HAWAII NEI.

[The Collective name of the whole Hawaiian Group.]

Hawaii nei—isles where the Muses dwell !
Isles where Parnassian whispers ever tell

Their tales of life and love, of war and death,
In ev'ry storm and gentlest zephyr's breath

That goads to anger thy embracing sea
Or stirs the drapery of mount and lea !

There's sweetest music in thy ev'ry mood;
'Tis voiced in lava field and tangled wood,

On dreary plain, each peak of stony mail,
In crater's pit, each shy, retreating vale;

In ocean's surge, that beats in ceaseless roar
Upon thy line of foam-engirdled shore;

'Tis heard where Mauna Kea woos the sky,
Where wild Iao's far-famed valleys lie,

Where bold Leahi kneels beside the sea,
Where Hanalei wakes strains of minstrelsy.

Hawaii nei—of many one thou art,
Each scattered fragment an essential part;

No jeweled setting is more fair than thee,
O em'rald cluster in a beryl sea !

Thy life is music,—Fate, the notes prolong !
Each isle a stanza and the whole a song.

PREFACE.

IN the preparation of this book all padding or the insertion of useless material for the sake of making a large book has been avoided. Names of contract laborers and the floating laboring population have been omitted, as they lumber up a book without serving any practical purpose. We have endeavored to get all names which in a commercial or social sense are necessary to make a complete Directory. The addition of a classified business directory we think will be appreciated by all having occasion to use the book. It will be found especially valuable in addressing circulars. We here wish to acknowledge our obligation to government officials for valuable assistance in obtaining statistical and other information. Mr. Thos. G. Thrum, Registrar of Conveyances, also very courteously allowed us to use matter from his very valuable Annual, correcting the same to date for our use. These kindnesses and the generous hospitality extended to us during the canvass and compilation of this book we fully appreciate, and for them we return our sincere thanks.

THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Are situated in the North Pacific Ocean. Their extremes of latitude are from 18° 50' to 22° 20' north, and of longitude from 154° 53' to 160° 15' west from Greenwich. The islands are eight in number, as follows: Hawaii, Maui, Oahu, Kauai, Molokai, Lanai, Niihau and Kahoolawe. The three latter are comparatively unimportant. The group really includes four other islands, barren and of small dimensions. Bird Island is a rock 120 miles northwest of Kauai; Molokini is an extinct crater of but slight elevation, with one side open to the sea, lying midway between Maui and Kahoolawe; Lehue lies off Niihau, having an elevation of 1,000 feet, a fine spring of water, and some little vegetation, and Kaula is seven miles southwest from Niihau. The latter is said to be the smallest of the group, but it abounds in wild fowl, as does also Bird Island. Of the eight islands first mentioned, seven are inhabited, Kahoolawe having been abandoned except by sheep herders. The following table gives the population of the seven principal islands according to the last census (1890).

The group was named the Sandwich Islands on their discovery by Captain Cook, in honor of his patron, the Earl of Sandwich, then First Lord of the Admiralty. The legitimate native title and the one they continue to bear is "Hawaii nei pae aina," a collective term synonymous with "these Hawaiian Islands." This term is derived from the largest of the group, Hawaii, whence the reigning family originated, and has entirely superseded the name of Sandwich Islands, which term is only used abroad. The central situation of the Hawaiian Islands is highly favorable to their commercial importance. The position is nearly equidistant from Central America, Mexico, California, and the northwest coast on the one side, and the Russian domains, Japan, China and the Philippine Islands on the other.

There are few harbors, though numerous channels occur in the reefs, affording entrance into basins, capable of accommodating coasters. With the exception of Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, on the south side of Oahu, no really good harbor exists. At Koolau, on the north side of Oahu, there is another harbor, with, however, but nine feet of water in the channel. The surrounding country is verdant, well watered, and the breeze directly from the ocean. By deepening these channels, should the commerce of the Kingdom ever require it, fine sites for commercial towns would be formed. Hilo Bay, on the east of Hawaii, affords excellent anchorage; shipping is protected by a projecting reef, and the holding ground is good, but the surf breaks heavily upon the beach, and not unfrequently renders landing difficult. At all of the principal towns, with these exceptions, the roadsteads are exposed; but such is the nature of the prevailing winds that vessels can anchor in perfect safety. With good ground tackle there is but little to be feared at any season. No dangers to navigation exist in the vicinity of the islands, with the exception of a reef off the west coast of Kahoolawe. It is a little less than two miles from the shore, and with two fathoms of water on it at low tide. A few rocks, within a circumference of two hundred feet, comprise its whole extent.

The structure of the group is volcanic. On Hawaii is found the largest known active volcano, and several others of great size, partially or wholly quiescent. The mountains attain an elevation of fourteen thousand feet. They are of great extent and grandeur, and throughout the group present scenery of peculiar and beautiful character. To the north they slope somewhat precipitously to the sea, covered with a greensward at their base, and above with dense forests. Plains are broken by deep ravines, down whose steep sides cascades fall in bright and pretty sheets. Several of these often unite, as in Kauai, and form rivers of considerable depth and size. Palis, or precipices, in many parts present stupendous walls of rock from one thousand to three thousand feet perpendicular elevation, directly fronting the sea, the surging of which forms large caverns, into which the sea rushes with stunning effect.

Below the region of clouds, vast and rugged masses of broken lava spread themselves over the country. Plains frequently occur with a soil formed of ashes and cinders. Extinct volcanoes are very common. They are of every age, size and shape, at places crowning the summits of lofty hills and mountains; elsewhere, rising precipitously from plains or projecting into the ocean, they form prominent landmarks for navigators. One of the most singular and well known is the promontory near Honolulu, called Leahi, better known as Diamond Head, from an idea once current that precious stones were to be found there.

The minerals are few and simple, consisting of the usual variety of the lavas, from the most solid and granular to the light pumice stone. Ledges of compact limestone, a good material for building, are found on several of the islands. These, being elevated considerably above the sea, have caused much speculation as to how they were formed or arrived at their present situation. The most remarkable is at Kahuku, Oahu. No metals have been discovered. Four miles to the west of Honolulu, and within a mile of the ocean, is the famous salt lake of Alia-paakai, elevated only a few feet above the level of the sea. It is in the heart of a crater, nearly oval in form, and about a mile in circumference. At certain seasons salt forms spontaneously and in the greatest abundance; at others but little is created, from its being overflowed by rains. Some have supposed it a mineral salt; but the general belief among the natives is that it is formed by evaporation. The following facts favor the supposition. Its general depth is but eighteen inches; near the center a hole exists five to six fathoms in circumference, which, as no bottom has been found to it, is supposed to connect with the ocean. Through this the lake is slightly affected by the tides, and at times it is crusted over with a stratum of salt sufficiently strong to bear a man's weight.

The soil of the islands is formed of decomposed volcanic rocks, sand, mud and ashes. To be made fertile it requires constant irrigation. Valleys which receive the débris and rains of the mountains, and for ages have been accumulating deposits of vegetable mould, are exceedingly rich and productive.

The banana, yam, sweet potato, breadfruit, cocoanut, arrow-root, sugar cane, strawberry, raspberry, ohelo (a berry), ohia (a juicy red apple, but of poor flavor), are indigenous and plentiful. Many varieties of esculent fruits and vegetables have been successfully introduced, among which are melons, the delicious chirimoya from Peru, limes, oranges, guavas, pineapples, grapes, figs, peaches, citrons, and tamarinds. The vegetables of the temperate region have been acclimated to a considerable extent. The uplands of Maui produce excellent "Irish potatoes." Wheat of good quality thrives in the same region. An oil used in painting is extracted from the nut of the kukui tree (aleurites triloba).

Rice, coffee, cotton, indigo, tobacco, sugar cane, mulberry, cocoa, and most of the tropical plants can be successfully cultivated on the low grounds, while the uplands are suitable for the productions of more temperate regions.

The forests are usually very dense, broken by deep chasms, hidden ravines and deep, conical-shaped pits, which appear to have once been active craters. The trees are overgrown with masses of ferns and parasitical vines, thickly interlaced and spreading their shoots in all directions, which render it a task of great difficulty to penetrate their recesses. There are but few birds to enliven these sylvan solitudes. Wild geese are found at Hawaii; snipe, plover and wild ducks on all the islands. A variety of the owl is very common; but nature, in the ornithological as well as the entomological tribe, has been chary of her gifts, and the traveler looks in vain for the endless varieties which the more favored intertropical countries afford. Swine and domestic fowls are indigenous, and, besides the wild fowl above mentioned, were the only varieties of animal food before the introduction of cattle.

Fish, of which there are a great variety, form one of the chief articles of diet. They consist chiefly of the albicore, bonita, flying fish, shark, eel and many species preserved in artificial ponds, which acquire a delicious flavor, and are highly prized. The best of these is the mullet. Edible shellfish are also abundant, of which the pearl oyster, cuttlefish and prawn are the most palatable. Pearls are common, but of no great size or beauty. They formerly constituted a profitable branch of trade, and were monopolized by the king. The common oyster is not found.

The climate is salubrious, and possesses such remarkable evenness of temperature that the language has no word to express the general idea of weather. The tropical heat is mitigated by the trade winds, which blow over a wide expanse of ocean in the temperate zone. The shores on either side show but little difference in the results of the thermometer. Physiologists give a certain point of temperature as most conducive to health and longevity. The mean heat of these islands approaches near to it, and is highly favorable to the full development and perfection of animal economy.

