Why a merchant, who has good goods for sale, wants to keep information about the goods confined to a comparatively few customers, is beyond the comprehension of any man who realizes the value of making known to the people the merit of good goods.

HONORS TO HEALANI

BLUE AND WHITE WAVE OVER RED OF OLD RIVALS

Healani banners of blue and white waved above the red and white of the Myrtles when the Healani crews turned the tables on their old rivals today and virtually swept the harbor in the annual Regatta Day races.

Four out of five events fell to the honors of the wearers of the Blue and White and their supporters. It was a sweet victory for the hard-fighting lads who suffered defeat a year ago; it was a big surprise for the losers and a welcome surprise for the winners.

The best crew of the day proved to be the Healani freshmen, who captured their event in class style, setting a mark of ten minutes, much faster even than the veterans could achieve.

It was amidst flying huzzling and of the events were open questions cheering thousands that the Healani Joy was brought to the Myrtle fans boat club succeeded in wresting the when their senior crew with a big championship from their old rivals clean swinging stroke carried off the victory in the first struggle. The Healani boys adopted a short stroke which they did not finish clean and what a good race is really like, however, and have another go at it. They are good sportsmen and so are the Maui people for over a hundred of them came across to cheer their crew. One of the special features of the day was the number of canoes floating all over the place and also in the half a length ahead, winning the championship for the club.

The Maui boys in the Junior six big heavy canoes and the pace at which they can send them through the water is wonderful. It was like a vision of olden times to see them against the wind. All the boys hope that they will come over next year, and have another go at it. They are good sportsmen and so are the Maui people for over a hundred of them came across to cheer their crew.

Prince Kuhio and Chief Justice Robertson steered two of the boats in the race for the County, Territorial and Federal officials. They received the glad hand as they were swept along by their hard-working crews and the event created a lot of interest especially among those multitudes present. The sailing races were pretty and as the white wings fluttered from side to side and came down on big long stretches with all their extras set it made a fine picture. There was a big crowd there and the special service of street cars had all it could do to handle them. On every dock and from every point of vantage they watched the races being rowed to a finish. was coming out of the northeast and as a consequence their boat was on it looked for some time as though the jump all the time. They also there was a chance of heavy rain. The rushed their slides, which told against guardians of Honolulu's weather were them.

Early this morning a strong wind soon the sun was shining and the wind dropped down to a fair breeze. During the rest of the day the weather was perfect.

Thousands of people lined the various docks at an early hour and the harbor was alive with small launches, row and sail boats. While they enhanced the spirit of the day they also interfered with the races by leaving a wash for the crews to negotiate. There was music and crowds at each of the boat clubs and anchored in mid-stream was a boat with the Hawaiian band on board. Taken throughout the racing was good and some fine finishes were witnessed.

The great interest of the day was centered in the annual struggle between the Healani and the Myrtle clubs. The latter were slated to win the senior races but the remainder

OFFICERS EXONERATED IN THE STRANDING OF EMPRESS LINER

Pacific Mail S. S. Siberia at the Port and Carrying Valuable Cargo to Mainland—Mauna Kea Arrived With Many Maui Excursionists—Little Doing in Inter-Island Shipping

Officers connected with the Canadian-Pacific liner Empress of China which stranded at Cape Noliua on July 27th were completely exonerated at an inquiry held at Tokio, Japan, just prior to the arrival of the Pacific Mail liner Siberia at that port. The Siberia was an arrival at Honolulu this morning bearing a small list of passengers but an exceedingly valuable cargo, made up of large quantities of tea and silk. According to report of her officers, the inquiry made into the stranding of the Empress liner resulted in a verdict which was to the effect that the stranding was due to abnormal set of tide following typhoon. Captain and officers entirely exonerated from all blame. The vessel has not been seriously affected by the typhoon weather and an attempt to refloat her was to have been made on the 23rd of August. The interests are large, since the vessel is valued for all risks at $150,000, while it is understood that a considerable amount is effected on disbursements. The Siberia came alongside Alakea wharf before eight-thirty this morning and the work of discharging nearly eight hundred tons Oriental cargo was rushed to completion as the vessel will be dispatched for San Francisco at four o'clock this afternoon. The Siberia brought 8 cabin and 83 Atlantic passengers for Honolulu. Of the latter, 31 are Filipinos and 33 Japanese. The through list includes 41 cabin, 42 second class and 138 steerage passengers. The Siberia made several extra tea ports on the tour of the East and in consequence is well laden with this commodity. Purser Hunt reports one birth on the way over, the child being born to Chinese parents. Fine weather characterized the voyage after leaving Yokohama.

Mauna Kea in With Maui Excursionists. The Mauna Kea, flagship of the Inter-Island fleet carried a gay crowd of excursionists from Maui ports. The vessel was an early arrival this morning and her passengers hastened to the water-side to witness the Regatta Day stunts. The Mauna Kea brought a fair list of freight including the usual quantity of empties, 19 bundles of hides, 756 feet of lumber, 22 cords wood, some pineapples, one auto and consignments of turkeys, pigs and chickens. Sundries to the amount of 468 packages was included in the shipment. This vessel is to be dispatched for Kahului, Maui, at five o'clock on Sunday evening the Mauna Kea having been chartered by the Maui delegation.

Hilo Shipping. Shipping at Hilo for the past week, according to the Herald, included the following vessels: The American-Hawaiian steamer Columbian arrived in port in the early part of the week and sails direct for Salina Cruz tomorrow afternoon. The schooner Melvador, from Puget Sound, should arrive soon, being now twenty-four days out. The Prosper and the C. S. Holmes are out twenty and eighteen days, respectively. The schooner Meriel, which has been discharging lumber here, has finished this work and is expected to sail for the Sound today. The Honolulu sailed from there for Kahului last Friday, going from that port to San Francisco direct.

Grays Harbor Out for a Record. Grays Harbor has established a record for lumber loading which is likely to hold for some time, according to information given out by officers of the Hopland Lumber and Shingle Company's mill. The record was accomplished by longshoremen and members of the crew of the steamer Stanley Dollar when they loaded 1,400,000 feet of lumber in just fifty-one hours. Of the total cargo 800,000 feet was stowed in the ship's hold in twenty-four hours.

Norwegians Buy More Vessels. Norwegian owners who have purchased many of the sailing vessels sold in Europe during the last twelve months evidently are still in the market for second-hand sail tonnage. European activists announce the sale of five well-known windjammers, three of them to Norwegian buyers. The sales include the British bark Earl of Dunmore, the British bark Grand Duchess Olga, the British bark Glenside and the British bark Loch Elvie.

Wilhelmina Hits Back of a Whale. The Wilhelmina landed right on the back of a large whale according to a story which has been circulated through the channels of the Portland, Oregon Telegram. The Wilhelmina in this particular instance was not the well known Matsun liner, but a smaller vessel and a lumber laden schooner with gasoline auxiliary power. The story is that at the foot of a heavy swell over which she had glided with the speed of a small boy sliding down a cellar door the gasoline schooner Wilhelmina, Captain Tyler, arriving from Newport, alighted on the back of a whale, two miles south of Alsea Bay as she was bound for the Columbia River. The startled leviathan churned the water into a sea of foam and gave the little craft a severe shaking while making his escape from beneath the hull. The first blow hit the big fellow on his flukes just as he was coming up at the base of the swell. Without checking her progress the Wilhelmina went on and gave him a terrific rap on his dorsal vertebra. A shock on board followed similar to that produced by an earthquake. The schooner shivered like a man with the age for the next few moments. But an inspection showed she was not damaged by the collision. The skipper says he does not believe the whale fared so well, although he appeared extremely lively when he came to the surface and steered a course for Japan.

Captain Tyler says he never saw whales so thick south of the Columbia River as they are this season. He believes it is due to the big schools of salmon and other fish, on which the whales are feeding.

This Shark, a Collector of Brics-a-Brac. Some strange and startling things have been found inside those sharks which have fallen a prey to hunters of Honolulu but it remains for Lewes, Delaware, to send forth a story concerning a curious assortment of brics-a-brac that is on exhibition there, all found in the stomach of a man-eating shark, seventeen feet long by the crew of a lightship. An invoice enclosed an umbrella cover, a barrel stove, an assortment of iron and steel articles and enough oil cloth to cover the floor of a good-sized kitchen.

Shinyo Has Reached the Coast. The new Japanese liner Shinyo Maru has reached the Coast according to a cable received at the local branch of the Merchants' Exchange. The Shinyo sailed from Honolulu on last Sunday evening and arrived at San Francisco yesterday morning.

Santa Rita En Route With Oil. A shipment of fuel oil consigned to the local branch of the Union Oil Company is en route to the islands according to report which states that the tanker left Port San Luis yesterday.

Nineteen Day Voyage for the Coates. The American schooner A. F. Coates made a nineteen day trip to the Sound after leaving Hilo. The vessel is reported to have arrived at Port Townsend yesterday.

Likelike in from Maui. The Inter-Island steamer Likelike was an arrival from Maui ports this morning bringing a small amount of cargo and no passengers. Moderate weather was met with on the trip.

SIBERIA PASSENGERS TELL STORY OF ANTI-FOREIGN CHINESE RIOTS

That the Canton delta continues to be a hotbed for the propagation of an intense hatred for foreigners and their institutions, is plainly indicated by expressions coming from those who have had to do with the superstitious Chinese host which inhabit the densely populated section of South China. In the Pacific Mail liner Siberia which arrived at Honolulu this morning, en route to the mainland, are several missionaries who either as preachers of the gospel or engaged in work maintain hospitals for the ailing, have gone through a nerve-racking experience at the hands of a foreign hating Chinese.

Passengers in the Siberia report the formation of a "Dare to Die" society, which having its origin at Canton, is dominated by that faction of Chinese who would wish for the thorough extermination of the foreign devil. They say that the new organization has its headquarters in the San Ning district which is no great distance from Kowloon, the nearest mainland point to the island of Hongkong.

Foreigners Flee for Their Lives. Many letters of threatening character written under the direction of the "Dare to Die" society have been received by foreigners. A German said by those on the Siberia who are familiar with the incident, is one of the late victims of the fanaticism of a mob of infuriated Chinese. He represented a foreign firm which was introducing a special brand of condensed milk into South China districts and was on a tour of the towns and villages in the Canton Delta at a time that the Siberia lay at Honolulu. According to the story told, the traveler used a small motor boat, which flew the British flag. When within two-hundred yards of the shore at Cheung Han Mun a shot was fired at the motor boat, and almost immediately afterwards there was quite a fusillade, shots dropping just short of the boat but none hitting it. Not far above this spot the motor boat had saluted and passed a Chinese gunboat, and when fired upon at Cheung Han Mun, the motor boat turned and proceeded at full speed to obtain the assistance of the Chinese gunboat, which is presumably stationed there for the protection of the trade of the river. The gun boat proceeded as near to the spot as the depth of water would permit, but the commander could not be persuaded to land any of his men, and intimating that his duties were upon the water and not on the land, he left the motor boat people to their own devices.

Women Figure in Mob Violence. Women figured in the Chinese mob which assisted in the pelting of the little boat as it passed through several narrow sections of the river. Finally one huge boulder, among a volley of boulders thrown from a bridge, disabled the engine, but fortunately the boat drifted into the vicinity of a Chinese gun boat and was towed to Canton. The priest who came back with Knuth to Canton and is an important witness of what occurred, has mysteriously disappeared, and all efforts to trace him have so far failed.

The story is also told of one foreigner who was obliged to don Chinese dress in order to better escape an infuriated mob, bent upon his destruction. In this garb he was taken to the magistrates' yamen. A part of the crowd proceeded to the river and in this instance sank the light used by the foreigner in his travels.

It is claimed that the Chinese officials are unable to cope with mobs which appear to control the actions of the rabble found in the average native city of South China.

EXPENSIVE YEAR FOR BOSTON CLUB

One thousand four hundred and forty balls in a season is the average number purchased by the Boston American League club. Nearly $1500 a year for baseballs! And some years the number used at the Huntington avenue grounds is considerably more.

This year, for instance, the number used so far is above the average, and the indications are that at the end of the season the cost to the club will be 23 per cent. higher than usual, or in the neighborhood of $2000.

It is a curious thing that sometimes when the grounds are most crowded, the fewest balls are lost. There seem to be times when every batsman who comes to the plate will foul two or three over the fence or into the bleachers. This is just as likely to happen with the benches almost empty as with a record-breaking crowd.

On the other hand, the record number of balls used in one day this year was in the recent double-header with the Tigers. Thirty-six balls were used, twenty-four of which were lost.

It is not during the games that the largest number of balls are lost, however. During the morning practise the players are likely to lose two or three times as many as during a game.

Balls are only used in one game. They are then used for practise. When they show signs of wear they are thrown away, or fud their way to the souvenir hunter. It has been found that it does not pay to recover them, so as soon as the cover goes the life of the ball is over.

Taking the average of the Boston Americans as the average of each major league club—and inquiry shows that this is about right—it is interesting to compute the amount of money spent each year for balls by the sixteen big clubs of the country—$24,000 annual tax paid by the two major leagues! Then count up the hundreds of minor league teams and the thousands of amateur organizations which belong to no leagues but all of which demand the best ball made.

Another item of expense, not so heavy, but not altogether inconsiderable, is that for bats. The Boston American club buys an average of 200 bats a year. Some last only a single game. Others last for some time. The other day an order was sent in for 41 new bats to be rushed to the Huntington avenue grounds.

As a rule players become used to one bat, and object violently to any other player using it during practise. During the games, however, it seems to be perfectly immaterial to the most particular player whether anyone else uses his bat or not, and he seems equally careless about the one that he picks up himself. It is merely a matter of which he lays his hands on first, or which suits him best at the moment.

These two are considered among the minor expenses of the club by the officials, and for that reason are all the more indicative of the amount of money involved in the game, and of the popularity of baseball throughout the country.

STAND BY THE FLAG

---KAHN

"It is a case of protection.
"You all believe in protection or where would your industries down here be?
"You want protection for your sugar for your pineapples and so forth. Then you say 'I want free trade in ships.' I am afraid that condition confronts the party of protection in the United States.
"There are many men who profess to be protectionists, who profess to believe in the principle of protection and who are operating in the ranks of the party of protection, WHO WANT TO PROTECT EVERYTHING THAT THEY PRODUCE BUT WANT FREE TRADE IN EVERYTHING THAT THEY BUY. That's what we're up against in the States today. That is what has caused the split in the Republican party.
"The principle is right and ought to be maintained or it is wrong and ought to be abolished. I am one of those who think it is right. I am going down with the flag of protection nailed to the mast. I will keep up the struggle as long as I have life in me to do so.
"IF YOU WANT PROTECTION FOR EVERYTHING ELSE THAT YOU PRODUCE HERE YOU MIGHT AS WELL GO A LITTLE FURTHER AND RUN THE WHOLE GAMUT, AND STAND FOR PROTECTION TO AMERICAN SHIPS.

"When I went to Europe four years ago I could have taken any line that I chose but I chose the American line because believing in the upbuilding of the American merchant marine, I felt my duty to patronize the American line, a line that flies the American flag, with the object of doing my share to get capitalists to invest more money in American ships. If other citizens would do the same thing there would be more vessels flying the American flag."

"We on the Pacific Coast have no desire to hinder the development of these islands. On the contrary we want to see them developed to the fullest extent. There is much capital of the Pacific Coast invested down here. Whatever helps to build up this community and these islands helps us on the mainland. We hope to help you and we look to you to help us. It is to our mutual interest to have these islands developed, but we know that some millions of dollars have been invested in American ships. The men who put their money in these ships believe and they have reason to believe by the investment of that money that they would be protected against foreign ships.
"These islands can help the shipping interests very materially or you can give it a serious blow.
"The agitation of the coastwise trade law between these islands and the mainland would undoubtedly cause men to pause before putting any of their money into ships, because a man before putting a million dollars into shipping wants to know where he is at. If on the other hand you make up your mind to stand by the American flag to help out American shipping, to perform a patriotic debt on behalf of American laws that are trying to build trade between the mainland and these islands I believe that before long you will get increased accommodations. All causes for complaint will be removed."
"We in Congress are going to keep up our fight for the upbuilding of the American merchant marine."
"I came down to learn something of these islands and to get your views, to help you in your wishes and desires. I hope I shall be able to do so for your own welfare. I hope for the upbuilding of the American merchant marine and that you will be patient and bide the time when we who have faith can write upon the statute books of the United States that legislation which will bring the American flag onto every sea.
"I feel confident that this time is coming. I feel confident that the time is near at hand. We will not have to wait long but you on your part can do a patriotic duty to your country, a duty to your flag. Put up with your little inconveniences as we do on the mainland. Help us with your assistance in this matter to again bring this question before Congress. Knowing as we do that the legislation is bound to come and you in these islands will reap the full reward of your waiting."

A THING WITH GLORY GONE

Yes, my beloved, she was once the bride of a nation. She slanted down our hearts with a sense of grandeur that was near to suffocation. We feared not the advent of foreign powers, be they come in peace or war, so sure were we in the possession of our silent but powerful beauty. But listen, my beloved! That was years, long years, ago, and in that dim but sweet remembered past did also her glory depart. Yes, my beloved, when the glory of a thing departs it is better than it had never been, for with glory gone, what is there left for the empty shell but to sink to depths beyond the level of the merest thing that has known no glory? Ah, said but yet sweet were the thoughts that rushed over me at yester eve, as I stood by her side and gazed with rapture at the graceful curves of her form, curves that can not change with old age, curves that will only fade when she sinks below the surface and that form, so beloved by a nation, is hidden from the eyes of man.
It was but yester eve, my beloved, that, while she lay with her head to the north, did I tramp reverently up and down over her, stopping each time at her waist, where ghosts of the past in goblin, gnome and fairy forms gathered in astral shape and beckoned to me to follow they themselves knew not whither. Ah, you once pride of a nation, Kaimiloa, how I love every original timber of your hull! Yes, my beloved, as I gazed down into the fowl and water-soaked depths the picture of revelry, frolic and gaiety rose before me with a vividness that seemed to carry me back to those evenings when, in the far dim past, my beloved, we gathered in the beautiful cabins of the pride of a nation and ate, drank and got oh! so merry. I can still see the garlanded, go-around plank leading from the wharf to the Kaimiloa, which was braced off some two fathoms. I can still see those who tarried at the wine cup. Verily, my beloved, there were comrades in those days that did more than tarry at the wine cup. They simply mopped up the booze, and the quantities of gold lace on their naval uniforms bestowed upon their navigation a staidness that was grotesque. Fair beloved, I am overwhelmed with memory of those days, and it will be best that I do not dwell longer on the times we once had—sounds! a hundred times we had them, my beloved, and to those who read these lines, who were at that time officers of the Hawaiian navy, will come a tingling from the toes and fingertips that will reach to the heart like the lines on the Cross-Roads of the Pacific map diverge from Hawaii, and an ache will come for those days gone forever.

Ah, Kaimiloa, you are truly a thing without glory now, but in your day, which were mostly nights that ran into the next day, you were a beauty, a vehicle of gaiety of such renown that none will ever take your place.
Come, my beloved, let's away to the city and leave this old hulk attached to an old wharf that is a fitting companion, for each is holding the other up. Farewell, dear old Kaimiloa! Tell thou no tales of the past, for they would not be believed.

