THE DAILY HERALD.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1887.

BE THOROUGH.

An organized protest from the taxpayers against neglect on the part of the Road Supervisor to mend the public ways is an occurrence which the advertiser of yesterday morning thinks would be unfortunate, and to which our genial contemporary is opposed. While we would not object very strenuously to organized attacks upon any neglect of public interest, we cannot say that we are in favor of the taxpayers hurling themselves against the Road Supervisor. It would be organizing too big a hunt for very small game. The objection to such a movement would not be theoretical or sentimental, but utilitarian. It would be foolish policy for a householder to expend the price of a new residence in making even handsome external repairs on a rickety old fabric of which the sills and corner posts had been carried away by ants. The wiser course would be to tear down the worthless structure and build anew. And, on the same principle, it would be injudicious on the part of taxpayers to expend their energies on a paltry Road Supervisor when the sills and corner posts of the political fabric are in the last stages of decomposition. The Legislature, we take it, is the framework on which the political structure depends. There is where the organized efforts of the taxpayers are needed to build with new and sound timbers. Until the Legislature is reconstructed and reconstituted, a movement towards the redress of grievances that might reach to every Road Supervisor in the Kingdom would be only a repetition of the old story of the mountain laboring and bringing forth a mouse. We believe in organized and concentrated measures on the part of taxpayers to secure proper representation in the Legislative Assembly. Anything short of such a consummation is only tinkering at politics. If the scattered elements of public opinion can be combined into a mass of resistance against the election of a body of hireling representatives, the rectification of minor abuses will follow as a natural sequence. Until the Legislature is purged of Road Supervisors, Tax Collectors, Tax Assessors, petty District Judges, and salaried officials of every other grade—from Governor to Poundkeeper—taxpayers may as well foot their bills as best they can, and hold their peace. Their murmurings and oburgations may as well be aimed at the head of Punchbowl as at the heads of state affairs. Let Hawaii have an independent Legislature, the members of which are responsible only to their constituents, and the multiplying and accumulating abuses in public affairs will be forthwith reduced to a minimum.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

In its effort to raise funds for making improvements at its shooting range, including accommodation for the public on occasions of competitions, the Hawaiian Rifle Association deserves the most liberal aid that the community can afford. From a very small nucleus the organization has grown, through the zealous endeavors of its promoters and the merits of its object, to be one of the most vigorous of national institutions. Its shooting range will naturally be one of the chief attractions of the city to military and naval visitors, and, if conveniences for spending a few hours and viewing matches there are provided, it might be a favorite resort for outing parties of residents and when events come off at the ranges. New Orleans.

men, it has been suggested to us that the diplomatic and consular corps might be solicited, with all propriety, to use their kind offices in helping the Association in such ways as may be available to them. Marksmanship is a manly sport to which the Herald lately drew especial attention, recommending it as worthy of being taken up by the young men of the whole country. The public, if it agrees with that recommendation, as probably for the most part it does, should act up to its opinion on the present occasion, when the Hawaiian Rifle Association is making a praiseworthy endeavor to procure means for increasing its own effectiveness as a national institution, as well as providing facilities for residents and visitors to enjoy themselves at the ranges, either by shooting at the targets or watching the sport and breathing the pure suburban air.

The Hotel Concert.

Mr. Bartlett had the Hawaiian Hotel front brilliantly illuminated with colored lanterns, in addition to the electric luminary, on the occasion of the concert by the Hawaiian Quintet Club last night. There was a goodly attendance of the public, and all thoroughly appreciated the public spirit that dictated the very pleasant entertainment. After going through a delightful programme on the front veranda, the musicians repaired to the billiard room, where they sang and played till closing time. The King was present and after the public concert went down to the private billiard room, where he watched the sport on the green baize for the rest of the evening.

The Lime-Kiln Club.

"Ar Brudder Invisible Jackson in de hall to-night?" blandly queried the president as the meeting opened. Invisible was visible. He was back by the stove, and had his shoes off to tickle his chilblains. After a little delay he made his way to the upper end of the hall and the president continued: "Brudder Jackson, the report has come to me dat you are tellin' fortunes in your neighborhood fur de small sum of two bits a posson."

"Yes, sah, I've been tellin' a few."

"As you hev bin a member of dis club fur de las' two y'ars you mus' be aware of de fact dat fortune-tellin', sellin' dream books an' all dat sort of nonsense am agin our rules. A posson who sots out to hev his future predicted am soft in de head; de posson who takes money to predict it am a knave. I shall suspend you from membership fur three months, an' if we h'ar dat you am still in de swindlin' business you will be expelled for good. You kin put on your hat an' go."

Invisible was badly broken up, and there were tears in his eyes as he passed out. When he had gone the president continued: "I want to say to dis large, cultivated and refined audience, dat de fate of Invisible Jackson will be de fate of any odder member who am found so far off his balance as to be runnin' arter fortune-tellers, no matter how cheap deir prices. My experience in dis world has taught me:

1. If dar was anything in good dreams I'd hav bin an angel long ago.
2. If dar was anything in bad ones, I'd hev bin in de odder place afore I was twenty years old.
3. It am werry pleasant to be told dat you am gwine to fall heir to great riches, but dat doan buy 'taters nor pay rent.
4. Only sich men as hate work, 'an only sich wimin as want an excuse to leave home believe in fortune-tellin'.
5. If it am predicted dat a man am gwine to hev a great piece of luck, he'll sot down in some saloon to wait for it.
6. If it am predicted dat he am gwine to have a great deal of trouble, he'll go home an' blame his wife an' lick his children.

"I warn you to let de whole bizness alone. A dollar a day an' a steady job will pan out mo' money in six months dan all de fortune-tellers in de world kin bring ye in fifty y'ars. Dar am just as many good dreams as bad, an' none of 'em am wort de powder to blow up an ole hoss. Signs might hev meant sunthin' a thousand y'ars ago, but dem am played out now. If you h'ar de 'death-tick' in a wall it's just as much a sign dat you am gwine to find a diamond pin in de road as it ar' dat some of de fam'ly ar' gwine to die afore de y'ar is out. Let us now pick up de abnormal bizness of de meetin'."

LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius H. Smith were given a surprise in party Monday night.

Col. and Mrs. Judd and son left for Kauai yesterday by the steamer Mikahala.

Inmates of the Queen's Hospital will have the benefit of music from the R. H. band this afternoon.

The W. G. Hall brought news of great volumes of smoke rolling up from the great volcano of Kilauea.

Mr. J. Vierra took his cosmorama away by the steamer Kinau yesterday, to give exhibitions on the other islands.

Three soldiers of Fort Street—Mr. Dillingham, Mr. Lewers and Mr. Tregloan—went off to the other islands yesterday.

The Honolulu Rifles will develop from a company into a battalion at their meeting to-morrow night. There is now a membership of about one hundred.

A half truth in the Court items of the Government Gazette conceals honor from the ladies to whom it is due, with regard to the presentation of the flag to the Honolulu Rifles.

The report of the "Lime-Kill Club" in to-day's issue is copied by request, for the benefit or the shame of all, high or low, who are abetting the fortune-telling humbug in Honolulu.

Rev. J. M. Silver left by the Mikahala last evening for Lihue, Kauai, to take charge of the new Episcopal church there. Bishop Willis was at the steamer to see the curate off.

One case remanded and the trial of Captain Phillips for violating immigration ordinances, reported elsewhere, constituted the business despatched at the Police Court yesterday.

The Amateur Minstrels cleared about $800 by their three concerts. The doctors lost about $8,000 by them, from the people laughing away their ailments in the Opera House.

Two Chinese were locked up on a charge of gaming yesterday afternoon. Their friends came to bail them out, but went away crestfallen on the information that a $500 bond would be necessary.

The Hawaiians and Japanese are reported to be very appreciative of the accommodation for evening literary and recreative entertainment provided for them at the Queen Emma building. Their rooms are more extensively patronized, for the most part, than are those of the senior V. M. C. A. on Hotel street.

V. Estall, who lately worked for Mr. J. A. McKenzie, plumber, was arrested yesterday by Officer Akau on a warrant charging him with obtaining money under false pretences. Several prominent ladies are among the witnesses subpoenaed against him. It is said that he raked in a good deal of coin about town, much of it by an unauthorized use of Mr. McKenzie's name.

