THE HAKALAU JURY IS OUT

TWO FIELD LUNAS TRIED FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

Evidence for the Defense Given Today—Jury Retires at a Few Moments of Noon.

At a few moments of the noon hour today the jury in the manslaughter cases against Hickey and Chalmers, Lunas on the Hakalau plantation, charged with assaulting a Chinese laborer named Lee Man Chit, inflicting injuries which caused his death, retired.

It was a general surprise to all about the court room that the trial should come to such a speedy end.

General A. S. Hartwell made the arguments for the prosecution and Paul Neumann spoke for the defense.

Judge Carter's instructions to the jury were that if the jurymen should believe one of the defendants guilty and the other innocent, a verdict to that effect could be returned.

Up to 2:30 o'clock this afternoon the jury had not reported.

D. McKenzie, keeper of the store on Hakalau plantation, stated that he had seen Lee Man Chit, the Chinese laborer alleged to have died from the wounds inflicted by Hickey, the evening he was brought to the store. He examined him and saw no external signs of violence on his body.

H. D. Beveridge, who has worked on different plantations as a field hand, was in the store at the time Lee Man Chit was brought in by his countrymen. He looked at the man's body at the same time as did Storekeeper McKenzie. He saw no bruises.

D. Ogilvy, a team foreman, testified that he saw Lee Man Chit and did not believe he was injured. The testimony of Manager Ross and Bookkeeper H. V. Patten was to the effect that the murdered man was brought to the plantation office on the evening of the alleged assault. They saw no external bruises. After a careful examination of the man, Manager Ross told the Chinese to take him back and he would send a doctor over in the morning. On the road back the Chinese claimed that Lee Man Chit died.

Joe Santiago is a Portuguese Luna, and he told the Court that he stood within five yards of where Lee Man Chit lay when Luna Chalmers rode up on horseback. Chalmers made no assault whatever upon the Chinaman. Chalmers denied to the Court that he abused the man when he ran across him in the afternoon.

Hickey took the stand and admitted that he had slapped Lee Man Chit with the cane knife and had taken him by the collar of his shirt and had shaken him. Hickey says that the man had been placed at work lifting light cane, but he continued to sham. Asked whether he was ill, Hickey said the man's nose was bleeding that morning and he had seen him fall down earlier in the day.

Dr. Cooper was on the stand for a brief time to give expert testimony.

HICKEY IS GUILTY.

At 3:10 o'clock the jury returned a verdict acquitting Chalmers, but convicting Hickey of manslaughter in the second degree.

COFFEE LANDS ARE TAXABLE.

The appeal from the Assessor's levy upon coffee lands as brought before the Tax Appeal Board has been heard, and decided against the appeal, says the Hilo Tribune. The case was decided in accordance with the strict interpretation of the law, which was the only course open to the Board.

FIRST OF THE SERIES.

Clerk Smith of the Supreme Court has received from H. D. Wishard, as president of the Tax Appeal Court for the Island of Kauai, a certificate of an appeal to the Supreme Court from an assessment placed upon the property of Grove Farm, owned by Hon. G. N. Wilcox, by the assessor.

The valuation placed on the property by the owner is $130,000, which was increased by the assessor to $168,450. The estate is situated in the district of Lihue. There are several other appeals, both on income and on property tax, talked of, but the records have not been sent up yet.

AN ASSESSMENT ASKED

PROMOTERS OF PIGEON CARRIER SERVICE ACTIVE.

Commissioner Marsden Wants to See the Pigeons Flying Before He Leaves on His Vacation.

Agricultural Commissioner Joseph Marsden will depart on an extended vacation to Canada one week from Friday. Before taking his leave Commissioner Marsden will endeavor to get the pigeon carrying service well established.

Repeated attempts have been made to get a meeting of the association, but without success. Only a few of the stockholders put in an appearance.

Now, Mr. Marsden has caused a circular to be distributed among the stockholders requesting them to advance thirty per cent in cash on their stock. This assessment is considered sufficient to get the service started. When this has been done, Mr. Marsden and Secretary Weedon are so confident of the success of the scheme, that there will be no further financial difficulty.

Mr. Weedon has fourteen pigeons at his home which will be trained for the service. While in California this summer Mr. Marsden secured plans for the service and completed negotiations for the birds. They are now waiting for the association's call.

Both Commissioner Marsden and Mr. Weedon believe thoroughly in the success of the scheme. They say the pigeons will fly across the sea. They are flying across the English Channel every day.

Birds have traveled between Laupahoehoe and Kahului for many years, according to Mr. Marsden's statement to the reporter. This is the widest expanse of water anywhere about the islands.

The following is the estimated expense for one year:

Pigeon Loft	$200
Twenty-five pair of birds	125
Shipping baskets, rings, etc.	75
Feed one year	125
Wages of attendant, one year	300
Lease of land	12
Telephone, one-half expense of the year	15
Sundries, freights and incidentals	150
Total	$1,002

ORDERS FOR NEGROES.

E. A. Gardner Will Leave Tomorrow for the Coast.

E. A. Gardner, the San Francisco man who brought to the sugar planters here a proposition to supply them with negroes in the fields to displace Oriental labor, will leave for the Coast on the Australia tomorrow. He has secured orders for about fifty families including a number to be employed as domestic servants. The planters have not shown the eagerness to accept Mr. Gardner's proposition that he anticipated, but he is well satisfied he says, for he is assured that the families he brings down will give so much better satisfaction in every line of employment than the Chinese and Japanese, that the first order will lead to other larger orders. During Mr. Gardner's absence from the Islands, Watson J. Wyman, formerly a newspaper correspondent, will represent him here.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS.

Captain Cotton Gives a Farewell Dinner on Board.

