Rees and prisons

I would like to respond to Robert Rees' column on Hawai'i's prison population ("Locking Ourselves In," HW, 11/4). First of all, I find the remark of Professor Lind about incarcerating an entire race beyond belief. Does the professor want the justice system to let all the Hawaiians "get out of jail free"? I grew up in New York and spent a good part of my life there. We've gone through the Jewish, Irish, Italian, Chinese, Latin, Caribbean, black and now the Russian mob. Does that mean that a race or nationality was getting picked on by the justice system? Of course not. These people did the crime; so they've done the time. It's that simple. You don't need a Ph.D. to figure that out.

I had seven friends who were on the N.Y.P.D. and it's not easy being a cop. Out of the seven, only one retired after 20 years, two retired on disability (heart problems), one working at Fort Apache (South Bronx) and the other in the housing projects. Three died on the job and one died of cancer. That's not a good batting average in any league.

Does Rees want all prisoners' jail time reduced because it's costing too much money? Does he know what would happen if one of these prisoners gets out early and the guy kills two or three Japanese tourists? It would cost a hundred times more in lost tourism. I just read in The New York Times that N.Y.C. will have 34 million tourists by the end of this year (their most ever). That correlates to the dramatic drop in crime under the leadership of Rudy G. (the mayor). My wife was car-jacked when Ed ("How am I doing?") Koch was mayor. My daughter-in-law was car-jacked when David ("How is my tennis game?") Dinkins was the mayor; tourism was the lowest ever.

The best thing that the judges can do is send these prisoners to Arizona; they have a sheriff there who will treat them the way they should be treated. They'll also be living in tents; maybe, just maybe, it will dawn on some of the people who commit these crimes that "crime doesn't pay."

Homesick in Palau

I've been in Palau too long.

I just received issue No. 44 covering the Hawaiian microbrew scene ("Puttin' Da Aloha In Da Brew," HW, 11/4). My Mom cut out the article, but my Dad (bless his heart) had nothing to do with snipping and just sent me the whole thing — I've read the article twice and am reading for a fourth scan through the pages to read what I've missed in the first three passes.

The list of things I'm homesick for has just received another addition: The Weekly. I can't find a way to bring Anna Bannana's or Palolo Jones to Palau (but in my dreams), and the beer and job at Ali'i are an oasis to my arid palate.

Maybe I never should have left. But then maybe I never would have known how much it all meant.

Sign me up for six months — in case (fingers: half-crossed) they don't renew my contract here.

Gabb blab

I wasn't surprised that your 12/9 issue contained two letters trashing Mike Gabbard ("Who's Mike Gabbard?" "And why?"). What will surprise me is that you will print this letter. Because I happen to be one of Gabbard's biggest fans. [As one of] 285,384 people who voted "yes" for Traditional Marriage on Nov. 3, I think Gabbard deserves a community award for Hawai'i's Man of the Year. He was the moving force behind getting people motivated and mobilized statewide on this issue, and without his efforts, and of course the hard work of Save Traditional Marriage '98 and Alliance for Traditional Marriage, we would have lost the battle.

I carefully read the letters criticizing Mr. Gabbard, and quite frankly I found them offensive and off the wall. I know they're wrong, because I personally heard Mr. Gabbard speak at a standing-room-only event in Kailua-Kona and was impressed with his sincerity, compassion and wisdom.

This "gay marriage" issue has international implications. The bottom line is that traditional marriage supporters all over the world owe Mike Gabbard and his family heartfelt mahalos for their dedication and selfless service in preserving the sanctity of the institution of marriage.

Kudos to the Irish Rose Saloon!

©1998 JOHN S. PRITCHETT

I've been visiting the place intermittently over the last three or four years, and the management has stuck with a policy of retaining a house band playing exclusively classic rock 'n' roll. There's no chickenshit, pop music fad-chasing, or trying to please all tastes by offering up a little bit of everything music-wise. And it looks like this firm commitment to killer get-down live rock has been viable.

Other venues have come and gone. Meantime, the Irish Rose is still there through thick and thin. The house band has changed several times, but the classic guitar riffs keep on pumping. Although it's in Waikiki, the place doesn't try to cater to tourists, definitely has a neighborhood band and the crowd defies categorization. The Irish Rose holds a unique spot in the Honolulu music scene. Long live rock 'n' roll!

Pluck, you

Bravo, Sir Jason Nobriga. Consider yourself the mad musician plucking the bass strings of my heart this week. The cover picture ("Out of the Dark") for the Dec. 2-8 issue was EXCELLENT. I hope your day job is and remains in the royal court of creativity. Keep on pluckin'.

HVCB, HTA: A-OK?

Once again, Mr. Rees pretends to know all, find fault with all and artfully use innuendo to imply mass conspiracy ("The $60 Million Money Laundry," HW, 12/2). Enough already!

Whether the Hawai'i Tourism Authority and its proposed relationship with the HVCB will work remains to be seen. However, the Authority and the individuals involved with it should have the opportunity to try. This is a time when those involved in the promotion of this state need support and constructive ideas. Comments such as those made by Mr. Rees only confuse the issue and further prevent us from making progress.

Smoke this

The economy of Honolulu is at its lowest since statehood. The City & County faces a huge tax deficit. Unemployment is way higher than the national average. Sure, this is the time to ban smoking in bars and restaurants on O'ahu; give the visitors another reason to go to another resort destination!

Second-hand smoke is bad for employees' health; unemployment with no medical insurance is worse.

Religious wrong

Pritchett (HW, 11/11) is disdainful of our Democratic leadership. Would he really prefer the followers of Pat Robertson and the "Religious Right" who seek to rule Hawai'i?

In my native California, in 1966, the Far Left scorned our good Gov. Pat Brown, and we got actor Ronald Reagan for eight lousy years. Then in 1980, President Carter was not the darling of the left, and we got Reaganism across America. We are still paying for that.

A centrist Democrat is far preferable to current conservative Republicans and outside radical-right troublemakers.

A Field Guide to the Millennium

“M any things are at hand,” Pope Gregory wrote to King Ethelbert of England in 601. It was a scary time. He listed wars, famines, plagues, and earthquakes.

But then, ever the optimist, the Pope added reassuringly, “Let not your mind be disturbed; for these are but signs of the end of the world.”

Sound familiar?

Nowadays, anyone with the slightest awareness of history is probably dizzy with déjà vu. As a new millennium looms, everywhere you look some starry-eyed prophet is predicting the end of the world. Of course, starry-eyed prophets have been predicting the end of the world ever since we knuckle-walked on the African savannah. The difference nowadays is that the predictions are flooding TV. And radio, of course, which helps explain why so many rush-hour commuters drive as if they have nothing to lose.

On the night of Dec. 31, 1999, when the cosmic odometer clicks over to those three matching zeroes like oranges on a slot machine, what will happen? Will Israeli and Palestinian, New Ager and Baptist, join in a rousing chorus of The Age of Aquarius? Or will we hear Gabriel trumpeting last call for the folks with the fish symbols on their minivans?

A glance at the titles of recent non-fiction books demonstrates a trend: The End of Nature, The End of Time, The End of History, The End of the World. John Updike's new novel is entitled Toward the End of Time. And these are the serious thinkers, the ones who don't revere Nostradamus or Edgar Cayce. Imagine the anxiety of the people who frown over Weekly World News headlines like DOES STRANGE GLOW OVER HOLY LAND MEAN END IS NEAR?

After all, our era is as eligible as any other to be the last days. In a world still stockpiled with nuclear weapons, we are understandably uneasy about the future. Environmental disaster lurks in every direction. The gap between rich and poor grows ever greater. No wonder we ask ourselves if we're sitting in increasingly expensive ringside seats for Armageddon. Will the future, once cheerfully imagined as The Jetsons, turn out to be more like Mad Max?

There is no question that civilization has lost its way. Seinfeld is ending, but Friends goes on. We have invented stationary bicycles, non-alcoholic beer and Dennis Rodman. Aliens and angels have taken over prime time. Discord abounds — race against race, religion against religion, the people who pay to wear corporate logos on their clothes mocking the people who pay to have their body parts pierced. And Pat Robertson is back, declaring once again that the end is near, but he'd really, really like to be president anyway.

What, as the old song asks, will tomorrow bring? There's no shortage of people trying to answer that question, with religious tracts, star charts and computer projections. Even when their contributions don't raise the anxiety quotient, they add to the confusion.

For that reason, an informal tour of the millennial landscape seems in order.

2001: A Math Oddity

When does our current millennium end and the new one begin? Technically, the next millennium begins on January 1, 2001. A millennium, like a century, isn't over until you count the last year of it. And the last year is 2000, not 1999. Until the thousandth year is past, we haven't counted out the whole millennium, just as you have to pass your 20th birthday before you are in your 21st year.

However, because all of these numbers are arbitrary human inventions, do such distinctions have any significance? No. The choice to celebrate either date, 2000 or 2001, has nothing to do with anything other than calendars and the human urge for symbolism.

A hundred years ago, celebrants knew that the 20th century began with 1901. Parties and ceremonies were scheduled accordingly. Nowadays the change from 1999 to 2000 must seem more dramatic than the turn to 2001. But not everyone has succumbed to this trend. When they were choosing a millennial title to symbolize a new era in human evolution, Stanley Kubrick and Arthur C. Clarke didn't give the world 2000: A Space Odyssey.

Nor was there any calendar confusion a thousand years ago, but for a different reason. In the year 1000, calendars were diverse and inaccurate, and the world was limping along without the Internet. Few people would even have known the date. For that reason, most scholars consider the stories of widespread panic at the end of the first millennium to be an after-the-fact myth.

Apparently, now and then a monk stopped chanting long enough to voice a question about the End Times. But the only writer during the 900s who in any way connected the approaching year 1000 with the Lord's return engagement did so in order to extinguish the idea. He pointed out very properly that there is no hint anywhere in the Bible that Jesus was planning to return after a thousand years. The same goes for 2,000 years.

That leaves the birthday aspect.

