The Ballad of the Whale. BY READ THORSTON.

The Northman lay on his iron cliff, oking the Norman sea ; With his bold, blue eyes of wild emprise, Abroad o'er the wave looked he. In a restless mood of solitude. He longs in the chase to roam :

I've conquered the bear in the Tornean wood, And the shark by the deep Maelstroom !"

" My fitting foe lived long ago-The mighty mustodon!"

His blue eyes bravely glanced below-The chief from his cliff had gone ! Tis the whale; you whale that tempts his sail,

Like an island he moveth on-"By the boundless sea, I'll conquer the,

He darted his skiff from the foot of the cliff, All armed with corded spear ; Soon the barb is dyed in the sea beast's side. And away to the West they steer. With hempen rein, o'er the ocean plain,

With the red setting sun a race they run, In the road of its ruddy glow. And the sterm-waves keep up a glassy calm, That strange first bark to see ; And the sea-gods rose the chase to char And should—"We'll ride with thee!"

More fleet than the sledge they go;

And one of their troop the Norman chos To share in his daring deed; White was her breast as the Finland snows, Her heart like the brown sen-weed.

And thus they twain o'er rode the main, And the Norman's shirt of mail, With his shield he clashed, and y land-way washed, Till he stranded the manufacture hale!

That night on the strand of Owhyhee's land, He built for his mermaid bride A bowery hat, and the oil he cut, For a lamp from the monster's side.

And from these two there sprang a crew, The beldest to spread the sail; And on every plain of the stormy main They chase the tumbling whale! -

We heard, says the Boston Traveller, of a juvenile prayer—offered up a few nights ago—which exceeds in originality anything we ever heard of. It ran thus

"I lay my body down to sleep, And pray the Lord my soul to keep; If I should die before I wake— Pop goes the weasel."

So saying, she fell asleep. It was about time. IDLE VISITS.—The idle are a very heavy tax upon the industrious, when by frivolous visitations they rob them of their time. LITTLE GIBLS.—There is something inexpressibly sweet about little girls. Lively, pure, innocent, ingenuous, unsuspecting, full of kindness to brothers, babies, and everything. They are little human flowers, diamond dew-drops of the breath of morn. What a pity they should ever become women, flirts, and heartless coquettes! THE SHANGHAI'S ALARM .- What can that longogged Shanghai mean by uttering his alarm-cluck? Surely he must either see a hawk or his shadow. A Surely he must either see a hawk or his shadow. A hen who is scratching near a wood-pile, flies with all her chickens, and hides beneath the logs. The panic spreads to all the poultry in the yard. Still, neither in the sky nor on the earth do I see hawk or shadow. That long-legged Shanghai must have keen senses. Hark! now I hear them—the bird-of-passage notes of a flock of wild geese. And now I see them wedging their way southward. Long-legged Shanghai! what ails thee? I know thee to be a bird of courage when pitted against thy fellows. What ails thee? And does it hold good with chickens as with men, that a faint sound often breeds more are than a drawn neord?

In this city, on Wednesday morning last, of chronic pericar-dilis, or disease of the heart, Charles Nelson, a carpenter, na-tive of New York State, aged about 38 years. In San Francisco, Nov. 1, Gessie, eldest daughter of Eveline J and Milo Calkin; born at the Sandwich Islands, May 12, 1845.
In Medford, Mass., Oct 3, aged 69 years, Mrs. Marv, widow of William Howe, and mother of Mr. Geo. G Howe, of this city.
Lost overboard from the whaleship Daniel Wood, Dec. 22, 1856, John Q. Riccs, a seaman, aged about 21 years, belonging to Avon, New York State.

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26. THE statement of Capt. Newell of the bark Alice Frazier, in regard to the mutiny on board his ship, published in our issue last week, has no doubt been generally perused. In such disturbances there are always two sides to the story, and we avoided expressing any opinion on the subject until the opposite party could have their statement published, should they choose to doso. At the request of the seamen whose names are anpended to it, we insert their account of the affair in another column of to-day's paper. The two statements are now before the public. and there can be very little question, judging solely from what has been published, that there was resistance to the authority of the master of the Alice Frazier, and a settled determination not to do ship's duty when on the whaling ground at east, if not before, and that such resistance and mutinous determination extended to several of the erew. It does not require open revolt on the part of seamen to justify the master in aresting and confining them. He can do so if he has good grounds for believing that they have any such purpose in view. The rights and duties of masters and are clearly laid down in American and British laws. An endeavor to make a revolt or mutiny on board of a ship at sea is punished by imprisonment for five years.

"Any seaman who unlawfully confines the master or other meer commanding, is punished in the same manner as for an adeavor to make a revolt. "And if the master does, a fact, go unmolested to every part of the ship whenever ke leases, yet if he is compelled, by a regard for his own safety, to a srieed, and is restrained from performing the duties of his tation by such mutinous conduct of his crew, as might intimidate firm man, this would amount to confinement." Pet. 213.

