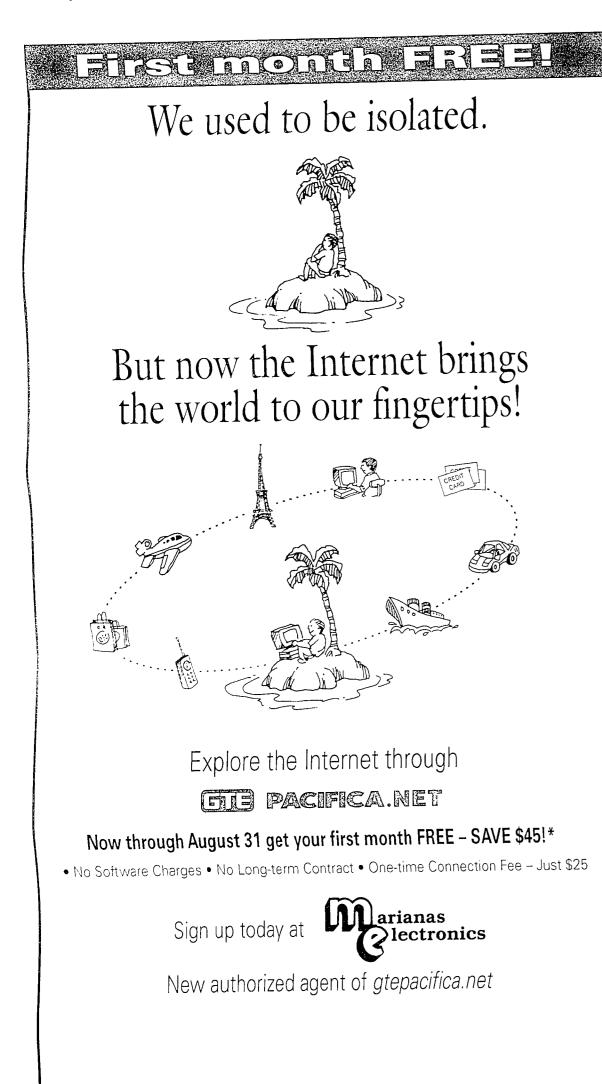

In fighting that tapered off

Wednesday, guerrillas from BOGOTA. Colombia (AP) — the two largest rebel factions set off bombs in cities and towns, attacked oil pipelines and a hydroelectric dam and hammered army and police bases in about half the country with rockets, mortars and grenades

The government said 68 soldiers and police were killed and 87 wounded by rebels of the 15,000-member Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, or FARC, and the 5.000-member National Liberation Army, or ELN. Another 46 security-force members were missing, it said. In the most devastating action, rebels overran an important southern anti-narcotics base in Miraflores, killing or dragging away dozens of soldiers and police as possible bargaining chips.

The rebel commander who organized the raid, Jorge Briceno, told reporters by twoway radio that guerrillas took more than 100 prisoners.

The onslaught was a rude welcome for Pastrana, who met in the jungles of Colombia last month with top FARC leaders and agreed to start peace talks with the 34-yearold rebel group by November.

"Sometimes you have to work for peace in the midst of war," an undeterred Pastrana said Wednesday.

Grim-faced army leaders said they repelled the offensive and called it a military and political failure for the rebels. Colombian military analysts disagreed.

"It's the largest disaster in the history of the insurgency, and it comes on top of an entire chain of disasters over the past three years," said Alfredo Rangel, a former presidential national security advisor.

In March, the rebels killed 62 soldiers and seized 43 others in an attack blamed by army leaders on intelligence failures of the same sort that apparently failed to anticipate this week's guerrilla actions.

The 120,000-member army has been unable to counter an increasingly bold and welltrained rebel force that has gained in wealth and firepower in part through stepped up revenues from ransom kidnappings and "war taxes" on cocaine production in rebel-controlled areas.

The guerrillas have gone in recent years from occasional ambushes of small groups of soldiers and simple harassment, to assaults by hundreds of rebels on heavily fortified army and police bases, such as the Miraflores base overrun on Monday.

The challenge for the peaceseeking Pastrana, observers say, will be to reform and strengthen an ineffective and demoralized military.

