The navy transport Solace finished her period of quarantine of fourteen days yesterday and sailed for Manila, via Guam, in the afternoon. It will be remembered that the Solace was placed in quarantine by the authorities here on account of the development of a case of varioloid aboard.

It is expected that the cable ship
Silvertown will finish coaling tomorrow. She will then haul over from the Haddock to the railroad wharf, there to transfer the cable from the ship to the tanks ashore. This will complete the mission of the Silvertown here.
The length of the cable remaining aboard the ship is about a hundred miles and the greater part of the day will be taken up in the work of transferring from ship to tank. Upon the completion of this work the Silvertown will move out into the stream, there to await orders.

Capitalists Are Free To Do As They Please

St. Louis, Dec. 23.—"Capitalists have a right to do as they please with their money, so long as they do not become public charges."

"A man without capital may labor or refuse to labor, so long as he keeps out of the poorhouse."

"Capitalists have the right to combine capital in productive enterprises, and by lawful competition drive individual producers and small ones out of business."

"Laborers and artisans have the right to form unions and fight this combination of capitalists by lawful means."

This statement of the right of combination on the part of capital and labor was handed down by Judge C. C.
Hland of the Court of Appeals today
in a decision in favor of Joseph E.
Walsh, who sought an injunction to prevent members of the Master Plumbers' Association from combining in the refusal to sell him supplies because he was not a member.

Judges Barclay and Goode concurred in the decision, which was a reversal of a decision in Judge Woods' court. The case was remanded by Judge Woods, who had denied an injunction asked for by Walsh, and the right of answer is left to the association.

The appellate court, while holding that the association should be restrained, as Walsh asked, refused to dissolve the organization as he had requested in his petition. It was stated that the association was a lawful one.

That any of the well-known capitalists of your acquaintance should say to you, "I will guarantee you one thousand dollars in ten years if you will pay me eighty dollars per year, and if the eighty dollars each year will make one thousand dollars in a little less than eight years I will also give it to you." And he should say, "At my present rate of profit that I am making I will be sure to make it in seven and three-quarters years." Suppose he should say that if after one year you couldn't keep up your payments he should guarantee you one hundred dollars at the end of ten years for the eighty you had put in. Suppose that he should say in addition that the profits being made were two or three per cent better than sufficient to make this eighty dollars reach one hundred dollars in ten years, and he should say that he would guarantee you all the profits made above. Suppose he should offer you another advantage with interest annually on eighty dollars, or you could have an annuity on it after the first ten years, or an annuity for ten years after the first ten years of so much a month. Suppose that he should say also that he would give you all the profits over and above, which, at the present rate of earnings would reach per cent. And again, suppose he should say, "You are a pretty good friend of mine, and I will set aside a certain sum of money which will absolutely guarantee you that I will do such a thing." You would very likely listen to this man's offer, and if you had sufficient confidence in him would probably take it up. Why?
Because you know him personally and because you have full confidence in him. You certainly can figure that the eighty dollars paid each year for ten years would be eight hundred dollars, and you should also figure that the eight hundred dollars is what is used and what is called average time; that is, he has the full use for ten years of a capital which equals for the full time only four hundred dollars, consequently the actual margin of profit made is just one-half again as much as the capital invested. For example, the first eighty dollars you paid would be used for ten years, the second nine, the third eight and so on until the last year there would be only $30 to be used for that year.

The Phoenix Savings, Building and Loan Association is issuing a class of stock which contains all of the above features and several more. Contains in one certificate ten different options.
These options can be taken on certificate without changing it in any way.
They act automatically, according to the way your payments are made. You pay the money; in other words, we do the rest. It combines all of the propositions made by your friend in the example stated above, and add to it not one man's guarantee, but from the 27 different successful business men and financiers who say emphatically as much as has been stated above, and further convincing proof of what we have had to say above is shown in the certificate itself. It is an iron-clad guarantee with iron-clad options, and all you have to do to take advantage of it is to pay from one year to ten. You can also pay monthly in place of annually, or quarterly or semi-annually.
Suit your own convenience. The certificate is of such a character that the payments you make determines which option you have.

We will add that it is the only thing of the kind offered by any company or corporation in the West today. We

Dr. David Jayne Hill Appointed Minister to Switzerland

Washington, Jan. 5.—Dr. David Jayne Hill, who was appointed First Assistant Secretary of State by the late President McKinley, has been appointed Minister to Switzerland in place of Charles Page Bryan who has been appointed Minister to Portugal.
Dr. Hill recently took a prominent part in the entertainment of Prince Henry during his visit in America. He was formerly president of Rochester University, is a scholarly man, and is noted for his knowledge of international law. In the past he has taken a prominent part in New York politics. President McKinley gave him the appointment in the State Department on the resignation of John Bassett Moore in 1898.
Minister Bryan served four years as Minister to Brazil, and previously to that had been appointed Minister to China.

