LIGHT ON LOGARITHMS.

Flight of a Lawyer Who Insisted That Napier's Tables Should Be Proved.

An expert engineer in a New England city rendered a bill to a corporation who had employed him to write a technical report. The amount of the fee was large, the corporation refused to pay it, and the claim was carried into court.

During the trial the counsel for the corporation sought to belittle the expert's work, raising questions as to his experience, and, in fact, to prove that his labor would have been amply rewarded with a few dollars a day.

"How did you reach this result?" asked the lawyer, referring to a certain calculation which had involved the use of logarithms.

"I consulted Napier's table and"—but he got no further.

"You consulted Napier's table, did you?"

"Yes."

"Do you mean to tell this court that you, an expert, had to resort to a published table? Did you prove the figures of that table?"

No, but they have been proved. They are considered to be accurate by every scientific man."

"Why did you not work out your own table of logarithms? Is it not because you are unable to do so?"

"It is not. I am perfectly capable of preparing such a table, but it would have taken too long a time to do so, and so I consulted the standards."

"In order to prove your calculation as well as your capabilities in this matter," continued the suspicious lawyer, "I will now ask you to prepare a table of logarithms."

"Here and now?" inquired the plaintiff. "I fear it will consume too much of the court's time."

This seemed to confirm the lawyer's doubts, and so he insisted the more upon a complete table of logarithms prepared.

The plaintiff smiled maliciously, took paper and pencil and began his work. In about five minutes the lawyer asked him if he had finished. The plaintiff shook his head and continued at work. Ten minutes passed by, and again the question was put: "How nearly finished are you?"

"Very far from finished," remarked the plaintiff.

"Well, may I ask how long it will take you to prepare a table such as Napier's? You seem to be very slow about it."

The expert hesitated a little and then replied: "I estimate that, working alone, I might be able to complete it in about 15 years, working day and night. It took Napier and five assistants seven years to prepare his table, but I am less familiar with the calculation than he was, and, as you say, work slow. Still in 15 years I think I can complete it."

It is unnecessary to say that the lawyer was not a little taken aback by the answer, which enlightened him a trifle on the subject. He withdrew the questions, and eventually the expert won his case.—New York Herald.

FULL EXPOSITION.

THE STAR has been called "ultra liberal." We like that. The criticism is anent publication of Examiner comment. That paper, in prejudice against the Republic, drew "the deadly parallel." On one side it presented the Liliuokalani beheading proposition of twelve months ago. On the other it submitted community expression in effect that the Military Court trial should result in the execution of leading rebels. The STAR republished this for reasons that ought to be apparent to any person with brains enough to soil a handkerchief. That we ourselves as others see us is highly desirable. The source of outside comment should always be understood. There was a STAR footnote on the Examiner comment.

THE AFTERCLAP.

Supposing the insurgents had won; what then? Plunder was the biggest part of their plan. It stuck out from every conspiracy bundle in the pack. First the new rulers would have found local opposition. They could not kill enough people to destroy the life of justice. The battle between the rioters and those who said any would have been brief. The rioters win. All with an instinct of fairness, all with a breath of prudence, are driven from the shores or subdued. A saturnalia sets in. The pirates quarrel over division of spoils. Dog eat dog.

Soon sailing vessels, steamers and warships arrive. What do they find? At least a most peculiar colony. Painters have been busy altering the signs of business houses. There are new men at the head in commerce and government. And what a crowd of irresponsibles and incapables, with blood on their hands.

It is more than likely that the powers would have taken possession, instituted courts and meted out justice to the riotous murderers and thieves.

RULES OF COURT.

As we understand it the present Military Commission differs very materially from a campaign or drum-head or ordinary Court Martial. A verdict cannot be given under forty-eight hours after a case closes. Sentence cannot be carried into effect under fourteen days after pronounced. Early in its work the Commission adopted the rules of evidence used in ordinary courts. This at once placed the Board beyond such a military tribunal as Mr. Newmann described. He quoted the Duke of Wellington as saying that a Court Martial's power was limited only by the will of the Commander in Chief.

The reviewing authority may mitigate or alter a judgment. He cannot increase it. We believe he can return it and suggest a reconsideration.

About the only difference between the present and usual method of trial is that in this instance there is no prejudice or sharp practice.

The war account by Joaquin Miller is somewhat "mixee-up," as the Chinese boys puts it.

