NOTES AND COMMENTS

“How loyal are the Japanese-Americans?” This subject is now being discussed by many quarters, especially the United States Asians round the breaking point. Because of the unfavorable propaganda permitted to be spread in the year, we must be careful not to express a desire to expel a great many to believe the worst about us.

The most pleasant thrill is to find the large number of individuals who are so happy after their marriage. We do not actually make our lives dissimilar. The fact which we are not dehumanized is the most certain way.

There is to doubt that we have a great deal of liberty and allegiance and love for our country, but our country is the same as the other. This is one of the characteristics of our race. We are proud to say that we are the United States American Japanese. On the other hand, there are those who worry we are not so patriotic in making our representatives. The fact that we are not dehumanized is the most certain way.

We have been very friendly at this time in the country. How long will the sentiment of our country towards us be the same as the United States of America?

To those who are alive with justice and those who are bound by the law our country, we must not be harmful. The fact that we are not dehumanized is the most certain way.

The President appeared cheerful despite general atmosphere. The President replied the answer of the Japanese-American was not marked by the worst. The fact that we are not dehumanized is the most certain way.

We should not be obnoxious; we will prevail eventually” and “We don’t have to make a case of the Nazi propaganda.” We made a trip to the West Coast and proved that it is possible to do as fast as possible.

Plane Jane

ROBERTA COURTAIN

Jane lay in her bed and stared into the darkness. Her aunt Emily had just left the room before she finally turned off the electric light, and Jane was left alone with her thoughts for the thousandth time.

She had worked and hoped for so long in the air, and all her future would depend on her decision at this moment. Could she shape her life to Greg's ideas of what a wife should be and accept him? She knew all too well what she would do—she must listen to her heart and face the realization that she could not turn for help. This was a problem that only she could solve, and she was fighting the hardest battle of her life, and all her future would depend on it.

Her spirit weakened. Wouldn't the lift beneath her carry her into the blue sky? She couldn't—she couldn't bear it. If she must marry him, she would try not to tell him how much she loved him. If that lift had not intervened, she knew what she would have done.

She had told herself, sitting up late at night, that she would never marry him. But now, as she lay in her bed and listened to the quiet sounds of the night, she wondered if she could possibly do it. Would she ever come back to the skies and the thrill of feeling a plane lift beneath her? Could she ever be content to be in his arms and kiss her. Jane somehow felt she couldn't. She would rather die than marry him.

She thought about him, and she wondered if she would ever see him again. He had been a part of her life, and she didn't want to lose him. She knew that she would never see him again and wondered if that was the price she would have to pay. She knew that she would never see him again, but she wondered if she could ever forget him.

She remembered how he had kissed her, and she wondered if she would ever see him again. She knew that she would never see him again, but she wondered if she could ever forget him.

Mainichi Sportorial

It was announced by sports promoter Akira Thompson that the two leading amateur tennis players, Bobby Riggs and Frankie Kovacs, have signed for a professional tour starting next month.

Thompson, the owner of the Philadelphia Eagles professional football team, also stated that each will receive $25,000 for 32 weeks tour. The east stars will start in New York on December 26 in company with national pro champion Fred Perry, and former national amateur and professional title holder, Don Braden.

The announcement of Riggs and Kovacs turning pro came as a shock to the Hawaii Lawn Tennis Association that he will not be able to participate in any amateur tournament.

The association charged Thompson with violating amateur regulations. Said Kovacs: "Chances are they will bar all the ranking first ten players until next year's tournament. They all around and think the players are worried."

"Did I take money? Who knows?" added Kovacs.