Captain Book and the officers on the Marion will give a farewell dinner and supper on board Thursday evening. Miss Helen Wilder gives a luncheon at Eskbank tomorrow. There will be ten ladies present.

The farewell dinner in honor of the departing guests on the Australia will occur at the Hawaiian Hotel this evening.

There was a dinner party on board the Philadelphia last evening given by Captain Cotton. It was the captain's farewell to his friends. The decorations were very attractive. The guests were United States Minister and Mrs. Sewall, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Spencer, Mrs. W. M. Maxwell, Mrs. M. C. Widdifield, Miss Adele Widdifield, Admiral Miller and Lieutenant Commander Briggs.

Minister and Mrs. Cooper will give a musicale at their home in Pawaia, on Saturday evening. W. R. Castle, Jr., will entertain a few of his friends at dinner this evening.

The meeting of the Vice Versa Card Club last evening at the home of Miss Myra Angus was a pleasant affair. Miss Lillie Love and Charles Weight carried away the first trophies.

OREGON WILL COME.

The latest Army and Navy Journal states that the U. S. S. Oregon is taking supplies preparatory to sailing for Honolulu; that she is to relieve the Philadelphia, which, in turn, is ordered to sail not later than September for Mare Island for a cleaning. As the paper quoted is a first class authority on naval matters the report may be relied on as about the actual program.

THE SUGAR PLANTERS WIN

THEY WERE NOT PROPERLY ASSESSED.

Government Will Now Fight the Principal Plantations on the Big Island in the Higher Court.

The very briefest news came by the Mauna Loa this noon to the effect that the sugar plantations on Hawaii have won over the Government in the Tax Appeal cases.

The tax appeal cases have created considerable interest in Hilo during the hearing. They have been tried before Judge Hitchcock, Judge Barnard and Judge Philip Peck. Attorney W. A. Kinney represented the plantations and Gardner K. Wilder defended the government tax assessor.

It is known that thirteen cases were brought before the board, including the plantations of Paauhau, Honakaa, Hakaluu, Oookala, Wainaka, Wainaku, Kukuhaele, Papiakou, Kohala, Onomea, Pahala, Honoum and Naalehu.

The Government will certainly carry the cases to the higher court.

Nothing was learned whether the Court had determined on the appeal cases in the matter of coffee lands.

Frank Winter, who objects to taxing coffee lands, made a strong fight before the board.

MAUNA LOA ARRIVES.

Big Cargo of Freight and Long List of Passengers.

The Mauna Loa got alongside soon after noon with a full cargo and a good list of passengers. Capt. Simeron reports good weather and a fine trip. Among the principal items in the cargo list are: 11,336 bags of sugar, 72 bags coffee, 83 bags awa and 27 head of cattle. Following is the passenger list in full:

Karl Buchholtz, W. A. Wall and wife, H. D. Sloggett, A. Gartenberg and wife, P. B. Aiken, F. F. Baldwin, W. P. McConhey, D. Kanuha, A. K. Akau and son, Mr. Smith, Mrs. S. C. Dwight, Miss Elsie Dwight, Mrs. V. H. Kiteat, Mrs. A. Clark and daughter, Mrs. W. P. Boyd, Miss May Baldwin, Mrs. Espindola and son, Mrs. Alapai, Miss Mary Kapali, Ali, and 68 deck.

CORBETT-FITZSIMMONS.

A Graphic Representation of the Fight in the Opera House.

The reproduction of the famous fight through the medium of Edison's wonderful photographic invention was presented to an enthusiastic audience at the Opera House last night. Every movement of the men in the ring, their seconds and managers, and the spectators at the ring side was produced so vividly that the gallery at times seemed to imagine that the figures on the screen were real and cheered the fighters repeatedly. It was a truly wonderful exhibition. Nothing like it has ever been seen here before. One must see it to appreciate it. Fitzsimmons was the favorite at any odds last night, and there is every reason to believe that he will be again tonight.

A BRUTE.

Lum Look, a Chinese merchant, has been arrested on a charge of assault and battery on a 10-year-old girl, and the facts in the case show what a brute he is. The Chinese had purchased the girl for a house servant. She did not perform the duties assigned her to her master's satisfaction, so he tied her hands together with a rope passed around her wrists so tightly that it cut deep into the flesh. The child was injured so severely that another Chinese informed on him at the Police Station. Captain Parker ordered the master's arrest. The child has been placed in a home. San Luk has been released on $100 bail.

Lum Look was sentenced by Police Judge Wilcox this afternoon to three months at hard labor in Oahu prison. The verdict was a popular one.

MARION GOES THIS WEEK.

Captain Book expects the Marion to sail for Mare Island on Thursday. No positive orders have been announced yet.

MACE TELLS HIS STORY.

Attorney Would Take Fees Out of the Judgment.

While the Wakefield and Wise misconduct cases were on trial before the Supreme Court last week, Mace, the sailor from the Indiana, who was arrested for attempting to sink the ship, gave testimony against the Hilo attorneys.

Mace said that he had no money and so informed his counsel. He inquired of them how he was to pay them for their services. The reply was that he had a good case for damages against the Government and the United States Consular Agent at Hilo, and that they would get their fee out of the judgment he would secure. Other spicy testimony was given. The Supreme Court now has the matter under consideration. A decision is looked for this week.

HAWAIIAN COFFEE THE BEST

HIGH GRADES RANK WITH LEADING WORLD'S PRODUCT.

Everett N. Bee, an Expert, has Encouraging Words for the Planters of the Islands.

Everett N. Bee, of Otis, McAllister & Co., prominent coffee commission merchants of San Francisco, is at the Hawaiian. He expects to spend a few weeks' vacation in the Islands, and incidentally to visit the coffee belt and look into the cultivation of coffee there and the methods in vogue for preparing it for the market. Mr. Bee is an expert on coffee and takes a very great interest in the subject. During the past few years he has spent half his time in practical coffee work in the districts of Central America, whose products are largely handled by his firm.