Tacoma, Jan. 5.—A contract has been let here for the construction of a railway from Valdes, which is at the head of Cook's inlet, Alaska, to Dawson, a distance of about four hundred miles. The contract price is five million dollars.

Madrid, Jan. 5.—Ex-Premier Sagasta the great Spanish Liberal Party leader, is dead.

Sacramento, Jan. 5.—Late tonight it was stated that Senator Perkins would be re-elected on the first ballot.

San Francisco, Jan. 5.—The estate of the late Charles L. Fair, who was killed in an automobile accident in France, has been appraised at $3,040,187. The original estate left by "Bonanza King" Fair was appraised at his death at $12,230,000; but at the time it was divided it had mounted up to a third more than this sum and Charles L. Fair was one of the three sole heirs.

San Francisco, Jan. 5.—The name of J. W. McKinley, regent of the State University, was prominently mentioned as a candidate for the post left vacant by the retirement of Chief Justice Shiras from the United States Supreme bench.

PRESENT FOR CARTER

George R. Carter, treasurer of the Republican executive committee, was pleasantly surprised last evening by a call from the other members of the committee who went up in a body. After the Republican workers had picked out comfortable places about on the lanai, Chairman Clarence L. Crabbe arose and, handing a letter to Mr. Carter, bade him read the contents and heed the warning of the committee. The letter was a bit of a "josh" on the treasurer. He was laughing about it and was just going to tuck the letter away in his pocket when Senator Crabbe handed him a small package which contained a gold case. In this case was a very neat little cigar holder, the gift being a token of the appreciation of the committee of the earliest work of Mr. Carter on behalf of the Republican party. The recipient of the gift thanked the members of the executive committee for their kindness and said that there was no gift he had ever received which he appreciated more.
The remainder of the evening was given up to pleasant converse and discussion about various measures for the good of the Republican party.

"He has made a great success in politics, hasn't he?"
"Yes. He's served two terms in fee offices and got away without facing the grand jury."—Chicago Tribune.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 6, 1903

The excitement in Paris over the arrest and return of the Humberts gives rise to the very reasonable conclusion that there are a good number of prominent citizens who would have been glad to let well enough alone as regards the alleged operations of this family.

The opinion of the Attorney General on the authority of county and city governments to levy taxes clear up one of the most vexed points the Territory has had to consider in preparing for local self-government. It now remains for the Legislature to adjust the expense of government that the taxes may be localized in the most inexpensive manner possible.

Judging from the responsibilities falling upon United States Minister Bowen, the people of Venezuela might think well of him as a proper candidate to succeed Castro. Bowen not only represents the interests of the Allies at the Venezuelan capital but goes to Washington to represent Venezuela in drafting the protocol for submission of the whole matter to The Hague.

There is not a little satisfaction for Honolulu in the stories published by San Francisco papers of how telegraph operators watched and waited for the first message from this city and predicted that the next day would see the cable's completion. For once the telegraphic world had to wait on Honolulu, and can realize how the people of these islands have felt all the years during which they had to wait for seven-day steamers.

California would make one of the greatest mistakes of its career if it failed to return George C. Perkins to the United States Senate. Perkins' successful work in Washington has given California a place in national deliberations which would take long for a new man to regain. Rotation in office has its advantages for politicians, but a State that ties up to man of Perkins' stamp finds the benefits and honors mutually shared by the Commonwealth as well as the individual representative.

A YOUNG GERMAN
COMMITTS SUICIDE

A young German employe of Hackfeld & Co. Herman Strauch by name, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the temple with a revolver. Strauch lived in bachelor quarters together with Messrs. von Damm and Muller. Between 6:30 and 9:30 last night Strauch was alone at home in the cottage on Christley lane. At 9:30 p. m. von Damm came home and immediately on entering the house saw powder smoke. He saw a light in Strauch's room and entered it. There he found the body of the unfortunate young man lying stiff and cold in the bed under the mosquito net. There was a hole in the right temple & a revolver was lying close by the body.

Von Damm immediately called Dr. Herbert, but nothing could be done, as the young man was dead. The police were notified and a coroner's jury viewed the remains last night.

Strauch came here from Bremen about a year and a half ago. He was 25 years old. He was of a quiet and temperate nature and had, as far as his friends knew, no reason for committing suicide. He was, however, supposed by them to be a little deranged mentally, he having tried to take his own life on an occasion about six months ago.