This office is headquarters for war literature. We have what you want to send to friends abroad.

UNDER the administration instructions the Philadelphia cannot do much here. There never was such a thing anyhow as a neutral American.

A FRIEND at Wailuku writes that his town will ask of the Legislature, money for implements to fight fire. Wailuku will furnish the men. The proposition seems reasonable.

A LETTER to THE STAR from Maui has the information that a big San Francisco house is soon to open a general store on that island. The correspondent coolly remarks that goods will be brought direct from the Coast and that Honolulu merchants will be given the go-by. Probably the Honolulu merchants will make a struggle before giving up such a field as Maui.

Timely Topics.

January 28, 1895.

A copy of the Honolulu Japanese Harikari on our desk contains the somewhat startling intelligence that the Japanese laborers who left one of the adjacent plantations at the beginning of the recent trouble did so with the intention of taking up arms against the Government. In commenting upon the subject the Harikari says editorially: that as the country in no way be longed to the subjects of the Japanese Empire they showed a decided inclination toward the lole in desiring to take part in the fight. We can hardly credit the story and are rather inclined to the opinion that it savors of an American campaign document. But assuming that there is at least a semblance of truth in the statement, the Government has a stronger foe than it has yet had to combat; stronger at least from a numerical point of view, and different from the last in the sense that the people are more scattered and their munitions of war as well as their methods of warfare would be different. This result aimed at would not be the same because it would probably be their intention to assume control of the territory in the name of their Emperor. In such case the Government would have among its allies citizens of every other nationality residing here. Every one knows that two years ago there was a great deal of talk about the intentions of Japan and a great deal of speculation as to the outcome of the trouble if the Japanese flag should be hoisted over the islands. Japan had no intention then of interfering in the affairs of Hawaii and probably has less intention today. In the first place the location is against it, and outside of the laborers and a couple of hundred merchants Japan has no particular interests here. To read newspapers and to listen to the utterances of some people one would suppose Hawaii to be a very rich golden nugget rather than a "pear ripe for plucking" and that every government in the universe was ready to lay hands upon it. When Hawaii loses its sovereignty it will be through a treaty with the Government which the people, through their representatives, may select. In the United States opinions are divided as to the advisability of the scheme; England does not consider the matter at all because it recognizes America's claim owing to its geographical position as well as the interests represented; Japan couldn't take the Islands if it wanted because both England and the United States would each have, metaphorically speaking, chips on their shoulders that would have to be knocked off. Its success in the war with China might tempt it to seek other worlds to conquer, but if the Japanese look in the cause of their success they would find that it was owing simply to intercourse with more enlightened, and accepting instructions in warfare from more progressive people. It is hardly possible they would care to engage in a war with the races who have "shown them the way." Hawaii will retain its independence until the American eagle can be persuaded to take it under its wing. It may be a long time yet. The Alaska business was not settled in a day and every one who reads knows the outcome of the San Domingo business. So far as the people here are concerned there are fewer obstacles in the way of annexation today than there were six months ago, six months hence there will be still less. The wrinkles on the brow of the country are being gradually smoothed out, the principal objections exist in the United States and until a majority of the Senate can see the wisdom of adding to the already large territory of the United States annexation will not be an assured fact.

Haviland China will command your attention this week more than anything in the store, the assortment is larger, the designs prettier and the prices more in accordance with the times than ever before. We buy direct from the factory at Limoge, France, and have the choice of patterns in everything we buy, you could not get prettier pieces if you went into every shop in the United States; you could not get them as cheap there as you can with us on account of the duty. This week we show very handsome boudoir sets of 11 pieces decorated as delicately and perfectly as anything in the China line can be. No dressing case is complete nowadays without a Haviland boudoir set—the price don't stand in the way—$4.50 makes it easy for any one to buy. Next comes the Solitaire sets of seven pieces—the very thing needed when you want a cup of tea brought into your bedroom. These sets are on trays and contain seven pieces, the one with marguerite or chrysanthemum pattern will probably win you when you learn that they cost only $4.50 per set, they're beautiful for a China closet. The piece of resistance, if we may be permitted to use the term, is probably the dinner set with gold decorations which you may see in one of our windows. For genuine beauty, chasteness, harmony and all that sort of thing the white and gold is the best. If you knew the price of the 156 pieces it wouldn't frighten you—come in and examine the goods.