Among the Chinese.

A magic lantern exhibition and sale of refreshments drew a large crowd to the Chinese Y. M. C. A. last evening. Mr. F. W. Damon showed a series of fine pictures, explaining each in English as he went along, while Mr. Loi Cheung interpreted. The pictures comprised scenes and objects in both sacred and profane ancient history, such as the pyramids, the city of Jerusalem and the star of Bethlehem; also a number of Chinese views.

Questions were asked from time to time of the boys on the historical facts connected with some of the pictures, and were promptly and correctly answered. An intermission was called mid-way in the programme, when those who were able and disposed adjourned to the lower flat and invested in ice-cream, soda water, and other light refreshments. An admission fee was levied, but it seemed to have had no effect in thinning the audience. The proceeds of the entertainment go to liquidate the debt on the building, the contributions of last year having been checked by the fire. The characteristic stolidity of the Chinese on this occasion must have been left outside. All appeared to take part in the proceedings with as much enthusiasm as is customary among New Englanders at a church fair. Mr. and Mrs. Damon and their allies have certainly evoked among the Chinese a large amount of interest in the mission work in which they are engaged.

SUPREME COURT.

AT CHAMBERS.

The writ of habeas corpus issued on Monday afternoon was returnable at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, when Captain Tripp appeared with his prisoner, Manuel Brito, in accordance with the terms of the writ. Mr. Peterson, Deputy Attorney General, with Mr. Hatch, appeared for the crown, and Mr. Kinney for the applicant. The Deputy Attorney General asked for time to answer, the writ not having been placed in his hands until a short time before the opening of the Court. The hearing was postponed to 1:30 p. m. The Court, on re-opening in the afternoon, was addressed by the Deputy Attorney General showing that the applicant, Brito, was legally imprisoned under section 4 of the opium law of 1886.

Mr. Kinney, counsel for Brito, took the ground that the sentence was illegal inasmuch as the charge is not that of "furnishing or selling" opium and that there is nothing in section 4 about "having opium unlawfully in possession," which was the specific charge on which the prisoner was convicted, and further, that the reference in section 4 to the provisions of section 3 can be construed in no way other than that it means nothing, and that no more sense can be made out of it than if it referred to the Lord's Prayer or to the calendar on the desk.

Mr. Hatch, on behalf the Crown, held that the validity of the law was not a proper question to be raised under a habeas corpus process, nor could it be considered in this Court. To this the counsel for the prisoner replied that he did not ask for a decision on the validity of the law. The question simply was: Does the having opium in possession constitute a criminal offense under section 4 of the law? After some further argument by counsel, the decision of the Court was reserved.

A Runaway and Rescue.

Mr. E. G. Schumann's horse took it in his head last evening to make some work for the Hawaiian Carriage Company's repair shop, not waiting to reflect that, while his master would as a general rule grow richer the more work that place got, it made some difference whose carriage was wrecked. The horse bolted down Queen street into Fort, and was making straight for a solid phalanx of about thirty carriages on the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company's wharf, when Mr. Sam. Macy, hack inspector, rushed forth to head off the flying animal. Suddenly wheeling to the left, the horse dashed up the Esplanade past another group of carriages at Wilder's Steamship wharf, then again to the left, cutting across lots to King street. A native on horseback there got ahead of the runaway, riding in advance until the latter slowed down a little. Then he turned quickly and caught the fugitive horse by the bridle, bringing it to a standstill. The buggy was not damaged a bit by its long and lively run.

Shipping Notes.

Steamer W. G. Hall arrived on time yesterday, reporting fine weather on the trip. She brought 4,073 bags sugar, 73 bags awa, 6 bags coffee, 279 hides, 87 packages sundries, 1 horse, 11 hogs and 1 vacuum pan.

All the steamers announced to sail yesterday took their departure on time, except the Kilauea Hou, which was detained until some time to-day.

Schooner Canute brought 3,300 bags sugar; Waioli, 1,100; Waimalu, 1,400.

The vacuum pan brought by the W. G. Hall from Honolulu yesterday will be shipped to Pahuau by the Kilauea Hou to-day.

Unless some vessels arrive before the first of the week, the harbor will be completely bare of foreign shipping until something does arrive.

The Hawaiian bark Kalakaua will be sold by the Marshal on Saturday, April 9th.

Schooner Anna, Williams master, arrived at Kahului, Maui, on March 27th, 21 days from San Francisco. Consignees: Wing Wo Tai Co., C. H. Dickey, A. F. Hopke, C. Olsen. Bark Ferris S. Thompson, Potter master, arrived at Kahului on the 28th, 19 days from San Francisco, with 200 tons of coal to Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company.

SIDE LIGHTS.

Mr. Rosenthal's furniture is to be sold at ten to-day.

Mr. Levey sells Mossman's corner building at noon to-day.

THE ALLIE ROWE CASE.

Capt. Phillips Found Guilty of Breaking Immigration Rules and Fined One Hundred Dollars.

After another case had been disposed of in the Police Court yesterday morning, Capt. John Phillips, master of the brig Allie Rowe, was brought up on remand from the 22nd inst., charged with landing immigrants contrary to the Board of Immigration ordinance dated January 14th, 1887, issued in pursuance of various acts of the Legislature. The Attorney General, Hon. A. Rosa, prosecuted, and Smith, Thurston & Kinney appeared for the defense.

Mr. Thurston, of counsel for the defense, asked for the charge to be made more definite, whereupon the Attorney General specified sections 1, 2 and 3 of the ordinance in question, as having been more particularly traversed by the defendant.

W. O. Atwater, Secretary of the Board of Immigration, was called. Correspondence between the Pacific Navigation Co.'s President, Mr. A. F. Cooke, and the witness, being a letter from the former and reply from the latter, were read, and witness proceeded to say that no permission had been granted to Captain Phillips, the Pacific Navigation Company or the brig Allie Rowe up to March 14th and 15th.

Cross-examined: Had charge of landing of laborers; had no communication except those letters; Mr. Cooke, between the first and second letter, had told him he had seen Mr. Gibson, and it would be all right; Mr. Cooke telephoned him on the 13th, and in response to the message, he went to the Pacific Navigation Company's office; defendant said he had about 105 men, and a total of 125 people altogether (from the South Seas); witness told Mr. Cooke that officially he had nothing to do with the immigrants, as it was a private enterprise; witness did not inform the Board of Immigration in regard to the Allie Rowe.

Mr. A. Frank Cooke, President of the Pacific Navigation Company, gave evidence of his agency of the Allie Rowe, and the number and disposition of the laborers among the plantations on different islands. The captain, plantation agents, and Mr. Gulick attended to the acknowledgments of contracts; he entered passengers by the vessel at the Custom House; 45 of them went to plantations on the 14th, and balance on the 15th instant; Mr. Gibson promised to send witness a letter recognizing the voyage of the Allie Rowe, but after keeping the vessel waiting two days without getting such recognition or permission, he cleared the vessel (in September last), and let her go; the laborers were from the New Hebrides; the agents of the plantations paid him $105 each.

Cross-examined: Thought Mr. Gibson said he would have to see the Board, but it would be all right; he said the Government could not be to any expense, and witness told him there would be no expense to the Government; met Gibson a month or so after writing letter, and told him he (witness) was sorry he did not receive a letter; witness wrote a letter of instruction to Captain Phillips, dated September 13, 1886; shortly after the arrival of the Allie Rowe had telephoned to Mr. Atwater in his official capacity; when the latter would have nothing to do with them, witness entered the two cabin passengers and 125 second-class at the Custom House; passengers by the Hazard in 1884 were taken from the vessel to the steamers; he was agent for that vessel.

Mr. C. T. Gulick: Is an agent to take acknowledgments; on the 14th took the acknowledgments of 125 persons on board the Allie Rowe in the harbor, all the contracts being complete when placed in his hands, and all for three years; the signatures of the immigrants were made by them; witness did not know when marks were signed; went on board at request of Castle & Cooke and Mr. Lose, of H. H. H. & Co.