Don't the three zeroes in 2000 at least record 20 centuries since the birth of Jesus? Again, no. In the Christian calendar, which is used by most of the Western world, the year 2000 will be celebrated as the 2,000th anniversary of the birth of Christ. But it won't be that anniversary.

In the sixth century, a monk named Dionysius Exiguus (who probably had a hard life; his name translates as “Dennis the Small”) calculated that Christ's birth took place in the year that we would now call 1 B.C. It was 500 years or so before most scholars could even agree to date events from this time. But the calculations of the diminutive Dennis were off by at least four years and possibly by as many as seven. In other words, the 2000th anniversary of the birth of Christ occurred sometime during the 1990s, not later than 1996. Oops.

Furthermore, the year 2000 will be the year 2000 only on Christian calendars. Muslims, for example, have a long way to go to reach a second millennium. In the Islamic calendar — which dates from A.D. 622, the year of the Hejira, Muhammad's flight from Mecca — year 1421 will begin on April 6, 2000. Other groups have long since passed their second millennial milestone. In the traditional Chinese calendar, year 4698 (a Year of the Dragon) will begin on February 5. In the Hebrew calendar, which dates from the traditional year of the creation of the Earth (3761 B.C.), year 5761 begins on September 30. Not that any of these calendars carry much weight in the apocalyptic scenarios of evangelicals.

Party Like It's 1999

This will be the first time in history that most of the world has celebrated such an event together. In planning your Dec. 31, 1999 festivities to welcome the next millennium, we're following the advice of the artist formerly known as Prince.

Canadian writer Mark Kingwell has similar plans: He knows that, yes, technically the new millennium doesn't begin until 2001, but says, “I think most people who insist on this strictness are, among other things, going to miss some pretty fabulous parties on New Year's Eve, 1999.”

If you want to celebrate New Year's Eve 1999 at the Rainbow Room in New York City, you can add your name to the waiting list. As of October 1997, it already included almost a thousand names. However, if you want to celebrate the arrival of the actual millennium, on New Year's Eve 2000, reservations are no problem. There's no waiting list for that night.

The same is true of other coveted watering holes around the planet, including Windows On the World, atop the World Trade Center, and London's Savoy. More public sites such as the Eiffel Tower and Seattle's Space Needle also are expecting big profits to help them usher in the new age.

If the Earth does not come to a screeching halt in the year 2000, there will be plenty of less cataclysmic events taking place around the world. Earth Day that year is expected to be the largest ever celebration of this relatively young holiday. Millions of people are planning to visit various sacred sites in the Holy Land. Pope John Paul II has declared the year 2000 an official Holy Year, the year in which his widely touted Great Jubilee will culminate. Naturally the White House, the United Nations and many other organizations are hosting conferences. Also, the year 2000 will be a Leap Year, the first centesimal Leap Year since 1600. And the United States will be electing its first president of the new millennium.

Of course, there are plenty of other ways to ring in the New Year. For a mere $84,500 (expected to go up between now and then), a St. Louis company is offering two 17-day world tours aboard the Concorde, one winding up in Sydney and the other in Hong Kong. Every ship from the Queen Elizabeth II to the Disney Magic is offering special millennial voyages.

A number of islands in the South Pacific are planning to profit from their entrepreneurial genius. They are near the International Date Line, which offers the first official appearance of each new calendar day. The tiny nation of Kiribati went so far as to redraw the Date Line through its scattered islands, in order to place the entire nation on the western side. They are advertising themselves as the place to be to greet the millennium. There's something very appropriate about journeying to an imaginary line to celebrate an arbitrary date.

Route 666

As the last years of the 20th century vanish into the pages of history and the new millennium looms, fundamentalist Christians and New Age believers share a mutual fear: that it could just be the end of the world.

James Manning wrote those words in his 1997 angst-fest, Prophecies for the New Millennium. It's quite a salad of worries. Apparently everything in the world frightens Manning. He works in Nostradamus, Mayan astrology and Heaven's Gate; he even warns that American presidents serve with the terrifying knowledge that they were cursed by the dying Shawnee chief Tecumseh, in 1813. Somehow, though, with all the Saddam Husseins and Timothy McVeighs in the world (not to mention the Monica Lewinskys), it's difficult to imagine Bill Clinton lying awake worrying about a Shawnee curse.

Manning's book is a good example of the tangled mishmash of ideas so many New Agers weave into their millennial prophecies. For decades, fundamentalist Christians have denounced the New Age preoccupation with the occult. That these factions find anything to agree upon at all is evidence of the way a powerful, magnetic idea like an impending milestone can attract people of differing beliefs.

They do so because there are several definitions of "millennium." First, of course, it's any period of 1,000 years. However, for Christians the upper-case Millennium refers to the period of a thousand years in which, according to the book of Revelation, Christ will reign on Earth after his return from heaven.

To add to the confusion, many people who have renounced traditional Christian beliefs, but who nonetheless are drawn to apocalyptic scenarios, are expecting the new millennium to bring everything from the revenge of Mother Nature to the arrival of wise aliens from outer space.

One amusing side effect of these various and even contradictory definitions is the popularity, on everything from government committees to business names, of the word "millennium" and the number "2000."

Angels and Aliens

No field guide to the Millennium would be complete without a glance at the two most popular characters in the play — angels and aliens. Seldom has marketing so cleverly exploited the yearning for beings from Up There to meddle in our humdrum lives.

Nowadays we have those coy-looking Raphael angels on everything from greeting cards to mouse pads, and the woman with the two-tone hair on Touched By An Angel. There are teenage angels (not to be confused with teenage witches), and angels who assist baseball teams when they could be doing something useful. There are beer-drinking angels on TV commercials; Victoria's Secret has angel lingerie. Drivers who don't even use their turn signals have bumper stickers warning that they brake for angels.

The only thing left is the return of Charlie's Angels, with God (the voice of Charlton Heston) directing their work through a speakerphone.

Angels' only competition for celebritydom right now are aliens from outer space. One curious side effect of the approaching millennium is the increasingly common belief that creatures from other planets are flitting about Earth in flying saucers. (Not that you're allowed to use the term "flying saucer" anymore, although it was once the term of choice among true believers. For some time now, the more respectable-sounding "UFO" has been used to refer to alien space ships.)

The End Is Near

Over a few years, an enterprising London insurance company has sold 4,000 policies insuring the underinsured against abduction — and even impregnation — by aliens. Only after the Heaven's Gate disciples departed their "vehicles" (which we less enlightened folk call bodies), intending to regroup aboard the space ship that was toddling along behind Comet Hale-Bopp, did the insurance company finally cancel its policies.

In his role as Fox Mulder on The X-Files, the unquestioned flagship of alien lovers and paranoid conspiracy theorists, David Duchovny has become the mouthpiece of the aliens-among-us crowd. The poster on the wall behind Mulder's desk says it all: I WANT TO BELIEVE.

What is it exactly that believers want to believe? Apparently they aren't particular. Consider the results of a poll reported in USA Today in July 1997. The survey, intended to contrast the views of X-Files fans with nonwatchers, incidentally revealed our fuzzy thinking about aliens. It turns out 79 percent of X-philes believe the U.S. government is hiding evidence of aliens in outer space — yet only 64 percent believe there are intelligent beings out there in the first place. Only 45 percent of non-viewers believe there are aliens, yet 82 percent insist that there is a coverup. A coverup of what?

In short, a great many people believe that all the governments of Earth are joining in unprecedented harmony to hide evidence that alien travel agents are selling tours of the third rock from the sun. These are the governments that can't even agree on when to discuss global warming. Yet in spite of all this unprecedented cooperation, the sneaky governments of the world are failing: We all know about the aliens anyway.

The Unnoticed End

The problem with most prophecy is that it's so vague. We don't need to know that in the end times, the world will be a mess — the world has always been a mess! We need to know that at precisely 3:17 p.m. next Thursday, we should not be in the 7-Eleven on 21st Avenue because a meteor will hit it.

Some prophets understand this problem and decide to be very precise in their forecast. The result is more entertaining and suspenseful, but the risks are fierce: Inevitably, when you go around predicting the end of the world, if you aren't right on schedule, you lose face with the public, your followers and even your-

City with a thermonuclear bomb on Sept. 4, 1993.

As you may recall, no such thing happened. Three weeks after the date appointed, Chase admitted that he had overlooked 40 days. Therefore the new date was Oct. 14, 1993. Two weeks after this second nonevent, Chase got defensive: "We didn't make a mistake, not even a teeny eeny one!" He set a new date of March 23, 1994.

In April, with New York still standing, Chase did some spin-doctoring worthy of the White House: "All the dates we have given in our past releases are correct." But new figures revised the date to May 2, 1994. A next announcement, in October, predicting the end on Nov. 26, 1994, appended the proviso "give or take a week or two."

Chase added the ridiculous claim: "We have a 100 percent track record!"

One good thing about precise dates is that they pave the way for merchandising. If the millennial fervor in the business world today is any hint, savvy entrepreneurs probably tried to make a buck on the Millerites, too. Homo sapiens, after all, is Latin for "the animal that always finds a way to cash in."

No doubt when the Millerites were gathering on hillsides in the 19th century, there were people there selling them nice new white robes. And probably they marked them 75 percent off the day afterward, when this confusing, frightening old world kept on going the same as ever — much to everyone's disappointment. ■ self. This has happened so many times throughout history that you'd think sooner or later the prophets would learn a lesson.

In the 1820s, William Miller preached that the return of Christ was imminent. He made intricate calculations based upon the theory that the Earth had been created in 4004 B.C. but assuming earlier scholars had made mistakes in their chronologies. He took it upon himself to correct these errors and published his own version in 1832. The next year a meteor was seen as a sign that God was moving along according to plan.

Finally Miller announced that "sometime between March 21, 1843, and March 21, 1844, Christ will come and bring all his saints with him."

When the world didn't end, many followers abandoned Miller. But the most devout determined to figure out where the mistake was. Finally one of Miller's colleagues announced that the Lord would return precisely on Oct. 22, 1843.

Then came what believers called The Great Disappointment. In one of the strangest episodes in the parade of folly we call history, thousands of Millerite faithful in different areas gathered on hillsides to await the Lord's return. When the day was over and Jesus had not come for them, they lay down and wept.