Mr. Bee will sail for Hawaii on the next Kinau and will spend a fortnight among the plantations of Oahu and Kona. He may possibly go into Puna, but at the present time considers it scarcely worth his while, as the district is not yet far enough advanced to show practical results. In discussing Hawaiian coffee, which he has handled to some extent, Mr. Bee said this morning:

"About 4,000 bags of Hawaiian coffee were shipped into San Francisco last year. By far the larger portion of it was unutilized coffee. There were a few lots of the cultivated or washed product, as we call it, that fell into our hands, and it immediately established a market, especially for the washed coffee which brought a premium of 3 cents per pound over the unutilized, ranking at once with the highest grade of Central American coffee."

"The cultivated or washed Hawaiian coffee, when properly prepared, as to washing, drying, separating, polishing, etc., has value in flavor which places it among the very best coffees in the world."

"I am unable to judge as yet as to whether coffee crops will pay produce here, not being familiar with the conditions on the Islands, as to cheap labor and the water supply necessary to wash coffee and handle it economically, but if the planters can surmount these difficulties, I can assure them that the demand for fine grades will always be equal to the supply, and the market will be found close by in San Francisco, from which point the product can be distributed all over the United States. The markets of the Mississippi Valley are very large consumers of fine washed coffees, and we never have been able to import enough of the fine grades from Central America to meet the demand."

"About 150,000 bags of Central American coffees are shipped into San Francisco annually. We think we can always take care of the product of these Islands without obliging the planters to ship to foreign markets, and save heavy expense in time and freights."

"In regard to the present outlook for coffee, I may say that the markets everywhere have been and are declining, owing to the unusual crop in overstock in all coffee centers. The difference today between the strictly fine washed coffees and the Brazil product is from 6 to 8 cents per pound in favor of the washed coffee. While this will be subject to varying conditions, and may not always be so widely maintained, the margin will doubtless always insure a profit to the growers of fine coffees."

EASTMAN-STACKABLE NUPTIALS.

Will be Quietly Married at the Neumann Home This Evening.

Acting Auditor General E. R. Stackable and Miss Jennie Eastman of San Francisco, will be quietly married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neumann at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening.

The Bishop of Panapolis, assisted by Father Vallentine, will perform the ceremony. Miss Pauline Neumann will be the maid-of-honor, and James Melnery best man. Paul Neumann will give away the bride. Only the immediate friends of the contracting parties will be present.

The couple will occupy the Ewa residence in Mauna Valley for a week, when they will go to Waikiki for a month, occupying a cottage at Sans Souci.

Miss Eastman is the daughter of the late James G. Eastman, of San Francisco. She visited the Neumanns for a short time six years ago. Mr. Stackable has been a resident of Honolulu for several years. He is an able assistant to Minister Damon in the Finance Department and is prominently identified with the military.

A REAL ROMANCE.

From the Sick Ward to the Hymeneal Altar.

Miss D. S. Stevens, a member of the Queen's Hospital Corps, will sail this week on the Alameda for Sydney, New South Wales. There she will be married to F. A. Peters, manager of the Australia department of F. W. France Co., bicycle manufacturers.

Mr. Peters is one of the best known and popular bicycle men in the United States. While en route to Australia last year in company with W. S. Crooks, Mr. Peters was taken ill and was obliged to go to the Queen's Hospital. It was there he met Miss Stevens, who he will lead to the altar next month.

FOOT BALL SEASON COMING

A LEAGUE WILL BE FORMED OF SIX TEAMS.

Will Play for a Period Covering Eight Weeks—Season Will Open Early in October—The Players.

There will be a meeting of the football players one evening this week to discuss the coming season. Two teams from the Townies, two from the St. Louis College, the Punahou and Philadelphia elevens, make up the list.

The plans now mapped out are for the organization of a league, very similar to the baseball league. The teams are to compete with each other alternately on Saturday afternoons, for a period of eight weeks. It is the desire to schedule the opening game for the early part of October. The Townies and St. Louis College managements were to put their best material in the first teams. The second elevens will be organized to battle with each other for supremacy on the third and sixth Saturdays. This is done in order to avoid having any one of the four big teams compete on two successive Saturdays.

The Townies will enter the contest with a much superior team than last year. W. H. Cornwell, Jr., the captain, has induced many of the old players to sign, including George Angus, Charles Chillingworth, August Conrad, F. B. Damon, Koki, John and George Waterhouse and Chris Holt.

M. M. Tuft, who returned from a Summer's visit to California on the Australia last week, will play this season. Tuft won many laurels in last season's games. Isaac Cockett, who weighs in the neighborhood of 200 pounds, will play guard. The position of center rush will probably lie between Joseph Fern and D. Nottley, both of whom are new men, and who weigh over 225 pounds.

"Brick" Whitehouse, who has held important positions on the Standard team during his college days, will be a mainstay for the Townies. Frank Armstrong, formerly with the Punahou, is another strong addition to the Townies.

Captain Cornwell had a number of his men out for practice yesterday afternoon.

Albert F. Judd, Jr., just from Yale, and who coached the Freshmen team last year, will instruct the Town boys.

The second team of the Townies will be made up of an abundance of good material. Leslie P. Scott, Dan Vida and Henry Hopai, are among the most active footballists.

Carlo Long, captain and center rush for the townies last year will play center rush for the St. Louis. John Lane, David Dayton, Andrew Lawrence, James Thompson, Prince Cupid, with the Townies last year.

Austin from the Barracks and Captain William F. Soper are among the strong players on the St. Louis eleven. Captain Soper got his men out to practice last week.