The statement of John Fernand, which appears day is not so authentic as we could wish. It appears from what he says that he was not a witness of the scene which resulted in the death of cane is of black ebony, highly polished, with a head Harry Shenrard as published last week. Of of California gold-bearing quartz. The following onfined, and it may be true or not. The skullcap, which we have seen, bears evidence of having been pierced by a ball, but it would require positive proof on the point to disprove the state nent of the captain, which was that he did not have his cap on at the time of his death. Whether he captain was justified in striking either of the en when in shackles is a questionable point. A ailor is authorized to silence a prisoner who may attempt resistance, or is unruly even when in irons. And the authority of a captain is cerainly not less than that of a jailor. We are informed that on his arrival at Hilo, Capt. Newell solicited an investigation of the af-fair, and the depositions of the officers and seanen on hoard the Alice Frazier were taken before the American Consul at that port. The evidence roduced before Major Miller, we understand oes to corroborate the statements of Capt. Newell in our last issue. And we learn further that his Gov. Johnson "as a day of public thanksgiving and samen were so satisfied with his conduct that prayer." Has Hawaii forgotten to give thanks this they preferred remaining with him rather than year?

taking their discharge. Captain Newell's reputation as a shipmaster and as a man, stands high with his fellow masters, and with all who know him, and we have full confidence that the more that is known of the case, the more credit will attach to him. for the exercise of firm forbearance in one of those trying and unpleasant disturbances which, we are happy to say, are of rare occurrence in this ocean.

A seaman when he ships is supposed to know his duty-which is nothing else than obedience to the commands of the master. Any disobedience of his orders is more or less mutinous conduct, and the seaman who disobeys orders does so at his peril. It is true that a master may be unnecessarily severe, but there are very seldom cases where resistance on the part of a seaman is justifiable. The cruises of whale ships are not long. and in most cases a seaman who is unjustly treated can procure his discharge, and try another vessel

While on this subject of the rights and duties of masters and seamen, we will allude to the question raised by the recent arrest of the firs officer of the Charles Carroll, referred to in our last issue and commented on by writers in the Polynesian. Though ours is a little government yet it very properly clings with the tenacity of a Scotch terrier to all the rights which the most nowerful nations claim or concede to each other There are certain rights which nothing but international usage can settle. Among them are those of jurisdiction on the high seas. Were there but one great nation in existence, the dominion of the sea would be hers as clearly as that of the land. But rivalry between nations fixes another limit to the jurisdiction of each-which every school boy knows is one league from low water mark. In our last issue it was asserted that the police officers of the government had exceeded their authority in boarding a foreign ship at sea off the port, and arresting the commanding officer. The statement was made on the assertion of those supposed to know the facts. On further inquiry we find the facts to have been these: While the ship Charles Carroll had on board a pilot and was about to leave the port, a warrant was issued to detain the first officer, which was placed in the hands of a police officer, who followed the ship out and boarded her near the spar buoy, just as the pilot had left her and while her sails were aback, and the crew catting the anchor. In this case the vessel appears not to have proceeded beyond the territory of the kingdom at the time she was boarded, and the arrest was evidently legal.

When the item was inserted in the last paper it was supposed from the information obtained, to be a repetition of the illegal stretch of authority exercised last fall in the case of the whale ship George 4 Mary. That ship had proceeded to sea and was lying off and on. A warrant was issued to arrest a seaman on board of her, which warrant was served while the ship was under sail a distance of not less than five miles from land as we are informed by her owners; and the seaman was brought on shore. Redress was sought they were told there was no redress for them in the courts. This arrest was an open violation of the rights of the ship and its crew. This case would show that it makes little difference with the police whether a vessel is actually within the urisdiction of this kingdom according to the law of nations or not. The law really practised here is, if she is within spy-glass view or within day's sail for a boat she is a legal prize.

All that we aim at is to see that the rights of foreign vessels visiting the port are respected. Every one knows that they pay enough to the support of the government and its officers in numberless legal fees, without having to pay doubtful claims, or to be subject to vexatious detenothers) tend only to create ill feeling among the officers and owners of whale ships, from whose visits our merchants as well as government derive no small benefit.

In the case of the Charles Carroll, had she who was arrested by the police and taken on shore, there is no question that the owners could the amount of their loss, if refused by underwriters, as would undoubtedly have been the case. The ship had no agents at this port, as we are informed by Messrs. Williams & Mitchell. who, though they were inquired of as to the competency of the second officer, had no responsibility in the matter. The government and its officers were alone responsible for any damages | Commercial. Several fine terrapin arrived per Yanarising from their own acts.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

FRUIT TREES .- Mr. S. Smith has received by the Yankee from the Sacramento gardens, a very choice lot of trees, consisting of a great variety of apple, pear, cherry, plum, apricot and peach, of proper size and in good condition for transplanting. This is the best season of the year for setting out trees. There are unquestionably many spots on the islands where fruit trees of the temperate zone will flourish and bear fruit. Such are most of our valleys, where there is shelter from the wind and a cool atmosphere. We noted several months ago that Mr. McIntyre had succeeded in raising fine apples at his place in Nuuanu, which adjoins the new nursery grounds of the Agricultural Society. Mr. Smith has opened his aslion's office in Fort street.