W. M. Gibson: Was Minister of Interior ad interim in September, 1886; remembered having several communications with Mr. Cooke, about recruiting in the South Seas, at witness' office and at his house; dictated this letter to the secretary; did not grant any letter to the captain; it would have been inconsistent for him to have given permission after that letter had been written.

Cross-examined: Remarks were frequently made that there would not be any expense to the Government; had no recollection of telling Mr. Cooke that he would grant him a letter; did not remember seeing the second letter, nor of a conversation with Mr. Cooke a month or two after the Allie Rowe sailed.

Chas. Henderson: Was first officer of the Allie Rowe and arrived here on the 13th inst.; the 125 laborers were recruited the same way as by other vessels; the contracts were executed on board, some of them when the laborers came on board.

The Attorney General filed certain exhibits and rested the case for the prosecution.

Defendant's counsel admitted that Phillips was master of the Allie Rowe. After argument by Mr. Thurston for the defense, and Mr. Rosa, Attorney General, for the Crown, the Court found defendant guilty, and sentenced him to pay a fine of $100 and costs $4.10. An appeal was noted to the Supreme Court.

Government Gazetteings.

A treaty of political confederation between Hawaii and Samoa is proclaimed. King Mafetia binds himself to conform to any measures that may be adopted by King Kalakaua to carry into effect the confederation. King Kalakaua binds himself to conform to any measures with the same object which may be agreed upon between both their Majesties. Mr. Gibson, Hawaiian Minister of Foreign Affairs, makes it known that the said treaty, having been ratified by the King, has become a part of the laws of this Kingdom, and is to be observed accordingly.

On the 23rd instant, had audience of His Majesty His Excellency Geo. W. Merrill, United States Minister Resident, who presented an autograph letter from President Cleveland, expressing condolence with the King and Royal Family at the death of Princess Likeli.

Hawaiian Consuls and Vice-Consuls have been appointed as follows:—Jose Paris, Consul at Cartagena, Spain; Francisco Torres de Navarra, at Malaga, Spain; Marc Tullius Falcomer, at Venice, Italy; Robert Francis Barney, at Manzanillo, Mexico; Jose Bravo de Laguna, Vice-Consul at Las Palmas, Canary Islands; and Bartolomeo Matthew y Battaler, at Santa Cruz de la Palamas, Canary Islands.

The Kaimitia is proclaimed in commission for the naval service of the Kingdom.

Hon. L. Aholo advertises for applications for more Japanese labor to be imported. The same honorable gentleman, as Minister of the Interior and President of the Board of Immigration, in a notice that he forgot to date, announces that certain ordinances of the Bureau of Immigration, respectively on the 24th of December, 1886, and on the 14th day of January, 1887, are still in force. (They are the ordinances that Captain Phillips was yesterday fined for transgressing, forbidding as they do the landing of labor immigrants without permission from the President or an agent of the Board of Immigration.)

Vacation is proclaimed to all Government schools, from April 8th to 25th.

The box plan for the Old Folks' Concert will be open to-day at 12 o'clock, at the office of J. E. Brown & Co., Merchant street.

A TRAVELER'S EXPERIENCE AT A LITTLE POST STATION INN.

A Fair Sample of a Country Supper—An Amusing Number of Small Dishes—The Landlord and His "Dog Bog."

"Mr. Brown."

Now we rattle off at a terrific pace of at least fifteen miles an hour, for this train is the night express to Christiansburg, and in two hours we reach our stopping place. Storen, where we are to leave the train and take a cab. The engine gives a single sharp whistle, and only in it that all transatlantic locomotives have such poor voices, and slowly pulls its load away. We cast a glance at our surroundings. The station is a pretty wooden building, with flowers about it, and not very different from some of the newer and more tasteful railroad stations in New England. At a little distance is the hotel, a small, but very neat inn. At a word from us a couple of boys are on hand to carry up the single small trunk which we have been advised to take with us. Two shawl strap, bag and knapsack we bear ourselves.

One look at the green, moist sides of the mountains on either hand; at the blue sky overhead, bright with the last rays of the setting sun; at the picturesque but small and backward fields of ripening grain, and at the neat home surroundings in front of us, makes us cry out: "Oh, if all the places we come to are to be as pretty as this, won't it be perfectly?"—and the sentence is cut short by the opening of the door. It is the wife of the proprietor who comes. He, by the way, is also the station master of the hamlet—station in Norway always meaning a post station—and, with a pleasant smile, she invites us in. We try, but in vain, to explain our wants in English. The hostess understands us not. "Hurrah!" we cry, "at last we have come to a place where English is not spoken!" But no, here comes her husband, who addresses us in our native tongue.

Perhaps the reader would like to know what language is spoken commonly in Norway and the answer might well be "English"—for the British traveler has so pervaded this northern land that the inhabitants thereof have been compelled, almost in self-defense, to learn the language of the invading nation. For no true son of Albion ever, in any country, speaks any language but his own good English. Of course, the proper tongue of Norway is Norwegian, an offshoot of Danish and a descendant of the old Norse. But English is taught in the public schools, and, except in the remote country districts, it is possible to travel in comfort without knowing a word of Norwegian. In fact, it is difficult to learn the native tongue only, because all the educated people are, and almost every Norwegian is well educated, know enough English to wish practice speaking it with travelers.

After we have explained our wishes to the complaisant landlord, we are shown to the nearest of rooms, with clean, bare wooden floors (carpets are scarcely known and still more rarely seen), and "Attenuated" is soon announced. It is now 9:30, yet no candles are needed. In the autumn and winter, however, darkness comes much earlier, and the nights are long. But what are we offered at this, our first country supper, the supper which is a fair sample of what we are to find at every post station? Well, rye bread of two kinds but no "fenn or white bread," butter and milk in quantity unlimited, and tea or coffee. There are sundry small dishes before us, each containing some one of the numerous varieties of cheese, or myrtle number, three slices of ham or smoked salmon, or three slices of another kind of sausage, or three radishes. The number of these small dishes is amazing. The nervous little English lady sitting opposite, draws out: "Oh, do you like these little dishes? Oh, I think they are heavenly, don't you? They get one so muddled, you know," and we sympathize with her, for we, too, are discontented with these unsatisfying "morceaux." A bottle of Worcester sauce sauce fresh congealed company in a neighboring jar of English mixed pickles—with the accent on the "mixed." But these are simply appetizers or relishes; the substantial are yet to come. Meat, real Yankee "meat," of no particular brand or variety, served piping hot, with a delicious brown gravy poured in over the thick slices, is now brought in on a covered dish with a comparison in the shape of a similar dish of boiled potatoes.

We fall to, heedless of whether the "meat" be beef, mutton, or venison, for every traveler in Norway is blessed or cursed, as the individual case may be, with an insatiable appetite. Next comes that accompaniment of all Norwegian breakfasts and suppers, the patient setting hen, whose porcelaine is always full of delicious, fresh eggs. Where the eggs come from is a mystery, for here are scarce, with the exception of this china table companion of ours; but though the fowls are rarely to be seen, there is no scarcity of eggs. This unsolved riddle must be left to some future explorer to unfold and explain. This is our supper, and the breakfast is to be much like it, with, perhaps, a slight diminution in the number of cheeses. But it is high time to retire if an early start is to be made. In the morning, the landlord comes with the so-called dog bog (day book) in his hands and we learn what are the necessary preliminaries to obtaining vehicles at a Norwegian post station. First, the name is to be inscribed in the day book, then the date, the place of destination, and the number of horses wanted. In some of the older post stations, a space is left where complaints or words of commendation may be written. Here are found the names of all who have passed over the road for the last two years or more.

Especially prominent is the name of "John Brown, London, England," to which is added occasionally, "On foot," or "On foot with knapsack," written in heavy black characters. This name is in almost every dog bog we see. We finally meet Mr. Brown himself. He is a short man, with a brown beard, and, like all Englishmen, is smoking a briarwood pipe. He is as familiar in manner as he is loud in speech, and wears huge hobnailed shoes. He is never weary of hearing himself talk, and, in fine, is what Frenchmen call "lefacieux"—in plain English, a bore. It may be that he is a tradesman off for two or three weeks' vacation. He always succeeds in making himself disagreeable whenever he tries, but he wishes people to understand that he is an Englishman from London, England. When he reaches southern Norway, where English people are in greater numbers, he subsides a little, and, fearful of offending some one who knows him, decides that it is wiser to drop London and register himself Birmingham, where his home really is. This is but one form of the impudent Britisher's often met with in Scandinavia, always annoying—sometimes amusing.—Boston Herald.

