

A LOSS OF TEN THOUSAND LIVES

POLITICS

Delegate Kuhio left last night for the situation seems to me to look like a complete victory for the Republican ticket, all down the line. I don't think Long will poll any votes worth considering. He is relying on a big Hawaiian vote, but Hawaiians are not open next Monday evening, with a big ratification meeting in Ala park. It was intended to have the meeting Saturday, but a postponement was decided on in order to have Kuhio present. He will return Sunday morning.

Chairman Judd, of the Republican County committee, is calling a meeting of all the precinct club presidents of the island, to be held at the Republican headquarters on Saturday night. The purpose is to discuss campaign plans, etc., and a general plan of speech-making will probably be talked over.

The Independent candidates are still not taken very seriously. The main discussion seems to be as to whom they will affect on the regular tickets. As the politicians are sizing up the situation today, the biggest fights are going to be between Catcart and Edging for county attorney and Wise and Jarrett for sheriff.

OAHU PAYS TWO FLAT

At a meeting of the directors of Oahu Sugar Company this morning, the previously voted purpose of paying extra dividends of 1 1/2 per cent each in October and December, was abandoned.

Instead of paying an extra 3 per cent this year, it was deemed best to continue the payment of 2 per cent monthly into next year. This may be kept up for six months or the entire year as circumstances may dictate. It was thought best by the directors to take this conservative course, rather than risk a drop from extra dividends to reduced regular dividends.

The plantation is in fine shape. Besides paying 2 per cent regularly for some time past the company carries over a nice surplus to next year.

Dividends are announced today of 2 per cent by C. Brewer & Co., 1 per cent by Ewa, 2 1/2 per cent by Waimanalo, 3/4 per cent by Hawaiian Electric, 1 per cent by Olowalu, 1/2 per cent by Honolulu Brewing & Malting, 3/4 per cent by Inter-Island Steam Navigation, 1 per cent by Kahuku, 1 per cent by Hawaiian Agricultural and 1 per cent by Hawaiian Pineapple.

GIRL NO MEDIUM

PECARICKS NOW SAY HOUSE IS HAUNTED—WORK OF ASTRAL HAND.

If you were a gentle minded maiden who had just said your prayers and donned your robe de nuit and tucked the drapey of your couch about your sylphlike form, after neatly depositing your dainty shoes under your bed, and suddenly said shoes commenced walking about the room, kicking the furniture, doing a dance and running out through the doorway and scampering down the road to a shoe-store to get half-soled and heeled, and then came pitter-patter back and arranged themselves again under your bed—wouldn't it make you ache?

If you saw an astral hand stretch sudden from the thick darkness and snatch open a blind—wouldn't it excite your imagination?

And if you felt an icy finger counting the vertebrae of your spine—wouldn't it rattle your nerve?

Well, that's what the Pecaricks now say of the house on Punchbowl from which they are today moving, after having been the main attractions of a few day's visitation by hundreds of curious people who wanted to see the ghosts alleged to have turned things topsy-turvy on Sunday.

The Pecaricks declare that they were benched by the previous tenants of the old Boyd premises, for that the previous tenants knew very well that the house was haunted and unkindly neglected to inform the Pecaricks that such was the case.

Now the Pecaricks say that the neighbors are telling of ghostly things that happened in the house before they became occupants about a month ago.

They say that one night when their predecessors were endeavoring to slumber, a hand, without the usual body attachment, stretched out and wrench open the fastened shutters, and at the same moment all the windows and doors of the house flew open.

On another night, they say, a young lady's shoes walked out from under her bed and walked around the house, kicking the furniture, taking a run down the road and finally returning to their position under the bed.

That's what the Pecaricks say, but a wagon-load of salt should go with every statement.

One thing is very definitely stated this morning by both Mr. and Mrs. Pecarick, and that is that Esperanza, the comely Spanish girl is not a medium, nor is she in any way responsible directly or indirectly for Sunday's psychic circus.

They say all blame must be attached to the house. This doesn't hitch at all with their first statement that Esperanza was the spirits' agent.

Esperanza's father is in the hospital; her mother is just recovering from a sickness and Esperanza, thirteen years of age, is the sole support of the family, says her mother.

Now Esperanza is out of a job because people are saying that she is a medium, whereas she is not. Her mother is sore distressed and loudly declares the girl should never have been held responsible, and the mother is probably right.

SAN FRANCISCANS TO BE WELCOMED

HONOLULU CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WILL GREET REPRESENTATIVES OF SAN FRANCISCO CHAMBER GOING THROUGH TO JAPAN—C. M. COOKE AND JOHN WATERHOUSE WILL JOIN EXCURSION HERE—PARTY TO BE SHOWN PEARL HARBOR.

A truly Honolulu reception awaits the members of the San Francisco excursion party bound to Japan, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of that city, on their arrival in the steamship Tenyo Maru tomorrow. There will be leis to decorate the shoulders of all of them, and Hawaiian music to ravish their ears, for the local spice and coloring of their welcome. And for the signaling of Hawaii's maritime and metropolitan situation and condition, representative business men will go out in a steam launch to greet their San Francisco brethren ere their vessel enters the port, and a larger deputation escort them in automobiles and by railway to Pearl Harbor, the coming stronghold of the Pacific for the protection of the entire American littoral of this ocean.

Arrangements for the reception of the passing visitors to the foregoing effect were made at a special meeting of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, which opened more punctually than usual this morning—sharp on the appointed hour of ten o'clock in fact, without the time honored necessity of a long siege of the telephone by the secretary to procure a quorum.

Joseph P. Cooke, vice president, was in the chair, others present being H.

TAKE TIME TO REGISTER

Chairman Samuel F. Chillingworth of the Board of Registration for Oahu again desires to announce and proclaim that the board will positively cease to register voters at seven o'clock on the evening of October 9.