More Fruit Trees .- Mesers, Leonard & Co. their store in King street, have received by the Metropolis, through Judge Olney, a small but very choice consignment of Oregon apple trees, and have laid on our table specimens of the fruit. These are some of the finest apples we have ever seen here or elsewhere, and embrace six varieties. The two largest measure fifteen and fourteen inches round We hope our friends will avail themselves of this opportunity to test the practicability of raising this noble fruit for the supply of our market. This can only be done by planting an orchard, embracing a large variety of trees, some of which would doubtless thrive, while others might be a failure.

PRESENTATION TO CONSUL PRATT .- On Friday last a deputation of shipmasters waited on Abner Pratt. Esq., and, through Capt. Cox, presented him with a beautiful cane, as a testimonial of their esteem. The Esq., U. S. Consul. Presented to him by Masters of Whaleships. Honolulu, Nov. 18, 1857." Capt. Cox made an apprepriate speech on the occasion, which was responded to by the Consul. The cane cost $107, and was very neatly got up under the direction of Mr. Flitner.

LADIES' FAIR .- The Ladies' Fair, on Friday evenng last, for the purpose of raising money to build a arsonage for the Methodist Episcopal Church, was decided success. The auction room of J. F. Colburn was crowded, and the various articles offered for sale by the fair traders went off briskly, at fabulous prices. We learn that the receipts amounted to $1300. On the following evening, the remainder of the articles which had not been disposed of, were cleared off at auction, bringing $350, making the total receipts about $1600.

THANKSGIVING IN CALIFORNIA .- We notice that next Thursday, the 26th inst., has been appointed by

RISLEY'S TROUPE .- Among the passengers by the Metropolis from Oregon, were the celebrated Profes or Risley and his company of gymnastic perform They have taken the old circus lot opposite the Comcial Hotel, and erected a spacious tent on it. The fame of Risley and his boys is world-wide, they having performed with great success throughout the princi-pal cities of Europe and America. Prof. Risley has a book of autographs of distinguished characters before whom he has exhibited, in which we notice such ames as Alferi, the Italian poet; Prince C. P. aparte, nephew to the first Napoleon : Hiram Powers, the American sculptor; Lord Holland, British Minister at Florence; many of the nobility and dignitaries of Italy, and a host of other names more or less distinguished. All speak in the highest terms of the interesting and pleasing nature of the performances of the Risleys. The book is quite a treasure in tself, aside from the flattering recommendations with which it is filled. The first of a series of exhibitions took place last evening, and it is quite needless to say that after a twelve month's dearth of public amusements, the rush for admittance was overwhelming. out not greater than the performances merited. THE CONCERT.-Since Tuesday evening the gen

I topic of conversation about town has been the beautiful singing and music with which the Lady and Gentleman amateurs regaled the large audience that filled the Fort Street Church on the occasion of the Sailors' Home benefit. The pieces which had seen selected for the occasion were generally well executed and were received with applause. The first part, however, went off rather heavily, with one or two exceptions; but in the second part the music and inging was unexceptionable. Among those pieces which seemed to be particularly appreciated by the audience were-"See, O Norma:" "I've wandered in dreams:" and "Figaro, the Barber of Seville." These, particularly the latter, were enthusiastically encored, and when, after the beautiful finale of "The Sunny hours of Childhood," the audience etired, it was with the consciousness of having enjoved a rare musical treat, and with the conviction that Honolulu possesses a great deal of that important auxiliary to the delights of "home"-n talent. The total receipts were about $300.

THE BREAD TRIAL.—The bread exhibited at Fair of the Methodist Society, by the competitors for the prizes offered by the Flour Company and the Agricultural Society, made a fine display, and offered a convincing proof that as good bread can be made from pure Hawaiian flour, as can be desired. It is rare to see bread so white, light and sweet as was exhibited on this occasion. The judges were Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Ladd and Mrs. Hall, on bakers' bread, and Messrs. Love, Mossman and Bond on family bread. The prizes were awarded as follows: for bakers' bread, 1st prize $15, to J. Love; 2d prize, $10, to Mr. Mossman. For family bread : 1st prize $12, to Miss Holden of Punahou; 2d prize Mrs. Spooner of Punahou; 3rd prize Mrs. Stangen-There were seventeen competitors. About 80 loaves were exhibited, which were all sold at auction next evening for the benefit of the Methodist Society, and brought very high prices. We noticed some capital brown bread sent in by Mrs. Wm. Ladd. which reminded us of home.