The revolver with which Strauch committed the deed was evidently a recent purchase and seems to have been bought intentionally for this purpose. His friends did not know he had it in his possession. They state that they would not have allowed him to have a gun in his possession.

Strauch leaves a widowed mother in Bremen, Germany. The funeral will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon from Williams' undertaking parlors. The remains will be interred in the Nuuanu cemetery.

SHAW'S NEW ASSISTANT

Washington, Dec. 29.—Robert B. Armstrong, private secretary to the Secretary of the Treasury, will be appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury on the reassembling of Congress to succeed General Spaulding, whose resignation has been in the hands of Secretary Shaw for some time. Mr. Armstrong comes from Illinois and his selection is a personal one with Secretary Shaw. He will have charge of the customs branch of the

Why Dole
ISSUES
Passports

The Advertiser this morning publishes a special from its Washington correspondent. "Dole issues passports." An explanation of this dispatch is found in the following from the Bulletin's Washington correspondent published two weeks ago in this paper:

Washington, Dec. 6.—The Secretary of State has sent to the governor of the Philippines through the War Department, the governor of Hawaii through the Interior Department, and directly to the governor of Porto Rico blank passports, forms of application and full instructions for the issuance of passports by those officials.

This marks an important departure, as until recently passports were never issued to any other than citizens of the United States, except for a brief period during the civil war, when they were granted to aliens who had made the declaration of intention to become citizens and were consequently liable to military duty.

After the war with Spain the State Department directed diplomatic and consular officers to afford loyal Filipinos and Porto Ricans who were in foreign countries the same protection as citizens of the United States, but it could not give them passports, because the law forbade their issuance to others than American citizens.

This difficulty was remedied by a law passed by Congress at its last session, and in consequence rules for issuing passports in the insular possessions have been prescribed by President Roosevelt, and the State Department has now forwarded all the papers to the insular governors, and to diplomatic and consular officers throughout the world, thus putting into full effect the new system by which residents of our insular possessions when they travel abroad may carry the same document for their protection that American citizens carry, and may obtain it without inconvenient delay.

J. A. BRECKONS.

Secretary Cooper says a letter has been received from the Secretary of the Interior, to the effect that the Governor may issue passports to American citizens. Formerly they have been issued by the Secretary of State in Washington. The passports in question are those that travelers take to Germany, France or other foreign countries. They have no relation to the compulsory passports formerly required by anyone leaving the Hawaiian Islands. The permission to the Governor to issue these traveling passports is given as a matter of citizens setting out on a foreign tour from these islands.

COUNTY BILL WORK IS ALMOST FINISHED

United States District Attorney Breckons has about finished his work of revision on the county bill and will soon hand it over to the commission appointed by the chairman of the Republican Territorial convention.

A committee has been appointed by the Central Committee of the Republican party to look into the matter of having the proposed bill printed in pamphlet form and this work will very likely be undertaken, if it is found that the cost will not be too great.

As the bill is purely a Republican measure, probably none but the Senators and Representatives, the Central Committee members and members of the Commission and the officers of the various district committees of the Republican party will receive copies. Even these would swell the number to nearly a thousand. However, as the committee cannot report yet, it cannot be said positively whether or not the bill will be printed in pamphlet form for distribution.

Secretary Atkinson of the Central Committee has already written the letters of invitation to the various Senators and Representatives of the Republican party and some of these went forward in the Kinohiwa today. The remainder will be sent out in the Clarendon and W. G. Hall this afternoon.

These invitations call for the presence of the Senators and Representatives here in the city on the first day of February for the purpose of conferring with the executive committee on various measures to be presented before the legislature at the coming session. These conferences will last until the legislature convenes.

ENTERPRISE TO TEST

San Francisco, Dec. 28.—Captain Frederick W. Miller of the oil-burning steamer Enterprise, arriving Friday night from Hilo, reports that the vessel broke her previous records both going and returning on the last voyage, the good time being credited to a new process for burning the oil fuel.

The Enterprise made the run to Hilo in eight days, three and a half hours, against nine days, six hours and nine minutes on the previous trip, and on the return to this port made the distance in seven days and twenty-two hours, as compared with ten days, one hour and thirteen minutes on the last previous trip.