Let us leave fine articles for the time being and look at things less expensive but none the less useful. Take fish scalers for a quarter, you can not get anything half so good for the money, nor for double the price, when it comes to that.

We've lots of useful things in the store, many of them probably just what you want.

EFFECTS OF FATIGUE.

THE MIND AND THE BODY ARE INTIMATELY ASSOCIATED.

The Symptoms of Weariness Considered by Specialists—It Is Degotten More In the Brain Than In the Muscles—How Men Approach the Danger Line.

It is a popular belief that weariness is a physical symptom alone—that is to say, people become tired because their muscles are weary, whereas, in truth, muscular weariness depends not on the muscles alone, but on the manner in which the muscles in their work is aided and supported by the rest of the body.

The blood, stream, he sluggish, or if the blood coming to the muscle is already loaded with harmful bodies, the clearance is slow or wholly fails, and weariness comes on.

But even the simplest and rudest muscular tasks are not carried out by the muscles alone, for the brain and the nerves share in them too. It is a common experience that when we are weary almost, it may be, to death, some sudden emotion, some great joy or fear, may spur us to an effort which just before seemed impossible.

Conversely an emotion may cause us to fail from all our muscular strength. Now that the muscles neither know nor feel their weakness cannot be affected by any emotion. That weariness which is put aside by hope, or which is hurried on by despair, must be a weariness not of the muscles, but of the nervous system.

It would be interesting to follow Professor Foster as he goes on to prove the difference between the brain and the muscles, the brain being, of course, the central mechanism, the nerves mere bundles of fibers which carry the impulses to the muscles.

We need not, however, refer our readers to the article itself for this and other information and would direct their attention especially to the experiments by which Professor Foster proves that the greater part at least of weariness is begotten not in the muscles, but in the brain.

Let us now consider a few of the mental symptoms of fatigue or weariness. Professor Foster insists that two facts must be grasped and remembered. While it may be said, each member that the blood is the life thereof, it may with equal truth be said the blood is the death thereof. The blood is the channel for food, but is also the pathway for poison. Again, all our knowledge goes to show that the work of the brain, like the work of the muscles, is accompanied by chemical changes; that the chemical changes, though differing in details, are of the same order in the brain as in the muscles. It is true that the changes in the brain are smaller than those of the muscles, but this is counterbalanced by the exceeding sensitiveness of the nervous substance, the last giving place to the caution that to do the maximum of brain work it is essential not to render the brain more agile, but to encourage its humble helpmates so that their most efficient co-operation may defer the onset of weariness.

Mind and body being thus intimately associated, no sensible person will risk the destruction of health by neglecting either the one or the other. Sleep, good food, healthy surroundings, rational hours of work and sufficient exercise are points which many people have long recognized as essential to their well being, yet the race for wealth, or for political advancement, or the struggle for existence, may cause the most enlightened to neglect them. At first a man so circumstanced attributes his lassitude, which is usually confined to the early morning, to anything but the right cause. A feeling of depression and a sense of ill being may make him miserable, but unless the doctor takes him in hand they will not check his downward course. Next he will become oppressed with the need of increased effort, a loss of memory, and the difficulties of remembering what he reads. To this point a man may advance without fatal injury, but should he proceed until everything appears to him dark and hopeless, a fever and an apprehension, then he may be beyond rescue, and his next step may land him in a lunatic asylum if he does not terminate his career in a general hospital.

Dr. Cowles of the McLean hospital has written a most interesting paper on the mental symptoms of fatigue which will do much to enlighten the public. It is a practical way how difficult it is to restore the weary to energy and strength. Overworked women, professional men, politicians and others "work on their nerves" and say they "don't feel tired, and nothing is the matter." Many of them indeed insist that they feel better when actively pursuing their ordinary occupations. Dr. Cowles declares this condition, which comes on insidiously, to be a most dangerous one. With the impairment of the natural fatigue sense the mental effect is that a man will not believe even his physician's diagnosis of fatigue. He is therefore prone to look for some other reason for his sense of ill being and inefficiency and finds in retrospection cause for self reproach and hopelessness in the future, or insists upon a revolution in his affairs as the only remedy for a condition of which he himself is the central cause.

Now, then, we arrive at the two great factors which have to be faced today in our national and political life. The first, or retrospective, cause lies at the root of the present epidemic of suicide, of which the papers are full. The second, or impairment of the judgment, cause lies at the root of the political impasse, which its authors declare can be cured only by revolution.—London Hospital.

