FROM A DEPARTING TOURIST.

Enthusiastic Description of Island
Scenery.

MR. EDITOR: It may seem like presumption for one who has passed a few weeks only in the Hawaiian kingdom to call the attention of its citizens to matters which should be much better known to them than to a stranger, but I cannot bring myself to leave these hospitable shores without giving expression to one or two dominant impressions which a longer stay might have had the effect of weakening or effacing.

In the first place, the thing that strikes the traveler most forcibly is the modesty, or shall I call it the apathy, of the people here in relation to the great wonders of nature which these islands present. It is no exaggeration to say that in no other country of the same extent in the world, not excepting Switzerland, can such a variety of beautiful and awe-inspiring scenery be found. Mountain, sea and plain here combine in an endless variety of beautiful scenes. You have the largest active volcano in the world and the no less awe-inspiring extinct crater of Haleakala. Iao valley is a second Yosemite, and you have a number of other valleys of almost equal beauty. These are on the other islands to be sure.
Oahu offers, in the rides to Tantalus and the Pali, the Punchbowl and Diamond Head, many a beautiful panorama. They alone would repay the traveler for the trip. But one might as well visit California and not see Yosemite, as come to Hawaii and fail to visit Haleakala and Kilauea.

This brings me to my second proposition, which is that your people invariably magnify the dangers and difficulties of the trip to Hawaii and Maui. When we asked which of the two routes to Kilauea was the easier we were told that we would find either attended with terrible hardships. Sea sickness, protracted horseback rides, walks and climbs over slippery lava fields filled our dreams for days and nights before we started. Some of our party carried as many as five pairs of shoes to provide against the destructive power of the glassy lava fields.

I must say that none of these

"lions in our path" came up to our expectations. We took the Hall, to Punaluu, in going, and we returned by Hilo, so that we had ample opportunity to test the relative merits of the two routes. Our judgment was that either was better than it had been pictured, and repaid, in beauty and interest, any temporary discomfort the traveler might suffer. A few hours of sea sickness one may well count upon;
even the best of sailors are seldom proof against the choppy sea of the channels. But the large majority of the time on board may be pleasantly spent in studying the native villages along the coast, where the people are found living in their original manner, or more nearly so than those we encounter on this island.

The landing in the surf at Puna-luu is another bugbear to the timid.
In the hands of the brave kanaka boatmen you are as safe as you would be at home in your bed.
The thing is worth doing once for the exhilaration of a new experience. I cannot dwell upon each stage of the trip; I have already trespassed too long on your time.
Suffice it to say that none of the so-called hardships are beyond what one who has traveled elsewhere expects to encounter. The seventeen-mile horseback ride on the Hilo side is tedious, so is the twenty-three-mile stage ride on the Punaluu side. When the excellent carriage road, which the Government is building from Hilo, is completed to the Volcano House, the trip will be a pleasure throughout.
The fourteen miles of it already completed offer an endless variety of tropical forest scenery which is a veritable dream of fairyland.

Nothing surprised us more than the accommodations offered at the new Volcano House. We were prepared to sleep in a shed and live on poi. Instead we found clean, airy, comfortably furnished rooms and a menu more varied and satisfactory than is offered in many a steward who serves the table
d'hotel deserves especial mention.
The whole house is so well managed that considering the wonders it is the key too, it seems strange that Honolulu people do not make a regular resort of the place.

The difficulties in the way of reaching Haleakala have been equally magnified. It is not far from the truth to say that we met with no difficulties in that trip.
Over half the ascent of the mountain can be made in carriages, over an excellent road, which as it ascends reveals a panorama of ever increasing loveliness. The last nine miles are made on horseback over a good trail. A moonlight night should be chosen, and the trip planned so that the party may arrive at the top a little before sunrise. We had a perfect night and suffered no inconvenience from the cold. Warm wraps should be provided, however, as there is a decided change in the temperature.

I will not attempt to describe the view that rewarded us when the sun appeared above the mountains of clouds with which the east was piled. I have seen the Alpine glow from Rigi-Kulm and the mar-vels of a sunrise on Mirror Lake in the Yosemite. But these were far eclipsed by the glorious cloud picture to which we were treated on Haleakala. Haleakala, house of the sun, glorious old mountain,
well do you deserve your name!
Hoping that these hurried notes
may be a slight help to other tourists, I am, very respectfully yours,
M. L. C.

FORTIFICATIONS OF SAND.

The display of sand-bags which adorned the Palace Monday, creating thereby a pleasing ripple in the still waters of Honolulu life, has ceased, and the royal mansion wears its usual countenance of cheerful monotony. Nothing can be conceived more comical than the bags, except their equally sudden disappearance. Why were they there, and why are they not there? What has induced them to hide with such haste their diminished heads! Was it Ka Leo's suggestion of their strategic uselessness, or the ADVERTISER's gentle hint that the man who put them there was a fool?

Be the explanation as it may, the fact is that the sand is gone,—it was gone from the authorities long ago—and its final appearance is no doubt a token that the war-cloud has vanished from the horizon, and the troubled hearts of the authorities may now rest in peace. The cloud in question was never as large even as a lady's hand, and ought to have scared nobody but a woman. If Xerxes were here no doubt he would repeat that aged observation of his: "My men are become women."