Land Commissioner Boyd has decided to throw open for settlement by residents of the Islands, the 2400 acres of land in the Kona District of Hawaii which had been reserved for the Dakota farmers who have failed to turn up. This will take place next month. Mr. Boyd expected to hear something of the farmers by the City of Peking but was disappointed. Mr. Giddings, the man who came out here to invest-

BOWEN RESPONSIBLE AMERICAN MINISTER IS PRACTICALLY WHOLE THING

ACTING FOR VENEZUELA, GREAT BRITAIN, GERMANY, ITALY, AND UNITED STATES. PROTOCOL.

Washington, Dec. 29.—The Venezuelan negotiations now await upon President Castro. Minister Bowen has been fully advised by the statement of the result of its exchange with the Foreign Offices at London, Berlin and Rome, and he has been charged to take the conditions in hand himself and arrange the details of the protocol which will precede the submission of foreign claims to the arbitration of The Hague tribunal. In so doing Mr. Bowen is acting not as United States Minister but as Venezuela's representative. The officials here wish it to be distinctly understood that their functions ceased so far as the Venezuelan difficulty was concerned when they brought the parties to the controversy together.

By the latest Venezuelan advice it is noted that President Castro is expected at Caracas today and it is felt that he will not consume much time in making up his mind to accept the proposals held out to him through Minister Bowen by the Allied Powers.

It now seems probable that Minister Bowen will come to Washington as Venezuela's representative on the commission which will draw up the protocol providing for the submission of the claims of the Powers to The Hague tribunal. It has been decided that he may so represent Venezuela, notwithstanding the fact that he is at present charged with the interests of Great Britain, Germany, Italy and other European Powers in Venezuela. As soon as he leaves Venezuela, this charge will pass to Mr. Russell, the Secretary and Charge of the American Legation, whose reputation at the State Department is that of a thoroughly competent and able official.

A MAN FRIGHTENED
BY POLICE OFFICER

A small gasoline engine used in the work of modern dentistry employed in the workshop of Drs. A. C. and O. E. Wall yesterday afternoon shortly after 3:30 o'clock and an alarm was turned in from the box at the corner of Fort and Hotel streets by a gentleman who was in the office of the dentists mentioned at the time of the explosion. Fortunately, while this man was on his way to the box, the fire which had been started by the explosion, was extinguished.

The fire department responded almost instantly and ran all the way to the corner of Fort and Hotel, where they were informed that the fire had been put out. The patrol wagon from the police station was a little behind the fire department. The reason was this: Prince, the nervous patrol wagon horse, was leaning up against the chain at the time the alarm sounded so that it did not drop when the electric current was set to work. He became so excited when he saw the other horse break from his stable that he was about to break through the offending chain when stopped by Driver Galt. It was some little time before the chain could be let down and this caused the delay in the arrival of the wagon on the scene.

There is a laughable incident in connection with the turning in of the alarm yesterday afternoon, which was witnessed by two or three hundred people. When the man who turned in the alarm had done his work, he was spied by Officer Hubbell, who, seeing no signs of fire in the neighborhood, seized him by the shoulder and almost lifted him from the ground. He then began to demand of the man why he had turned in the alarm. The latter was so frightened by the action of the police officer, that he was just able to gasp out: "Dr. Wall told me to run to the nearest box and turn in the alarm." This did not satisfy Hubbell, who held the man until Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth arrived and made an investigation into the facts of the case. The poor fellow vowed then and there that he would let fire boxes alone in the future.

ZEALANDIA IS IN
FROM THE COAST

The Oceanic steamship Zealandia arrived from San Francisco early this morning and was docked at the Oceanic wharf at about 7:30 o'clock. The Zealandia was to have left San Francisco Saturday, December 27, but as she had only arrived in that port two days previously, she could not be made ready in time and did not sail before Monday, December 29, in the afternoon.

The Zealandia was delayed on her trip by head seas which were encountered throughout the entire voyage and by head winds which lasted part of the trip. The Zealandia brings only eight cabin passengers and 1200 tons of general merchandise. She brought ninety bags of mail.

Upon her return to San Francisco the Zealandia will be superseded by the Alameda, which has been recently converted into an oil-burner. The old Zealandia will then be laid up as a reserve ship for the Oceanic Company.

BODY LYING IN STATE
Hundreds upon hundreds of Catholics and others too, visited the Catholic Mission during yesterday and this forenoon to gaze upon the features of the beloved Bishop of Honolulu, whose body lies in state in the parlor at the Mission. The countenance of the dead bishop is most serene and shows plainly that when he breathed his last he was at peace with all the world. The body of the bishop, clothed in the ceremonial altar robes and miter, is slightly elevated at the head and shoulders so that it may be seen from all angles.
Dr. F. L. Miner has returned and can be found at his old offices, corner

SHORT STORY FOR EVENING HOURS

JASPER DANE'S CALLER

The door creaked very slightly, but it jarred on Jasper Dane's nerves. He looked up with a frown. "Is this Mr. Dane?" A young woman was framed in the doorway.