"The guerrillas at this moment have many more cards to negot ate with," said Rangel. "They have much more bargaining power for having carried out this demonstration of force."

Skydiver in rough landing dies

KAPOWSIN, Wash. (AP) — A 45-year-old skydiving instructor was killed and a woman diving with him was severely injured Saturday when their main chute failed to open.

The instructor and the woman, who was on her first skydive, were harnessed together when they jumped from a plane at 4,000 feet at Kapowsin Airport, said Curt Benson, Pierce County sheriff's spokesman.

Their main chute failed, and when the instructor tried to activate their reserve chute it did not fully open, Benson said.

Both victims, whose names were withheld, were taken to Harborview Medical Center in Seattle.

The woman, a 27-year-old New York state native, was in critical condition.

Nagasaki marks 53rd anniversary of atom bomb

TOKYO (AP) — In ceremonies marked by undiminished anger at the world'snuclearpowers, Nagasaki on Sundayremembered the atomic bomb that devastated this port city 53 year

"We cannot help but feel anger at the legitimization of nuclear weapons by those countries that possess them," Mayor Itcho Ito told thousands who gathered at the city's Peace Park to commemorate the anniver-

Japanese Prime Minister Keizo Obuchi criticized India and Pakistan for making the world a more dangerous place with their tit-for-tat nuclear tests in May.

"Our government strongly urges both the Indian and Pakistani governments to immediately stop nuclear tests and unconditionally conclude the Comprehensive TestBanTreaty," he said.

Under international pressure, Pakistan and India have said they are ready to engage in negotiations on a treaty on nuclear materials like plutonium and highly enriched uranium.

About 700 people attended an early morning service at Nagasaki's Urakami Cathedral, which was rebuilt along with much of the city after the atomic explosion in 1945.

Some 25,000 people joined in the Peace Park ceremony, where survivors read gruesome accounts of destruction and the suffering that followed the blast.

City residents recognized a moment of silence as Buddhist temples rang bells at 11:02 a.m. (0202 GMT), the exact time that the bomb exploded after a U.S. B-29 dropped it.

More than 60,000 people perished in the blast, which had an explosive force of 22 kilotons, or 22,000 tons of TNT.

The Nagasaki attack came three days after the United States dropped a smaller bomb on the city of Hiroshima in an effort to force the Japanese into surrender at the end of World War II.

More Indonesia troops pull out of East Timor

DILI, Indonesia (AP)---Indonesia withdrew 600 combat troops from East Timor on Saturday in the latest phase of a military pullback tied to Indonesia's plan to offer limited autonomy to the disputed territory.

The withdrawal comes amid renewed efforts to reach a peaceful solution to a long-standing conflict in the former Portuguese territory, which was invaded by Indonesia in 1975.

The pullout, which brings to 1,300 the number of troops withdrawn since last month, was ordered by Indonesian President B.J. Habibie, who has proposed the limited autonomy scheme.

The foreign ministers of Indonesia and Portugal held talks on the initiative at the United Nations in New York this week.

All sides say they are optimistic that a solution can be reached.

About 10,700 combat troops remain in East Timor and Col. Tono Suratman, Indonesian regimental military commander in the territory's capital of Dili, said some of them might be withdrawn in the future.

He said 300 marines and 300 elite army troops left the provincial capital on several navy ships Saturday. About 400 troops were withdrawn on July 28 and another300 on Monday.

East Timor has endured decades of guerrilla warfare since Indonesia took control of the territory, 1,200 miles east of Jakarta. A small band of rebels regularly attacks Indonesian troops, who have been accused of widespread human rights violations.

On Friday, armed forces commander Gen. Wiranto said Indonesian troops also would be pulled out of another troubled corner of Indonesia, the province of Aceh. Islamic separatists have been fighting for independence there and the army has also been accused of rights abuses there, including torture and arbitrary killings.

The U.S. has had this obligation since 1946, and now they're being called upon to fulfill their obligation. This issue needs to be resolved," Rivera said. "The fact that 50 years has passed doesn't make it any less important an issue."

Rivera explained that the U.S. has disputed certain elements in U.N. resolutions in the past, such as Chamorroself-determination,"which they characterized as a racial proposal that somehow disenfranchises U.S. citizens on Guam."