The Punahou will organize a team. It will be necessary for them to take in outsiders. Professor Babbitt will likely captain the team.

Cadet McCormick is organizing the Philadelphia team. Nothing has been heard from him for the past week or so but he will be on hand at the meeting this week to make a report.

There will be no team from the Barracks this year.

MANY ARE BOOKED.

The Moana, sailing on September 16, is the next boat sailing for San Francisco on the Oceanic Line, after the Australia. Her passenger list includes:

H. F. Wichman, W. H. Baugh, Mrs. Moses and child, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Currier, A. M. Aberton, A. M. Cook, Jr., Mrs. J. M. Atherton, Miss E. Cook, Captain Cotton, Arthur Wilder, A. F. Judd, J. R. Judd, A. W. Jones, H. P. Judd, W. R. Castle, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George R. Meade and son, Miss S. Richardson and Miss Alice Jones.

"DOMESTIC."

There is no necessity to add the words sewing machine in speaking of the "Domestic." Every housekeeper knows that the "Domestic" is what L. B. Kerr claims it to be—the best in the world.

A SPASM OF SENSE.

Now, let's have a short spasm of common sense. If people who have been chronically sick are so soon and so easily cured by our preparation, why were they not cured by some of the medicines they took before? Because medicines are like novels and songs; once in a while a good one hits on tons of poor ones. But what is

It contains the nutritive properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry Bark, combined in a new, and scientific way. It isn't a lot of incongruous ingredients shaken together, but chemically united, so as to make one thing of unprecedented potency. WHAT SAILOR MEN TALK OF

BARK MARTHA DAVIS READY FOR SEA.

Helene on the Marine Railway—Marion May Sail Tuesday—Rio de Janeiro Not Expected—Gossip.

The Mohican is discharging general cargo at Brewer's wharf.

The dredger has commenced on a second stretch up the bay.

The Mauna Loa was reported at 10:35 o'clock this morning.

The Aloha is now twenty days out, and is yet to be heard from.

The George F. Manson is discharging Newcastle coal at the railroad dock.

The Australia will take out a full cargo of sugar, rice, bananas and hides, leaving sharp at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

The Alameda is due from the Coast on the 20th, and the Peru on the 31st.

The next steamer to the Coast after the Australia tomorrow is the Doric on September 4th.

The Pacific Mail steamer Rio de Janeiro was scheduled to arrive here today from the Orient, but will not touch here, but go straight across.

The Doric will touch here on a special trip on September 4th.

The Helene went on the marine railway yesterday afternoon for the first time since she was launched. Like all new steel steamers her bottom has become very foul, and needs a thorough scraping and cleaning.

The Martha Davis received enough sugar from the Noaa, which arrived yesterday morning, to top off her cargo. Today the ship is being put in proper trim, so that she can sail bright and early tomorrow morning.

She has a full cargo of sugar.

The Marion is in trim to sail on short notice. Captain Book expects to get away on Thursday, although he has as yet received no positive orders.

The Bennington brought down a rumor to the effect that she will be ordered to Samoa, but it cannot be confirmed.

Mort Tuft, the Inter Island Company purser who recently returned from the Coast after a two months vacation, got into the harness again this morning. For the present he will relieve Freight Clerk Piltz on the Mikahala, on the Kauai run, while the latter takes a short vacation.

The H. F. Glade has still 900 tons of fertilizer stuffs to discharge, and it looks very much as if she will be another fortnight in getting it out.

The stuff must go to the railroad wharf, and the Glade will not be able to get a berth there for at least a week to come. The Glade is in the meantime taking in 800 tons of rock ballast.

U. S. S. INDIANA.

She sails for Halifax, where She will be Docked.

The big battleship Indiana sailed away from Newport August 6th for Halifax, where she will be docked and cleaned and painted. She is the first of the battleships that has been sent to the United States to a foreign dock for lack of docking facilities at home, but it is probable that she will be followed by her sister ship Massachusetts, and the Iowa, as it is not expected now that the New York dock will be repaired in less than a year's time and there is no other dock on the Atlantic coast capable of receiving them.

JAPANESE FINANCES.

Advices from the East say the Japanese Government is seriously embarrassed financially owing to the rapid pace at which the nation has been going since the war with China.

Civilization has necessitated increased expenditures in every direction, particularly in building railroads and telegraph lines, new government buildings, improving harbors and in strengthening the army and navy.

The treasury was not directly benefited by the big war indemnity paid by China, because it has been kept in England to pay for new warships and armament. Owing to the increased expenditures during the past year all the government's reserve funds are exhausted.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo., and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale by all druggists and dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., wholesale agents for the Hawaiian Islands.

Mr. B., Honolulu.

Dear Sir: Have tried several brands of flour lately. One brand made dark bread; one did not "work up" well; one made porous bread; one produced bread that dried up too quickly, and another turned out bread so poor that we couldn't eat it. Now what's the trouble and what's the remedy?

Yours truly,

Dear Madam: Referring to the above questions: First place you ordered the wrong brands of flour—that's your "trouble." Next time order FORT COSTA FLOUR—that's your "remedy."

THE HATED CATERPILLAR.

A Lover of Nature Says Something in Its Behalf.

Why the caterpillar should excite fear or disgust we could never well understand, but we have heard boys as well as girls—yes, and men as well as women—say that caterpillars made them shudder.

Yet the caterpillar spends his life in trying to keep out of everybody's way. Some species hide on the under surface of leaves, others on the stems or blades of grass, which serve them as food; others again, build little nests for concealment, or else they lie singly hidden between the curled edges of leaves, which they draw close together until the opposite edges meet.