The scene is both sad and comic. Instead of leading his followers skyward, Miller wound up as the butt of jokes. The movement was the first to be roundly dismissed as a farce by most of the public, who taunted Millerites unmercifully: "What! Not gone up yet? We thought you'd gone up!"

Some would-be prophets learned from this famous example. Many did not. To take a more recent example, consider the frequently revised predictions of doom announced by Baha'is Under the Provisions of the Covenant in the early 1990s. Their spokesman, Neal Chase, claimed his organization had predicted the World Trade Center bombing down to the very second. (Unfortunately it failed to announce this in advance.) Now, thanks to a careful analysis of the book of Ezekiel, they were prepared to predict "the date for the big one."

Chase predicted that Saddam Hussein would destroy New York

Eyes wide open

Howard Hawks' The Big Sleep (1946) is a special kind of movie classic. It doesn't make much sense. (Even scripter William Faulkner — yes, that William Faulkner — confessed he didn't fully understand the story.) It doesn't need to, however — it's so full of perverse little treasures that "arbitrary" scenes justify themselves.

Humphrey Bogart, at his peak, portrays Raymond Chandler's private-eye con-coction; Lauren Bacall is a society slut; and even cult-fave Elisha Cook Jr. is here — in addition to a thumb-sucking nymphomaniac, a shady bookseller and assorted corrupt types.

This is, above all, a study of human corruption, covered up by money or emotional blackmail. In the center of all this — smoking and cracking wise — is Bogie's private-dick figure, a knight-errant in a corrosive, hangover-ridden world where everyone — but everyone — has something (or someone) to hide.

The dialogue is double-entendre, and scriptwriter Faulkner has a field day tweaking the (blue) noses of film censors. Look and listen carefully; over in some aural or visual corner, something naughty is happening — and being gloated over just a bit. Good fun. —Bob Green Movie Museum, 3566 Harding Ave.: Sun 1/3, 3, 5:30 & 8 p.m.; Mon 1/4, 5:30 & 8 p.m. $5 general, $4 members. 735-8771.

Concerts

Ring in the year

Along with the usual ozoni and kadomatsu, New Year's week brings to Honolulu the much-anticipated world premiere of Takeo Kudo's brilliant new composition for taiko and orchestra, "Let Freedom

Ring." Written for taiko master Kenny Endo, the piece explores Kudo's and Endo's shared interest in East-West musical fusion. It also allows Endo a rare chance to perform with full orchestral backing, reinforcing once again why he is one of Hawai'i's leading musicians in any genre. And it allows Kudo, one of our leading composers, a great vehicle with which to examine the inherently dramatic theme of Japanese-American internment.

Divided into three sections, the piece expertly contrasts serenity and agitation, irony and idealism, pain and hope. Quotations from "My Country 'Tis of Thee" (hence the title) and "Kimi-gayo"

(Japan's national anthem) weave throughout. The Honolulu Symphony provides Western sonorities, while Endo performs on kot-suzumi (hourglass hand drum), shime-daiko (lash-rope stick drum) and o-daiko (large shrine drum). For Kudo, the drums are at the center of the work. They serve as powerful symbols of cultural resilience and the human heart yearning to be free.

Endo spent most of 1998 on the road. He is especially happy to come home for this project. "I have a lot of respect for Takeo as a musician and as a friend," he says. "I'm really honored he would write something for me. It's a really incredible composition. I just want to do justice to it." Although it comes so early in the year, the debut of "Let Freedom Ring" promises to be one of 1999's highlights. Don't miss it.

Also on the program: Berlioz's explosively Romantic masterpiece, "Symphonie Fantastique." Inspired by DeQuincey's "Confessions of an English Opium Eater" and the composer's own obsession with an actress, the piece is a marvel of orchestration and emotion. The gorgeous main theme (reworked in all five movements) and the swirling, hysterical climaxes in the allegro help make it enormously popular, even with the "Just Say No" set, who miss most of the hidden meaning. —J.W. Junker Blaisdell Concert Hall, 777 Ward Ave.: Sun 1/3, 4 p.m.; Tue 1/5, 7:30 p.m. $15 - $50. 538-8863.

Mighty Aphrodite

Well, party hats off once again to DJ G-Spot and the fine folks at Double-O-Spot productions for landing another International Man of Musicy (or somethin' like that). This week, G and Co. bring on Aphrodite, the London based boy-wonder producer/DJ specializing in the "jump-up" style — that is, hip hop-influenced street jungle (this, as opposed to the better known — or at least better hyped — "intelligent" jungle acts like Grooverider, Goldie or Photek.)

Joining Aphrodite for his Honolulu stop are locals Core-e, 4est and Mase, Bassment Addicts, Danny Boy, Murillo, Spy Hunter and others.

Atomik, 142 Mokauea St.: Sat 1/2, 10 p.m. - 4 a.m. $10 - $15. 591-3500.

The Scene

Like, it's 1999

You may be asking yourself how we, the arbiters of style, taste and good table manners for the greater Honolulu area, are planning to welcome in the New Year. Blowing stuff up? Possibly. Gettin' jiggy with our various and sundry love bunnies? Absolutely. Atoning for our past year's transgressions? Heeeyeeck no!

Actually, most of the swinging Weekly staffers are going to spend the night at home with a few close friends — "home," in this instance being the Chinatown area, which not only serves as home port for our little ship of fools but also for at least two of the cooler events of The Eve.

You want style, you want taste? Celebrate the opening of Fashion Victim II, Sisu Gallery's newest installation, at the show's informal (also formal and semiformal) opening party.

Part of the reason we're big on the show is that it delves into the assorted meanings underlying our fashion choices; part of it is that Sisu has gone nonprofit and deserves the support. But mostly, it's just a very strong collection, and it features works by a few of our extended family of contributing writers, artists and photographers, along with people we just plain think are cool: Lynda Hess' giant (61- by 84-inch) "Bloodlines" is a show-stopper, the surreal oil-on-unstretched-canvas ode to Princess Di (complete with a thorny crown of blood-oozing cameras) being reminiscent of the work of Frida Kahlo. More: a fine oil-on-wood piece by Linda Fong; a chakra-inspired set of bronze sculptures by Kim Duffett (in which the various power points on the naked statues are represented by drawers that open to reveal some fine surprises); a Pegge Hopper painting you might not expect; a steel sculpture by Tae Kitakata that gives a new meaning to the term "fashion plate"; and too much more to mention.

clubbed to DEATH

Whipping in the Year

I was dreaming when I wrote this, so sue me if it goes astray. Here are your best choices for New Year's Eve:

Gimps of the world, unite! What better way to ring out the old and bring in the new than by spending an hour or two strapped to the old cross of pain? Of course, I'm talking about the infamous Dungeon. For the uninitiated, the Dungeon isn't a real dungeon, à la the grimy basement-of-the-castle situation where people would hang by their wrists for eight or nine years for sneezing in the presence of the king. The Dungeon is a make-believe torture chamber, where the people hanging for extended periods of time do so because they like it. The word on the street is that there is no better way to get in touch with your inner gimp than by spending an evening at the Dungeon.

(Aside: Speaking of inner gimps, I had a neighbor recently who got in touch with his inner gimp — I guess you could say he was a closeted gimp. At least, I think it was him; it was definitely someone from his house. ... It was hard to say exactly who was inside the gimp suit. Regardless of exactly who it was, the person came out of the closet and came over to our house. Of course, we couldn't understand what he was saying with the zipper over his mouth, and his hands were cuffed, but it sounded something like "Help!" I just laughed and punched him in the gut and said, "Beat it, ya weirdo!")

Anyhoo, The Dungeon promises the following: gigantic visuals; bizarre performances; a starlit flogging tower (sounds romantic!); five (that's right, five!) rooms of erotic torture; six hours of industrial-strength music and bondage (captains of industrial-strength bondage, unite!); a VIP room (but if you're hearing about the VIP room for the first time here, it pretty much guarantees you're not a VIP); slave stocks (the flyer isn't clear if that means stocks as in stockade or they have slaves in stock — either way, I'd like to remind everyone that slavery is a violation of the 14th amendment); a wooden cross; a steel crucifix; a fetish playroom; dungeon vendors (whips, chains, peanuts, probes, sodas, candy, handcuffs) and Black Bible CD samplers from Cleopatra.

But that's not all; hell no. Also for your pleasure: extra bathrooms (added just for this event); New Year's party favors for everyone and (here's the kicker), chained from the rafters, live flesh hook suspensions by Gus, starting at midnight. I've seen Gus do his suspension thing — believe me, he makes A Man Called Horse look like a man called wuss. The location is underground, but you can find out where by calling 534-5523.

Mad Hatter's Ball: Ever wonder why the Mad Hatter was mad? Mercury poisoning. That's what I learned when I did a research project on Alice in Wonderland in high school. I figured Lewis Carrol, the author, must have been on opium, but I discovered he wasn't — he just really, really liked to hang out with little girls. Anyway ... his imagination will be the inspiration for the New Year's shindig at the Wave this year. On the bill are the ever popular Surf Psycho Sexy! And of course, the Wave's supply of wonderful DJs will be rock rock rock rocking the funky beats as well. See you there!

Fashion Victims of the world, unite! Sisu Gallery is throwing a huge opening party at the gallery, at 1160 Nu'uanu. Ask yourself, what is fashion, what is style? (One you can buy; one you can't.) That's what Sisu's Fashion Victim II is all about. The cost of the shindig is a paltry $3 donation, and it goes from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. In short, all the cool people will be there.

Green Room II: Last year, Indigo went off like an illegal firecracker in a mailbox. This year should be even better. I know, because I'm throwing the party for all my friends (that means everyone!) The party will feature two rooms — one house and one hip hop — with Grant, Gary O, Scottie Soul and Erotic. Also, $2 Red Hooks and $3 Cosmopolitans (served from two bars.) Be there or be prepared to listen to your friends talk about it for the next month. Call 521-2900 for the real scoops.

Well, that's more than one night's worth of parties to keep you busy. From my cross of pain to yours, Happy New Year.