By visiting the interior and ascending the mountains, any desirable degree of temperature can be attained. On the highest mountains snow remains during much of the year, and in exposed situations on Mauna Kea throughout the whole. Snowstorms occur on the highlands of Maui during the winter months. On the upland region of Kauai, a uniform elevation of 4,000 feet, both snow and hail occasionally occur. The temperature here is quite regular the year through, requiring warm garments and fires even in the month of July. A portion of it supports a heavy growth of timber and is frequented only by woodcutters. The average temperature of Waimea, Hawaii, situated in the interior, at an elevation of about four thousand feet, is nearly 64° Fahrenheit, 48° being the lowest extreme. This place affords an excellent retreat for those whose constitutions have become enervated by too long a residence nearer the coast. Rains are frequent at this altitude, but the dryness of the soil seldom leaves the ground damp for any length of time. At Mountain Retreat, back of Lahaina, Maui, an elevation of 3,000 feet, the temperature varies from 40° to 75°; but such situations afford few comforts for the sick, and their dampness renders them otherwise objectionable.

Localities can be selected on the seashore which possess advantages for invalids, particularly those affected with pulmonary complaints. Many individuals, by change of residence, have prolonged their lives for years, and others who, in the less favored regions of the North, were perpetual sufferers, live with scarcely an admonition of their disease. Lahaina, Kailua, Ewa and Honolulu have all a good reputation in this respect. At the former, during ten years, the highest thermometrical elevation was 86°; the lowest, 54°, an extreme difference of but 32°. During no day in this period was the range greater than 19°. June has the highest range—January the lowest. But little rain falls, and for successive months the sun is rarely obscured by clouds.

The common range of the thermometer at Honolulu is 12° per diem. The greatest degree of heat during twelve years in the shade was 90°, and 54° for the coldest; the mean, about 75°. Kailua and Ewa vary but little from the above.

At Koloa, Kauai, the thermometer varies from 50° to 88°; at Waioli, from 55° to 90°, with much rain. A change of wind affects the climate materially. During nine months of the year the northeast trade wind blows with great regularity, and the temperature is very uniform. Oahu and Kauai are the most influenced by it; Maui, which is larger, has in a few places to the leeward, including Lahaina, the regular land and sea breeze. Hawaii, from its size and height of mountains, neutralizes its influence, and enjoys an almost uninterrupted land and sea breeze. This occurs, in some degree, even on its northeast coast, where the wind is usually freshest. The winds partake of the character of the sea breeze in the day, and during the night are so modified by the influence of the land as to vary their course from off the shore, or become very light. Where the mountain ranges are broken by steep defiles, as at Kawaihae and other bays on the west side, the wind rushes through with great violence, gathering strength as it descends, until it passes off to sea in furious gusts. During the winter months the trade winds are interrupted, winds from the south and west often prevailing for several successive weeks. Calms are also frequent and of long duration. Much of the weather at this season is, however, of the most delightful description; the sky becomes cloudless, the atmosphere dry, clear and bracing, and the whole system feels the invigorating influence of the change. Nothing can exceed the soft brilliancy of the moonlight nights. Thunder storms are rare and light in their nature. No hurricanes have been known.

The following is from May L. Cheney's excellent article on "Kilauea," in the Overland Monthly of June, 1892:—

"For grandeur of mountain scenery and grace of tropical foliage Hawaii is famed, and when to these is added the distinction of possessing the only active craters in the group, it is not surprising that this island is the one most visited. It is the easternmost and the largest of the islands. Its greatest length from north to south is about ninety-three miles, its width eighty miles. In this small area are crowded five great volcanic mountains, three of them over eight thousand feet high. It is difficult to realize the height of these great domes, because of the gentleness of their slopes. They are most imposing when viewed from the eastern coast. The favorite route to the volcano is therefore by way of Hilo. The other route, which lands the visitor at Punaluu, on the south coast, gives a better view of the lava streams, for the greater part of the lavas of the eastern slopes has been disintegrated by the copious rains that visit that side of the island, and are covered with dense forests of koa and ohia.

"This difference in the aspect of the two sides of Hawaii is very striking. The western coast as seen from the steamer presents an almost continuous line of precipitous cliffs, or piled-up masses of bare black lava. The coast line has numerous indentations or bays, and about each of these clusters a native village. Looking up at the black overhanging cliffs, one wonders what attractions such a place can offer as a home—in fact, how human beings manage to sustain life there. Fish there must be in abundance, of course, and a few miles back in the interior there is an immense elevated plateau, which by reason of its position profits by all the scanty rainfall the region enjoys, and supports the taro and banana patches, which supply the other necessities of a Kanaka bill of fare.

"The Hawaiian holding is generally a strip of land running back from the sea, including a bit of woodland and a bit of land suitable for rice or taro patches. The privilege of fishing in the adjacent waters is bought with the land. This is the common custom of the country. You must have the consent of the proprietor of the land before dropping a line off the shore anywhere in the kingdom.

"The native Hawaiian prefers the hot lava cliffs to the cooler heights inland. He is amphibious, too, and hence prefers to live by the water. Captain Cook found a dense population crowding these western shores of Hawaii. The burial caves of their chiefs can still be seen dotting the walls of the cliffs, and as an ancient superstition prevents the inmates from being disturbed, skeletons, wrapped in cocoa bark, with calabashes and stone implements, can be seen within.

"On the other side of the great mountain wall which divides the island there is an annual rainfall of one hundred and fifty inches, due to the warm, moist northeast trades. As a consequence, the luxuriance of tropical vegetation here reaches its climax. Hilo is buried in palms and bamboo. It has streams of clear water running along the sides of its streets.

"A few miles beyond Hilo the volcano road plunges into a genuine tropical jungle. Guava, ohia, and lauhala trees form a framework for ferns and brake and parasites to run riot over. In the shade of the tall tree ferns are found the coffee plants, with their dark green leaves, and rows of red berries growing along their stems. Equally picturesque are the broad leaves of the banana and the naked stem of the ti tree, with its crown of deeply indented leaves. There is only one thing lacking—that is sound. The cheerful chirp of the bird is almost unheard. The deep silence of Hawaiian forests is painful, but there is consolation in the thought that, though the birds are missed, there are neither snakes nor wild animals of any kind to fear."

We cannot forbear here to quote the stanzas written at Waikiki Villa, by Mrs. Laura Searing ("Howard Glendon"), of Binghamton, N. Y., a recent visitor to the islands:—

Shall I return no more,
Thou dear, delightful, wave-washed, lotus-land,
Where all the hours flit by, a happy band,
Like nymphs upon the shore?

Shall I return no more
To thee, fair haven of the heavy heart,
Sweet resting place, forever set apart,
Land of the open door?

Land of the open heart,
The generous hand, the beautiful, bright eye,
Where the laugh echoes, and light steps go by,
And shadows swift depart!

Nested amidst thy flowers,
Beneath thy glorious skies to watch the stars
Awhile, the soul forgets to beat its bars,
Content in dreamful bowers.

Oh God, 'tis not for me,
A life like this, as perfect as a rhyme,
To which my pulses could keep tune and time,
A life so full and free!

I go; but I have had
At least a little while in paradise,
With all my heart anear unto my eyes,
And this shall make me glad!

Honolulu and Island of Oahu.

The metropolis and seat of government of the Hawaiian Islands, and the largest city and most important social and trade center in the Kingdom, is situated on the southern coast of the island of Oahu and possesses an excellent harbor, with abundance of water for the deepest drafted ships, a smooth bar, easy of approach and passage, extensive wharfage, and buoys and the necessary signal lights. Further dredging by the government is now in process to widen the entrance. A landing can be made from ocean vessels and passengers, and mails can be disembarked more expeditiously in Honolulu than in any other port of entry we have visited. This is owing partly to the natural harbor facilities. At the same time the port's custom officials are worthy of commendation for their common sense system of supervision, as well as for their extreme politeness to long pent up passengers.

Approached from the sea the appearance of Honolulu and its vicinity from Diamond Head to the mountainous background of the city is one of extreme loveliness. All the symmetry and architectural features of Honolulu cannot from a distance be readily defined, by reason of a thick grove of tropical and other trees lining the streets, overhanging the houses and abounding in the gardens. Almost every yard is utilized as a garden, arranged with a view to the picturesque, as well as for the purpose of affording charming retreat and grateful shade. This luxuriant growth of vegetation, matchless in its tropical grace, and the rich, verdure-clad hills and bottom lands, are an index of the richness of the soil and the beneficence of the climate at this latitude and situation. The genial climate itself points to the warm and hospitable disposition of all who enjoy its benign influences.

The general appearance of the city is suggestive of a mixture of English, American and Mexican. The old English ideas of laying out a town would seem to have prevailed in the older parts of the city, as many of the streets are tortuous in their course. In the matter of paving and cleanliness, the streets, and, in fact, the roads for some distance out of town, as a general thing, will compare favorably with the best turnpikes and fashionable drives of America, or even Europe. In this respect Honolulu reminds us of Victoria, British Columbia and vicinity.

In Honolulu, as in Victoria, all the streets are macadamized and receive constant attention.

The arrangement of gardens and the architectural style of many of the residences are largely Mexican and Central American in appearance, while the business part of town (except in the Chinese quarter) and many private houses recall to mind the American style. Of the resident foreigners the Americans predominate, and have infused the social and business spirit of the Great Republic into Hawaiian affairs to such an extent as to give everything a decidedly American character. Not even the torpidity produced by a tropical climate can subdue the characteristic energy of the North American. The familiar contact with this element makes one feel as though he were still living under the stars and stripes.