Aroused Her Suspicion.

"Is Miesher Dolan very sick?" asked the sympathetic neighbor.

"Terrible. The doctor said the day he was going to diagnose his case."

"Go in to play?"

"Diagnose it."

"Mrs. Dolan, take my advice. Put a mustard plaster on 'im an trust to luck. More people nowadays is kilt by the doctors than by the disease."

A Mammoth's Wisdom Tooth.

A fossil curiosity in the shape of a mammoth tooth was found in west Seattle by Joseph S. Richards. The tooth was found at the foot of the bluff, not far from the beach, and was covered with clay at the time, indicating that it had been unearthed by the breaking away of the hill.

The crown of the tooth, which was of an oval shape, measured 7 1/2 inches in its largest diameter, 3 1/2 inches in its shorter diameter and 1 1/2 inches in circumference. The posterior edge of the tooth was 4 inches in length, the anterior edge 6 inches, the largest circumference 2 1/2 inches and the weight 9 1/2 pounds. It is supposed to be the lower back tooth from the left side of the jaw. The ridges have turned to chalcocyanide and extend entirely through the tooth, while the material between has the appearance of iron.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

NATIONAL CANE SHREDDER.

Patented under the laws of the Hawaiian Republic.

One of these Shredders has recently been installed at the mill of the Paahau Plantation Company, Hamakua, Hawaii, and Mr. Andrew Moore, the manager, writes concerning it:

PAHAU PLANTATION CO., HAMAKUA, Jan. 10, 1895.

Wm. G. IRWIN &amp; Co., Ltd., HONOLULU:

GENTLEMEN—The mill has been running during the past two weeks, with the National Cane Shredder lately installed, giving the most satisfactory results.

Our mill consists of three sets of two rollers, 32 in. dia. by 22 in. long, the shredder discs being 5 ft. 7 in. long, driven by an automatic engine 11 in. dia. cylinder by 14 in. stroke.

The Ratoon cane being milled is as hard as it is possible for cane to be, having been subjected to a severe drought during the whole period of its growth, and growing on land with a trade wind exposure. Our experience with the Shredder, particularly with above cane, proves it to be just what our mills required, the shredded cane being better prepared to have its juice extracted than formerly after passing through the first mill.

The first mill is now allowed to open 9-10 in. instead of 7 in. as formerly, so that the trash now leaves the first mill, better ground, than it formerly did the second, and this without the old time grunting, choking, and straining of the machinery.

Behind the first and second mills we apply hot water, the quantity for the past 12 days, as per statement attached, has averaged 35 per cent. of the total juice from the cane.

The trash from the last mill is cut up much finer than before the Shredder was applied, as per statement 39 per cent. of moisture in the trash is of 5 per cent. sugar solution.

The rollers make steam much easier than before, now care has to be taken to keep them from blowing off, whereas before great care was necessary to keep the steam from going too low when the Pan was on.

By the use of the Shredder we have dispensed with six men, formerly necessary to distribute the cane on the carrier, feed the first mill, and throw back the long pieces.

You will see that by applying the Shredder, our work in all departments has been very materially improved—obtaining a better extraction at less expense than formerly. The great improvement in our steam, causes much satisfaction to those engaged in the Mill.

Yours Respectfully,

A. MOORE.

TWO ARE ACQUITTED.

PAIR OF PRISONERS ORDERED RE-LEASED BY THE COURT.
John Kalanika and D. Kanuha Cases Against them and Defense Presented.

John Kalanika and D. Kanuha, charged with treason and open rebellion, have been acquitted. They have been released from custody by order of the Military Commission.

Kalanika was accused of being one of the Koolau rebels. He started over the pali with a party for Diamond Head. They were turned back in Nuuanu valley and instructed to carry food around to rebels at Waialeale. At this juncture Kalanika called it quits. He was arrested at his home near Kai-hala. Kalanika claimed that he was called from his bed at night and induced to move without knowing the purpose.

D. Kanuha is tailor and instructor of tailoring at Kamehameha schools. The testimony against him was that he criticized the Republic and hoped for a change. On Sunday evening, the 6th, he drove to Kaala with John Wise, who took out some arms.
Wise testified that in his belief Kanuha did not know there were rebels in the rig. One witness swore that Kanuha helped unload the guns. This testimony was not corroborated. The defendant made a denial of revolutionary intent or action and Professor Richards and others give him a fine character.