The caterpillar is a sociable creature in his own family. He knows that there is safety in numbers, and you will find whole companies feeding side by side while keeping a sharp lookout for their bird enemies, but when a caterpillar is by himself he scarcely dares to move for fear of attracting attention. Even when he is obliged to change his skin he doesn't venture to leave his old coat lying around. The moment that he takes it off he eats it. The caterpillars that live in companies shed their skins boldly. Only the poor solitary fellows feel forced to swallow their old clothes.

A great protection to the unfortunate caterpillar when he leaves his nest early in the spring is his power of mimicry. The voracious caterpillar is either red spotted or is dressed in conspicuous purple bands and he feeds on lichens. He is clever enough to place himself so that he exactly resembles the opening buds and the curving shoots of the twig on which he lies. He can make himself look the color of the soft down of the buds, and he often deceives the ichneumon flies that are searching for him high and low.

With all his cleverness, with all his trouble, we know that many a caterpillar has to go to furnish a meal for the hungry birds, and we know it is the law of nature that such things should happen. But do not crush a caterpillar with your heel simply because he lies in your path. Don't shake him from the ingenious little nest that he has constructed with so cunning a patience and then stamp out his life. Leave him as a legitimate prey for the birds or for any creature that has actual need of him.—Our Animal Friends.

POLITICAL POWER.

It is amusing, if it were not sad, to see allusions to the political past of the Hawaiian. If one looks back to the time of the Kamehamehas, who did the ruling? It was the white man, not the Hawaiian. A veil was thrown over the matter, and there might be a nominal Hawaiian head in a public office; but, if that were so, there was a very capable second in command who did the work. Take even the reign of Kalakaua, the minister of finance was a very favorite one to bestow on the Hawaiian member of the Cabinet, and was at various times filled by Mōhoenuua, Nahaolelua, John Kapena, and so forth—during the period of kaleidoscopic ministries; but the real Minister of Finance of those days was the Registrar of Public Accounts—such men as J. O. Carter, Godfrey Brown and Frank Pratt.

The great political past of Hawaii does not exist, except as a semblance and a sham. The political destinies of the Hawaiians have ever been shaped by white men, chiefly Anglo-Saxons. The very party that the present noisy knot of royalists abuse, viz., the missionary party, was the one which toiled, and worked and hoped that the semblance might become a reality, which was ever striving to give political credit to the Hawaiian. Its hope was to found a state which might stand on its own legs; but its hope was never, and under the circumstances, could never be realized. The real government of the country has ever been in the hands of the foreigners.

If the foreigners here had been of a different stripe from what they were—if they had not been the hated "missionaries" and those affiliated with them—Hawaiian rule would have disappeared long before the last decade of the nineteenth century. It was the peculiar circumstances under which civilization came to these islands that maintained the Hawaiian in his place of apparent self-government so long.

Imagine for an instant that, after Lord George Paulet had hoisted the British flag over the islands, Admiral Thomas had not restored it. What would be the condition of the Hawaiian now? We have only to look at the position of aboriginal tribes under British rule to learn. The New Zealander is every whit as capable as the Hawaiian. He possesses some sterling qualities which the Hawaiian has not displayed in any marked degree. But what is he in New Zealand—a nonentity, a race apart; a race not counted in the general population of the country. He is not ill-treated; certain rights and privileges are conceded to him—but he is not considered; the white colonist practically ignores his existence. The same process is going on in Fiji. The same process would have gone on here.

But the men who have helped the Hawaiian in the past help him even up to the present time. Though they have done his ruling for him, they appreciate his qualities and, arrived at the political cross roads, what do they offer? Do they ignore the Hawaiian? By no means. They have asked for annexation to the United States, and they ask, at the same time, that the Hawaiian shall enjoy the same rights and the same immunities that any American citizen possesses. It is changing a brass farthing for a golden guinea.

The true friend of the Hawaiian is the annexationist. His secret foe is the anti-annexationist. With annexation, the Hawaiian becomes an integral portion of a great power. Without annexation, the Hawaiian will enjoy no political picnic; he will become the prey of political adventurers of a very different stripe from those who have had kindly relations with him in the past. The failure of annexation would ring the death-knell of the Hawaiian.

The school law of 1896 reads, the "Department of Public Instruction shall consist of a Minister of Public Instruction and six commissioners." The expression is "shall," and therefore mandatory. At present the Department of Public Instruction consists of five commissioners; why is not the sixth place filled? And again, as the law says, "shall consist" of "six commissioners," is it a legal board until the sixth is appointed? It seems as if Section 5 of the law depended upon the legal filling of the commissionships.

SOME REASONS.

As time goes on, the reasons for postponing the action of the Senate on the Annexation Treaty are made gradually clearer. One of the most important of these is, according to the Washington Star, that, before final action was taken, it was felt necessary, in the interests of peace, to have a large force of war-ships in the Pacific. The Executive of the United States thoroughly understand the Japanese side of the question. Though the Japanese officials publicly talk of peace, it is well known that, in their inmost hearts, they desire war.

The head of the Japanese is completely turned. He thinks, as Count Okuma once put it, that not a thing should be done by the Great Powers without Japan having its say in the matter. Whenever opportunity serves, she is quite ready to back up her political views by force of arms; and it is to guard against such a contingency that the United States desires to have an overwhelming force in the Pacific. Large armaments do not necessarily mean war. The mere fact of having force adequate to defy any intruder is quite sufficient to prevent the intruder from putting in an appearance.

The financial condition of Japan is not a very satisfactory one at present. There are signs already of a break in the boom caused by the success in the China war. A break in the financial boom might make a very great difference in the attitude of Japan. She might then have too much to occupy her at home to bother with affairs abroad, unless she uses a strong, and even an aggressive, foreign policy to keep her people's minds from dwelling upon the troubles at home. In this lies the danger in dealing with Japan. A wise, internal policy would keep her quiet, but, with the "big head" from which she suffers, it is a question whether the wise, internal policy will be followed out. Thus President McKinley's policy is quite right, to look forward to possible complications which it will be necessary to keep in order by a proper show of force.