When we say that the American customs prevail, we would not be understood as saying that every other element is entirely overshadowed. Such is not the fact. The British and German nations both have a numerous and creditable representation in a superior class here. Almost without exception they are of the liberal, educated, refined, traveled, enterprising, and adaptable class. In fact, the whole foreign population, including the Chinese, live along in remarkable and almost complete harmony with one another and the natives—notwithstanding that the Hawaiian Islands are jealously watched by the different governments. The community too is very generous and kindly disposed to strangers who prove themselves deserving of confidence.

The Chinese figure very prominently in the Hawaiian population, and control a large proportion of the trade of the islands. They are numerous and influential in Honolulu. If a Chinaman selects a country outside of China to live in for life, that country will most probably be the Hawaiian Islands. All the conditions here are eminently favorable for him. The climate suits him; the natives are not averse to him; the native women consider it a piece of good fortune to win a Chinese husband, and the children raised by the cross are really superior. So a great many Chinamen come to the islands, gain a competency, marry native women, educate their children in a liberal manner, and spend their lives in the land of their adoption.

The Chinese quarter of town, which is also largely inhabited and frequented by natives, occupies a considerable portion of the center of town. The two races mingle a great deal together. The average Chinaman finds it at once easier and more important to acquire a knowledge of the Hawaiian language than to learn English, though we do not believe that the Kanaka will ever make any effort to master Chinese.

The fine street system of Honolulu has had the effect of encouraging the maintenance of myriads of wheeled vehicles. The number of expresses (light and comfortable hacks) is startling. This is the champion short-distance hack-riding town of the universe. If a man is going three blocks he hires a carriage. The rates of fare are graduated by law so that the luxury of a carriage ride is indulged in by all classes.

There are many popular places for excursions around the coast and in the interior of Oahu, but there are none to excel the ascent up Nuuanu Valley to the Pali in the weird scenery, approaching Yosemite in grandeur, or, for bracing air and smooth roads, the drive to Waikiki. Waikiki is the Long Branch of the islands, with its perfect beach and fringe of cocoanut and palm trees. It is a far more delightful place, naturally. Here may be enjoyed the most luxuriant bathing, the water being at the right temperature all the year round. Distance, three miles.

THE ROYAL HAWAIIAN BAND.

This band of musicians was organized in 1871 by the present leader, Prof. H. Berger, and is composed entirely of natives. It is a uniformed body of thirty-four members, supported by the government, and, besides playing on the occasion of all celebrations, State affairs, receptions, etc., it regales the general public with its melodies twice a week in the pretty Emma Square, or the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, and frequently gives extra entertainments on moonlight evenings—a most delightful treat. Out of a purely raw material, by the skill, perseverance and energy of the genial professor, has been created a band of musicians of world-wide celebrity. Their work exhibits marvelous precision, expression and unanimity, and their performances are of uniform excellence by constant practice. New features are continually being added to their repertoire, and the institution is the boast of all residents of the islands. It is sustained at a comparatively small expense, when it is considered what an important auxiliary it is to the attractions of the city. Following is a complete list of the members and their respective instruments:—

IOLANI PALACE

(Her Majesty's residence) occupies the large block bounded by King, Palace Walk, Richard and Likelike Streets. The palace was completed in 1883, at a cost of $340,000. It is built of brick (cemented) from designs by Baker, remodeled by C. J. Wall, and covers an area of 140x100 feet. It is 84 feet high, having two stories and a basement, and 40 rooms. Its interior is arranged on a grand scale, being finely finished in Kou and Koa (native) wood and gorgeously furnished. Special features of the house are the grand stairway and the picture gallery, which latter contains many works of art.

ALIIOLANI HALE

(Government House) occupies the block surrounded by King, Queen, Music Hall and Punchbowl Streets. It was built by day labor under the direction of Mr. Robert Stirling, for the government, and cost $200,000. Concrete blocks were the material used. All the government officials, as well as the judiciary, find ample accommodations in the building. It is a beautiful edifice externally, surrounded by a large, well-kept lawn and garden. This lawn is in front of the Aliiolani Hale, where the celebrated statue of the great Hawaiian king, Kamehameha, has been placed. Within the building spacious rooms, handsomely furnished, are at the disposal of the officials. The legislative hall and supreme court room are lined with a gallery of portraits of illustrious Hawaiians.

THE QUEEN'S HOSPITAL

Occupies a tract of about 40 acres at the base of Punchbowl, erected in 1860 and endowed by Queen Emma. It is a noble charity, deserving the highest commendation. Its grounds are among the finest in the world, the approach to the building being through a magnificent avenue of royal palms.

THE LUNALILO HOME,

For aged Hawaiians, founded by King Lunalilo, is located in a large and exceptionally fine and convenient building, in Makiki Valley.

HAWAIIAN OPERA HOUSE.

Located on King Street near the Government House. Built in 1882 (from designs by C. J. Wall), of brick, at a cost of $40,000. In interior arrangements it resembles the favorite Bush Street Theater of San Francisco, though on a larger scale. It will accommodate 1,000 people, using other seats besides the fixed patent iron chairs. The theater has a graceful interior, excellent acoustic properties, and a view of the stage may be had from any part of the house. It has a full set of stock scenery and all the appurtenances of a first-class theater.

OAHU PRISON,

Popularly known as "The Reef," was commenced in 1857 by Kamehameha III, and opened for the reception of guests during the reign of Kamehameha IV. It contains 102 cells, six of which are set apart for women. With two persons to a cell, the prison will accommodate 204 prisoners.

OAHU INSANE ASYLUM.

The number of patients treated during two years, ending March 31, 1892, was 147; 123 male and 24 female. Discharged, 55; died, 16; escaped, 1. Number remaining March 31, 1892, 75. Rich Oliver, M. D., medical superintendent.

HONOLULU FIRE DEPARTMENT.

During the two years ending March 31, 1892, there were 97 alarms, of which 62 were bell alarms and were responded to by the department.

Losses by fire aggregated $182,729.57, of which $69,122.38 was paid by insurance companies.

During the period the department did 153 hours 14 minutes work at fires, and 106 hours 45 minutes at drills.

The expenses for the two years were $37,583.97.

HONOLULU ELECTRIC LIGHT.

The number of incandescent lights in use March 31, 1892, was 743; arc, 101. Mr. John Cassidy inspector.

HONOLULU WATER WORKS.

The total expenditures to March 31, 1892, were $767,752.98, and the total receipts $685,923.61, leaving the actual cost of the system to date $81,829.37.

CUSTOMS.

The annual report of the Collector General of Customs for the year ending Dec. 31, 1891, shows the value of imports at Honolulu for that period to have been $6,887,620.58, out of $7,439,482.65 for the whole kingdom. The exports for the same period for the kingdom were $10,258,788.27, showing an excess of exports of $2,819,305.62.

The number of registered Hawaiian vessels is 51, with a tonnage of 13,430.

The number of vessels entered during 1891 was 311, registering 274,852 tons.

Total arrivals of passengers and immigrants, 9,972; departures, 5,007. The customs receipts were $732, 594 93.

THE OAHU RAILWAY.

This road has been extended to Ewa Plantation and is in first-class condition, both as regards road bed and rolling stock. Its volume of both passenger and freight traffic has maintained a steady growth, and the company may be said to be in a very prosperous condition. Its property at Pearl City is gradually being disposed of to people of means who are building residences on the beautiful sites secured. When this fine opportunity to secure suburban homes is fully appreciated, Pearl City will become to Honolulu what Oakland is to San Francisco.

TRANSPORTATION.

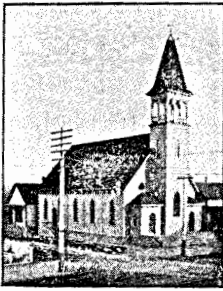

Communication between Honolulu and the various islands of the group is maintained by two principal lines of steamers, viz., those of Wilder's Steamship Co. and the Inter Island Steam Navigation Co. By one or other of the fine steamers of these companies, passengers or freight are transported regularly and promptly to all parts of the kingdom. The chief point of interest to tourists is, of course, the volcano of Kilauea, a plain, practical description of which, together with some points as to how to reach it, will not be out of place here.

HALEMAUMAU.
(THE HOUSE OF EVERLASTING FIRE.)
THE CRATER OF KILAUEA.

THE VOLCANO OF KILAUEA. \

WHAT IT IS.

Kilauea is the greatest active volcano in the world. It is not in the form of the standard geography volcano, a cone vomiting fire, smoke and lava, but is a great sink, 3 miles in diameter, in a plain, with nearly perpendicular walls varying from 300 to 600 feet in height, which in places are broken by debris slopes. The bottom of the sink, or "floor of the crater," is a mass of gnarled, twisted, black lava, comparatively level, and gradually rising to a central point of main action. The depth of the crater has varied during the past 50 years from 600 to 1,200 feet, the variation being caused by the alternate overflow of liquid lava upon the floor, the upward thrust of the imprisoned lavas beneath, the subsidence of the floor under the accumulated weight of successive overflows, and the drawing off of the lava beneath the floor, leaving it unsupported, and the consequent falling in of the floor. These subsidences, or breakdowns, occur at irregular intervals of from four to ten years. The distance fallen is from 100 to 600 feet; generally about 500 feet, and the area involved from a few acres to the whole floor of the crater. The area which has most often fallen in has been about half a mile in diameter.

