Rural Sketches Of the Hawaiian Islands.

Hilo, Hawaii, June 30th, 1862.
To the Editor of the Com. Advertiser:

Knowing, by experience, that it is much harder to edit a newspaper during the dull months of summer, than during other portions of the year, when the times are lively and news abounds, allow me a limited space in your paper, for a few paragraphs. We left Honolulu, Friday afternoon, the 20th inst., and reached Lahaina, the following afternoon. It was exceedingly gratifying to us to go on shore, and spend the Sabbath. The Rev. Dr. Baldwin invited our party to his hospitable dwelling, where so many weary voyagers have been entertained during the last quarter of a century. The vessel was detained until the following Monday morning, which afforded us an excellent opportunity to go on shore and spend the Sabbath, in a place where each man does (or may) sit under his own vine and fig tree! Surely, the old Hebrew never plucked better grapes from the vale of Eschol, than grow at Lahaina. As for figs, they, too, are equal to those of Smyrna, (when raised from Smyrna trees.) We never met with better than those growing in Mr. Oudinot's premises. By the way, did you know that Mr. O's grandmother was sister of the Pioneer, Boone, of Old Kentucky, and report says, that Marshal O. of France, was his uncle. More than all this, he has spent years trapping for furs, with Kit Carson, of Rocky Mountain notoriety.

Lahaina has decidedly "caved in" since whalships have ceased to resort thither for supplies. A half score of good dwelling houses are "to let," but no applicants. The people of Lahaina console themselves, that they are going to be better off than formerly. "Suppose whalships have deserted us," say they, "we have a rich soil, and we are determined to produce sugar-cane that will astonish the world, if it does not equal the cane raised at Waikapu,—seven tons to the acre!"

Two days' sailing from Lahaina, brought us safely to Hilo. We should be ungrateful not to say a kind word for the Maria and her excellent Commander, Capt. Crane. A more efficient and accommodating navigator, does not cruise among our islands. The Maria is clean and comfortable, which is more than can be said for many of our inter-island craft.

Hilo appears the same beautiful spot as when we visited it in 1844 and '55. The trade winds do not give the trees a "south-westerly leaning," but allow them to grow up stately, tall and comely. From the window where I am writing, several tall and beautiful "Pride of Indias" are to be seen, growing and spreading as if they were intending to display their comely proportions. The mango tree grows to a lofty height, but its fruit does not equal that produced in Honolulu. At a damp locality, trees, grasses, and flowers may grow most luxuriantly, but, after all, a warm sun is required for ripening fruits; hence, the excellent grapes of Lahaina, and Waimea, in Kauai, and the luscious water-melons from the dry and sunny shores of Lanai.

Since our arrival at Hilo, I have been about the country, and visited localities where the planters are busily manufacturing, or preparing to manufacture sugar. The enterprising Germans from Kauai, who started a plantation in the vicinity of Hilo, about eighteen months ago, are showing what can be accomplished when men take off their coats and go to work like men who understand their business. Their plantation is two or three miles from Hilo. They commenced "in the bush," but have cleared away guava bushes, and pushed the plow through one hundred acres of rich land, and now are anxiously watching the growing cane. Their crop looks fine, and they hope to commence grinding in November or December. They have put up their own building and constructed their own machinery. One of the partners is a carpenter and the other a blacksmith, or rather a machinist. I went over their plantation, and witnessed the great improvements which had been made in a few months. Among other improvements, they have constructed a water-course, which brings down a stream of water sufficient to turn their mill and any other machinery which may be attached. Their wheel is thirty feet in diameter, and is already in working order. At the time of my visit, the masons were busily at work setting the kettles. Success to Messrs. Reinhardt and Aseugi! Hilo needs a score more of such men. A few miles farther along the coast, Mr. Hitchcock has just "broke ground" for another sugar plantation, under the auspices of Mr. Austin, of Hilo, and His Ex. the Chief Justice. There is more good land in the Hilo District—enough, it is said, for ten, perhaps twenty more plantations. What is wanting, is the right sort of men to start them,—men, who remember the old proverb, that "He who by the plow would thrive,

Himself must either hold or drive."

Perhaps neither you nor many of your readers are aware of the fact that the Chinese Planters of Hilo have never used the plow at all! During the past twenty years they have been successful sugar growers, and yet never used the plow. Their practice is to dig holes, about four feet apart, and place their rows about eight feet apart. They insert the young plants in these holes, and do all the work of cultivation with the hoe and hoe. They never replant, but go on from year to year gathering the yearly crop, until the land is exhausted. There is one plantation where ten crops have successively been taken off! Surely the land should then be allowed to lie fallow and rest awhile!