Whatever Xerxes would have thought and said if he had been here, we who are here, and are lovers of peace and quietness, cannot fail to rejoice at the turn things have taken. The prompt action of the authorities shows that we are as safe in their care as an infant asleep in its mother's arms. Think of the foresight, the watchfulness, above all the intelligence which has presided over our affairs! While frivolous, unthinking Honolulu slept, all unconscious of danger, gallant Sam Nowlein, Captain of the Queen's Guards, was shovelling sand into a wheel barrow, and that master of events, the Marshal was "toting" sacks of the stuff on his broad back. Ah! what patriotism was here! Which of us would have done it? Would you have shoveled sand for your country's good, gentle reader? We confess with deep humility that we would not, not even with a special commission from the Marshal!

But it was done by better patriots than any of us, and the end has crowned the work. The driveway is spoiled, but the country is saved. What consternation has not Marshal Wilson carried into the heart of the foe by this one master-stroke? Is there not confusion in the little isle? Teresa and Robert, Wagner and his "Shermans," King Volney V. and his whole kith and kin, are they not amazed and confounded by Marshal Wilson's unexpected display of sand?

The more one considers this matter the more one is impressed with the beauty of its various phases. Marshal Wilson and those who share with him the glory of this affair builded better than they knew. For one thing, a use has been discovered for the army. It is too late to sneer at our gallant forces. True, the employment is a humble one. 'Tis but shovelling sand. But it is labor and honest labor. And there is no question that the soldiers like the work, or they would not sit up nights to do it. All that is needed is to direct their energies a little more wisely. The first business of the Legislature should be to transfer the army to the control of the Road Board. If they had worked on the Waikiki Bridge the Government would have saved a good deal of money. The work out there, people say, was principally shovelling sand.

There are many other points about the Sand Bag Revolution which it might be interesting to comment upon, but their consideration must be deferred. What most persons will feel most deeply in this whole matter is that it is a pity the powers that be are constituted as they are. It is a pity that we cannot have persons to rule over us whose wisdom and sound discretion would make themselves and the country respected. It is a pity that the inanity and imbecility of public officials should make themselves an object of ridicule, and the country a by-word. The assumption of those who start at their own shadows, and by their foolish false alarms and their generally injudicious zeal compromise the Throne which they profess to defend, seems to be that the Hawaiian monarchy exists only by sufferance, while the forces which once sustained it are vanished, and the foundations upon which it rested are undermined.

The importations of beet sugar into the United States last year amounted to $18,348,417.

EVERYBODY

EATS

CRACKERS.

Everybody eats crackers and consequently anything relating to their manufacture and sale is of general interest. There was a time in the history of the business when crackers were all about the same. One brand was just about as good as another and none of them were good enough to be any great temptation to a delicate stomach. That time has passed. It was a good many years ago. The crackers of the present generation are as different as day from night. There are good crackers and bad crackers; fresh crackers and stale crackers; and of the whole lot, stale crackers are the worst.

There are some grocers in the country who sell stale, unpalatable crackers because they can get them cheap and make a big profit on them. They think their customers don't know the difference and by and by, when their cracker trade is all gone, and they don't sell a box in a week, they look surprised and say: "Funny how people's tastes change. People don't care for crackers any more."

Don't they though? People don't care for stale, unwholesome crackers, that's true, but they do care for a cracker that is pure and fresh, and altogether delightful as an article of food.

The American Biscuit Co. has a manufacturing capacity of 800 barrels of flour daily. This enormous quantity it makes into a greater variety of goods than any other bakery in the United States of America, and yet is scarcely able to fill its orders. It is turning out more crackers to-day than it ever did before, and the trade is still growing. Why is it? It is simple enough. Their crackers are the best that are made. People who try them invariably want them again and the grocer who sells them always finds that they not only prove a good source of revenue to him, but make his store popular with the people.

American Crackers

are made by skilled bakers, of the very purest and best materials obtainable. They are sent out of the factory fresh from the ovens, and are never rendered unwholesome and unpalatable as well by being stored in a warehouse a month or two waiting for orders. The orders are always waiting for the crackers. Always ask for

American Crackers.

If you are not already familiar with them, try them and be convinced of the truth of all that has been said about them. You'll never regret it.

Hawaiian Hardware Co., Ltd.

Monday, Mar. 28, 1892.

The weather for the next few months is likely to be dry.

We did not intentionally deceive you in giving the weather probabilities last week—we were misled by using a back number almanac. The dry weather begins today unless we are again deceived.

Three Aermotors went out of the store last week; two of them to people who had bought from us last year and, being satisfied with their bargain, want more. The other customer is just beginning to irrigate his fruit plantation and he selects the Aermotor as the best medium. While our prophecy may have caused you to go down town last week without your umbrella the changeable weather in no way interfered with the sale of the greatest wind motor, (which is the Aermotor) on earth.

During 1891 there were 20,049 Aermotors sold in the United States. During the current year it is expected that three times that number will be added to those sold in previous years. Just fancy! 60,000 new wheels erected for the purpose of making life easier for the man who has stock or lands. 60,000 people who have been convinced that there is only one mill in existence and that the Aermotor. How many will be convinced here that there is no other mill suitable for use on these Islands?

We quote from a letter received from a purchaser on Hawaii:

"Your Aermotor worked though the last big storm all right. It pumps 400 gallons of water per day, through a half-inch pipe, an eighth of a inch pipe through an inch pipe 800 feet, 50 feet above the pump. I find it advisable to oil the Aermotor every day. When the wind blows over 20 miles an hour we shut it half off although it has been left running when the wind was blowing at a greater velocity. In light winds it runs moderately fast, pumping as above—when a Union windmill that we have will not turn around. In heavy winds it runs more regularly than any mill I have ever seen. Further, your guarantee that the pumping Aermotor would do more in a wind that would not turn around the old mill, than the old 14-foot wooden mill would do under the most favorable circumstances has been carried out. I would say in conclusion that you cannot expect a windmill to run without oil any more than you can a wagon, and if an Aermotor is properly put up and properly cared for, I believe that it will give a better return for the money invested than any piece of machinery on the market. The geared Aermotor which I desire you to send me will replace a wooden mill that has been in use less than a year.

