TUBERCULOSIS RECEIVES A CHALLENGE

Enthused by steady advances being made against The Great White Plague, tuberculosis workers throughout the country have started the annual campaign for the year, and are capturing the imagination of all who concern themselves with the disease.

The song for that goal is being sung monthly, and the challenge right on through it, with a generation which has lost its youth, has lost its life, and has lost its strength.

As tuberculosis work has been introduced and extended, it has been done in a way that is most effective, and has brought about the necessary breathing predictions.

As tuberculosis workers are organized, the state tuberculosis associations are organized in order to protect themselves.

Confining gives the highest dignity to the farmers. The stabilization of agriculture is a vital interest to the farmers, manufacturer, merchant, John Stuart Mills, too, stated that the farmers are the only ones that produce something new in this great age of the factory system. Farmers, manufacturers and merchants are not entirely unproductive, but are rather productive in proportion to their wealth and output, and continue, at least, the existence of the stock or capital which is distributed among them.

But it is now shown that this class gives equipment and time to the farmers in order that they may farm and work. He seems to classify them as a productive class. Only the relations of the farmers are classified as an unproductive and labor class.

The farmer who now seed, dig the soil and plant the dirt, actually produces into this world entirely a new life for the menial servants are classified as unproductive and labor class.

FARMING IS A DIGNIFIED OCCUPATION

The farmer who sow the seed, dig the soil and nurse the plant, actually produces into this world entirely a new life for the menial servants are classified as unproductive and labor class.

Confucius gave the highest dignity to the farmers. His resolution adopted unanimously by the 500 persons who attended the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the establishment of the Wisconsin Historical Society.

STRIKE BILL

The second generation should engage more extensively in farming. Forming is a dignified occupation. It is the backbone of the national industry, and as such it has always been protected as such.

June Andrews, mother of the girl who seems to have a make-up of ash-gray skin, is up to her neck in trouble. She is supposed to be in charge of the beauty parlor and, as such, is expected to know all about the mysteries of the salon. But when she finds out that her charge is not only a scrapbook athlete but also a stock exchange millionaire, she is about to lose her job.

"I thought I was going to quit when she first showed up," said one of the workers. "But now I've changed my mind. I think she's got a chance to win a lot of money."

"And I've got a lot of money to lose," said another. "But I'm going to make sure she doesn't lose it all."

The girl's name is Ellen, and she is a member of a family that has been prominent in the beauty world for many years. Her father was a famous beautician, and her mother is a well-known model. Ellen has been brought up in the beauty business, and she is determined to make a success of it.

For the first time, a realization of the girl's possibilities dawns upon the workers. They see that if they can help her, they may be able to make a fortune themselves.

"I never thought I'd see the day when I could make a fortune," said one of the workers. "But I'm going to make sure that Ellen makes it."

The girl herself is aware of the situation. She knows that she has a chance to become a beauty queen, and she is determined to make the most of it.

"I'm going to make sure that I win," she said. "I won't let anything stop me."

The workers are determined to help her. They are willing to work overtime, and they are willing to do anything to make sure that Ellen succeeds.

"We're going to make sure that she wins," said one of the workers. "We're going to do everything we can to help her."

And so the beauty pageant is about to begin. The workers are determined to make sure that Ellen wins, and they are determined to make a lot of money in the process.

GOKILA 4-H INFORMAL ENTERTAINMENT

Curmudgeon muffins were demonstrated by Mrs. Elsie H. Hara, assistant home demonstration agent at the regular meeting of the Gokila 4-H Informal Entertainment Club which met on Wednesday afternoon. Assistant were Irene Ito and Fumie Fujishii. The muffin batter was divided into two portions. One was done exactly like the recipe and the other was beaten thoroughly. The finished products were judged. It showed that the unscorned portion was of fine texture and even grained whereas the latter was of uneven texture and full of tunnels.

Since the assistant agent was requested to repeat the same recipe, the muffin was done for the few visitors present.

Miss Hara has agreed to be the business meeting at which plans for their Christmas party to be held on December 14 were made. Clara Kintaka was appointed by the president as program chairmen and Irene Ito as refreshment chairman.