The action of the volcano is unique, in that it is non-explosive. The main action is usually in a lake or lakes of molten lava, varying from a few hundred feet to half a mile in diameter. In these lakes the lava is continually boiling in a furious manner, throwing up jets and fountains of lava to a maximum height of 75 feet, dashing against the banks in fiery waves and throwing up clouds of molten spray, making one of the grandest, most awe-inspiring sights on earth. The lake can usually be approached to within a few feet without special danger. The lakes are visited by thousands of visitors; but no accident to a visitor has ever occurred.

The last breakdown occurred in March, 1891, when an area of a half mile in diameter, upon which a hill 200 feet high was located, fell in, leaving a pit 500 feet deep. This has now, July, 1892, filled up to within 200 feet of the level of the floor, and contains a magnificent lake a quarter of a mile in diameter, which is constantly in violent action.

WHERE THE VOLCANO IS.

Kilauea is situated at an elevation of 4,000 feet, on the southern slopes of Mauna Loa, on the island of Hawaii, about 200 miles from Honolulu, the capital city. It is fourteen miles in a direct line from the sea, and 30 miles from Hilo on the north, and Punaluu on the south, the two ports at which tourists land to visit the crater.

HOW TO GET THERE.

There are two ways of getting to the Volcano. One is by the Wilder's Steamship Co.'s 800-ton steamer Kimau, which leaves Honolulu every ten days, and, touching at Maui, runs around the northern coast of Hawaii, to Hilo. At Hilo there is a fair hotel, kept by Mr. J. Vierra. There is a good carriage road through sugar cane fields, magnificent tropical jungles and fern tree forests for a distance of fourteen miles. For the present, the remaining sixteen miles to the crater have to be made on horseback over a fair trail. The government is extending the carriage road through the woods, and it will probably be completed to the Volcano within a year.

The other route is by the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company's 700-ton steamer W. G. Hall, which leaves Honolulu every ten days, coasting along Maui and the southern coast of Hawaii to Punaluu. There is a fair hotel at Punaluu, owned by the Volcano House Company. The trip up from Punaluu is a ride of six miles over a plantation railroad, and a stage ride of twenty-four miles over an average country road.

Each route has its advantages. The coast on the Hilo side is a succession of cliffs from 100 to 1,500 feet high, over which scores of waterfalls fall into the sea. The cliffs are seamed with numberless canyons and valleys running back into the mountains, and everything is covered down to the water's edge with tropical vegetation.

The Punaluu route is usually through smoother water, and is along the scene of more recent volcanic action, hundreds of black lava flows marking the steep sides of the mountains where they have run down the steep sides into the sea. The last great flow was in 1886. Captain Cook's monument at Kealakekua is always an object of interest.

ACCOMMODATION AT THE CRATER.

Until 1891 the hotel accommodation at the Volcano was that of a rough mountain house. A local corporation has recently erected a fine building, with parlors, reading and billiard rooms, and accommodations for seventy-five guests. The natural sulphur steam is led into bath houses attached to the house. A good stable is also a part of the establishment. The hotel is located in the edge of a magnificent tropical forest, extending for many miles up the mountains, and on the verge of the great crater, within full sight of the fires of the pit. The light from the flows is sometimes so brilliant that fine type can be read at night on the hotel verandas. A number of miles of beautiful drives to various points of interest have been constructed, and they are being extended. The climate is cool and bracing, the tops of Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea, covered with perpetual snow, being only thirty miles distant.

C. E. WILLIAMS,

EXPENSE OF GETTING TO THE VOLCANO.

Several methods of visiting the Volcano, involving different expenditures, may be followed.

1. The Oceanic Steamship Company issues tickets in San Francisco, covering all traveling and hotel expenses to and at Honolulu and the Volcano, involving a five weeks' absence from San Francisco, for $225.

2. A round-trip ticket from Honolulu to the Volcano and return, going up and returning by the same route, can be bought in Honolulu via either the Hilo or Punaluu route, involving an absence from Honolulu of one week, for $50.

3. A round-trip ticket going up by way of Punaluu and returning by way of Hilo, involving an absence from Honolulu of ten days, costs $70.

4. A round-trip ticket going up by way of Hilo and returning by way of Punaluu, involving an absence from Honolulu of fourteen days, costs $80.

An unlimited stop-over is allowed on all tickets. Volcano Hotel rates are, transients, $4.00 a day; to ticket holders stopping over, $3.00 a day.

THE ROYAL HAWAIIAN HOTEL

Was built by the government in 1871, and has since been maintained as a first-class hotel. With twelve cottages, it occupies an entire block of about four acres, fronting on Hotel Street. The main building is three stories in height, each floor being surrounded by a broad veranda, and in all its appointments is strictly modern and first class. In the grounds in front of the hotel is the fine new pavilion band stand, lighted by 160 electric lights, where the Royal Band gives concerts upon the arrival of every steamer, for the benefit of the guests of the hotel. All Honolulu is proud of the hotel and the band, and upon the evenings of these concerts the grounds are alive with people, for whose convenience the genial manager has provided a large number of comfortable benches.

Mr. Hamilton Johnson, the manager, is an old and well-known hotel man, who knows exactly what a guest wants and sees that he gets it.

For elegant rooms, well-supplied table, prompt and polite service and solid comfort generally, the Royal Hawaiian is hard to beat.

In connection with the hotel Mr. Johnson manages the Waikiki Villa, a beautiful summer resort on the beach at Waikiki, about three miles distant. The road to Waikiki is the favorite drive for all Honolulu, being for the whole distance a macadamized street lined with cocoanut groves, palm trees and all the wealth of tropical plants and flowers, surrounding beau-

THE EAGLE HOUSE

Is situated a few blocks from the business portion of town, on one of the most beautiful drives in the city,—Nuuanu Avenue.

The building is two-storied, with wide verandas on all sides on both floors. Around the house are several cottages, in lovely, well-kept grounds, containing a profusion of flowering tropical foliage. The air in this part of town is delightfully cool, as it is in direct line with the pali, which is the only break in the high chain of mountains dividing the island in the center, so the cool wind continually blows down the valley, tempered by the time it reaches here to gentle zephyrs.

The Eagle House is quiet and homelike, and has all conveniences necessary to insure comfort and pleasant accommodation.

In connection with the Eagle House is a down-town branch, called the

ARLINGTON HOTEL,

Which is centrally located in the business portion. On the ground floor is the dining room, which is open to the public as a transient boarding place without lodging, or, if rooms are desired, the upstairs contains a large number of handsomely furnished apartments, fitted up with electric lights and stationery washstands.

The terms at either of these houses are: For board and lodging $2.00 per day, $12 per week, with special monthly rates.

THE HISTORY

Of the Drug Business is very interesting, and if told in full or in part would fill pages.

A century ago the life of a druggist was just one degree more cheerful than that of an undertaker, from the fact that he sold drugs, drugs,—nothing more.

Compared with the druggist of this age, what a contrast presents itself. A druggist of to-day, providing he belongs to the "modern school," not only keeps drugs and chemicals, but a large assortment of proprietary medicines. He does not stop at this, but upon his shelves may be found elegant assortments of perfumes gathered from English, French, German and American laboratories. One may expect to find the finest and choicest of soaps upon his counters. Sponges from the Mediterranean and from Florida meet and mingle here. Toilet Articles which are modern, unique and thoroughly applicable for the purpose for which they are intended. Of Spices and extracts of delicate flavors, such as vanilla, lemon, etc., the "modern druggist" generally keeps a good assortment.

If an epidemic rages, it is of the "modern druggist" that you obtain your disinfectants.

If your eyesight fails you, it is he who provides you with eye-glasses. He can supply you with a large assortment of infant's foods, and other requisites pertaining to the younger members of the family. In fact his stock in trade is "multitudinous" in the extreme.

It is the untiring endeavor of Hobron, Newman & Co. to merit the distinction of being "modern druggists." To this end they have secured the co-operation of many of the largest firms in America, England and Germany, thereby representing same, as agents for and headquarters for their lines of goods, among which are:—

Merck's Chemicals,
Hood's Sarsaparilla,
California Fig Syrup,
Caloric Vita Oil,
Cuticura Remedies,
Nestle's Infant Food,
Perry Davis' Pain Killer,

Colgate's Soaps,
Lundborg's Perfumes,
Parke Davis & Co. Preparations,
Wyeth & Bros.' Preparations,
Boerick & Runyon's Remedies.
Humphrey's Remedies,
Pond's Extract, Etc., Etc.

THE ROYAL HAWAIIAN HOTEL,

HAMILTON JOHNSON, Manager. .

This Hotel is one of the leading architectural structures of Honolulu. The grounds upon which it stands

Comprise an Entire Square of about Four Acres,

Fronting on Hotel Street. This large area affords ample room for a lawn and beautiful walks, which are laid out most artistically with flowering plants and tropical trees.

There are TWELVE PRETTY COTTAGES within this Charming Enclosure,

All under the Hotel management. The Hotel and Cottages afford accommodations for two hundred guests. The basement of the Hotel contains

The Finest Billiard Hall in the City.

The main entrance is on the ground floor, to the right of which are

ELEGANTLY FURNISHED PARLORS.

A broad passageway leads from the main hall to the dining room. These apartments open onto broad verandas, where a

MAGNIFICENT VIEW OF THE NUUANU MOUNTAINS

May be seen through the wealth of tropical foliage that surrounds the balconies. The fare dispensed is the best the market affords, and is first-class in all respects. Hotel and Cottages are supplied with pure water from an artesian well on the premises. The Clerk's office is furnished with the Telephone, by which communication is had with the leading business firms of the City.