On Sale

Celine Dion The ever-charming diva of Titanic fame returns to Honolulu armed with two Oscars, three Grammy's and 15 Juno Awards. She's a genuine pop juggernaut, and you can see why for yourself in the rust-and-plastic-seats charm of Aloha Stadium. Aloha Stadium. Fri 2/12, 8 p.m. $35, $45 and $65. 484-1122

Hapa Greater than the sum of their parts, the multi-Hōkū award winners close the Hawai'i Theatre's Fall Hawaiian Music Series. Hawai'i Theatre, 1130 Bethel St.: Fri 1/8, 8 p.m. $25. 528-0506

Kenny Loggins' Symphony Orchestra Debut Hapa opens this evening of musical firsts. Principal Pops Conductor Matt Catingub is writing all the arrangements for Loggins' performance of recognizable hits, including "Heart to Heart," "Footloose" and "Danny's Song." Tickets available through the Honolulu Symphony Ticket Office only. Waikiki Shell, Kapi'olani Park: Tue 2/9, 7 p.m. $17.50 - $55. 538-8863

Momix This world-renowned troupe is impossible to pigeonhole — part dance, part illusion, always beautiful, always surreal. Moses Pendleton and company bring something special to the stage of our city's grandest venue for two performances. If you like being awe-struck and tickled at the same time, this is a must-see. Hawai'i Theatre, 1130 Bethel St.: Thu 2/19 & Fri 2/20, 8 p.m. $30 & $40. 528-0506

Sharps, Flats and Accidentals The Flying Karamozov Brothers are not brothers, nor are they Russian. They aren't even a trapeze act! They are, however, maybe the funniest thing you have ever seen. Giant xylophones, hip hop ballet, cardboard-box taiko, wild juggling — who knows what they will do? Nobody, that's who: Their acts are largely improvised and each is unique, so chances are they'll be as surprised as you are! We order you to attend. Hawai'i Theatre, 1130 Bethel St.: Thu 3/19 & Fri 3/20, 8 p.m. $30 & $40. 528-0506

Vans Warped Tour Suicidal Tendencies, MXPX, Hepcat, Cherry Poppin' Daddies, Pennywise, 22 Jacks and Less than Jake are the pros gracing us with their presence. Five local bands keep the tunes flowing. Professional skaters/BMXers Mike Frazier, Rick Thorne, Neal Hendrix, Steve Caballero, Joe Rich and Brian Howard will also be on hand. Tickets available at Tower Records, Radio Free Music Center, Hungry Ear Records, and all Connection outlets. Waimānalo Polo Field, Kam Hwy., across from Bellows AFB: Sat 1/23. $25. 545-4000

Theater & Dance

Make Your Own Kind of Music Spiritual Cabaret? Well, with Matt Yee at the helm, who knows. The award-winning performer teams up with Kumu Hula Brad Lum for a night of chants, music, laughs, hula and storytelling in celebration of the new millennium. Mixed plate, anyone? Unity Church of Hawai'i, 3608 Diamond Head Cir.: Fri 1/1, 7:30 p.m. $10 advance; $15 door. 735-4436

Filipino Americans in Hawai'i: A Celebration of Courage, Service and Achievement What brought the first Filipino workers to the plantations? And what values drove them to move from cane fields to the governor's mansion? Look into an early plantation home and see a sample of the gardens that provide the ingredients for delicious Filipino foods. Learn the tinikling, the Filipino bamboo dance that imitates movements of birds in the rice fields. Displays, video presentations, audio recordings and demonstrations feature special people and special celebrations. Through 2/28.

Get It Together at Star Station One A 1/144th scale high-fidelity display model of the International Space Station and a 1/50th scale "build as you go" hands-on model, demonstrate how the Space Station is actually being built in orbit. Daily demonstrations offer the opportunity to dock a piece of the space station, join two components while blindfolded and create a massive meteor storm. Through 2001.

Paddling Hawai'i reflects the excitement and details the practical concerns of kayak adventuring throughout the Islands.

JESSICA LITTLE

From the isolated, waterfall-laced valleys of Northern Moloka'i to the barren regions of the Big Island, where fresh rocks meet turbulent seas, Audrey Sutherland's new book, Paddling Hawai'i, guides kayakers to coastlines that only handfuls of people have ever seen.

Sutherland is an experienced kayaker, especially in the open ocean surrounding the Hawaiian islands. She's able to recall her adventures with eloquence and wisdom throughout the pages of this book. Her love of bathing in waterfalls, eating like a rugged queen and snorkeling in crystalline waters, is reflected in this book, and her descriptions give a kayaking adventure the sheen of a luxury voyage. She includes many an enjoyable anecdote, too — such as the recounting of the time when she and grandson Matt were paddling in the bay outside Hale'iwa Beach Park and changed places with two on a canoe crew: "After the swap, as we swung into the cadence of the stroke, 14 on the right, 14 on the left, Matt and I were proud when the captain yelled, 'Eh, da boy and da granny, day strong. We no like change back!'"

The organization of Paddling Hawai'i is simple and straightforward. Sutherland guides readers through 26 Hawaiian routes. Each trip is analyzed and rated based on levels of danger involved and experience required. Almost every coast of each island is discussed, with emphasis placed on the well-known feared foes of paddlers: wind direction and velocity.

Sutherland brightly plans most trips with the wind to help paddlers and to avoid sending novices straight out to sea. Trips are mapped out based on feasible landings. This gives readers the opportunity to decide for themselves where they want to put in their kayaks or take them out along a coastal stretch. Many options are presented for trips, including day trips to offshore islets or from beach to beach, and for week-long kayaking and camping adventures.

Perhaps the most useful part of Sutherland's guide is her first section, which includes information and tips on gear and safety. Sutherland ingeniously reuses common household trash for her trips; it's amazing how many different ways she can use a liner from boxed wine. (As a cushion, "It's great also for football games and dull lectures," she writes.) She carries with her many safety items that even the experienced paddler may not have thought to bring along, including a multipurpose life line that acts as a seat belt, a tow line and a handle for flipping a capsized boat.

This is not the only information you'll find here, though. Chapter 5, "Food: From Land and Sea to Haute Cuisine," gives advice for gourmet foraging and packing in grand meals.

Although the guide focuses on inflatable kayaking and camping trips, enough emphasis is placed on other aspects of the adventure. Whatever your paddling ability or motivation for paddling, it's safe to say that Sutherland has had some common experiences and will give you some advice for avoiding potential disasters — whether they be in the form of serious problems like rocky, treacherous landing spots or annoying nuisances like getting drenched in mauka showers. Her book provides an entertaining and informative resource for all types of paddlers. ■

Kids

Family Fishing Days When we were kids, going fishing for the first time was a magical experience. The thrill of the hunt, the struggle, reeling in your very first fish ... throwing it back. (Who wants to clean it anyway?) There'll be tilapia a-plenty for junior anglers this weekend — just bring a bamboo pole, barbless hooks, bait and buckets. Bug spray, a raincoat and lunch recommended. Ho'omaluhia Botanical Garden, 45-680 Luluku Rd., Kāne'ohe: 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. Free. 233-7323

Volunteer

Hanauma Bay Education Program The HBEP is a nonprofit, volunteer-based organization meant to enhance appreciation and promote stewardship of Hanauma Bay and coral reefs of Hawai'i through public education. The HBEP is seeking volunteers to staff its beach desk and visitor's center at the bay. Duties include leading interpretive talks covering history, natural history and water safety; answering general questions from visitors; and promoting good environmental etiquette. May involve some lifting and much time in the sun. Contact Jeff Kuwabara for more information. Hanauma Bay Educational Programs, Hanauma Bay: 396-1319

Pu'u Ka'ala Hike The view from atop Mt. Ka'ala, the highest point on O'ahu, is incredible to say the least — and it had better be 'cause this is one mean hike! Be ready to climb 4,000 feet over 11 miles ... in other words, be in good shape. You'll be rewarded by awesome vistas, rare native plants and other good stuff. Bring binoculars and plenty of water. Gay and Lesbian Community Center, YWCA, 1566 Wilder Ave.: Sun 1/3, 8 a.m. Free. 951-7000

Politics

1999 Neighborhood Board Elections All O'ahu residents may file to be candidates in the elections, which will be conducted through a mail in ballot system. Elected Board members are volunteers who begin a two year term June 1, 1999. Neighborhood Board Elections. Filing deadline, 1/19. Free. 527-5579

Tube & Radio

Everest — The Death Zone Television is great: We can sit in our living room and watch spellbound while crazy people do crazy things that we would never, ever do — like climbing Mt. Everest. Follow in the footsteps of a doomed expedition, one that cost 11 experienced climbers their lives in 1996, as NOVA explores the physiology and psychology of life and death on the roof of the world. We'll take the escalator. Hawai'i Public Television, KHET-11: Tue 1/5, 8 p.m. 973-1991

Hawaiian Voices: Bridging Past to Present See story on Page 13. KHON Fox 2. Fri 1/1, 9 p.m.; Sun 1/10, 4 p.m. 591-2222

Highly recommended. Hawai'i Public Television, KHET-11: Sat 1/2, 8 p.m. 973-1991

Grassroots

Call for Grant Proposals Sometimes we have weird, inspired ideas about how to enact some positive changes in our world. But these kinds of things take cash, and cash is hard to come by, especially if your idea is considered, uh, radical. If you have creative, empowering ideas on how to combat poverty, social injustice and the like, send a grant proposal to the People's Fund — you might be pleasantly surprised. Deadline for applying is 3/5. Call Cha Smith for more info. The People's Fund, 1325 Nu'uuanu Ave, Room 207 Honolulu, HI 96817: Through Fri 3/5 526-2441

Submissions

"The Scene" provides groups and individuals with free listings of community events, activities and entertainment. Calendar submissions must include the following:

- Date and time;
- Location (include a street address);
- Cost or admission price (please note if event is free);
- Contact phone number;
- Description of the event. If submitting an entry to the music section, include the general type of music (rock, Hawaiian, etc.)

Deadline for "The Scene" submissions is two weeks before the listing should appear. Listings appear the last Wednesday before the event.