Jasper's frown slightly faded as he caught sight of her. She was a pretty young woman and charmingly gowned, and she wasn't more than one and twenty. Jasper avoided the woman's gaze of his paper. He couldn't have told what the young woman in the doorway wore, but he recognized the fact that it was a combination that seemed to be just suited to her.

"Mr. Dane, the editor?" Jasper, pencil in hand, bowed again. The young woman advanced into the apartment.

"You are much younger than I supposed you to be," she said. Jasper's eyes opened wider.

"I am not quite sure that I ought to take that as a compliment," he said. He even smiled. Then the preening character of his work reminded him. His features stiffened. He raised his pencil again, and looked at the girl severely.

"It's the very first time I was ever in an editor's sanctum," she said as her glance took in the dingy walls and the littered desk.

"How can I serve you, madam?" inquired Jasper.

The girl looked at him and she looked at the chair beside his desk. "Thank you," she said, and sat down. Jasper sighed and stared at the half-written sheet before him.

"Are you sure it is the editor you want to see?" he asked. "The society editor is at the lower end of the hall. So are the musical editor and the art department. So is the dramatic editor."

"I came to see you," said the girl. Jasper slightly flushed.

"Thank you," he said. "I am on exhibition at all hours. Is that all?"

The girl shook her head. "Do you own the paper, too?" she asked.

Jasper frowned.

"No," he replied. "I believe it is generally understood that Linas Lamson is the paper's owner."

"The railway president?"

"Yes."

"Has he any children?"

"One."

"Boy?"

"No, a girl; a little girl who is studying abroad."

"How old?"

"I don't know; Mr. Lamson speaks of her as his little girl." Jasper was getting fidgety. "I beg your pardon," he said, "but you have not told me how I can serve you."

"No," she said. "I haven't."

A brief silence followed.

"Am I to infer that you are getting up a society directory?" Jasper inquired with a slight flavor of sarcasm.

"No," said the girl, "the inference would be wrong. Nor do I want my portrait on the society page. No, I have no tickets to sell and no subscription paper to sign. I came here to see you. A dear friend said, 'You must see the editor of the Dispatch. He's worth your while.'"

Jasper couldn't help flushing again. "Am I reckoned among the leading lights of the town?" he asked.

"No," the girl gravely replied. "You come between the geyser fountain and the zoo."

Jasper laughed.

"And do you come up here to tell me that?" he asked.

"That for one thing," said the girl. "I don't suppose my presence here bothers you in the least, does it?"

"Madam," said Jasper, "I am a reckless user of the truth. Your presence prevents me from attending to my duties."

"Perhaps this is your busy day?" said the girl innocently. "Then, of course, it is just as convenient for me to call today as any other day," said the girl.

Jasper looked at her with a comical expression. He was a little near-sighted, and as was his custom with callers, he had scarcely given her an appreciative look when she entered. Now, at shorter range, he saw that she was much prettier than he at first supposed. She certainly was a very charming girl. A troubled look came into Jasper's eyes.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "but may I remind you that you haven't stated your business with me?"

The girl looked into his eyes with a clear, frank gaze. Then she slightly smiled and slowly removed an elastic band that held the small package she bore in one neatly gloved little hand.

Jasper took quick advantage of her averted gaze to pull down his cuffs and make a quick pass at his twisted tie.

"I have written something," she said, "and I want to submit it to you."

Jasper felt himself weakening. Ordinarily, he would have taken the manuscript, and hastily scribbling the writer's address on it would have tossed it aside with the remark that he would communicate with the writer by mail concerning it—and then he would have resumed his work. Now he hesitated. His pencil dropped from his fingers. He straightened up a little.

Indifferent tone.

"It isn't an article," said the girl. "Do I look like a person who would write an article?"

She seemed to challenge his scrutiny. Jasper couldn't resist the temptation. He leaned a little farther back.

"It isn't always possible to judge by the appearance," he said.

"But I fancied article writers were always old, and—and fussy, and—and cranky," said the girl.

"There are exceptions," said Jasper. "There must be exceptions."

"I suppose you know," said the girl. "But it isn't an article."

"You arouse my worse fears," said Jasper as the girl spread out the manuscript.

"I think I understand what you mean," she said.

"I'm glad you do," said Jasper. "And I'm afraid your worst fears are confirmed," she said.

Jasper sighed.