Every Effort has been made and Money Lavishly Expended,

Under the present able management, to make this establishment

THE MODEL FAMILY HOTEL,

A reputation it now enjoys and most justly merits.

UNDER THE SAME MANAGEMENT IS THE

WAIKIKI VILLA

On the famous beach at Waikiki. All tourists acknowledge this to be one of the Most Delightful Summer Resorts in the world. Surrounded and covered by palm groves and the most luxuriant of tropical vegetation, it is an ideal retreat for the weary traveler or business man who wishes quiet and repose.

The Popular Route to the World Renowned Volcano of Kilauea.

To the Traveling Public.

The popular, most comfortable and picturesque route to the

“CRATER OF KILAUEA”

Is by the Inter Island Steam Navigation Company's Steamer
“W. G. Hall,” which leaves Honolulu on Tuesday and Friday of each alternate week.

The superior advantages of this route over all others is that most of the trip is made in smooth water, and the whole distance from the landing at Punaluu to the Volcano House is made by Rail and Carriage.

Through Tickets to the Volcano and return are furnished for Fifty Dollars ($50.00), which includes all expenses during the trip, and allows three nights and two days at the crater.

KOHALA, H. I., MARCH 17, 1892.

MR. S. B. ROSE, Agent,

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York,
Honolulu, H. I.

DEAR SIR—Your favor of 9th inst., enclosing Company's check on First National Bank of New York for $424.35 is at hand. Five years ago I received from the Old Mutual $2,394.70, same being in settlement of a matured endowment. I decided to invest the money in insurance, and, having tested the Mutual before, I made application for $5,000.00 insurance on the five-year distribution plan. The policy cost me $2,680.00 paid up for life. I have enjoyed the protection of the insurance, and now, when I need a little money, in order to send my boy to school in California, I am notified by the Company, that my money invested five years ago has earned $424.35, which I can draw in cash. I am happy to think that I took the policy you advised five years ago, and wish you would say to your Company that I am pleased with the policy, pleased with the dividend and pleased with the Grand Old Mutual.

Very truly yours,

R. H. ATKINS.

The Most Popular School on the Pacific Coast.

THE design of this institution is to impart to persons of both sexes a practical and useful Business Education. Young men are thoroughly fitted for Bankers, Merchants, Bookkeepers, Cashiers, Shorthand Writers, Typewriters, Clerks, and Salesmen by our great system of Actual Business Training. By this system the pupil receives while in school the same practice in conducting business affairs that he would in a bona fide Bank, Office, or Counting House.

THE SCHOOLROOM AND COUNTINGROOM

Are united upon a plan that secures to the student all the practical advantages of each. There is in operation a Banking House, with Checks, Drafts, Notes, Bills of Exchange, Certificates of Deposit, etc., fully illustrating the Banking Business.

INSTRUCTION FOR LADIES.

Ladies are admitted into all the departments of the College on the same terms and conditions as young men. Their progress in all branches thus far has been most flattering.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

Pupils can enter the college at any time and pursue their studies to graduation, without interruption, if they see fit to do so. Pupils not sufficiently advanced for the Business Course can enter for instruction in the English Department.

Modern Languages, Shorthand, Typewriting, and Telegraphy are optional studies, and may be taken or not, as the student may see fit, but no extra charge will be made for them when pursued.

The discipline of the school is very careful, in order to impart such habits as shall conduce to the future success of graduates.

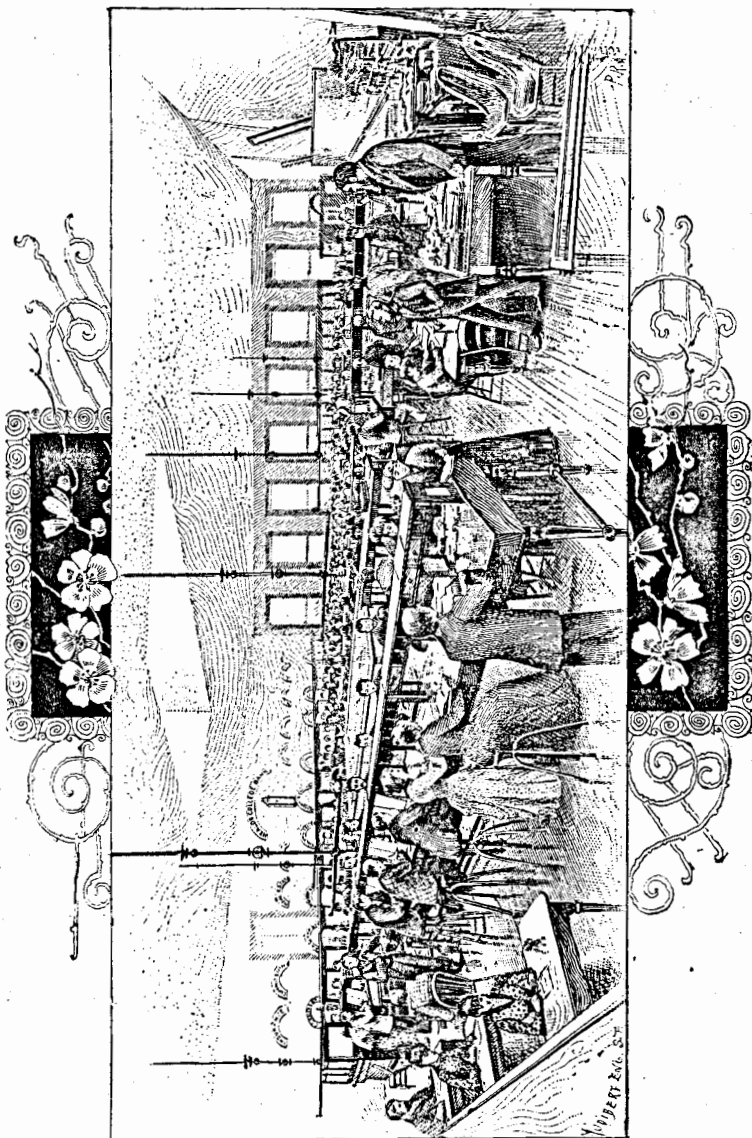

Visitors will be always welcome at the College, as we are pleased to have the public inform itself of the merits of our school.

There is no extra charge for any study taught in the college; everything is included under one tuition fee of $75.00 for the six months' course.

Further Information.—Full particulars regarding the school and its workings may be had at the office of the College, 24 Post Street, or by addressing

A TRIP TO HAWAII.

A trip to the Hawaiian Islands from San Francisco in one of the Oceanic Company's United States and Royal Mail steamships is, perhaps, the most enjoyable in the whole possible range of sea excursions. The distance, 2,100 miles, is invariably covered by these superb vessels in seven days. A three thousand ton steamship, fitted with every modern convenience, and capable of running sixteen knots an hour, sails twice a month from the Oceanic Company's wharf, foot of Folsom Street, San Francisco, for Honolulu, and returns at similar stated intervals, thus giving practically a fortnightly steamer service between the Pacific Coast and the Hawaiian Islands.

In addition to the local service, the Australian mail steamer sails every fourth week from the Oceanic Company's wharf for Auckland and Sydney, calling at Honolulu en route. This sailing every month, combined with the local boat, affords tourists and business men two opportunities of visiting the Hawaiian Islands every four weeks. The Australian mail boat also calls at Honolulu on its return from the Colonies, so that the facilities for getting back from the Hawaiian Islands equal those for visiting them.

The departure of the Australian mail steamship is regulated by the arrival at San Francisco of the English mail for the Southern British Colonies, but the most unvarying punctuality in sailing and arrival is observed with the local boats. The Hawaiian mail is put on board a few minutes before sailing hour—at twelve noon in winter and two o'clock p. m. in summer, as the season may be—and, prompt upon the stroke of the hour, the lines are cast off, the gang plank is withdrawn, and the noble ship glides into the stream to begin her voyage.