Isaac Murphy, the colored American jockey, is the nearest approach we have to Fred Archer, his annual earnings being placed at from $10,000 to $15,000.

THE RIGHT ROAD.

"There lost the road to happiness—
Does any one know it, pray?
I was dwelling there when the dawn was fair,
But somehow I wandered away.
I saw rare treasures in scenes of pleasure,
And ran to pursue them, when lo!
I had lost the path to happiness,
And knew not whither to go.
I have lost the way to happiness—
Oh, who will lead me back?
Turn off from the highway of selfishness
To the right—up duty's track!
Keep straight along and you can't go wrong.
For as sure as you live, I say,
The fair, best field of happiness
Can only be found that way."
—Eda Wheeler Woolf.

Embarrassing Divination by Palmistry.

The present rage for palmistry recalls an incident which occurred half a dozen years since at Bar Harbor. There were staying at one of the hotels a pretty young widow from Baltimore who was versed in the secrets of chiromancy, and a young Kentuckian who was par excellence the lion of the season. The widow, for some reason or other, had taken a whimsical dislike to the popular southerner and hardly acknowledged an acquaintance with him; yet he one day ventured to ask her to read his hand, as she had already deciphered the palms of half the people in the house. The lady at first demurred, but at length thinking, as she afterward explained, that it was simpler to do as she was asked than to contest the point, she requested the gentleman to show her his hand. He did so, and with an involuntary start of surprise and a frankness which was evidently genuine, she exclaimed:

"Why, it is the hand of a thief!"
As the interview took place upon the piazza in the presence of a group of boarders, the situation of the young man was sufficiently awkward one, but he did not flinch. As the lady checked herself in evident confusion, he responded with the most perfect tact and self-control:

"Ah! Thank you. That suggests to me a means of making my way in the world that had never occurred to me; and since the war we southerners have to be on the lookout for opportunities."

His ready wit saved the situation, and he was more popular than ever; but the interest of the tale is that two or three days after he was discovered stealing the diamonds of a wealthy dowager, and although the matter was hushed up as much as possible for the sake of the hotel and the people who had introduced the Kentuckian, he somehow leaked out that the rogue was an old offender and a thief long known to the police of New York and Philadelphia.—Boston Herald.

Lincoln as a "Military Hero."

He never took his campaigning seriously. The politician's habit of glorifying the petty incidents of a candidate's life always seemed absurd to him, and in his speech, made in 1848, ridiculing the effort on the part of Gen. Cass' friends to draw some political advantage from that gentleman's respectful notice of a wealthy dowager, and although the matter was hushed up as much as possible for the sake of the hotel and the people who had introduced the Kentuckian, he somehow leaked out that the rogue was an old offender and a thief long known to the police of New York and Philadelphia.—Boston Herald.

In a Paris Cemetery.
As I came away the crowd was increasing. At the gates was a bustling horde of flower vendors, makers of funeral wreaths, howling cabmen, men who were trying to sell plans of the cemetery, with biographical sketches of the prominent people buried there. Seated on the ground was a little fellow in tears. He was manifestly no beggar and no trader. Several paused to inquire what the matter might be. He explained that his father had struck him and plained that his father had been taken from him the pennies he had been saving to buy a bouquet to lay on his mother's grave. The father had gone to a wine shop with a couple of companions. The boy sobbed:

"She died a year ago, and she had explained to me how I was to bring violets to her grave on the year from her death."
Instinctively every man's hand sought his pocket, there was a voluntary tax levied, and a bouquet was purchased and given to the little fellow. He dried his tears, ran quickly to a poor, bare grave, but just as he was about to lay his flowers down he hesitated. "Tell me, please," he said to a woman who stood near, "do you think I shall be telling a lie? I am going to give a bouquet to mamma. I am going to tell her that I have bought it with my savings. There is no need that she should know that papa has taken them from me, you understand; it would make me feel so sorry," and thereupon, realizing that this was genuine, we all began to cry like women.—Paris Cor. Philadelphia Times.

Market for American Prints.

The artistic value of etchings seems to have hit the American public as hard as it once did the European. A prominent print seller avers that the sale of European etchings is nearly dead. American prints are now at the top of the market. This is the case, he says, on account of the copyright law. In the absence of an international copyright, the most costly foreign prints are copied here and the market flooded with them at half a dollar or $1 apiece, while the originals cost from $30 to $150. People object to paying high prices for a picture any one can buy a copy of for next to nothing, and so purchase the copyrighted native work by preference.

The publishers of books report much the same experience. Where, as at present, a dozen cheap editions of a foreign work can be given out, there is no money in any of them for the publisher. Annual books are consequently in demand.—Alfred Trimble in New York News.

A Liberal Corporation.

The great brewery of the Guinnesses has always been managed with marked liberality toward the employees, and now that it has been turned into a stock corporation, Sir Edward Cecil Guinness has celebrated the change by giving every worker a bonus of three months' salary. This bit of generosity cost him about $250,000.—Chicago Times.

OF THE UNITED STATES.

Total Assets, Dec. 31, '86, $75,510,472.76

Total Liabilities, including legal Reserve on all existing policies (4 per cent Standard) $59,154,407.000

Total Undivided Surplus over Four per cent Reserve, $16,355,875.76

Of which the proportion contributed (as computed) by Policies in general class, is $5,728,761.76
Of which the proportion contributed (as computed) by Policies in Tontine class, is 10,627,114.00

Upon the New York State Standard of 4 1/2 per cent interest, the Surplus is as computed, $20,495,475.76

New Assurance written in 1886, $111,540,201
Total Outstanding Assurance, $411,779,098

Increase of Premium Income, $2,810,475.40
Increase of Surplus (Four per cent basis), $2,469,636.63
Increase of Assets, $5,957,085.26

In actual Surplus (namely the excess of accumulated funds over liabilities); in Premium Income; in the amount of Assurance in force on its books, the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States exceeds every other life assurance company, and may justly be regarded as the largest and strongest life assurance organization in the World.

EXAMPLE
Of Policy No. 67,369. Life. Issued Jan. 22, 1872, on the life of W. H. C. Date of expiration Jan. 22, 1887.
Amount of Policy, $10,000. Tontine Period, 15 years. Age 53. Annual Premium, $543.10.
Total premiums paid in 15 years, $8,146.50

1. CASH VALUE, Consisting of Reserve, $3,856.30 and Surplus, 4,199.80 $8,056.10

2. PAID-UP VALUE. If the policy-holder select this settlement, as the paid-up value is larger than the original amount of assurance, a satisfactory certificate of good health must be furnished, or the excess must be drawn on a cash basis.

3. CASH SURPLUS, $5,199.80 Under this settlement, the policy holder withdraws the surplus in cash, and retains the original policy, continuing the payment of premiums, less annual dividends.

Three other options are available under this Policy.

The policies with 10-year Tontine periods do not show results as satisfactory as those above given. Policies with 20-year periods, on the other hand, will show much larger results than those with 15-year periods; but for purposes of illustration the 15-year policies—those of the intermediate period—are given as fair illustrations.

The longer period of accumulation which the 20-year policies enjoy, renders them the most desirable for those who, seeking absolute protection at the lowest "Life" rate, desire also the largest returns in case they live.

Hence the Best Free Tontine "Ordinary Life" Policy is One with a

TWENTY-VEARTONTINE PERIOD

The Free Tontine Policy of the Equitable Life Assurance Society is unrestricted after one year, incontestable after two years, and is then PAYABLE in the event of death, immediately upon the receipt of satisfactory proofs of death.

It guarantees a full share of the surplus earned, and being issued by a Society holding a

Larger Surplus than any other Assurance Company,

May be expected to show larger profits than the policies of any other company.

BE THOROUGH.