NEW CLUB HOUSE IS PLAN OF COUNTRY CLUB; GOOD YEAR CLOSED

President Dillingham Submits Recommendations For Improvements.

A year of progress and bright prospects for the new year is the record that was talked over at the annual meeting of the Country Club held Thursday evening at the club house. The members assembled at a fine dinner early in the evening, and wound up with the business affairs that ran smoothly and general talk of future plans.
J. D. Melnery, who becomes president, has done a great amount of good work for the advancement of the club this year and he is an enthusiast. Walter Dillingham has made an excellent president and his report on the record of the year just closed follows:

President Walter Dillingham rendered the following report on the condition of the club and its record for the year just closed:

To the Members of the Country Club—Gentlemen: This meeting brings to a close the fifth fiscal year of your club's activities.

No one deal marks the progress for this period, as did the signal step which was taken last year, when the club was financed to acquire the fee simple title of this beautiful valley. However, many matters of importance have been under consideration by your directors and a number of changes and improvements affecting our general welfare have been effected.

Regular monthly meetings and one special meeting of the board have been held, with good attendance. At the last annual meeting an important amendment, providing the right for the transfer of stock to the children of regular members in order to fully qualify them to membership, was acted upon, but owing to a technical objection on the part of the Treasurer of the Territory, it was necessary to call a special meeting of the stockholders and secure a vote representing two-thirds of the members of the club.

This meeting was held on December 8, 1910, and adjourned because of a lack of the required quorum. On February 26, 1911, the stockholders again convened; there being more than two-thirds of the club present or represented by proxy, the amendment was carried. Directly thereafter the Treasurer of the Territory accepted the amendment.

The difficulty experienced as above led the directors to request the members to give their proxy to five members of the club. A very satisfactory response to this request resulted, and our secretary reports that proxies from 90 per cent of the members have been received.

Golf Course.—As the members who frequent the links will testify, the course is in better condition than ever before in the history of the club. Under an authorized expenditure by the directors, the course has been widened in certain places and new greens substituted in some cases. These changes have undoubtedly increased the attractiveness of the course. Further detail is covered by the report of the chairman of the greens committee.

The drive leading from Nuuanu avenue to the clubhouse has been reconstructed and a top dressing of oil applied, which should give a degree of permanence to the road. Fences have been built across the bridge and the brush cut back from the sides, so as to give greater safety in making the sharp turns.

Other Amusements.—We regret that we have to report nothing done under this head. The discussion in regard to probable changes and enlargements would of necessity affect the laws to be made in the clubhouse, which adjoining the present building, has in a measure been responsible for the deferring of action on the plans for bowling and croquet greens.

Members' Cottage.—A request was made of the directors to consider the advisability of erecting a four-room cottage, to cost about $1250, for the use of members as a residence. Upon investigation it was found that there was such a difference of opinion as to the plan that it was decided to refer the whole matter to a committee. Mr. J. R. Galt (chairman) reported back that a postal card vote had been taken and that the majority of the members were opposed to the plan.

Trophies.—During the year two new trophies have been placed in the hands of the greens committee to be competed for by members.

The President's Cup was open for competition two days in each month. The one making the lowest net score on any one of the days set for play to become the owner of the trophy.

Miss Wilhelmina Tenney has offered a cup to be competed for by the lady members. While the cup was offered some months ago, the first competition has not yet been held.

Use of Club.—The records show that each year the advantages offered by the Country Club are more and more appreciated by the community. This has been marked by the attendance on the links, the increase in the number of lady members, and also by the interest shown by them in golf.

During the winter months the clubhouse was much used, through the middle of the week, for lunches, teas and dinners, and this in spite of the fact that the facilities offered for these occasions are far from satisfactory.

Rapid Transit Extension.—Credit is due in a large measure to members of this club for the putting through of the Nuuanu avenue widening project and the extension of the Rapid Transit tracks to the Kalia road. Committees appointed by the directors were alive to the club's interest in securing property rights for street widening purposes, in waiting on legislative committees and in urging the rail extension with the management of the Rapid Transit and Land Company. Probably no one thing will contribute more to the upbuilding of the club than the bringing of the property within the reach of the street car line. Transportation buses and autos were, while helpful, never very successful in attracting members to patronize the club.

The treasurer's books show that during the past year we have expended $1,000.04 more than our receipts. This apparent loss is more than accounted for in expenditures made in the shape of permanent improvements. Roughly speaking, these were as follows:

Rebuilding roads	$ 757.86
Increasing size of links	300.00
Purchase of sheep	102.84
Land purchase exp. (Torrens title)	400.00
Loss on bus service	363.30
Total	$1,924.00

From this it shows that outside of extraordinary expenses, the receipts were in excess of the regular expense of running the club. This should be considered very satisfactory, as our expenses, through the purchase of the club, have been increased by the difference between the sum of the interest on our loan and taxes and the rental which we previously paid, amounting to an annual increased expense to the club of $1,000.

Assuming that the receipts for the club are sufficient to cover the regular expenses, there will of necessity be extraordinary expenditures developed every year, which the club should be in a position to meet without taxing the members by special assessment.

When the club was organized the advantages offered were small compared with what we have today. We have a large indebtedness, and although amply secured, the security is such as cannot be cut into for the liquidation of our debt without seriously impairing the remainder of the property. It seems to me important that the club at this meeting give serious consideration to some conservative method of finance which will permit of a steady reduction of our debt.

Looking to that end, I would suggest that the necessary technical steps be taken to bring before the members a proposition for the increase of the dues from $2 to $2.50 per month; that the directors be instructed to set aside the increase for the purpose of meeting capital expenditures or in reducing the debt. This increase would in the course of a few years amount to a very substantial sum, and would not be a tax which would be felt by the members, or, if felt, would certainly not be in proportion to the benefit derived by the club.

Building Plans.—For the past six months your directors have been working on a plan to change the present clubhouse into a home which would meet the present requirements and at the same time offer greater inducement to members to make use of the Country Club for social festivities.

We are submitting tonight a set of plans, together with an estimate by the architect of cost, which meets with the approval of the retiring board of directors. We believe that the necessary funds can be raised, and we strongly recommend that action be taken by the club looking to the carrying out of the plans outlined or putting into execution plans which will give the members a clubhouse in keeping with the growing requirements.

The thanks of the club are due to Holmes & Stanley for their services in connection with the purchase of the property; to Mr. Marx and Mr. Thayer for securing the Torrens title, and to the Hawaiian Gazette Company for free advertising of the necessary notices in connection with the securing of the Torrens title.

I wish to thank the members for the honor which has been conferred upon me for the past two years. What advance the club has made is due to the untiring efforts of those who have faithfully served as directors and committees.

With best wishes to the incoming president, and with the assurance of my hearty cooperation in furthering the interests of the club as a continuing member, very sincerely,
WALTER F. DILLINGHAM

IRON WORKS HAS PLANS FOR HILO

(Special Bulletin Correspondence.)
HILO, Sept. 11.—While it will be some little time before the Honolulu Iron Works will open up its branch in this city, when this is done Hilo will have a complete plant, which, according to Manager Hedemann of the company will be able to handle work as large as that of making new rollers for the Oloa mill, should this be necessary. Of course, the new works will not be by any means as large as the Honolulu plant, and will be only able to handle one large job at a time, but it will be complete and able to do all kinds of sugar mill work.

In addition to this the Honolulu Iron Works will have a store, carrying full lines of tools and machinery, in this city, and an office at the head of which will be a competent engineer, who will be in this city not only to have charge of the work being done, but also for consultation on the various plantations of the island, wherever his services may be requested. In other words, the plant to be installed here will be complete and able to handle any work which may be requested here.
A new building for the H. I. W. plant will be erected, which will mean that there will be some little time elapsing before actual work can be started, as the plant will be new and the structural iron for the building itself will be ordered from the East, which will take at least six months' time for construction and shipment to this city. The structure will be a large one and will be equipped with a traveling crane which will run the full length of the building and be able to handle with ease the heaviest work to be done.
One Chinaman was killed and four teen others were injured in a fire which gutted four buildings in the heart of Chinatown, Vancouver, British Columbia.

Know that "impossible" has no place in the brave man's dictionary.—Carlyle.

MR. KAHN'S APPEAL TO PATRIOTISM.

Stand by the flag, is Congressman Kahn's message to Hawaii when speaking of and for the American merchant marine.

This is the sentiment that has been sounded by the Bulletin and this paper has made a lone fight while the local coastwise law suspensionists have responded through the morning organ that the flag sentiment is "slush." No doubt the same response is made to Mr. Kahn's remarks but they say it under their breath while he is not listening.

To stand by the flag is a sound sentiment for Hawaii under any and all circumstances. The day has not yet passed when the local alien fails to sneer at Americanisms, laughs at the old-time McKinley flag call, and finds a regrettable member of amiable and truculent sycophants among those honored with American citizenship, ready to applaud.

Mr. Kahn, speaking for the men who are battling for the rebuilding of the American merchant marine, makes no unreasonable request when he asks Hawaii to stand by as an aid and a helper in the fight. And now of all other times in history that assistance should be cordial and the support unwavering.

As stated by this paper on more than one occasion, Honolulu should maintain its present status as an American port enjoying all the benefits of protection and bearing all the responsibilities that go with it, or it should be a free port with bonded warehouses, governed by exceptional American methods, meeting exceptional conditions with exceptional legislation all along the line.

Some claim that the latter condition is not only better but inevitable. However that may be, we believe the Americans of this city and Territory are in duty and honor bound to make the fight for a more vigorous Americanism here and wherever the flag floats in the Pacific. And there can be no permanent and inspiring vigor, with an anemic merchant marine.

Just now, the whole principle of protection to American industries is being assailed and our friends the suspensionists understand what that means though they may be hard of hearing and near-sighted when practical patriotism is mentioned. As a pure matter of self-preservation, Hawaii cannot afford to divide its forces and appear before Congress as free trader when it comes to ships but protectionist on local agricultural industries. The whole citadel is being attacked, therefore it ill becomes Hawaii to furnish a loophole by which a single enemy may creep in to give the defenders a stab in the back.

Mr. Kahn states what is obvious to all those who follow the matter closely, that the prospects for getting something that will really aid our merchant marine, were never better than at present. The President is with us and Congressional votes are being won every day.

What is most remarkable under such circumstances is, that there should exist a necessity for Congressman Kahn or anyone else to plead with American citizens in Hawaii to stand by the flag and the American merchant marine.

This year is a notable one in the history of the Healani boat club and especially good one for Regatta Day sports because it is proved that the possibility of close contests has not passed away. Rowing races had almost lost all interest for the general public on account of the overwhelming victories of one club, the Myrtles, year after year. The crowd can't enthuse on walk-overs and the sport naturally lagged. But the record of 1911 should turn the tide back to the "good old days." Puunene made a splendid showing and should be encouraged to come again. Regatta Day will be the day of days for Honolulu, when the races are real contests.

EVENING SMILES

Child—Mother, where do autoists go when they go on a "joy ride?"
 Mother—Most of them go to the hospital, my dear.

"You know the fate of the pitcher that goes to the well too often."
 "Going to the well never hurt a pitcher yet. It's going to the corner saloon that sends him back to the bush leagues."

Why do they call these dentists' offices dental parlors?" asked Smith of his friend.
 "Why, parlor is the old fashioned name for drawing room."

May—I understand that they are very much disappointed over the result of their election.
 Belle—Why? Did not her father send his forgiveness?
 May—Yes; that is all he did send.

FINISHING THE CANAL.

The Panama canal, the greatest work of the century, is four-fifths dug.

Is the city of Honolulu four-fifths ready to receive and properly accommodate the increased traffic that will immediately follow the opening of the canal?

The official report from the canal zone for August 1, shows that by that date 145,486,536 cubic yards had been removed, leaving only 41,727,598 cubic yards yet to be dug out. This announcement is in accord with the forecast made on July 1, so that the officials of the Canal zone now feel confident of completing their work within the time estimated.

So much of the canal is already navigable that the commission has found it necessary to equip two boats with fire-fighting apparatus for the protection of docks and works at the Pacific entrance.

Isn't it about time for the wide-awake people of Honolulu to bestir themselves in a way that indicates that "the Panama pace" is contagious?

GOVERNOR HERE DOMAIN VANISHED

Governor William Pack of the mountain provinces in northern Luzon, P. I., is a visitor at Honolulu today during the brief stay of the Pacific Mail liner Siberia at the port.

A large slice of the domain over which Governor Pack has presided for a number of years has vanished with the passing of a typhoon over the northern section of Luzon Island.

The famous Benguet road, which has cost the people of the Philippines many millions of good gold dollars, is the main artery of travel into the provinces which Governor Pack has under his jurisdiction. The Benguet road again suffered damage and almost complete obliteration at the hands of the storm which raged in the Philippines some weeks ago. This road has always been characterized as one of several monumental mistakes perpetrated by an extravagant insular government at a time when President William H. Taft was in his hand.

The initial cost of the highway, which has oft been referred to as "starting nowhere and leading nowhere," figured away up into the millions. Vast sums have been squandered in its maintenance. The prime reason for its construction was to provide a royal highway to a mountain resort which the Taft government stipulated must become a Mecca for its favored servants. Baguio, the so-called summer capital, for which the people have for years been sorely taxed to maintain, has never been a popular rendezvous with the tank and file of residents of Manila, mainly because of the excessive cost incurred in getting there.

With the arrival of the Siberia this morning, bringing Governor Pack, comes word that the Benguet road is no more. This is not guess work. It is the sober fact. These were the words of a Baguio man who had but recently come down from Baguio before the departure of the Siberia from Manila, and he stated that in Baguio there was no secret about the actual conditions. People in Manila have hardly grasped the situation yet, was his belief, and he stated that it would hardly be possible to exaggerate the facts in newspaper accounts.

This means that at least six millions of dollars have been absolutely wasted in the persistent upkeep of a road which for years has been considered a standing joke among sober-minded residents of the Far East. At no time has the highway, which is now reported as encumbering the bed of a mountain stream, been considered by engineers a practical outlet to the mountain country. It has been charged that gross incompetency was tolerated in its construction and management.

Officers in the Siberia this morning stated that millions were swept away in the destruction of the road, in that two mountains of 3750 feet height tumbled over into the Bued river. Rocks as big as houses carried down by the great landslide are now in the middle of the river. The canyon has been widened below the landslide and just above Twin Peaks the river has changed its course, running now through the old graveyard. The great flood left on July of rock sixty feet above the road boards and timbers used as covering for culverts and gullies in the old highway.

Director Greene and the chief engineer of the Manila and Dagupan Railroad, with their men, are now looking over what was the Benguet road. If there is ever a Baguio season it will not come about by traveling over the old highway. It may be possible to get the bureau to Baguio by the Neguilan route, but that is doubtful.

SPECIAL STEAMER TO TAKE MAUI PEOPLE HOME

Out-of-town people by the scores attended the races today. The Maui people were particularly well represented, all coming to back the Puunene club, even though the Puunenes have not been figured as very strong contenders.

So large a delegation of Mautes arrived on the Mauna Kea this morning, together with those who had already come to the city, that the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company decided upon a special trip of the flagship Mauna Kea tomorrow. The sailing hour was announced this morning as 9 o'clock tomorrow night. At that hour the Mauna Kea will make a special trip to Kahului to take home the Maui crowd. The boat promises to be well filled.

Land of Puupueo
Manoa Valley

WHEN a man buys something useful which at the same time is steadily increasing in value he is twice fortunate. It is only a little over ten years ago since the pioneer settler on the land of Puupueo made his home there. Then there were none of the many conveniences required by the exacting suburbanite. Now all the advantages that can possibly be asked for are procurable: Mountain spring water, telephone, electric light and Rapid Transit service, and gas for cooking.

WORK-A-DAY RELIGION

The statement so often made that Roman Catholicism is one and a unit in faith, can not be supported by facts. Of course, a church can say that any sect within itself is not of it, and so claim it has no divisions, but this does not alter the fact. The Episcopal church might claim that it is Protestant and that no other denomination has the right to call itself such. It could, if it desired, excommunicate all who differed from it. For instance, we have the Old Catholics, a worthy and sincere lot of men represented in France by Father Loyson and others, and in England by Bishop Mathew, who is no other than the rightful Earl of Lindsay.

They claim to be Catholics, that they have a right to the traditions of the ancient church, which undoubtedly they have; and they are as much Catholic as the Bishop of Rome. In England there are over two thousand communicants, with many priests.

They deny papal infallibility and other doctrines.

And the Modernists—a mighty array of priests and laymen consisting of some of the ablest men in the Roman Catholic church today—what are they but good Roman Catholics? They love the church, though they do deny the primacy of the pope, the virgin birth, the deity of Christ, and other tenets.

According to the Christian Common-wealth, meetings are being held by the various Nonconformist denominations in England to find out what the matter is with the churches.

"For the past four or five years the Baptists, Congregationalists, Wesleyan Methodists, have reported a decrease—and this year a great decrease in numbers."

Mr. Lark (Methodist) said the cause was "inside rather than outside the church."

Mr. Hooper (Free Church-Presbyterian) said there "was too much talk and too little real work."

Arthur Henderson, M. P., blamed the tendency to "over-elaborate machinery of the church," while Charles Leach, D. D., M. D., proposed holding an inter-denominational conference to take up the matter.

A "Wesleyan Minister" in the Methodist Recorder says that the craze for pleasure has "swooped down upon English national life like the black plague. To such an extent has the craze gripped the church that soon Methodism will appear to be an organization for providing cheap and light amusements."

Leaders in the Established church are lamenting the same thing in very open expression.

The Dean Fremantle truly says: "The well being of the community depends on the spiritual condition of those who compose it. We have to humble ourselves for our sin and apathy, for churches to which the poor do not come. We are far from being what a Christian city should be. It is by working together for the kingdom of God and the good of men that we shall overcome the differences between the various Christian bodies."

"There is a sad and steady decrease in the attendance upon our church services," says a writer in Tablet; "something is amiss."

A remarkable illustration of the official prominence of Unitarians in the United States is afforded by a recently written letter from America regarding the dedication of a monument to the Pilgrim Fathers at Provincetown: "There was a great celebration. In the front pew on the platform sat side by side five participants in the ceremony—the President of the United States, the president of the Pilgrims' Memorial Association, the Governor of Massachusetts, the president emeritus of Harvard University, and the minister of the First Church and Chaplain of the United States Senate. All five were Unitarians. A little distance to the left in the same row sat the Senator from Massachusetts and eth Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts. They were also Unitarians. Now these speakers were all inevitable—their offices selected them for duty on this occasion."—From "Truthfulness in Religion" (London).

"I have always looked upon John Stuart Mill as a notable instance of the division which is taking place between the dogmas and the ethics of Christianity," said Goldwin Smith; "the dog-was remaining with the orthodox, the ethics often going to the infidel." —SHRDLU—

It is not only the Bishop of Hull who has reason to be discouraged in his outlook. The British Congregationalist says:

"While a pessimistic note would be entirely unwarranted, it is common prudence to face facts, however disagreeable they may be. Fluctuations are to be expected in all statistics, but when we find decreases extending over a series of years, the question inevitably arises, 'Is there anything wrong with the churches?' Since 1898 there have been consecutive decreases of 1291 (1909), 2492 (1910), 1587 (1911). The Sunday scholars exhibit a continuous decrease from 1907. Up to the present there has been a decrease of 32,169."