"Then it is verses?" he said.

"I supposed it was poetry," said the girl.

"They always do," said Jasper.

The girl looked up at him with a pretty grimace.

"You are not a bit encouraging," she said.

"It's the better way," said Jasper. "And yet you write verses yourself," said the girl. "And get them printed, too."

"Perhaps it is because I haven't a friend honest enough to dissuade me," said Jasper. "I have had no time for that sort of nonsense lately, however."

"That's a pity," said the girl.

"Don't think to soften me in that way," said Jasper.

"I like those lines beginning 'She came upon me unawares,'" said the girl. "I know them by heart. 'She came upon me unawares; I turned and she was there.'"

"I beg your pardon," cried Jasper. "It is your lines that are under consideration. Pray produce them."

The girl gave him a sidelong glance.

"Did she come upon you unawares, Mr. Dane?"

Jasper caught the glance and slightly flushed. His look grew troubled again.

"I live in hopes," he said.

"That's enigmatical," laughed the girl. "It shows you are not sure."

"I must object to your manifest intention to throw me into a sentimental mood," said Jasper. "It will not help you."

The girl laughed and passed the manuscript to him.

"I know you will like it," she said.

"Why are you so certain?" Jasper asked.

Jasper bent over the manuscript to hide his smile. Then his look changed.

The smile faded. He read the lines with great care. Presently he looked up.

The girl had been regarding him intently. She met his eyes with an inquiring glance.

"You want me to be frank?" he said.

"Of course."

"The lines are quite too sentimental. They are of the old school where sentiment reigned. Nowadays we bluntly call it gush."

"But it's not all bad, is it?" queried the girl.

"By no means," replied Jasper. "The execution is good. If the frilleries and affectations were dropped it would be very passable. If you would heed my advice—they never do—I might be tempted to ask you to try again."

He folded the manuscript and handed it to her.

"Thank you," said the girl.

"I am sorry if my judgment seems harsh," said Jasper.

"It doesn't," said the girl.

"I have tried to treat you as an honest friend should," said Jasper.

"Thank you again," said the girl. "I will admit that I hoped to see my verses in your paper."

"Try again," said Jasper.

The girl arose and put out her dainty hand.

"I am glad to know you, Mr. Dane," she said, "I have a very dear friend who has sung your praises until I am quite jealous. I was really anxious to meet you. Good-bye." Then she swiftly added, with a charming smile, "I am sure we shall meet again."

The smile and the words quite overcame Jasper.

"I—I hope so," he fairly stammered as he arose to his feet and watched her flutter from the room.

As he resumed his seat a card upon the floor drew his attention. The girl had dropped it. He picked it up, caught sight of his name, and at once recognized the angular handwriting.

Then he read it aloud:—
 "Dear Dane:—This is my daughter Leone, just come home from abroad. What she writes goes, of course. Yours, LINAS LAMSON."

MASCAGNI'S SORROWS

SAYS THEATRICAL TRUST CAUSED HIS TROUBLES

SAYS MUSIC-LOVERS ARE NICE, BUT CAN'T SAME SAME FOR MONEY MAKERS—HIS HEART HIT.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Pietro Mascagni today laid his troubles at the threshold of the theatrical trust. Today, for the first time since his arrival in Chicago, he was interviewed by a reporter for "The Examiner."

Still confined to his rooms in the Auditorium Annex, the great composer continued to lament the fact that he had failed in his tour of the United States. While he waited for his attorney, Alderman Julius Goldzier, and the Italian Consul, he talked in a low voice through his friend, C. Matchetti, and sought comfort from the cheering smile of his wife.

During the morning a score of cablegrams arrived from Italy, asking after the health of the musician and offering help if it was required.

"I have my contract," said Mascagni. "I was promised $50,000—guaranteed that sum—and it was understood that I was not responsible for any debts. If the first concert was a failure I was to get all the money received. That was all agreed upon."

"How happy I was to come to this great country. I looked forward to it with much enjoyment," said the maestro, after a pause. "I wanted to see all the great people who loved my music. I wanted to see them and I felt they would like to meet me. Was that wrong? I hope not."

"I find the people—I mean all the people who love music—are very nice. They have been very kind to me. They have paid me much homage. I cannot help but like it."

"This trust, I don't understand it. I did not know men would not want me to play. Why should they care? It is the few—the men who want all of the money. But how should I know?"

"If I am invited to some one's home and he has certain rules by which he runs his house, he should tell me about them. The man might want me to keep my hat on in the house, and I would take it off if he did not tell me. I want to do as the man wants me. When I am his guest. That is, I think I should follow his rules."