Mr. Rosecrans called in at the office this morning to say that the paper for which subscriptions are asked for is not a Government venture, but a private venture of his own. Of course, if that is the case, Mr. Rosecrans is quite at liberty to ask for all the subscriptions he likes, but it should be distinctly so stated in his letter. The attention of The Star was mainly drawn to the matter by the statement of a young teacher who subscribed a small sum—75 cents; but, even that, she could not afford. She was in receipt of a salary of $35 a month, and, out of that, had to help support her mother. She had to pay her expenses to the Convention. When she saw that some paid $10, some $5 and so forth, she said she felt ashamed to give no subscription, and so handed in her poor little 75 cents. It is people of this kind who need protection, and are entitled to it. For Mr. Rosecrans, it must be said, that he denies having sent letters to those in receipt of such small salaries. However, in making application, it should be clearly shown that this is a private venture, and that non-support of it will have no effect upon the teachers' status. A good many think it will.

You probably pay too much a month for tea; it is probably not very good.

AERMOTORS—GOOD THINGS.

The Aermotor Company has, from the first, known what to do and how to do it, and, as a consequence, it came without a name or much money into a field in which millions of dollars were entrenched, and has taken, and now holds and enjoys, at least one-half of the windmill business of the United States and of the globe.

We wish to say that the Aermotor has been a most pronounced success in the Hawaiian Islands. To-day we are selling more of these mills, both pumping and geared, than all the other concerns put together. Why? Because we have the best mill ON EARTH!

Our reason for claiming this is simply because we are fortunate enough to be the agents, and because the mills we have put up in various parts of the islands have stood the test where others have failed.

From an economical standpoint they cannot be beaten, as the construction is so simple, yet strong, that repairs are unnecessary. They are self-adjusting and run day and night in the lightest wind.

Attention is called to our Gould & Krogh Triple Action Pumps and Syphon Pumps, and Patent Water Tanks, holding from 500 to 10,000 gallons.

Pure

Blood is essential to perfect health. This is a scientific fact. Every organ, nerve and muscle must be fed and nourished. It is the function of the blood to furnish this nourishment, and the quality of nourishment these organs receive depends on the quality of the blood. If the blood is

Rich

Pure and full of vitality it will properly feed and support the whole mechanism of the body. If it is poor and thin disease and suffering will be inevitable. The great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla in curing stubborn cases of scrofula, eczema, rheumatism, neuralgia and many other similar troubles, is based upon its power to enrich and purify the

Blood

This is also the reason for the great popularity of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a building up medicine. By making pure, rich blood, it gives vigor and vitality even in trying seasons, when, owing to impoverished blood, thousands are complaining of weakness and weariness, lack of energy and ambition, and that tired feeling.

MCKINLEY'S LIVE POLICY

LARGE NAVAL FORCE TO BE SOON IN THE PACIFIC.

Japan's Attitude in the Hawaiian Affair Thoroughly Understood—Outwardly Talks Peace, Inwardly War.

According to the Washington Star Senator Morgan now expresses the most perfect confidence that President McKinley is going to carry out a wise foreign policy, sufficiently vigorous and firm to do credit to the administration.

It may further be stated that at the coming session of Congress, when the Hawaiian question comes up for consideration by the Senate, there will be complete co-operation between the President and Mr. Morgan in relation to the annexation treaty. These facts together with the great interest and earnestness Mr. Morgan has shown in foreign questions, give a peculiar weight and significance to the expressions of confidence in the President, which the Alabama senator makes.

In speaking of the President and his foreign policy, Mr. Morgan expressly disclaimed any knowledge of the President's plans. "I think," he said, "that the President does not disclose his intention in such matters to any one. He keeps his own counsel, and is wisely silent about what he intends to do. But I do know that he is remarkably well informed on these several questions, not only as to generalities, but as to details. His knowledge of the Hawaiian question extends to the most minute details, and his silence seems to be that of a man who would think and act for himself, and who has confidence in himself."

It is thought desirable, not in the spirit of menace nor in the belief that we are to have war with Japan about Hawaii, but on the contrary, as a peace measure, to prevent trouble, that we should have several American naval vessels in the Pacific. At present our naval force in the Pacific is limited in number and strength. It is desirable that a number of the vessels now in the Atlantic should be sent to the Pacific station, and this cannot be safely done while the Cuban trouble still exists. It is believed that Spain is already so much weakened in her resources that she has no hope of conquering the Cuban revolutionists, and is disposed to resort to the desperate expedient of provoking direct conflict with the United States, acting under the theory that she can surrender the island to us with less loss of dignity and prestige than she would suffer from having to abandon it to the Cuban insurgents. No doubt is felt, therefore, that if a number of our naval vessels were transferred from the Atlantic stations to the Pacific, Spain would hesitate no longer, but would at once commit some overt act with the design of making a brilliant drying struggle. With this situation confronting us in Cuba, it is impossible to establish the force which the administration regards as desirable in the Pacific. Both Spain and Japan are aware of this. To correct this condition is believed to be the purpose of the President, and it is expected that a course will be pursued in relation to the Cuban question that will bring it to an issue between the United States and Spain, so as to end the matter as speedily as possible. After this is done our naval force in the Pacific can be so increased as to render it entirely probable that Japan will abandon any purpose she may have of making trouble when the annexation treaty is ratified by the Senate.