SILKS OF THE WORLD

Honolulu has had many special sales lately that were surprises in the way of price slaughtering on up-to-date goods, but the real surprise of the season will be the silk sale that will be on at Jordan's for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Manager Curtis states that there will be silks from every known clime where silk is made, and they will be offered at prices that cannot be duplicated, and will not be again touched for a long time. Jordan's have had the idea of a silk sale in view for some time and now that the sale has been perfected and all arranged, they are going to make it a bargain time to be remembered in the future by those who take advantage of the offerings. Jordan's will make the first three days of next week. Glance over their advertisement in today's paper.

FORMOSA BIG SUGAR FACTOR

Unusual interest attaches to the following statement on the sugar situation in the Far East by Consul General George E. Anderson at Hongkong, who says in a report just issued:

The great refineries in Hongkong, which for years have had a material influence upon the sugar trade throughout the Far East, are face to face with circumstances fraught with great possibilities of disaster in the present sugar situation of this portion of the world. The China trade of these concerns was threatened seriously, and to a large extent was invaded, in 1910 by Formosan sugar, and it is now further threatened with still greater competition from the same source during the current season; while the Java sugar planters who have long depended upon the Hongkong refineries for an outlet for much of their production, are facing competition from the Formosan sugars, which is all but overwhelming so far as their Chinese market is concerned. In spite of the increased and increasing output of the sugar refineries of Formosa, the refineries of Hongkong may draw salvation out of the situation by some arrangement with crude-sugar producers in the former island—an arrangement which, by reason of subsidised steamships from Formosa to Hongkong and short hauls, might be very advantageous. But this arrangement would be destructive of the trade with Java, on which sugar supply the Hongkong concerns now rely, and it is quite possible that the destruction of this trade would work more to the final advantage of the Formosan refineries than to that of the Hongkong concerns.

The Hongkong refineries are doing less business, and what they are doing is less profitable than formerly. Imports of sugar into Hongkong from January to May, inclusive, in 1911, amounted to 91,339 tons as compared with 98,336 tons in 1910 and 124,913 tons in 1909. However, in the same period sugar passing through Hongkong in transit has amounted to 22,855 tons as compared with 4,367 tons in 1910 and 11,882 tons in 1909, of all of which Java has furnished an average of about 93 per cent. Most of this, however, goes to destinations other than Chinese ports.

In the meanwhile the development of Formosa's sugar industry has proceeded rapidly. The amount of sugar produced in the island last year has been estimated to be 573,225,000 lbs.

FOR BETTER HONOLULU

Editor Evening Bulletin: Through the medium of the Evening Bulletin and on behalf of the Sanitary Commission, I want to appeal to all my friends and to all those interested in a better Honolulu, to assist the Board of Health Inspectors during the next sixty days in securing data for the sanitary survey that is now under way.

It is impossible for the Sanitary Commission to make an intelligent report without absolute and correct data as to the present conditions.

It is necessary to know the number of cesspools, their condition, the number of houses, the living conditions in each house, particularly where overcrowded, the number of people who drink boiled water, and many other questions.

The value of the survey depends upon its accuracy. No one need hesitate about showing the inspector every detail in regard to the sanitary conditions of his residence, or hold back from them any information, as no names will be used and the work done during my absence can be very much facilitated and expedited if those who live in Honolulu will assist in this work.

We want to know the worst as well as the best. Respectfully yours,
 G. R. CARTER,
 Chairman, Sanitary Commission.

HILO PUPILS WILL STUDY IN FIRE HALL

HILO, Sept. 14.—With the opening of the public schools of this city on Monday, it has been found necessary to use the hall of the Hilo fire station for a schoolroom in order to accommodate the many pupils who wish to take the course of instruction. In addition to this, the Moolenaar pavilion will again be used, and in this manner about one hundred and fifty children who would otherwise be without accommodations will be made room for.

Miss Josephine Deyo, who is the supervising principal of the Hilo schools, states that the teachers for the various schools under her charge are all on hand or will be ready to take their positions on Monday morning. These are twenty in number, of whom fourteen are in this city and six in the outside schools. Miss Deyo will be glad to meet any of the parents who have matters to take up with her in her office at the Hilo Union School, on Thursday morning, from 9 till 12, or on Friday morning, from 9 till 2 p. m.

BUYS LARGE RUBBER LANDS

BOSTON, August 13.—The General Rubber Company, whose $3,000,000 stock is jointly owned by the United States Rubber and its subsidiary Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company, has completed its negotiations for Sumatra rubber land holdings. An acreage of close to 120,000 acres has been acquired. This land consists of 70,000 acres. It is planned to have 20,000 acres of this land planted in rubber by the end of 1912. Of course, much has already been planted, and existing rubber growth assures the United States Rubber Company of some supplies from its own plantations by the end of 1913. From then on output will steadily increase, with practical assurance that in the end the big company will produce every pound of rubber it consumes.

While little to this land stands in the name of the General Rubber Company, planting will be conducted by a subsidiary corporation, known as the Holland-American Rubber Planting Company.

The Investment of the Hour

G O TO PALOLO HILL TODAY or tomorrow and look off from the green slopes at the wonderful panorama—hills, city and ocean—note the beautiful bungalow homes dotting the landscape everywhere in that magnificent new residential paradise—mark the many new homes that are under construction and the number of foundations that are being laid.

This will show you how rapidly home building development is advancing. See how beautifully the broad avenues curve about the hill-slopes, leading upward to ever grander and broader views of gorgeous scenery—see for yourself the already famous Wilhelmina Rise, which is being steadily graded to the very apex of the hill—look down into old Diamond Head in all its majesty, guarding the fairest island in the world—look across and deep into Palolo Valley and see how picturesquely the cloud-shadows float upon the wonderful greens of the rice fields. Inspect the improvements. Feel the high, dry and cool atmosphere, and the invigorating breeze blowing from Maunaloa Bay across the evergreen glades. Mark well the place—Palolo Hill—where Nature's beauty never fades; where the eye never grows tired of the peace-giving influence of earth, sky and sea, and where the soul can find the freedom it longs to have, and the body can gain the health and strength that no medical treatment can ever give. Then ask yourself if Palolo Hill or beautiful Ocean View, is not the place where you want to build your home, and live happy ever after.

BLUE AND WHITE WAVES OVER RED

Each of the rival clubs made a win a roar would come from a thousand throats which could be heard a mile away.
There is one thing, that would be to the convenience of the crowd and which should be arranged for next time. There is no way at the present time by which the crowd can know who has won. If some form of signaling could be arranged the fans would greatly appreciate it. Outside this, however, everything was managed well and the races got off on time.
Whaleboat Race.
There were only two entries for the whaleboat race, both being entered by Tom Mahuka. Boat No. 1 led throughout and won easily.
Senior Barge Race.
When the pistol went the Healanis shot to the front with a quick stroke. It was a beautiful start and the crowd that lined the docks cheered the men on their way.
Coming past the Alaka dock the Myrtles started to close up the gap between them and the leaders. Both crews were pulling thirty-five strokes a minute.
The wind was behind them, but in view of the long pull back again, they eased up some on the outward journey and stroked 32 towards the latter end.
The Myrtles were gradually increasing their lead, however, and rounded the buoy well ahead of their rivals. As far as could be seen from the Judge's boat, the time was then 7 min. 40 sec.
On the outward trip the Myrtles were pulling by far the better stroke. Their men came up together and the blades hit the water like clockwork.
The Healanis pulled badly throughout. They were rushing their slides, and as a consequence their barge was jumping in an erratic fashion. The men were rowing raggedly, and Sullivan, at third, was too slow getting his hands away.
From the time the buoy was rounded until the pistol announced their winners, the Myrtles increased their lead in the face of a gauding wind. They crossed the line about six lengths in front of the Healanis and put the distance behind them in 13 min. 45 sec. Considering the cruel nature of the race, both crews showed splendid condition.
On the home run the Myrtle stroked an average of 32. The Healanis, just as they passed the Myrtle boat club, quickened up to 35, but could not close up the gap.

The Myrtles were lucky to win, however. Just after they had crossed the line and were paddling for home, Chillingworth, who was at 3, snapped his oar in two. Had this occurred earlier and during the race, it might have meant a different result.
Six-Paddle Canoe Race.
In the six-paddle canoe event five canoes faced the starter. The Kalei jumped to the lead at the beginning, but was soon caught by the Hul Natu crew in Prince Cupid's canoe, "A." It held the lead till the finish. The Kalei finished second and the White Horse, entered by the Outrigger Club, third. It was a hot contest for second place. Hul Natu were easy winners.
The winning crew was as follows: Duke Miller, Ishman, Dan Keahimahi, Sullivan, Genoves, Duke Kahanamoku. Time: 7 min. 30 sec.
Freshman Barge Race.
The freshman race brought victory to the Healanis crew, which put up a remarkable exhibition from start to finish. When the pistol cracked the Healanis broke away with a thirty-stroke pace and shot ahead of the Myrtles. The latter were rowing 32, with a nice even swing. The Healanis boys settled down when there was water between them and the Myrtles and stroked 32 to the buoy. Towards the end of the outward journey they gained a little on the Myrtles, who had become a trifle ragged in their stroke.
The rounding of the buoy in five minutes saw the Blue and Whites eleven seconds to the good and pulling like clockwork. Thompson at stroke set them a thirty-two stroke. The Myrtles hung to them for part of the homeward journey, but the pace was telling on them and they slackened off to about 28.
The Healanis gradually forged ahead and between the boat houses they had fifteen lengths.
Coming nearly opposite their own shed Thompson set them a thirty-six clip and they responded like clockwork and crossed the line amid the tooting of whistles and vociferous cheers from the Healanis fans in the wonderful time of 16 minutes flat.
The winners' showing was one of the finest ever seen on the harbor, and the club is to be congratulated on turning out such a crew.
Although the Myrtles were game enough, they were not in condition to stand the strain, and were all in when they crossed the finishing line.
Senior Pair-Oar.
The senior pair-oar race was the best of the day up to that time. Starting away with a quick stroke, both crews staggered it out to the finish, when the Healanis boys managed to slip in to them

PUUNENE CREW, WHICH ROWED PLUCKILY IN JUNIOR EVENT TODAY

half a length in front of the Red and White.
During the whole of the journey no more than half a length separated the boats. The men pulled well throughout and stuck it out right to the finish. The crowds lining the docks howled themselves hoarse as the boats neared the winning point and let themselves go for a final flutter when the line was crossed.
Four Paddle Canoe.
Five canoes lined up for the start and when the pistol cracked got away to a good start.
Half way down the course the Hul Natu and K. A. C. Seniors went out to the front and fought out a great battle. As they neared the finish it was anyone's race. The Hul Natu boys got together just on the line, however, and fairly lifted their boat in a winner by four feet.
Junior Barge Race.
When the boats lined up for the start they were got away well. The Myrtles shot to the front followed by the Puunene and Healanis. Number two in the last crew through up his hand, however, and signalled a broken seat. The other crews were edged back and the race was started again after the seat had been mended.
When the final start was made the three crews got away together but the Myrtles shot to the front. They kept in a bunch to the flag and turning there was not a length between the Healanis boys managed to slip in to them

Coming for home the Healanis boys got a slight lead, and were closely followed by the Myrtles. The Maui boys could not manage to hold the craft from start to finish. Cutler of others in hand and dropped a couple of lengths behind.
Coming to the finish there was only ahead of the third.
Women's Canoe Race.
There were three entries and all started off together. As soon as the race began the Kalakikola canoe upset and the other two were left to fight it out. The event was an exciting one as both the Good Time and Lanakila crews banged into each other and hung together till they crossed the line.
Special Barge Race.
This event was pulled off between Federal, Territorial and County crews. It was announced to be the greatest race of the day, and it turned out to be very interesting.
The county crew had the inside stroke, with Lloyd as stroke. All three started off together and rowed well all the way in. The Federals pulled to the front in fine shape and won from the Territorials by half a length. Judge Robertson was coxswain for the winners and Prince Kuhio steered the Territorials.
Four-Paddle Canoe.
Five canoes lined up for this and put up a great race throughout. When the first boat crossed the winning line there was only half a length between it and the second. The third was also very close and was all decorated in honor of Healanis boys and the contrasting crews.

Flags of all nations flew and the Island craft were dressed out handsomely. Even some of the larger steamers showed evidences of decoration.
Together with national colors, the colors of the various boat clubs were flown to the winds. The blue and white of the Healanis, the red and white of the Myrtles and the black and yellow of the Puunenes bedecked many a spot. Most of the spectators wore a bit of ribbon or bunting somewhere to be taken their partisanship.
NO ACCIDENTS TO MAR 1911 REGATTA DAY
Not an accident marred Regatta Day, so far as was reported to the police up until a late hour this afternoon. In spite of the large crowds that attended the races, jamming every available spot on the waterfront, there were no mishaps reported.
It was a beautiful day and the setting for the races was perfect. With both the local clubs getting some honors, with fine competition, fine crowds and fine weather, the Regatta Day of 1911 will pass into history as one of the most successful ever held and one that should stimulate the sport here very much.
MYRTLE MAN ROWS RACE WITH BROKEN OAR
What sort of a crew the Myrtle Seniors are is shown by the fact that they rowed practically a man short throughout. McDougal, who was rowing third for them, cracked his oar and went right through the race with it in this condition.
He had to take it easy all the time and just swing with the rest of the boys to keep the boat balanced. Soon after he had crossed the winning line he dug it into the water and it snapped in two.
It was a lucky thing for the Myrtles that it did not break while the race was being rowed for if it had he may have caught a crab and been thrown among the others, thus upsetting all their chances of winning.
It is funny how frigid a Honolulu crowd is. When the Healanis crew left their club boat after making repairs on the last race, not a cheer went up. Of course everyone was anxious but they might think of the men in the boat who needed all the help they could get.
If the Myrtle boys told the whole truth they would say they are pleased with the result. It means a revival of best racing and old time enthusiasm for next year.

Today, the Regatta Day, there were no reports of accidents registered in police station. Both Sheriff Jarrett and Chief of Detectives McDuffie had their men stationed in places where there were likely to be disturbances, but up to 2 o'clock this afternoon, only one man was pulled in by police, on a charge of drunkenness.
Sheriff Jarrett was on board the Hawaii, the floating stand of the Regatta Day judges, to see that there were no mishaps in the harbor. Sheriff Clement Crowell of Maui, who came down this morning in the Mauna Kea, was also on the Hawaii, in company with Jarrett.
Chief of Detectives McDuffie stationed his staff in different places along the waterfront to prevent any trouble, or to help those who met accidents.
Police Captain C. H. Baker looked after the land force. As usual the foot police were on their beats, and according to receiving clerk Stewart in police station, everything was quiet and peaceful.

BORNEO LEPELERS ARE BANNED IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I. Aug. 11.—The United States government has refused to allow the lepers from south Borneo to be sent to the Philippine leper colony here, state dispatches received by China coast papers, but according to the local bureau of health, to which the original request for the transportation of the lepers was made, no action has been taken in the matter. It was said by Dr. Fox, head of the bureau, this morning that the proposition is still awaiting decision by the bureau of insular affairs at Washington.

HILO EXPECTS EARLY FEDERAL BUILDING WORK

(Special Bulletin Correspondence.) HILO, Sept. 14.—Within the next few weeks Architect Kerr of Honolulu expects to pay Hilo a visit and at that time will place on exhibition the proposed plans for the new Federal building to be erected in this city. Mr. Kerr when seen in Honolulu last week stated that Mr. Whitfield, who is drawing the plans in his New York office, has them well along and as soon as they are completed will send them to Honolulu. Then Mr. Kerr will be ready to place them before the local public for consideration. According to Mr. Kerr, everything in relation to the Hilo Federal building is going along smoothly and there should be no delay in the calling for bids. He wishes the public of this city to have every possible opportunity to see the plans, comment on them and offer suggestions, believing them some valuable information may be obtained in this manner. He hopes to be able to send the plans to Hilo for a week or more before he comes himself, in order that they may be placed on exhibition and fully understood before any public meeting takes place. The management of the nine-day international aviation meet at Chicago, estimate that 3,000,000 witnessed flights.

SUNDAY SERVICES

CHRISTIAN CHURCH. Minister Peters will give the sermon at both the morning and evening services. The morning service is a merger of the Bible school and the morning sermon, beginning at 10 and closing at about 11:30. The minister finds in his rounds and conversations with the people that there is a large number who are out of sympathy with the churches on account of creeds which they think violate the largest view of truth. All such are invited to hear the utterances of a pupil where there is no creed at all, except that which each individual makes for himself, and where there is no standard of authority except that found in the doctrine of the brotherhood of man. The morning sermon is directed especially to the junior members of the audience, and is based upon the laws of child psychology, though adults will find helpful thoughts, even in a sermon directed to the children. The evening sermon deals more directly with the evidences of Christianity, and is evangelistic. Strangers will find a cordial welcome among the Honoluluans who attend these meetings. The minister can be found at the church from 12:30 to 1:30 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week. The midweek meeting is held on Wednesday at 7:30. The church building is located on Alakea and King streets. DAVID CARY PETERS.

CENTRAL UNION CHURCH.

Gilmore, teacher. 11 a. m., morning service, sermon by the assistant minister, "As a Man Thinketh." 3 p. m., Christian Endeavor song service at Leahi Home. 6:30 p. m., Christian Endeavor meeting in the Parish House; topic, "Living Christ in the Home"; leader, Mrs. S. Monday—7:30 p. m., a meeting of the standing committee in the church parlor to welcome new members. All who desire to join the church at the next communion are requested to meet the committee at this time. Wednesday—7:30 p. m., midweek service; a study of the First Epistle of Peter, led by the assistant minister. Friday—7:30 p. m., quarterly convention of the Oahu Young People's Union at the new Kaumakapili Church; addresses by Mr. Kamakapili and Rev. D. C. Peters. A full attendance of all Christian Endeavor members is desired.

SCHOOLGRAMS.