It will not keep open until midnight for the benefit of tardy voters. Two years ago this was done, when the result was mainly the appearance of a parcel of inebriated persons.

Registration is necessary to secure the franchise and there are nine days left for voters to obtain this indispensable qualification.

In its tour of the country stations the board added 1054 voters to the list. The total number registered up to Monday last was 4508.

EDMUNDS ACT HERE

CLAIM THAT IT NULLIFIES LOCAL STATUTES ON SUBJECTS IT DEALS WITH.

The case of the Territory vs. Blanche Martin, a well known denizen of Iwilei, was up for argument in the Supreme Court this morning. Judge Humphreys, who is attorney for the defendant, bases his case on the claim that since the Edmunds Act and other like laws are operative in this Territory, it makes void the Territorial Acts in relation to adultery. Acting Attorney General W. L. Whitney appears for the Territory.

In making his argument Judge Humphreys called attention to the National bankruptcy law. In this case before the matter was covered by the Federal law the various States and Territories each had their own laws on the subject, but when the bankruptcy law was passed by Congress, it made inoperative the state and Territorial laws on the subject. The same argument he claimed also was good in the case of the inter-state commerce law.

That Congress has the right to make many laws was not denied, but acknowledged with the fact that often this power was allowed to lie dormant, but when Congress did take action and passed an act on a specific subject, then that would overrule and render inoperative the Territorial laws on the same subject which differed from it.

JAP KILLED

A Japanese was killed this morning in the railway yard by falling from the back of a locomotive, under the wheels, as the engine was backing. No blame is attached to the engine crew. The body was fearfully crushed.

HONOR MEMORY OF T. R. WALKER

Charles M. Cooke, when the special business for which the Chamber of Commerce had been called this morning was concluded, stated that since their last meeting Thomas Rain Walker, an honored presiding officer of the Chamber for several years formerly, had departed this life. It was fitting that some appropriate expression of their regret should be placed on record. He moved that the secretary and two others be a committee to draft a memorial resolution.

The motion carrying the chair appointed Messrs. Wood, Schaefer and Macfarlane as the committee.

The late Mr. Walker was vice president of the Chamber for the terms 1896-7, 1897-8 and 1898-9, and president in 1899-1900.

SPEND LARGE SUMS ON PAMPERED PETS

LONDON, September 12.—Extraordinary sums are spent by some ladies on their pet dogs, mostly Pekinese or Blenheim spaniels, and $500 a year is given by quite an ordinary amount to be devoted to the keep of a single animal.
"I know of one spaniel," said a lady dog fancier, "who has a special outfit cooked for him in a hotel and brought to his owner's house in a silver dish. The dog's collars match his coat and are of the softest kid. His clothes are marked with his monogram in silver. The other day I had a griffin brought to me whose collar was studded with turquoises, and diamond bracelets are quite the thing for smart dogs. One lady I know has a silver bath for her pet who is never washed except in scented water."

THE FATIGUE SLEEVES GOWN BY MARGARET LACROIX

Materials Used in the New Costumes— Satin the High Style Fabric—Black is Ultra Variety of Sleeves—Scarf Drap- eries.

For years past broadcloths and kindred smoothly finished fabrics have been principally employed in the development of the cold weather street costumes designed by the leading French modistes, and as the present trend of fashion is so strongly toward clinging effects, such materials are certain to be more than ever popular. In the two and three-piece cloth costumes of the elaborate type, such as are used in America for the most ceremonious of afternoon occasions, as well as for morning concerts and the like, are seen all of the delicate shades of blue, the entire gamut of pale browns, an infinite variety of rose and crushed berry tints, in addition to greens and grays of many shades and the omnipresent black. Dark grays, greens and browns are to be seen principally in the exceedingly plain, but none the less smart, rough chevrons and serges, which are made up solely for morning and hard usage.

SATIN THE FABRIC OF THE MOMENT.
Because of its clinging qualities, satin is now the most important fabric of the moment, and so long as the directoire style remains in vogue, so long will the soft, supple silken material continue its supreme reign. It is used for almost every costume worn by Mladis Modish from the time when she is first visible to her household in the morning until she dismisses her maid for the night, for satin lends itself to the building of the pognor quite as readily as to the afternoon reception costume or to the ball gown. Considered from the ultra fashionable viewpoint, it has no rival, while the practical-minded declare that its wearing qualities are beyond question.

IMPORTANCE OF BRIDGE FROCKS.
So strong a hold has bridge taken upon the set of women who go in for artistic dressing that the bridge gown has become of quite as much importance in the estimation of a woman of leisure as any that are to be worn within the range of masculine eyes. As this costume is to be used chiefly in the afternoon, but in an artificially lighted room, it must combine the practical with the ornamental by being quite sufficiently elaborate to do honor to the hostess and yet not too light of color or too garishly decorated to be worn while walking in the residential section of a large city. Some of the bridge princess frocks that are being developed in mole gray, slate green and tobacco brown satin have trailing, tight-fitting skirts of nunlike simplicity and with no trimming save the cluster of tiny tufts running blasi upward from front to back. But their bodices, which are formed of satin bands, are worn over guimpes of gold or silver cloth, so that the portion of the costume that is most prominently in evidence at the card table is peculiarly effective.

STRIPED SILKS AND LACE.
The use of striped silks under transparent fabrics is not a novelty, but Parisian dressmakers have thought out a new manner of combining the two materials. They are employed together chiefly in the darker shades, the costumes being intended for semicere-monious occasions, such as luncheon and informal days at home, for while women are popularly supposed to dress for the benefit of men, they realize perfectly that their keenest critics are other women. As at present used, the silks that are of black, striped with blue, rose, green or white, form the principal portion of the afternoon costume, which is invariably in one piece, although not necessarily short-waisted. Over it is draped a low-necked, elbow-sleeved bodice of black chiffon or silk lace, which is caught into the waist with an ornament girdle, and thence extends in a straight, all-round tunic, terminating just above the knees. There is a net guimpe which matches the color of the silk stripe and emphasizes the shade seen dimly through the transparent veiling.

