THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Are situated in the Torrid and Temperate Zones just on the Tropic of Cancer. They extend from northwest to southeast between parallels of latitude 22 degrees 16 minutes and 18 degrees 55 minutes and are embraced between meridians 154 degrees 40 minutes and 160 degrees 30 minutes west from Greenwich. The important islands are eight in number, Niihau, Kauai, Oahu, Molokai, Maui, Lanai, Kahoolawe and Hawaii. Of these Niihau and Kahoolawe are principally devoted to grazing. This group is also known as the Sandwich Islands, a title given by Capt. Cook, but now in disuse except abroad.

THE CLIMATE.

The Territory of Hawaii is situated upon the Tropic of Cancer, the boundary of the Torrid and North Temperate Zones, and so possesses the happiest possible compromise between the climates of both. The asperities of the latter are softened by the balm of the former. Its sea-girt isles are fanned by the most delicious airs, while invigorating trade winds sweep its coasts, dispelling lassitude and languor. Extremes of heat and cold are read of by its people but not felt. The rigor of storms is tempered by the general placidity of the climate. Rain falls to an agreeable extent the year round, but is more copious in the winter months. On the slopes of Mauna Kea, Mauna Loa and Haleakala, whose summits are generally covered with snow, the climate is of a more invigorating character and the productions vary accordingly; corn, potatoes, etc., being raised in abundance. The lower latitudes are a panorama of green looking up to skies of the tenderest blue. Sunshine laughs in foliage and sympathetic showers are photographed in delicious bows against a kindred sky. The climate of Hawaii is a climate of rest, tranquility and of poetry. Under its influence passions are softened yet not extinguished, power subdued yet not paralyzed. It is not languorous enough for the lotus-eater; it is not enervating; it is rather recuperative. It affords a healthful rest from the sterner and calls into play the softer and tender emotions.

THE SOIL AND PRODUCTS.

The soil of the Islands is of decomposed lava enriched by vegetable mould. In the rainy sections such as Hilo and Hanalei it is exceedingly fertile. In dry sections it becomes equally productive by means of irrigation. A degree of acidity in some of the dry sections is corrected by proper fertilizers. There are many sections like Ewa where the soil is an accumulation of washes from the mountains which leave alluvial deposits of exceeding richness. Irrigation was formerly accomplished by ditches connecting with mountain streams and sources. Recently, more particularly on the Island of Oahu, the supply of water in great bundance has come from artesian wells, both flowing and pumping.

The staple product of the Islands is sugar cane. Soil and conditions are of the most favorable character for its yield and a scientific and intelligent direction of the labor and appliances necessary to its production have resulted in phenomenal yields per acre. Ewa Plantation, on the Island of Oahu, had an average yield of 11 tons per acre—the maximum reaching as high as 16 or 17 tons per acre. Mills of the highest type of invention and sugar machinery of equal merit contribute to an output unequalled by a like area anywhere else on the globe. The output for the season 1904 was as follows:

Hawaii	122,865	tons
Maui	77,985	"
Oahu	102,019	"
Kauai	64,606	"

Making a total of 367,475 tons

COMMERCIAL ADVANTAGES.

Hawaii has often been styled the cross-roads of the Pacific. The completion of the Isthmian Canal will justify and confirm this appellation beyond a doubt and its ports will receive additional rank and importance. Even now these islands furnish a trade and commerce with the United States of greater tonnage and value than any country except Great Britain, and this with the one staple industry of sugar. Coffee is as yet in its infancy as an industry though fairly through the experimental stage. The ports of entry are Honolulu, Hilo, Kahului, Mahukona and Koloa. Honolulu possesses a fine though small harbor. Hilo has a large open harbor and when proper breakwaters are completed for its protection and wharves line its shores, a steady stream of trade will ensue. By the time the harbor of Honolulu becomes inadequate for the demands of commerce, Pearl Harbor, a few miles distant, will be opened and the vessels of the world may ride in safety upon its broad bosom. As Hawaii is almost entirely given over to sugar cane, rice and coffee, nearly all of our breadstuffs, hay, grain and manufactured articles are imported from the mainland. The balance of trade being so largely in favor of the Islands divests commerce of its risk and uncertainty. Honolulu is peculiarly favored as a seaport. The distances are, to San Francisco, 2100 miles; to Yokohama, 3400 miles; to Sydney, 4410 miles; to Manila, 4890 miles. It is a geographical center between occidental and oriental coasts and is under American control. That the sagacious business men of the United States are sensible of the advantages possessed by the city of Honolulu augurs a fostering care and development of the same by the United States Government. This care and development will bring constantly to light newer and greater possibilities the expansion of which will inaugurate a future of reality beyond the dreams and visions of the past. Fine new and elegant steamers now make the trip to the coast a vacation of comfort and delight. That the voyage for most of the year is over a sea of tranquility untroubled by the storms of other oceans, is an inducement to visit our shores.