An Iron Vesser .- The brigantine Elizabeth Barter, which arrived yesterday, after the short passage of 125 days from London, is a fine specimen of the new ceding wood vessels in England. She is 210 tons burthen, with an iron hull, and her standing rigging is also of iron wire. She is built with a full clipper model, sharp bow and round stern. Her officers report her to be a superior sea boat. After discharging cargo, she will be up for freight.

FROM OREGON.-We are indebted to Capt. Preston of the bark Metropolis for files of Oregon papers to Oct. 10. The convention for framing a constitution had adjourned, having finished their labors. The draft of a proposed constitution is published in the papers of Oct. 3. The question of slavery, which had been the subject of discussion during the nast year, appears to have been entirely ignored by the convention. A separate vote it is said will be taken upon tions when beyond their authority. Such cases it. There is nothing of interest in the papers. Sandas that of the George & Mary (and there may be wich Island sugar was quoted in mats and kegs at 14c. to 17c; coffee 14c.

ARRIVAL OF DISTINGUISHED STRANGERS .- Mr. M. M. Russell brought down per Yankee, five fine deer, two bucks and three does. One of the does has since died, being lame when brought on shore; the others been wrecked in the absence of her first officer, are quite lively. He also brought six or seven fresh water terrapin, and about twenty frogs. BEARS .- Capt. Preston of the Metropolis, fro Oregon, brought two tame cubs of the species called 'cinnamon bears." They are about seven months old, and are quite playful, though it is a question whether they will not, like members of the human family, undergo a change in their dispositions when they arrive at years of discretion. We learn that is reported to have died yesterday.

AMERICAN THREE DOLLAR PIECES .- We notice that this new coin is becoming quite abundant. It is a very convenient piece, and will become a favorite here no doubt. The one dollar pieces are too small for general use, and are passed with difficulty, when more than one is tendered. SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1, 1857. DEAR SIR :- Per Funkee I was in receipt of files your valued journal. The chief engineer, Mr. Ashby, is bensured quite severely by most of the male survivors for his cowardly That of the crew, and those who we down in the ill-fated ship was truly heroic.

We have had one or two small earthquakes recently, but no damage was done except to dist the slumbers of most of our families, creating a con siderable fluttering of night caps, &c. The undulations were accompanied by a rumbling sound.

Our municipal regulations are now in the most prosperous condition, which is evinced by the promptness of tax payers. Old delinquents of two years' standing are coming forward and squaring up; in fact general confidence reigns, every one of the old stealing regime having been ousted. This confidence extends, it would seem, even to the coroner who has been busier in the past month than ever h predecessor was. Whether this proceeds from superiority of talent of the present incumbent (Dr. McNulty) who is a physician in good standing, or not, deponent saith not; but facts are stubbor things, and I am inclined to think that the man persons who have recently committed suicide held off until after the election, feeling more confidence in having a post mortem conducted by one who ha used the "scalpel."

ND, OREGON, Sept. 26, 1857. DEAR SIR :- The bar Metropolis being about sail for Honolulu, I have taken this opportunity enclosing to you a copy of the Constitution which the Convention has succeeded in framing, and adopting as a whole by a vote of thirty-six to eleven. It is t be presented to the people on the second Monday November for their ratification or rejection.

There are many opinions expressed as to whether they have been presented to the King. One of them | it will be adopted or not; but there is one thing certain-if the sustainers can make the people believe that it is a test of Democracy, it is sure to be adopted by an overwhelming majority. The members of the late Convention are now stumping the country pro and con, on the subject, and time alone will show the result of their labors.

During the sitting of the Convention there were several attempts made by members of the majority to choke down discussion on the all-absorbing question of slavery, as they do not yet know which side of that question will win; and as there are so many offices to be filled under the State government these knowing ones have no idea of running any risk; they are perfeetly willing to fall in with the popular side, let it be what it may.

Oregon is progressing fast in every improve calculated to make a great and flourishing State. The trees are fast falling before the ax of the sturdy wood man, and in their places can be seen large orchard and fields of grain. The two noble rivers, Columbia and Willamette, are now traversed daily by beautiful steamboats, doing a thriving business. The freight ing business from Portland to the Dalles (a little town on the upper Columbia and the center of trade for the northern part of the interior) is increasing very fast, so much so that new boats of large tonnage have been built and taken the place of the smaller ones which were amply sufficient in days gone by.