But he explained further, the group of people that is recognized to have this right to self-determination, the group that was here at the signing of downsizing workforce and "doing different kinds of packaging and special promotions."

"Some hotels are cutting back (work) hours from 48 to 36 a week," she said.

Hardest hit are the medium-scale hotels.

"Between the losses in the Korean market and the strength of the dollar against the yen, it's causing a drop," said Knight.

She added that the Japanese market "has dwindled a bit."

Knight said hotel operators are now pinning their hopes on the Marianas Visitors Authority's (MVA) "1999 Visit the Marianas" campaign plan.

According to MVA, the campaign intends to create a two-year promotional campaign that will "expose as many travel professionals and media companies to the CNMI as possible."

It is also aimed at increasing the number of tourist arrivals through what it dubbed as "niche marketing" of special events "designed to attract people of various ages, nationalities interests. The campaign plan was conceptualized in such a way that a special calendarofactivities and promotional materials will be created with them months "that will capitalize on existing local events."

Tourist arrivals started to dwindle during the last quarter of 1997 when a series of currency crises was rocking several Asian economies.

The currency devaluation, as well as the present economic crisis being felt in Japan, are believed to have caused the tourism industry's decline this year.

the Treaty of Paris, just happens to be nearly 100 percent Chamorro. This is the group that was recognized by the United Nations, and this group happens to be Chamorro. "Although it might look like a racial basis, it is not," he said.

"It's truly a politically-defined group who are the colonized and solely have the right to decolonize."

The resolution also calls for the U.S. to assist the government of Guam in achieving its political, economic and social goals; to return land, in cooperation with GovGuarn, to the people; and to "take all necessary measures to respond to the concerns of the Territorial Government with regard to the immigration issue."

Finally, the statement requests that the U.S. cooperate in promoting the sustainabledevelopmentofeconomic activities and enterprises by the Chamorro people of Guam, and especially in commercial fishing, agriculture and other such activities.

The special committee decided to treat Guam separately from other small, non-self-governing territories of the world last month, and appointed Papua New Guinea to lead discussions with the U.S. in producing a resolution on Guam's situation.