Yours Truly,

C. L. WIGHT."

This is Mr. Wight's second rattle at the Aermotor. He buys a geared mill only after giving the pumping Aermotor a very careful test. If the mills will work satisfactorily at Mahukona they will anywhere.

With a 16-ft. geared Aermotor you can run your corn mills—with a 12-foot geared mill you can run your rice mill and save a bushel of money every season. With an 8-foot mill you can irrigate your banana, pine apple or taro beds and increase your business 200 per cent.

If the Supreme Court upholds the decision of Judge Foster in the Chinese cases, the treasury will be enriched to the amount of $11,000.

The newspaper mail sent yesterday aggregated 3709 papers, most of which consisted of the HAWAIIAN GAZETTE and DAILY ADVERTISER.

One of the largest crowds that ever appeared on the Oceanic dock was present yesterday at the departure of the Australia. The flower sellers made a small fortune.

Last evening about 7 o'clock some shots were heard in the vicinity of the barracks and created a little scare. Some of the guards were trying their arms—that's all.

Thirty-five Chinese were tried and convicted yesterday in the Police Court for violating the Restriction Act. They were all fined $200 each, and the cases appealed.

The street car company still persists in using that "cruelty to animals" watering cart. It is expected that when the Marshal gets over his revolutionary scare he will look after this glaring abuse of horses.

The decision in the Oahu election case will be filed to-day. Owing to the length of the document it was impossible to have it ready yesterday. A full report of it will appear in the ADVERTISER to-morrow morning.

It is stated that Mr. Huntsman had an interview with the Marshal the other day, in which he denied having anything to do with the "sandbag" revolution. In consequence his name was stricken off the "spotted" list.

Mr. John L. Kaulikou gave a luncheon in honor of the birthday anniversary of his son yesterday at his Nuuanu valley residence. Many of the leading Hawaiians were present at the festivities, which they pronounced as "maikai loa."

Mail dispatched by the steamer Australia consisted of 13,236 letters and 3709 papers. This is the largest mail ever dispatched from the Post Office. This is undoubtedly due to the reduction in postage. By the last Australia 10,000 letters were dispatched.

People who were out late last evening were busy dodging what they thought to be footpads. Their fears turned out to be squads of police—three in each squad—located on street corners. It has been suggested that the guardians of the peace (f) be served with hot coffee during their sleepy hours.

THE SAND BAGS.

Something About the Belated Revolution.

Wilson and Whiting Forcing Hard Times Away From the Ammunition Stores.

There is little difference of opinion among the sensible men of the community regarding the belated revolution. It has been so long in coming that the average man is very tired of hearing idiotic reports that evidently emanate from the stone building on Merchant street called the Station House.

A number of prominent citizens remarked yesterday that the "authorities were trying to assist the by making such ridiculous preparations to defeat them."

The action of the people in the sand-bags to be placed around the building is severely condemned by everybody that has the least sense.

It is reported that they had ample evidence that the attack was to be made on the Palace on Monday evening, and that is the reason the toy barricade was erected on the grounds.

Another wise citizen remarked that if the people in charge of the Government's welfare had such authentic information, "Why did they not arrest the ringleaders of the alleged uprising?"

The sand bag farce is over, and the driveway around the Palace is the sufferer. The bags were filled with black sand taken from the former, and until it is replaced, the roads around the Palace will present a very bare sight.

The supposed revolution was anticipated by Whiting and Wilson (in their minds only) some weeks ago, as their actions prove. They bought almost the entire supply of arms and ammunition contained in two prominent stores, and had their purchases conveyed to the Station House to be prepared for the supposed trouble.

It is stated that on last Saturday Sam Nowlen made another investment in warlike goods that must have exhausted the supply of the stock carried by the dealers. The revolution is a myth.

Information was received yesterday that the Flagship San Francisco has everything in readiness to land her men and artillery in case of any trouble.

A Gay Sight on the Australia.

The usual farewell send-off was accorded to the two hundred and eight passengers by the steamer Australia yesterday. Tourists, kamaianas, in fact, almost all were bedecked with wreaths. The Hawaiian Band played many lively musical selections prior to the steamer's leaving, which are always appreciated by departing passengers, as some of them may not be privileged to hear its sweet melodies again.

About eighty of the boys and girls and teachers from Oahu College were at the wharf to give their aloha to one of their number, Hiram Bingham, Jr., who is going away to complete his education in America. The boys gave three hearty college yells to their departing comrade. The deck of the Australia from bow to stern presented a most delightful sight, crowded as it was with a gay company of happy tourists decorated with leis in all the colors of the iris. The general remark among those on the wharf was that in no other part of the world is such a scene witnessed at the departure of a steamer.

In 1887 there was but one beet sugar refinery in the United States, situated at Alvarado, Alameda County, Cal. In that year there were but 400,000 pounds of sugar produced. In 1888 the total had increased to 3,600,000 pounds. The following year it nearly doubled. In 1891 California turned out 13,000,000 pounds, and Nebraska and Utah 6,000,000 pounds each.

The London Polytechnic Institute expects that its plan for bringing artisans and others of limited means to the Columbian Exposition will result in enabling 1,500 to 2,000 such persons to visit Chicago at a total expense of something like $125 or $130 each for the round trip.