D. Kanuha was a protégé of General Armstrong of Hampton and was educated in the United States.
There has been no order from headquarters relating to the acquittal. THE STAR gives the public the first news of it. There was much interest in these cases. Both men had counsel, and witnesses for the State were cross-examined at great length.

the authorities in the temporary prohibition policy. Others are keen to open up. One of the men proposed to sell beer only if allowed to operate.

A SILENT WITNESS.
Could Liliuokalani Give Some Valuable Information?

HONOLULU, H. I., Jan. 29.
EDITOR STAR:—What are they going to do with Liliuokalani? She would make a better witness than Nowlin. Even if her papers were destroyed several days after the trouble began, she has a good memory. The point I wish to make is that Liliuokalani can tell us if President Cleveland had anything to do with the revolution.
Perhaps she really did receive letters from him. I do not advocate any harsh measures, but the Republic is entitled to the use of any information the prisoner of state may possess.

CONGRATULATIONS ON ESCAPE HERE FROM ANARCHISTS.

HAMAKUA, HAWAII, Jan. 25.
EDITOR STAR:—We of the outer islands owe a deep debt of gratitude to the loyal citizens of Honolulu for their courage and bravery in risking their lives for the preservation of the Republic.
Our sympathy also goes out to the widow and children of that bright and rising young attorney Charles L. Carter, who was so foully murdered by the revolutionary anarchists while he was acting for the good of the Government.

The white element of this district at the beginning of the trouble literally slept with their munitions of war. A rumor being afloat of the insurrection at the metropolis, and that similar ones were to be begun at different points on this island as well as Maui.
This district has ever since the
'93 revolution been thoroughly canvassed in the interests of the royalty by one or more well known white men.

The natives of this district although taking a great deal of interest in the details of the war at Honolulu, show no further interest except wonder at the quick defeat of the insurgents.

Now is the time for the Government to show a bold and firm hand in the disposition of the ringleaders of the rebel anarchists. To deal gently with them now would be to show a weak and vacillating policy.

SEED OYSTERS.

Plantings in Pearl Harbor Locks and off Kaneohe.
W. N. Armstrong brought from the coast by the Australia 2000 seed oysters. Some were planted today at Pearl Locks by Joseph Marsden.
That the islands are now to have all the oysters needed is an assured fact. Some of the seeds planted during the last year developed into perfect oysters.

Messrs. Armstrong and Marsden placed 1300 of these seeds on the peninsula beach today.
The remaining 700 will be taken to near Jos. Mendonca's Kaneohe place.

SEVERE AT WAILUKU.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCK WAS SHOT
BUT SHARP ON MAIL.

Chief-A Plantation Fatality—Shipping.

WAILUKU, Jan. 26.—A shock of earthquake was felt throughout this island on the night of the 22d inst., at about 9:40 p. m. The shock, though of not very long duration, was the most severe experienced here for some years.

A masquerade ball will be held at the Wailuku skating rink on the evening of Wednesday, February 13th, under the auspices of the Maui Dramatic Association. Prizes to the value of $150 will be given to the best characters. As this is the first affair of this kind ever held here, it will undoubtedly turn out successfully.

A fire broke out in a wooden building in the rear of Market street, the principal street in Wai-luku, at about 8 o'clock this morning. But for the prompt action displayed by Sheriff Andrews and a number of others, the blaze might have resulted in the total destruction of the town.

William Gill, a team luma at the inst. His funeral took place on the same day.

The brigantine J. D. Spreckels, Capt. Christiansen arrived at Kahului harbor on the 23rd inst., 19 days from San Francisco. She came partly in ballast and returning will take a cargo of Haiku sugar.

The bark Leahi, Tyson master, was towed out of Kahuili harbor by the steamer Claudine on the 25th with a full cargo of H. C. & supplies and general merchandise.

Mr. Chas. H. Kluegel, the Chief engineer of the Oahu Railway & Land Company is at Wailuku at present laying out the proposed railroad to connect Waieae and Wailuku plantations. He will return to Honolulu today per Clau-

MAKING A HARD FIGHT.

STRUGGLE TO SAVE CLIENTS FROM COMMISSION TRIAL.
Mr. Neumann Takes the Position That Bowler and Ashford Should Be Before Juries.

The Military Commission began work at 10 o'clock today.
Two prisoners, John Bowler and
V. V. Ashford were at the bar.
The latter was present simply to hear a law point discussed.