An organized protest from the taxpayers against neglect on the part of the Road Supervisor to mend the public ways is an occurrence which the Advertiser of yesterday morning thinks would be unfortunate, and to which our genial contemporary is opposed. While we would not object very strenuously to organized attacks upon any neglect of public interest, we cannot say that we are in favor of the taxpayers hurrying themselves against the Road Supervisor. It would be organizing too big a hunt for very small game. The objection to such a movement would not be theoretical or sentimental, but utilitarian. It would be foolish policy for a householder to expend the price of a new residence in making even handsome external repairs on a rickety old fabric of which the sills and corner posts had been carried away by ants. The wiser course would be to tear down the worthless structure and build anew. And, on the same principle, it would be injudicious on the part of taxpayers to expend their energies on a paltry Road Supervisor when the sills and corner posts of the political fabric are in the last stages of decomposition. The Legislature, we take it, is the framework on which the political structure depends. There is where the organized efforts of the taxpayers are needed to build with new and sound timbers. Until the Legislature is reconstituted and reconstituted, a movement towards the redress of grievances that might reach to every Road Supervisor in the Kingdom would be only a repetition of the old story of the mountain laboring and bringing forth a mouse. We believe in organized and concentrated measures on the part of taxpayers to secure proper representation in the Legislative Assembly. Anything short of such a consummation is only tinkering at politics. If the scattered elements of public opinion can be combined into a mass of resistance against the election of a body of hireling representatives, the rectification of minor abuses will follow as a natural sequence. Until the Legislature is purged of Road Supervisors, Tax Collectors, Tax Assessors, petty District Judges, and salaried officials of every other grade—from Governor to Poundkeeper—taxpayers may as well foot their bills as best they can, and hold their peace. Their murmurings and oburgations may as well be aimed at the head of Punchbowl as at the heads of state affairs. Let Hawaii have an independent Legislature, the members of which are responsible only to their constituents, and the multiplying and accumulating abuses in public affairs will be forthwith reduced to a minimum.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

In its effort to raise funds for making improvements at its shooting range, including accommodation for the public on occasions of competitions, the Hawaiian Rifle Association deserves the most liberal aid that the community can afford. From a very small nucleus the organization has grown, through the zealous endeavors of its promoters and the merits of its object, to be one of the most vigorous of national institutions. Its shooting range will naturally be one of the chief attractions of the city to military and naval visitors, and, if conveniences for spending a few hours and viewing matches there are provided, it might be a favorite resort for outing parties of residents on when events come off at the ranges. view of the place becoming a resort for visiting naval or military men, it has been suggested to us that the diplomatic and consular corps might be solicited, with all propriety, to use their kind offices in helping the Association in such ways as may be available to them. Marksmanship is a manly sport to which the HERALD lately drew especial attention, recommending it as worthy of being taken up by the young men of the whole country. The public, if it agrees with that recommendation, as probably for the most part it does, should act up to its opinion on the present occasion, when the Hawaiian Rifle Association is making a praiseworthy endeavor to procure means for increasing its own effectiveness as a national institution, as well as providing facilities for residents and visitors to enjoy themselves at the ranges, either by shooting at the targets or watching the sport and breathing the pure suburban air.

The Hotel Concert.

Mr. Bartlett had the Hawaiian Hotel front brilliantly illuminated with colored lanterns, in addition to the electric luminary, on the occasion of the concert by the Hawaiian Quinlet Club last night. There was a goodly attendance of the public, and all thoroughly appreciated the public spirit that dictated the very pleasant entertainment. After going through a delightful programme on the front veranda, the musicians repaired to the billiard room, where they sang and played till closing time. The King was present and after the public concert went down to the private billiard room, where he watched the sport on the green baize for the rest of the evening.

The Lime-Kiln Club.

"Ar Brudder Invisible Jackson in de hall to-night?" blandly queried the president as the meeting opened.

Invisible was visible. He was back by the stove, and had his shoes off to tickle his chilblains. After a little delay he made his way to the upper end of the hall and the president continued:

"Brudder Jackson, the report has come to me dat you are tellin' fortunes in your neighborhood for de small sum of two bits a posson."

"Yes, sah, I've been tellin' a few."

"As you hev bin a member of dis club fur de las' two y'ars you mus' be aware of de fact dat fortune-tellin', sellin' dream books, an' all dat sort of nonsense am agin our rules. A posson who sots out to hev his future predicted am soft in de head; de posson who takes money to predict it am a knave. I shall suspend you from membership fur three months, an' if we h'ar dat you am still in de swindlin' business you will be expelled for good. You kin put on your hat an' go."

Invisible was badly broken up, and there were tears in his eyes as he passed out. When he had gone the president continued:

"I want to say to dis large, cultivated and refined audience, dat de fate of Invisible Jackson will be de fate of any odder member who am found so far off his balance as to be runnin' arter fortune-tellers, no matter how cheap deir prices. My experience in dis world has taught me:

1. If dar was anything in good dreams I'd hev bin an angel long ago.
2. If dar was anything in bad ones, I'd hev bin in de odder place afore I was twenty years old.
3. It am werry pleasant to be told dat you am gwine to fall heir to great riches, but dat doan buy 'aters nor pay rent.
4. Only sich men as hate work, 'an only sich wimin as want an excuse to leave home believe in fortune-tellin'.
5. If it am predicted dat a man am gwine to hev a great piece of luck, he'll sot down in some saloon to wait for it.
6. If it am predicted dat he am gwine to have a great deal of trouble, he'll go home an' blame his wife an' lick his children.

"I warn you to let the whole bizness alone. A dollar a day an' a steady job will pan out mo' money in six months dan all de fortune-tellers in de world kin bring ye in fifty y'ars. Dar am just as many good dreams as bad, an' none of 'em am wort de powder to blow up an ole hoss. Signs might hev meant sunthin' a thousand y'ars ago, but dem am played out now. If you h'ar de 'death-tick' in a wall it's just as much a sign dat you am gwine to find a diamond pin in the road as it ar dat some of de family ar gwine to die afore de y'ar is out. Let us now pick up de abnormal bizness of de meetin'."

LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius H. Smith were given a surprise in party Monday night.

Col. and Mrs. Judd and son left for Kauai yesterday by the steamer Mikahala.

Inmates of the Queen's Hospital will have the benefit of music from the R. H. band this afternoon.

The W. G. Hall brought news of great volumes of smoke rolling up from the great volcano of Kilauea.

Mr. J. Vierra took his cosmorama away by the steamer Kinau yesterday, to give exhibitions on the other islands.

Three soldiers of Fort Street—Mr. Dillingham, Mr. Lewers and Mr. Tregloan—went off to the other islands yesterday.

The Honolulu Rifles will develop from a company into a battalion at their meeting to-morrow night. There is now a membership of about one hundred.

A half truth in the Court items of the Government Gazette conceals honor from the ladies to whom it is due, with regard to the presentation of the flag to the Honolulu Rifles.

The report of the "Lime-Kilo Club" in to-day's issue is copied by request, for the benefit or the shame of all, high or low, who are abetting the fortune-telling humbug in Honolulu.

Rev. J. M. Silver left by the Mikahala last evening for Lihue, Kauai, to take charge of the new Episcopal church there. Bishop Willis was at the steamer to see the curate off.

One case remanded and the trial of Captain Phillips for violating immigration ordinances, reported elsewhere, constituted the business despatched at the Police Court yesterday.

The Amateur Minstrels cleared about $800 by their three concerts. The doctors lost about $8,000 by them, from the people laughing away their ailments in the Opera House.

Two Chinese were locked up on a charge of gaming yesterday afternoon. Their friends came to bail them out, but went away crestfallen on the information that a $500 bond would be necessary.

The Hawaiians and Japanese are reported to be very appreciative of the accommodation for evening literary and recreative entertainment provided for them at the Queen Emma building. Their rooms are more extensively patronized, for the most part, than are those of the senior Y. M. C. A. on Hotel street.

V. Estall, who lately worked for Mr. J. A. McKenzie, plumber, was arrested yesterday by Officer Akau on a warrant charging him with obtaining money under false pretences. Several prominent ladies are among the witnesses subpoenaed against him. It is said that he raked in a good deal of coin about town, much of it by an unauthorized use of Mr. McKenzie's name.

Among the Chinese.