VARIOUS SLEEVE DRAPINGS.
One of the fads of the moment which is occasionally seen in the demitoutettes brought out from Paris is the difference in sleeve drapings on one costume. For instance, the bodice may be of lace veiling, satin or silk, worn over a white net or lace guimpe and trimmed with embroidery bands. If there are bell sleeves, one may be allowed to droop loosely, be banded horizontally with rows of embroidery or satin and have a deep turnback cuff, which permits only the narrowest of white lines to show beneath it, and the other sleeve may be slightly drawn toward the shoulder, trimmed with vertical bands and show a deep turnback cuff of white lace. It is a continuation of the idea first introduced several years ago, when evening gowns had sleeves of widely varying design, one being a small puff, while the other was nothing more than a ribbon band.

BLACK AND AZURE.
Black with pale blue has ever been regarded as a stunning combination when artistically blended, and as the most forlorn of fashions when too much of the one or the other was used. The French, however, perfectly understand what are the exact color proportions. This season they are making up a vast number of pastel and palely tinted blue costumes, but in most instances they are placing scarcely any black about the bodices and a considerable quantity upon the skirts. On the satin demitoutettes of this type there is almost invariably a wide black satin or panne velvet band put plainly around the skirt's hem. Above this may be a black bordered tunic, vertical black lace bandings or applied borders of black and white embroidery.

GOLD AND SILVER MOUNTINGS.
Among the smartest of the gray gowns which, undeniably, are to be the leaders this season, are many of plain and satin striped pearl voile which are marvels of beauty, and yet so exceedingly plain that the casual observer wonders vaguely why they are so effective. The key of the design is to be found invariably in the trimming treatment of the bodice, which shows in one way or another that the outside material is built over a cloth of gold or silver lining, the glint of which is reflected seemingly in the tinsel of the bodice embroidery bandings or the ornamentation of its guimpe. These gowns also show the hint of azure which Paris seems to favor so strongly this season, for whenever a line of black does not appear somewhere on the collar and bodice there is certain to be one of pale blue, often supplemented with a breast knot or a girdle of the same hue.

SCARF-DRAPED SKIRTS.
Skirts are scarf-draped in so many different ways that the novel variations upon one fundamental idea, so simple as a long strand of satin, silk or lace, are positively amazing. One of the most attractive methods of draping a soft silk sash is to start it from just below the waistline on the left side, securing it in position with an enormously large and ornamental chou, from which depends an end finished with deep fringe or a long tassel. The other piece crosses the front of the skirt slantingly to the opposite side, where another chou and end are formed. Or the scarf may be brought from the left side down almost to the hem of the skirt's center, where, having been folded backward to form a point, it runs upward to the opposite side of the waistline and thus encircles the back of the wearer. A simpler method of arrangement is to swath the sash about the hips and partially over the raised waistline, then draw it high at the back and knot it into a single long loop at one end. Such sashes, be it understood are invariably of full-width materials, for the original ribbon form of it is rarely seen save on quite young girls.

BRETELLE TRIMMED CORSAJES.
Bretelle trimmings continue to be extremely popular, and are seen on a large number of the ultra smart French bodices. In some instances the bretelles are composed wholly of folds which, starting from the waist line, but concealing only the sides of the figure, extend widely over the shoulders, and for some distance over the sleeves. The Japanese arm-size idea is still seen on the arrangement of those bretelles which, being of the material of the gown, are made to form the entire short sleeve, the narrow space or V at the back and front of the bodice being filled in with the deep guimpe of net or lace whose supplementary sleeves often extend well over the hand. A type of bretelle which ultimately becomes a sash is one which, being so draped over the shoulders as to leave the tops of the sleeves and the under arms forms of the bodice exposed, is attached to a draped girdle that at the back holds in place the two long sash ends of the accessory.

TWO TYPES OF EVENING GOWNS.
Nine out of ten of the dressmakers who have recently returned from Paris report that evening gowns may practically be divided into two distinct types—the exceedingly simple and the unusually elaborate. The simple models are naturally on Greek lines, and include the clinging princess gowns of satin or velvet, which are actually raised girdle trailing skirts attached to bodices of finest lace or embroiered net. Sometimes the skirts are absolutely plain and show only the merest suggestion of a tunic or drapery about the hips, while others are elaborately hand-embroidered in raised effects done with heavy silk or chenille or applied with artificial silk or velvet flowers so flattened against the fabric as to appear to have been woven into it. The other type of evening gown is a gorgeous affair of brocade showing gold and silver threads of embroidered panne velvet and satin, or of gold, silver or jet pailletted gauze, made up over cloth of gold or silver.

THE GREEK INFLUENCE.
The influence of the Greek idea upon evening gowns is especially marked in the case of many of those copied from or similar to the celebrated creations of Margraine La Croix. A bridge frock of emerald green satin, for instance, has a gold fringed front pointed tulle with sash back and a gold tulle bodice embroidered with gold motifs that is cut in one with the sleeves, which are gold laced at the inner side. Another gown, which is the acme of simplicity as well as of modesty, has a tunic bordered with embroidered silver bands and slashed sleeves caught together with antique silver buttons. The most extreme gown, and also the simplest, is a blue Otodam princess bordered with blue embroidery, which has its split left side caught together at intervals, but then it is worn over an entire underdress of satin veiled with silver pailletted blue gauze.