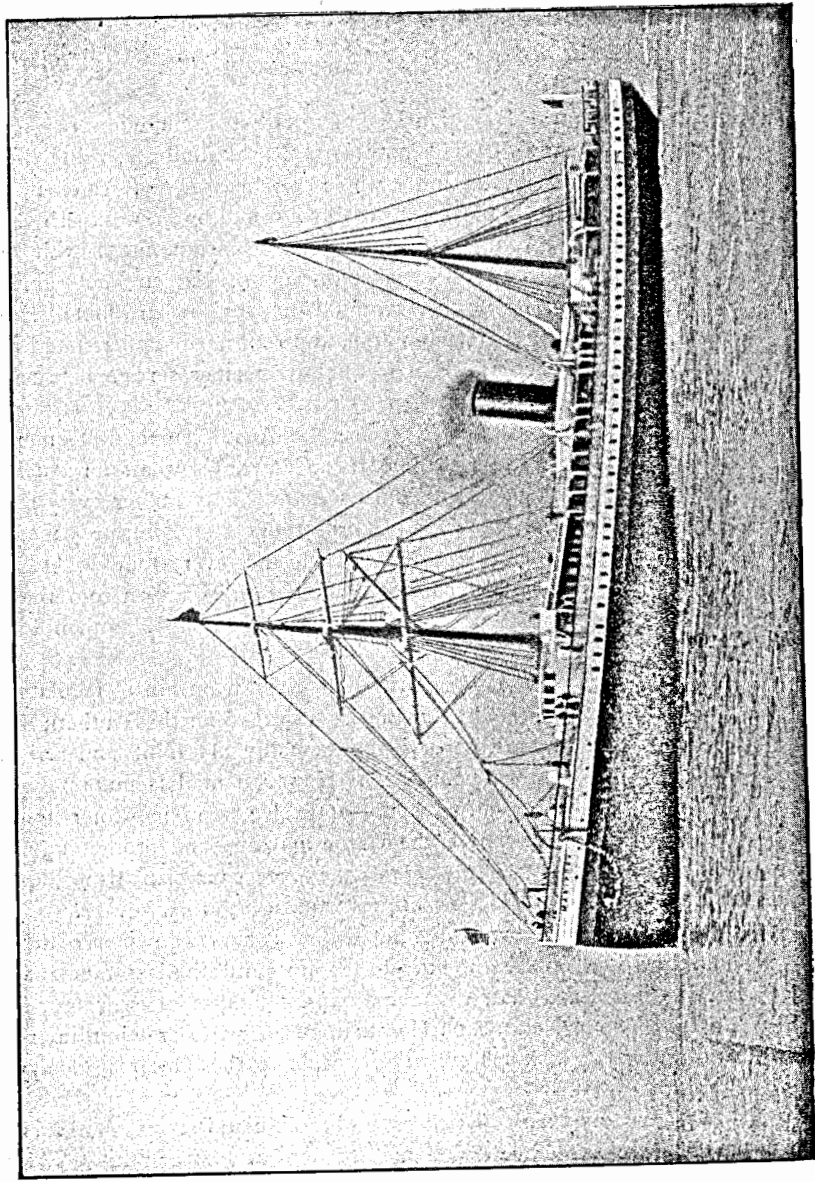

The sailing of the Honolulu steamer is always an event of interest to scores of people, who crowd the ship until the last moment, and afterward line the wharf to catch a parting glimpse of their friends on board. The arrival of each Hawaiian steamer also draws an interested and apparently anxious crowd of people to the Oceanic Company's wharf.

First-class excursion tickets to Honolulu and return, good for three months, are issued by the Oceanic Company at reduced rates. Through passengers to and from Australia have the option of staying over at Honolulu. Those coming from the Colonies may continue their voyage to San Francisco in one of the local boats without waiting for the next through steamer. This privilege gives an interval of nine days, during which the famous volcano of Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, may be visited, together with all points of interest in and adjacent to Honolulu. In like manner a through passenger to the Australian Colonies may take one of the local boats from San Francisco, and, having spent twelve most enjoyable days on the islands, can embark on the Australian mail boat at Honolulu, and resume his voyage to the antipodes.

A TRIP TO HAWAII.

The tourist who, for health or pleasure, comes so far West as San Francisco, and omits to visit the Hawaiian Islands, denies himself a rare enjoyment. He has crossed the American Continent by rail, and subjected himself to the inevitable weariness of an overland trip. True, he is repaid by the wonders of the West, but if he turn his back on the wonders of the tropics, so near and so accessible, he is not a thorough traveler. Granting him the wisdom of an experienced sight-seer, he secures passage to Honolulu, and continues his journey by the Oceanic Company's line to "The Paradise of the Pacific." Once on board he is installed in a roomy cabin, fitted with electric light and bell, and furnished with all the conveniences of a room in a first-class hotel. In an hour from the start, the noble ship has passed through the Golden Gate, and the voyager is on the blue Pacific, speeding towards Honolulu;

The voyage is pleasure sailing from beginning to end, day after day bringing fresh delights. Arrived at Honolulu, there lies before the tourist a most interesting and delightful study. He is astonished at the grandeur and luxuriance of the vegetation. The marvelous and ever-changing color of the opaline sea fills him with pleasure and wonder the soft and fragrant air, the refreshing showers which keep the landscape perpetually green, and the abundant streams of limpid water, thrill him with the realization that he is at last in fairyland.

BUSINESS COLLEGE

320 POST STREET,
Red Men's Building, Opp. Union Square,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

ESTABLISHED IN 1863.

THE FIRST COMMERCIAL SCHOOL ON THE COAST.

CONTINUES TO IMPART THOROUGH AND PRACTICAL INSTRUCTION IN

BOOKKEEPING, SHORTHAND, TYPEWRITING, TELEGRAPHY, PENMANSHIP, MODERN LANGUAGES, ENGLISH AND MATHEMATICAL BRANCHES, ETC.

By a Full Corps of Able and Experienced Teachers.

(OVER.)

PACIFIC

320 POST STREET,

Red Men's Building, Opp. Union Square,

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THE design of this School is to prepare its students for the practical duties of life. Since its organization in 1863, it has qualified a very large number of persons for a prosperous career in business pursuits. Its successful work may well entitle it to be ranked as

THE MODEL COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

The PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE has its graduates employed in the leading business houses of the entire Coast. The Institution supplies Mercantile Houses, Insurance Agencies, Banks, Railroad and Telegraph Offices, etc., with Book-keepers, Stenographers, Cashiers, Bank Tellers, Telegraph Operators, Clerks, Agents, etc., who invariably prove themselves to be fully qualified for the responsible positions which they occupy.

BRANCHES TAUGHT.

Single and Double Entry Book-keeping, as applied to all classes of business; Shorthand, Type-writing, Telegraphy, Business Penmanship, Commercial Arithmetic, Business Correspondence, Mercantile Law, Business Ethics, Science of Accounts, Actual Business Practice in all styles of Keeping Accounts, including Banking; English and Mathematical Branches, including Spelling, Reading, Penmanship, Grammar, Letter-writing, Word Analysis, Rhetoric, History, Philosophy, Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Surveying, Navigation, etc., and the Modern Languages.

ACTUAL BUSINESS TRAINING.

Our system of Actual Business Training, combining Theory and Practice, is at once so simple and natural that it needs only an examination of its merits to convince the most skeptical of its superiority over all other systems. No person of ordinary intelligence and application can go through such a course of training without becoming a thorough and practical accountant. Many of the most successful and influential business and professional men of the City and Coast may be numbered among our graduates.

LIFE SCHOLARSHIP, $75.

This is the only Business College in the State that issues Life Scholarships. As carried out at this Institution, they offer many advantages. A Life Scholarship entitles the holder to instruction in all the branches of the Full Business Course, as given in the "COLLEGE REVIEW," until he graduates, with the privilege of review whenever it may suit his convenience. We also issue Six Months' Scholarships for any or all the studies of the College at very reasonable rates. Students may pay by the month if they so desire.

INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION.

Individual instruction is given in all departments of the College. In the Business Course the class system is entirely discarded, except for lectures, general reviews, and practical exercises on the black-board. Thus each student receives all the advantages of private instruction, and is enabled to advance as rapidly as his ability and application will permit.

THE COLLEGE HALLS.

In all respects we have the finest school-rooms on this Coast. They are large, well ventilated, elegantly furnished, and command a splendid view of the City and its environs. Every apartment has a sunny exposure, and is flooded with light and with fresh, pure air. The ceilings are sixteen and a half feet in height; and the several rooms have thirty large windows, furnished with inside blinds.

NO VACATIONS.

We have no vacations and no term divisions. Day and Evening Sessions are held during the entire year. Day Sessions from 9 A. M. to 12 M., and from 1:30 to 4 P. M.; Evening Sessions from 7 to 9 P. M. Students may commence at any time and pursue their studies without interruption.

For further information call at the College Office, 320 Post Street, or send for "THE PACIFIC BUSINESS COLLEGE REVIEW," containing full particulars in regard to College Departments, Courses of Study, Methods of Instruction, Rates of Tuition, etc. Visitors always welcome.

ISLAND OF HAWAII.

HAWAII, the largest island in the Hawaiian archipelago, lies at the southern extremity of the group. Its central portion is in latitude  $19^{\circ} 30'$ , longitude  $155^{\circ} 30'$ ; the island is triangular in shape, having three well-defined sides. It is 100 miles long by 75 miles wide, having an area of 4,200 square miles, and embraces two-thirds of the area of the kingdom. The name of the group is taken from this island, the term "Sandwich Islands" being obsolete.

Hawaii, as are all the islands of the group, is of volcanic origin. There are, or, rather, have been, three great centers of volcanic activity: Mount Hualalai and Mauna Kea, now extinct, and Mauna Loa, having two active craters, one at the summit, 14,000 feet high, and the other, Kilauea, on the southern slope, at an elevation of 4,000 feet. Kilauea is the youngest of the Hawaiian craters, and probably did little towards forming the island. The other volcanoes, acting together or separately, built up the island with successive layers of lava; each crater formed one side of the island. The region between the craters is a table-land. From the summit of the volcanoes the surface slopes gently to the sea, and the great height of the mountains is not perceived. Mauna Loa is about 14,000 feet high.

A cross section of the island from east to west through Mauna Loa is represented below, the correct proportions being observed.

Some portions of the surface of the island consist of ancient lava fields, the lava glistening bleak and bare as when first vomited from the bowels of the earth; other sections are covered with the primeval forest; mammoth trees, giant ferns, creeping plants, and a wilderness of tropic vegetation are laced and interlaced together until a solid jungle exists.

The fertile portions are along the southern and eastern coasts, where copious rains usually fall and the trade breezes render the climate cool and bracing. The sugar estates are large and numerous. Hawaii produces over half of the sugar manufactured in the kingdom, the total crop of the islands for the year 1890-91 being 146,174 tons, of which amount 76,866 tons are credited to Hawaii. Coffee is beginning to receive attention. Coffee grows readily in all portions of the kingdom, and no cultivation is required. As a superior article can be raised, this staple will undoubtedly soon become a leading product.

