

Editorial Life.

O for a pen with Houghton's genius
To point the arrow of editorial life.
The ink, I know, is rather thick and old,
And yet, perchance, it may be franker still,
As some plain deal, a simple row or two,
Takes a new flavor in a French ragout.
BENE—A third story in a dismal row,
Where weary printers just at six o'clock
A dingy door with a rattling shut,
Hears of "Earnings," much adorned with "cents,"
Pens, paste and paper on the table strewn;
Books, to be read when the hours are tedious;
Pamphlets and tracts so very dull indeed
That only they who write them, ever read;
Nimble fingers touching them of every sort,
And one with money—just a dollar short—
Lies scattered round upon a common level.

Enter a false subscriber with a scowling brow,
"You ought not to pay for the thing," he'll say,
The place he names were not in the list;
Enough to know the hero of the piece
Or, "You know, change the gentleman's address!"
We'll send the paper, if the post will let it,
Where the subscriber will be sure to get it.
Who would be an Editor?—to write
The magic "No" of such enormous might;
To be so great beyond the mortal ken,
It takes the plural to express the man;
And yet, alas, it happens oftentimes
A mitre serves to number all his days;
But don't suppose him, here, any chance to be
An earthquake lacking in the simple "we".
In the close precincts of a dusty room
That once for hours to the lamp is lit,
There sits the man; you do not know his name,
Brown, Jones, or Johnson—it is all the same—
Scribbling away at what perhaps may seem
An idle's musing, or a dreamer's dream;
His pen runs rattling, like a straggling steed;
The "we" he writes seems very "we" indeed;
But mark the change; behold the wondrous power
Wrought by the Press in our country's hour;
Tonight, the harp is a man's rhymer,
The day before, the rhymer a man's dreamer;
The ministry dissolves that held for years;
Her Grace, the Duchess, is divorced in tears;
Both British and French, the army quakes;
The very King is to be crowned a clerk;
The Civil War, the very of the world's dream,
Thanks to the "we" of Johnson, Jones, or Brown!
Firm in the right, the John Jones should be
The tyrant's foe, the champion of the free;
Faithful and constant in his sacred trust;
Calm in his utterance, in his judgment, just;
Wise in his language, prompt and strong;
To spend the night, and to denounce the wrong,
So will be who shall stand true and free.
On Freedom's shore a weak and vain Press.

What is it to Love?
By CHAS. HAYES.
Love? I will tell thee what it is to me,
It is to build with human thought a shrine,
Where love she builds like a lecherous dove;
Where time seems young—and life is like a divine.
All India, all phantoms all things combine
To consecrate the sanctuary of love.
Above, the stars in shadowy beauty shine;
Around, the streams their flowery margins give;
And if there's Heaven on earth that Heaven is surely this.

Love's Aftermath.
It was late summer, and the grass again
Had grown knee deep; we stood, my wife and I,
A while in silence where the stream runs by;
Bully we seemed to be, and to be so we were;
Nug to a fair maid to a happy wifery,
Ah, me! dead days remembered tend to sigh,
And brought the tear-drop to my wife's blue eye,
"My spring is past," I said, "shall love remain?"
She moved aside—yet soon she answered me,
And her gaze turned responsive to mine own,
"Spring days are gone, yet the heart grows we see
Unto a goodly crop again both grown;
Dear love, just so love's aftermath may be,
A nobler growth than 'twere of spring days' love's known."

VARIETY.
It is curious that "Sons of Temperance" should be abbreviated to S. O. T.
"What is the interior of Africa principally used for?" asked a teacher of a pupil. "For purposes of exploration," was the reply.
"Ah, parson, I wish I could carry my gold with me," said a dying man to his pastor. "It might melt," was the consoling reply.
A countryman, giving his evidence in Court, was asked by the counsel if he was born in wedlock. "No, sir," he replied, "I was born in Devoevshire."
"Maria," said a pious husband, "thou wicked Smiths are allowing their children to set the dog on the yard on Sunday. To-morrow I'll set the dog on their chickens."
"Wisdom," quoth the sage,
"Cometh only with age."
"Fool!" quoth a goose,
"Then 'tis no use!"
"What is a conscience?" asked a schoolmaster of his class. "An inward monitor," replied a bright little fellow. "And what's a monitor?" "One of the ironclads."

HAWAIIAN GAZETTE

AN INDEPENDENT JOURNAL, DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

PUBLISHED AND EDITED BY HENRY M. WHITNEY.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 5, 1877.

Owing to the length of the article on "Our Sunday Laws," our EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE, No. 2, must be postponed until next week.

It affords us great satisfaction to say, that we believe the report of the discovery of gold on this island, to be without the slightest foundation. ...

The anniversary of the Recognition of Hawaiian Independence, on Wednesday last, was very generally observed by all classes of the community.