PLAIN AND BROCADED EFFECTS.
In lieu of the border materials which enjoyed such a vogue a year ago, many of the leading dressmakers are using plain silk and brocades together. Here again the almost universal scarf idea is brought into use, but rather differently and happily the combination offers suggestions toward the furnishing of the dinner costumes made last winter. The gowns most adaptable to such touching up are those of lace or chiffon made in two pieces, as such transparencies rarely carry heavy trimmings or any that may not be removed without leaving obvious traces of their absence. The waist of a white chiffon gown, for instance, may be draped after the Greek manner with rose figured white brocade, the sleeves made tight-fitting and cut off above the elbow, and about the hips may be draped a brocade tunic which, extending almost to the knees in front, is slightly caught up at the back into box pleats and then allowed to fall over the train of the skirt in two ends.

PAINTED CHIFFON SCARFS.
Much the same treatment may be carried out with the aid of the painted chiffon scarfs, of which it would be difficult to conceive anything more exquisitely dainty. Two of these will be quite sufficient to utterly change the effect on an all but passe evening gown, provided that there be an absence of elaborate trimmings, as one may be used for the bodice and sleeves and another for the skirt draping. Not all the gauze scarfs are florally embroidered. Some of them have gold and silver butterflies scattered over the weave and others show small sections of peacock feathers.

COATED TEA GOWNS.
Tea gowns which are also worn informally for dinner gowns, just as tuxedos are worn by men when the claw-hammer coat can possibly be dispensed with, are among the fascinating creations which Paris is exhibiting for the temptation of American pocketbooks. A large number of these garments are of crepe de chine, many are of lace bordered chiffon, and the daintiest of them developed in silk mousseline. The simplicity of their design is one of their chief charms, for usually they consist merely of an Empire robe with a tucker neck, short sleeves and a satin sash over which is worn a sleeveless long, loose and very scant coat of Valenciennes, Ghny or embroidered fllet lace.

FRANCE WILL TAKE NEW RUSSIAN LOAN
PARIS, Sept. 16.—It was asserted in prominent quarters here today that arrangements are being completed for the flotation of a new Russian loan on the French market. The primary object of this transaction is to take up about $100,000,000 of about 5 per cent treasury notes due in the spring. These will be retired with the 4 1-2 per cent treasury notes. The arrangement involves a new loan of 400,000,000 francs.

GEORGE F. HENSHALL .....MANAGER

WEDNESDAY.....SEPTEMBER 30, 1908

Governor Frear didn't know that he was making a yellow dog speech. But the only expression which seems to be regarded as worthy of preservation, in the course of his thoughtful Ala park political address, is "yellow dog." It is cruel indeed that a man of Frear's disposition and character should be boomed in local politics as the author of such an expression. However, we must get used to it. A vast majority of the community has grown accustomed to being called grafters. Apparently it is necessary, in local politics, to get used to the revolting term yellow dog.

California's health authorities are vigorously though not harshly enforcing the pure food law. While satisfied with the minimum penalties and banking on the educative influence of examples, they are casting a dragnet for all dealers in food commodities who neglect or evade the provisions of the law. Under the old Hawaiian pure food law a very considerable reform has been brought about here. Now that there is Federal co-operation in the service the public ought to be well guaranteed against being poisoned by deleterious substances and cheated by adulterations, in the articles of sustenance for which their good money is expended.

The Advertiser answers the challenge with regard to John Wise with two charges against him: First, he is a political turncoat; and, second, he is a member of some absurd imaginary grafting conspiracy that afflicts the Advertiser columns like a mania. The first charge will have to be admitted. The Star has never dreamed of denying it,—it merely remarked that in ability "he could challenge comparison with Republican-Democrat-Home Rule-Independent Iaukea," whom the Advertiser is supporting. If party consistency or loyalty is the test, how about Long, whom the Advertiser is also supporting? As for the conspiracy, it is simply tiresome rot.

CARLO LONG AND LORD BACON.

Lord Bacon to the rescue now! The Advertiser, in trying to defend Long's political pledge-breaking, has jumped from James G. Blaine to Lord Bacon's history of Henry VIII. It is indeed inspiring to imagine Carlo Long, before he went to the convention and decided to ignore a plain pledge in its Rules, poring over the tomes of Bacon and reaching the momentous conclusion that, because Bacon held that "no parliament can bind its successor," Long need not keep his political pledge in a Honolulu Republican convention. It is apparent from the "foxes-have-holes" letter that before announcing himself Long must have consulted the Bible. What else was studied besides Bacon and the life of James G. Blaine?

But leaving Lord Bacon and Blaine to rest in peace, it is enough answer, perhaps, to state that if the rule which Long ignores is not in force neither is any other, and the party organization is absolutely without rules for guidance. This is absurd. Under what rules were the Central Committees named? Under what rules are precinct clubs all over the island governed today? If a dispute arises in any precinct, under what rules is it finally referred to the highest central committee? "The late county convention, not having agreed to these rules," says the Advertiser. How did it separate into two district conventions but under these Rules? How decide the apportionment and number of central committees except under the Rules?

However, there is no need for further argument. The convention did agree to the Rules. Here is an extract from a report made to the convention itself less than two weeks ago: "Each precinct shall announce its choice for committeeman agreeably to ARTICLE I, SECTION I, OF THE RULES OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY." This is the convention in which Long was a delegate, in whose proceedings he took a part just a week before he broke the pledge contained in the very rules thus referred to. The Rules in question were in use all over the floor and the chair, in full view of everyone, used them for guidance. The Rules have been continuing and binding ever since adopted in 1900, for the first time, subsequent re-adoption having been for the purpose of amendment. They contain their own provisions continuing them in force and providing methods of amendment.

Long stands unavoidably convicted of breaking his pledge.

Is it because of the "Rules of the Republican Party" that the campaign managers don't quite know what to do about Gambler Kaea, a regular nominee for Representative from the Fifth—Advertiser.

Certainly. You see, the Rules are in full force. Kaea will have to be got rid of without breaking them.

Because The Star criticized John Wise seven or eight years ago, and because it thinks he is the best material now available for sheriff, the Advertiser brings an accusation of inconsistency. And on the same editorial page, it publishes approvingly as part of an editorial defending Long some erudite remarks by "a lawyer" whom it has lambasted as it has Brown. Who would ever have thought that he would be found helping the Advertiser to write editorials to support Long?