A magic lantern exhibition and sale of refreshments drew a large crowd to the Chinese Y. M. C. A. last evening. Mr. F. W. Damon showed a series of fine pictures, explaining each in English as he went along, while Mr. Loi Cheung interpreted. The pictures comprised scenes and objects in both sacred and profane ancient history, such as the pyramids, the city of Jerusalem and the star of Bethlehem; also a number of Chinese views.

Questions were asked from time to time of the boys on the historical facts connected with some of the pictures, and were promptly and correctly answered. An intermission was called mid-way in the programme, when those who were able and disposed adjourned to the lower flat and invested in ice-cream, soda water, and other light refreshments. An admission fee was levied, but it seemed to have had no effect in thinning the audience. The proceeds of the entertainment go to liquidate the debt on the building, the contributions of last year having been checked by the fire. The characteristic stolidity of the Chinese on this occasion must have been left outside. All appeared to take part in the proceedings with as much enthusiasm as is customary among New Englanders at a church fair. Mr. and Mrs. Damon and their allies have certainly evoked among the Chinese a large amount of interest in the mission work in which they are engaged.

SUPREME COURT.

AT CHAMBERS.

The writ of habeas corpus issued on Monday afternoon was returnable at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, when Captain Tripp appeared with his prisoner, Manuel Brito, in accordance with the terms of the writ. Mr. Peterson, Deputy Attorney General, with Mr. Hatch, appeared for the crown, and Mr. Kinney for the applicant. The Deputy Attorney General asked for time to answer, the writ not having been placed in his hands until a short time before the opening of the Court. The hearing was postponed to 1:30 p. m. The Court, on re-opening in the afternoon, was addressed by the Deputy Attorney General showing that the applicant, Brito, was legally imprisoned under section 4 of the opium law of 1886.

Mr. Kinney, counsel for Brito, took the ground that the sentence was illegal inasmuch as the charge is not that of "furnishing or selling" opium, and that there is nothing in section 4 about "having opium unlawfully in possession," which was the specific charge on which the prisoner was convicted, and, further, that the reference in section 4 to the provisions of section 3 can be construed in no way other than that it means nothing, and that no more sense can be made out of it than if it referred to the Lord's Prayer or to the calendar on the desk.

Mr. Hatch, on behalf of the Crown, held that the validity of the law was not a proper question to be raised under a habeas corpus process, nor could it be considered in this Court. To this the counsel for the prisoner replied that he did not ask for a decision on the validity of the law. The question simply was: Does the having opium in possession constitute a criminal offense under section 4 of the law? After some further argument by counsel, the decision of the Court was reserved.

A Runaway and Rescue.

Mr. E. G. Schumann's horse took it in his head last evening to make some work for the Hawaiian Carriage Company's repair shop, not waiting to reflect that while his master would as a general rule grow richer the more work that place got, it made some difference whose carriage was wrecked. The horse bolted down Queen street into Fort, and was making straight for a solid phalanx of about thirty carriages on the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company's wharf, when Mr. Sam. Macy, hack inspector, rushed forth to head off the flying animal. Suddenly wheeling to the left, the horse dashed up the Esplanade past another group of carriages at Wilder's Steamship wharf; then again to the left, cutting across lots to King street. A native on horseback there got ahead of the runaway, riding in advance until the latter slowed down a little. Then he turned quickly and caught the fugitive horse by the bridle, bringing it to a standstill. The buggy was not damaged a bit by its long and lively run.

Shipping Notes.

Steamer W. G. Hall arrived on time yesterday, reporting fine weather on the trip. She brought 4,073 bags sugar, 73 bags awa, 6 bags coffee, 279 hides, 87 packages sundries, 1 horse, 11 hogs and 1 vacuum pan.

All the steamers announced to sail yesterday took their departure on time, except the Kilauea Hou, which was detained until some time to-day.

Schooner Canute brought 3,300 bags sugar; Waioli, 1,100; Waimalu, 1,400.

The vacuum pan brought by the W. G. Hall from Honuapo yesterday will be shipped to Paauhau by the Kilauea Hou to-day.

Unless some vessels arrive before the first of the week, the harbor will be completely bare of foreign shipping until something does arrive.

The Hawaiian bark Kalakaua will be sold by the Marshal on Saturday, April 9th.

Schooner Anna, Williams master, arrived at Kahului, Maui, on March 27th, 21 days from San Francisco. Consignees: Wing Wo Tai Co., C. H. Dickey, A. F. Hopke, C. Olsen.

Bark Ferris S. Thompson, Potter master, arrived at Kahului on the 28th, 19 days from San Francisco, with 200 tons of coal to Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company.

SIDE LIGHTS.

Mr. Rosenthal's furniture is to be sold at ten to-day.

Mr. Levey sells Mossman's corner building at noon to-day.

A fine lot of new art goods are now opening at King Bros.' Art store.

Fresh oysters by the Zealandia at the Club House.

Smoke the "Little Dudes," to be found at C. J. McCarthy's.

A fresh supply of the famous John Wieland Philadelphia Beer has been received at the Criterion Saloon, Fort street.

THE ALLIE ROWE CASE.

Capt. Phillips Found Guilty of Breaking Immigration Rules and Fined One Hundred Dollars.

After another case had been disposed of in the Police Court yesterday morning, Capt. John Phillips, master of the brig Allie Rowe, was brought up on remand from the 22nd inst., charged with landing immigrants contrary to the Board of Immigration ordinance dated January 14th, 1887, issued in pursuance of various acts of the Legislature. The Attorney General, Hon. A. Rosa, prosecuted, and Smith, Thurston & Kinney appeared for the defense.

Mr. Thurston, of counsel for the defense, asked for the charge to be made more definite, whereupon the Attorney General specified sections 1, 2 and 3 of the ordinance in question, as having been more particularly traversed by the defendant.

W. O. Atwater, Secretary of the Board of Immigration, was called. Correspondence between the Pacific Navigation Co.'s President, Mr. A. F. Cooke, and the witness, being a letter from the former and reply from the latter, were read, and witness proceeded to say that no permission had been granted to Captain Phillips, the Pacific Navigation Company or the brig Allie Rowe up to March 14th and 15th.

Cross-examined: Had charge of landing of laborers; had no communication except those letters; Mr. Cooke, between the first and second letter, had told him he had seen Mr. Gibson, and it would be all right; Mr. Cooke telephoned him on the 13th, and in response to the message, he went to the Pacific Navigation Company's office; defendant said he had about 105 men, and a total of 125 people altogether (from the South Seas); witness told Mr. Cooke that officially he had nothing to do with the immigrants, as it was a private enterprise; witness did not inform the Board of Immigration in regard to the Allie Rowe.

Mr. A. Frank Cooke, President of the Pacific Navigation Company, gave evidence of his agency of the Allie Rowe, and the number and disposition of the laborers among the plantations on different islands. The captain, plantation agents, and Mr. Gulick attended to the acknowledgments of contracts; he entered passengers by the vessel at the Custom House; 45 of them went to plantations on the 14th, and balance on the 15th instant; Mr. Gibson promised to send witness a letter recognizing the voyage of the Allie Rowe, but after keeping the vessel waiting two days without getting such recognition or permission, he cleared the vessel (in September last), and let her go; the laborers were from the New Hebrides; the agents of the plantations paid him $105 each.

Cross-examined: Thought Mr. Gibson said he would have to see the Board, but it would be all right; he said the Government could not be to any expense, and witness told him there would be no expense to the Government; met Gibson a month or so after writing letter, and told him he (witness) was sorry he did not receive a letter; witness wrote a letter of instruction to Captain Phillips, dated September 13, 1886; shortly after the arrival of the Allie Rowe had telephoned to Mr. Atwater in his official capacity; when the latter would have nothing to do with them, witness entered the two cabin passengers and 125 second-class at the Custom House; passengers by the Hazard in 1884 were taken from the vessel to the steamer; he was agent for that vessel.

Mr. C. T. Gulick: Is an agent to take acknowledgments; on the 14th took the acknowledgments of 125 persons on board the Allie Rowe in the harbor, all the contracts being complete when placed in his hands, and all for three years; the signatures of the immigrants were marks made by them; witness did not know when marks were signed; went on board at request of Castle & Cooke and Mr. Lose, of H. Hackfield & Co.