The Tourists' Guide for the Hawaiian Islands can be had at this office. It contains descriptive matter pertaining to the different islands and maps. No tourist should be without the guide as it will save them a lot of bother and questions.

Japan has appropriated $630,765 for its representation at the World's Fair. A splendid Japanese exhibit is assured.

WHARF AND WAVE.

The schooner Aloha is still at anchor out in the stream with her million feet of lumber on board. She will dock at Allen & Robinson's wharf as soon as the bark Matilda leaves that wharf, probably about the latter end of this week.

The bark Edward May has been unable to get Chinese passengers for Hongkong. The Chinese prefer returning home by the P. M. S. S. Co.'s steamers.

The steamer W. G. Hall arrived from windward ports on Tuesday morning with 3915 bags sugar, 25 head cattle, 37 kegs butter and 102 pkgs. sundries.

The steamer Kilauea Hou brought yesterday 6460 bags sugar from Hamakua, Hawaii, and 40 head of cattle from Nu. Maui. She leaves again this afternoon.

The bark Edward May will sail for Hongkong either to-morrow or Friday morning. She goes away in ballast to load at the Philippine Islands for New York.

The bark C. D. Bryant has completed unloading cargo. She is now moored at the Waikiki end of the O. S. S. Co.'s wharf yesterday to unload freight and load sugar.

The O. S. S. Australia left for San Francisco at noon, March 29. She took 208 saloon and steerage passengers. Her freight consisted of 11,820 bags sugar, 4323 bags rice, 6252 bunches of bananas, 2400 pieces of hides and skins, and about 1100 packages sundries. The cargo was valued at $88,622.34, the domestic produce alone being valued at $81,483.39.

The schooner Robert Lewers went over to the P. M. S. S. Co.'s wharf yesterday to discharge cargo. The Golden Shore was docked at Wilder's wharf to unload its ballast.

There are twenty-five whale-back boats in actual commission, twenty on the lakes, four on the Atlantic and one on the Pacific. The Wetmore, which lately arrived on the latter coast, has just cleared with a cargo of coal from Seattle to Santiago, and only a few days since another of this type of boat left Boston for Yucatan. The sea-going qualities of these vessels, which is now a disputed question, is likely to be settled by the fact that if that is claimed for it by the inventors is true, the construction of this type of boat will rapidly increase. Eight vessels are now on the stocks in the yard of the "Whaleback" company at West Superior, and two more are shortly to be commenced.—Exchange.

Time is Money! Where shall we go? Such is often the query addressed to each other by Tourists before doing the sights and scenes of the city. Now, as time is money to many of our foreign visitors, the following places of interest are suggested: Commence the day by a ride to the heights of Punchbowl, then pay a visit to the Government Building, the Palace, and afterwards Williams' Photographic Studio, 104 Fort Street, and examine views until lunch time. After lunch a visit may be paid to the Kanehameha School, the Bishop Museum and the Insane Asylum grounds at Palama. The coconut grove at Waikiki and the famous Long Branch Baths could now be visited. Souvenirs of all the places seen could afterwards be obtained by selection from the numerous views on exhibition at Williams' Photo Gallery, 104 Fort Street.

KAU ELECTION.

Held By the Court To Be Void.

Ap'kt Wins His Case—The People Will Have Another Chance To Elect Him.

The Kau Election Case is over, and the Chief Justice and his party were able to return to Honolulu by the Hall, which reached port yesterday morning. The grounds on which the plaintiff rested his case will appear from the following allegations of his petition.

1. That petitioners are residents of the district of Kau, being the seventh electoral district of the Island of Hawaii, and that on the third day of February last past they were and now are lawfully entitled to vote in the said district for a Representative to the Legislature.

2. That at the election held by law on the said third day of February, one O. K. Apiki and one J. N. Kapahu were candidates for election as Representative to the Legislature from said district of Kau.

3. That at such election the result of the votes polled was declared to be as follows: In the first precinct O. K. Apiki received 43 votes and J. N. Kapahu received 51 votes, and in the second precinct O. K. Apiki received 125 votes and J. N. Kapahu received 120 votes, giving the said J. N. Kapahu a majority over the said O. K. Apiki of 12 votes.

4. That petitioners allege the truth to be that in the first precinct 15 votes were cast for Apiki which the Inspectors of Election refused and failed to count, claiming that the same were illegal and contrary to law because they were marked on the left hand side of the name of Apiki.

5. That petitioners admit that such ballots were marked on the left hand side, but claim that they are therefore not illegal, but that they are legal and should have been counted.

6. That one Kaipapalima, a non-resident of said Kau and not entitled by law to register or vote, did register and vote at said election in the second precinct of the district.

7. That the Inspectors of Election of the first precinct contrary to law held a meeting for the registration of voters in said precinct on the 30th day of January, 1892, and then and there registered over twenty names of persons as voters for Representative, which persons so registered and voted at said election in the said precinct.