The following schoolgrams have been issued by the Board of Health: Let the first lesson be: How to keep well. Keep that pencil out of your mouth—it may have scarlet fever, diphtheria or typhoid fever germs on it. You'll be brighter, learn more and keep in better health if your teacher will keep the windows of the school-room open. Bad air makes a sluggish brain. Swapping gum, swapping apples and swapping candy are about the dirtiest things—and the most dangerous things—that a child can do. Don't be that dirty. "Skidoo" from the boy or girl with "a little sore throat." "A little sore throat" in one little child may cause a big lot of trouble for many other children. Many "little sore throats" are in reality diphtheria. "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you"—meaning:

EDUCATION CAMPAIGN IS HAVING GOOD EFFECT

The educational campaign which is being inaugurated by President Pratt of the Board of Health is having good results. Dr. Conkey, who has just accepted the position of government physician at Kula, Maui, in a letter to Dr. Pratt yesterday stated that the circular on the feeding of babies was having a good effect and that he had noticed great improvements about the district. Following is the circular, which has been printed in English, Hawaiian and Portuguese: Bottles. The bottle should be thoroughly cleaned with boiling water after each feeding and the mouth of the bottle closed with a piece of clean cotton until next feeding. A little (half a teaspoonful) bicarbonate of soda (cooking soda) should be put in the washing water. Nipples. The nipples should be turned inside out and scrubbed in boiling water after each feeding, and when not in use kept in a solution of cooking soda. (One teaspoonful soda to one quart of boiled water.) Feeding. If the child does not take all the milk at the feeding the rest should be thrown away and not used at the next feeding. Fresh milk should be made up for each feeding. When the child nurses, hold the bottle and do not allow the child to lie down and take the bottle itself. Feed the child at regular hours and with warm milk. Do not allow the child to suck the nipple after there is no more milk in the bottle or when the nipple is attached to the bottle containing milk. Keep the bottles and nipples in a clean place. If cow's milk can be obtained, it should be used in the following proportions: CHILD 1 WEEK OLD. Cream—2 teaspoonful. Whey—3 teaspoonful. Lime water—2 teaspoonful. Water—2 teaspoonful. Feed every 2 hours in daytime and once at night. CHILD 4 TO 6 WEEKS OLD. Cream—4 teaspoonful. Whey—4 teaspoonful. Water—4 teaspoonful. Sugar milk—1/2 teaspoonful. Bicarbonate soda—What will go on the end of the small blade of a knife. Feed every 2 1/2 hours in the daytime and once at night. CHILD 2 TO 3 MONTHS OLD. Cream—4 teaspoonful. Milk—8 teaspoonful. Water—12 teaspoonful. Sugar milk—1/2 to 1 teaspoonful. Bicarbonate soda—What will go on the end of the small blade of a knife. Feed every 2 1/2 hours in the daytime and once at night. CHILD 4 TO 6 MONTHS OLD. Cream—8 teaspoonful. Milk—16 teaspoonful. Water—16 teaspoonful. Sugar milk—1 teaspoonful. Bicarbonate soda—What will go on the end of the large blade of a knife. Feed every 3 hours in the daytime and none at night. CHILD 6 TO 8 MONTHS OLD. Cream—8 teaspoonful. Milk—4 ounces (32 teaspoonful). Water—4 ounces (32 teaspoonful). Sugar milk—1 to 1 1/2 teaspoonful. Bicarbonate soda—What will go on the end of the large blade of a knife. Feed every 3 hours in the daytime and none at night. When cow's milk can not be obtained, condensed milk should be used. Use Eagle Brand condensed milk. Open the can and remove contents to a glass tumbler which has been thoroughly cleaned with boiling water. Keep tumbler covered with a clean saucer or plate. For the first month use 1 part condensed milk and 12 to 16 parts water. For the second month use 1 part condensed milk and 12 to 14 parts water. For the third month use 1 part condensed milk and 10 to 12 parts water. After the third month gradually decrease the amount of water as the child grows older, so that at the age of ten or twelve months the strength will be 1 part condensed milk to 8 or 7 parts water. The water which is used to make up the food should be boiled before mixing with the condensed milk. A clean spoon should be used for measuring the condensed milk. Use a clean container to mix and warm the milk in.

"During der month off June efferbody vas graduating. Der vas der young feller what las going to set der world on fire der next day after he gets his diploma, dot's what he thinks; und der lass der shweet girl graduate what efferbody luffs, und den comes all off dem fellers what graduated as far back as der oldest inhabitant can remember, und dey all come out in a sort off reunion effer year, shunt to let people know as how dey vas graduated from something. Thank der Lord I vas neffer a graduate. "I see as how der mandatory commission las acting like as if it had stepped on a banana skin. I don't know what las der matter, but I vas thinking as how would der back yards off der city looked if dey vas photographed. But laying all off der joking along side off you, I think it las about time as how der officials what las responsible for der health off der city to roll up der sleeves und get ready for der first disease bug what comes by der Panama canal ships. Don't you forget it, Adolph; dey vas coming more quick as anything. Der people here haff gott an idea as how der Panama canal las only a mooring picture. "I think as how it las something almost comic der vay dey vas fighting der mosquitoes here, und iff dey are doing what dey honestly think las right it las, what you call it, pathetic. Ach, Adolph, I cannot get onto der deratives at all. "Did I notice der new shaped hats der women las wearing? Vell, I bet you it las more better as dot shytly should change. I asked der lady what luffs by der next house about it, und she said as how der gals could chow gunny mit one off dem hats on und nobody could see what dey vas doing. Now, when you las talking about hats for der ladies, I see der funniest thing what offer vas some time last week. "Sure, ve haff a new man what las going to do der honors along der waterfront. But I told you, Adolph, dot life on der ocean vave las not what it vas when ve were boys. You don't see no more quarter decks, und dere vas so liddle rigging on der ships now days it las hardly a fair show to write a story off der sea. HAWAII COLLEGE FOOTBALL MEN

Kams and High Open Monday; Many Athletes to Compete in A. A. U. Meet.

The College of Hawaii has received enough recruits to allow the college to put up a football team this year, although the team will not be so strong. This is good news to the Panahous, as they will start in preliminary work next week.

Captain Marenchino believes he can get together enough material from the boys at college to put up a strong team. There is one crack athlete who hails from the States now attending Hawaii. His name is Cuz. He is a football player, too. Bill Pice is also back at the institution. Ig and Pook On will be at their respective positions as last year—at right and left end. Chris Hoy comes from Oahu College and he will soon put on the football togs with the rest of the bunch and turn out for work. Fraser will return to the college next week and will be a valuable man on the team.

The question as to whether the Kams will enter the football game this year will be taken up by the school athletic association soon after school opens.

The High School will receive about one hundred recruits when school opens Monday, and out of this number Coach Folsom ought to find enough material to continue the football team this year. The Highs have lost Lester Marks, Kenneth Ables, Solomon Hoe, Joseph Pratt, Clarence Dyer and Howard Case, also R. Monsarrat.

The Kanehameha Schools open Monday with an overflowing list of students. This has been the record-breaking year of students to apply for places at the schools, and President Horne has a waiting list of forty-five, with an enrollment of 185 boys to take in. He has told forty other applicants that there is no chance whatever of their entering the school this year.

This was "Kanehameha week" for incoming student passengers on the Inter-Island boats. Yesterday morning the Mauna Loa brought a big crowd for the schools. The Mauna Kea and Kinohiwa also brought a large crowd of Kam girls this morning.

Among the students who arrived this morning from Hawaii were W. Apau, the hammer thrower and baseball player on the Kam team. He will take part in the A. A. U. meet on September 30. A. Spencer, another member of the ball team, came down on the boat. Apau is the school soccer team captain, and he will have his usual men back on the team again this year.

The Kam boys will make good use of their new athletic field this year, and an interclass series of games will be started. The field is in the best of condition, and the track is being finished up.

Walter Kamatopili, the new major of the cadet battalion at the Kanehameha Schools, is in town and will return to school Monday. Walter is an all-round athlete. As a whole, the Kanehamehas are not losing any valuable men this year. The soccer team is

Rex Hitchcock, formerly a star athlete at Oahu College, left for the East to continue his second year at Harvard, where he has been making good. Rex would have had a chance to get on the football team this year, but as practice will start soon he will probably miss his chance of making the team. The Harvard football candidates are to report for work on September 18—next Monday. One of the big features of the season will be the game between Harvard and Princeton on November 4. They last met fourteen years ago, when the Tigers lowered the crimson colors. Rex leaves brothers Ran and Willie still at Oahu College, and both are prominent in athletics at the institution.

Yale has won the college golf championship for the last seven years. R. E. Hunter was the last man to win, in 1910. Harvard won her last golf championship in 1904.

Asan changed his mind during the week and will stick to St. Louis College instead of going to Oahu, as he first planned. He will lead the Saints next season in the interscholastic baseball series.

After all, our Bill did not skidoo. He is still attending the College of Hawaii. He will go along with the baseball nine next spring. They were watching for him Tuesday night.

W. Apau, Bill Nottage, Hans Passoth, H. Godfrey, Bill Rice, A. Kalanilua, G. Manoha, Sing Hong and many other members of the various school teams last spring will take part in the coming A. A. U. meet.

Because there is very little profit in school books, owing to the fact that they are sold in Honolulu at absolutely list price, all the bookellers in the city have decided to sell school books for cash only during the coming season.

KAUAI BALL SERIES IS PAU

Makawelis Lose Last Game to Kilaueas After Exciting Match—Soccer Next.

Down on the Garden Island the last game of the baseball season in the Kauai League has been played and it was a great battle between the champion Makaweli team and the Kilaueas, the game being played on the latter's ground. The champions came over with colors flying, thinking that they would have a cinch on the game, but the Kilaueas came through with a surprise package and beat the champions 4-2 after a very exciting encounter.

The Makawelis started things going in the first part of the game, making one in the first and another in the third. This looked good to the champions, and they were determined to win a shut-out game, but the Kilaueas awoke when the routing of the young daves started and they scored two in the sixth and two more in the eighth, and the home rosters were certainly delighted, as the champions failed to score in the ninth.

It was a great game and the Makawelis are the champs for the season 1911, winning fourteen games and losing four. The Lihue nine is second in the series, with a percentage of .611.

Eddie Fernandez inspired the game at Kilauea to the satisfaction of both teams.

The standing of the Kauai League for the 1911 season is as follows:

	G.	W.	L.	Pct.
Makaweli	18	14	4	.850
Lihue	18	11	7	.611
Kilauea	18	11	7	.611
Eleele	18	9	9	.500
Koloa	18	7	11	.429
Honolulu	18	6	12	.333
Kawailua	18	5	13	.278

NEW PRINCIPAL AT HILO SCHOOL

Prescott E. Jernegan, the new principal for the Hilo High school who arrived last week expects his bride to be to follow in a few weeks. They will be married in Hilo. The department of education is trying to get all married men and Superintendent of Education Pope declares that there can never be another such scandal as occurred before.

The new principal is an experienced school man of Brown University and was for nearly a decade in the public schools of the Philippines. He has now been on the mainland for nearly a year.

There are only a few vacancies to be filled now and teachers for these positions will leave the Coast this week. Everything looks well for the coming term and all the school supplies are practically on their way to the various stations.

STARS TACKLE LEADERS SUNDAY

J. A. C. Are Determined to Win Series in Spite of Defeat Last Sunday.

The Oahu League will continue its games tomorrow, when the usual doubleheader will take place. Since the crowd is increasing every Sunday, it goes to show that the ball fans are well pleased with the games being put up by the teams this series. The Japanese boycott is still on, but that does not prevent the real sports from attending the games.

Last Sunday a royal battle was seen between the two leading teams, and as the P. A. Cs. won out, the J. A. Cs. are after their scups and would do anything almost for the Hawaii if they trim the leaders, but whether the Hawaii can do this much after having such hard luck this series it is hard to say.

The Portuguese are at the top of the ladder, and Manager Parosa hopes to keep them there. It will be a hard job, too, for any of the other lines to pull them down.

The American Japanese team has a fighting chance of carrying off the series yet, and as it is to meet the P. A. Cs. once more this series, it will turn out to be a hard battle.

In the first game tomorrow the Stars will tackle the topnotchers and the J. A. Cs. will meet the tailenders.

Fretas, who has been pitching fine ball for the P. A. Cs., will once more do the twirling for the P. A. Cs. His team support is great and can always be relied on. Joseph will catch, as Soares' split hand is not yet well enough to permit of his playing.

The Stars try Kan Yen once more. He proved to be all right last Saturday, but his support was awful.

The second game should be a dandy, as the Hawaii are determined to get out of their hole before the series ends.

Lota will be in the box for the Hawaii, while Medeiros will be his opponent. Ayau, who usually puts up a star game for the Hawaii, will be at his old station at short, and he will be ready to gather in the hot liners.

The grounds at the Athletic Park at the present time are in the best of condition, and the boys are well pleased with it.

HACK LOOKS LIKE QUITTER

Champion Gotch Played With Him—Match So Poor Bets Called Off.

George Hackenschmidt, the alleged "Russian Lion," made such a miserable showing in the great championship wrestling match with Frank Gotch in Chicago on Labor Day that the fans were disgusted with him, according to news from the mainland, and the poor match was the reason for calling the bets off.

Following is an account of the big match:

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—The geographical center of the wrestling world was more than ever fortified at Humboldt, Ia., the home of Frank Gotch, today. Moreover, Referee Edward W. Smith, who proclaimed the world's champion victor over George Hackenschmidt in two straight, quick falls, declared that for the next 10 years there would be no shift of the wrestling capital, unless Gotch should choose to change his place of residence.

The Russian's showing was pitiful. The crowd decreed that he had "quit," but the defeated challenger, through copious tears, averred that he entered the arena with a wrenched knee, on which Gotch worked and speedily reduced him to an almost helpless state.

In any event it is certain that the foreigner's nerves were on edge. He spent a sleepless night and was pale when he crawled through the ropes. Dr. J. J. Davis, who examined both wrestlers before they went to the mat, declared that while there might be something wrong with Hackenschmidt's knee, it was not evident during the examination.

Makes the Russian Beg.

While it took Gotch 14 minutes and 18 1-5 seconds to gain the first fall, the second fall required only 5 minutes and 32 1-5 seconds, which Hackenschmidt's friends assert proves that his knee was in bad condition.

Referee Smith is authority for the statement that when Gotch secured the fatal toe lock, which won him the second fall, Hackenschmidt cried out: "Don't hurt my leg!" and a second later "Don't break my leg!" and fell with his shoulders to the mat, frothing at the mouth.

The first fall resulted from a reverse body hold after the men had struggled 14 minutes 18 1-5 seconds. That terrible toe hold, for which Gotch is famous, was responsible for the second fall. He clamped it upon the left foot of Hackenschmidt, and ended the second fall in 5 minutes 32 1-5 seconds. Scarcely had he obtained the grip when Hackenschmidt acknowledged defeat with his shoulders.

Gotch In Danger Once.

Hackenschmidt's own statement that it was the easiest world's championship ever won tells the story of the bout. Gotch never was in serious difficulty at any time during the match. Neither was he forced to extend himself to win. The Iowa got in all half a dozen dangerous holds on his antagonist. Hackenschmidt had Gotch worried but once. During the first bout Hackenschmidt obtained a body hold on Gotch that brought him to the mat. But the champion was on the canvas for only a few seconds. Then he was only down as far as his knees. Almost before the "Lion" realized his opponent was in a dangerous predicament, Gotch had wriggled out of the hold and was bounding across the ring to safety.

Facts of the Match.

Winner—Frank A. Gotch of Humboldt, Ia., champion of the world.

Loser—George Hackenschmidt of Dorpat, Russia, European champion.

First Fall—Gotch pinned Hackenschmidt with a reverse body hold. Time, 14:18 1-5.

Total receipts—$87,053.

Gotch's share—$21,000 and 50 per cent of moving picture profits.

Jack Curley, Hackenschmidt's manager, received $29,327 as his share.

Empire Athletic Club's share—$6,250.

Expenses—$16,366.

Referee—Edward W. Smith of Chicago.

Timekeeper—Walter H. Eckersall of Chicago.

Why Bets Were Called Off.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Calling off all bets on the Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match yesterday has raised a storm of protests by those who had money up on the winner. Herman F. Schuetzler, assistant chief of police, last night explained the action by saying that such procedure is customary. An added reason, he said, is that the police are determined to stamp out gambling in the city.

"Referee Smith," Chief Schuetzler explained, "proposed that the bets be called off. His reason was that in case the match turned out to be a poor one, as it did, there would be a tremendous squawk from the betters and that wrestling would receive a serious setback in Chicago."

"You understand, it is quite customary to call bets off in events of this kind. It has little effect, as the bettors will back their opinions regardless of the announcement."

"One more fiasco like this and wrestling is a dead card in Chicago."

Warm praise for President Taft was the feature of the platform adopted by the northern New Jersey Republicans in convention at Hackensack.

Samuel Sussman head of the firm of Sussman, Wobuser & Co., died in San Francisco, where he was engaged in business for forty years.

ZEEBER'S CASE IS HELD OVER

Captain Zeeder of the steamer Siberia was to be brought before the Federal court this morning but as it is a holiday he will now wait until the Siberia makes the return trip again. He will be asked to explain the presence of opium on board the vessel during a previous call at this port.

It is stated that twelve out of the twenty-seven indictments brought by the grand jury yesterday are against "Phoney" Davis.

Another of the indictments was also brought against Nichols, the man who committed assault on a man at Fort Shafter reservation a few weeks ago.

The grand jury meets Monday again and expects to bring in its final report during next week.

THIS MAN HAS TWO WIVES IN HIS HOME

First One, "Legally Dead" Insists On Staying.

PITTSBURGH, Kan., Aug. 19.—"I love him and I can not stay away from him even if Louisa is also his wife," declared Mrs. Anna Catherine Sharp, first wife of Peter C. Sharp of this city, who returned here yesterday from New Orleans, where she went following a quarrel with Sharp's second and younger wife, Louisa. The first Mrs. Sharp today is a guest again at the Sharp home.

"She can stay as long as she wants to," said Mrs. Louisa Sharp, last night. "But I am to be the boss."

Sharp and his first wife were parted in the great Chicago fire. Nine years ago he came to Pittsburg and married his second wife, Louisa. Anna Catherine located Sharp through the United States pension bureau. She came here and found him married. As she had been legally dead many years, she had no standing in court. Sharp, however, took her into his home and for several weeks the two women lived in the house, the first wife as a guest. Quarrels caused Anna-Catherine to go to New Orleans to live with a son, over a month ago.

MANY CHILDREN USE PLAYGROUND

Again it has been proved and emphasized that children's playgrounds in Honolulu pay.

The Children's Aid and Free Kindergarten association held a meeting yesterday, at which the chairman of the playgrounds committee, Mrs. Roderick O. Matheson, made her report on the work for the four months ending August 31.

The report shows that during that period 27,000 children in this recreation district have used the playgrounds.

The figures of the report showed that the attendance of children, which had fallen off during the months of June and July consequent on the employment of the majority of the older children in the pineapple canneries, was increasing and last month almost reached the record of the opening month. The figures are: May, 7,167; June, 6,812; July, 6,345; August, 6,874. The average number of children a day using the playground during last month was 222.

The mothers of the children also find the playground, with its shaded arbors and comfortable benches, a boon. Last month, for instance, 246 spent some hours there with the children.

The committee report was further satisfactory in that it stated that "there are no requirements for the playground at present."

NIGHT WAR GAME IS PLAYED OFF HONOLULU

Maneuvers with the Diamond Head searchlights were undertaken last night by the naval station tug Navajo in command of Chief Gunner Babson, the tug attempting to evade the shafts of light sent out over the waters by the operators in the Fort Ruger fortifications.

The Navajo left the harbor at 7 o'clock and steamed out towards Mo'okai, but after once being in the focus of the light, soon got out of it and was not picked up again until a rocket was sent up from the boat to indicate its position.

"BIG SISTER" MOVEMENT REACHES HONOLULU; STRONG EFFORTS WILL BE MADE ON BEHALF OF GIRLS

The Big Sister movement which is comparatively new on the mainland, and which is a distinct novelty in Honolulu, was given considerable impetus at a meeting of the Woman's Society of Central Union church at the home of Mrs. C. H. Atherton on King street Thursday afternoon. The meeting was addressed by Miss Maynard, who, as local probation officer and resident nurse at the Girl's Industrial Home, is in a position to feel keenly the need of the help of good women in rescuing girls from lives of shame which in many instances have been thrust upon them.