Mr. Neumann talked with his clients for several minutes, and then announced that no evidence for the defence would be put on.
Mr. Bowler, however, would file a statement of his connection with the rebellion.

Mr. Neumann then opened his argument on objections to the jurisdiction of the Court. He was answered by Judge Advocate Kinney and closed the argument himself this afternoon.

Mr. Neumann's chief contention was that the case of Bowler was one for the civil courts and did not come within the jurisdiction of a military tribunal. A military court or commission was an institution whose business it was to try soldiers in time of peace, and whose power extended to the cases of prisoners of war in time of hostilities. He argued that even martial law and suspension of the writ of Habeas Corpus was unconstitutional at the present time as the constitution provided for such only in time of actual war. He assumed that the proclamation of martial law was really necessary.

Mr. Kinney replied to this in an able argument lasting nearly an hour. His chief effort was directed to answers to Mr. Neumann's points. He held that martial law was adopted so many times as these,
and cited authorities.

At noon the court took a recess to 1:30 p. m., when Mr. Neumann took the stand again for his final argument.

During the progress of this legal fight Mr. Bowler appeared to be the most interested man in the house. He sat almost immovable, his face riveted upon his attorney.

When Neumann would crack one of his characteristic jokes Bowler would smile mechanically as if to fill in the slight pause.

Ashford sat solemn and quiet, appearing as if he cared little how the case or the world wagged on.

At 2:30 this afternoon Captain Kinney is still speaking.

In his statement John Bowler will deny the truth of the statement that he either knew the time or place that the revolt would take place, and that in no conversation with Sam Nowlin was he informed of the arrival or landing of arms or the enlistment of men for the purpose of restoring the ex-Queen or to overthrow the Government. That like many others, he has heard rumors, but paid as little attention to them as to other things which he heard not relating to the politics of this country. The statement, of which the above is the substance, will be written off and submitted to the military commission during the evening.

STATE'S CASE.
It took until 4 o'clock Monday afternoon to finish the case against John F. Bowler. He was connected with the testimonies of Nowlin, Bertelmann and the two Fern brothers. M. N. Sanders and Geo.
Green related suspicious circumstances.

John Cassidy was called. Knew Bowler. Remembered showing Bowler through the combined offices of the telephone companies. Bowler came to new offices and asked to be shown through. This was between January 1st, and the day of the uprising. It was at Bowler's request that witness showed him through the building.

A. G. M. Robertson was called.
Saw Bowler in Criterion saloon Saturday night December 29th. Bowler took Bruns aside and talked with him. Bruns afterward stated to witness that Bowler wished him to join in a rebellion.

Fractured Ribs.
C. F. Scholl of Oakland met with an accident on the Australia.
During rough weather he fell in the cabin and two of his ribs were broken. Mr. Scholl received fine attention on board and was able to go sightseeing upon reaching this port.

ENOJO IMMUNITY.
Why the Group is Safe From Earthquake Submersion.

Professor C. J. Lyons, who is an earthquake, as well as a survey and tide expert, does not think the islands will ever be submerged by a shock. Immunity is earned, he says, by the existence of active and extinct craters. They will serve as vents. It is doubtful if there will occur a quake that will manifest itself beyond a tremor.

For the "Overland."
The veteran "Overland Monthly,"

Rounselle Wildman selected for the Hawaiian mission S. H. Saleno, a skilled young man who will gather material for special use in the "Overland."

IN A FORTNIGHT.

Count Marcell Will Close His Business in
Two Weeks.
It will take the Court or Commission about two weeks to close up its business. That estimate was made this morning. All the law points likely to arise hereafter have been settled or will be determined in Bowler's case. Then it will be plain sailing with only witnesses to examine and brief arguments to be made.

Martial law must continue till the Board finishes. It may be kept on longer if desired. Its rigor or laxity are matters resting entirely with the authorities.

and Benevolent Institutions.

The present Empress of Japan is a woman of such marked individuality of character that she furnishes a most interesting item to paragraphs.

It is said that she has organized so many charities and schools and benevolent societies that, although she has a large private income, she keeps herself poor in order to carry out her plans for bettering the condition of her country women.

Her pet institution is, perhaps, the peacocks' school. It is for the exclusive benefit of daughters of noblemen, and is under her own patronage. In this school are taught English, French, painting and drawing—in fact, pretty much what any American girl would be taught in any American school.