Portland has improved more within the last year than in any two previous years. Large two and three summer and many more smaller ones are now in course of erection. Private dwellings are now being erected where two years ago was a dense forest Portland can boast of as handsome private residen as any little town on the Pacific slope. The mos noted of these are the residences of T. J. Dryer, G. C. Robbins and Thomas Pritchard, beautifully and tastefully surrounded with fruit trees and shrub

Some of the men had borrowed books from Captain, which, on being returned, were in a soiled nd damaged condition. The man Henry Sheppar hose right name was William Gosh, he having aken the place on the articles of one Sheppard who had left) was very fond of having books read to him, though he could neither read nor write himself. On this occasion he requested the loan of some books, but was answered very surlily by Capt. Newell, that there were no books for him. He went forward and got one of the crew, who is still on board of the ship, to write a letter to the Captain, which, though impudent was not at all threatening, and was more for "lark" than anything else. This was thrown into the cabin window during the dog watch from six to toes was stopped, and on inquiring of the mate for the reason, we were told it was on account of a letter abusing the Captain, which had been put into the cabin window. We were all quite ignorant of the letter, with the exception of Sheppard and the writer, and went aft in a body to inquire if we were to have no better food. He said he wanted to find out the author of the letter. He then said, all of you who are willing to work on such provisions, go on the other side of the deck. Out of twenty-eight men, but four signified their satisfaction with the provisions. The Captain then ordered the mate, Mr. Chase, to put the others in irons, but when the irons came or deck countermanded the order, saying to the men " go forward and attend to your duty, and you shall have the usual provisione "From this time until five weeks before getting into the Ochotsk we had no occasion to complain of the provisions.

In the meantime, the fifth mate, who was also cooper of the ship, was in the habit, as we afterwards found out, of creeping forward between-decks and listening at the forecastle bulkhead, and then going aft to the Captain and retailing as pure earnest whatever was said by the crew. Any one who is familiar sailors, is well aware that what is called " blowing" greatly experated while relating them to the Captain, and the consequence was that he again got very bitter against us, especially five of us who were old sailors, and knowing more about seamanship than the fifth mate, came in for a double share of misrepre sentation. The provisions were again cut short, and nothing but beef and bread allowed. On the 10th of June, one of the men named Carroll, went aft to the Captain, with the kid or beef tub, and asked the Captain if we were to have no different food than that? Captain Newell replied "No, d-n you, you will get no more." Carroll made no reply, and went forward. The crew talked the matter over amo themselves and agreed together that they would make no disturbance about it then, but that when we

On the afternoon of the same day, Capt. Newell called two of the men to go down into the sail room and take two sacks of potatoes, (of which we still had a good supply on board) from the steerage into the lower cabin. When there, the door was shut behind them, and the Captain, with a revolver in one hand and a cutlass in the other, said to the men-" I have been waiting for you a long time-now, I have got you, go in irons. You did not have spunk to say any more. Either go in irons or take a bullet." The men without attempting any resistance were then ironed with their hands behind their backs and then lashed to a chain cable. The ship at this time was beating through the ice. After putting the two men in irons, the Captain went on deck and hove the ship to, telling James Powers, who was at the wheel, to put the helm amidships, and go forward. As he went by the cabin door, the mate called him in, and the Captain followed, when they put him in irons and fastened him with the others. As they were ironing him, Powers said "Captain, why am I put in irons?" The Captain said, "never mind-go in irons." On Powers repeating the question, Captain struck him with his revolver over the and knocked him from the upper to the lower cabin, where he was fastened with the others.

and knocked him from the upper to the lower cabin, where he was fastened with the others.

They then sent the steward for Sheppard, who was forward. He coming into the cabin was put in irons without any trouble or resistance. When he got into the lower cabin and saw how the others were lashed, to the chain, he said, "Captain, we can't stand this cruelty, with one hands behind our backs." The Captain said, "Dry up, d—n you." Sheppard replied, "I will not; I am an American, and my tongue is my own, and I'll use it." The Captain then struck him over the left temple with the revolver which he held cocked in his hand. There were present the 1st, 2d and 5th mates and the three men in irons. Sheppard fell instantly, and the ball is supposed to have entered his brain. As soon as he fell the Captain dashed the pistol on the cabin floor, breaking it and scattering the remaining charges. The mate at once proceeded to take the irons from Sheppard and laid him on a chest, the blood running in a stream to the leeward side of the ship. The mate remarked to the Captain—"He will never speak again." When the Captain said "there is one more, and then we can manage the rest." I was that one, and was sick at the time with rheamatism. Being sent for, I went into the cabin and found Capt. Newell sitting at the table, apparently very calm and collected. He said to me "what is the matter with you?" I then pulled up my shirt-sleeves and showed him my wrists which were much swollen, saying "You can see, sir." He said to the Captain, "Have I ever refused duty, or given you or your officers any insolence?" He said, "never mind, go in irons." After I got down in the lower c." in, where the others were, together with the dead body of Sheppard, I discovered the flannel cap which was worn by him, lying on the floor. I managed to secure it, and have ever since retained it in my possession, just as it fell off his head, with the hole in it made by the ball which deprived Sheppard of Hife. The next morning after these occurrences, the corps: was Leaving the Island of Hivaoa, which has been selected as the future principal station of the Mission to the Marquesas, the packet Morning Star sailed. with the addition to our number of Kekela, for the Island of Fatuhiva, where a portion of the Mission was still located. At an early morning hour, when Venus and Jupiter, almost in conjunction, were shining with a brightness that nearly equaled an early moon, the island looms up before us as a dark, barren rock, but as the morning sun shines over its ridges, it reveals a sight truly magnificent. And as got amongst whales we would not work if we had no our vessel approaches still nearer, and sails along the better food. This was overheard and told the Captain, lee, green valleys open to view, with vegetation from the water's edge to the highest mountain summit. Before us lies the deep bay of Hanaveve, over whose surface glides the swallow of the sea, and in whose waters the unwary porpoise gambols.