The College Club, through whose agitation and the interest of certain prominent legislators, the office of probation officer was created, has taken the initiative in the Big Sister Movement and the Woman's Society is the next to evince an interest in the work. Mrs. Frear, wife of the Governor, Mrs. Whitney, wife of Judge W. L. Whitney, and Mrs. H. E. Hendrick, former president of the College Club, are prominent members of that organization who are the leading spirits in the new movement. That they mean to carry the matter through, and will seek to do all in their power to advance the work in this city, is proven by the fact that several members of the College Club have expressed a desire to be a "Big Sister" with all that the name implies.

Miss Maynard began her work as probation officer for girls the first of last July. She is the first paid officer to work in this Territory. Prior to 1905 there was no probation officer here. The Dickey bill, put through in that year, made the necessary provision, however, and in 1907 another victory was gained in the provision for the trial of juvenile cases in special chambers. The act for the prevention of cruelty to children, the indeterminate sentence and the curfew law were also put through in that year. In 1909 juveniles were transferred from the Police Court to a Circuit Court, thus creating a separate juvenile court. The provision for paid juvenile officers followed this year.

Miss Maynard, who was formerly head nurse at the Palama Hospital, and prior to coming here, worked in the Henry Street district in New York city, yesterday told of a number of pitiable cases that had come under her supervision during the past two months. They were stories of crime and suffering of such awfulness as to be almost unbelievable, and much keen interest was awakened among the women who heard them. In many instances, Miss Maynard stated, the parents were as much to blame as the girls, and in several instances the mothers were wholly at fault.

In the past two months thirty-four cases of children under eighteen years of age have come up in the juvenile court. Five of these have been committed, and the others turned over to the probation officer for further consideration. Twenty-one of these have been paroled. Miss Maynard's duties, she stated, included visits to the homes of her charges, and they, in turn must report to her.

A partial review of the work was given by Miss Maynard at the meeting in order that the members of the society might appreciate fully the need for the Big Sister work here.

The Big Sister work will follow in all essential details the organization of the Big Brothers, which was established here first. The following suggestions, for the use and guidance of the Big Brothers of the Church Club of the Diocese of Honolulu, are taken from a leaflet issued by the Executive Council of the Big Brother Movement, 1 Madison avenue, New York, and were declared by Miss Maynard to be equally apropos for the Big Sisters. The only essential changes, she declared, would be in the matter of recreation, that of the girl naturally differing.

1. Call on the boy in his home.
2. Get acquainted with his father and mother.
3. See what can be done to improve his home conditions.
4. Do not give financial aid except in extreme cases.
5. See the boy's teacher.
6. If he is not at school or at work, the first thing to do is to get him back into school if possible.
7. If the family needs his help, get him a job at some work in good surroundings.
8. Find out where the boy spends his evenings.
9. Have your physician look the boy over. Adenoids and malnutrition are frequent explanations of perversity in the boy.
10. Bring him around to one of the boys' gymnasiums.
11. Invite him to your home and

12. Invite him to call on you at your office or place of business.
13. Be interested in a boy's interests.
14. Take him to a ball game with you.
15. Take him to a concert or a good, clean show.
16. Don't patronize; you may know more about virtue, but the boy is a better expert on temptation.
17. Find out whether he attends Sunday school or church.
18. Prove your point of view.
19. Discover the boy's chief interests.
20. Find something for him to do in which you can arouse his interest.
21. Try to encourage the habit of reading.
22. Get him to assume some responsibility.
23. Get him to write to you once in a while.
24. Above all, remember that you are a Big Brother, that you were once a boy, and be patient.
25. Just one thing more: Report regularly to the chairman of the committee and notify him of the arrangement you make for "Big Brothering" the boy in case of your absence from the city for any length of time.
26. Do it now. Now is the critical time, when the boy needs help.
27. If you believe that a boy in the open is better than a boy in jail, you are in sympathy with the Big Brothers. If you believe that a boy unaided cannot overcome the tendency of unfortunate environment or be happy and good without any of the things that make happiness and goodness, you concur in the Big Brother Platform. If you are willing yourself to help a boy, Rev. Leopold Kroll, chairman of the Big Brother Committee, can supply the very boy who needs you to brother him a little, to give him some fun, to show him how to be manly, to take some of life's handicap off his underfed body and undeveloped mind.

Contrary to the prevalent idea that to be a Big Sister one must offer financial help, the principals of the organization call chiefly for friendly interest and a desire to give some girl whose environments have made her an unfortunate, a good, wholesome, healthy time, thereby instilling in her a desire for right living. Furthermore, it does not mean that you shall take that girl into your home. It does mean, however, that you shall go to see her occasionally, take her for an auto ride, perhaps, to the seashore or theater—in short, to be her particular friend. Condescension of whatever nature should be carefully avoided.

Miss Maynard is particularly anxious that the Big Sister Movement should not become a fad in Honolulu. She says she would rather have five or six good, conscientious women take up the work with a view to carrying it on permanently, than several hundred who might wish to drop it in time.

"The people who thank the Lord that they are not as other people have no place in this work," said Miss Maynard. "A number of society girls have said how perfectly lovely it would be to engage in this work and have gushed over it considerably, but not one has come to me and said, 'My automobile will be at your service between such and such hours on Saturday,' or 'Is there some one I can take out to the beach with me this afternoon?'"

However, there does seem to be a number of women who are genuinely interested in the work, and although no names were taken at the meeting yesterday, Miss Maynard preferring that they think the matter over carefully before making any promises, it is expected that some definite steps will be taken at the regular monthly meeting of the society in October.

Fashionable hotels of Philadelphia have been forced to post notices that hereafter "souvenir hunters" would be prosecuted for either petty or grand larceny, according to the value of the hotel belongings they managed to carry from the dining and bedrooms, say press reports.

Among the hotels are the Bellevue-Stratford, the Walton, the Rittenhouse, the Majestic and the St. James.

The posting of the notices comes as an aftermath of complaints of the waiters, who heretofore have been forced to pay for cutlery, dishes, napkins, etc., which were charged to them when they left the kitchen and which were not returned. These charges became so heavy on the waiters that they refused to continue at work if longer held responsible for the thefts.

Honolulu Girl, Nun, Is Back To Labor For Good

Sister Adelaida Home After Training Abroad

SISTER ADELAIDA

TRAVELING all the way from France in company with two Sacred Heart Convent Sisters, Sister Adelaida, who arrived in Honolulu last week, had many novel experiences, numbered among which were arguments with the customs officers in New York concerning her nationality. Much to the amusement of Sister Adelaida, these high and mighty insisted that she was a Japanese, in spite of her declarations to the contrary.

The novelty of the idea of a Chinese nun caused the New Yorkers to gasp with astonishment and everywhere Sister Adelaida went she was greeted by a curious throng. One newspaper under scare-headlines proclaimed her "a real princess of royal blood," substantiating their assertion by the declaration that her mother, a princess, only two steps removed from the Hawaiian throne, married Wong Leong, a wealthy Chinese. The daughter, it was declared, was regarded in Hawaii as a great beauty, was a talented musician, and spoke eight languages.

As a matter of fact, Sister Adelaida is a linguist of no mean ability, although her versatility is confined to four languages instead of eight. She speaks Chinese, Hawaiian, English and French, a mastery of the latter having been gained during her stay in France.

Sister Adelaida has returned to Honolulu for the purpose of entering the Sacred Heart Convent as a teacher of music, and although her preparations for a secluded and pious life were of a decidedly strict nature, she did not deny herself a sight-seeing tour of Paris, and with her feminine instincts keenly awake, was impressed with the beauty of the gay metropolis. En route she also spent some time in London, but declared after her arrival here that it could in no way compare with Paris.

Before beginning the long trip to the South Sea Islands Sister Adelaida visited the convent in New Haven, Conn. She made the trip to San Francisco by the Southern route.

Sister Adelaida is thirty-two years of age and has consecrated the remainder of her life to the local convent. She will teach piano, violin and voice. She was born in Honolulu and many of her girlhood friends have watched with interest the rapid strides she has made in the world of music.

Dr. Wong Leong is a brother of the young woman, and although he expected her to be his guest for a time after her arrival in Honolulu, she waived the pleasures of a reunion and went to the convent immediately upon leaving the ship.

TRIAL COURTSHIP PLAN NEWEST IN THE EAST

Trial courtship—a variety of wooing which allows for the bridegroom-to-be a three days' period of boarding at the home of his sweetheart, during which time he samples her cooking and tests her disposition to make sure that his married life will be a success—is not a novelty that Honolulu wants. The scheme, the latest pet notion of the little village of Elsie, Ill., near East St. Louis, is reported in news dispatches to have been proven a great success when two sweethearts there clinched their decisions to become man and wife after the preliminary courtship at the home of the bride's mother.

Here is the way things went down in the village of Elsie, according to one dispatch:

"Last Saturday the bridegroom-to-be took up his abode with his fiancée and watched her methods of keeping house, sampled her cooking, studied her ways and tried to find if her personality was such as would make him a good wife. At the same time she tried his disposition, tested his patience, observed his manners and endeavored to find if the affection she expected him to express would be true and lasting."

"The man was Wilson D. Sherman of Williamsport, Pa., and the woman Miss Maud Sherman of Elsie. He is 35 years old and she is 30. Their acquaintance began two years ago, when they began to correspond after learning each other's names in a matrimonial journal."

"Miss Sherman does not deny she took a little more than ordinary pains to see that Wilson's beefsteaks and pie were a little above the ordinary run. Once she purposely delayed a meal to see whether he would become nervous or uneasy, but he only smiled and said supper would taste all the better when it came. So things went along smoothly for three days in the Elsie household. Now of all the dresses made for wear at fashionable seaside resorts, or for country house visiting, the designs in white nylon or mousseline with broderie Anglaise decorations and touches of black velvet are the daintiest, says the New York Telegram. The heavy velvet allied to the cobweb texture of the nylon, with its wide openwork embroidery, is the daintiest combination imaginable, and when the hat, too, is white, with waving black plumes and velvet streamers, the toilette is charming.

One gown of this type has a deep flounce of broderie Anglaise running up to the knees to meet a tunic of Valenciennes and nylon arranged in one with a baby bodice made with long sleeves of Valenciennes to the wrists. Between the shoulders across the back there is a huge bow of Liberty satin with streamer ends falling down to the hem, the ends being bordered with black velvet. Folds of black velvet run around the waist, and the hat of black velvet in picture style has a wreath of white satin roses.

The black and white vogue is extended to all kinds of materials. Dresses in white charmeuse are clasped up the side with panels of black velvet; buttons and facings of black velvet finish coats and skirts of white cloth or linen; while white dresses for the evening are trimmed in one way or another with black satin, velvet or tulle.

The newest cocktail shakers have the two lips and the top screws to close them. The usual size is for eight cocktails.

SWARTHY COBBLER'S LOVE OF THE BEAUTIFUL IS STRONG

A nail protruding from the heel of one of my patent leather pumps took me into a shoe cobbler's shop on Bernatiah street the other day.

To be perfectly honest I was a bit alarmed at the appearance of the man who sat in one corner of the tiny 9x12 room. He was a swarthy foreigner of some sort, with matted coal black hair, sooty eye-lids and bearded chin. He wore a silver ring in one ear and an immense carved bracelet on his left arm.

For a moment I hesitated and when I spoke my voice had a funny tsetso-ring; I was glad to get out on the street again. I can tell you.

But what I started to say was this: The general appearance of the room was as filthy and unkempt as the man who occupied it. Old shoes of various shapes and sizes were scattered about the floor, together with great rolls of leather and work implements. The place was bare of furniture with the exception of a rough wooden bench on which the man sat, and a stained mahogany chair in one corner.

This chair attracted my attention as on

I was making a hasty exit, and in spite of an impelling desire to get away, I stopped for a moment to examine it. It was old, high-backed, and hand-carved—a genuine antique, and a beauty.

Thinking that any cheap chair would serve the purpose of the cobbler as well, I offered to buy the one in his possession.

He gave me a fleeting, disdainful glance, and then casting his eyes nervously on his great horny hands, he answered, "Me no sell—me like that."

Whether the chair is really an heirloom or whether it merely caught the curious fancy of the old man I do not know, but the truth remains that it was all he had, he liked it and didn't intend to part with it.

The incident brought home this lesson to me: Part and parcel of human nature is a reverential love of the beautiful and we cling to it tenaciously, whether we be white or black, yes verily!

FEMININE CHAT

The fichu drapery which is shown so extensively in the latest style books, bids fair to become a craze here in Honolulu. One enterprising firm has laid in a bewildering array of detachable fichus. When they are added to an old gown a new and smart effect is obtained.

Ball fringe for dress trimmings has but recently come into vogue on the mainland. Anticipating a craze for novelties of this sort, a local firm laid in a goodly supply. The crocheted balls which the lot includes, are distinctly new and exceptionally attractive for tub dresses. The fringe is fashioned of coarse crocheted cotton and washes beautifully. One attractive pattern has a beading finish.

It really should be said as a matter of congratulation to the women of Honolulu that members of the feminine sex were conspicuous by their absence in the crowd which watched the hypnotic sleeper several days this week. Such morbid curiosity may be excusable in a man—things generally are—but in a woman—never!

Himalaya cloth, which of recent years is so widely advertised for dress materials, is shown in distinctly new patterns for Fall. A local firm is displaying a new shipment in a variety of colors—Copenhagen blue, rose pink, bottle green and mauve, each having a harmonizing border of oriental design. This description is inadequate—it sounds tawdry where as the effect is really artistic. The material is primarily for frocks and coats—being a clever imitation of rajah silk—but it would make very attractive curtains. The color selected should harmonize with the general tone of the room of course.

A local woman who returned from the east during the past week, tells me that the newest shades in New York are orange, dark purple, bordering on the plum, and barbed blues and reds. They are a bit hard on the complexion, she says, but are worn alike by blondes and brunettes. As she was assisting with the selection of a bride's trousseau she had ample opportunity to see a varied selection.

If the bachelor who is invited so often to partake of cozy home dinners knew how much appreciated a bunch of roses or other flowers would be by the hostess, certainly he would do the graceful, act of offering. When the hostess' husband suggests that he would like to bring "Tom" home to dinner, she usually falls in with the plan because she thinks by so doing she is pleasing her husband. She arranges the details without any deep shadow of interest, for bachelor friends have come and departed many times without any apparent thought for her other than that the viands were good, or the home atmosphere pleasant. She has stopped considering their realities in life.

But if one thoughtful soul arises to break the monotony by a real thought for her personally, and expresses it in this sweet way it is more than likely he will be invited again, and maybe he will be asked to name some of his favorite dishes for his future consumption.

When she arrives at center the chain will be coiled up like a snake. Then she brings them back to a straight line simply by turning around and hippy-hopping out.

In "catch as catch can" a large number may play also. On opposite sides of the field there are homes or goals; between these places half of the players stand in a line with their hands joined; the others are at one of the goals. One of those on home shouts "Catch as catch can!" and all those on the goal must run at once for the other side. The center line tries to form a circle about as many of their opponents as possible; all that are caught in the ring must then assist in catching the rest. It would appear difficult for the last two or three players to evade the circle, but in reality it is easy, because the center line becomes too long and unwieldy to gather its forces with rapidity.

Other enjoyable school yard diversions for girls are pass ball, skipping rope games and jacks. "Knock at the door," "pigs in the pen," "around the moon," "hard nineties" and other plays are well known to "jack" devotees. "Through the hoop" is less familiar. The player makes a loop with her left thumb and forefinger and drops the jacks through the aperture. "Vault the fence" is another figure. The right hand placed at right angles to the floor is used as a fence and over this the jacks are dropped.

The boys' schoolyard games divide up into running and ball games. Running games, like "pam, pam, pull away," "prisoners' base" and "chess

VIGOROUS GAMES FOR THE SCHOOL-YARD

Care-free vacation days are over, and whether the youngsters are glad or sorry they find themselves back in the school rooms in the midst of manual training, the construction work and the books they left behind them last June. For a time at least until their restless natures become accustomed to the lack of continual activity, the hours in the school room are going to seem long—so long in fact that their little backs will ache and in imagination at least, they will fairly gasp for the cool and invigorating breeze that makes the back-yard such a comfortable playground.

It is a wise teacher who realizes these besetting trials of the first few weeks and arranges as much exercise as possible. I don't know how it is here on the islands, but on the mainland the teachers are required of recent years to look after the playtime of the children quite as much as the study time. They accompany their charges to the recreation grounds and superintendent the sports, entering into the games with as much zest as the children themselves. They rebelled at first, averting that the recess hour should be a time for the teachers to relax, but gradually they have come to look at the innovation in the light of a physical benefit, and many of those who are perfectly frank both with themselves and the superintendents declare that the new system is a decided improvement over the old.

After a quiet session at their desks, children want exciting, vigorous, running games for recess time. Such games cause them to glow with health and dispel the stupid feeling provoked by an ill-ventilated room. Except in rainy or very windy days it is much wiser to play outside, instead of in a stuffy basement or other recreation room. Teachers are always glad to see strenuous games in progress at recess for it means that their pupils will not be as restless when they troop back as when they marched out.

are played almost daily at every school recess in the city, but there are others not so familiar. "Sixty" is commonly played in Coast schoolyards, and is not unlike "I spy." The boy who is "it" counts to sixty while the players hide themselves. "It" then hunts until he finds one of the hidden players, who must be tagged before either boy reaches goal. If "it" gets in first the others are allowed to come in free, and the boy who was caught becomes "it."

Races and tag games are popular. Relay teams may easily be organized. The best runners in an eighth grade room may run against those in the seventh grade.

In "dodge ball" there are two equal teams. One team forms a circle and the other groups itself inside the ring. Some one in the circle then throws a soft indoor baseball or a basket ball, if one is obtainable, at the legs of the dodgers. When any one is hit he is out. The ball is kept in constant motion by those in the outside circle; the more rapidly it is tossed the less chance the dodgers have to escape it. As soon as all the inside players have been caught they form a circle and the others become the dodgers. An umpire is needed to time the team in order to see which was able to stay in the field the longer. "Ring ball" is a simple game in which a ring is made and the ball is quickly thrown from player to player in no particular order; any one who fails to catch it is out.

"Can-can" is played with two tin cans placed one on top of the other and a stone or a ball. The object of the game is to dislodge the top can without disturbing the lower one. "Medicine hat" is much like "baby in the hole," but in the former game hats or caps are used instead of holes.

Butter the size of an egg usually means one ounce.

Four tablespoonsful of a liquid constitute a wineglassful.

Twenty minutes is required to boil properly spaghetti or macaroni.

A good beverage time to allow for baking a loaf cake is an hour to an hour and a half, according to size.

In boiling chicken, fifteen minutes should be allowed to the pound. Broiled chicken requires fifteen to twenty minutes.

The preserving pan of the housewife's pride is, of course, of polished brass, but an enameled or aluminum pan may be used.

Under normal conditions it requires three hours for broiled beefsteak to digest. Boiled rice requires only an hour for digestion, while fresh milk takes two hours and fifteen minutes.