Perhaps, Mr. Editor, I am writing too many paragraphs. I have surely written much more than I expected, but you know editors have such a scribbling propensity, that they sometimes write when they have but little that they want to communicate. In looking over what I have scribbled, I notice that sometimes I have written "We," and at other times the simple "I." It is rather hard to shake off the trammels of the sanctorum!

"I" and "We" are now enjoying the kind hospitality of the Protestant Bishop of Hilo. Really, if there is a minister of Christ anywhere to be found on this "mundane sphere" meriting the title of Bishop, it surely is our host. His bishopric extends along a sea-coast of sixty or seventy miles, and his church records enroll a membership of 4 or 5,000 communicants. Not less than 10,000 have been admitted to the privileges of the Lord's table under his ministry. But I must close. Yours truly,

EDITOR OF THE "FRIEND."

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser. HAWAIIAN LEGISLATURE. House of Representatives.

FIFTY-SECOND DAY—JULY 1.

Mr. Rhodes, of the Committee on Internal Affairs, reported on the petition from persons of Honolulu, praying a right of way, that the petitioners had been seriously inconvenienced by the closing of the path leading from their dwellings; and the committee recommended the appointment of a committee to point out to them their proper course of action by law. Report adopted, and the committee appointed.

Mr. Kipahulu introduced a resolution to pay the Chaplain $100, for services during the session. Mr. Kipahulu moved to table the resolution. Motion lost, and the resolution passed, supported by Messrs. Harris, Kipahulu, and Kamae.

Mr. Kipahulu called for a committee to consider certain amendments to the bill for the relief of the Hawaiian Islands, and the committee appointed.

A communication was received from the Minister of Finance, stating that the Hawaiian Islands, under the provisions of the Hawaiian Islands Act, had been placed under the administration of the Hawaiian Islands.

The House went into Committee on the Appropriation Bill, and passed the following items:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. Includes items like 'For the Hawaiian Islands', 'For the Hawaiian Islands', 'For the Hawaiian Islands', etc.

Mr. Kipahulu moved to add the provision, that the appropriation for the Hawaiian Islands be paid only on condition that the special tax on the Hawaiian Islands be paid.

Later Foreign News.

The U. S. steamship Wyandott arrived on the 8th, bringing San Francisco papers to the 22d of June. The telegraph wires had been down nearly two weeks, but on the morning that she sailed, dispatches came through, with Eastern dates from June 8 to 13. We are indebted to the courtesy of Capt. McDougall, of the Steamer, for a copy of the only paper received with the telegraphic news. Also to Pilot Babcock for late San Francisco papers.

The telegraphic dispatches were very meager, and create some apprehension in regard to the position of affairs. For instance, not a word is communicated regarding McClellan's nor Halleck's movements during the five days reported.

A severe naval engagement took place before Memphis June 6, between the Union fleet, consisting of five gun-boats and eight iron-clad rams, and the Rebel fleet, which resulted in the destruction of several of the latter, and the dispersion of the rest. After the fight, the Mayor of Memphis quietly surrendered to the Union forces, without burning the city as had been threatened, or even the cotton and tobacco stored there.

At Charleston, S. C., engagements took place on the 2d and 4th of June, between the Union troops and the Rebels, but no decisive result is reported.

In the Shenandoah Valley also a severe battle had occurred, which from the meager accounts received, appears to have been a closely contested struggle, with great loss on both sides. It is not impossible that the Union troops in this valley may have again been repulsed by the rebels, provided the latter were reinforced seasonably, which would appear to have been likely.

By the Canal, we shall receive much later and very important telegraphic news—probably to the 25th or 26th of June.

P. S.

The clipper bark Catalpa, Capt. Allen, arrived this morning at 8 A. M., having sailed from San Francisco June 22d, the same day and the Wyandott left.

She brings the Express bags and a small San Francisco mail, but no Eastern letter mail, nor any later Eastern telegraphic news.

The Catalpa reports very light winds, and the Coast and Kailua will probably be off in 15 days making the passage.

The Memphis Avalanche advises its readers to invest in real estate, which means get rid of Confederate money quickly, for it will not be worth anything.