ISLAND ENTERPRISES.

Island enterprises are not confined to the production of sugar, rice and coffee. The Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company is engaged in freight and passenger traffic between Oahu and the other Islands. The Oahu Railway and Land Company has a railroad finely equipped from Honolulu to Kahuku, a distance of over 70 miles. This road was built through a waste of pasture land and lantana. It was deemed a wild and visionary scheme at first, but Kahuku, Waialua, Ewa, Oahu and Honolulu plantations attest the foresight and sagacity of its promoters. This led to the building of the Hilo Railroad connecting Hilo with the Volcano and Puna and traversing the rich Olaa plantation, the outgrowth of the enterprise. At present the road reaches from Hilo to within eight miles of the crater of Kilauea. It is broad gauge and up-to-date in every detail. A railroad is also in process of construction from Hilo to Hamakua. The route is through a rugged country, abounding in deep gorges, but when completed will tap many valuable sugar plantations, furnishing a direct outlet for their products to the coast via Hilo. A number of enterprises incidental to and as feeders of the sugar industry are in existence. Fruit and honey companies, stock and grazing companies are in a flourishing condition of prosperity. Under the head of enterprises may also be listed those enterprises not conducted for profit but established for the highest general good. An educational system of high merit provides for the education, churches for the morality and hospitals and charitable institutions for the relief of such as need them. The public school system culminates in a high school in Honolulu, and the private school system finds its best exemplification in Oahu College, St. Louis College and Kamehameha School also located in Honolulu. Fraternal societies are represented by four Masonic Blue Lodges, two Lodges of Odd Fellows, three Lodges of Knights of Pythias, two Lodges of Foresters, one of Red Men and one of Elks. The Queen's Hospital, established by Queen Emma, Lunalilo Home for aged and indigent natives, founded by Lunalilo and the Kapiolani Maternity Home, established by Queen Kapiolani, are most prominent among the local charitable institutions.

THE CAPITAL.

Honolulu is one of the most picturesque cities on the globe. It has beauty not derived from magnificent architecture, grand boulevards, shaded avenues or spacious parks. Yet it has charms of its own, charms almost impossible of description and not susceptible of analysis. There is scarcely a single feature which is not surpassed by other cities, but there is a harmony, a combination of the whole that renders it matchless. Embowered in foliage, with the accessories of light and shade framed in a setting of green hills it nestles at the sea a dream of beauty and a "joy forever." It is the beauty of a bouquet depending for its charm on the general blend rather than the individual loveliness. There is no city on earth where benevolence is carried to such extent and the hospitality of its inhabitants is known where the name of the city is known. No one comes here so unknown as to escape courteous notice. Every visitor is debtor for attention not purchasable with money. A trip to the Pali, a plunge in the surf at Waikiki and a ride up Tantalus are delights not readily forgotten. Cool lanais, moonlight rides and enchanting native songs bequeath a witchery to memory never effaced. Long after the tread ceases to resound on our streets will these scenes recur to recollection like a round of fairy enchantment.

TO THE OTHER ISLANDS.

The other islands have attractions for tourists, the most prominent of which are the Barking Sands of Mana, Kauai, Haleakala, an extinct crater, on Maui, and the crater of Kilauea, on Hawaii. All are reached by the I. I. S. N. Co. steamers. The crater of Haleakala has an altitude of 10,000 feet. It is the largest crater in the world, having a diameter of nine miles, and a depth of 2700 feet.

The crater of Kilauea, now active is situated thirty miles from Hilo. A gradual ascent over a fine road takes the traveler to the Volcano House, whose altitude is 4,000 feet, and which is located on the very edge of the crater. The crater is one of the finest sights in the world. It is on the flank of Mauna Loa, whose summit, over 14,000 feet high, is covered with perpetual snow. The road for the most part winds through a forest where nature seems to have exerted her utmost ingenuity in devising a tangle of trees, vines, ferns and creepers. Every rod is fresh surprise and every advance a new enchantment. Hilo, the point of departure on Hawaii for the Volcano is a typical tropical town. Sunshine and rain chase each other the year round and cover flowers and plants with crystal gems. The Volcano can also be reached from Honolulu by the steamer Mauna Loa, which lands at Punaluu, about the same distance from the Volcano as Hilo.