8. That the Inspectors of Election of the second precinct rejected one vote cast for Apiki, claiming that the cross was not opposite his name and therefore was illegal, but petitioners claim that such cross was opposite the name of Apiki and should have immediately on the filing of the petition containing the foregoing allegations the Chief Justice issued the following order:

I hereby set and appoint Thursday, the 24th day of March, 1892, at 1 o'clock p. m., at the Court House in Waiohine, District of Kau, in the Island of Hawaii, before such Justice of the Supreme Court as shall then and there be present, as the time and place for hearing the within petition. And that notice of this petition be served upon the Inspectors of Election for the Kau District, Hawaii, and upon J. N. Kapahu, the candidate elect, and others whose rights or interests are particularly interested, by serving a copy of this petition upon T. P. Harris, Geo. Timoteo or J. W. Kuaimoku, of the first precinct, and upon G. S. Patten, M. Malakana or L. R. Macomber of the second precinct; and upon said J. N. Kapahu with notice to appear at the time and place aforesaid to show cause why said petition should not be granted. And besides such notice as written or printed notice shall likewise be posted in the district aforesaid for not less than ten days prior to such hearing, requiring all parties interested therein to appear and show cause, if any they have, why said petition should not be granted.

The plaintiff relied chiefly upon the fact that the Inspectors had held a meeting and registered voters after the expiration of the period prescribed for this purpose by law. The Court held that this action was illegal, and invalidated the election, the number of persons thus registered in violation of the law having been sufficient to change the result. The Court sustained the Inspectors in their rejection of ballots marked with a cross on the left instead of the right hand side of the name.

No appeal was taken, and a new election must be ordered by the Minister of the Interior.

Essence of Cinnamon.

It may be remarked, if only in justification of "the wisdom of our ancestors," that one of M. Pasteur's young men has discovered that no living germ of disease can resist the antiseptic power of essence of cinnamon for more than a few hours. In destroying microbes it is not less effective than corrosive sublimate. Even the scent kills them. A decoction of cinnamon should be drunk in localities where typhoid fever or cholera prevails. Ages ago, in the various preventative used to avert plague and other infectious disease, cinnamon was a leading ingredient.

SELECTIONS

Can Horses Communicate?

That cattle and horses can communicate intelligence to each other, and are endowed with a certain amount of reasoning faculty, the following facts are pretty conclusive proof. I once purchased a station in Australia on which a large number of cattle and horses had gone wild. To get the cattle I fenced the permanent water in distance of twenty miles, leaving traps at intervals. At first this answered all right, but soon the cattle became exceedingly cautious about entering the traps, waiting outside for two or three nights before going in, and if they could smell a man or his tracks, not going in at all. A mob would come to the trap gate, and one would go in and drink and come out, and then another would do the same and so on till all had watered. They had evidently arrived at the conclusion that I would not catch one and frighten all the others away.

To get in the wild horses, 600 of which were running on a large plain (about 30,000 acres), I erected a stock yard with a gradually widening lane in a hollow where it could not easily be seen, and by stationing horsemen at intervals on the plain galloped the wild horses in. My first hunt (which lasted for some days) was successful, the wild horses heading toward the mouth of the lane without much difficulty, but of course some escaped by charging back at the stock yard gate and in other ways. My second hunt, about a month later, was a failure; every mob of horses on the plain seemed to know where the yard was and would not head that way. This seems to show that the horses that escaped from the first hunt told all the others where the stock yard was.—Cor. London Spectator.

Origin of the Piano.

The pianoforte was invented by Bartolomeo Cristofori, a harpsichord maker of Padua, Italy, who exhibited four instruments in 1709. The honor was formerly claimed by Marinus, a French maker, who produced a piano in 1716, while German writers maintained that Schroeter, of Dresden, was the initiator of the instrument. The earliest date ascribed to the latter's achievement, however, is 1711. During the present century, however, an Italian document was discovered, written by Marchese Scipione Maffei, a Florentine scholar, in 1711, which testifies that Bartolomeo Cristofori, of that city, exhibited four pianos in 1709, which statement was originally published in "The Giornale in 1711," which testifies that Bartolomeo Cristofori's action principle, employing hammers, which constituted the chief difference between the harpsichord and the piano.

In Maffei's writings Cristofori's name is given as "Cristofali," but this is proved to be an error, because inscriptions upon existing pianofortes give the name as "Cristofori." Father Wood, an English monk, living at Rome, is also said to have made a pianoforte similar to Cristofori's in 1711, which he exhibited in England, where it attracted much notice.

Cristofori did not remain idle after introducing his first instrument. He became in 1711, comparatively poor.—Daniel Spillane in Popular Science Monthly.

The New Year in Scotland.

Every householder knows when Boxing day comes round (because of the people who "come round" with it), and also New Year's day. Even the oldest of us are wished a "happy return" of it, for "there is no one," says Cicero, "who does not think he may live a year." Moreover, if we do not give our family the usual presents on that day they do not scruple to remind us of it. However artificial, indeed, may be the division of our year, the first day stands out in it in a peculiar manner, and really seems to separate the old from the new, though we must have lived in Scotland to know how very much New Year's day may mean.

In that country it is Christmas day and all the saints' days rolled into one. Everybody sits up till 12 o'clock to "see the New Year in," and in the more enthusiastic households the house door is unbarred with great formality to speed the parting and welcome the coming guest. In England the New Year has never been made so much of, and such customs as belonged to it are dying out, but in America it is "kept" with enthusiasm.—Illustrated London News.

Telling Time at Night from the Dipper.

The time can be approximately told at night by the position of the dipper. If the position of the "pointers" is taken at any given hour, say 6 o'clock in the evening in the winter time and as soon as it is dark in the summer, the hour thereafter can be pretty accurately measured by the eye during the night. Frequent observations of positions will have to be made at the given hour, as owing to the constant changing of the earth's position in space, the position of the "pointers" in relation to our point of observation and the star also change.—Yankee Blade.

The Coconut as a Vermifuge.

