WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 1884.

The Hawaiian Legislature Session 1884

Fifty-Fifth Day, July 14th, 1884. The House met at 10 a.m. and after prayer, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Representative Kauaike presented a petition from Makawao, that prisoners be allowed to work in the district wherein they are confined. Referred to Judiciary Committee.

Representative Kalua, from the Committee on miscellaneous petitions, reported on a petition containing the following prayer: That $1,000 be appropriated for repairs to the Court House and Jail at Honolulu; that the pay of the Deputy Sheriff in that district be raised to $70 per month, and the District Judge to $80 per month.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs presented a statement in compliance with a resolution calling for the policy of the Government. The statement set forth that the ordinary requirements of the country are met by the public, which the ordinary revenue. In the matter of extraordinary requirements such as immigration, waterworks, road improvements, etc., it would be necessary to resort to the aid of the Government.

Representative Smith, from the Committee on Police Matters, reported on a bill to reorganize the Police Department, recommending that the bill be indefinitely postponed. Report received and laid on the table.

Representative Smith read for the first time a bill relating to a National Loan. Passed to second reading. Representative Kauaike offered a resolution that the bill for the establishment of the Hawaiian Endowment Association (Lottery Bill) be taken from the table and made the special order of the day for Thursday next.

Representative Smith moved the resolution be indefinitely postponed. Representative Kuananano read for the first time a bill to subject the importation of opium to duty, and to prevent the smuggling of the drug. Representative Hitchcock moved that the bill be rejected. Bill withdrawn.

The Minister of Finance read for the first time a bill for the payment of salaries of 1884-85. Read a second time by its title. Representative Dole moved it be referred to the Finance Committee. Representative Kauaike moved that the bill pass.

President Rhodes ruled that as the bill was one appropriating money, it could not pass without being debated in Committee of the Whole. If it were not so, the people would have no protection. Representative Kauaike said that a bill was brought in during the early part of the session, appropriating money for the same, without being referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Representative Dole said if there had been an appropriation made this session, it was a matter of course that the bill would be taken from the table and made the special order of the day for Thursday next. Representative Smith pointed out that the bill included a great deal more than was provided for by the law. He considered that the quick passage of the bill was irregular, improper and unsafe.

Hon. C. R. Bishop stated that he had no objection to the bill as it was a bill of appropriation, and that the House of Representatives had no objection to it. He had no question about the ruling of the President. The ruling of the President was sustained by the House.

Representative Kauaike moved it be made the order of the day for Thursday next. Consideration of the Appropriation Bill in Committee of the Whole. Representative Piilo in the chair.

The item of improvement and extension of Water Works, $200,000, was the first under consideration. The President of the Board of Public Works, etc., referred to the Committee on Public Works, etc. Encouragement of Immigration, $100,000. Richardson moved it be read $100,000. Dole moved it be read $250,000.

Hawaiian Gazette Supplement July 23

The Cost of Government.

A Washington correspondent says: People who think it does not cost anything to run a Government like this, even on a basis of "economy and reform," should read an appropriation bill for two and be undeceived. The House Appropriations Committee is struggling to make a record in the way of economy, yet its appropriation bills, considered in detail or aggregate, are astonishing. Take the Legislative, Executive and Judicial bill, as reported, for instance. It shows that the salaries of Congressmen, taking both houses into account, are over two millions of dollars per year. At least the bill appropriates this sum for salaries of members, $380,000 being for salaries of Senators, and $1,695,000 for members of the House. For mileage the appropriation is $142,000, and for salaries of officers and employees of the House and Senate almost three-quarters of a million. For the botanic garden, which furnishes the members free bouquets, $21,700 is appropriated. The sum allowed for the Civil Service Commission and its traveling expenses is $27,300. The Department of State is quite moderate in its demands, its estimate being but $131,000. The Treasury Department makes up for this lack of enterprise on the part of the State Department by calling for $9,212,000 to run its business and give $9,130,000. The War Department which is largely run by army officers, whose pay is provided for by the army bill, only costs in this bill $2,960,000, while Mr. Chandler's Navy Department, with characteristic modesty, only wants $362,000, and is cut down to $280,000. The Interior Department's estimate is $4,128,785; the sum allowed in this bill is $3,617,775.

There are some curious features in the bill. For instance, it allows the chaplain of the Senate $900 per year, but it gives the messengers to the committee-rooms $1,450 a year, or one-half more for legs than for praying ability. To the telegraph operator in the Senate it pays but $900 per year. For reporting the debates in the Senate it allows $25,000, all of which is paid to one man. Of course he is not doing anything of special help, but he is paid to make about one-half of it "clean net cash." For reporting the House debates it allows $26,000, but it divides it among five men, the "chief" getting $9,000, the others $5,000 each. Out of this they pay their assistants, who are not doing anything of special help, but he is paid to make about one-half of it "clean net cash." Early Rising.