One of the most important considerations in postponing action by the Senate on the annexation treaty was an appreciation of the fact that before this final action was taken it was wise in order to guarantee peace, that there should be a strong naval force in the Pacific bearing the American flag, and the design is to have such a force there by the time the treaty is ratified. Japan will in three months have in commission the new battleships which she contracted for immediately after her victory over China, and she is also constructing two armored cruisers of a superior type. While in all official communications the Japanese disavow any hostile sentiment toward the United States, it is known absolutely by American officials that the private utterances of the Japanese officials are unfriendly and hostile, and the opinion is entertained that the safe way to prevent serious conflict with Japan when the treaty of annexation is ratified is to be prepared to meet it.

REMARKABLE CURE OF CHRONIC DIARRHOEA.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50-cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. FOUND THE NORTH POLE.

The telegrams published Friday announcing the discovery of the North Pole by Dr. Frithjof Nansen created considerable surprise. It seems funny that Dr. Nansen should care to risk so much to find the North Pole, when he can get Rainier Beer, which is certainly more practical than the North Pole, by coming to Honolulu. A HAND'S SHADOW.

Business called me to Dieppe in the summer of 1886. The cashier of one of the largest banks in New York had abandoned with the funds of the institution, and I had followed his tracks. Late at the close of the 14th of August I reached my destination and immediately repaired to my hotel. The first note of the cockcrow me. The town clock struck 4. I resolved to take a look at the city at daybreak.

I was astonished, on reaching the street,
to see it full of people rushing in a censual tide in one direction. Wondering what the attraction could be, I followed the ever increasing crowd surging down the Rue Grande. At the foot of the street was a large, open square, where the crowd formed a perfect jam. From a platform
at the opposite side I distinguished dark outlines that froze the blood in my veins.
It was the guillotine. It was not long until a bell tolled a death clangor, and
the tumblers, with the condensed, slowly approached. The executioner addressed himself deftly to his task, and in a few moments all was over.

"Who was the man, and why was he executed?" I inquired of a police agent at my side. He looked at me with astonishment and said, "Indeed, sir, it was Jacques Reynaud."

My curiosity was excited, and before I left Dieppe I had gathered all the details of the life and crimes of the dead man.

No longer than four months before there had lived in the Rue des Armes a lawyer named Morris, who was honestly but frugally supporting himself, his wife and child from the profits of his trade.

"I should wish some oysters today,"
said Mme. Morris as her husband entered one Sunday.

"I fear it is too late, my dear. It is a quarter past 9 o'clock."

"Justine thought that the shop at the corner might be open."

"Send her, then. The truth is, I am myself as hungry as a wolf."

The servant took a basket to get the oysters and left the door partly open, to save her master the trouble of unlatching it when she returned. The shop at which she was to get the oysters was locked, and Justine went down the Rue Grande to procure them elsewhere. If possible, she had been absent three quarters of an hour.

To her surprise, Justine found the house locked. She thought the wind had blown the door shut, and she tried the knob.

"They must have retired," thought Justine, indignantly, that they locked her out.

In her anxiety she related her troubles to several passersby. The police were sent for, and the door was forced. The hall was dark. One of the gentlemen stumbled over an object. He stooped down, and his hand touched something wet. A light was procured, and a horrible scene was revealed. Poor Morris lay in the hall with his throat cut. The whole floor was covered with blood. In the little room lay his wife, with a horrible wound across her throat. The assassin had not even spared the infant in the cradle. The poor little creature had met the same fate as his parents. The house was sealed.

Eight days after the crime several men were passing along the Rue Gréville.

Suddenly a man clad in nothing but his shirt appeared on a roof carrying a child
in his arms and crying, "Murder mar-der!"

A rush was made for the door, but it was found to be locked from within.

A few crashing blows sufficed to break it,
and a man ran up stairs. In the fore hall,
at the head of the stairs, a man was found with his throat cut. He was dead. In the chamber a woman was found dangling out of bed with a similar wound, and in the kitchen lay the servant girl, disposed of in a like manner. It was undoubtedly the work of the same person that had committed the crime in the Rue des Armes.

The young man who had been seen on the roof gave this testimony:

"My name is Pierre Dulac. I am a watchmaker. For two years I have been employed in the house of the murdered Manton, whose family consisted of his wife, a child and a servant girl. I slept in an attic chamber. Next to me slept the servant girl, who usually had the child with her. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning when I awoke, feeling very thirsty. My water pitcher was empty, and I started to get a fresh supply, but before I had time to descend the first flight of stairs I saw a man sneaking up the lower flight.

"Being very nervous, the murder in the Rue des Armes had so stunned my faculties that when I saw the man I was positively unable to move hand or foot.
The stranger had nearly reached the door which led to M. Manton's room when the door of the same suddenly opened, and my employer stepped out. The murderer hurled himself upon him and pressed his hand upon his mouth to prevent outcry.
I noticed that the villain had only three fingers on his left hand. I ran up stairs again and entered the girl's chamber.
Marie was not there, but the child was fast asleep. I took it in my arms and ran on the roof."

In the faubourg of Dieppe, in a rather obscure house, all alone with a servant girl, resided a widow named Beaumaurice.
She was the widow of an army officer and distinguished for great firmness of character. The excitement throughout the city had not been able to disturb her composure, despite the fact that she was comparatively unprotected.

On the 30th of April, at about 10 o'clock, Mme. Beaumaurice, who had all day suffered from a painful headache, entered her boudoir. She was very tired and sat down in a large easy chair to rest herself. Opposite her stood her dressing case, whose curtains extended down to the floor. Back of her, upon a small table, stood the lamp. The lady had begun to doze herself when she noticed something that made her heart almost stop beating. On the floor she described the shadow of a man's hand. The hand had but three fingers.

The murderer was concealed within her dressing case. After a short deliberation she approached the door and called the servant.

"Marie," said she, "do you know where
M. Bernard lives?"

"Very well, my lady."