The coconut has been used as a vermifuge in India for generations by the beef eaters of the country, and is so well known there as a means of expelling the flat worm that we cannot understand why the information of that fact has not reached us before. When properly and intelligently administered the coconut is equally efficacious with male fern oil, kousso, pomegranate root or turpentine, while it is as pleasant to the palate as they are offensive, and in no way injurious.—Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine.

So far as the enrollment books are concerned, the University of Michigan and Harvard university lead the collegiate lists. This year there are 2,495 students at the former and 2,618 at the latter.

A BELLIGERENT CRAB.

Is Said To Shell a Coconut Quicker Than a Man.

The hermit crab exhibited by Hobron, Newman & Co. for a few days, is dead. He was an interesting animal, but not a consideration to the famous coconut crabs common in the South Seas, which can shell a coconut faster than a man can. Many years ago Dr. Judd imported one of these portentous animals from Fanning's Island. It used to get into the inside of a coconut with the speed of chain lightning. As it also had a weakness for chasing the children round the yard, and picking quarrels on the most frivolous pretences with neighboring bull dogs, it had to be chained up and kept in a box. One day it escaped, and nothing was seen of it for three months. One night someone, having occasion to visit the cellar, was startled by the sight of two yellow eyes glaring out of the dark like the headlights of a locomotive. It was the crab. He had been leading a melancholy and emaciated existence in the cellar for months, feeding on cobwebs in default of coconuts, and getting paler and thinner every day.

Shortly after, the crab disappeared, and nothing has been seen of him since. It should not be too hastily inferred, however, that the fellow is dead, for these animals are said to live a hundred years, and there will be no safety for lone widows, belated bicyclists and policemen on their beats, until the full period has expired. Here is a new scare for the Marshall's department.

If the army would dig in the sand and catch one of these crabs and station him at the Palace, there would be no revolution.

A Few Hints to Bicycle Purchasers.

Before buying a bicycle and paying your good hard Hawaiian dollars for it, stop and consider a few points.

Consider how many different makes of bicycles, both American and foreign, there are on the market.

Consider how little the majority of purchasers know of the quality of metal used in the bicycle they are examining, and how much they must rely on the reputation on the manufacturer or dealer.

Consider how essential it is that a bicycle should be made of the best steel forgings, tubes and wire, and that the greatest care should be used in putting the parts together to insure long life and ease in running.

Consider all these points, and then ask yourself if you are really a judge of a wheel, or if you are safe in taking the advice of a friend who, possibly, may not know any more about a wheel than you do.

After you have considered, and if you are able to decide to your satisfaction, then buy the bicycle that suits you. If you have any doubts, then be on the safe side and buy the bicycle that is mentioned by the greatest number of persons as the leading wheel.

The COLUMBIA is admitted by all to be of the highest grade and the leading bicycle. I have handled the Columbia from the first and my experience is that it is the most satisfactory wheel for an agent to sell or a wheelman to ride.

The advantages in buying a Columbia are:

First—You get the wheel that is recognized as the leading bicycle, being made of the best metal and shows best workmanship.

Second—You get the prettiest 1892 wheel.

Third—You get a wheel of American manufacture, and can easily replace parts. You can obtain obtain parts of any wheel made by this company years hence.

Fifth—You can always sell a second-hand Columbia quicker and get a better price than for any other wheel.

Sixth—You will, at any time be given information regarding the care or repairing of the wheel purchased, by the local agent.

Have you found the Columbia Bicycle Agent?

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the statements made, or opinions expressed by our correspondents.

MR. EDITOR: The tax on inheritances is by no means the novelty that your article on Saturday would seem to imply, neither is New York or Switzerland the first or the only commonwealth collecting taxes on inheritance; in fact, for many years the "Legacy and Succession" duties have been amongst the largest contributors to the revenues of Great Britain.

More than a century ago, in fact in 1780, receipts for legacies were subjected to a "stamp duty," thus instituting a tax upon inheritances. Sixteen years later, 1796, this became a direct tax under the name of "legacy duty," an impost which was increased in 1805, 1808 and 1845.

In 1853 the legacy duty was extended to landed and real property, and was made payable on succession to both land and personal property, and is generally known as the "succession duty."

The graduated tax, heavier on collateral than on direct inheritances, has also been in force for many years, and is payable whenever the capital value of the whole succession exceeds £100, or when the individual succession exceeds £20.

Husband or wife must pay probate, but not other succession duty. Children of deceased or their descendants—father, mother or other lineal ancestor—pay 1 per cent. Brothers and sisters and their descendants 3 per cent.; uncles and aunts and their descendants, 5 per cent.; great uncles and aunts and their descendants, 6 per cent.; any other collateral relationship or strangers in blood pay no less than 10 per cent.

A recent Act adds to the duty paid by "lineal ancestor" of deceased.

The total revenue derived from the "taxes on inheritance" in Great Britain and Ireland for the year 1891 are given in Whitaker's Almanac under the collective title of "Death Duties," and amounted to £9,856,957, being an increase of £3,013,482 over that collected in the previous year (1891).

The "taxes on inheritance," therefore, provide one-tenth of the total revenue of the United Kingdom.

MR. EDITOR: "Who is C. Burnett?" was my first thought after reading his warning notes in a late issue of the "Royalist." How plaintively he twangs on the time-worn strings, and bids his fellow creatures continue in the old rut of things because we might dish a wheel in trying to get out of it. He says if the people would stop and consider, etc., they would be much happier to-day—that now they are afraid of an imaginary something about annexation, etc., which latter statement is correct—but the more they stop and consider, the less they fear the possibility of such a consummation. Then he goes on to say, "at present it is utterly impossible for this country to be annexed to the United States."

