December 31, 1942

Dear Mr. Myer:

Confirming my conversation this morning, the following information is furnished:

Mr. McCloy is in receipt today of a message from General Emmons in which he states that the 443 Japanese evacuees now en route to San Francisco are considered harmless and they may be permitted contacts with other Japanese already in relocation centers. This information, I believe, solves your problem as to the disposition of this particular shipment.

General Emmons further states that Japanese who are considered potentially dangerous will not be sent to the Mainland until the War Relocation Authority has been consulted in the matter.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dillon S. Myer, Director
War Relocation Authority