Spanish toast recalls in flavoring a Spanish omelet. Cut up two or three green peppers and one or two slices of onion, add a couple of thick canned or fresh tomato. Simmer the mixture till smooth and pour it over buttered toast.

The simplest way of putting away household jam is to fill it at once into clean jars, then to cover it while boiling hot with a thin paper immediately over it and a parchment paper over the jar. If the jam is allowed to get cold before it is covered the inner paper should be dipped in whiskey.

Remember that in fruit preserving it is not only the cooking it is the keeping also that is important. Therefore the jars in which jams or jellies are put away must be absolutely dry and they must be quite air tight when covered. Special covered jars are now sold to secure the keeping out of the air, but the old fashioned cook can do the same thing quite successfully by careful "papering."

HAMMERED BRASS

In one of the small Japanese shops they are selling hammered brass tea pots at 80 cents. They will hold probably four good sized cups.

Cream butter color and pale sea laces are effectively used in combination with white voiles and marquisettes.

Basques seem to be gaining ground and they are seen on all sorts of occasions and in a great variety of forms. Laces in white and purple are seen to form entire crowns on large hats. They also fashion the laces at the side.

BOAT CLUBS ARE GOOD HOSTS TODAY

Myrtle and Healan Headquaters Scenes of Hospitality—Many Informal Parties Celebrate the Holiday.

WITH both the Myrtle and Healan Boat Clubs keeping open house and dispensing unbounded hospitality today, the annual Regatta Day is taking on more and more of the social functions that mark boating elsewhere in the world. Of course, Honolulu has not yet reached the stage of elaborate entertainment that marks the annual contests between Oxford and Cambridge, or the aftermath of the Poughkeepsie regatta, or the delightful social doings that follow the Yale-Harvard crew races, but this side is developing and is greatly appreciated.

Not only scores but hundreds of friends will be the guests of the Myrtles and Healan today, and the Punnehes, though not locally housed, have issued much appreciated invitations to their friends.

Many parties have been made up, and though none of the social functions of Regatta Day are elaborate, they are such as to lend an added zest to this city's enjoyment.

ALL YOU NEED IS A CASCARET TONIGHT

No Sick Headache, Bilious Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipated Bowels by morning.

Turn the screws out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gas—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never grip or sicken.

SUGAR EXPERTS AGREE THAT ANOTHER GOOD YEAR OF SUGAR PRICES CAN BE DEPENDED ON Business Review Shows Week Dull In Stock Trading—Otherwise Active.

EXTRA DIVIDENDS DECLARED: PRICES SAG

General Trade Is Good—Pearl Harbor Contracts Let—Building In Honolulu Continues at Good Rate.

This closes another remarkable week in the financial and business history of Honolulu.

With extra dividends being declared on every hand the market has actually sagged. Trading has been dead. The banks have more money than at any other time in their history and the bankers have every confidence in the situation. Yet the trader is out of the market and business is dull.

Wailua, in better condition than ever before in its existence, is quoted at a lower figure than a week ago, and not yet as high as a little over a year ago. Pioneer has declared extra dividends sufficient to make a twenty-four per cent dividend for the year. The price of the stock sagged.

Hawaiian Agricultural has declared a large extra, but there is little trading in this stock at any time. Much interest is centered on what Oahu Sugar Company will do, as it is certain to have a large surplus at the end of the year. The cheap stocks have sagged out of sympathy though the cause for McBryde's weakness is the report that what surplus funds the company may have at the end of the year will be applied to reducing the debt with the agents and the possible dividend is not in sight. Splendid reports continue to come in from Oahu. A certain clique of buyers and brokers have formed the habit of knocking the cheap stocks. The result is that the crowd that formerly dealt in these stocks and did much to make the market, put their money in the "good things" brought from San Francisco, in the way of oil and mines and so forth. In consequence the brokers have knocked their own business and the people who invested in these things that were so much better than any "luffe duck" plantations have lost their money, and have nothing but green certificates as a souvenir.

The record of the market as shown by the sales reported on the Exchange each day follows:

Another Good Year.

Sugar circulars received through the week are especially interesting on account of the unanimity of opinion that next year is certain to furnish a good price for sugar. The comment of the Federal Reporter and Willett & Gray's latest follows:

Willett & Gray, in their latest sugar circular, dated August 31, predict another good year of sugar prices. The comment of the circular follows:

Raw.—The upward movement of prices is still unchecked. European beet crop conditions, the cause of the present excitement, are not only unimproved, but are comparatively worse than a month ago, as shown by conservative general reports (F. O. Licht calling weather mostly unfavorable) and by the latest tests of beetroots taken from the field; recognized authorities have not yet published any estimates of the probable crop output, but a private report, based on personal examination of the beet fields, is given, estimating a fall-short in Germany and Austria together of 1,450,000 tons.

In France, Holland, Belgium and Russia the conditions are fairly good for the most part, and, taken together, the production in these countries may equal that of last season. To offset the shortage in Germany and Austria we must look to cane-producing countries, which, under the most favorable circumstances, do not promise to give next season more than 700,000 tons increase, leaving a net indicated shortage in principal countries of 750,000 tons. These figures are not by any means accepted by us as official, as future weather conditions may cause very materially different results, but in view of all the information received to date, they do not appear to be unreasonable.

If we are to have a net shortage of 750,000 tons, it will certainly be a serious matter; sugars will be scarce the world over; Europe will have to look to Cuba for some supplies; prices in New York will rule close to those in London, and values will remain high for a year or more. During the week trade buyers as well as speculators in London have been paying advancing prices, those at the close being 9d to 1s 3d higher than a week ago, at 15s 3d, parity of 5.37c for Centrifugals, for prompt beet, and 15s 6d (5.31c) for October-December beet.

It is reported that the noted Chilean speculator, who has apparently not operated in sugar for some time, has just entered the London sugar market as a buyer. Centrifugals at New York were quoted last week basis 5c for 96 test, but on comparatively small quantities, refiners have been compelled since then to pay 5.11c (3 3/4 c. & f. for Cubas), 5.25c for stored sugars and at the close 5.35c for September-shipment Cubas or 4c c. & f.

The supply of available cane sugars is so limited that holders are now asking even higher figures. Spot quotations are nominally 5.25c for 96 test, but will doubtless be higher on next sale of nearby sugars. The stock of stored sugar in importers' hands at New York is now practically exhausted, and there is but little left unsold in Cuba and Porto Rico.

Javas for September shipment to Boston (middle November arrival) were sold at 14s 7 1/2d c. & f., equal to 4.94c landed, and for early September shipment to New York on private terms, understood to be around 14s 9d c. & f. Later a cargo for August shipment (October arrival) was sold to New York refiners at 16s c. f. & l., equal 5.22c landed. All of the August shipment cargoes are sold, except possibly one.

Large sales of Philippines have been made during the last fortnight, covering some 30,000 tons for September, October and November arrival, and the lowest prices now asked are 4.40c to 4.60c for 88 test, according to positions. The quantity now afloat from the Philippines is about 58,000 tons. The total quantity of Philippines available from this date to December 1st is some 90,000 tons.

Thus far there are reported sales of new crop Cuba sugars for January shipment covering some 75,000 bags, on private terms, part of which are for European account, and may be destined United Kingdom. Sellers of Cubas are now asking 3 3/4 c. & f., equal to 4.73c landed, for first-half January shipment, and might accept

3 3/4 c. & f. for February-March shipment. Latest reports on weather in Cuba indicate that rain is wanted. Louisiana crop prospects are good, and the same can be said of the United States Beet crop.

Refiners must now rely mainly on sugars to arrive from Java, Hawaii and Philippines, which will be coming right along, with some European Beet, possibly, to fill out until new Cubas come forward next December; but it can be seen that such supply is very limited and is not so regular or reliable as the Cuba crop in its season. The first cargo of Javas this season has just arrived. European Beet sugars have been offering at 16c c. & f. for October shipment to New York, equal to 5.34c for Centrifugals, but no sales of these sugars are yet reported.

The latest New York sugar circular received is the Federal Reporter, which reports market conditions as of August 29. It says:

Raw Sugar. All advices received from abroad, both by mail and wire, indicate that operators there thoroughly believe that serious damage has been done to the beet crop, and the shortage as compared with last year is estimated at 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 tons. The markets have continued to advance, and the cables received this morning quote August-September beet at 15s 4 1/2d-2d, and October-December new crop at 14s 9 1/2d-4d. A sale was reported on the 26th of a small quantity of Cuba sugars, at 23-4c cost and freight, basis 96 degrees, for September shipment. Since then there have been rumors of sales of stored sugars, at 51-5c basis 96 degrees, which could not be confirmed, but this morning Messrs. Arbutnot Brothers entered the market, and have secured about 35,000 bags Cuba sugars, from store, at 51-4c duty paid, basis 96 degrees. This practically clears out all the unsold sugars in store, as the small balance is likely to be sold to the trade. We would quote the spot market strong, with buyers at 51-4c duty paid for 96-degree centrifugals, 5.00c duty paid for 89-degree muscovadoes, and 43-4c duty paid for 89-degree molasses sugars.

Cuba. Owing to the advancing markets abroad, Cuban sellers are asking higher prices for new crop, and do not seem inclined to sell anything at present under 31-2c for January shipment, Javas.

There are no further transactions reported. There are sellers of September shipment, at 14s 7 1/2d to 14s 9d cost and freight. Philippines. There are about 30,000 tons of these sugars offering afloat and for shipment, on the basis of about 4.35c to 4.50c, basis 88 degrees. It is estimated that the receipts of these sugars during September-October will amount to about 75,000 tons, and the total shipments to the United States will be about 100,000 tons more this year than last.

Europe. As above stated, the markets have continued to advance, owing to crop news reporting serious damage. One party here has received the following

The markets have continued to advance, and the cables received this morning quote August-September beet at 15s 4 1/2d-2d, and October-December new crop at 14s 9 1/2d-4d. One of our friends abroad writes as follows, under date of August 19:

"The deficit in the beet crop is becoming more and more assured. Some good rains have fallen, but these for the most part have been confined to the Baltic coast. Licht's figures this week show an increase in richness, but little in weight, and this increases the resemblance to the year 1904, when there was the last failure of the crop. The increase in richness means the ripening of the beet, and we are fast reaching a point when rain would do more harm than good."

The European market closes strong, as follows:

August buyers, 15s 6d, equals 5.31c duty paid New York. September buyers, 15s 5 1/2d, equals 5.30c duty paid New York. October-December buyers, 14s 10 1/2d, equals 5.17c duty paid New York. January-March buyers, 14s 11d, equals 5.19c duty paid New York.

Improvements on Nuuanu avenue are to commence on Monday morning, when, according to the plans of Road Supervisor Wilson, one hundred men will be set to work. Four thousand dollars will be available, and it is thought that a fairly good start can be made with that amount. To make a good job of the improvements to this street, it is estimated that about twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars would be necessary.

Kahn Studying Us. Congressman Kahn will see all there is to be seen in Hawaii in the limited time he has for a visit here, and from the statements that he lets drop every little while Hawaii is making a close friend.

Thursday he took in all there was to be seen at Pearl Harbor, which included a visit to the big guns at Fort Kamehameha. The visitor stated that it will be but a short time until proper and sufficient protection for the other side of the island will be provided. During the first of the coming week he will take in the mortar practice of Battery Harlow, at Fort Ruger, and will then make a trip to Hawaii and take a look at the volcano.

Castle & Cooke, agents for Babcock & Wilcox, received word that they had been awarded the contract for the boilers and steam fittings that are to be used at the Pearl Harbor naval station. The foundations for the new boilers are being placed now.

Protection for Fruit. Although there is little commotion at present over the fruit fly and its work, there is still quite a number working for the destruction of the pest.

E. K. Carnes, entomologist, who was sent here by the horticultural authorities of California for the purpose of making a thorough investigation, has nothing to say for or against the fly. He does say, however, that he may not make any report until he has returned to the Coast. It is probable that the lifting of the fruit quarantine or the increasing of the same will depend on the nature of this report. In the meantime there is every effort being made by local authorities and others to eradicate the pest. The possibility of the fruit fly attacking

EXPERTS AGREE ON GOOD YEAR

The pineapple was discussed at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday. This work has received the attention of a special committee, and the report is that there is not much danger of the pineapple coming under the ban of quarantine on the Coast. The chamber is cooperating with Entomologist Carnes.

Cotton Progress.

According to the reports of the newspapers on the mainland, the cotton crop of India will be a failure this year. India is credited with supplying in the neighborhood of sixty per cent of the raw material for the hundreds of cotton mills in Japan, and with this slump in the supply of cotton from that quarter, United States will find a ready customer across the Pacific.

Hawaii's cotton crop would be but a pimple in the fog, along the line of supplying the demand, still Hawaii is credited with producing some of the best cotton in the world, and the present condition shows great promise if it was cultivated on a large scale here.

Yamanobe, a cotton expert of Japan, who is at present in this city, has visited nearly every cotton-growing country in the world. Specimens of Hawaiian cotton that were submitted to him brought out the statement that it was of the finest.

Money Must Be Had.

What is known as the Macomb-Ala Moana plan, the big fill-in plan for the water front to the east of the city, came up for discussion at a meeting held in the senate chamber, at which Acting Governor Mott-Smith, Marston Campbell and health officials were present.

Mott-Smith stated that the amount that is available, $75,000, would not be near enough to carry on such a piece of work, and he further stated that he was of the opinion that it would require over $1,000,000 to carry out the work in a way that it should be done.

New Y. M. C. A. Building.

At a meeting of the directors of the Y. M. C. A., it was decided that the exercises of the dedication week for the new building commence on October 8. According to the program that has been laid out, the week will be devoted, day by day, to characteristic features that were manifest in the erection of the new building.

During the week a large portion of the furniture for the new building arrived and has been placed in the different rooms where it belongs, while mechanics have been putting the finishing touches to the interior.

Kapua Finally Leased.

The leasing of the seven hundred acres of land at Kapua to Senator Fairchild has been approved by the Land Board. The lease is for one crop of cane, and Fairchild will have to take a chance with the board for an extension of the time to enable him to take off the ratoon crop. There are certain conditions of the lease that call for the spending of considerable money or producing its equivalent in other improvements, and it was brought out at the meeting of the Land Board that there would be no excuses accepted from Mr. Fairchild for falling short in any of the promises under which the lease has been granted.

A move has been made toward improving the sewer system for the city. Bids have been received by the Superintendent of Public Works, for the supplying of material and pipe of different sizes for the new sewer lines. Lowers & Cooke were the successful bidders.

The City Supervisors have practically decided to purchase two up-to-date motor fire trucks, after considerable discussion on the subject. The committee on fire apparatus were of a mind that the city should purchase two machines of different makes, but the majority thought that both of the machines should be of the same pattern. The machines that will probably be purchased are of the Seagrave pattern and will cost $10,500.

Negotiations for opening of Bishop street are proceeding with fair success. The commission held a meeting Thursday morning, at which J. R. Galt of the Hawaiian Trust, representing the Brewer Estate, stated that the estate was withholding the erection of its proposed building on the lot recently purchased by the estate until the commission had arrived at some sort of an understanding in regard to the opening of Bishop street and closing Union street. He stated that the Brewer Estate was perfectly willing to cooperate with the commission in every way regarding this matter. The proposed purchase of a portion of Union street by the Brewer Estate for the purpose of straightening out the corner to the lot on which it is proposed to erect the new building has again been made to the commission, and that body has taken the matter up with the Governor; $5.54 per foot is the amount offered.

of water that will be available should the Kan ditch scheme get through Congress is the strenuous work that is being carried on by C. H. Pierce, assistant to Chief W. F. Martin, on the island of Hawaii. Some idea of the character of the work can be gleaned from the report that over seven inches of rain fell during the first night that the party started in on the work, and the downfall has been around that figure ever since. The work of gauging the water is most difficult, as many of the streams are swollen, and in this condition must be gauged many times to get a correct estimate of the water.

At the present time there are many rain gauges placed at stated distances from Hilo to the 4,000-foot mark.

Building Work.

There has been no slackening in building operations throughout the city and suburbs, and a sufficient number of foundations have been laid to keep up the rush of home construction for some months to come. There are several larger buildings proposed, the plans for which have been finished and accepted, but there is some delay in starting the erection from one cause or another.

Two fairly good-sized proposed buildings are now awaiting the arrival of material from the Coast, the local stock having been somewhat depleted by the heavy building operations that have been going on during the last two months.

ORIENTAL COMMERCE.

The Chinese ministry of war has just settled the preliminary terms of a contract with a German merchant to build a large factory for the manufacture of army supplies at Changchifu.

The Chinese ministry of marine has decided to establish a naval college at Newchwang and an advanced naval university at Hsingshan, Chekiang. Preparatory and torpedo schools are to be opened on the coasts of maritime provinces.

MOLASSES FOR ALCOHOL PLANT?

The Classen Chemical Company, of San Francisco, which is now negotiating for taking the molasses output of Wailuku plantation, has just opened a big plant in the Northwest for the manufacture of alcohol. Although the molasses, it was understood, was to be used in making a stock-food, advances from the coast indicate that it may be used in connection with the plant in the Northwest, which is the only one of its kind in the United States.

The molasses is to be shipped in tanks. The big freighter Hyades is now being converted into the only molasses-tanker afloat and in the future will probably handle some of the product.

Speaking of the new alcohol plant, the following dispatch is of interest: Port Townsend, Aug. 27.—Three United States internal revenue officers arrived today at the Classen Chemical Company's by-product plant at the head of Port Townsend bay. The big plant will start to manufacture alcohol tomorrow. These officials will have charge of the alcohol output of the plant so far as the government's interests are concerned.

For some weeks the plant has been manufacturing stock food out of sawdust, using over 200 tons a week, the sawdust being brought in scows from the mills at Everett. With the starting of the alcohol department the supply will be increased. The output of alcohol will be 5000 gallons daily. Of this a considerable quantity will be in the form of denatured alcohol.

The alcohol will be loaded in tank cars, which will be brought to Seattle, where the cars will be sent to the markets in the East.

Aside from the stock food and alcohol, many other products will be extracted from the waste from sawmills and the forests, which heretofore has been considered as worthless and has been consigned to the fire.

At present about 200 men are employed, but as soon as the manufacture of the many other by-products of wood commences, it is said at least 1000 men will be employed.

Large Capital Invested.

The Classen Chemical Company's plant is the only one of its kind in the United States and is one of three in the world. The building throughout is of concrete. The machinery came from France and the duty on it exceeded $20,000. The entire plant has cost the company in the neighborhood of $750,000, the company consisting of Seattle and San Francisco capitalists.

The works are inclosed with a high board fence and visitors are not allowed. Neat cottages within the inclosure have been built for the quartering of the three internal revenue officers. When the plant starts it will be in constant operation, and will require one of the internal revenue officers to be on duty at all times, each taking an eight-hour shift, to keep check on the alcohol product.

CHAMP CLARK-PERHAPS NEXT PRESIDENT

Some of the Ideas of This Stalwart Missouri Framer Who Deposed "Uncle Joe" as Speaker of the House

Champ Clark is the next Democratic candidate for President of the United States, in the opinion of not a few of the politically wise. He has just passed triumphantly through a hot period as Speaker of the House during the extra session, and although the honors of the tariff revision fight fell to Representative Underwood, it was Clark who planned many of the strategic moves made by the Bourbons.