After that statement he should have signed it "The Oracle," but he forgot to tell us why it is impossible, and how he came to know of it. As to the "old residents" whose interests are in this country who do not wish it (a Republic) and will strive against its accomplishment, I simply want to ask him if he knows that the Constitution of 1887 was the outcome of a movement for a republican form of government, and that nearly all the residents, old and young, were in that movement.

He insults the Hawaiian race and ignores one of their most admirable traits of character when he tells us that they will burn our homes, etc. Possessed of a keen sense of his rights, the Hawaiian has, at different times in the history of this country, resisted the attempts made by foreigners to abridge those rights, but has never shown himself capable even under such extreme pressure of riotously burning and destroying the private property of foreigners.

Mr. Editor, rumors are heard on every hand during the past few days as to a projected change of government for these Islands. The causes which seem to have led a large number of Hawaiians to desire such a change may be found: First, in the manner of obtaining the Constitution of 1887; second, the attitude of the Queen toward a supposed number of her subjects since her accession; third, the interpretations of the Constitution as rendered from time to time by the Supreme Court; fourth, the seeming disfranchisement of a portion of native voters by the qualifications required of a voter for Nobles; fifth, the reduction of assessments on various plantations. This list might be extended but they are the sum of my observations in intercourse and conversation, with the general run of Hawaiians that I met in every day life. They constitute a list of grievances (fancied or real) which are gaining converts every day, several of them are shared by a considerable number of white voters on principle.

It is argued that if the present Constitution is so glaringly defective as to not protect the voting element against hordes of aliens, who are brought here under government auspices for the benefit of a comparative few, and to the detriment of the community at large, then the sooner we have a new Constitution the better for the community. Equality was what our forefathers fought and died for, and the desire for equal rights and the sentiments inculcated by it have not lost ground since the days of 1776.

The missionary brought that spirit with him when he came to these shores, the native imbibed it and stands ready to-day to demand full recognition of his rights to equality and protection.

If there is any such movement on foot let it be known. There is nothing to be ashamed of in an argument for better government—in fact the present Constitution if it truly embodies the principles of equality and justice has nothing to lose by such public discussions. Let those who are competent to argue the matter on either side come forward and do so, and if the general sentiment seems to incline to a change there will probably be one.

In conclusion I want to say that I know of no movement of the kind mentioned by the writer first quoted, if there is such my convictions are that we can improve our condition by the change.

I, like many others, served the present Government through two trying periods, risking my life for the sake of a Constitution which was supposed to protect me and mine against an alien element which had become very self-asserting at the time of promulgating our present Constitution. During the last election we were asked by the leaders of the revolution 1887 to vote for a set of men of whom their flannel-mouthed spokesman pointed to as men who had not carried a gun in that revolution. When there is another attempt made, the Mick that I write of can try on the gun-carrying to his heart's content; but it will be a cold day for them with a majority of the boys when they try to reorganize the loyal 400, for the Honolulu Rifles will never again turn out, as they did in July, 1889, to defend that which cannot protect them. I can see nothing but ruin to the rising generation in the present policy of the country; and as I am so circumstanced that I and my family have to stay here, therefore I am in favor of a change that shall insure us the protection that we require. The obstacles to obtaining our rights under the present Constitution, or by the methods it provides, are of such a nature as to be practically insurmountable.

is dead. He is now lying in state in our mauka show window. He was a good fellow and we are sorry he died. We might have prolonged his life, however, had we known the true condition of his liver. We discovered it after his demise. Through the thin, transparent skin this organ could be seen. It was in a very unnatural state. No wonder he was looking for the New Drug Store. He was on his way when the fisherman captured him. Beecham's Pills were what he wanted. He knew we had received a large quantity by the last "Australia" direct from the manufacturers. These pills are good for bilious and nervous disorders, sick headache, loss of appetite, and many other ailments. Ours are of recent manufacture and are sugar coated which makes them pleasant to take.

We are now the Agents for Dr. Sheffield's Creme Dentifrice. This tooth paste is made by Dr. Sheffield a distinguished dentist of Philadelphia. It comes in collapsible tubes which make it very convenient to use. Has an agreeable taste and an aromatic odor. So many of our customers call for this dentifrice we believe you will like it. If you have never tried it drop in for a sample tube. We have hundreds to give away.

Have you a horse or any other animal? If so we have a stock of Humphrey's Veterinary Specifics. You ought to have a stable case containing all the remedies you will ever need. If you don't want a case you can buy a bottle or so as you may require them. We've a guide book to go with them.

Sail ho! Ship Ahoy!

Captain, don't be bashful, but come right aboard and make yourself at home, and while you are resting after your long voyage just take a look round and see the number and variety of articles we keep, that are always needed and useful on board of any ship. If you are in need of Rope for rigging, we can supply you with pure Manila from Eastern Manufacturers or from Tubbs Rope Factory, California, or we can furnish Hong Kong Rope, and these in all sizes from 6th to 7 inch.

If your ship happens to be a "lame duck" and you want to refit, we can furnish you with the best of iron wire Rope for standing rigging, galv'd steel, and flexible wire Rope, wire Seizing, Hemp Rope, ass'd; Spun Yarn, Marline, Loglines, Ratline, all sizes; Seizing, Houseline, Hausbroline. We can furnish you with any kind of a Block needed on board ship, or common, patent or metaline Sheaves.