The time to arise is when sleep, properly so called, ceases. It is not admitted from any reasonable or health point of view. The brain falls into the state we call sleep, and the other organs of the body follow it. True sleep is the aggregate of sleeps. In other words, sleep, which must be a natural function—i.e., physiological habit of the body, and not induced by disease or drugs—is a state which consists in the sleeping or rest of all the several parts of the organism. Sometimes one, and at other times another part of the body as a whole may be the least fatigued and so the first to awake, or the most exhausted and therefore the most difficult to arouse. The secret of good sleep is—the physiological conditions of rest being established—to so work and weary the several parts of the organism as to give them a proportionally equal need of rest at the same moment. The cerebrum or mind organ, the sense organs, the muscular system, and the viscera should all be ready to sleep together, and so far as may be possible, they should be equally tired. To wake early and feel ready to rise, this fair and equal start of the sleeper should be secured; and the wise self-manager should not allow a "morning feeling" of the consciousness, or weary senses, or an exhausted muscular system, to hinder him into the folly of going to sleep again when once his consciousness has been aroused. After a very few days of self-discipline, the man who resolves not to "doze"—that is, to allow some still sleepy part of his body to "keep him in bed" after his brain had once awakened—will find himself, without "knowing how," "early riser."

The Alphabet.

The discovery of the alphabet is at once the triumph, the instrument and the register of the progress of our race. The oldest alphabet in existence is a child's alphabet on a little ink-bottle of black wax found on the site of Cere, one of the oldest of the Greek settlements in central Italy, certainly older than the sixth century B. C. The Phoenician alphabet has been reconstructed from several hundred inscriptions. The "Mosaic Stone" has yielded the honor of being the most ancient of alphabetic records to the bronze plates found in Lebanon in 1873, fixed as of the tenth or eleventh century, and therefore the earliest extant monument of the Semitic alphabet. The Phoenician alphabet, which was found at Kherabad have furnished the earliest alphabets, while acarians and Egyptian, seals and gems, from Babylon and Nineveh, with some inscriptions, are the scanty records of the first epoch of the Phoenician alphabet. For the second period, a sarcophagus found in 1856, with an inscription of 23 lines, has taken the skill of more than forty of the most eminent Semitic Scholars of the day, and the literature connected with it is overwhelming. An unbroken series of coins extending over seven centuries from 622 B. C. to 153 A. D., Hebrew engraved coins, the Siliqua inscription discovered in Jerusalem in 1880, early Jewish coins, have each and all found special students whose successive progress is fully detailed by Taylor. The Aramaean alphabet lived only for seven or eight centuries, but from it sprang the scripts of five great faiths of Asia and the three great literary alphabets of the East. Nineveh and its public records supply most commercial revolutions of the social life and commercial transactions of those primitive times. Loans, leases, notes, sales of houses, slaves, etc., all dated, show the development of the alphabet. The early Egyptian inscriptions show which alphabet was there in the reign of Xerxes, and the hieroglyphic alphabet, the old Roman script in Great Britain, Spain, France and Jerusalem, all supply early alphabets.

Alphabets have been affected by religious controversies, spread by missionaries, and preserved in distant regions by holy faith, in spite of persecution, and retention of the Arabic alphabet, next in importance after the great Latin alphabet, followed in eighty years the widespread religion of Mohammed, and now the few Englishmen who can read and speak it are astonished to learn that it is collaterally related to their own alphabet and that both can be traced back to the primitive Phoenician source.

Greece had forty local alphabets, reduced by careful study to about half a dozen generic groups, characterized by certain common local features, and also by political connection.

Of the oldest "a, b, c's" found in Italy, several were attributed by school-boys to Pompeian walls, six in Greek, four in Italic, four in Latin; others were scratched on children's cups and buried with them in their graves, or cut or painted for practice upon unadorned portions of mortuary slabs. The earliest was found as late as 1852, a plain vase of black ware with an Etruscan inscription and a syllabary or spelling exercise, and the Greek alphabet twice repeated.

Diving for Fresh Water

One of the hottest regions of the earth is along the Persian gulf, where little or no rain falls. At Bahrin the arid shore has its fresh water, yet a comparatively numerous population contrives to live there, thanks to the copious springs which burst forth from the bottom of the sea. The fresh water is got by diving. The diver, sitting in his boat, winds a great grapple round his left arm, the hand grasping it moves, he takes in his hand a heavy stone, to which is attached a strong line, and this, equipped, he plunges in and quickly reaches the bottom. Instantly opening the bag over the strong jet of fresh water, he springs up the ascending current, at the same time closing the bag, and is helped on board. The stone is then hauled up and