W. M. Gibson: Was Minister of Interior ad interim in September, 1886; remembered having several communications with Mr. Cooke, about recruiting in the South Seas, at witness' office and at his house; dictated this letter to the secretary; did not grant any letter to the captain; it would have been inconsistent for him to have given permission after that letter had been written.

Cross-examined: Remarks were frequently made that there would not be any expense to the Government; had no recollection of telling Mr. Cooke that he would grant him a letter; did not remember seeing the second letter, nor of a conversation with Mr. Cooke a month or two after the Allie Rowe sailed.

Chas. Henderson: Was first officer of the Allie Rowe, and arrived here on the 13th inst.; the 125 laborers were recruited the same way as by other vessels; the contracts were executed on board, some of them when the laborers came on board.

The Attorney General filed certain exhibits and rested the case for the prosecution.

Defendant's counsel admitted that Phillips was master of the Allie Rowe. After argument by Mr. Thurston for the defense, and Mr. Rosa, Attorney General, for the Crown, the Court found defendant guilty, and sentenced him to pay a fine of $100 and costs $4.10. An appeal was noted to the Supreme Court.

Government Gazetteing.

A treaty of political confederation between Hawaii and Samoa is proclaimed. King Malietoa binds himself to conform to any measures that may be adopted by King Kalakaua to carry into effect the confederation. King Kalakaua binds himself to conform to any measures with the same object which may be agreed upon between both their Majesties. Mr. Gibson, Hawaiian Minister of Foreign Affairs, makes it known that the said treaty, having been ratified by the King, has become a part of the laws of this Kingdom, and is to be observed accordingly.

On the 23rd instant, had audience of His Majesty His Excellency Geo. W. Merrill, United States Minister Resident, who presented an autograph letter from President Cleveland, expressing condolence with the King and Royal Family at the death of Princess Likelike.

Hawaiian Consuls and Vice-Consuls have been appointed as follows:—Jose Paris, Consul at Cartagena, Spain; Francisco Torres de Navarra, at Malaga, Spain; Marc Tullius Falcomer, at Venice, Italy; Robert Francis Barney, at Manzanillo, Mexico; Jose Bravo de Laguna, Vice-Consul at Las Palmas, Canary Islands; and Bartolome Mathe y Battaler, at Santa Cruz de la Palamas, Canary Islands.

The Kaimiloa is proclaimed in commission for the naval service of the Kingdom.

Hon. L. Aholo advertises for applications for more Japanese labor to be imported. The same honorable gentleman, as Minister of the Interior and President of the Board of Immigration, in a notice that he forgot to date, announces that certain ordinances of the Bureau of Immigration, respectively on the 24th of December, 1886, and on the 14th day of January, 1887, are still in force. (They are the ordinances that Captain Phillips was yesterday fined for transgressing, forbidding as they do the landing of labor immigrants without permission from the President or an agent of the Board of Immigration.)

Vacation is proclaimed to all Government schools, from April 8th to 25th.

The box plan for the Old Folks' Concert will be open to-day at 12 o'clock, at the office of J. E. Brown & Co., Merchant street.

A NORWAY HOTEL.

A TRAVELER'S EXPERIENCE AT A LITTLE POST STATION INN.

A Fair Sample of a Country Supper—An Amusing Number of Small Dishes. The Landlord and His "Dog Bog." "Mr. Brown."

Now we rattle off at a terrific pace of at least fifteen miles an hour, for this train, the night express to Christiania, and in two hours we reach our stopping place. Stores, where we are to leave the train and take carriages. The engine gives a single sharp, little "toot" (why is it that all transatlantic locomotives have such poor voices, and slowly pulls its load away. We cast a glance at our surroundings. The station is a pretty wooden building, with flower-beds in front, and not very different from some of the newer and more tasteful railroad stations in New England. At a little distance is the hotel, a small, but very neat inn. At a word from us a couple of boys are on hand to carry up the single small trunk which we have been advised to take with us. The shawl strap, bag and knapsack we bear ourselves.

Oh! look at the green, moist side of the mountains on either hand; at the blue sky overhead, bright with the last rays of the setting sun; at the picturesque but small and backward fields of ripening grain, and at the neat home surroundings in front of us, makes us cry out: "Oh, if all the places we come to are to be as pretty as this won't it be perfectly?"—and the sentence is cut short by the opening of the door. It is the wife of the proprietor who comes. He, by the way, is also the station master of the hamlet—station in Norway always meaning a post station—and, with a pleasant smile, she invites us in. We try, but in vain, to ascertain our wants in English. The hostess understands us not. "Burrh!" we cry, "at last we have come to a place where English is not spoken!" But no, here comes her husband, who addresses us in our native tongue.

Perhaps the reader would like to know what language is spoken commonly in Norway and the answer might well be "English"—for the British traveler has so pervaded this northern land that the inhabitants thereof have been compelled, almost in self-defense, to learn the language of the invading nation. For no true son of Albion, even in any country, speaks any language but his own good English. Of course, the proper tongue of Norway is Norwegian, an offshoot of Danish and a descendant of the old Norse. But English is taught in the public schools, and except in the remote country districts, it is possible to travel in comfort without knowing a word of Norwegian. In fact, it is difficult to learn the native tongue only, because all the educated people are more, and almost every Norwegian is well educated, know enough English to wish practice speaking it with foreigners.

After we have explained our wishes to the courteous landlord, we are shown to the neatest of rooms, with clean, bare wooden floors (carpets are scarcely known and still more rarely seen), and "Aftenmad" is soon announced. It is now 9:30, yet no candles are needed. In the autumn and winter, however, darkness comes much earlier, and the nights are long. But what are we offered at this, our first country supper, the supper which is a fair sample of what we are to find at every post station? Well, rye bread of two kinds but no "fem or white bread," butter and milk in quantity unlimited, and tea or coffee. There are sundry small dishes before us, each containing some one of the numerous varieties of cheese, or rye-bread, three slices of ham or smoked salmon, or three slices of sausage, or three slices of another kind of sausage, or three radishes. The number of these small dishes is amazing. The nervous little English lady sitting opposite, draws out: "Oh, do you like these little dishes? Oh, I think they are heavenly, don't you? They get one so unaddled, you know," and we sympathize with her, for we, too, are disconcerted with these unsatisfying "morsels." A bottle of Worcestershire sauce (a large, conspicuous bottle in a neighboring jar of English mustard pickles—with the accent on the "mixed.") But these are simply appetizers or relishes; the substantial is yet to come. Meat, real Yankee "meat," of no particular brand or variety, served piping hot, with a delicious brown gravy poured in over the thick slices, is now brought in on a covered dish with a comparison in the shape of a similar dish of boiled potatoes.

We fall to, heedless of whether the "meat" be beef, mutton, or venison, for every traveler in Norway is blessed or cursed, as the individual case may be, with an insatiable appetite. Next comes that accompaniment of all Norwegian breakfasts and suppers, the patient sitting hen, whose porcelaine is always full of delicious, fresh eggs. Where the eggs come from is a mystery, for hens are scarce, with the exception of this china table companion of ours, but though the fowls are rarely to be seen, there is no scarcity of eggs. This unsolved riddle must be left to some future explorer to unfold and explain. This is our supper, and the breakfast is to be much like it, with, perhaps, a slight diminution in the number of courses. But it is high time to retire if an early start is to be made in the morning. The landlord comes with the so-called dog bog (day books in his hands and we learn what are the necessary preliminaries to obtaining vehicles at a Norwegian post station. First, the name is to be inscribed in the dog bog, then the date, the place of destination and the number of horses wanted. In some of the older registers space is left where complaints or words of commendation may be written. Here are found the names of all who have passed over the road for the last two years or more.

Especially prominent is the name of "John Brown, London, England," to which is added occasionally, "On foot," or "On foot with knapsack," written in heavy black characters. This name is in almost every dog bog we see. We finally meet Mr. Brown himself. He is a short man, with a brown beard, and like all Englishmen, is smoking a briarwood pipe. He is as familiar in manner as he is loud in speech, and wears huge hobnailed shoes. He is never weary of hearing himself talk, and, in fine, is what Frenchmen call "lefactieux"—in plain English, a bore. It may be that he is a tradesman off for two or three weeks' vacation. He always succeeds in making himself disagreeable wherever he may be, for he wishes people to understand that he is an Englishman and from London, England. When he reaches southern Norway, where English people are in greater numbers, he subsides a little, and, fearful of seeing some one who knows him, decides that it is wiser to drop London and register himself Birmingham, where his home really is. This is but one form of the impudent "Britisher" often met with in Scandinavia, always annoying—sometimes amusing.—Boston Herald.