If you have carried away or torn your sails, we can sell you cotton and hemp duck all sizes; hemp and cotton twine, etc., for repairs. If you are in need of SHIP HARDWARE you will find here iron and brass rowlocks, belayingpins, iron or hickory; parrel-trucks, boat hooks, sounding leads, patent logs, hawsing mallets, bow chocks, galv'd and brass cleats, fair leaders, lizzards, mast head trucks, ship scrapers, rigging screws, wrist shackles, deck buckets; OARS of all lengths, water hose, suction hose, ship pumps.

You may be in need of a pair of marine glasses, a log book, ship compass, quadrant or a sextant, we have them and Nautical Almanacs for 1892. If you will step across the street to our ware house, we can show you, cases of yellow metal, felt sheathing, sheet lead, pitch, bales of oakum, Stockholm and coal tar, rosin, cotton waste, raw and boiled linseed oil, turpentine, kerosene and sperm oil. It is hardly necessary to mention that we keep in stock as fine a stock of paints of all kinds and colors as can be found in this market.

If there is anything else, Captain, that is wanted on board your ship, we either have it or can get it; from a quarter of beef, or a basket of green groceries to a thousand or more gallons of water. We sell our Ship Chandlery at very low prices compared with the old Honolulu rates, and our goods are all fresh and of the latest patterns.

Besides SHIP CHANDLERY we keep the fullest line of HARDWARE, METALS, NAILS and TOOLS of all kinds to be found in this town. Captain, we are glad to have had the pleasure of showing you our establishment, and hope you will call again and often. Thanks for your order which will be filled immediately, if not sooner, and sent on board this afternoon.

ANNIE PIXLEY AT HOME.

Interesting Sketch from the Pen of Olive Harper.

Among the many good and true women of the stage few have the home instinct more largely developed than Annie Pixley, and her home life is an exquisite repose after the work and glitter of the theater. There she lives a sweet, wholesome, womanly life and gives her time to the decoration and beautifying of her pretty home like any young woman rejoicing in its orderly arrangement and her hands have wrought out marvels of dainty grace as restful as it is artistic.

Her home is in a delightful, large New York flat, with a great bay window in the parlor which gives a view into one of the prettiest parks, and this room opens with folding door to a sunny library. Here is the desk where she writes all the pleasant little letters her friends love to get, and the safe where her MS. plays are kept. There are three there now, which she will produce as soon as her new theater in New York is ready. She is resting this season.

Her parlor is unusually large for a flat, and is handsomely furnished in soft, pleasing color. Over the chimney is a novel arrangement of mandolins, guitars and other musical instruments, and in a corner an etagere full of curios that are really rare. She has a wonderful parrot in a cage that chatters like a four-year-old child, and a canary sits in his cage by a window.

On the wall hangs a life size picture of Roland Falford, her only child, whose sad death at the age of twelve has cast a shadow over his young mother's life that will never lift.

In her bedroom, which is just back of the parlor, is a fine marble bust of this beautiful boy, and everywhere are sweet reminders of him, so that his presence seems to pervade everything.

Annie Pixley is the happy wife of Robert Falford, to whose good judgment and careful management much of their financial success is due, and their married life has been exceptionally happy.

On the stage Annie Pixley is sprightly, gay and apparently full and running over with animal spirits. At home and by nature she is serious almost to gravity, but always sweet and womanly. Her voice is low and musical, and she is quiet in her movements and of the most refined manners. No word of slang or scandal ever passes her lips, and much as one must admire her on the stage she proves ten times more lovable in her home.

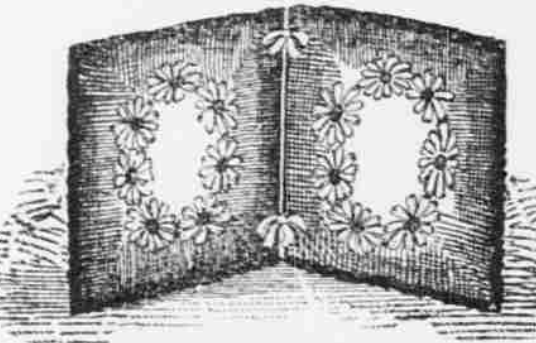

She dresses for the street with quiet simplicity and her home gowns are models of taste and neatness. She can make and always designs her own dresses, and is very fond of sewing.

Annie Pixley is a Californian.

OLIVE HARPER.

To Preserve Photographs.

To make a really exquisite photograph frame cut—no, tear—two pieces of water color paper eight by ten inches in size. Lightly sketch in the center an ellipse large enough to show, when cut out, a cabinet photograph. Do not cut it out yet, however, but with a coarse brush and some water color cobalt blue, shade each embryo frame from a deep color at the edge to white where the opening is to be made. While each is drying prepare two similar sized sheets, without any place for openings, and shade them away to the center, which should be almost white. These will form the backs. Take the fronts and with the deep color outline large stemless daisies, arranged so that each one's petals touch some of those on either side around the ellipse. When these are dry place the paper on a board and cut out the opening with a knife point, following the lines of the petals where they lie next to the oval. Prepare two sheets of Bristol board a little smaller than the sheets of tinted paper and glue one behind each piece which contains the opening. A little glue in each corner will be all that is necessary. Lastly, glue the tinted backs to the other side of the Bristol board and place all under a heavy weight to become quite smooth. The next step is to put gilt centers to all the daisies. Finally punch holes in each half of the holder, one near the top, one near the bottom, and fasten with narrow blue satin ribbon.

A Nebraska woman tried raising sugar beets last season. She did all the work with her own hands except preparing the ground and digging the beets when they were grown. Result—12,178 pounds of sugar beets. They were sent to the agricultural experiment station, and the director found they contained 19.7 per cent. sugar, which proved them of first class quality.