Long's lawyer defender had better give up Lord Bacon and the British Parliament. They don't apply. Try Machiavelli.

Drs. Brinckerhoff and Wayson write in the careful manner of scientists in telling of the good results of the Natin leprosy treatment, with which they have been experimenting. But this only makes their statements the more impressive. They open up the prospect of the first release, as harmless, of a proved leper. Surely here is a step forward which is of vast importance.

Iaukea is forcing his officers to resign because they are candidates for office. But there are no signs of an Iaukea resignation in order to run. Perhaps he won't run.

One of the humors of the campaign is the Advertiser, bitterly assailing Wise for changing his party too often and at the same time supporting Iaukea, who has belonged to all parties in turn and now runs independent, and at the same time, also, accusing The Star of inconsistency for not objecting to Wise's changeableness. Only physical

Tales Worth Telling

A DIAMOND DEAL.
The recent Stevier case in London revived some incidents in the career of that dead celebrity "Barney" Barnato, amateur actor and diamond expert, against whom, smart although of course he was, the following yarn is told:

When the late Cecil Rhodes was at the head of the De Beers Company, at a time when they had for sale 220,000 carats of diamonds, he was approached by Barney Barnato with an offer for the lot in one parcel. To this proposition Mr. Rhodes replied, "Yes, you shall have them for that on one condition."

"What condition?" asked the other. "That you let me see a sight no human eye ever saw yet."

"What's that?" inquired the would-be purchaser. "Why," said Mr. Rhodes, "a bucket full of diamonds in one heap."

"Done!" cried Barney, to close the deal on his own terms. So they emptied the De Beers diamonds into a bucket. Then came the turn of Mr. Rhodes, who practically had to himself the diamond market during six weeks, the time required for restoring the stones into their 169 classifications.—Harper's Weekly.

From now until Election we must endure the straw-vote fiend.

LORD BACON DON'T HELP LONG

EDITOR STAR:—Apropos of the editorial in this morning's Advertiser, its legal adviser is as dead as Lord Bacon. The rule that one convention cannot bind another has nothing to do with the case at hand. The rules which are adopted from time to time in each convention are merely rules for the government of the convention itself and relate to the order of business and procedure. The rules under which Long went to the convention are the standing rules of the party which, by their terms (Art. 8) may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the Territorial Committee. These standing rules differ as much from the rules of a convention as the U. S. Constitution does from the rules of procedure adopted by Congress. These standing rules are the constitution of the party. Under them the precinct clubs organize, elect officers and hold primaries and send delegates to conventions. If these rules have no binding force there was no warrant for holding the convention, and the whole thing was a delusion and a farce. If the contention of the Advertiser's legal adviser is correct, there was no convention, no nominations have been made, there are no legally constituted territorial or county committees, in fact, no Republican party.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATE.

EDUCATION OF JAPANESE HERE

(From the Sunday Hawaii Shinpo.)

"No man can serve two masters; in the Territory. In view of this and no Japanese can be a good subject of the Mikado and a good American citizen at the same time." "For those Japanese who are going back to their own country after the education of Hawaiian-Japanese well that their children are educated along the Japanese line," says the growing a general sentiment favor the settling down of the Japanese to remain and live here permanently.

limitations prevent some people from carrying water on three shoulders.

In spite of the disastrous result of his last challenge, Bryan has challenged Roosevelt again. The Big Stick will probably raise another lump.

It now appears that Hearst bought those Foraker letters from someone who had stolen them. For the sake of other statesmen who may be worrying about missing correspondence, Foraker ought to prosecute Hearst for receiving stolen goods.

The national campaign shows the results of lack of issues. Taft and Bryan are in harmony upon the issues which hold the main attention of the country. They are in a sort of rivalry as to which is really the most anxious to carry on the "Roosevelt policies." Bryan would like to call them the Bryan policies, but the name won't stick. In the meantime, having no broad campaign line of policies upon which to get up an exciting discussion, the rival parties are exposing one another's vulnerable men with effects which must delight Hearst, the keynote of whose whole campaign is that neither of the old parties are worthy.

The discovery of an immense sun spot by Dr. Brashear at Pittsburgh is coincident with the more than ordinary violence of volcanic activity on the Island of Hawaii. Whether the events are related the scientists may be left to discuss.

their education must be along the line of Americanism."

"Without forcing Americanism among those who intend to go back to their country, this new sentiment among us must be fostered along with the new system of education for our next generation. With a proper education the traits of samurai spirit will manifest itself as patriotism for America in the character of our children, who will love and respect the Stars and Stripes as do the descendants of the Mayflower immigrants" is the way the Shinpo concludes its editorial.

the editor of the Jiyu Shinbun, which is the Shinpo's evening edition, thinks differently. He says: "The question of our children's education, whether they should be educated along American lines or whether in Japanese, largely depends on the attitude of the American people themselves, in their treatment of the Japanese and in deciding the political rights of our Hawaiian-born children." The editor quotes an incident as a sign of the assimilation of our younger generation with the American people and relates how thoroughly American like our young boys conduct their meet-

THE COUNTRY CLUB. Every man to his taste in the matter of golf but the consensus of opinion is that Haleiwa offers greater inducements to the lover of the sport than the club links nearer at home. Possibly because people enjoy getting out of call of the house and desire to be down where they can put and drive where the waves are whispering encouragement nearby. The links there are good and Manager Bidgood looks after visitors.

EDUCATION OF JAPANESE HERE

(Continued from Page Four). ings, using alone the English language. "But," the editor says, "if these youths are deprived of their franchise in future, after they are educated as an American boy should be, where will they stand? They will have to live all their life as educated cripples, as much as citizen with criminal records, without civil right. In Japan, they will lose their civil right when they pledge allegiance to the United States, thus losing rights as citizen in both countries. The question how we should educate our children must be solved along with the question as to how their franchise right is to be guaranteed to them."