"I forgot that I shall have to pay 500
francs tomorrow morning. You must go immediately and get the money. To insure your getting the bank notes from M.
Bernard I will write you a note."

DEAR BEAUMAU—The murderer of the Rue des Armes and the Rue Gréville is in my house. Bring the gentlemen and take him.

HELEN BEAUMAU—

She handed the servant the note and sent her away. She then sat down and waited. Yes, a full hour the lady sat in her room, within whose dressing case the murderer was concealed. The shadow of the hand, apparent now and then, was the only evidence of the presence of the mur-derer. When finally the gentlemen arrived, Jacques Reynaud was taken prisoner.—Exchange.

THE LOST JACINTH.

In one of the oldest houses in one of the oldest streets in the ancient city of Worms dwelt the worthy burgher Philip Dorn, a jeweler and a cunning workman in gold and silver. It happened that one day a young country man came to his house with a stone which he had found in the neighboring mountains and had brought to Philip, as an honest man, and who whom he could trust. The jeweler took the stone and after examining it attentively said, with a careless air, that it was of small value, but that he would give him 20 thalers for it. The country man, who knew nothing of the value of precious stones, instantly agreed, and Philip paid him the money. As soon as he was gone, our jeweler took the gem, which was a jacinth of great value, and regarded it with a well satisfied smile. "This," said
he, "is the very thing which the princeess has so long desired. Ah, Philip, thou art a lucky fellow! The fortune is made. Who will now be able to stand against the jeweler Philip Dorn?" So, after again warriving his bargain, he put it into a case in which he was wont to keep his most precious things.

In a short time another visitor came to Philip. He was a little man of well fed appearance, with enormous green spectacles, a high crowned hat and high laced shoes. This person demanded a stone proper for a ring, such as a diamond or an emerald. Philip took down the case in which he had deposited his precious jacynth and exhibited its contents to the stranger, who selected a fine diamond, for which Philip took care to ask double what it was worth; but the stranger paid him
his demand without grudging, and went away, saying that he would soon see him again.

Philip replaced his case and set out to inform his patroness, the princess, of his newly acquired jacynth. He went to the palace, and, with many bows, informed her highness of his good fortune, and was desirous to return next day and to bring the gem with him. After dispatching this business, he returned home and again took down the case to feast his eyes upon his jewel, which, on opening it, to Philip's consternation, no jacynth was to be found.
In vain he searched every corner—the gem
was gone.

In great distress of mind Philip went out and was pondering an apology for the morrow, when, on turning a corner, he felt some one tap him on the shoulder, and, turning round, saw the gentleman to the green spectacles, who with a knowing look asked him what had become of his jacynth. The jeweler was rather surprised, as he did not remember having seen the stranger, and he, so he very naturally asked him if he knew anything about it.

"And I do, Herr Philip."

The stranger informed Philip that he could not tell him at present, but that if he came that evening to the forest at the foot of the Heideberg mountain he would see, and perhaps regain, his jacynth. Philip promised to be punctual, on which the gentleman said adieu, telling him that he had some business to transact at Ratibon, but would be back in time. Philip thought this rather odd, as that city is at a considerable distance from Worms, but he said nothing; so, making a polite bow,
he returned home.

He waited with the utmost impatience
for the appointed time, and when at length
it began to grow dark, he set out with a beating heart for the rendezvous. Soon he approached the forest and saw the clouds
edging around the summit of the Heideberg.
He went on his way rejoicing, and although at the first step in the woods he plunged up to the neck in a morose, so immersed was he in his delight at the prospect of regaining his jacynth that he scarcely noticed his immersion in the water. On he passed, through bush, through brake, frequently coming in contact with the trunks of trees, to the utter discomfiture of his red and sober wig.
The bushes seemed to get thicker and the pools deeper the farther he proceeded, and at length he was fairly brought to a stand by a broad sheet of water, the keeping of which was out of the question, even to a much better leaper than our friend Philip.

While he was standing considering what was to be done, he heard a voice crying:
"Here comes my worthy friend, Philip Dorn! Prepare the way for him!" And shouts of laughter rang through the forest.
At this Philip was sore amazed, but,
seeing the pool disappear, he stepped boldly forward and found himself at the rock appointed as the place of meeting.

The gentleman in the green spectacles made his appearance on the top of it and greeted Philip with great politeness, and,
although the rock was very precipitous, he walked down it with the greatest ease and stood at Philip's side. "Now," said he,
"Herr Dorn, you will be good enough to follow me a little farther," to which Philip bowed assent, though he would rather have been excused. On they went for a considerable time, through a part of the forest that Philip had never seen before, till at length they reached a wilderness of rocks, which appeared broken from the mountain. They still proceeded, between two high walls of rock, till they came to a wide cavern, brilliantly lighted,
in which Philip saw his jacynth suspended
by a gold chain, which seemed to ascend to an immense height, as its other end
was lost in the darkness. "Now," said
his companion, "there is your jacynth.
You have but to stretch out your hand and it is yours." Philip stepped forward and laid hold of his jewel and attempted to take it from the chain, when suddenly he felt the earth sinking beneath his feet,
and, attempting to withdraw his hand,
found it firmly fixed to the jacynth. He turned round in agony to his conductor,
and saw him standing laughing immoder-ately, with his spectacles in one hand and his eyes flaming like burning coals. "Hold fast, friend Philip!" he cried. "Hold fast!" and instantly vanished in the darkness. The cavern closed with a fearful noise, and shouts of laughter, mingled with cries of "Hold fast, hold fast!" were the last sounds that were ever heard by the jeweler of Worms.—New York News.

"Yes, suh; I done will ter go."

"I mean," said the lawyer, in an explanatory way, "have you got anything to

"Oh, yes, suh!" exclaimed the old man
joyfully. "On wife en de rheumatism!"