Send all submissions c/o Honolulu Weekly Calendar Editor, 1200 College Walk, #214, Honolulu, HI 96817, or fax to: 528-3144. Submissions are not accepted over the phone. Please note: We welcome photographs with submissions, but cannot guarantee returns — please do not send original art.

Hawaiian Voices, Eddie and Myrna Kamae's latest film, makes its television debut this week.

Full Circle

Lilia Wahinemaika'i Hale embodies the past, present and future of Hawaiian language and culture.

SHARLA MANLEY

Oral tradition has found a new outlet. With a slate of six documentaries under his belt and two more currently in production, legendary composer and musician Eddie Kamae has made film the new conduit for Hawaiian culture. His most recent work, Hawaiian Voices: Bridging Past to Present, is a tribute to kūpuna and Hawaiian language.

In the film, Ruth Makaila Kaholōa'a of the Big Island, Lilia Wahinemaika'i Hale of O'ahu and the late Reverend David "Kawika" Ka'alakea of Maui talk about the importance of work, education and love. And they do so mostly in Hawaiian.

Spending the day with Lilia Hale — Mama Hale, as she is affectionately called — I realized the significance of Kamae's mission. I have never met anyone like Mama Hale, and the tragedy is that it's possible I never will again. When we were introduced, the 85-year-old kūpuna squeezed my hand with a warmth and vigor that took me by surprise. Throughout most of the day we sat hand in hand, that warm energy always there in her palm. She unconditionally embraced me with her spirit, as she did everyone else we came across that day.

My experience with Mama Hale points to a certain sad truth: While Kamae has made a beautiful film, it just can't beat the real thing. As Kamae himself says in Hawaiian Voices, Mama Hale is the embodiment of the soul of Hawai'i. She has so much love to offer, along with a wisdom that's timeless and irreplaceable. The energy and life that is Mama Hale cannot be completely communicated through a screen — and though Kamae's films are essential documents of a vanishing era, if Hawaiian efforts at self-determination and cultural preservation do not definitively succeed, the loss of everything that Mama Hale embodies will be beyond comprehension.

Mama Hale had her own thoughts on what people could get out of watching Hawaiian Voices. She says the film is significant because she and her costars speak Hawaiian as it was traditionally spoken in the Islands. "They (the audience) are hearing the language, the way it was spoken, all the time. Now, it's not the same. You notice? You hear the language? You should listen to the university, when they speak Hawaiian — different."

One example Mama Hale gives is the greeting "Aloha Kakahiaka."

"Today everybody say that. They think it's nice. But you're saying 'I love you this morning.' You supposed to be talking to me, not to time of the day. My name is not 'Kakahiaka,'" she insists, asserting that one should instead say "Aloha Mai."

"Hawaiians really had a command of language," says Mama Hale. "Even in their songs — when they compose the songs, very intimate. Could be so intimate that you wouldn't even know it. And it's not vulgar."

Mama Hale also likes the film because she feels that Kamae accurately represents Hawaiians by allowing them to speak for themselves.

"Eddie don't tell you what to say. When he comes to our kūpuna, he accepts what they say. So that's why it's authentic. That's why I say it's not made up, written up, rewrite. Nothing is rewritten here. Exactly how. You see how we talking up there [in the film], everybody talking one time? Now somebody say, 'now we gotta make that where they can hear you.' No ways! That's Hawaiian way, everybody talking one time.

"Eddie is doing a good thing," she continues. "He has a very, very gentleman way."

Hawaiian Voices also makes a subtle point about the Hawaiian politics of identity, opening the film and framing the life experiences and wisdom of the three kūpuna with the song "He Lei No Ka Po'e Aloha 'Āina." Today, many people interpret "Kaulana Nā Pua" to be a song of protest against the overthrow of the monarchy, but Kamae says he picked the composition because he wanted people to look at it differently. He feels that it is a misnomer to call the song a protest, because "Hawaiians don't write songs of protest."

The song — which has come to be known as "Kaulana Nā Pua" — was written by composer Ellen Keho'ohiwaokalani Prendergast in 1893, after the overthrow of the Hawaiian monarchy. At the time, the white provisional government tried to secure its hold on power by offering influential Hawaiians money to sign an oath of loyalty to the new government. The Royal Hawaiian Band was approached. Instead of signing, band members went to Prendergast. After meeting with the musicians, Prendergast wrote this song, which pledged loyalty to Lili'uokalani and asserted that Hawaiians preferred the stones of the land to the money of the provisional government.

Kamae feels that the song has been misappropriated. "In this case, people are going to use the song and twist it. I thought I'd best stop this whole nonsense in a positive way with three kūpuna." He says these kūpuna give the message that the three important things in life are work, education and love, and that these are the things that Hawaiians should be focusing their attention on today.

In essence, more than looking at the song differently, Kamae wants Hawaiians to be looking at politics differently. "I used the song to say it's time to stop fighting, to stop blaming the missionaries; put a stop to it because time is important and precious."

Myrna Kamae, who has worked as producer on each of the six documentaries, explains that Hawaiian Voices' use of "Kaulana Nā Pua" looks at the stones as they relate to the strength of the Hawaiian people — noting that she and her husband focus their filmmaking on beauty and culture.

"It (Hawaiian culture) is not something to exclude people. It's a circle where everyone has a place." ■

Film

Unattributed film synopses indicate movies not yet reviewed by HW staff.

☛ A Bug's Life Disney's answer to Antz, starring the voices of Dave Foley and Kevin Spacey. Recommended for computer animation at a new level of sophistication (and not so much for a story that plays out at Disney's usual level of sophistication).

☛ Elizabeth Weeeeellll, sort of. Cate Blanchett makes one hell of a Virgin Queen, and it's awful purty to look at, but something's missing — namely, a sense of what's going on for anyone who doesn't quite have the history of the Elizabethan Age at their mental fingertips. If not, certain of the plot's machinations might not make too much sense. For those in the know — or those just looking for a decent, rainy-day diversion — it's pretty neat-o revisionist filmmaking.

☛ Enemy of the State Beautifully paced, with a serviceable chestnut of a story, Enemy of the State is nearly all chase, tricked out with a dazzling array of the newest in electronic-surveillance devices. It's a real millennium movie: little snippets of humanity (actors have no more than 90 seconds of dialogue to suggest their characters), mucho hardware, breakneck pace and a little message about the sacredness of privacy in The Home. (Reviewed 11/25) —Bob Green

Hidden Hawai'i An IMAX tourist-oriented tour of the Islands, featuring a Big Island volcano, a rain forest, Haleakala and the birth pangs of Lōihi. Luckily for us, it has an environmental theme and does an OK job, as far as it goes.

I'll Be Home For Christmas And you wonder why we hate the holidays. ... Jonathan

Taylor Thomas strikes again.

Jack Frost Michael Keaton comes back as a snow man in this holiday frolic.

Meet Joe Black Say it again: Brad = Death.

Mighty Joe Young Disney's big monkey.

Mysteries of Egypt National Geographic enters the Big Time with its first IMAX film. Omar Sharif plays a grandfather telling the story of the discovery of King Tut's tomb.

Patch Adams Robin Williams gets back to comedy in this true-life story of an unconventional doctor who believes that the best medicine is laughter.

Psycho Director Gus Van Sant, for all his love of Hitchcock's original film, just doesn't seem to get it in this shot-by-shot remake: Without the surprise of the original plot (Janet Leigh, a major star, killed onscreen in the first third of the movie), two superbly rendered murders, voyeuristic detail that makes the audiences accomplices (unwitting, at first) and terrific chemistry between Leigh and Anthony Perkins, the new Psycho has the same stature of a paint by numbers rendition of a classic painting. (Reviewed 12/9) —B.G.

Ring of Fire The history of volcanoes and earthquakes in the Pacific Rim is told in this explosive documentary. The lava footage shot here in Hawai'i nei is spectacular; some of the other sequences seem like a waste of this big and loud format. — Bob Green

☛ Shakespeare in Love See review on Page 15.

Star Trek: Insurrection There have been worse movies in the Star Trek franchise, but it is hard to find one that is as tired and as lazily assembled as this one. The plot — planet of innocents in trouble, Fountain of Youth, evil-n-ugly aliens after the goods — is older than DeForest Kelly and not nearly as much fun. Too bad: The Franchise has given us some wild rides — The Wrath of Khan was one of the coolest movies ever — but it appears to be all over. Future films will now meekly go where all of the Star Trek stories have gone before. (Reviewed 12/23) —David K. Choo

Stepmom A four-hankie weeper with Susan Sarandon and Julia Roberts. Ed Harris is around too, the male counterpart to Rene Russo in American film.

The Faculty See review on Page 15.

☛ The Prince Of Egypt The second blockbuster of the season from DreamWorks — tackling the Biblical story of Moses — is the first American animated feature in years to target an adult audience, with three-dimensional characters and a complex plot peppered with compelling drama. Kiddies may find the tragedy of the two brothers a bit slow — a speed bump between animated wonders — but adults may see it as an embarrassment of riches. Despite this complication, the story picks up momentum again and culminates in a jaw-dropping parting of the seas finale that is, well, a religious experience. (Reviewed 12/23) —D.K.C.

The Rugrats Movie You know who they are, and this one's for them.

The Waterboy Adam Sandler strikes again. Don't say you weren't warned. Whales Big screen, big subject: this IMAX neck-bender sets you among pods of blue, humpback and orca whales, as well as other denizens of the big blue. — Stu Dawns You've Got Mail Writer-directrix Nora Ephron updates Jimmy Stewart's The Shop Around the Corner, with Tom Hanks (who else?) and Meg Ryan. It will warm the cockles of your heart and the shekels of the box-office.

Short Runs, Art & Revival Houses

Concert of Wills: Making the Getty Center (1998) How Los Angeles' Getty Museum was realized — philosophically and architecturally. Twelve years in the making, the museum (now open) is world-class, opulent ... and controversial. The first in an interesting slate of films on architecture, running through January at the Academy of Arts.