"So it is with this trust. Why did they not tell me I should not come? If I had known it was against the rules, I would have stayed in Italy."

"This trust has struck my heart. They have tried to kill me. They have crushed me down; they make me ashamed."

"But I will pay, I will not be dishonored. I do not owe a cent of all this money. They owe me money. From the start the people who did not want me to come have done all in their

FOR SILVERTOWN MEN

A splendid dinner was given last evening in the private dining room of the Hawaiian hotel in honor of the officers of the cable ship Silvertown, the host being Manager Willis. The invited guests were: Mr. Benoit, Captain Morton, Captain Pattison, Mr. Hymer Jones, Mr. Barwell, Col. Samuel Parker, Prince David Kawananakoa, Mr. Dickenson, Mr. Gaines, Dr. George Herbert, Mr. C. A. Brown, Mr. J. Lovette Rockwell, Dr. F. Howard Humphreys, Dr. Walters, Mr. E. D. Tenney, Mr. George Carter, Dr. Tenthoff, Captain Rodman and Mr. E. M. Boyd.

The table was very prettily decorated with green leaves and vases of carnations occupied prominent places. The candles were covered with red shades.

The company sat down at about 6:45 o'clock with Manager Willis and Superintendent Dickenson seated at opposite ends of the table. The dinner was greatly enjoyed and toasts were offered to President Roosevelt, King Edward VII, the cable, the Silvertown, etc., etc.

After the dinner, the quiet club boys who had been furnishing music on the back lawn, went around to the front part and then began the dancing, which continued until a late hour. There were a large number of people present.

REFORM SCHOOL WORK

Contractor Bertelman, who has in his hands the putting up the buildings at the reform school site in Waiata, this island, states that the work is progressing rapidly on account of the good weather and that he will be able to hand the buildings over to the proper authorities long before March 21, the time limit set in the contract.

The concrete foundation of the main building, which took considerable time, has been completed, and twenty-five men are now at work on the frame work of the building proper.

This being too much for the great prophet, he went forth and reinforced himself with a pony.—New York Sun.

NATIVE BOY DROWNS

Lailahe Kane, a native youth, 19 years of age, was drowned yesterday afternoon by falling into a small pond near the Waikiki road. Kane went out fishing yesterday with his little sister. Just as he was casting his net, he was attacked by a fit, to which he had been a subject for some time past, and fell headlong into the water.

His little sister ran home to her parents for assistance but when these arrived, death had already occurred, the youth in his helpless condition drowning in the shallow water.

The police were notified and Lieut. Leslie was sent to investigate the matter. As it was a clear case of accident, no inquest will be held.

protest of the importer and the Board's decision thereon.

Thereafter, on the application of counsel for the importer, the Federal Court here made an order directing the Board to return all of the evidence; also a further order referring the whole subject to H. M. Somerville, a member of the Board, for the taking of such further evidence in the matter as might be offered by the petitioner or by the United States.

On February 25, 1902, a supplemental return was received from the Board of General Appraisers, which contained an additional exhibit in the form of the original analysis of the merchandise in controversy. It was stated that "The importer failed to appear at the hearing, either in person or by counsel, and that no evidence was offered by him, as under the ruling of the court he was required to do." Special Appraiser Somerville made a similar report of the non-appearance of the appellant, and the court comments thus:

"There being no testimony offered in the matter before the Board of Appraisers, and no excuse shown why, and the burden being on the importer to show the Collector's action wrong, if it was wrong, and no effort being made to show the reason why, the importer failed to make out a case against the Collector."

The court calls attention to the fact that in his protest to the Collector the importer relied upon but one ground of objection, namely, in effect that the article should have been classed as a leather shoe or slipper at 25 p. c. duty instead of a manufacture of leather at 35 p. c. duty. Upon the hearing and upon the application for the order to the Board, it appeared that the protestant now bases his case on appeal to the District Court mainly on the alleged error of the Board of General Appraisers in failing to consider the similitude clause of the Tariff Act. Judge Estee finds that it was not possible, under the language of the original protest, for appellant to do this. "He is confined to the allegations of his protest made to the Collector of the Port, and upon which the Board of General Appraisers acted." As authority for the decision of the Supreme Court in Davies vs. Arthur, 96 U. S. 148, is quoted, thus:

"Technical precision is not required, but the objections must be so 'distinct and specific' as when fairly construed, to show that the objection taken at the trial, was at that time in the mind of the importer, and that it was sufficient to notify the Collector of its true nature and character, to the end that he might ascertain the precise facts and have an opportunity to correct the mistake and cure the defect, if it was one which could be thus obviated."