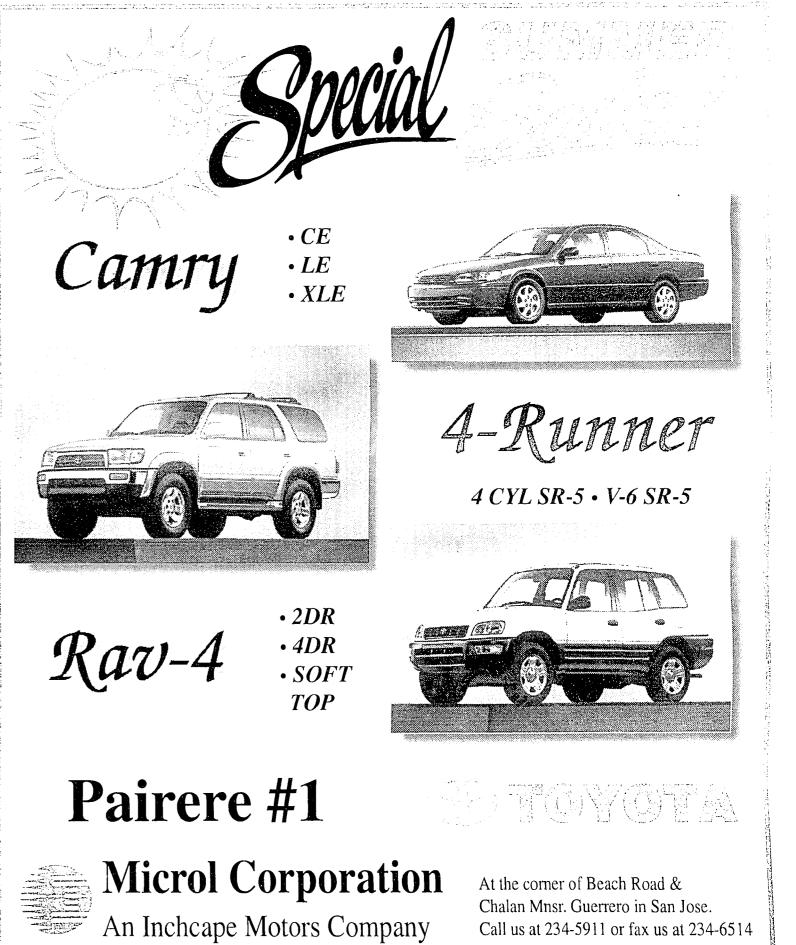

This action by the United Nations will obviously bring greater focus on the situation in Guam. This new approach by the U.N. mirrors the way that world body addresses other complex colonial problems where there are contested claims between the colonized people and settlers over who has the right to self-determination in the territory," Rivera said at the time. He noted that changes in the resolution on Guam should be anticipated

"In the past few years, the U.S. government has tried to reinvent what weinGuamhave called for. We have pointedly brought this to the attention of the U.N. as well as the situation in Guam with respect to U.S. immigration policies."

Some18 colonies remain on the U.N.'s list of non-self-governing territories, according to Rivera. Their administering powers include the U.S., France, Great Britain, Portugal, Indonesia, New Zealand, Spain and Argentina.

Another area that should be looked into, he added, is to subsidize the advertising of the ground tour operators.

Benavente said he has seen more than 10 public notices from employers who have been allowed to import new nonresident workers despite the recent enactment of Public Law 11-6 which freezes hiring of new guest workers

He said, however, that majority of the exemptions granted, so far, have been justified while some nonresident workers who have been recruited to the CNMI with which processes were not part of the moratorium law, were allowed by existing labor and immigration regulations.

The law was enacted to primarily maximize the internal labor pool of the CNMI, and allow foreign workers currently employed in the CNMI to transfer to another company, including change in job classifications and compensation.

Kabila joins peace talks

President of the Democratic Republic of the Congo Laurent Kabila leaves the Elephant Hills Hotel in Zimbabwean resort town of Victoria Falls Saturday after six hours of inconclusive talks on the crisis in the Great Lakes region. AP

By IAN STEWART

KINSHASA, Congo (AP) - Despite a meeting between their leaders, Congo and its eastern neighbor Rwanda show no signs of ending fighting near their border.

Congo'sPresidentLaurentKabila accuses the Tutsi-led Rwandan government of masterminding an uprising in the eastern Kivu re-

Rwanda repeatedly has denied ' it was behind Congo's uprising and said Kabila was trying to divert attention from disenchantment with his government.

Kabila sat down Saturday in Victoria Falls, Zimbabwe, with his Rwandan adversary, President Pasteur Bizimungu, to try to find a peaceful end to growing hostilities. They were joined by five other regional leaders.

But prospects for a solution emerging from the talks appeared dim. Congo continued to broadcast accusations against Rwanda on Saturday, enlisted fresh army recruits and detained ethnic Tutsis on suspicion of treason.

On his return to the Rwandan capital Kigali, the Rwandan leader accused Kabila of trying to establish a pretext to attack Rwanda and threatened Congo with a preemptive strike.

attack first," Bizimungu told The Associated Press.

Bizimungu said Rwanda had credible evidence of Kabila's training of at least 10,000 former Hutu soldiers and militiamen in the southern city of Kamina, and that he planned to use them against Rwanda.

The rebels were responsible for the 1994 genocide of more than 500,000 minority Tutsis and politically moderate Hutus. The killing ended when Tutsi-ledrebelswonpowerinRwanda in July 1994, sending the former Hutu government across the border into Congo.

Bizimungu again rejected Kabila's charges that 2,000 Rwandan troops were fighting alongside Congolese

Tutsis and advancing from the east of the country. Several key cities, including Goma and Bukavu, are already in the hands of rebel Tutsis. "What is happening in Congo is not our responsibility. Bizimungu said, "Kabila accused us of a building a Tutsi empire ... but what is happening is that he is paying the price for mismanaging the country.

Congo's government has been repeatedly broadcasting statements by Kabila declaring there is no room to bargain with Rwanda.

"There is nothing to negotiate in Zimbabwe except the immediate withdrawal of Rwandan troops," Kabila was quoted as saying on state radio.

In Congo's capital Kinshasa, hundreds of unemployed men and women turned out at a military base to enlist in the army, vowing to crush the rebellion and take the war to Rwanda.