☛ Cool Hand Luke (1967) "What we got here is a failure to communicate," says the sleazy work-warden to various chain-gang inmates, among them Paul Newman. The movie communicates plenty, however, and it was one of Newman's biggest hits. Directed by Stuart Rosenberg. Recommended.

☛ The Big Sleep (1946) See Film Pick on Page 8.

☛ The Chambermaid on the Titanic (France, 1998) Bigas Luna directed this romance-fantasy with the hunky Olivier Martinez (The Horseman on the Roof). This is a good little movie — lush and ultra romantic — but it sank without a trace at the box-office.

☛ The Knowledge of Healing (Switzerland, 1996) Alternative medicine, Eastern division. Filmster Franz Reichle traveled to India, Siberia, Central Europe and Israel to document herbal medicine prep and to explain notions of bodily energies flowing through us, as opposed to the West's mechanistic point-of-view. The film, which now has cult status, is narrated by Tenzin Choedrak, personal physician to the Dalai Lama. ■

Film

Fine Folly

DAVID K. CHOO

William Shakespeare has writer's block. His latest comedy, Romeo and Ethel: The Pirate's Daughter just isn't coming together. Deadlines loom close, careers are in jeopardy, lives could be cut short. But nothing seems to work: He is hopelessly stuck.

Then Shakespeare spots Viola — a young, beautiful, theater-loving courtesan — and his creative fires are rekindled. The words flow easily. On another day, Viola disguises herself as a young boy and auditions for a part in Will's furiously written play. It is her chance to be a part of an artform she loves deeply, an opportunity to be close to the man and his words that she can't live without. When Shakespeare discovers the charade, the pair begin a torrid affair that produces uncommon emotions and uncommonly great art.

On the surface, Shakespeare in Love may sound like another example of recycled culture, in which a lazy "artist" fills in the blanks, changes the setting, adds a different beat and piggybacks on the same old song and dance. But this lovely little fable of a film is wholly original, using Shakespeare and his works as a jumping off point, not a road map. The tale swings from searing melodrama to bawdy comedy and back again, always with tongue placed firmly in cheek.

This can be pretty heady stuff, and can be enjoyed on several levels. I'm sure Shakespeare scholars and English majors will have a deeper appreciation of some of the intricacies of the story (depending on their sense of humor), but speaking as someone who hasn't cracked open one of the Bard's works since college, I thoroughly enjoyed the story at face value. The histories may have been tinkered with a little, but the emotions here are genuine.

About halfway through, there is a sexy and exciting sequence (in which life imitates art and art imitates life all at once) that is one of the most exhilarating things seen all year. Later on, when the finished play (Romeo and Juliet) is finally produced, it is performed with such great urgency and emotion that we wonder on which side of the curtain lies the greater tragedy and passion.

Much of the credit for the success of this film has to go to its two stars, who produce heat somewhere near the temperature of nuclear fusion. Gwyneth Paltrow is terrific, giving a small, unmannered performance that sneaks up on you. She leaves all the fireworks for Joseph Fiennes, who smolders, playing Shakespeare as some sort of manic-depressive genius with an attention-deficit disorder. Fiennes soars, Fiennes plummets, Fiennes fills up the screen. This guy has a future. Put him at the bow of a doomed ocean liner, and we're talking superstar. ■

Aliens Ate My Homework

BOB GREEN

Things are not Way Cool at little old hormone-raging Herrington High School (here played by buildings in Austin, Texas, where a horror-flick should be a natural). For one thing, the nose candy hawked to his fellows by hunky, brooding Zeke — Our Hero-to-be — is found to be crushed caffeine tablets, which in Hollywood logic, makes everything OK. The new chick from way out of town (from way, way out of town, it turns out), is pegged for a brooding dyke. Hollywood-system logic: Why else would she wear raccoon-like makeup?

New material (sexual orientation, crummy diction, quantum physics, alien football coach) is introduced into a by-the-numbers story, peppered throughout it, and then turned into stereotype and brain-dead cliché. And that's not all that's monstrous about The Faculty.

Parasite Aliens (not a retro-rock group at the dance) have taken over the bodies of administration (Bebe Neuwirth, tall and creepy) and faculty (slacker-bearded Jon Stewart and winter-weight Piper Laurie among them). Soon they'll take over the student body, too. And tomorrow The World. As we all know, a small-city zoo/high school is the ideal springboard for world conquest. So here the aliens are. Don't ask why.

Which of us didn't wonder whether our high school teachers were from another planet? (What were they talking about, anyway?) Irresistible concept, fumbled on the 40 yard line. Still, released during school break (opening on Christmas day), the thing will make a zillion dollars: It's a pretty dull movie, but the monster is cool, and maybe that's enough.

The movie also has a pedigree — and a past. Written by Kevin Williamson (of the Scream movies, which made him a millionaire), this thing scavenges old horror, sci-fi and scare movies (ones its target audience haven't seen) and runs with them (well and not-so-well). Think Invasion of the Body Snatchers, all three versions. Think high school schlock movies, where things climax, as it were, in the gym. Think fine, young Flesh. Think box office.

Operating with the same uninspired efficiency as the best hooker in Waikiki, the movie abandons its basic premises, cheats at every turn, botches when it tries to get at Loss of Trust among high school friends (truly horrifying) and paints-by-the-numbers when it turns to its monster stuff (not horrifying enough). The monster is cool at the school pool, and in the aforementioned gym (about five minutes total), where it has bleacher trouble.

Do the teens rout the huge, computer-generated monster? Is the world made safe for high school once more? Is the dyke really straight? (Of course, she's a parasitic fiend, but ... you know.) Does something explode big time near the end? Do certain bodies writhe, shrivel, foam, curdle and, as we Americans say, degrade? Does Zeke turn out to be Real Sweet? Does the coach get dis-Possessed? Can we say the word "sequel," boys and girls?

Wait till this thing comes out on video: It's a hoot. ■

The Wild Mushroom sprouts large on weekends.

Magic Mushroom

JOHN LUTFEY

Downtown Honolulu is something of a ghost town on weekends. Most businesses and eateries are closed, but you can still find life-a-plenty at Bishop Street's YWCA. While Café Laniākea holds court there on weekdays, the same space becomes The Wild Mushroom for weekend brunch. Same venue; different menu. Soft music, intoxicating aromas and a warm staff provide the perfect setting for a comfortable meal before a Sunday matinee.

Brunch, for me, connotes a lackadaisical day, a time of rest from a busy week; a time to catch up with friends and a time for a very large glass of freshly squeezed orange or carrot juice ($2.75). I also enjoy strong espresso and flavored lattes, but on my visit, I settled for plain coffee, since The Wild Mushroom beverage menu did not yet include these coffee drinks. (I did peek in the kitchen to notice a professional espresso machine, which was promised to be on line soon for cappuccinos and lattes.) Regardless of this blemish, the food menu is where The Wild Mushroom really excels.

The signature entrees immediately caught my attention. Each breakfast platter is a generous feast based with eggs, potatoes and fruit and embellished with such exotic selections as Roast Duck, Chicken Apple Sausage or Prawns and Lobster. My friends and I shared three delicious entrees. First, we chose the Slipper Lobster Tail ($12.25) — a healthy sized, tender lobster tail, accompanied by a Wild Mushroom, Spinach and Harvarti cheese-puff pastry and a side of drawn butter. The pastry was covered by a perfectly poached egg (the yolk being slightly soft) and topped with a zesty Hollandaise sauce. The layers of pastry filling, flaky dough, egg and sauce produced a complex mixture of complementary flavors.

For The Mushroom's version of home fries, potato cubes are first parboiled, then tossed lightly in oil, spiced and roasted. This yields a crusty seal, ensuring a moist center. Try them with the homemade ketchup — a thick, sweet relish. The tasty, melt-in-your-mouth Cream Biscuit originates from a secret recipe, which owner/chef Sean Priester calls "a throwback to how grandma would make them. In fact," he continues, "Everything we serve is made from scratch."

Chunks of fresh fruit finish the mouth-watering presentation. I only wish that the ketchup and drawn butter were served in antique china like the rest of the meal, and not in small plastic cups.

Upon our server's recommendation, we tried the Smoked Salmon Benedict ($11.50), my favorite of the three entrees. Sean marinates the salmon overnight, and then smokes the fillets himself. The sizable portion is served atop caramelized onions and a delectable spinach puff pastry. This time, the poached egg was covered with a tangy, mango hollandaise sauce. Again we had those tasty potatoes and the side of fresh fruit.

The next entree, Grilled Rib-eye Steak ($8.75), came medium at our request. Any steak lover knows that trying to get your steak just the way you like at a restaurant is analogous to ordering fast food on a speakerphone from a drive-through. You order one thing and get another, but you're usually too hungry to send it back. Not here: Our steak came medium, just the way we asked. It was smothered in a deliciously rich, sherry and black peppercorn/shallot gravy. Served with a hefty portion of roasted garlic, bleu cheese mashed potatoes (skin and all), scrambled eggs, fresh fruit and a cream biscuit, this entrée was more than worth its price.

By some error, one of us also ordered crepes (two fillings $5.95, three fillings $6.95, four or more $7.95). We were stuffed by the time they arrived, but everything was so good thus far that we had to try them. With 12 fillings to pick from, we evidently had settled on spinach, mushroom and avocado. The light and fluffy crepes were crammed to the point of exploding with the al dente vegetables.

Had I any space left in my belly, I would have liked to sample the popular Chocolate Chip Pancake ($5.95), served with a luscious Amaretto Mousse Whipped Cream, Chocolate Sauce and Fresh Strawberries. "A dessert in itself," we were told.

Other standard brunch items to save for another time include Southern Spiced Sweet Potato Pancakes with Fresh Fruit and Maple Syrup ($4.95), Baked Sweet Bread French Toast with Brandied Cinnamon Apples, Raisins, Walnuts and Whipped Cream ($4.95) and an assortment of bagels with a wide variety of spreads and sandwiches.