ANOTHER ESTATE COMPLAINED OF MINORS SAID TO HAVE SUFFERED THROUGH FAILURE OF ADMINISTRATOR TO CARE FOR THEM.

A petition for the removal of Abraham Kaleikau, as the guardian of David Mikaele and Wabinani, minors, was presented in the Circuit Court this morning through Attorney W. C. Achi. It is recounted that the guardian has not acted in a proper manner, nor has he applied the income of the minors' estate to their maintenance and support. It is further stated that he has failed to provide the minor David, with clothes that he might attend the Kamehameha Schools. Besides this he is said to have failed to furnish food for the boy for the last month. It is prayed that Kaleikau be removed and a suitable person appointed in his stead.

SAN FRANCISCANS TO BE WELCOMED

C. M. Cooke and John Waterhouse were appointed as representatives of this Chamber of Commerce on the excursion to Japan. Mr. Cooke proposed that Secretary Wood should also go, being strongly seconded by Mr. Macfarlane, and the motion would have carried with enthusiasm had not Mr. Wood presented reasons why he should stay.

There was so much special and general work for him at home, Mr. Wood argued, that it would be inadvisable for him to leave his post. Besides the business of the Chamber there were the work of the Hawaii Promotion Committee and the affairs of the committee on the Seattle Exposition requiring his constant services. The meeting reluctantly accepted his reasons, the proposal being dropped. Willard E. Brown reminded the meeting that the Promotion Committee had lots of literature for distribution among the visitors and equipment of the delegation on the Japan excursion.

FINEST STALLIONS EVER IMPORTED

The most interesting items of freight brought here yesterday from Seattle in the A.-H. S. S. Virginian are a pair of splendid stallions from Europe for the Parker ranch on the Island of Hawaii. One is a dapple gray French Percheron, weighing 2,040 pounds and the other a German coach, 1,450 pounds. These horses will be on exhibition at the old Emmeluth place, owned by Chief Justice Hartwell, on Judd street, near Liliha, every day between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. and Fred Carter will be happy to show them.

JAILOR IN CELL

MAN IN CHARGE AT SETTLEMENT HAS TO LIVE JUST LIKE PRISONERS DO.

It seems rather tough to be a jailor, to have charge of prisoners and then to have to be a prisoner yourself, but such is the sorry fix in which L. H. Puniilo, the jailor of the Mookai Settlement, finds himself. While he is all right through the day, when night comes he has no other place to sleep than in one of the cells, exactly like those in which he confines the prisoners who are in his charge for the making of swipes and other offences.

The matter has been brought to the attention of High Sheriff Henry, who states that he has no money at his disposal with which to build a cottage for the jailor and that the matter must wait till the next session of the legislature when an appropriation will be asked. A building which would be suitable for the jailor's dwelling would be very expensive and could be erected for about $500 and then the unpleasant feature of having to sleep in a cell would be removed from Puniilo's job.

STENOGRS RACING

Joseph Augustine Combs, P. Maurice McMahon, Jimmy Lloyd and R. A. Kearns are out for the position of stenographer to the House of Representatives. Combs is said to have the lead, so far, on account of his personal beauty, while McMahon, as a poet of passion, is declared to be a very close second. Jimmy Lloyd, also handsome, is very much in the race, while Kearns' intellectual brow is not far behind. Whoever wins will get in by a nose. It has not been settled who has the longest nose, though, as previously stated, Combs leads at the moment of going to press.

CARNEGIE SAYS PEACE IS HELD BY KAISER

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Andrew Carnegie has written a letter from Skibo castle, Scotland, to Representative Richard Bartholdt of Missouri, president of the American group of the Interparliamentary union, which convenes in this city September 17, in which he says: "If the emperor of Germany ever realized his manifest destiny peace would follow. He has it in his power to abolish war among civilized nations. All he has to do is to ask Great Britain, France and the United States in uniting with him in declaration that since the world has contracted to a 'neighborhood' and is in constant communication, one part with another, the interchange of products between them amounting to thousands of millions a year, the time has passed when any one civilized nation can be permitted to break that peace in which all are so deeply interested."

PURE FOOD LAW VIOLATORS FINED

CANDY MANUFACTURERS FORCED TO PAY PENALTY FOR USING INJURIOUS INGREDIENTS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—The first cases in the pure food crusade came up for trial in Police Judge Weiler's court yesterday, and on the suggestion of Louis Ferrari, special prosecutor, the lowest fine, $25, was imposed, as the defendants were not wealthy and they had stopped the objectionable practice complained of as soon as they had been notified that they were violating the law.

The first defendants were Albert Nasser, candy manufacturer, 1219 Eighteenth street, and his brother, Samuel. Both were charged with selling candy containing paraffin. H. R. Robbins, chief inspector of the state board of health, testified to purchasing candy at the store of the defendants and handing it to Prof. M. E. Jaffa, director of the state laboratory. Professor Jaffa testified to making an analysis of the candy and finding paraffin. He said that paraffin made the candy indigestible and was therefore injurious. It was put in the candy to make it chew better. Out of 147 samples analyzed throughout the state about 40 contained paraffin.

There were three charges against L. H. Tryforis, candy manufacturer, 521 Haight street, but Attorney Ferrari said he was willing to have two of the charges dismissed if the defendant pleaded guilty to the other, which was done, and he was fined $25.

Professor Jaffa said later that it was the aim of the state board to educate the people and not to prosecute them. All that was desired was pure food and that the labels should tell exactly what the contents of the bottle or package were.