GOVERNMENT BAND.

Capt. Henry Berger, leader, headquarters Miller near Beretania.

This band, of which all Hawaiians are justly proud, was organized in 1871. Its average membership is 30. Professor Berger took the leadership in 1872 and has been its inspiration ever since. The band takes part, in connection with the military, in all state functions and the celebration of all holidays. Four grand concerts are given each week in the various city squares, to which no admission is charged.

PLACES OF AMUSEMENT.

THE HAWAIIAN OPERA HOUSE.

The Hawaiian Opera House is one of the most artistic ornaments of Honolulu. In its construction and furnishing no expense has been spared to produce a place of amusement equal in all its appointments to any in the United States. The stage is large and modern in every particular. The auditorium is very handsome, well lighted and well ventilated. It has parquet, dress circle and balcony, with four large and artistically furnished proscenium boxes, the seating capacity being about 1,000. There are two large double exits from the parquet and dress circle, and two from the balcony, making it possible to clear the house in four minutes. The erection of this handsome house makes the engagement of the best American artists possible, and Honolulu enjoys being in the circuit of all first-class companies going to the colonies.

THE ORPHEUM.

This popular place of amusement is the home of vaudeville and has been in successful operation about five years. The auditorium and stage are large and thoroughly up to date. It is operated by the Orpheum Stock Co., J. C. Cohen, manager.

STREET GUIDE

CITY OF HONOLULU

The following guide has been compiled for Husted's Directory of Honolulu partly from data secured in the canvass and partly from information furnished by Hon. Walter E. Wall, Surveyor of the Territory, and Augustus E. Murphy, Esq., official city numberer, to whom the publisher desires to express his high appreciation of their kindness and courtesy.

The guide will be found to give the local names of many alleys and lanes that have not been officially named. They are designated by Mr. Murphy by the proper number on the street from which they branch. Thus Cunha's lane is designated as 1714 Luzo or Lusitana and the buildings located on the lane are designated as 1714 a b c, etc., Luzo.

The numbering on King and Nuuanu streets is given and under Mr. Murphy's excellent system the numbers on all parallel streets correspond to these two so that in most cases it will be an easy matter to determine where a particular number is located on any street by placing a ruler across the map at right angles with the street and noting the corresponding number on King or Nuuanu av.

It will be noticed that there are a number of duplicates in the list. The publisher has thought best to retain them for the present until the official names and designations become established and generally known.

ISLAND OF HAWAII.

Island of Hawaii

This is the largest Island of the group, having an area of 4215 square miles, as compared with 2434 for all the others. For climate and scenic attractions it has not equal in the group. The crater of Kilauea on the flank of Mauna Loa is the great show place of Hawaii and one of the wonders of the world. As a producer of sugar it leads the group.

According to the report by the Sugar Planters' Association, the output for Hawaii for the season of 1892-3 was 122,865 tons; the total of all the other islands was 244,610.

A railroad is in operation from Hilo to Glenwood within 8 miles of the crater of Kilauea.

Another is projected through the North Hilo district, making Hilo the starting point and Hamakua and Kohala the terminus.

North and South Kona possess a most salubrious climate; and as these districts become more generally known, will, doubtless, attract the attention of many who seek change and convalescence. Their industries are already diversified; but each succeeding year brings with it some new departure. Kona coffee enjoys an enviable notoriety both in the islands and on the mainland. Fruits grown in these districts have a richer flavor than those raised on any other part of Hawaiian Territory, and their vegetables are unrivalled—both in size and quality. During the past two years the cultivation of vanilla has occupied attention, and the results already attained herald a "bonanza" for those who embark in this industry. A large tract of land has recently been planted in pine-apples, and an extensive canning factory is now in operation.

Business houses which handle the greater portion of the coffee output, are located in Kailua and vicinity; they are reliable and worthy of confidence; the different grades they pack for export, are as represented by samples, which are always furnished dealers on application. Very fine coffee is also grown on the highlands of North Hilo and Hamakua districts. In South Kona as well as in the last named districts may be found fruit trees in bearing, and all varieties of vegetables grow as though in their native clime and soil. In South Kona may be seen the Rhode Island greening, pairmané, in fact apples in great variety, olives, prunes, figs, dates, apricots, cherries, peaches, limes, oranges, almonds, and walnuts, varieties of grapes, Mexican plums, and all small fruits, such as currants, raspberries, strawberries, etc. All varieties of ornamental grasses and rare trees from every country. The pumpkin vine grows for two years and bears continuously.