The editor of the Cape Cod Republican hopes that when Charleston is recaptured the bells in the church steeples at the North will be rung for twenty-four hours in succession.

The latest news from Europe states that both Denmark and Sweden are preparing for war, as there is but little hope of a peaceful settlement of the questions connected with the German Duchies.

A letter from an officer at Fort Jackson, in the New Orleans Bulletin, states the Federal fleet, in its attack upon that Fort, averaged one shell every twelve seconds, or five a minute, for nearly seventy hours.

These quarters of a million of free letters passed through the Washington Post Office during the last quarter. Seventy thousand dollars.

A refugee from New Orleans says the best drilled regiment of Home Guards there is composed entirely of negroes under the command of "Old Jordan," a negro son-in-law of Jackson's.

A watchmaker of Chicago, London, pays one thousand guineas upwards of $5,000, for an advertisement covering the last page of the catalogue book of the Great Exhibition. That beats Bonner.

McClellan has named his favorite charger "Dan Webster." The military pounder and the great expounder, says Vanity Fair, are a sharp team and can hardly fail to trample the enemies of the Constitution under their feet.

Intelligence from Paris states that Jeff. Davis has invested $200,000 in the French funds on his own account, which looks as if he had decided on fleeing to that country—provided he can get away.

E. P. Christy, the original founder of Christy's minstrel, attempted to commit suicide by jumping from the third story of a building, but was caught and succeeded in breaking his left leg and arm, and fracturing his skull. He was, and has been for two years, insane. But little hopes are entertained of his recovery.

EMANCIPATION IN MARYLAND.—It is rumored that Governor Bradford will convene an extra session of the Maryland Legislature at an early day to authorize a call of a Constitutional Convention, with a view to the question of emancipation in that State.

The ratifications of the Seward and Lyons treaty have been exchanged. The main points are the mutual right of search, without reference to the number of the vessels employed, and the summary punishment of those engaged in the illegal traffic.

"What is wanting," said Napoleon one day to Madam Campan, "in order that the youth of France be well educated?" "Good mothers," was the reply. The Emperor was most forcibly struck with this answer. "Here," said he, "is a system in one word."

The records at the office of the surveyor in chief of the Panama Railroad company, at Aspinwall, shows the quantity of rain which fell there in 1861, was 133.91-100 inches, a little more than eleven feet. At Pernambuco, in Brazil, in lat. 8 degrees south, 100 inches had fallen in a year.

All the papers which have emanated from Gen. Halleck, as well as his public addresses, have been models of good taste, brief and sententious, and he has exhibited a degree of magnanimity in his appreciation of the skill and services of others, from the general of an army corps down to individuals among the rank and file, which is also worthy of imitation by all public men.

The trade with the west of Africa seems now to almost centre at Boston. Salem once used to have a large share of this trade, but now nearly all of her vessels are "tried from" and arrive at Boston. One of the principal articles of export from Africa are peanuts, several large cargoes of which have arrived here lately. Palm oil is the other great staple from the west coast.

PROPHETRY.—The Emperor Napoleon has done a wise and good thing. The ultramontane Archbishop of Toulouse had declared his intention of commemorating a massacre of Huguenots which was perpetrated in that city three hundred years ago.

The Chinese Mail.—Mr. Latham has secured quite a success in practical legislation, in getting through the Senate his bill directing the annual payment by the Government of $500,000 for a term of years, in aid of the establishment of a line of monthly mail steamers suitable for foreign purposes between San Francisco, Japan and China. The bill was amended by the Senate only so far as to strike out the provision that the steamers shall be commanded by naval officers. A motion to amend so as to "authorize" the President to select the officers was defeated, and to the discretion of the Executive, was negative, and the bill passed—yeas 26, nays 16. This decided vote sends the bill to the House with a decided prestige. Nevertheless its passage in the latter body will be found far more difficult of management than in a small body like the Senate, where each member can be individually approached and argued into acquiescence.

Recapture of the Ship Emile St. Pierre, Formerly of Charleston, S. C.