LEPER IMPROVES UNDER TREATMENT

Dr. Walter R. Brinckerhoff, director of the Leprosy Investigation Station, and Dr. James T. Wayson, member of Territorial Board of Health, reported to the Board of Health yesterday on a case that has been under care since December 26, 1907, at the Kalaiki receiving station, who has been under the Nasta treatment. They "feel that he has made such marked improvement while under treatment that a request for his re-examination is warranted," and conclude in the following terms: "For us to take the responsibility of certifying that, from a scientific point of view, he is cured, would require an investigation for which the facilities are not at hand.

"We recommend that the patient be submitted to a re-examination to determine if he is suffering from leprosy and capable of transmitting the disease."

WILL J. COOPER'S COUPON. We will try to tell, well of reading, in a score of years, more than two score of descriptions (said to be) of the famous volcano on Hawaii; for you all know that a stack (stackable) of such stuff has been put out, in our dailies. But, of all that has been said on this very theme, we like journalist Cooper's article perhaps the best of all.

And now did we make scrap-books, into one of them it would find a place. My reader will find it in the Star of 26th Inst, likely all sold off however, long before our date.

Now, you know even Editor Smith (not the last however of the Smith tribe), he went to the same warm and turbid region, some years since, and he contributed two (or eight) contributions, entirely voluntary; (voluntinous volumes of smoke with fire and gas soaring to the skies) but, not his even, remains, a pleasing picture on our memory's wall, as does this later essay, of W. J. C.

We could but hope, as we read his quite unique trip, that he would keep to his own original style always, and not try to pattern (or copy after) anyone else's that may be more showy, and yet not so really realistic as his own straightforward and taking manner of taking one to see that Volcano as he saw the same, by night and by daylight. It is an uncommonly fine story that of Will J. Cooper.

NOTLEY AND AGHI'S FACTIONS COMBINE

ACHI NOMINATED FOR MAYOR—HENRY VIDA ON SUPERVISOR TICKET—A NUMBER OF REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES BUT NO DEMOCRAT ENDORSED—PLATFORMS ARE BAITED WITH FAT PORK—RESULTS OF TWO CONVENTIONS.

Conventions were held in town yesterday by the Home Rulers and the Laborites, culminating at night in a conference endorsement of candidates from three parties—Home Rule, Labor and Republican, the Democratic ticket not being drawn upon. The following is the composite ticket: Delegate to Congress—Charles K. Notley (H. R.). Mayor—W. C. Achi (L.). Sheriff—John Wise (R.). Deputy Sheriff—C. J. Hoyt (R.). Treasurer—George C. Beckley (Ind.). Auditor—James Becknell (R.). Clerk—D. Kalauokalani, Jr. (R.). County Attorney—John Cathcart (R.). Supervisors—Abe Kekai and Henry Vida (L.), D. Kalauokalani, Sr., Robert W. Davis, and J. M. Kealoha (H. R.). Endorsed—A. Cox (R.), Waiialua; Wm. A. Kane (R.), Ewa. Senators—Charles J. Broad (L.) and J. M. Peopoe (H. R.). Representatives (Fifth District)—

The Laborite (Achi) platform has two original planks. One is opposition to assisted immigration. The other pledges the Delegate to Congress to work for an annual Federal appropriation of a quarter of a million dollars for education in the Territory.

PSYCHOLOGY

We have been reaching Judge Hart's communication in today's Advertiser and at once, we say: "Now, what kamaaina of all this territory can we, according to the light we have, place with Judge Hart? It is not uncommon for grande ladies and noble dames to walk through Whitechapel and Seven Dials, etc, where the poverty and the misery and the sickness and the crime reach a pitch (a climax) so to speak. They go in behalf of ocular demonstration, for what we see with the eyes and hear with the ears, we are very apt to give credence to! We knew, personally, of a Bishop's party that walked, with the aid of "Scottish Yard," leisurely through Whitechapel not so very long time since. Now, almost all who have occasion to go through King or Hotel, not speaking of the side streets, say from Bethel to the Depot, either go and come in the cars or by private conveyance. Very few walk there. A woman said to us (who walk there once a day), "I dislike to go in these parts at all! Why? because you think you will meet poor people? Often likely untidy and unkempt—the unwashed crowd?" We like to see, read, mark, learn and understand, how Poverty houses and feeds itself; for then we learn what chance we have of keeping well!

The law of Retribution, righteous and just, pursues us with its iron hand, whenever we too long time neglect the poor and the wretched. And so we were deeply interested in Judge Tart's article and plea, for the poor of Palama. Others must find the money for that poor (more or less) neglected settlement-work; but we will give our bit writing and our much praise for Mr. Rath and for all Helpers, but that ripe region—ripe and ready with special needs, men, women and little children. Now, who will walk through that district with an eye to help and the heart of pity? The stature of a man or of a woman, or the avoidpols, pounds and ounces, have nothing to do, or very little to do (often) with the brain power, the temperament (with our subject "Psychology" be it understand, as we understand or unravel the science, very little or nothing at all much.) It is a very intricate and subtle matter (no matter) this science of Psychology and perfectly useless (of great use and value) and elusive, to any that cannot follow us, purely intellectually so to speak; for, "stretches of the imagination" have naught to do, as "Harvard" (O. W. H.) knows, with a sixth sense. We are coming to hard, but generally unknown data, figures, facts. And we don't purpose to mix up any, much of any, but the kamaainas, as we have hinted. It is to their wisdom and skill we appeal, to think of this very important subject.

A young man may dodge around and hint: "Now, where are you intending to place me?" when he will have to place himself so far as the writer is concerned, only he will see as plain as he sees Fort street that no separate class is needed; he can pass in with the crowd of ordinaries and help the world if he will by the example of an upright life. As an all-around scientific man one would be very off to say, that Judge Humphreys was not the equal of Judge Hart. But in legal lore Judge Humphreys may be ahead. In temperament they are something alike, fond of family life, tender hearted, gentle and most refined in manner, lacking anything of the brusque or the push—modest, diffident and deferential, most charitable and kind. At a hasty glance, one could easily mistake the handwriting of the one for the handwriting of the other. Of the two gentlemen, the Britisher and the Southerner, we may say that the former is as a whole the more gentle, more quick, but yet they are alike to our way of reasoning.