ISLAND OF HAWAII.

Hilo, the commercial center of the island, has a fine harbor, as nature made it, but with some outlay may be made one of the finest of the world. Hilo Bay, that now forms the harbor, is beautifully surrounded, and is said to surpass in beauty the famed bays of the Mediterranean.

Hilo is destined in the near future to be a city of great importance as a railroad and shipping center.

Fine churches, free schools, two newspapers, a bank, electric light and refrigerator plants, well equipped livery and transportation companies, large wholesale and retail stores, as finely and fully stocked with choice and valuable merchandise as the large stores on the mainland, together with the large shipping interests of this port, and its enterprising business men, the natural resources and attractions all go towards the fulfillment of the above prediction.

Island of Maui

Maui is the second island in size of the Hawaiian group, with an area of 700 square miles or 400,000 acres, and has between 15,000 and 20,000 population, including Chinese and Japanese. The island consists of two circular volcanic groups of mountains, connected by a long, low, sandy isthmus about three miles wide. The western group is the smaller of the two, the highest peaks of which are but 5,820 feet. On east Maui stands Haleakala, an extinct volcano 10,032 feet high, on the summit of which is the largest crater on the globe, having an area of 16½ square miles.

Around the bases of these mountains, and sweeping down to the sea, are eleven sugar plantations, some of which are the largest and most productive on the islands, and others of which are as yet but "infant industries." One plantation produced this season 33,230 tons of sugar, being the largest amount produced by any on the islands.

Besides sugar, there are annually produced on Maui large crops of rice, taro and potatoes, the Kula variety of the latter, grown on the sides of Haleakala, being as fine a potato as is grown anywhere. The principal fruits grown on Maui are the mango, pineapple, lime, guava, papaya, avocado pear, fig, grape and orange.

Much of the natural scenery of Maui is beautiful beyond description, many points of which are annually visited by large numbers of tourists. The chief attraction of Maui is a visit to the summit of Haleakala, which is reached by a long, sinuous horse trail winding up the northeastern side. The view from the edge of the crater at sunrise of a clear morning is most marvelous, and the beauty is enhanced when the trailing clouds lazily float up the mountain side and lend their varying effects to the scene. The entire horizon is bounded by a vast circle of blue water, and by a singular optical delusion the ocean seems to stand far above the land which it surrounds, making the spectator feel somewhat as if he were standing in the bottom of a vast blue China tea cup. Rivaling Haleakala, is Iao Valley, the "Yosemite" of the islands. This stream has cut a deep gorge in the mountains of west Maui, emerging into beautiful Iao Valley a couple of miles from the sea. A horseback ride four or five miles up the canyon of the valley reveals the most beautiful and typical scenery on the islands. Standing far up the valley is the "needle" pointing its slim, spire-like finger far upward into the sky and producing a weirdly beautiful effect. Besides these, many minor scenes along the entire windward coast appeal to the eye for appreciative admiration.

Most of the animal life on the island is of imported origin. Wild peacocks, turkeys and goats are numerous on portions of the island, and doves, wild geese, ducks and plover, indigenous, perhaps, are more or less common. Cattle and horse raising is quite profitable.

Kahului is the seaport of the island, from which point most of the import and export trade is carried on, although considerable trade is carried on between Honolulu and Maui at the ports of Lahaina and Kihei. Last season over $6,000,000 worth of sugar was shipped from the island and over a million dollars of imports were received. This, of course, gives Kahului much importance as a shipping port.

The leading town on the island is Wailuku, situated at a point where the Iao river emerges from the canyon on an easy slope facing the sea and with mountains for a background.

The power plant for the electric light of Wailuku is at Kahului, so that both towns are lighted with electricity. In Kahului is also located the central office of the Kahului Railway connecting Kahului, Wailuku, Spreckelsville, Paia and Haiku.

Lahaina, at one time the capital of the islands, and a favorite rendezvous for whaling fleets, lies on the west side of the island, shut off from the rains of east Maui. It extends for miles along a beautiful sand beach, nestling under mango trees and coconut palms.

The cane lands on Maui are an eroded volcanic red dust with but little sand, no mineral, and very porous. Water is the life of the land, and is supplied largely by immense pumps which raise millions of gallons daily from near sea level. All the natural water supply available has been utilized by immense ditches, and the supply is largely augmented by tunnels run under the streams to catch the lower strata of waters which now escape to the sea underground.