> Hanaveve Valley, which lies opposite the bay, does not resemble our Hawaiian valleys. It is not a gentle slope between two hills, but a ravine with steep sides, apparently split out from the mountains. It is, however, one of the largest, most beautiful and productive of the many glens of Fatuhiva. This valley has recently been the scene of a protracted war between the neighboring tribes. One of these contests lasted nine days, at the close of which the bodies of the captured dead were eaten. This cannibal custom prevails throughout this group. They do not have a great feast over these human bodies, as is generally supposed to be the case, but the body is generally supposed to be the case, but the body is genhave a great feast over these human bodies, as is generally supposed to be the case, but the body is cut to pieces on the battle-held, and each warrior takes his piece—an arm, a joint, a rib, a pording to his merit—raises it on his gun over his houlder, and marches home. Here he calls his relate as together, and they devour the flesh,—some cooking the in slices like pork, but most eat it raw. The more we which induces them to set the bodies of their severies in induces them to eat the bodies of their enemies is revenge; they feel that their revenge is not satisfied until they have tasted of their blood and fiesh. When their hatred, anger and revenge are at the highest point, and their enemy lies dead before them, then it culminates in the fiendish act of eating human flesh. and we may easily imagine that the quivering heart that cringes and grates between their bloody teeth is the sweetest morsel that a heathen warrior the sweetest morsel that a heathen warrior can taste. This cannibalism is confined mostly to the older natives. The younger people appear to be ashamed of the practice, and it is probable that before many years it will be extinct among the Marquesans.

> lasted nine days. It consisted rather of skirmishing, bough shots enough were fired to have killed a regiment. It is quite likely that these simple warriors did their firing with eyes shut, as during the entire contest but one or two persons were killed. The beaten party in this terrible scare entered into a compact with their conquerors, in which hostages were exchanged, but those of the vanquished ran away, (from fear of being devoured, perhaps,) and returned to their tribe, who immediately, in the most secret manner, took "bag and baggage" from the soil of their ancestors, and made a hasty retreat to the Island of Tahuaka. The victors, having gained more than they anticipated, but just what they dethe Island of Tahuaka. The victors, having gained more than they anticipated, but just what they desired, took possession and divided the spoil. This contest was an ancient feud. There were but two points of approach to the valley, one by the mountain pass and one by sea. Never before had the enemy been able to force this narrow passage—a fistness of nature. They had been forced to steal through an aperture worn by the waves through the northern point of the island, from whence they discharged their firearms upon their enemies and retreated. It is now said that the exiles are home-sick, that they desire to return, and that there are those of the conesire to return, and that there are those of the querors who would welcome them back.

sible except by sea, yet it had its story of aggres. It had thirty inhabitants, who repulsed every at It had thirty inhabitants, who repulsed every attack of their more numerous invaders. By land, perpen-dicular cliffs rendered it nearly impregnable. De-termined to conquer, the enemy let their warriors down the bare face of the rock, the rope swinging them in its descent, as if they were only bird-hunters on the Shetland Islands, in doomed men had reached the bottom, when inhabitants of the valley arose and slaughtered every one of the invaders. This was sufficient; since then their enemies had lo them alone.

The Morning Star is now in a calm. Her white flag, however, has been seen from the distant ridge which forms the northern boundary of Omoa Bay, and the Chief who protects Kaiwi ma, has come off to see the strangers. Kekels greets him. Hardly a minute after he is on board, and is informed eia no his moku o kakos, which puts her under the protection of the Chief, who immediately lays a taboo on the pilifering propensities of his followers. As his cames was the first that reached us, and the best also that came off to us, or that we at any time saw while at the islands, it may be not uninteresting to describe it, though to Hawaiians the description may not be now. It was from afteen to twenty feet long, and had a beat or prow six more in length, ending in a rude carving, which might be mistaken for a god, but that the Marquesans worship no images. The prow was a mere ornament. In war, however, it is used to dash against the opposing cance. The outrigger was

The telegraphic report is almost unintelligible; but from what we can gather of its purport it seems that Gen. Havelock's force for the reoccupation of Cawnpore, had in eight days marched 126 miles, and fought four actions with Nens Sahib's army, against overwhelming odds in roise of new contractions of the contractions of the contractions of the contractions with Nens Sahib's army, against overwhelming odds in roise of new contractions of the contractions with Nens Sahib's army, against overwhelming odds in roise of new contractions.

occupation of Cawnpore, had in eight days marched 126 miles, and fought four actions with Nena Sahib's army, against overwhelming odds in point of numbers, and had taken twenty-four guns of light calibre, and that, too, in the month of July, in India; and as stated above, on the 17th of July, they marched into Cawnpore. The soul-harrowing spectacle which there presented itself to them beggars description.