The Hawaiian Guards, companies A and B, paraded in the morning under command of Major Glick, and a salute of twenty-one guns was fired at noon.

We are very glad to report that this celebration was a great improvement over that of last year, in the comparative absence of drunkenness among the native population.

The good old Yankee festival of "Thanksgiving" was not forgotten on Thursday last by the American portion of our community.

The impression is systematically and constantly attempted to be produced, that no one in this enlightened age and country is in favor of any Sunday legislation, except certain narrow-minded and old foggy "missionaries" and a few of their ignorant and deluded native followers.

Let us now look at the law as it stands, and see wherein, if at all, it is faulty, and what improvements, if any, would be expedient.

Section 1 prohibits the serving or executing of any civil process on the Lord's day, and declares such service or execution void.

Section 2 prohibits the keepers of hotels, inns, billiard saloons, etc., and retailers of spirituous liquors, from entertaining persons other than travelers on the Lord's day.

Section 3 prohibits the keepers of hotels, inns, billiard saloons, etc., and retailers of spirituous liquors, from entertaining persons other than travelers on the Lord's day.

Section 4 prohibits the keepers of hotels, inns, billiard saloons, etc., and retailers of spirituous liquors, from entertaining persons other than travelers on the Lord's day.

Section 5 prohibits the keepers of hotels, inns, billiard saloons, etc., and retailers of spirituous liquors, from entertaining persons other than travelers on the Lord's day.

Section 6 prohibits the keepers of hotels, inns, billiard saloons, etc., and retailers of spirituous liquors, from entertaining persons other than travelers on the Lord's day.

definite and sweeping character of the language used in the law has, in times past, led to at least some cases of unreasonable annoyance and petty oppression, and furnished, if not a good reason, certainly a colorable pretext for a great deal of the opposition to the law.

Devil or Priest. The following incident which occurred a few days ago in the town of Zargosa, not far from Zaragoza, on the river Ebro, vividly illustrates one phase of the present religious condition of Spain.

Two days after, the family were watching by the corpse when the door of the room was suddenly opened, and a monster clothed in scarlet, smelling of sulphur and dragging a hairy tail, presented himself before the mourners, who fled in terror.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

On Monday last week, two men were killed at the Oomesa plantation by the falling of a hill side where they were engaged in digging.

A BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. Wm. Wright desires to sell out his blacksmithing business.

RECEPTION OF POSTAGE.

These interested parties will please observe that the United States Postage on newspapers to European countries, sent from the Hawaiian Islands, will be two cents, instead of three cents as heretofore.

IT WAS THE THREE BROTHERS.

It was the Three Brothers and not the Java which was abandoned will still be recalled. It is so seldom that the doctor has a chance to pick up an error of fact that we do not blame him for making the most of it.

LANDS FOR SALE.

Mr. E. P. Adams has received per Bark Courier, a large consignment of new and handsome furniture which he will sell at auction on Tuesday next at 11 o'clock A. M.

WE QUOTE AGAIN.

The most probable result of the continual importation of male Chinese into this country where the disproportion of the sexes is already so serious a matter, will be that somebody will "get hurt."

THE ADVERTISER OF DECEMBER 1ST.

Several communications referring to the "Compendium No. 1" of the Gazette have been received, but unfortunately, we are compelled to decline inserting them in this journal on the ground that they are too personal.

WE APPRECIATE THE COURTESY.

We appreciate the courtesy and good will of our neighbor. We suspect that personalities, and that, too, of a kind which a respectable journal had rather avoid, will be about the only answer that will be given to the communication concerning the "Medical and surgical monopoly at the Queen's Hospital."

THE DISCUSSION OF THE SUNDAY QUESTION.

The discussion of the Sunday question seems to have entered on a somewhat better phase. "Vox Populi" and that class of writers have either subsided or been suppressed by their more judicious friends, and in their place we have the letter of "Compendium" in the last number of the "Advertiser."

WHILE WE HAVE BUT LITTLE TO REPORT.

While we have but little to report for the week, we will not omit to mention a few of our conclusions, we are quite willing to recognize the fact that his communication is in the main, true from the ill-considered flings at other people, which has disgraced so much that has been written here on the same subject; and that it displays throughout, the language and temper of a gentleman.

MR. DUNN'S GIMMICK.

We have already on a former occasion, and in terms of commendation to the graphic class, and in terms of condemnation to the graphic class, and in terms of commendation to the graphic class, and in terms of condemnation to the graphic class...

THE MARCH QUESTION.

The merits and demerits of the March Question, and their desirability as immigrants for these islands, is a matter we have not felt called upon to discuss at any length, editorially. We have never seen any evidence which would lead us to suppose that there was any disposition among them to travel in this direction.

THE SURROUNDINGS OF QUERO.

Although the surroundings of Quero have been described in our paper, we have not yet had a full and complete description of the place, which we will now attempt to give.