There are many Democrats in Hawaii, and some of the local people who go to Washington know Clark and think he is a natural leader. His public life is an open book, but little is known of his private life. This, however, shows him in some of his most delightful moments.

A recent interviewer found Clark in a confidential mood, willing to discuss all sorts of things. The interviewer tells about it as follows:

professional men in their offices, the sort of episode which was quite new, I fancy, to the office of the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives. But it did not rasp Champ Clark's nerves. He loves children with a devotion which is absolutely touching, and his face took upon itself such an expression of complete benevolence and understanding as I have never seen surpassed.

He rose to greet the youngster, and while he stood smiling down at him some of the really great men of his party entered and began a hurried, confidential consultation with him. He talked with them, but he kept his eyes mostly on the baby boy, while it was plain enough that his grown callers were wincing at the youngster's antics. He did not tell the lad to stop stabbing things with that tin sword. Once or twice, when he galloped charmingly.

When the boy had tired himself, and all the visitors except myself and my stenographer had gone, Mr. Clark went into the little room which is his private office. It is at one side of the larger room in which his secretary sits and to which visitors are first admitted. There Mr. Speaker-elect Clark received a definite call from the young man—received it very suddenly and unexpectedly and vehemently. The boy literally assailed him, joyously and unafraid. Clark caught him in his arms.

"So you're a soldier, are you?"

"Yeth."

"Never a day passes during the course of which I do not think of our poor baby."

"That baby boy has now been gone almost a quarter of a century, yet every day he thinks of him! No man was ever more devoted to his children, and his love for them is big enough to take in also every other little child he comes in contact with."

After the boy had left us once more quite alone, my mind went back to the matter of the increased cost of living.

"James J. Hill," I suggested, "says that the American people are extravagant. He says they have gone mad with spending."

"The increase of wages has not kept pace with the increased cost of living," Mr. Clark replied, "and this is most unfortunate. Wages have increased three times as fast as wages have increased. One of two things must happen—either the increase of wages must keep pace with the increased cost of living, or the cost of living must be reduced so as to be in harmony with wages. Otherwise the condition of the wage-earner must get worse and worse, and the scale of living must degenerate."

"I have no doubt that my good friend, Mr. Hill, is correct, to some extent, when he charges that the American people are extravagant. I think that he is one of the greatest men in America, and I set great store by his opinion upon any subject which he has studied. I have no doubt that the American people are the most extravagant people on the face of the earth, but their extravagance does not account for the condition in which the masses of the people find themselves; for it is extremely difficult for the average head of a family who is not extravagant to keep his head above water."

Real Extravagance.

"Can these things be accomplished without a tremendous business cataclysm?" I inquired.

and with rents and everything else going up faster than his wages are he cannot be very extravagant, however, and his prospects in life are not very alluring. The two things which Congress can and should do to help him out of this situation are to cut down the tariff, on the necessities of life and to insist that the anti-trust laws be enforced."

"Can these things be accomplished without a tremendous business cataclysm?" I inquired.

Miss Genevieve Clark
The Only Daughter.

"Well, here's a quarter for the commissary department."

I have never seen a finer smile than that with which he gave young loped by, Clark touched him, gently, Bassford this money for supplies.

Loves All Children.

He loves all children, and in connection with this love for children I shall tell now for the first time in print, a little anecdote which illustrates its strength and also the man's steadfastness to resolution.

Many, many years ago his oldest child, a baby boy, was playing on his lap while he was smoking a cigar. The little one-year-old was burned by the cigar end. Indignant with himself, Clark threw the cigar from him, declaring that he would never smoke again. He never has.

This baby died just after his third birthday, and Clark himself nearly chided by its ruling spirit, although his father or his mother, also often there, may on occasion warn him to be less vicious in his sports.

Now he dashed in with a fine tin sword, with which he stabbed everything inanimate in sight. It was the kind of episode which would have rapped the nerves of most business or died of his great grief. He said recently:

Charles Rogers, who is 95 years of age, inserted an advertisement in Chicago papers offering to exchange his residence at Lake Geneva, Wis., which he values at $3500, for a home for five years.

From THE COLUMBIAN MAGAZINE. CHAMP CLARK

"Of course, Americans who are extravagant are extravagant upon the principle of 'come easy, go easy.' The average head of a family in the United States earns only about $400 annually.

TAFT'S SPEECH LAUNCHES FIGHT

President's Denunciation of Insurgents Makes Decided Breach.

ALL BUT RADICALS CONDEMN HIS ACTION

Sympathizers Say Defeat Is Better Than Compromise—Campaign Is Already On In Earnest.

BY C. S. ALBERT.

(Special Bulletin Correspondence.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1.—The breach in the Republican party, which has been gradually widening ever since Senator La Follette entered the Upper Branch of Congress and became a Progressive, has now been materially enlarged and rendered more dangerous. President Taft's speech at Hamilton, Mass., in which he attacked the Republican insurgents and Democrats, has laid the foundation for the most bitter struggle the Republican party has known for years. His assault came as a complete surprise. It was expected he would continue his policy of neutrality and permit the insurgents to maintain their own position. Instead, he declared they were beyond the party pale and should be destroyed. No medium ground is now left and the fight must continue.

Nearly all leading Republicans sharply criticize the President for beginning a war with the Progressives on the eve of a National election. A few of the more radical approve the course, saying it is better to be defeated than compromised with the insurgents.

The Progressives have already opened headquarters in this city. W. L. Houser, formerly Secretary of State of Wisconsin, and a La Follette lieutenant, is in charge of the Bureau. Medill McCormick, part owner of the Chicago Tribune, is his assistant. A propaganda of education will be sent out broadcast. Speakers will be detailed to all the close States. The chief purpose of the movement is to prevent the renomination of Mr. Taft. Although Senator La Follette is now the candidate of the Progressives for the nomination a dark horse will be accepted as a compromise when the time comes, if there is any hope of winning.

Progressive Strength.

The Progressives will fight to obtain actual delegates in these States: Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Oklahoma, California, Washington, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Montana, Oregon and Iowa. Aggressive fights will also be made in Indiana, Illinois, Wyoming and Nevada. If the Progressives cannot achieve the defeat of President Taft for re-nomination there is a suggestion they will bolt the ticket to a sufficient extent to throw these indicated States into the Democratic column, thereby preventing the Republicans from continuing Mr. Taft in office. It seems certain this will be done if the prevailing bitter feeling develops as indicated.

Speaker Champ Clark, in replying to President Taft's criticism of the Democrats, accused him of ingratitude. He said the Canadian reciprocity agreement could not have been passed without their assistance and the President should not have soon forgotten the fact. He also threatened to prevent future appropriations for maintaining the Tariff Board.

Many Speeches Coming.

Senators La Follette, Clapp, Brewster and Cummins and Representatives Murdock, Norris and Lenroot are busy preparing speeches in response and will inform the people just what they think of the attitude assumed by the President.

Altogether, the family row appears to be on among the Republicans. It is self-evident somebody will be hurt before the fracas is ended. As interested spectators the Democrats hope to derive much benefit from the quarrel. They hope to not only regain control of the House but in addition secure the Presidency and Senate.

ROOSEVELT IS CHANGED MAN, SAYS REPORT; GROWING OLD FAST

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 21.—According to the New York Press, a man who has known Theodore Roosevelt intimately for many years, but who, through absence abroad, had not seen him for twelve months, went to call on the colonel the other day. While he was talking to Roosevelt and afterward he could think of little but the portentous physical change that had taken place in the Roosevelt of today as compared to the man he had last seen a year ago.

In place of the ruddy face, with its expression of enormous vigor, and the erect body, that was as forceful as the square jaw, he saw a face heavily marked with deep lines, hollows under the eyes and almost bloodless.

The shoulders were bent and there was an air of lassitude about the whole personality of the colonel that was as striking and as shocking to the caller as were the physical changes.

Resting injury to Colonel.

It made him think of the old, old adage, "Is resting rusting?" which he had heard many times of late in club corners and in circles where politicians and others gather. And the cause for the inquiry has been, in many instances, the comparatively passive attitude which Colonel Roosevelt has assumed toward large pending public questions. Also the singular significant manner in which he has turned aside from participation, not merely in matters of national politics, but of former personal activities.

There are no conferences as there were a year ago. The White House is at Washington or at Beverly and even the home of the Republican State committee of New York is in this city permanently, with not even a summer habitation at Oyster Bay. And this may not be that either the people or the politician have changed, for volatile though they may be, they are not ungrateful, but that the colonel, in their judgment, has changed.

Whether it is that he has turned away from the plow and wants to rest in the shade of the work he has done or that his tremendous activities in the busiest life this country has seen in a generation, if not in a century, no one may say, but his closest intimates and his warmest friends profess to feel a change.

It may be that they fail to make the reasonable allowance that necessarily exists between the presidential chair and the chair of an editor or the desk of a thinker, or it may be that Colonel Roosevelt himself realizes the difference there is between the actual executor of the laws and the mere general counselor of the people.

Change in Mental Attitude.

There are many friends who have commented on the sudden calm into which a life so strenuous as his has fallen. There are some who profess to see signs of fatigue in a body that seemed as sound as an oak matured under an oak, the knots on which, brought on by stress of contest, served only to emphasize his own transcendent vigor. The deep lines that have begun to furrow his face, the hollows under the hard worked eyes, the shoulders rounding from the burdens imposed on them—all these might be accounted for, but there are other changes which suggest possibly a desire for leisure or a disgust at conditions that do not appeal to him.

There is lacking the breezy buoyancy and the once ever-present predilection for tilting with an adversary that once was such a dominant characteristic in his personality.

Refuses to Make Speeches.

It was only a short while ago that in a letter declining to speak at Springfield, Ill., Mr. Roosevelt added, unnecessarily and with a petulance that was foreign to him, that he did not propose to make any more speeches this year. Even when all the onerous duties of the chief magistracy rested upon him he was ever ready to meet the public. But this year he seeks quiet.

One may not assume he is sulking or that he is waiting for a condition either in his party or in public affairs that will sound a call for him. That would not accord with his record, and so the only conclusion that may be accepted is that a change has come over him and that perhaps he is beginning to realize the saying of a philosopher that "the most melancholy product of the American governmental system is an ex-president."

There has been an appreciation by his friends that his position is one singularly irksome to a man of his diversity of interests and of his record of activities. He is in that period in which leisure follows too hastily upon the heels of extraordinary industry. He may not intrude in public affairs without being misunderstood or being chastised by the people.

No Avenue to Retire.

Unlike the late President Harrison, Mr. Roosevelt has no avenue through which he may continue to work along lines the more congenial by reason of his having been president, Harrison, for example, returned to the practice of law.

It was not so with Colonel Roosevelt. He had no profession to welcome him back. His entire career had been in the public service. He got literary work to do, but literary work had been but an incident with him. So he planned for a spectacular big hunting trip which would be rounded off with a visit to the monarchs and presidents in Europe.

There was the continuance of the strenuous life. His conquest of the jungle was brilliantly executed and vividly pictured. His reception in foreign countries excelled that ever recorded to any other individual. He returned at the head of an army of correspondents and photographers, and a public reception was given him.

TORONTO, Ont.—Though the election is more than three weeks away, the contest over the reciprocity issue in this great industrial and agricultural province has reached a point at which practically everything else has exercised his franchise or not. This is explained by the fact that in every city in Canada, with the exception of Kingston and Ottawa (the seat of government and the home of thousands of civil employes), the tory majority is overwhelming and the city tory is one who votes for his party under every circumstance.

"A new feature has been introduced into the campaign by Clifford Sifton, former minister of the interior in the Laurier government, who has taken the stump against reciprocity and is addressing meetings in various parts of Ontario. Mr. Sifton was the Liberal member from Brandon in the House of Commons just dissolved. He is also chairman of the Canadian conservation commission.

MONTREAL, Que.—Now that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has addressed half a dozen meetings in his native province of Quebec, the province which has given him his working majority in every Parliament since that of 1896, there is a distinct revival of confidence in the Liberal ranks over the outcome of reciprocity.

Everywhere the crowds which have gathered to greet the premier have been large, at all times the applause has been generous, and on each occasion Sir Wilfrid has demonstrated anew that he is still the idol of the French Canadians of his own tongue.

ST. JEROME, Que.—In the midst of his speech here Thursday, and just at the conclusion of an attack upon the Nationalists, in which he repudiated the statements that service in the navy would be obligatory, and that the navy bill was just another chance to gain him more honors from England, Sir Wilfrid Laurier startled his audience by announcing that if defeated in the coming election he would retire at once and forever from public life and would not head the opposition in the next Parliament.

FORT SHAFTER BOYS MADE UNIQUE "HIKE" TO SEE VOLCANO

How The Twentieth Infantry Journeyed From Honolulu To Crater of Kilauea and Back—Incidents of Trip

By R. O. Roginson.

A trip to the Crater of Kilauea, Hawaii's wonderful volcano on the island of Hawaii, is equally interesting, educational and exciting as a sojourn to any of the great seven wonders of the world. For here, away out in mid-Pacific, lies an archipelago possessing, all for its own, an active volcano. Tourists visit and wonder, astounded at the greatness of the thing, and try to solve the secrets and mysteries that lie buried beneath the bed of boiling, maiten lava, which sizzles and sends forth scorching fumes year after year. People have sat all night long watching Madame Pele, goddess of the lake of fire, carry on her celebration of fireworks, only to depart with burned faces and a fond remembrance of what they had seen. Yet this great wonder, so studied but unlearned, experimented with and unfathomed, while many who visit Honolulu fail to visit this, Hawaii's greatest curio.

Soldiers Embark on Maui.
For several years past it has been the desire of the enlisted men out at Fort Shafter to pay a visit to Hilo and make the trip up to the volcano. Plans have been arranged, and several times it was thought that the soldiers would have the privilege of leaving the island of Oahu, but to no avail. But this year the arrangements were made with success, and August 31 found two companies of doughboys, E and F, making blanket rolls and doing the minor things that go together with a voyage on the sea, even if it is only for twenty hours. Just after muster the companies were formed, with Captain Wm. H. H. Chapman in command of the troops and Company F, while 1st Lieutenant J. S. McCleery commanded Company E, accompanied by 2nd Lieutenant Fred R. Palmer, Lieutenant E. K. Johnston, M. R. C., and three enlisted men represented the medical end of the participants in the hike. It was wished that the volcano was located on the sunshine island of Oahu instead of where it is. About 3:15 Mountain View was reached. Kitchen tents were up and all hands got busy toward fixing up a supper. A school-house and some empty buildings were at the disposal of the soldiers for camping purposes, and soon bunks were made up in preparation for the night's rest. Here hospitality reigned supreme. Women dished out fresh milk and cream, while the children brought raspberries they had picked in the surrounding woods. Everyone tried his best to make things as pleasant as possible. "Welcome" seemed to be the motto. Here blankets were really appreciated, and soon after supper the men rolled up for a rest after an eventful day.

Arrival at Volcano.
At the usual time camp was broken and the soldiers left Mountain View on the final stretch of their journey to the volcano. Now the beauty of the scenery increased, and exclamations of surprise and joy came from all parts of the column. The road lined on either side by gigantic ferns, swaying to and fro in the wind, bright and glistening with the rain, greeted their sight. The day was one of those days that exist only in beautiful Hawaii, making even more entrancing the scenery as the men marched on their way toward the Volcano House. Soon all vegetation seemed to die and a great bed of black lava appeared ahead. Things were becoming more and more interesting, and excitement in the column was becoming prominent. To many of the men such sights as these were too much for words and they marched on in silence, awed by the splendor and beauty of it all. The Volcano House was reached at last, with a welcome long to be remembered by the soldiers. The people at the

SITTING ON THE GODDESS PELE.

Morning arrived, and with the daylight faded the fire that had played so faithfully the entire night through.

Life in Camp.
Camp life in general is a life that tends to be appreciated more than any other mode of living. In camp the trend of things as a whole seems to embrace liberty and freedom alone. When a party goes out for a few days or weeks of camp life, it carries with it a certain degree of looseness, a "getting-away-from-it-all" spirit, out in the open, close to nature, surrounded by those things in whose indulgence happiness alone can prevail.

Just so with a company or battalion of soldiers, which leaving a garrison for a few days, marches away in "full pack" to live a little while out in the wilderness of the world, carrying with it beds, shelter and oftentimes food. It is hard to imagine, unless one has been through the experience himself, how welcome a halt for the night is after marching some fifteen or sixteen miles between 9 o'clock in the morning and 1:30 in the afternoon, carrying some sixty pounds on his back, besides a rifle which seems to be constantly in the way.

Brained feet and sore shoulders are soon forgotten, however, after camp is pitched, a good hearty meal eaten and everybody is wrapped up in his thoughts or schemes of amusement as well as his blanket.

A "dog tent" and a blanket are not such a bad home after all. Out in the open air, sleeping with nature, eating with nature, salubrious and pleasant, inviting and new, the hours fly by and soon it is time to break camp and start on the backward journey. In the meantime the time is spent as anybody would spend a few vacant hours away from the ties of human life. Card playing, reading, games of all kinds and many a time a hunting expedition is the topic for a long, dragging afternoon.

Here at the volcano, camp life was especially interesting. Very few men stopped in camp, only those who were worn out by the day's march. The soldiers scattered out among the various houses, where good times were enjoyed.

THE REAL "HIKE" UP THE VOLCANO ROAD

ed. Many good meals were devoured during those few days that the companies camped just outside of the Volcano House. These meals came not only from under the kitchen fly of the companies, but also from the people with whom the soldiers became acquainted. One of the most welcome things that happen during a hike is the sounding of mess call, and to the tune of:

Porky, porky, porky, without a streak of lean,
Soupy, soupy, soupy, without a single bean,
Coffee, coffee, coffee, without a bit of cream.

Welcomed by Citizens, Regulars Entertained Along Road

the soldiers secure mess kits and cup and form in line in front of the kitchen tent, all pushing to get at the head of the line. It is surprising how quickly the spirits of all revive at the finish of such a few minutes spent in satisfying the inner man. The soldiers are then ready for further adventure. And invariably they find it.

At Night in Camp.
Night in camp is one continued round of joy making. After the musician has sounded "Lights out" to the air of "Now the Day is Over," the fun begins. Talking is prohibited, but talking goes on just the same. Jokes are passed from one tent to another as the men lie rolled up in their blankets gazing at their shelter-hall. But soon the sand-man gets busy and all is quiet in camp, except for the sentry marching to and fro or his post, watching vigilantly while the others sleep. Is it to be wondered at that camping out are days of sport and not the days of routine that can be found around the barracks?

Visit Many Caves.
Soon after breakfast the camp became nearly deserted, for the soldiers had taken another trip back to the crater. Professor Perret was visited and took great interest in showing the men the instruments and their use. This the soldiers highly appreciated, and were very much surprised at the use some of the instruments were put to. From here Pele's reception room and the Devil's Kitchen were inspected. Several hours were spent in burning souvenir postcards and gathering "Madame Pele's hair," trips to the sulphur banks and Kilaueaiki, and at each place more than ordinary interest was manifested. Then came the real event of the hike. Private Smith platter of cake and fruit, to say nothing of the inexhaustible supply of cream and coffee and lemonade. While the captain of the Maui could not be persuaded, however, to remain until the next morning, so the troops were ordered aboard and the little ship pulled out for Honolulu. The homeward-bound trip on the sea part in the making of a pleasant and long-to-be-remembered evening. Songs, docked in Honolulu about noon of the eighth, Much to the surprise of the quartet from Company E kept the regulars, the column was formed and evening going merrily. A speech of the men marched out to the post, in-appreciation and thanks was tendered by Lieutenant McCleery in behalf of the enlisted men and officers for the hospitality and patriotic spirit that was shown.