"We're determined to protect our country," said one young woman who refused to give her name."If they give us armstoday, we are ready to go all the way to Rwanda.

The rebellious Rwandan soldiers and Congolese Tutsi fighters --- called Banyamulenge _ backed "We will not wait for Congo to Kabila last year in his ouster of dictator Mobutu Sese Seko, but they have since grown disaffected.

Among other things, the fighters accuse Kabila of failing to contain Rwandan Hutu rebels launching cross-border attacks from inside

The Banyamulenge have close ethnic ties with the Tutsis, who now govern Rwanda

They want to create a Tutsi empire," Kabila said in another statement on state-controlled Voice of the People radio, "But are we Congolese prepared to accept the challenge of a toad which wants to swallow an elephant?"

The rebel Tutsi fighters also appeared to ignore diplomatic efforts to end the conflict and vowed to push toward the capital of Kinshasa.

The rebels announced a new set of argets in western Congo, pledging to push inland from their Atlantic coastline stronghold of Muanda to Boma, within 150 miles (250 kms) southwest of the capital.

With sabers rattling, several European countries and the United States have ordered their non-essential embassy employees out of Congo. The United States has urged all Americans to leave the country.

With the hostilities mounting, hundreds, perhaps thousands, of ethnic Tutsis and other citizens have been rounded up by the police in Congo, while troops loyal to Kabila looted their shops, the U.N. human rights agency said

The revenge attacks on Tutsis reflecta growing instability in Kinshasa and elsewhere in Congo amid displeasure with Kabila's rule, which critics say is marked by comption and mismanagement.

trated a late rally to the Bears 20-yard line. But Nicolicchia came up with the cake topping by picking off Brown to seal the victory.

"Brown is their threat and we practiced all week long just for Brown; not Banks, not anybody else, just Brown, and we controlled him and shut him out," Nicolicchia said.

"They were picking on our defensive right side when they were passing the ball. I just played back to where they kept throwing it and sure enough. The ball was going back into the end zone, but the ball was low and I got to get it."

Jones, Haile Gebrselassie, Charity Opara, Bryan Bronson and Hicham El Guerrouj are still alive for the bonus

On a warm night on the French Riviera, there were several season bests set.

Jones stayed unbeaten in the women's 100, winning in 10.72, only .01 second off her season's world

Christine Arron of France, who had run 10.85 earlier this week, was a well-beaten seventh in 11.19.

"I was motivated because I knew there were some competitors who were fast," Jones said. "But I think I cango faster than 10.70 in the coming weeks."

The next Golden League meet is at Zurich, Switzerland, on Wednesday. "The track is so fast there I think I can beat my personal best," Jones

Only Florence Griffith Joyner has gone under 10.70, with her world record at 10.49. Wilson Kipketer opened his season with a 1:43.74 victory in the 800 meters

It was his first race in nearly 11 months after contracting malaria in January

"After what happened this winter, I'mveryhappytorunagain,"Kipketer aid. "After being off for so long, it" nice to start with 1:43."

Kipketer, a Kenyan-born Dane, had a superb 1997. He broke the world indoor record twice in Paris in March then bettered the world outdoorrecord twice, bringing it down to 1 minute, 41.11 seconds in Cologne after a 1:41.24 in Zurich.

In the women's 400 hurdles, Kim Batten ran 52.74, only 13 seconds off her world record and equal to the third-best ever.

"I ran a great race," Batten said. "All the right things happened at the right time.

off of receiver Miguel Saucedo and into the hands of Miller defensive tackle Charles Churchill at the Cardinals22-yardline.ThatsetupWegner's 38-yard field goal to put the Bears ahead 3-0.

Wegner added his second field goal as time ran out in the first quarter with a 27-yard chip shot.

PacSports racked up 292 offensive yards, as compared to Miller's 132 vards

Next for the Bears is the thankless task of facing the explosive Angels. who has beaten them twice during the regular season. Miller will work this week in stopping leading rusher Scott Persing

"We're going to have to keep Persing in check, if that's possible," defensive end Gerald Bennett said "If it is, this defense can do it. That's the way I feel.

"Whoever we line up against, we come at them hard and that's the way we're going to continue to play.'