Section 14 of an Act of Congress of June 10, 1890, prescribes that a person dissatisfied with a Collector's decision shall give notice to the Collector setting forth therein, distinctly and specifically, the reasons for his objections thereto. "That was done by the importer in this case," Judge Estee says, "and that must stand as the alleged error appealed from." In other words, the appellant cannot trump up new objections as they may be required to make out a case for him in the progress of the controversy.

The Circuit Court of Appeal is further cited as authority, 55 Federal Rep. 278, for the principle that "the importer should be bound by his own statement of the objections to the Collector's decision."

With regard to the similitude clause, Hahn vs. Ehrhardt, 75 Fed. 620-621 (C. C. A.) is quoted, where the court says:

"The similitude provision is intended to prescribe the duty to which articles are to be subject that have been omitted in the enumeration of dutiable articles in the schedules of the tariff laws. It has no application when the imported articles can be identified with any of those articles described in any of the schedules. If the importer asserts in his protest that his merchandise belongs to the category of enumerated articles, he asserts by implication that its dutiable character is not to be ascertained by reference to the similitude provision."

In this case the importer does claim the dutiable character of the imports to be under paragraph 435 of the tariff law.

The court goes further into this matter to the same effect, quoting many United States decisions and concluding: "It is not possible for this court to now consider on appeal any ground of protest, unless made to the Collector at the time the classification was made, and the question of the similitude of these shoes was not so made."

Judge Estee goes on to show that, in this case, the only finding of fact is as to the materials of which the merchandise is composed. No evidence of any character was offered on the part of the protestant. An analysis of the merchandise made by Rudolph Streuli, upon which the decision of the Board was based, showed rawhide to be the component part of chief value. There is nothing in the record to show that rawhide is leather. The Century Dictionary is quoted as showing a clear distinction between leather and rawhide, this being evidently in the tanning or lack of tanning of an animal's skin.

"In the absence of any evidence to the contrary," the court decides, "the finding of the fact by the Board of Gen-

DEATH BY SUICIDE.

The coroner's jury sitting in the case of Herman Strauch, the young German who committed suicide last night, met at noon today and returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death as a result of a wound in the brain inflicted by himself with suicidal intent. High Sheriff Brown acted as coroner.

The Chinaman injured in the runaway incident up the valley yesterday, is out of danger. While his arm is dislocated and his face is very badly scratched, he is getting along very well.

General Appraisers will not be disturbed. 110 Fed. Rep. 940, 941, and 113 Fed. Rep. 1006, are noted.

The Court finds that "While it is true that the amount of iron in these articles is very small, being only 2.122 per cent of the value of the entire article, as shown by the aforesaid analysis, yet it is sufficient to affect their classification in the event that the same are not otherwise provided for or specially enumerated in the Act"; and, quoting 139 U. S. 608 and 612, says that "In the latter case it was held that woolen goods having in the warp quantities of cotton varying from 1.99 to 6 per cent were sufficient to have that effect."

"And, in this case, the component part of chief value is not leather but rawhide, which is nowhere provided for in the Act, and as there is no other component material of chief value then the classification of the Board of General Appraisers as 'articles or wares not specially provided for composed wholly or in part of iron' (paragraph 193 of the Tariff Act of 1897) would seem to be the correct one."

Referring to one of the grounds of his decision already stated, Judge Estee says:

"It is now over two years since this appeal was first taken, and during all that time petitioner has taken no apparent interest in the case. So it has been held that the burden is on the importer on appeal to prove that the Collector's action was wrong, and if he fails in sustaining this burden the action of the Collector stands, even though it appears that the Collector has selected the wrong paragraph. Thus there is no controverted question of fact in this case, because the importer at no time appeared before the Board of General Appraisers to controvert the action of the Collector."

THE BREWER MERGER

The Brewer & Co. sugar merger which caused such a sensation among sugar interests here some time ago, and which has been hanging fire for quite a period, will now be rushed to its completion.

The whole thing has depended on Col. W. F. Allen, who recently returned from the Coast. It seems that the attorneys of the corporation, upon securing the by-laws which had been prepared by Brewer & Co., saw that they would not do under the laws of New Jersey and so cut them all to pieces.

This having been done, it was the work of the committee appointed for the purpose of attending to the details of the proposition to take action. The members of this body are George R. Carter, P. C. Jones and Col. W. F. Allen. As Mr. Jones was sick and Col. Allen away, no quorum could be secured and so the work had to await the return of the latter.

S. T. Alexander will be among the passengers from the Coast in the So-
