Late Foreign News.

At the election of the French Senate, thirty-nine Republicans and thirty-six Conservatives were replaced by sixty Republicans and fifteen Conservatives, thus securing a decisive Republican preponderance in the Senate. The Republican party, while gaining twenty-two seats, did not lose one.

The King of Italy, receiving deputies on New Year's Day, in referring to the repeated designs of Bismarck to interfere on behalf of the Vatican, declared that the Italian Government had firmly declared not to admit any discussions on questions affecting Italian internal affairs.

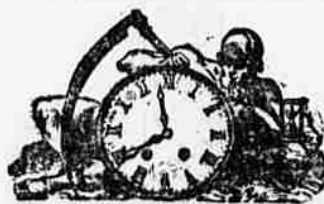

The collective note of France and England to the Khedive was but faintly approved, even by the Liberal organs, while the Conservative papers accuse the Government of having weakened the position of England by committing themselves to an act only in conjunction with France. The first sensation produced by the note was considerably diminished, however, by the explanation offered by Mr. Malet to Cherif Pasha. That was merely intended to intimate the continuance of a close alliance between England and France in Egyptian affairs.

The Sultan is still plotting an Islamic revival to recover his authority in North Africa. Morocco is disquieted, Algeria is disturbed, Tunis is disorganized, and the wild tribes of Tripoli are in a religious ferment, which is caused by the predicted advent of a new Mahomedan Messiah next November.

Two millions of pilgrims at Allahabad, in India, have been summoned by the authorities to disperse, owing to the outbreak among them of cholera.

In Russia the Pan-slavic agitation is being steadily maintained, and General Skobeloff's speech has been received with enthusiasm. The Russian Press teems with articles inciting the Slaves to rebellion against Austrian rule, whilst much excitement has been caused by the warlike tone of Skobeloff's speech.