ISLANDS OF KAUAI AND NIIHAU.

The island of Kauai is the most northerly and westerly of the group. It is twenty-five miles in length and twenty-two miles in breadth and contains a superficial area of 500 square miles. This island has appropriately been called "the Garden Isle." Geological investigation shows that it is the oldest island in formation of any in the group. The center of the island is mountainous, and bears the geographical name of Waialeale. From this mountain the land rolls in every direction towards the sea, the contour being gently rolling uplands and table lands. Those absolute requisites to successful settlement, wood and water—are there in abundance. The valleys are especially luxuriant. The island is at this time principally devoted to the cultivation of sugar, although in some sections rice is also very successfully raised. An experiment was made some forty years ago to raise coffee, but bad judgment was used and the enterprise failed. Since then capital has been timid, but as experience is obtained, and the cultivation of coffee is better understood, no doubt exists in many minds but that the island of Kauai will be found to be as well adapted to the raising of coffee as any other island in the group. Leaving the plain where the sugar cane is found growing luxuriantly, at the head of the Hanapepe gulch, as far as the eye can reach, waving fields of rice, home-like cottages and tropical gardens are to be seen. A majestic river flows through the valley, on one side of which vine-clad hills usurp the place of the rice fields, and on the other orange groves fill the land with a fragrant perfume. Garlands of fragrant blossoms, and beds of roses are everywhere.

The Hanalei Valley is beautiful beyond description. In approaching it from the sea, the steamer enters the channel between two high bluffs, and suddenly glides to an anchorage near the mouth of the river, from whence the valley in all its beauty and grandeur bursts upon you. The road to the center of the valley passes through the largest rice producing district in the islands. One might spend weeks in this delightful valley without exhausting its beauties and attractions. Other interesting natural features of Kauai are the Spouting Horn near Koloa, the Barking Sands of Mana, Luamahai valley, the Caves of Waiakanaloa and Waiakapalae, the mirage near Wai-mea and Mt. Waialeale, the central peak of the island.

The Island of Niihau is devoted exclusively to sheep raising. It is a small island only twenty miles long by seven miles broad with an area of 97 square miles.

564 MOLOKAI, LANAI AND KAHOOLAWA.

Molokai, Lanai and Kahoolawe

Molokai is fifth in size of the Hawaiian group. It is the first land sighted by steamers from San Francisco to Hoonlulu, and is separated from Oahu by a channel twenty-five miles in width. The island contains about 270 square miles. The location of the leper settlement is one of the most charming and healthy spots on the island, with perennial verdure on every side, and fanned by the cool trade winds from the north. The houses, as they appear from the deck of the steamer, form a pretty village, all painted white, and kept in good condition. Besides the numerous small cottages which dot the plain for two miles or more, are several larger buildings, including two churches, the hospitals, and dwellings erected for the physician, superintendent, clergy and nurses who reside here. There are about seven hundred lepers and three hundred relatives and assistants of the sick, making in all a colony of about one thousand. The lepers are not allowed to leave the place, but the overseers, physicians and nurses have or can obtain permission to go and come as often as is desired. Visitors are not permitted to go to the settlement, except with permission of the Board of Health, which is only granted in exceptional cases.

LANAI.

Lanai is the sixth island in size. It is 22 miles in length, 13 miles in breadth and contains 150 square miles, or 100,000 acres. Its greatest elevation above the sea level is 3,500 feet. It has a delightful climate and many attractive features, and in some respects is one of the most interesting of the Hawaiian Islands. The people residing on the island are mostly devoted to sheep raising, and it is from them that the city of Honolulu draws its supply of mutton. It is seventy-two miles distant from Honolulu, and only ten miles from Lahaina on the island of Maui, where steamers to and from the capital city touch. To the tourist approaching it from the outside it does not present an inviting appearance, and yet in the interior are rich grass lands, which feed about 50,000 sheep, 600 horses and 500 head of horned cattle, besides goats, and hogs. This island is noted for the immense number of wild turkeys that are to be found on it. While clearly of volcanic origin, it has a fertile soil, and the grassy plains of the land-locked valley of Palawai contain more than 10,000 acres of rich virgin soil. The botanist, geologist and lover of nature can find much on this island to interest and instruct him.

KAHOOLAWA.

This small, low island, to the southwest of Maui, is barren, save a few low shrubs, and uninhabited save by occasional sheep herders, to which industry the island has for some years been devoted.