Isaac Murphy, the colored Americanockey, is the nearest approach we have to Fred Archer, his annual earnings being placed at from $10,000 to $15,000.

THE RIGHT ROAD.

"I have lost the road to happiness—
Does any one know it, pray?
I was dwelling there when the moon was fair,
But somehow I wandered away.

I saw rare treasures in acres of bloom,
And ran to possess them, when lo!
I had lost the path to happiness
And knew not whither to go.

I have lost the way to happiness—
Oh, who will lead me back?
Turn off from the highway of selfishness
To the right—up duty's track!

Keep straight along and you can't go wrong.
For as sure as you live, I say,
The fair, best field of happiness
Can only be found that way."
—Edith Wheeler Woods.

Embracing Divination by Palmistry.
The present rage for palmistry recalls an incident which occurred half a dozen years since at Bar Harbor. There were staying at one of the hotels a pretty young widow from Baltimore who was versed in the secrets of chiromancy, and a young Kentuckian who was par excellence the lion of the season. The widow, for some reason or other, had taken a whimsical dislike to the popular southerner and hardly acknowledged an acquaintance with him; yet he one day ventured to ask her to read his hand, as she had already deciphered the palms of half the people in the house. The lady at first demurred, but at length thinking, as she afterward explained, that it was simpler to do as she was asked than to contest the point, she requested the gentleman to show her his hand. He did so, and with an involuntary start of surprise, and a frankness which was evidently genuine, she exclaimed:

"Why, it is the hand of a thief!"
As the interview took place upon the piazza in the presence of a group of boarders, the situation of the young man was sufficiently awkward; one but he did not flinch. As the lady checked herself in evident confusion, he responded with the most perfect tact and self-control:

"Ah! Thank you. That suggests to me a means of making my way in the world that had never occurred to me; and since the war we southerners have to be on the lookout for opportunities."

His ready wit saved the situation, and he was more popular than ever; but the interest of the tale is that two or three days after he was discovered stealing the diamonds of a wealthy dowager, and although the matter was hushed up as much as possible for the sake of the hotel and the people who had introduced the Kentuckian, it somehow leaked out that the rogue was an old offender and a thief long known to the police of New York and Philadelphia.—Boston Record.

Lincoln as a "Military Hero."
He never took his campaigning seriously. The politician's habit of glorifying the petty incidents of a candidate's life always seemed absurd to him, and in his speech, made in 1848, ridiculing the effort on the part of Gen. Cass to draw some political advantage from that gentleman's respectful but obscure services on the frontier in the war with Great Britain, he extolled any future eulogist from painting his own military achievements in too lively colors. "Do you know, Mr. Speaker," he said, "I am a military hero! In the days of the Black Hawk war I fought, bled and came away. I was not at Stillman's defeat, but I was about as near it as Gen. Cass was to Tall's surrender, and like him, I saw the place very soon afterward. It is quite certain I did not break my sword, for I had none to break, but I bent my musket pretty badly on one occasion. If Gen. Cass went in advance of me picking waterberries, I guess I surpassed him in charges on the wild onions. If he saw any five fighting Indians it was more than I did, but I had a good many bloody struggles with the mosquitoes; and although I never fainted from loss of blood, I can truly say I was often very hungry. Mr. Speaker, if ever I should conclude to doff 'whatever our Democratic friends may suppose there is of black cockade Federalism about me, and thereupon they shall take me up as their candidate for the presidency, I protest that they shall not make fun of me, as they have of Gen. Cass, by attempting to write me into a military hero."—Nicholas and Hay in The Century.

In a Paris Cemetery.
As I came away the crowd was increasing. At the gates was a bustling horde of flower vendors, makers of funeral wreaths, howling cabmen, men who were trying to sell plans of the cemetery, with biographical sketches of the prominent people buried there. Seated on the ground was a little fellow in tears. He was manifestly no beggar and no trader. Several paused to inquire what the matter might be. He explained that his father had struck him and taken from him the pennies he had been saving to buy a bouquet to lay on his mother's grave. The father had gone to a wine shop with a couple of companions. The boy sobbed:

"She died a year ago, and she had explained to me how I was to bring violets to her grave on the year from her death."
Instinctively every man's hand sought his pocket; there was a voluntary tax levy, and a bouquet was purchased and given to the little fellow. He dried his tears, ran quickly to a poor, bare grave, but just as he was about to lay his flowers down he hesitated. "Tell me, please," he said to a woman who stood near, "do you think I shall be telling a lie? I am going to give a bouquet to mamma. I am going to tell her that I have bought it with my savings. There is no need that she should know that papa has taken them from me, you understand; it would make me feel so sorry," and thereupon, realizing that this was genuine, we all began to cry like women.—Paris Cor. Philadelphia Times.

Market for American Prints.
The artistic value of etchings seems to have hit the American public as hard as it once did the European. A prominent print seller avows that the sale of European etchings is nearly dead. American prints are now at the top of the market. This is the case, he says, on account of the copyright law. In the absence of an international copyright, the most costly foreign prints are copied here and the market flooded with them at half a dollar or $1 apiece, while the originals cost from $20 to $150. People object to paying high prices for a picture any one can buy a copy of for next to nothing, and so purchase the copyrighted native work by preference.

The publishers of books report much the same experience. Where, as at present, a dozen cheap editions of a foreign work can be given out, there is no money in any of them for the publisher. Annual books are consequently in demand.—Alfred Trimble in New York News.

A Liberal Corporation.
The great brewery of the Guinnesses has always been managed with marked liberality toward the employees, and now that it has been turned into a stock corporation Sir Edward Cecil Guinness has celebrated the change by giving every worker a bonus of three months' salary. This bit of generosity cost him about $250,000.—Chicago Times.

Total Outstanding Assurance, $411,779,098

Increase of Premium Income, $2,810,475.40

Increase of Surplus (Four per cent basis), $2,409,636.63

Increase of Assets, $3,957,085.26

In actual Surplus (namely the excess of accumulated funds over liabilities) in Premium Income; in the amount of Assurance in force on its books, the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States exceeds every other life assurance company, and may be justly regarded as the largest and strongest life assurance organization in the World.

EXAMPLE
Of Policy No. 67,389. Life. Issued Jan. 22, 1872, on the life of W. H. C. Date of expiration Jan. 22, 1887.

Amount of Policy, $10,000. Tontine Period, 15 years. Age 33. Annual Premium, $543.10.

Total premiums paid in 15 years, $8,146.50

1. CASH VALUE, Consisting of Reserve, $3,856.30 and Surplus, 4,199.80 $9,056.10

2. PAID-UP VALUE, $13,050.00

If the policy-holder select this settlement, as the paid-up value is larger than the original amount of assurance, a satisfactory certificate of good health must be furnished, or the excess must be drawn on a cash basis.

3. CASH SURPLUS, $5,199.80

Under this settlement, the policy holder withdraws the surplus in cash, and retains the original policy, continuing the payment of premiums, less annual dividends.

Three other options are available under this Policy.

The policies with 10-year Tontine periods do not show results as satisfactory as those above given. Policies with 20-year periods, on the other hand, will show much larger results than those with 15-year periods; but for purposes of illustration the 15-year policies—those of the intermediate period—are given as fair illustrations.

The longer period of accumulation which the 20-year policies enjoy renders them the most desirable for those who, seeking absolute protection at the lowest "Life" rate, desire also the largest returns in case they live.

Hence the Best Free Tontine "Ordinary Life" Policy is One with a

TWENTY-YEAR TONTINE PERIOD

The Free Tontine Policy of the Equitable Life Assurance Society is unrestricted after one year, incontestable after two years, and is then PAYABLE in the event of death, immediately upon the receipt of satisfactory proofs of death.

It guarantees a full share of the surplus earned, and being issued by a Society holding a

Larger Surplus than any other Assurance Company,

May be expected to show larger profits than the policies of any other company.