A wholesale massacre had been perpetrated by the fiend, Nena Sahib. Eight officers and ninety men of her Majesty's 84th Regiment, 70 ladies, and 121 children of Her Majesty's 32d Foot, and the whole European and Christian population of the place, including civilians, merchants, pensioners, and their families to the number of 400 persons, were the victims of this Satar. The court-yard in front of the assembly rooms, in which Nena Sahib had fixed his head-quarters, and in which the women had been imprisoned, was swimming in blood. A large number of women and children, who had been cruelly spared after the capitulation for a worse fate than instant death, had been barbarously slaughtered on the previous morning. The former having been the previous morning. The former having been stripped naked, and then beheaded and thrown into a well, and the latter having been hurled down alive upon their butchered mothers, whose blood recked on their mangled bodies. Only four escaped, the wife of a merchant and three others. There are, however, no authentic details as vet.

General Havelock, in a dispatch to the Governor General, says that Nena Says and himself with his family. He had an intention of going to Luknow, but when he had gone as far as the river his cavalry and infantry deserted him. They are all gone off, after destroying their arms, to their different homes. ent homes. Cawnpore is now as quiet as Allahabad. The disarmed 26th Bengal native infantry mutinied at Mecan on the 23d of July, and murdered their

WE. THE UNDERSIGNED, Passengers of the bark Metropolis, feel it a duty incumbent upon ourselves to return thanks to Captain Panston for his gentlemanly attention to the wants and comforts of the passengers of the above named ship; also, his superior management as a navigator and sailor during a severe storm, which took place on the 4th of November, in lat. 41, long. 129, having weathered a severe gale for three days without the slightest accident occurring, begging Captain Preston and his first officer, Mr. White, to accept our kind wishes for their future welfare and prosperity. Prov. RICH'D RISLEY, PHILIP DICKERSON, J. C. CARSON AND LADY, JOHN DEVANI, CAPT WILBER, WM. S. LEWIS, DANIEL TOMPKINS. 74-1t

THE UNDERSIGNED takes this Method of returning his sincere thanks to Mr. G. W. Macy, of Kawalhae, Hawaii, for valuable assistance rendered in loaning an anchor on Thursday, November 19, while the vessel was in a dangerous position, having parted my chain and lost an anchor, owing to the heavy swell. Also, to Mr. Adams, acting pilot at Kawaihae, for scient aid on the same occasion.

CARD. THE LADIES OF THE M. E. CHURCH

Mr. M. Ressett.—Sir: It gives me pleasure to have to inform you that the Board of Managers of the R. H. Agricultural Society, at its last meeting, on the 21st inst., passed a vote of thanks, and awarded a sliver medal to you, for having introduced five deer from California. The Society feels very much indebted to you for having taken the great trouble of procuring the same, and taking care of them until their arrival here, while your charges only covered the original cost price and expenses for transport.

with my greatest regard, your very ob't serv't,
WM. HILLEBRAND,
Corresponding Secretary R. H. Ag. Society.

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser. TERRIBLE DISASTER! One of the most appalling disasters that has ever been recorded occurred in the loss by foundering of the California mail steamship Central America (formerly the George Law). The steamer was lost in a gale off Cape Hatterns on the 12th of September, while on the voyage from Havana to New York, having on board about 600 persons, 430 of whom are supposed to have been lost. The gale began when about 24 hours out from Havana. The following account of the diseases is made by Capt Badger, who commanded the disaster is made by Capt. Badger, who commanded the schooner General Pierce, which touched at this port some two years since on her way to Japan.

Capt. Badger, one of the rescued passengers of the Central America, states that the gale increased until two o'clock on Friday, the 11th, when it was perceived that the engine had stopped; and the ship fell into the trough of the sea, which caused her to make considerable water around the lee shaft and the lee lower dead lights. It was afterwards ascertained that the cause of the stoppage of the engines was the neglect of the fire and engine department of getting coal along from the bunkers to the fire-room fast enough to keep up the fires, consequently all the engines stopped, as well as all the pumps attached to the engines.

The deck pumps were out of order, and at Capt. Badger's suggestion companies were organized, whilst the steward's gangs and deck hands went down to pass the coal along. By this time the fires were put out, and the water became so heated in the hold of the ship, and the steam engendered was so great, that they were compelled to abandon passing the coal. The ship then lay at the mercy of the waves, but she did not labor hard. We then started several gangs at bailing, as the only hope of saving the ship. At my suggestion the captain ordered the foremast to be cut away, which was done about six o'clock.