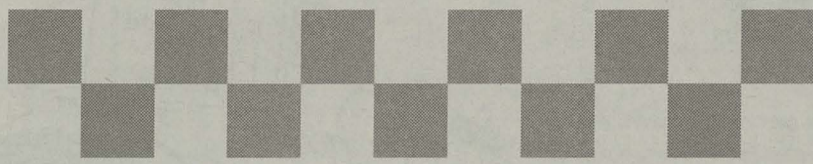

The Wild Mushroom's savory food, enormous portions and friendly staff will easily entice you to return. Furthermore, unlike onweekdays and at some other weekend brunch spots, there are no problems with lines, crowds or parking. See you there next Sunday. ■

AMERICAN

Big City Diner Eat and drink almost anything you want: Salads, sandwiches, great pūpū, a full bar and oldies music makes this a fun destination. (Reviewed 10/7) —Matthew Gray. 3565 Wai'alaie Ave., 735-8855. $, S

Davey Jones' Ribs Oh dear, you're in Waikiki and all of a sudden you feel like barbecue. What to do? Here's the place to munch ribs and chicken while slurping on drinks from a well-stocked bar. (Reviewed 11/18) —Matthew Gray. 250 Levers St., 923-7427. $$, S

Hau Tree Lanai This "island-style" place actually has real ambiance: The restaurant taps into the glamour of Waikiki without becoming lurid. Expect to pay some bucks. (Reviewed 2/12/97) —Joanne Fujita. 2863 Kalākaua Ave., 921-7066. $$, S

Hibiscus Cafe gets its fresh veggies from the 3,000 square-foot hydroponic farm on the hotel's roof, and you can taste the freshness at the salad bar. Poolside, they serve traditional fare with a Pacific twist for breakfast, lunch and dinner. (Reviewed 1/22/97) —Jolyn Okimoto. Waikiki Beachcomber Hotel, 2300 Kalākaua Ave., 922-4646. $, S

La Mariana Restaurant & Bar looks like a set from Hawaii 5-0, and takes its Tiki god and fishnet decor seriously. This is the place to catch utterly unironic kitsch-culture: Fridays and Saturdays, featuring ex-Tahitian Lanai pianist Ron Miyashiro, are a thing of lounge-music beauty. Not really a place to eat, though the food is respectable... more a place to live out a fantasy. (Reviewed 4/29) —Joanne Fujita. 50 Sand Island Access Rd., 848-2800. $$, S

Sunset Grill It looks, sounds and eats like a great yuppie wine bar. Dinner is very good, but appetizers and wine by the glass are even better.

Nice for people-watching, too. (Reviewed 9/9) —Joanne Fujita. Restaurant Row, 500 Ala Moana Blvd., 521-4409. $$$, S, C

W&M Bar-B-Q Burger There's only one type of burger here — the barbecue — and it kicks ass. The hours are painfully short, it's only takeout, but you won't know barbecue burgers till you have one here. There's also a barbecue steak sandwich, and it kicks even harder. (Reviewed 8/5) —Joanne Fujita. 3104 Wai'alaie Ave., 734-3350. $, NS

Waldo's Great Flying Pizza Company Hidden in Mililani Shopping Center, Waldo's is easy to miss. Look hard, though, because Waldo's serves THE best pizza in Hawai'i (and the rest of the menu is pretty darn good, too!) Don't overstuff yourself with their warm, fresh-baked garlic bread because everything ROCKS here! Waldo's will expand, but in the meantime, you can carryout or order to deliver. (Reviewed 10/22/97) —Jolyn Okimoto. Mililani Shopping Center, 623-1923. $

AUSTRALIAN

Outback Steakhouse Do not bring a vegetarian to this steakhouse, unless you are sworn enemies. Compared to other steakhouses, Outback's meals represent a good value, and their steaks are cooked textbook-perfect. Even the steamed veggies are brightly colored and firm, and not treated as a token dish. The portions are also very generous. (Reviewed 10/15/97) —Joanne Fujita. 1765 Ala Moana Blvd., 951-6274. $

CHINESE

The Mandarin Restaurant Come here for the Garlic Prawns and the Braised Eggplant with pork. Special applause for the Mandarin's hot and spicy choices, which are noteworthy for the restaurant's use of fresh chilies. Good service too! (Reviewed 1/14) —Matthew Gray. 725 Kapi'olani Blvd., Unit C123, 593-1188. $$

FRENCH

CliQuo Nestled in 'Āina-Haina is a quiet, elegant little place, whose popularity is spreading by word of mouth. Here, the entree choices range from duck foie gras to rack of lamb, veal chop, roasted scallops and filet mignon. You will applaud the chef after eating the Roasted Breast of Chicken or Filet of 'Ōpakapaka with a ginger beurre blanc sauce. (Reviewed 10/8/97) —Matthew Gray. Niu Valley Shopping Center, 5730 Kalaniana'ole Hwy., 377-8854. $$, NS, C

Le Guignol With Edith Piaf softly crooning in the background, candles on the table and food that is suave and sensual — and sometimes pure poetry — this is the spot for a cozy, intimate dinner. (Reviewed 2/12/97) —Joanne Fujita. 1614 Kalākaua Ave., 947-5525. $$$, S, BYOB, NC

ITALIAN & MEDITERRANEAN

Palomino Euro Bistro A restaurant with the looks of a Jag, performance of a Mercedes, for the price of a Hyundai. Exceptional service, valet parking. (Reviewed 9/17/97) —Joanne Fujita. Harbor Court Mezzanine, 66 Queen St., 528-2400. $$, NS (except in bar)

KOREAN

Han Yang Located in colorful downtown Kalihi, Han Yang is an eatery that has elevated kim chee and namul to an art form. The fascinating fare will take you far beyond the more familiar Korean barbecue, if you dare. (Reviewed 5/13) —Joanne Fujita. 1311 N. King St., Unit 7, 845-3513. $, S

Sorabol Korean Restaurant Open 24 hours a day and sporting a sushi bar, Sorabol serves as a hoibed of FIERY Korean food. Be sure to quench your thirst with bohlee chah (barley tea), and be sure to try the Kal Bi. (Reviewed 12/31) —Matthew Gray. 805 Ke'eaumoku St., 947-3113. $$, S

LOCAL GRINDS

Frank's Palolo Market The best plate lunch in Honolulu, bar none. A full-service grocery store with fresh produce, meat and fish counters, along with a wide array of prepared, ready-to-go items. (Reviewed 1/28) —Matthew Gray. 1829 Palolo Ave., 737-9111. $

Sam Choy's Breakfast, Lunch & Crab Huge portions, the freshest ingredients, inexpensive menu items and an onsite brewery (with David Campbell of 'Oahu Homebrew Supply at the tap) make Choy's latest restaurant one beeg 'āina. Go for crab. (Reviewed 7/2/97) —Joanne Fujita. 580 N. Nimitz Hwy., 545-7979. $, S, C

MEXICAN / CARIBBEAN

Maui Tacos is not for the food-court phobic. If you can brave the mall and the regular, noisy lunch crowd this place draws, you'll find a variety of fresh and relatively healthy Mexican food. (Reviewed 2/19/97) —Jolyn Okimoto. Dole

Cannery, 650 Iwilei Rd., 531-6301. $, NS

Torito's Although the very vinyl landscape may disturb you at first, it nicely compliments the green decor — with a Mexican flag painted on the ceiling and everything. The food at Torito's is made from scratch, even the chips and salsa. (Reviewed 5/21/97) —Jolyn Okimoto. 2919 Kapi'olani Blvd. in Market City Mall, 735-7991. $, NS, BYOB, NC

TAKEOUT

Good To Go A healthful alternative to plate-lunch and fast-food restaurants. Fresh fish, local produce and a menu that changes daily are strong points for this smart take-out shop. (Reviewed 3/4) —Joanne Fujita. 307 Uluniu St., Kailua, 266-4646. $

TEA

Orchids at The Halekulani Hotel. The garden view from Orchids is serene and elegant, another fine spot to load up on finger sandwiches, scones and small desserts. (Reviewed 7/9/97) —Jolyn Okimoto. 2199 Kālia Rd., 923-2311. $$, S

The Banyan Veranda at the Sheraton Moana Surftrider. Afternoon tea: a rare window of leisure reminiscent of a bygone era. The Moana is the perfect spot to cozy up with a friend — and, of course, a wide array of fine teas. (Reviewed 7/9/97) —Jolyn Okimoto. 2365 Kalākaua Ave., 922-3111 (reservations recommended). $$, S

THAI

Chiang Mai Definitely try the Poh Pia (Spring Rolls), which are among the best in town. Avoid the Pad Makheua (Eggplant), though — it may be the worst rendition of an eggplant dish ever. Try the Sticky Rice! (Reviewed 11/10/97) —Matthew Gray. 2239 South King St., 941-1151. $

Mekong II The true test of good Thai is when basic is best. Here, Pad Thai and green papaya salad highlight the menu, along with soups, rice dishes, noodles, curries, seafood and vegetarian dishes that transport you with delicate, clear flavors. (Reviewed 6/25/97) —Matthew Gray. 1726 S. King St., 941-6212. $, S

Phuket Thai Restaurant Where the phat is phat — Phat King (a.k.a. Ginger with String Beans and Chicken) that is. Good service, two full pages of Vegetarian Dishes and some killer curries... but stay away from the fried dishes — they're decent, but not the chef's forte. (Reviewed 9/30) —Eugenie Goodman. 1960 Kapi'olani Blvd., suite 109 (McCully Shopping Center), 942-8194. $, NS

The Straight Dope

Why does a nuclear explosion form a mushroom-shaped cloud? If you would tell me why frantic and furious fusion and fission have a fondness for the fungus form, I would certainly appreciate it.

—Paul Smith, Tampa, Florida

Shame on you, Paul. You know I cringe at F-words. You don't need an atom bomb to make a mushroom cloud, just convection. Mushroom clouds typically occur when an explosion produces a massive fireball. Since the fireball is very hot and thus less dense than the surrounding air, it rises rapidly, forming the cap of the mushroom cloud. In its wake the fireball leaves a column of heated air that acts as a chimney, drawing in smoke and hot gases from ground fires to create the stalk of the mushroom. Since the center is the hottest part of the mushroom cloud, it rises faster than the outer edges, giving the impression that the cap is curling down around the stalk. Thus the familiar fungal form.