In reading of the late deeply-lamented and greatly-beloved Mr. Thomas Rain Walker, we are constrained at once think of a trio of Englishmen and the other two are Judge Hart and Mr. T. Clive Davies gentlemen that, not only by birth, breeding and culture, but because of an inherent "bent"—a certain defined grace of manner and bearing, a speech so well-sensated and pleasing and direct, that one can only think of them as being fully-equipped and ready to enter a king's court and to stand at a king's right hand. There is a host of others, belonging to the legion of honor.

EDITOR TIMES. Sept. 29. P. S.—Now, without any reference to yachting at all, would not one say that Robt. Scott and Mr. Hobson were something of the same "turn"? And might one not put in the same boat Fred. Waterhouse, J. C. Davis, President Horne, L. Blackman, Mr. Day the grocer. It looks very plain to us. If you take Chief Thurston for instance, do you not hink of Capt. Soule and Lucas of May & Co. Dr. Murray, Mr. Watkins, James C. Wilder, Chas. H. Atherton in a minute's time? See? Would you not, reader, to all reason group at once: Mark Robinson, Ballentyne, Consul Schaefer, W. S. Smith, Lewers, Sam Parker, Wright the blacksmith, Marston Campbell, Irwin, Henry Smith, Bp. Libert, Gov. Cleghorn, Rev. Dr. Bishop, Alex. Young, (Dr. Wood, the McInerney's and John Hughes coming in, five years hence?)

In this marvelous science, it is not the point of difference between two men or a class or group of men (or women) that are considered, you understand, but the points of likeness. Would you not say, for instance, that Joseph Carter, Libert, Schaefer, Rev. Dr. Bishop, Irwin, Pfothenauer, Rodiek, Ballentyne, Lewers, McIntyre, Dole, Geo. A. Carter, Pres. Cooke, Cleghorn, Dr. Scudder, Wadman, Feimly, John Martin and some others all possessed uncommon moderation, were careful men in giving an opinion, careful and economical and thrifty in all affairs of finance, men indeed of sound speech, men to be trusted at every point of the public or private compass? Ay, Ay!

Now, what of Ralph Turner and a few of his gems; surely he fits into the class of S. M. Damon, Dr. Murray and few others. But no more of this today.

(It seems to us that 26 classes would not suffice to hold an intellectual giant like the Rev. Dr. Hiram Bingham. He fills a planet of his own we will name, "Gospel!") A. M. P.

Mr. "Fingy" Conners is reported by the Omaha Bee to have said recently, "I can buy all the brains I want at $25 per week." Mind you, all he wants; not all he needs.—Washington Herald. The most disquieting feature of the Thaw bankruptcy proceedings is the fact that it promises to produce a new crop of Evelyn's pictures.—Reading Telegram. A NEIGHBOR'S KINDNESS. Mr. W. J. Fuller, J. P., storekeeper, Rendelsham, South Australia, writes: "I was called to see a neighbor who was suffering from severe cramps and who really thought he was past help. I gave him three doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and in a few hours he had quite recovered. I frequently use this remedy in my own family and sell it to my customers on a positive guarantee." For sale by all dealers, Benson, Smith & Co., agents for Hawaii.

ACQUITTAL ENDS NOTABLE TRIAL

After a four days' trial in which there were continually sharp arguments taking place between the attorneys, Hu Yin and Lau Kam, charged with violation of the Edmunds Act, were found not guilty by a jury in Judge Dole's court yesterday.

Attorney E. A. Douthitt, counsel for the defence, brought a smile to the faces of the jurymen by his calling their attention to the zeal with which the case was being prosecuted. He spoke of the Assistant U. S. District Attorney, Mr. Rawlins, assisted by Judge Quarles, late member of the Supreme Court of Idaho, then of Attorney J. Lightfoot, also associated in the case and wound up by stating that he supposed that it was only on account of illness that the galaxy of legal stars had not been increased by the presence of the chairman of the Republican Territorial Committee, Hon. A. L. C. Atkinson, the latest partner of the jurist from Idaho.

The case was one in which Hu Yin, a tailor in a Chinese shop in this city, and Lau Kim, a pretty little Chinese woman, were charged with violation of the Edmunds Act. The defense was that the woman was acting as Hu Yin's housekeeper and that she was forced to obtain employment of some kind, on account of the fact that her husband did not support her.

On the reverse side is an eagle in flight with the words "In God We Trust" and "United States of America, twenty dollars." On this side too the rays of the sun appear shooting from behind the eagle.

MOTOR CATCHES RUNAWAY STAGE

HARRY JOHANSEN TELLS OF AN EXCITING ADVENTURE IN HUMBOLDT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Harry Johansen, who has just returned from a tour of the north coast counties in a big seven-passenger White steamer, succeeded while returning from the trip in stopping a runaway stage on one of the steepest and roughest grades of Humboldt.

As the automobile party stopped at a spring to get a drink a driverless stage taring down the grade with the horses a keen run, passed them. Johansen, with one of his party at his side started after the runaway, which was already lost in a cloud of dust. It was not difficult for the White to catch up with the stage, but the dust was so thick that it was dangerous to approach too close.

The grade was very steep and narrow and the pursuers expected every moment to see their quarry topple over into the deep canyon.

Finally, after almost five miles had been covered, the dust cleared away on a rocky piece of road. Seizing the chance, Johansen drove his car close up against the rear of the stage, and the man on the front seat with him climbed over the hood to the vehicle. He then clambered over the top to the front seat, where he seized the reins and soon brought the tired horses to a stop.

The horses started from a station while no one was in the stage, and the automobile party was warmly thanked by the stage driver for saving his property, for when the runaway was stopped it was near a turn where