From four o'clock till eight the water was kept at bay. An attempt was made to raise in the donkey boiler. Berths were torn down and thrown into the furnace to raise steam to start the pumps but all to no avail. The cause I could not learn. A drag was boiler. Berths were torn down and thrown into the furnace to raise steam to start the pumps but all to no avail. The cause I could not learn. A drag was prepared, but failed, and the ship continued in the trough of the sea. Bailing still went on with vigor, and was kept up all night by gangs, who were changed as they became exhausted.

Towards morning the men were beginning to fail and the water to increase and grow up in the hold of the ship. At four o'clock on the morning of Saturday, the 19th, the gale abated, with a heavy sea running.

They were encouraged by myself and others with the assurance that the ship would hold out. Every passenger remained cool, and seemed to forget his danger in the united efforts to save the vessel. There was no weeping or exhibition of despair, even on the part of the females. At eight o'clock another attempt was made to raise steam in the donkey boiler, to pump the ship, but without avail. the ship, but without avail.

One proposed to box the pumps, but on enquiry no carpenter or tools could be found, and the water gained rapidly. The lee shaft was shrouded in heavy blankets to stop the leak, but the water burst through. At 2 o'clock on Saturday, a sail was reported to windward, and at 34 o'clock she was under the stern. Boats were immediately lowered, but two were immediately stove by the sea. Three boats still remained, one in a bad condition.

At 4 o'clock, the work of removing the ladies and

At 4 o'clock, the work of removing the ladies and children to the deck of the Marine was commenced. The brig being much higher than the ship, had by this time drifted away to leeward.

This distance was considerable, and the boats were long in making the trips, and there being a heavy sea, but few could be carried at a time. After sending the ladies and children, the engineer and some fifteen others were embarked on the brig.

By this time it was dark. The work of bailing was still kept on, but the water gained faster upon the vessel. As the boats successively approached the ship, a simultaneous rush was made by the passengers to get on board, and it was apprehended that the bats would be filled and stove.

It was now dark. About two hours before the

It was now dark. About two hours before the sinking of the ship a schooner ran down under her stern, but could not render her any assistance for want of boats.

The work of bailing went on until within an hour of her going down. Two lights of the above vessel were now seen far to leeward. Rockets were fired from the wheel-house, but went downward. The immediate sinking of the ship followed

Capt. Herndon remained on the wheel-house up to the moment of her going down, which was 8 o'clock, Saturday night. I was standing on the quarter-deck. Some jumped over and put out from the now rapidly descending ship, and seized on whatever they could. No one shrieked or cried, but all stood calm.

The captain behaved nobly, and said he would not leave the ship.

I promised him I would remain with him, as also did the second officer, Mr. Frazer.

All at once the ship, as if in the agony of death herself, made a plunge on an angle of 45 degrees, and with a shriek from the engulphed mass, she disappeared, and five hundred human beings floated out on the bosom of the ocean with no hope but death.

At quarter past one o'clock in the morning the Norwegian bark Ellen came running down with a

The task of rescuing the passengers was nobly commenced, and by nine o'clock the next morning forty-nine had been picked up. Diligent search was made until twelve o'clock, but no more could be seen.

They then bore away for Norfolk with a fair wind and arrived at Cape Henry on the 17th, when myself and four others embarked in the pilot boat and arrived in Norfolk.

The different of a region is and officers of white-ships is caused to the following testimonials.

San Francisco, January 10, 1856.

Capt. R. Brown—Sir. I take this opportunity to inform you that we used those Bomb Lances we bought of you, and found them to be of great benefit in capturing whales amongst the ice.

The first whale that we used the Bomb Lance on was killed in the following manner. —The boat went alongside of the whale and the boat-steerer fired a Bomb into him and then fastened to him with a gig iron: the Bomb was heard to explode, and the whale did not blow after the Bomb exploded. The above-mentioned whale was in the ice, and it is our opinion that we should not have got that whale and many others that we did get, if it had not been for your Bomb Lances, and we fully recommend them to the attention of those fitting out whale ships.

Respectfully yours,

Thomas Wall, Master bark George.

Honolulu, March 17, 1856.

Capt. Robert Brown—My dear Sir: I used your Bomb Lances in taking a whale, north, the past season, which made 250 bbls. of oil. We never could have taken him without said Lances, as our boats could not get near enough to use the common hand lance.

Yours Respectfully,

G. L. Cox, Master whale-ship Magnotia.

Honolulu, March 15, 1866. TO SHIPMASTER'S.

CAPT. ROBERT BROWN—Dear Sir: I take this opportunity to inform you that I used your Bombs on the voyage in the ship Herald, and found them effective in taking whales, and would recommend them to all whalemen, and especially around the ice. I also used the harpoon and got most of the whales by your Guns and apparatus.

Yours Respectfully,

ISAAC ALLEN, Master ship Herald.