As for the weather, Bennett is hoping for the Bears favorite condition rain. That's the conditions of their victory over the Angels in last year's semifinals

"I like the rain, I like Bear ball. We want to slow Persing down."

By Tony Celis For the Variety

THREE-PEATCHAMPS. No, its not a flashback of the Chicago Bulls. It occurred right here in Saipan. To be precise, it happened Saturday afternoon at the Susupe softball field. The Financial Institution Softball Co-ed League, or the Bank League as it is more commonly known, came to its conclusionastheBankofGuam(BOG) made good on its promise, but not after the Union Bank of Saipan (UB) gave them a run for bragging rights. In the best-of-three triple header, BOG needed only two games to prove they are still the best team.

In the heat of Saturday afternoon BOG blazed the scoreboard, 14-3 in an easy win over UB in the first game. The second game would not be so easily won. Union Bank held BOG to only two runs going into the third inning. In the top of third, UB's Carmen Quitugua caught a blistering throw from third baseman lead. But the scrappy Kosrae team didn't give up. With nine minutes on the clock, Kosrae narrowed the lead to 55-43. Moments later, Guam starter Mike Lee was assessed a technical foul for kicking Kosrae forward Paul Hein in the head after the two had jostled on the floor for a loose ball.

Kosrae made its free throws and continued to narrow the lead to 57-50, as a boisterous crowd loudly booed Guam and cheered on the smaller Kosraen team

Guam, behind the clutch shooting of Lee (who ended with 11 points) and Joey Cepeda, who scored six of his eight points in the final three minutes, pushed the score back up to win by 11, 67-56, the lowest margin of victory for Guam in the games.

After the game, Kosrae coach Paul Hadik commented that his respect for the Guam team had gone down during the game. "I was unhappy with their tactics," he said.

"There were a lot of cheap shots that happened after Guam went ahead. What's the point? There weren't any bad calls to be upset about. It leaves a bitter taste."

But, Hadik added, "I'm very happy with the play of our team. We had a definite game plan - slow the ball down, don't run with them. We held Guam to just 67 points.

Saturday morning, as Micro Games technical officials were deciding to suspend Lee and Pinaula from participation in the gold medal game. Pohnpei basketball coach Aurelio Jacob shook his head and described the Guam team's behavior as "terrible Guam coach Paul Shimizu said that the players shouldn't have been suspended because the rules call for suspensions only for repeated acts of unsportsmanlike behavior. He said that control of the game was in the hands of the officials, and that at times the game became too physical.

"The officials are in charge of protecting the players," he said. "The coach's job is to help the players execute on the court."

Micro Games tournament director Bill Keldermans, explaining the decision to suspend the two Guam players, said this type of unsportsmanlike behavior was totally unacceptable and would not be condoned at Games intended to promote good will and fair competition among the islands.

The championship game Saturday between Guam and Pohnpeiwas anticlimatic. A subdued Guam squad, minus the two suspended players, didn't talk to the referees or other players. Instead, they concentrated on the game, playing their brand of mented, "we tried our best but it wa really hot out there today.'

Jeff Diaz of BOG gave credit to the opposition. "UB played well today but, the odds (of winning) were with us, a lot of our players are veterans of the game, playing in different leagues throughout the year Win or loose we met the objective. and that is to get to know the other bank employees and to extend sense of goodwill, to get to know each other."

Marcy Tomokane, manager of BOG was also out there playing. keeping a keen eye on the pitch swing, run, out-at-first. "At work our employes have a good sense of teamwork which spills unto the ballpark, I'm really proud of them." said Tomokane.

As BOG holds onto their third straight title, the fans will have to wait another year for a possible, four-peat. So come out to support the bank league, and show your interest (pun intended).

fast-break basketball which easily propelled them past the smaller Pohnpei squad, this time by a margin of 88-65.

Guam's Mike Swaney and Danny Cepeda each scored 14 points to lead Guam to the gold medal, while Pohnpei's Burt Weilbacher led his team with 15.

The Guam team's unsportsmanlike play and two suspensions may, however, have distracted attention away from a key development: that beating Guam --- which has dominated men's basketball, taking the gold in the last three Micro Games ---is no longer an unattainable goal for the smaller islands of Micronesia.