The western coast of the island is dry, hot, and nearly rainless, and the traveler is sometimes troubled to find water; but at a small elevation the climate becomes cooler, and the absence of dampness, and the clear, bracing, sea-scented air, render a visit to this coast very enjoyable.

The population is scattered among the plantations and villages along the coast; the settlements form a fringe about the edge of the island, and, as a rule, no habitations are found after penetrating a few miles inland.

A road, or, rather, trail, encircles the island, but only in certain districts can wheeled vehicles be used. The island is nearly belted with a system of telephone lines, all the principal places being connected. Parties contemplating a journey around the island should provide themselves with strong clothes and waterproof garments.

As the shores of Hawaii are bathed in tropic waters, glowing with phosphorescence and peopled with flying fish and gaudily colored denizens of the deep, while the distant peaks are capped with everlasting snow, it follows that all kinds and conditions of climate can be found on the island. The upper table-lands have the climate of the temperate zone, and all the products of temperate climates there grow with wonderful vigor; in the lower belts the tropic fruits flourish luxuriantly. In the upper forests roam large numbers of domestic animals in a wild or semi-wild state,—horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, etc. Turkeys, geese, ducks, plover, quail, doves, etc., are also found in large numbers.

KILAUEA.

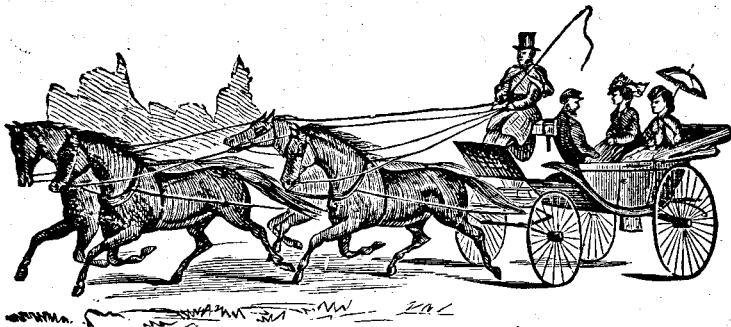

The crater of Kilauea is the greatest attraction the islands possess, and, in fact, it is one of the most impressive sights on the globe. The crater is situated on the southern slope of Mauna Loa. A carriage road is now being built from Hilo to the crater, and, when completed, will render a trip to the volcano a very easy undertaking. A portion of the way lies over pristine lava beds, piled in sublime confusion, rugged, broken, and crevasse-seamed beyond description.

The crater is about nine miles in circumference, the floor being 500 to 600 feet below the surrounding country. The active portion is confined to a lake of lava about 1,200 feet in diameter in the southern part of the crater. This lake is a

Ho! for the Volcano!

TOURISTS

Will do well to call on us if they wish a good team, with any kind of conveyance, or saddle horses for a single trip or for any length of time.

We are under contract with the Kilauea Volcano House Co. to carry all passengers to and from the Volcano and are thoroughly responsible. We make this trip a specialty, and will undertake to do it in first-class style and in any mode of conveyance desired.

Our carriages meet passengers on arrival of all steamers and convey them to any point desired at reasonable rates.

First-class Saddle Horses for Ladies or Gentlemen

ALWAYS ON HAND.

Volcano Stables

J. R. WILSON, Proprietor.

Hilo,

Hawaii.

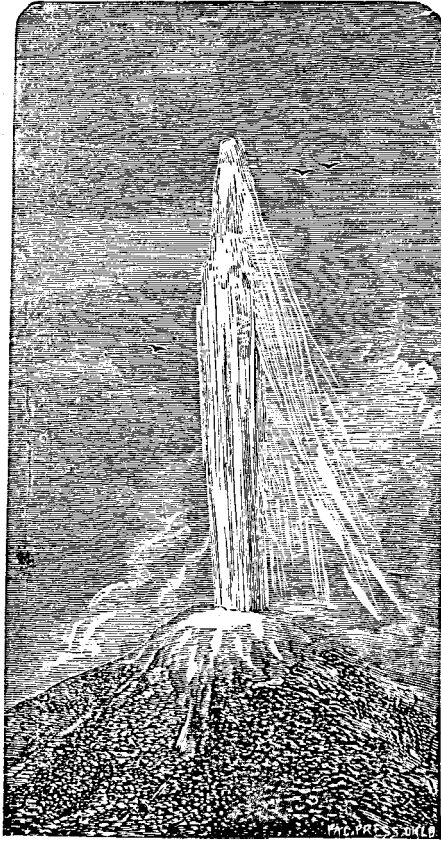

In connection with our stables we conduct the beautiful summer resort known as the HALF WAY HOUSE, where guests will be entertained for any length of time. It is situated at Olaa, on the Volcano Road, 14 miles from Hilo, at an elevation of 1,200 feet, and is surrounded by magnificent tropical scenery, though the air is cool and invigorating; an agreeable change from the warmer and more humid atmosphere of the valleys or coast.

We are also prepared to do draying, freighting, trucking or teaming of any kind, also contracting, road building, etc. We have ample storage for goods, and take charge of animals arriving by steamer.

J. R. WILSON, Proprietor.

Tourists to the Volcano met at railroad station with first-class conveyances on arrival of every steamer.

We are prepared to furnish all kinds of rigs or saddle horses, with or without drivers or guides, for trips through to Hilo or any other point on the island.

Horses may be taken or left at any point desired. All information desired as to points of interest or routes of travel will be cheerfully given whether you patronize us or not.

caldron of liquid lava, of unknown depth, the surface of which rises and falls, sometimes overflowing on the crater floor, sometimes falling into subterranean caverns. In the day the spectacle is not striking; but when the sable pall of night floats over the caldron, a transformation takes place, and the scene is without a parallel—beyond description—inconceivable.

Words are nothing; ideas are nothing; descriptions, comparisons, epithets,—all are nothing; nothing can express the infernal grandeur, the unearthly sublimity that rivets the very soul of the awe-struck beholder.

A visitor thus describes the scene:—

“Suddenly, just above, and in front of us, gory drops were tossed in air, and, springing forward, we stood on the brink of Hale-mau-mau, which was about thirty-five feet below us. I think we all screamed; I know we all wept, but we were all speechless, for a new glory and terror had been added to the earth. It is the most unutterable of wonderful things. The words of common speech are quite useless. It is unimaginable, indescribable, a sight to remember forever, a sight which at once took possession of every faculty of sense and soul, removing one altogether out of the range of ordinary life. There were groanings, rumblings, and detonations, rushings, hissings, and splashing, and the crashing sound of breakers on the coast, but it was the surging of fiery waves upon a fiery shore. But what can I write? Such words as jets, fountains, waves, spray, convey some idea of order and regularity, but here there was none. The inner lake, while we stood there, formed a sort of crater within itself; the whole lava sea rose about three feet; a blowing cone about eight feet high was formed; it was never the same two minutes together. And what we saw had no existence a month ago, and probably will be changed in every essential feature a month hence.

“What we did see was one irregularly-shaped lake, possibly 500 feet wide at its narrowest part, and nearly half a mile at its broadest, almost divided into two by a low bank of lava, which extended nearly across it where it was narrowest, and which was raised visibly before our eyes. The sides of the nearest part of the lake were absolutely perpendicular, but nowhere more than forty feet high; but opposite to us on the far side of the larger lake they were bold and craggy, and probably not less than 150 feet high. On one side there was an expanse entirely occupied with blowing cones and jets of steam or vapor. The lake has been known to sink 400 feet, and a month ago it overflowed its banks. The prominent object was fire in motion, but the surface of the double lake was continually skinning over, for a second or two, with a cooled crust of a lustrous gray white, like frosted silver, broken by jagged cracks of a bright rose color. The movement was nearly always from the sides to the center, but the movement of the center itself appeared independent and always took a southerly direction. Before each outburst of agitation there was much hissing and a throbbing internal roaring, as of imprisoned gases. Now it seemed furious, demoniac, as if no power on earth could bind it, then playful and sportive, then for a second languid, but only because it was accumulating fresh force. On our arrival eleven fire fountains were playing joyously round the lakes, and sometimes the six of the nearer lake ran together in the center to go wallowing down in one vortex, from which they reappeared, bulging upwards, till they formed a huge cone thirty feet high, which plunged downwards in a whirlpool, only to reappear in exactly the previous number of fountains in different parts of the lake, high-leaping, raging, flinging themselves upward. Sometimes the whole lake, abandoning its usual centripetal motion, as if impelled southwards, took the form of mighty waves, and, surging heavily against the partial barrier with a sound like the Pacific surf, lashed, tore, covered it, and threw itself over it in clots of living fire. It was all confusion, commotion, force, terror, glory, majesty, mystery, and even beauty. And the color! Molten metal has not that crimson gleam, nor blood that living light. Had I not seen this, I should never have known that such a color was possible.”

THE VOLCANO ABOVE THE CLOUDS.

On the summit of Mauna Loa, 14,000 feet above sea level, is another lake of molten fire, which at times overflows its walls, and devastating streams of lava, 20, 30, and 40 miles in length, sweep resistlessly to the sea. One of the last flows was in 1881, when a line of lava crept downward towards Hilo, fortunately stopping a short distance from the village. The last flow was in 1886, running from the top of the mountain through the district of Kau to the sea in three days. A visit to this crater involves a hard, wearying journey, and the ascent is seldom made. Of course, an almost frigid coldness is experienced at the summit, the elevation being nearly three miles. The cost of a trip from the Volcano House to this cloudland crater is about $35, the distance from Kilauea being 25 miles.

PLACES OF INTEREST.