The charity hospital at Tokio is also very near to her Majesty's heart. She visits it regularly and always goes loaded with flowers for the sick or toys for the children.

In short, she is a thoroughly Americanized lady, of stately beauty, charming character and broad intelligence. The Mikado is her most devoted adorer.

Vigilance Committee.
SACRAMENTO, Jan. 21.—A vigilance committee is being organized to protect the town from tramps, burglars and hold-ups. The matter is in the hands of representative citizens who propose to act with the utmost vigor.

SUBMARINE BOAT.
Secretary Herbert Orders One, to Cost $150,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Secretary Herbert gave orders for the preparation of a contract with the Holland Submarine Boat Company for the construction of a submarine boat, to cost $150,000. The bureau of construction and steam engineering, which has carefully examined the matter, reported that the plans were feasible; that there was no danger to the screw of the boat, and that the thickness of the boat should be one-half inch at the middle belt, tapering to three-eighths of an inch at the ends.

ORIENTAL WAR.
LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Chee Foo correspondent of the Central News says the Japanese began bombarding Teng Chow Foo yesterday.

JEKYLL AND HYDE.
Stevenson Said the Story Had Some Foundation.

Robert Louis Stevenson told a Washington writer that his story of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" had for its foundation an incident related to him by a London Doctor, who made diseases of the brain a specialty. None of his work was absolute fiction, and most of it had a basis in actual experience. "I do not believe," he said, "that any man ever evolved a really good story from his inner consciousness unaided by some personal experience or incident of life."

Ah Hoo, a Chinaman, was arrested this morning for larceny.

Representative and Mrs. Bourke Cockran will leave early in the new year to spend the winter in the south of Europe.

A Poor Maiden.

If any of the girls have birthdays—and of course they all do—have been a pretty game for the little guests to play. It is called the game of "Poor Maiden." To play the game pretty there must be a quantity of paper roses—one for each little girl. The roses must be California roses, which are as large as a little girl's head.

When the little guests are all assembled, each little girl gets a rose, while one of the older people present helps her to take out the inside leaves and to fit it over her head as if it were a bonnet, out of which her face is beautifully peeping. Then all the little maidens stand in a row while some one tells a story about the garden flowers. Whenever the red roses are mentioned, the little girls wearing the red rose bonnets look at their heads, and when the white roses are mentioned, the white rose maidens do the same. And so on through all the colors. If a little rose maiden makes a mistake and bows at the wrong time, her bonnet is turned around so that it covers her face. The rose maiden game is a very pretty one, and if you try it at your next birthday party you will surely enjoy it.

MISS LANIER

By MARTHA MOULLOOH WILLIAMS.

(Copyright, 1894, by the Author.)

Continued.

Joe Reid looked at him doubtfully. "If I thought you wouldn't come back," he began, "I should have been sure to find you at the point of view, but I am not sure."

"If I'm in the wrong place, please excuse me, Maister," but, ye see, things are this way: I've equitably rights here, I can't get it, except one way—that is, marry my cousin. This place is all hers. Entailed, ye know, by her grandfather that was my mother's uncle. That's just only as two left of the old stock, an in the course of nature the property'd come to me. When the war began, with the niggers an money an it, it was worth a million dollars—all Darragh's—then just ten years old. Major Lanier was his guardian—had a pile of money of his own too. He was the first man in the county to enlist as a soldier. Soon as there was a company he armed and equipped 'em at his own expense. On top of that he put all his an Darragh's money in the cotton loan. Oh, he ain't one that ever did things by halves, I tell ye."

"Evidently not," Fanning said, setting his teeth hard. The other went on: "An, as if that wasn't enough, after the Yankees come in these parts, through a lawyer here, he mortgaged Darragh's money—every cent he sent the money to England to buy quinine an gunpowder for his men, sick an well. He's a fighter from way back, let me tell ye. Enlisted 'for the war, an stood at the front where the fight was hottest. Nothing ever tumbled him till the last month of the shindy. In some of them fights before Petersburg he got so shot an to pieces that nobody thought he'd live a week, but somehow he did pull through, now, the pity, I can't help sayin'."