Return of Captain Mast.

The above named gentleman arrived last evening by the Zealandia, from his mission in search of South Sea Islanders. He has a vessel now on the way to this port with a load of interesting cannibals of some kind but we were unable to learn the particulars. We shall see what they look like when they arrive.

By the Mail Steamer Zealandia.

Which arrived last evening, we have Sydney papers to November 10th, and Auckland papers to Nov. 21st, but no European or American news of any kind. A private letter dated Sydney Nov. 16th, says: "the cable is broken!" "again and there is no foreign news." We shall probably have nothing later until the arrival of the City of New York from San Francisco, next week.

THE MAIL FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

Per Mail Steamer Zealandia closes today at 11 o'clock.

STILL THEY COME.

In the schooner Minnehaha, we have one more addition to our coasting fleet. She is a new vessel of about 50 tons Hawaiian measurement. She will be put on the route between Honolulu and Malibu but her first trip will be to Laupahoehoe.

AMONG THE PASSENGERS TO WINDWARD.

By the Likie yesterday afternoon were His Hon. Judge Judd, His Excellency the Attorney General and W. O. Smith Esq. Public Prosecutor for Maui, who were going to attend the Second District Circuit Court.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

Honolulu, Nov. 30, 1877.

Rev. Dr. Hays,
President of Oahu Theological Seminary.

My Dear Sir—Having listened with extreme pleasure to the Address delivered by you on Thanksgiving Day, and being much struck with the originality and force and practical value of the Address, I have a desire, in common with others who were present, to see in print. Will you so far oblige us as to furnish a copy for publication?

Very respectfully,
JAMES M. COOK.

His Excellency J. M. COOK,
United States Minister.

Dear Sir—I thank you and the others concurring with me, for the approbation accorded to the Thanksgiving Sermon; and, according to your request, I take pleasure in herewith submitting the manuscript for publication. Yours, very truly,
C. M. HAYES.

DEPT. 310. "When thou hast eaten and art full, then shalt thou think of the poor, the needy and the stranger."—Leviticus 19:9.

I stood not long ago on Plymouth Rock and looked on the waters of the Atlantic over which the Pilgrim Fathers had come from England to found a new home in the New World. I stand to-day, midway these Pacific seas, and look back to New England, the old world, and here have I left my home in a similar work of Christian civilization in this Ocean World. However cordial the welcome extended to me as being a representative of the United States, I feel that I have been a witness to a great and noble work of Christian civilization in this Ocean World. left undone. Whenever the civilization of this or any community shall call itself finished, it will have reached the condition of the classical languages, or the dead languages, to the endowment of the national institutions, "the dead languages," they are most appropriately called. And when this world is finished, it will be buried up.

When thou hast eaten and art full," when you feel satisfied with the comforts and privileges you enjoy, then don't go to sleep, but—bless the Lord for the good land that he has given you. This land is the nation's under a deed of trust from the Great Proprietor, the Lord of All. Only a few months, and just on the verge of the harvest, says Charles Cook, visited these islands for his "Waltairian," and made known to the world their location and capabilities. What changes has the century witnessed!

straight forward goes
The lightning's path, and straight the fearful path
Of the cannon ball. Direct it lies, and rapid,
Showering that it may reach and shattering what it reaches.

My soul, the road a human being travels,
That on which blessing comes and goes, doth follow
The river's course, the valley's playful windings,
Curves round the corn field and the hill of vines,
Hounding the holy bound of property;
And thus secure, though late, leads to its end."

The onward flow of God's Providence is not always consistent with the curving course of human plans and purposes. There are, also, eddies in the stream; and we are carried around by the whirl which may be the result of our own error, or the error of others. But the end of the material prosperity countries with seasons of spiritual poverty. And in all our work we must expect periods of apparently arrested development, that really are only epochs of new creation in the life as planned by the Great Author of all life. The seed, long time buried in the dark cold ground; then bursts its encasement, and from deep the living germ shoots upward into light. The leaf expands, but the plant is not all leaf. The wondrous principle of the organism, which is the basis of development, and still other forms, until the trunk, the branch, the bud, the blossom mature in the perfect fruit. So it is with the human life. There are similar processes in human life. The human life has still more marked analogies to the natural life. Races and nations have their epochs of apparently arrested development, that really are only epochs of new creation in the life as planned by the Great Author of all life. Races and nations have their epochs of apparently arrested development, that really are only epochs of new creation in the life as planned by the Great Author of all life. The seed, long time buried in the dark cold ground; then bursts its encasement, and from deep the living germ shoots upward into light. The leaf expands, but the plant is not all leaf. The wondrous principle of the organism, which is the basis of development, and still other forms, until the trunk, the branch, the bud, the blossom mature in the perfect fruit. So it is with the human life. There are similar processes in human life. The human life has still more marked analogies to the natural life.