Hydrogen bomb explosions are so huge that the cloud may reach the tropopause, the boundary in the atmosphere where the temperature begins to rise sharply. The cloud generally can't break through this, and the top flattens out, producing an especially pronounced mushroom shape. (The tropopause also forms a ceiling for thunderheads, producing their anvil shape.)

Mushroom clouds aren't necessarily big. One of the Teeming Millions tells me he once set off a carbide noisemaker-type cannon with the igniter mechanism removed. Out of the hole where the igniter was supposed to go there issued a 10-inch mushroom cloud with a stem of fire and a cap of black smoke. And, we must suppose, a fabulously fierce foomp.

Why is it that a young, struggling writer can pay to have his or her work printed — and it's called "vanity" publishing. But a young film grad can write, produce, direct and star in his or her own movie and it's called "independent filmmaking"? Where, in art, do we cross the line from independent to vain?

—Marc Mitchell, via the Internet

No question, sometimes it's a pretty fine line. To put it strictly in print terms, self-publishing — the equivalent of independent filmmaking — is what you do when you can't find a regular publisher but nonetheless have some reasonable expectation of being able to sell what you wrote. Vanity publishing is when you've abandoned all hope.

Vanity publishers (the ones who run those Authors Wanted ads) will take a manuscript and, for a stiff fee, turn it into a book. You wind up with a garage full of printed copies, but that's about it — promotion of vanity books is usually minimal. Vanity publishing tends to attract people with delusions of grandeur who just want to see their prose in print. (To be fair, vanity presses frequently print a lot of family histories and such, where making money is not the object.)

Self-publishing no doubt attracts its share of deluded souls, but it requires you to have a little more on the ball. Typically the author of a self-published book not only writes the thing but also arranges for its design, printing, marketing and distribution. Most self-published authors are lucky to break even, but a few hit it big. Some books that were initially self-published:

- The Joy of Cooking by Irma S. Rombauer. Self-published in 1931. Rombauer had a firm produce the book, but she did all the promotion. It was picked up by a trade publisher and to date has sold more than 15 million copies.

- What Color is Your Parachute? by Richard Nelson Bolles. Sold five million copies.

- The Celestine Prophecy by James Redfield. Initially sold out of his car, it went to Warner Books for $800,000.

- The One Minute Manager by Kenneth Blanchard and Spencer Johnson. Sold 20,000 copies before being picked up.

- Leadership Secrets of Attila the Hun by Wess Roberts. Sold 486,000 copies.

Of course, you need some entrepreneurial hustle even if your book is published conventionally. Many a novice author has figured his work was done once he'd delivered the manuscript, only to have his publisher inform him (usually not in so many words), "What? You expect us to promote this?" Understandably some writers think, "If I'm going to do all the work, I'm going to keep all the cash."

ARIES

(March 21 - April 19)
An English insurance company, Zurich Municipal, did research to determine which astrological sign was most accident-prone. You Rams were of course at the very top of the list, as well as in related categories such as most likely to run a red light or to pass on the right. I believe you will thoroughly confute these data in 1999, however. Though it is true that you'll experience peak levels of daring and zest, I predict your adventures will unfold as if you were protected by a bubble of safety.

TAURUS

(April 20 - May 20)
One of my favorite teachers, William Irwin Thompson, says that one religion isn't enough for him. He considers esoteric Christianity his "mother" faith and Buddhism his "father" faith. I take a similar approach. My spirituality is a hybrid of Christian Qabala, Goddess-worshipping paganism and funky tantric Jungian alchemy. What's all this got to do with you? Well, 1999 will be prime time for you to aggressively design a spiritual practice that suits your special needs. I feel you can no longer afford a half-baked relationship with the Divine Wow. So steal from any tradition that catches your fancy, build upon dream revelations and twilight visions (there'll be an abundance of them), and make this the year you become your own priest or priestess.

GEMINI

(May 21 - June 20)
The new prime minister of Albania, Pandell Majko, is just 30 years old. I haven't been able to find out for sure, but I bet he's a Gemini. Younger members of your tribe climbed to the top of their respective heaps at a record rate in 1998, and many older Twins also rose in the ranks whenever they pushed fresh, youthful ideas. I expect this trend to expand in 1999. Your opportunities to seize more power will grow as you cultivate what the Zen Buddhists call beginner's mind. "In the beginner's mind there are many possibilities," says Shunryu Suzuki-roshi.

Real Astrology
BY ROB BREZSNY

in his book Zen Mind, Beginner's Mind, "but in the expert's there are few."

CANCER

(June 21 - July 22)
I'm going to give your tribe a mystical name in 1999. It's Vajra, which is a Sanskrit word meaning both "thunderbolt" and "diamond," and a perfect term to symbolize the primal yet beautiful power you'll have abundant access to in the coming months. As you meditate on how you can live up to your new alias, remember that the diamond is not only a highly prized gem that represents steadfast love, but is also used widely as a tool in the metalworking industry due to the fact that it's the hardest naturally occurring substance in the world. Now get yourself to a mirror, gaze into your ancient eyes and murmur, "Hello, Vajra."

LEO

(July 23 - Aug. 22)
Nineteen ninety-nine could very well be the year one of you Leos shatters the world's record for consecutive hours riding a roller coaster. (Currently it's 1,000.) I say this because I think you'll all be both adept and comfortable in activities which require you to negotiate sudden dips and steep rises with great speed. And that's not the only stellar talent you're likely to wield in the months ahead. You could also go down in history in categories like Fastest Talker, Most Changes of Mind, Biggest Leaps of Faith and Greatest Number of Contradictions Embraced.

VIRGO

(Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
In any normal year, you go through several rutting seasons, when you're possessed by a delightful if compulsive carnality. But 1999 won't be normal. I have reason to believe you'll be struck crazy with lust at least twice as often as usual. Sex won't be a luxury at these times, but a necessity on the same order as eating and breathing and sleeping. Better start preparing now, before the first tidal wave hits: Decide what your ground rules will be. Will you get naked with every passerby who makes a seductive offer? Are you really willing to override your intuition in order to indulge your instinct? Do you promise to stay aware of the difference between the primal but impersonal bond that's fueled by raw sex and the supple intimacy that's crafted by tender intelligence?

LIBRA

(Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
What a weirdly triumphant year 1999 will be for your tribe! Here are my predictions. Libran cartoon character Homer Simpson will enjoy a gay fling with Leonardo DiCaprio. Libran Ralph Lauren will stage an advertising coup when he coaxes Libran Chief Justice William Rehnquist to pose with Libran Gwyneth Paltrow in a darkly erotic magazine spread. A Taliban mullah born under the sign of Libra will receive political asylum in the United States and go on to replace Ken Starr as Independent Counsel for the last six years of the Whitewater probe. And then there's you: You, my oddly flourishing friend, will discover absolutely everything about what you don't want to be, making it perfectly clear, as you enter the new millennium, exactly what you do want to be!

SCORPIO

(Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
I was talking astrology with my daughter and her friend Savannah. When Savannah found out Zoe was a bull, she wanted to know what her own animal was. I asked her her birthday, and she said November 7. "You have two different animals," I said. "The scorpion and the eagle. Which would you rather be?" "If I was a scorpion," she mused, "I could sting my older sister when she's mean to me. But if I was an eagle I could go to the bathroom on her as I flew overhead. I'll be an eagle." I think this is an enlightened approach that might be useful for all you Scorpions to borrow. One way or another, you'll need secret weapons in 1999. But why resort to a form of deterrence that keeps you groveling in the dirt when you can be equally effective while remaining high above the fray?

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
Rudolph Spielman once described the ideal strategy of a great chess player. "In the opening a master should play like a book," he said, "in the mid-game he should play like a magician, in the ending he should play like a machine." I bring this up, Sagittarius, because this is a perfect formula for you to use in all games, both fun and serious, that you'll play in 1999.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
"Our bloods and hormones are fundamentally seawater and volcanic ash, congealed and refined," writes Richard Grossinger in Planet Medicine. "Our skin shares its chemistry with the maple leaf and moth wing. The currents our bodies regulate share a molecular flow with raw sun. Nerves and flashes of lightning are related events woven into nature at different levels." I nominate this primordial affirmation to be the passage you clip and tape to your bathroom mirror for all of 1999. It hints at the teachings life most wants to give you; it's a poetic koan that just might help rouse the ancient wildness that's aching to be reborn within you.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
Predictions for 1999: 1) Taking a page from the book of the storm-chasers, an Aquarian skydiver with New Age propensities will announce her intention to try to jump through rainbows all over North America. 2) An Aquarian porn star from Holland will have himself nailed to a cross to promote his new sado-masochistic film. 3) An Aquarian performance artist will tie baguettes to his head and wander through ritzy shopping areas in Los Angeles, inviting well-heeled consumers to eat his art. 4) The vast majority of other Aquarians across the world will experience similar surges of idiosyncratic brilliance, but will express them in less spectacular and more practical ways.

PISCES

(Feb. 19 - March 20)
I've taken a bit of liberty with a quote by C.G. Jung to come up with an epigram to guide you in 1999. "If there is anything we wish to change in the child," he said, "we should first examine it and see whether it is not something that could better be changed in ourselves." I would amend Jung's words to begin with the phrase "If there is anything we wish to change in anyone we love." You will often be tempted in the coming year, Pisces, to imagine that everything would be just fabulous if the important people in your life would adjust their behavior. While that'll be true now and then, it'll mostly be a dead-end mirage. My advice: Expand your tolerance for everyone's idiosyncracies and use them to motivate your own transformations.

A Better Way To Print.

For over 30 years, HONBLUE has been redefining "the way to print" for Hawaii's design communities and corporations.

With digital innovations such as MEGACHROME large format posters and DOCUPRINT Color and Black&White printing, HONBLUE has led Hawaii with "digital on-demand" technologies.

If your quantities of marketing and sales pieces are getting smaller and smaller, HONBLUE'S new Quickmaster Direct Imaging press is the perfect choice. It produces true high-quality offset printing without traditional film or chemistry—which can save you time and money. And if saving time and money is of interest to you, give us a call. We'll show you a better way to print.