All of the teams in the islands are playing at a higher than ever level of basketball. Despite a height disadvantage, two teams, Kosrae and the Marshall Islands, played Guam head-to-head in games that weren't decided until the final minutes.

It's never happened before in Micro Games competition. But it suggests - as does Palau's victory over Guam in the women's basketball championship game Saturday in Koror --- that Guam will have an increasingly difficult time holding onto the gold in future competitions.

Guam ended the half with a 39-23

"We put them in the hole all night and they couldn't get going," Angels head coach Ivan Shiroma said. "I was very happy with the special teams."

Bill Thomas' booming kickoffs and a relentless Angels defense kept Pepsideepinitsownterritorythroughout the first half.

In the meantime, Mobil's offense took advantage of the short field and cranked up 24 points in the first half 17 coming in the second quarter.

League-leading rusher Scott Persing capped off an 11-play drive with a two-yard run to give Mobil a 7-6 lead. Persing added a 22-yard score in the second quarter that made it 18-6. Persing finished with 78 yards on 11 carries all coming in the first half as he rested the entire second half.

Preceding Persing's second score was a Bill Thomas 27-yard field goal and a safety by defensive end Chuck "Psycho" Criswell, who rushed in untouched and blocked punter Bill

Ada's kick in the end zone. Sean McCov's one-yard or back sneak made it 24-6 right before halftime. McCoy hooked up with tight end Craig Cleland with a perfect pass in the corner of the end zone, good enough for 16 yards to make it 30-6 early in the third quarter.

Pepsi's pass protection was brittle all night, allowing Mobil defenders to pound rookie quarterback Fejeran. Late in the third quarter, Fejeran had to leave the game with an injured hand and was replaced by linebacker Bill Ada.

"I told the coach before the game that I'll play any position if it will help the team to win." Ada said. "I'm going to play all the way and give it my all, not like some quitters."

Adaplayed admirably, even though it seemed odd that a linebacker was playing quarterback (Ada did play some OB for the Father Duenas Friars in high school).

In the fourth, Ada marched the Giants all the way to the Angels two yard line when cornerback Mike Willess killed any hopes of a comeback with a 99-yard interception return down the left sidelines.

"If we had put it together, maybe it would've been a better game for the fans," Pepsi defensive captain Ryan Rios said. "There was no motivation.

There was no commitment. We just showed up and played football. We didn't set goals to win."

For the Angels, it was a big relief, especially after the final three sub-par games of the regular season. Now they've got their confidence back heading into the biggest game of the year.

"We're still missing a couple more players," Shiroma said. "But once we get the full team, and they'll be out for the championship, then I'll be pretty confident."

Mobil will also have the pleasure of having McCoy's favorite receiver - Bobby Degregorio - come back to play in the championship game.

Micro Games Round-up:

More NMI medals as Palau '98 ends

By Michael Wright Variety News Staff

A busy final weekend of competition at the 1998 Micronesian Games in Palau has seen the CNMI continue to collect medals in a number of events.

Track & Field

Fee'ea Talamemot of the CNMI threw the shot put 14.37 meters to break an eight-year-old Micro. Games record and get the gold. Rene Delamar of Guam took silver with a toss of 14.26 meters, while Palau's Jersey Ivar claimed the bronze medal.

The CNMI's Vanessa Mobel came close to breaking a Micronesian Games record in women's javelin. Her throw of 32.83 meters was just short of the 1994 record toss of 32.98 meters. Still, Mobel did walk away with a gold medal, while CNMI teammate Emiliana Quitugua took silver. Sylvia Akapito of Chuuk earned the bronze.

Swimming

Xenavee Pangelinan of the CNMI won the women's 100 meter breaststroke on Friday with a time of 1:18:90, while teammate Jennifer Pierce got the silver. Guam's Alison Aglubat finished third. Justin Pierce's time of 2:25:11 was good enough for CNMI gold in the men's 200 meter breaststroke. David Palacios got the silver in the event, while Guam's Daniel King collected the bronze.

The CNMI women easily won the 400 meterrelay with a time of 4:17:92. Guam was a distant second (4:40:57) while the Marshalls took the bronze medal.