Darragh an old Isaac managed somehow to get him home. Of all his fortune nothing was left but the plate an furniture an books—he had five ones if he didn't read. Carpet an blankets an linen had mostly gone to the soldiers an the hospitals. Here he has been ever since, blind, helpless, as you see him, but saved from every care. You don't need to be told that what he is for him. The other two do without. Now, for twenty odd years a woman who by rights ought to roll in gold has had never a decent frock an barely enough to eat, has placed an patched an turned an contrived, sold all that was valuable outside her father's room—plate, furniture, books, curios—an spent whatever they fetched in keepin' fair weather for him."

"Of course the mortgage wasn't worth the paper it was written on unless she'd sign it after countin' of age. But, bless you, nobody could make her see that she wasn't bound by her father's doin'. In her eyes he could never do wrong. She went straight to the bank that held it an said: 'You shall have the loan. Only let me live on it till my father dies.' They were mighty willin' to that. The major, they thought, couldn't live a year, but for all that they made Darragh promise not to work or develop the land, except what old Isaac could tend. He's just about made out an chicken feed every year, with a square acre to victor an old Sultan, the major's valetman, who lives on as reasonably as his master. You've seen him no doubt in the yard all summer. He brought the major out through the hottest sort of fire, when he was so hurt they thought him dead that in the saddle. So Darragh would go hungry herself sooner than stint his corn. She has taken good pains the major shall not know what she's given up. He was awfully cut up, thinkin' he had bargained her. So she makes him believe the land is hers, free an clear, an that she simply won't sell her coal an iron rights because she has already more money than she knows what to do with. Believe that, he wants her always to wear silk, dress for dinner, an all that. I reckon, though, you know all about that—poor old man! So he has the feel of silk about her, he believes her fine as a fiddle. It's the same way about old Isaac. He is supposed to be valet an butler, with a dozen servants under him, when really what time he can spare from waitin on old Eppy, his wife, who is cook, he is out in the field, workin' for dear life."

"Now, just look at things! The place is worth two fortunes still. Coal in one hill, iron in another, wood, water, limestone all about. Five thousand acres in it too! Ain't it more than a shame that the rightful owner, an heir should be choiced out of it in this fashion? All for a whim too. Ever since I came of age I've been at Darragh to let me open the case an fight those bank sharks. She jest won't hear of it. Says she gave her word of honor for her father's debt, an that's worth more than a hundred million, let alone one or two."

Fanning half turned away to say: "H-m-m! I suppose, then, there is no record of her promise?"

"Not a scratch. That's one reason she's so set. Says them people trusted her, an she ain't goin back on 'em. Ef once I could get her to marry me, they'd dance to a different tune."

"Ah! You are fond of her?"

"Oh, yes! In a way. She's a right good sort; but, man alive, just look at it! I'm heir to this property of she don't feel it away or—marry you."

"How she had no other chance?"

"How she could shake a stick at. We ain't the only ones—not by a jugful. Fact is, she could have took her pick of the country long ago, ef she'd ever left the major long enough to talk to a man. One time she did have a right smart notion of a fellow. I forget his name, but he was a soldier, one that helped do something for the major when he was so bad off. I can just remember him. He came to see her off an on for three—fo—years when I was a boy. We always said Darragh loved him, heep. I reckon 'twas the major—the love of him, you know—that kep' 'em apart. Anyway he went off somewhere—New York, I believe—an she's here, wearin her life away."

"Way down the line all this?"

Disturbance.

The cooling draft your fancy craved slips tasteless down your eager throat; The singer when you have raved Give out a hoarse and raucous note; The pipe, to have which you would fret, Tastes bitter to your palate still; The kiss you hungered so to get, Gave you no fascinating thrill; The moment which seemed best to you When realized seemed all too tame; And the happiest hours you ever knew Were the hours that were none.

—Chicago News-Record.

Duty.

And rank for her meant duty, various, Yet equal in its worth, done worthily; Command was service, humblest service done by willing and discerning souls was glory.

—George Rice.

WEEKLY payments are all very well, but the WEEKLY STAR is satisfied if you will pay once a quarter, in advance, of course. A common, ordinary U. S. or Hawaiian dollar, sometimes called a cart-wheel and sometimes the "Almighty," will pay for three month's subscription to the WEEKLY STAR.

STAR. This word by itself looks lonesome. So did the "Lone Star" of Texas, but it got there all the same, and is now a member of the brightest constellation old Mother Earth has ever known. The "Lone Star" of Hawaii will get there, and don't you forget it. There are two or three kinds of "Stars" but those we are looking out for are the "Annexation Star" and the WEEKLY STAR.