This ship under the command of Capt. Wilson, from Charleston, with a cargo of guano, was captured by the Charleston while attempting to run the blockade, by the steamer Jas. Aldger, who put a prize crew of 16 men on board, under the command of Lieut. Stone, with orders to take her to Philadelphia. All the ship's company, except Captain Wilson, the steward, and stewardess, were taken on board the steamer as prisoners. As the ship was cranked, Capt. Wilson suggested if he were left on board, he would sail her, as he was better acquainted with her management than Lieut. Stone, and his services were accepted. He immediately determined to capture his vessel, and secured the aid of his cook and steward. While one watch was below, Wilson bled, ironed and gagged the officer who was asleep in his berth. He then went on deck and invited Lieut. Stone to come with him into the cabin to examine the ship's position on the chart, and while doing this, with the aid of his confederate he bound, ironed and gagged the commanding officer also. Next he went on deck and met three men, and ordered them to go into the body hatches to get out a coil of rigging. Supposing that he was acting in obedience to the orders of Lieut. Stone, they went below, and were immediately shut down. Two others, who were on deck, were easily overpowered and ironed. The watch below were shut down, and Capt. Wilson, ordered them up one at a time, and told them what he had done. He asked them to aid in working the ship to a British port; but only two consented, and these were landmen. With this slender crew he navigated the vessel from Cape Hatteras, where he recaptured her, to Liverpool, and left his prisoners safe at the same time without shedding a drop of blood or using any harsh measures (able to affect their health). During the passage the ship encountered a tremendous gale, in which she carried away her tiller; but Wilson seemed equal to every emergency, soon repaired the disaster, and finally brought his vessel into Liverpool safe and sound. We are somewhat astonished that he did not put into Bermuda, rather than run the terrible risk of making such a long passage with such a crew. The ship and cargo are probably worth $150,000. Hereafter, we hope our cruisers, when they take a prize, will have the pleasure of taking out her crew, and not leave the least chance for her recapture.

Captain Wilson, however, had no warrant in maritime law for resuming possession of his ship while on her way to an Admiralty Court, which had yet to decide upon her ownership or guilt. Had it been the property of a merchant, such an act would have been protected by the usages of war. But, as the vessel of a neutral, it was bound to submit to the judgment of a Prize Court without resistance or hesitation. While this point is perfectly clear in itself, it is not of war—namely, the confining of these legally in charge of the vessel—a lieutenant and sailors of the American navy were carried as prisoners of war into a neutral port. This phase of the transaction has no circumstance in itself under international law. It is unquestionably an exceedingly neat little bit of business; but it will require from England reparation as complete and satisfactory as that we frankly rendered in the instance of the Trent.

The Earl of Derby, at the present time, is said to have 125 persons employed in the preservation of game, at the cost of £1,000 a year.

The London Ironmonger says that Capt. Baskely will exhibit a 500-pounder cannon, the Mersey steel work a 600-pounder, and C. Krupp, of Essen, Prussia, a rifled steel 250-pounder, at the World's Fair.

W. H. Russell, of the Times, stated on his first visit to the Reform Club after his return, that the total discomfiture of the South is as certain as fate,—that the Southern soldiers reminded him of Falstaff's ragged regiment,—that the Federal troops are now coming to any in the world,—and that the future standing United States army cannot be less considering that the leading rebel cities must be garrisoned, than 250,000 men.

THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT AND SENAT LAMBE.—The Ami de la Religion has received a communication dated from the Ministry of the Interior, in reply to an article which it had published on the subject of the desecration of the Sabbath in Paris, and expressing regret that the example of such violation should be set by the State, the department, or the city, which every Sunday, the article declared, occupy an army of workmen in laboring the least urgent. The ministerial note denies the correctness of the statement, and declares that, on the contrary, that no laborers are carried on but those which are absolutely necessary.

FRENCH GOSSIP.—Napoleon, probably suffering an infection of indigestion, has snubbed Queen Victoria, and, to balance the account, Lord Palmerston has given Napoleon a pretty smart knock on the knuckles. It happened in this wise. Acting under instructions, of course, Lord Cow, British Minister at Paris, had an audience with Napoleon, in which he intimated that, if his Imperial Majesty had any purpose of visiting London during the Great Exhibition, Queen Victoria desired to place Buckingham Palace at his disposal, though she could not, even for him, deviate from her resolve not to receive strangers during her first year of widowhood. In the matter of this communication surely all was friendly and well-meaning. Perhaps Lord Cowley's manner made it less pleasant. At any rate, the on dit is that Napoleon having heard Lord Cowley out, curtly answered that he did not intend visiting London, and, with a short bow, turned on his heel and stalked out of the room, leaving the poor wretch of an Ambassador very much astonished and considerably incensed. Next day, the Moniteur had a paragraph stating, rather contemptuously, that there was no foundation for the report that the Emperor intended to honor London with his presence. N. Y. Herald.