Guam's Musashi Flores (25.3) barely edged out David Palacios (25.37) in the 50 meter butterfly, while Collin Shields of the Marshalls placed third. Flores also struck gold in the men's 50 meter freestyle event with a time of 27.43, squeaking by the CNMI's Jacoby Winkfield (27.51) and Shields (28.13).

Boldon, Jones win at Herculis meet

Audra Winkfield earned a bronze medal in the women's 400 meter freestyle. Palau's Nicole Hayes took the gold, while Andrea Lindborg of the Marshalls finished second. Tennis

The CNMI Men's Tennis team will be taking home some gold in '98 too. Peter Sinclair found himself playing teammate Jeff Race in the gold medal final in singles competition, and went on to win the gold medal. Race got nice consolation prizes in the silver medal, and the knowledge his small team swung big rackets in Palau.

It is Race's second silver for the Games, as he and Sinclair lost to Guam's Luan Nguyen and Mark Arakawa (6-4, 6-4) in men's doubles competition.

Palau women upset Guam to win the Basketball Gold

By Giff Johnson For the Variety

KOROR, Palau --- An inspired Palau women's basketball team, with more than 1,000 fans cheering them on, used a devastating fast break and good shot selection to take the gold medal from a taller Guam team at the Micronesian Games Saturday night in Koror.

After holding a slim 39-33 half time lead, Palau routed Guam 88-69. Palau's victory was the first time a Palau team has defeated GuaminbasketballinMicroGames play.

But it was the play of 17 year old Stephanie Ngirchoimei - who passed behind her back to set up teammates' layups, drove the length of the court for layups, popped 20 foot jump shots and made clutch free throws in the final minutes to seal the win - who led Palau to victory.

Ngirchoimei did everything and then some as she scored 25 points, and most importantly controlled the ball to help her team fend off a second half comeback by Guam.

Despite playing most of the second half with four fouls, Ngirchoimei didn't let up and neither did her teammates Saime Ngirausui and Jubilee Kuartei who each scored 17 points. Guam was led by Michelle Sison with 17 and Theresa Sison who scored 12.

Ngirchoimei, who just two months ago graduated from Palau High School and also played on the Palau volleyball team that took the silver medal behind Guam was nothing less than spectacular in the gold medal game.

Guam gets Men's Gold, 'bad behavior' award

By Giff Johnson

For the Variety

KOROR, Palau --- The Guammen's basketball team won the gold medal, as predicted, but didn't win any awards for good behavior during the just concluded Micronesian Games in Palau.

Following a close semi-final victory over Kosrae Friday night in Koror, two of Guam's starting players were disqualified from participation in the gold medal game Saturday for unsportsmanlike actions in the Kosrae game.

Many coaches and spectators expressed anger at the behavior of Guam players, while even some Guam fans said Saturday that they were embarrassed by the on-court actions of the Guam players that led to the two suspensions. Coaches and players had complained repeatedly during the week about unnecessarily rough and unsportsmanlike play of some Guam basketball players.

Guam romped to early victories over Nauru, 123-48, and the Northern Marianas 98-51. Also in the first round, it beat Pohnpei handily 107-73. But a defensive minded Marshall Islands team was the first to give the bigger Guam team a challenge, holding Guam to a 43-33 halftime lead, and then closing the gap to just four points with about five minutes remaining in the game, before Guam captured the game 88-73.

For a Guam team that blew out the competition in 1994, breezing through the last Micro Games in Guam with barely a challenge to win gold, the Marshalls game was unprecedented in Micro Games history.

Kosrae, which came in second in its pool, took on Guam Friday,

Angels pound Giants in MFL

By PATRICK LUJAN

For the Variety

THEY looked like the Angels of old. At least the Angels of the first five games of the 1998 Miller Football League.

The Hal's Mobil Angels dusted off their late-season rust and shined like the dominating team of weeks past in pounding last year's champion Pepsi Giants 36-6 Friday night at the Wettengel Field in MFL playoff action.

The Angels advance to the championship game on Saturday against the winner of the PacSports Cardinals/Miller Bears semifinals. After giving way to a 75-yard scoring pass from Pepsi's Eric Fejeran to Kevin Topasna on the Giants first play of the game, the Angels defense set up their Black Wall, not allowing another point. Mobil's special teams also played a big part of the game, leaving the Giants with poor field position time and time again.