Below is a list of the more notable or attractive points on Hawaii, which are arranged by districts. For a detailed description of these places, the reader is referred to the "Tourists' Guide through Hawaii," published by the Hawaiian Gazette Co., Honolulu. A visit to any of the places named will well repay one for the undertaking. Especially grand and striking scenery can be seen from the steamer when passing the Hilo and Hamakua coasts, but, as a rule, this part of the coast is traversed after nightfall.

MAUI.

MAUI, the second in size in the group, is not less important in many of its features than Hawaii, from which it is separated by a channel 26 miles wide. It has an area of 760 square miles, or 486,400 acres, and a population at the last official enumeration of 17,357 souls. Haleakala, its principal mountain, with the largest extinct crater in the world, having an area of 16 1/3 square miles, gives Maui an elevation of 10,032 feet, while the West Maui range of mountains reaches a height of but about 5,820 feet. The formation of this island is unlike Hawaii in that a low, sandy plain of an area of some 50 square miles divides the western range of mountains from East Maui. On the northwestern slopes of Haleakala the ascent is gradual and easily accomplished on horseback, while on the eastern and southern sides it is difficult to travel, being cut up with precipitous ravines and gulches, dense with forest growth. The scenery through the eastern part of the island possesses very much the same general characteristics that mark the peculiar tropical grandeur of windward Hawaii:

Maui is divided into four taxation or election districts, viz., Lahaina, Wailuku, Makawao and Hana. Lahaina, near the northwest point of the island, once the capital of the kingdom and the favorite rendezvous for whalers and traders, now devotes her energies entirely to sugar making, while Wailuku, on the east of the western range of mountains, until recently was aspiring to the title of the second city of the kingdom. Kahului, only three miles distant from it, of late years has been made a port of entry. A railroad connects the two, continuing on with branches to Paia, East Maui, and Spreckelsville. Kahului rejoices in a small harbor, and since the development of the sugar interests has had a number of vessels plying regularly with San Francisco and the Sound, and occasional vessels from the colonies with coal. Hana, at the eastern point of the island, also has a small and safe harbor against all winds but "northers." It is not a port of entry, but is in regular weekly steam communication with Honolulu. Other shipping points on Maui are but landings at open roadsteads.

The principal products of Maui are sugar, potatoes, awa, coffee and lumber, with some attention to stockraising and wool growing. The mills and cane fields are as fine as any throughout the islands, and compare favorably with any in the world.

Honolulu, Campbell Block, Corner Fort and Merchant Streets.

The main scenic points of interest on Maui are the famous Iao Valley and the great crater Haleakala.

THE IAO VALLEY.

"The Iao Valley penetrates the mountain chain just back of Wailuku, cutting it almost in twain. At the base of the mountain chain the valley is about half a mile wide, dotted with taro patches, and the plain, whitewashed houses of the natives who till the fertile soil. A mountain stream rushes down over large boulders and its bed of smaller stones, dashing along on its way to the ocean. It struck us as peculiar that the stones forming the bed and bank were all of a light gray color and hard as granite, so different in appearance and character from the deposits of decomposing lava on either side. As we approach the interior, the valley gradually narrows, the mountain-sides on either hand are more precipitous, human habitation disappears, and the whole face of nature as far as the eye can reach is wild and rugged in the extreme. Light fleecy clouds here and there veil the mountain peaks, whose bases are at our very feet, but whose lofty summits reach away up into cloudland, 'The Needle' seems as if torn from the side of the mountain near which it stands by some mighty convulsion of nature, and points its slender finger skyward like the lofty spire of some vast cathedral. Either the internal forces of nature that caused these grand upheavals, or the action of the elements since, or both combined, have formed many curious and interesting shapes in the rock-ribbed mountains that should be seen to be fully appreciated. Caves, deep gorges, fissures, spires, overhanging cliffs with their accompanying waterfalls, are all around us. Beyond, at the end of our explorations, we come to an oval depression in the valley, whose floor is below the level of the sea. It is supposed to be an old crater. Many speculations are rife concerning it, so unlike it is from anything else to be seen on the islands, or, perhaps, in the world. But its present rugged grandeur, unique and interesting as it is, cannot be disputed, leading one to pause and admire the infinite skill of the Great Architect, who hath made all things well.

"We notice that the surface of these great lava mountains is in an advanced state of decomposition, and the abundant moisture has induced vegetable growth, so that even the most precipitous of them are clothed with rich verdure to their very tops. The ferns, mosses, grasses and foliage, being sheltered on all sides, is, we think, more luxuriant in Iao Valley than at any other part of the islands. * * *

"Imagine, if you can, yourself standing on the edge of this vast pit, 'the largest crater in the world,' and looking down more than two thousand feet into the abyss below, its sides almost perpendicular and twenty-eight miles in circumference. From its uneven floor rise fourteen distinct cones or chimneys, some of them nearly 700 feet in height, but from where we stood they appeared less than 50 feet high, giving it the appearance of the ruins of some great city left in ashes. On the east and north are two enormous gaps, presumably the outlets for the lava of the last great flow. What must have been the scene when this mighty mountain was thus rent and a great sea of molten lava, ten miles in diameter, rushing, seething, roaring, dashing against its prison walls, ever rising higher and still higher as the pent-up forces of the internal world crowded the yielding mass of liquid fire out from its depths! Then there came a time when the rock-bound rim of this vast crater could no longer withstand the mighty pressure of millions of tons of molten fire rolling and surging against its walls, and then, with a roar like that of all the thunders of heaven's artillery at once exploded, the mountain bursts, and a mighty sea of fire rushes, with lightning-like velocity, down the mountain slope to the sea. Probably nothing more grand or impressive has ever happened on this planet, or anything executed on so grand a scale.

"When we arrived, the great pit was free from clouds, so that we could discern nearly everything in its great area, but in a few hours great masses of clouds came rolling in through the gaps we have mentioned, until the whole vast crater was filled with a fleecy billow. It was an impressive sight looking down upon this sea of clouds that enveloped the whole earth and her waters, save our own pedestal and the snow-capped peaks of Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa across the channel on Hawaii. We were impressed with the absolute silence of the place, and, remarking upon it, we all hushed our voices and made no sound—and there was perfect stillness, and for the first time it occurred to me that I had never before been in a place where there was absolutely nothing to make the slightest noise. I think this perfect quiet would become oppressive after a while if one was there alone."

The above is quoted from Henry M. Whitney's "Tourists' Guide," a very valuable and indeed indispensable book to tourists.

KAUAI AND NIIHAU.

KAUAI,

The Garden Island of the group, is divided from Oahu by the Kaieiewho Channel, some sixty-one miles wide; it is the most northerly of the Hawaiian Islands proper; has an area of 590 square miles, or 377,600 acres; is almost circular in form, with a well-wooded mountain range of nearly 5,000 feet elevation. This island is noted for its numerous streams, charming valleys, broad plains, picturesque cliffs, its waterfalls and splendid carriage roads.

Its central mountain peaks are probably older than any others of this group, and have been worn down by the elements of past ages until their outlines are all softly moulded and clothed with abundant vegetation and grand old forests. It is largely under cultivation of sugar and rice, and has many large grazing tracts devoted to stockraising and woolgrowing. The principal towns and landings of Kauai are Koloa, Lihue, Nawiliwili, Kealia, Hanalei and Waimea. Inter-island steamers ply regularly each week between Kauai and Honolulu.

HANAIEI VALLEY ON KAUAI.

Some of our more gushing visitors worship this valley as they would the real Paradise. Everyone who sees it is delighted. I certainly was impressed with its grandeur and beauty. It has every element to rave about, the magnificent pales, or mountain walls, towering to the very sky, whose slopes are one mass of feathery ferns, mosses, creeping vines, and many-hued tropical flowers, reaching from base to summit; the waterfalls dart from their mossy dells and dark mountain shades into the bright and sparkling sunshine, and are battered into fleecy spray by the resistant air, ere one is aware of their existence. The upper ridges are densely timbered. Many of the forest trees are very large. From the foot of the pale flows the placid Hanalei, through the golden rice fields stretching away on either side to the mountains, to the sea. This stream is navigable for three or four miles from its mouth. The valley where it opens on the Pacific is nearly three miles wide, but narrows gradually, so that five miles from the ocean a narrow gorge and a magnificent waterfall alone remain. The Hanalei, as seen from Haena Point, or the caves, as we approach the valley from the ocean, is the most beautiful landscape in the whole kingdom. It is easy of access from Hanalei Landing or by carriage from any point on Kauai.

Other interesting natural features of Kauai are the Spouting Horn near Koloa, the barking sands of Mana, Lumahai Valley, the caves of Waiokanaloa and Waiokapaloe, the mirage near Waimea and Mt. Waialeale, the central peak of the island.

ISLANDS OF MOLOKAI, LANAI AND KAHOOLAWE.

MOLOKAI AND LANAI.

These two islands, lying to the west and northwest of Maui, are almost wholly devoted to stock and sheep raising, Lanai being devoted to the latter and woolgrowing, and Molo-kai to cattle raising principally, with a limited area devoted to sugar culture. The eastern portion of the island contains several picturesque localities, while its noted palis, or precipices, afford views of remarkable grandeur. The leper settlement of Kalawao is in a natural walled-in valley on the north side of the island, accessible only by sea, save by a difficult trail down the Kalae pali. These two islands form one district, with a population of 2,614.

KAHOOLAWE.

This small, low island, to the southwest of Maui, is barren, save a few low shrubs, and uninhabited save by occasional sheep herders, to which industry the island has for some years been devoted.