Final Stretch Toward Home.
At breakfast the following morning, the people who had so beautifully entertained the night before were around the camp giving out doughnuts and fruit, and just a few moments before the camp was broken, Mrs. Gliding displayed the soldiers with a short speech, bidding them "Good-bye" and wishing the boys East companies E and F, the first companies of regular soldiers that have been on the island of Hawaii, would leave behind them many happy recollections.

At 1:30 on the afternoon of September 7 the regulars arrived back in Hilo, where another big time was awaiting just what it was. For Hawaii, indeed. The Hilo people had decorated stead of riding on the street cars as they had done when starting out on the trip. The band, which had arrived at Fort Shafter during their absence, met them a short distance out of the post and escorted them in.

Summing Up of Trip.
To the soldiers that had the opportunity of taking this trip, a memory lingers that many years can not efface. The hospitality that was displayed by the people of the other island could not be over-estimated. The shouts of welcome that the soldiers received, the little things that were done for the benefit of the men, seemed to put a silver lining on the entire trip. Words can not express the gratitude that the regulars out at Fort Shafter send back to those who helped to make the hike where another big time was awaiting just what it was. For Hawaii, indeed. hike. About one hundred and fifteen in all boarded street cars for the trip down to the dock. The Maui was waiting and promptly at noon pulled anchor and sailed for Hawaii.

Sea Voyage Pleasant.

Everybody was happy when the boat pulled out of the bay, and beautiful weather accompanied the men as they bade farewell to the little island of Oahu for a few days. The Maui, not any too large for two companies of soldiers, did her best to rock the men to sleep, and consequently several made the remark that they didn't care whether dinner was served or not—a strange remark for a soldier to make. At supper time, however, all were on their feet for it had been noised about the ship that tulle stew was on the menu. Justice was surely done to the chow. As night came on the men looked about for a place to sleep, and those who were bent on the grand first were the most fortunate. Lifeboats proved to serve as a very convenient bunk.

Hilo Turns Out to Welcome.

At 10:30 the next morning the ship was docked at Hilo, and the soldiers went ashore to be greeted by a goodly portion of the town. Cheers of welcome came from the throats of those on the shore, and "I was said by some of the boys that it reminded them of the times of '98, when the soldiers were received home after the Spanish-American war. Hospitality seemed to be the cry, and before the men had begun to realize it, they were camped inside the armory of the National Guard of Hilo. Everything that one could wish for was supplied, and soon sightseeing parties were on their way to Rainbow Falls. Thus began the few eventful days on the island of Hawaii. A baseball game was played between the soldiers and the All-Hilo team in the afternoon, but rain intercepted and the game was called in the fifth inning. That night promptly at 10 o'clock the electric lights in the armory were extinguished and everybody turned in for a good rest, dreaming of the march to the volcano.

Two Days to Volcano.

At seven o'clock the following morning the musician of the guard sounded assembly, and in a few moments the two companies, marching in column of squads, were on their way for the first day's hike. That inevitable rain that Hilo boasts so much about was dismissed, coming down in a cold, fine mist, and seemed to dampen the spirits of the soldiers as well as their clothing, but they pushed on. Many times it

Volcano House, together with many tourists, received the men with open arms, and once again hospitality in the highest sense of the word was manifested.

Three Days at Crater.

Camp was pitched and a unique scheme was worked out. The men either pitched their tents on ferns or cut ferns to make a bed. A fern bunk is something out of the ordinary, and the men had great fun in making preparations for their stay at the volcano. Provisions were brought into camp by two trucks drawn by five horses each, and soon everything was in readiness for a fine visit at the Crater of Kilauea.

Now the real excitement came into play. Many of the soldiers, as soon as their meal was finished, took blankets and started on the trip across the lava beds to witness the great sight at the crater. Some said it was great, some said marvelous, others said wonderful. Words could not express their thoughts as they sat for hours looking at this thing, far beyond all expectations. Melted lava boiled and squirmed, writhing with heat, restless as if something underneath was trying to bring itself to the surface. This kept the mind and eye of each man as they sat stupefied, with the greatness and strangeness of it all. Night came on and still they sat. Fireworks that would make a Fourth of July celebration in a large city look like thirty cents played for the men. Only those who have seen can have any conception of what a sight this really is.

HILO'S BASEBALL TEAM, WHICH MET SOLDIERS

NO MORE GREAT WARS, SAYS THOMAS A. EDISON—TOO COSTLY

AIX-LES-BAINS, France, Aug. 24.—Thomas A. Edison confidently prophesied today that there will be no more wars. Andrew Carnegie would have been ticked half to death to hear him. Incidentally Edison expressed the opinion that the airship is a deadly factor in war.

The heat is intense here, but Edison seemed as cool as a cucumber. "I feel perfectly comfortable with the thermometer at 80," he said, "but during the attractions of Aix-les-Bains itself, he motored out to La Grande Chartreuse in the environs, thirty-two miles distant. The road took him through magnificently wild hills, which, he said, reminded him of Rocky Mountain scenery. He was deeply interested while going through the abandoned convent of the liquor-making monks who were exiled from France on the separation of church and state.

Edison stopped at Chambers, the ancient seat of the Dukes of Savoy, an important garrison town now. The great inventor, whose opinion of French soldiers was based chiefly on glimpses of those in Paris, expressed pleasurable surprise at the general sturdiness of the rank and file of the army. But he is not impressed by Europe's fully armed attitude; he is certain there will never be another war between great powers.

"Europe will never again indulge in international conflict, for she has learned her lesson from the economic disasters of war," said Edison. "Germany will never again face what it could be to march up to but not through the Arc de Triomphe in Paris. The carved names on that Napoleonic monument strike me as being as barbarous and medieval as the figures representing the tortures of alleged saints which ornament the facade of the cathedral at Chartres and of other famous French cathedrals.

ARMY HAS TERRIBLE WEAPON TO BATTLE WITH AEROPLANE

BY C. S. ALBERT. (Special Bulletin Correspondence.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1.—

The Army branch of the service believes it has acquired a weapon which will absolutely render aeroplanes harmless. It was given a first test at the Sandy Hook proving grounds last week. It is a six-pounder, while that used by the navy is but a one-pounder.

The carriage of an aeroplane destroyer has proven the most difficult feature connected with the problem. For several months army experts have been working on a carriage at the Rock Island arsenal. The matter has been kept a profound secret. The one evolved is constructed on a plane, swivel. It will revolve in all directions, both on a perpendicular and horizontal plane.

Five new projectiles were used in the experiments at Sandy Hook. Three of these were designed abroad for the American army. The other two were made in this country. Each of the projectiles will explode at the least contact with the lightest fibre. Upon contact they will throw shrapnel for a radius of 100 feet. Tracers are attached to each missile. These leave a trail of fire at night and of smoke by day. The gunner may then locate the enemy by measuring with range finders the distance between the trail and the aeroplane.

than to take the extreme measure of settling disputes by shedding blood. "A nitroglycerine bomb dropped from one of our modern airships will do more damage than whole days of fighting did in Napoleon's time.

Frederick W. Porter of Illinois was elected president of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. The Interstate Commerce Commission has postponed the effective date of its order in the Duncan case in order to allow an appeal to the court. He will pass three days making no-

WATERFRONT NOTES

Oil Engines for Ships.

The prediction is made that this year will show a very great advance in the use of oil engines as the motive power for ocean-going vessels. A recent writer on this subject has stated that it is not improbable that within the next two or three years ships without funnels or boilers will be making regular passage across the Atlantic.

The continent, however, and not Great Britain, has taken the initiative thus far in this important matter. Only one vessel of size to be equipped with oil engines is at present being built for registration under the British flag, although it is stated that a London firm of shipbuilders is about to place an order for a vessel of about 6,000 tons.

Two vessels to be fitted with oil engines are being built for the Danish East Asiatic Co., while a 9,000-ton motor boat is nearing completion for the Hamburg-American Line, and two oil liners are under contract for the Brazil service of the Hamburg-South American Co. A five-masted bark of 3,272 tons burden is building at Bordeaux, which will be provided with internal-combustion engines.

The desirability of the employment of such engines for the propulsion of large vessels was the subject of discussion not long ago at a meeting of the British Institution of Naval Architects in London. One speaker said that he knew of 250 ships which were fitted or to be fitted with Diesel plants. The most important field as yet had been that of submarines, in which France took the lead seven or eight years ago. Today the engine was almost universally adopted for that kind of ship by the admiralties of all countries except England and the United States. The number of such submarine boats was about 150, and their horsepower varied from 300 to 5,000. In the last two years the radius of action and the power of those boats had so increased that the vessels were no longer merely defensive boats attached to harbors and coasts, but had become extremely dangerous for offensive purposes on the high seas. A number of gunboats and very small cruisers, especially for Russia, had been fitted with the engines. The second important field was that of the tank boats for the transport of oil in Russia. Among various other types of boats in which the engine was used was a special vessel for an expedition to the North Pole.

The Rhode Island Democracy opened their campaign Saturday with a monster dinner at Rocky Point and followed by speechmaking by many prominent speakers from Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

One day after her wedding to a man 31 years her senior, 17-year-old Mrs. Paul Pausa of Hammond, Ind., eloped with Gusdie Brown of Bensalem, Ind., a childhood sweetheart.

TWICE TRAITOR IS BOGROFF

(Associated Press Cable.) ST. PETERSBURG, Rus., Sept. 15.—Developments following the attempted assassination of a premier Stolypin, who, it is reported, will probably recover from his wounds, disclose one of the most remarkable stories of the inner circle of the Russian revolutionists which has ever been written.

Dimitri Bogroff, the lawyer who fired the shots at Stolypin in the theater at Ktef Thursday night, is proved to be a double traitor, one to both the social revolutionists and to the secret police, Confessed to Plot.

To Inspector Kullabao of the political police Bogroff had betrayed his comrades of the social revolution, giving the details of the plot to assassinate the premier and stating that he had been chosen to kill Stolypin.

He later assisted the police with information which was considered of importance in guarding the czar, Nicholas II, and at the request of Inspector Kullabao he was admitted to the theater Thursday evening to help guard the emperor.

Secures Opportunity. It was practically as a member of the political police that Bogroff secured the opportunity to desperately wound the premier.

Bogroff is reported to have declared that he had intended to assassinate a higher official, meaning the czar, but that he did not do so because he feared an anti-Semitic demonstration would follow the deed.

CLOUDBURST FLOODS CITY. PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 15.—A cloudburst on the Mononahela River flooded the streets in the suburbs today and did damage estimated at $500,000.

In the streets of Etna, a suburb, the water was twelve feet deep in some places, and the firemen were forced to form a ladder bridge to rescue twenty-five persons from a precarious location in a semi-submerged building.

Along the river front 200 steel workers hung to rafters for hours before they were finally rescued by boats. No fatalities, however, are reported.

CANAL DEFENSES WILL OUTSTRIP GIBRALTAR

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 15.—Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray, Coast Artillery, today assumed command of the Western Military Division, with headquarters at the Presidio.

General Murray today predicted that the army defenses in the Panama Zone for defense of the canal would eventually be the strongest in the world.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 15.—The Union Pacific Railroad has assumed the task of carrying the through cars of the Burlington and Rock Island lines to California over its tracks.

The colonist race season opened today, and thousands of colonists are booked for the Pacific Coast. The contract with the Southern Pacific was abrogated on account of a disagreement over a division of the fares.

CHAPTER VII.

"I CAN HELP YOU."

A HALF hour spent with Hexford in and about the clubhouse and Sweetwater was ready for the road. Musing and muttering, he plodded up the road, his insignificant figure an unimpressive break in the monotonous white of the wintry landscape. Under ordinary circumstances Sweetwater would have met not more than a half dozen carts or sledges between the clubhouse gates and the city streets. But today the road was full of teams carrying all sorts of incongruous people, eager for a sight of the spot made forever notorious by a mysterious crime. He noted them all—the faces of the men, the gestures of the women—but he did not show any special interest till he came to that portion of the road where the long line of half buried fences began to give way to a few scattered houses. Then his spirit woke, and he became quick, alert and persuasive. He entered houses; he talked with the people. Though evidently not a dissipated man, he stopped at several saloons, taking his time with his glass and encouraging the chatter of all who chose to meet his advances. He was a natural talker and welcomed every topic, but his eye sparkled at one only. This he never introduced himself; he did not need to. Some one was always ready with the great theme, and once it was started he did not let the conversation languish till every one present had given his or her quota of hearsay or opinion to the general fund.

"WAS THE HAT LIKE THIS ONE, MADAM?"

It seemed a great waste of time, for nobody had anything to say worth the breath expended on it.

He had left the country road behind and had entered upon the jumble of sheds, shops and streets which marked the beginning of the town in this direction when his quick and experienced eye fell on a woman standing with uncovered head in an open doorway, peering up the street in anxious expectation of some one not yet in sight. A second survey of the woman's face convinced him that his ordinary loquaciousness would not serve him here. There was a refinement in her aspect quite out of keeping with the locality in which she lived, and he was hesitating how to proceed when fortune favored him by driving against his knees a small lad on an ill directed sled, bringing him almost to the ground and upsetting the child, who began to scream vociferously.

It was the woman's child, for she made instantly for the gate, which, for some reason, she found difficult in opening. Sweetwater was at his best with children, and, catching the little fellow up, he soothed and fondled him and finally brought him with a merry air of triumph straight to his mother's arms.

He had in his pocket an ingenious little invention which he had exhibited all along the road as an indispensable article in every well kept house. He wanted to show it to her, but it was too cold a day for her to stop outside. Wouldn't she allow him to step in and explain how her work could be materially lessened and her labor turned to play by a contrivance so simple that a child could run it?

It was all so ridiculous in face of this woman's cooler intelligence that he laughed at his own words, and this laughter, echoed by the child and in another instant by the mother, made everything so pleasant for the moment that she inensibly drew back while he pulled open the gate, only remarking as she led the way in:

"I was looking for my husband. He may come any minute, and I'm afraid he won't care much about contrivances to save me work—that is, if they cost very much."

Sweetwater, whose hand was in his pocket, drew it hastily out.

"You were watching for your husband? Do you often stand in the open doorway looking for him?"

Her surprised eyes met his with a stare that would have embarrassed the most venturesome look agent, but this man was of another ilk.

"If you do," he went on imperturbably, "how much I would give if you had been standing there last Tuesday night when a certain cutter and horse went by on its way up the hill."

She was a self contained woman, this wife of a master mechanic in one of the great shops hard by, but her jaw fell at this, and she forgot to chide or resist her child when he began to pull her toward the open kitchen door.

"You were looking out," ventured Sweetwater. "And you did see that horse and cutter. What luck? It may save a man's life."

"Save?" she repeated, staggering back a few steps and dragging the child with her. "Save a man's life! What do you mean by that?"

"Not much if it was any cutter and any horse and at any hour. But if it was the horse and cutter which left the Whispering Pines at 10 or half past 10 that night then it may mean life or death to the man now in jail under the dreadful charge of murder."

Catching up her child, she slid into the kitchen and sat down with it in behind, but not before he had noted this door and the wide and hospitable veranda which separated it from the driveway.

"I am willing to go all odds that I shall find that veranda the most interesting part of the house," he remarked in quiet conviction to himself as he noted its nearness to the stable and the ease with which one could step from it into a vehicle passing down the driveway.

It had another point of interest, or rather, the wing had to which it was attached. As his eye traveled back across this wing in his lively walk toward the stable he caught a passing glimpse of a nurse's face and figure in one of its upper windows.

Once around the corner, he perceived that the stable door was closed, but that a window well up the garden side was open. Encountering no watchful eye, he stepped up to the stable window and peered in.

A man sat with his back to him polishing a bit of harness. This was probably Zadok, the coachman. Sweetwater suddenly experienced a momentary confusion by observing the head and shoulders of Policeman Hexford leaning toward him from an opposite window—in much the same fashion and certainly with exactly the same intent as himself. As their glances crossed both flushed and drew back, only to return again, each to his several peephole. Neither meant to lose the advantage of the moment. Both had heard of the gray horse and wished to identify it.

There were three stalls, and in each stall a horse stamped and fidgeted. Only one held their attention. This was a mare on the extreme left, a large gray animal with a curious black patch on its near shoulder. The faces of both men changed as they recognized this distinguishing mark, and instinctively their eyes met. The coachman rubbed away with less and less purpose until his hands stood quite still and his whole figure drooped in irresistible despondency. As he raised his face, moved perhaps by that sense of a watchful presence to which all of us are more or less susceptible, they were both surprised to see tears on it.

The next instant he had started to his feet and the bit of harness had rattled from his hands to the floor.

"Who are you?" he asked, with a touch of anger quite natural under the circumstances. "Can't you come in by the door and not creep sneaking up to take a man at disadvantage?"

As he spoke he dashed away the tears with which his cheeks were still wet.

"I thought a heap of my young mistress," he added in evident apology for this display of what such men call weakness. "I didn't know that it was in me to cry for anything, but I find that I can cry for her."

Hexford left his window, and Sweetwater slid from his. Next minute they met at the stable door.

"Had luck?" whispered the local officer.

"Enough to bring me here," acknowledged the other.

"Do you mean to this house or to this stable?"

"To this stable."

"Have you heard that the horse was out that night?"

"Yes; she was out."

"Who driving?"

"Ah, that's the question!"

"This man can't tell you."

"But I'm going to talk to him for all that."

"He wasn't here that night. He was at a dance. He only knows that the mare was out."

"But I'm going to talk to him."

"May I come in too? I'll not interrupt. I've just fifteen minutes to spare."

Hexford threw open the stable door, and they both walked in. The coachman was not visible, but they could hear him moving above, grumbling to himself.

"I'll be down in a minute," he called out as their steps sounded on the hardwood floor.

Hexford sauntered over to the stalls. Sweetwater stopped near the doorway and glanced very carefully about him. Nothing seemed to escape his eye. He even took the trouble to peer into a waste bin and was just on the point of lifting down a bit of broken bottle from an open cupboard when Brown appeared dressed in his Sunday coat and carrying a bunch of fresh hot-house roses.

"Who's that man?" he grunted to Hexford.

"Another of us," replied Hexford, with a shrug. "We're both rather interested in this gray horse."

"Wouldn't another time do?" pleaded the coachman, looking gravely down at the flowers he held. "It's most time for the funeral, and I don't feel like talking, indeed I don't, gentlemen."

His distress was so genuine that Hexford was inclined to let him go, but Sweetwater with a cock of his keen eye put in his word and held the coachman where he was.

"The old gal is telling me all about it," muttered this sly, adaptable fellow. He had sidled up to the mare and their heads were certainly very close together. "Not touch her? See here?" Sweetwater had his arm round the filly's neck and was looking straight into her fiery and intelligent eye. "Shall I pass her story on?" he asked, with a magnetic smile at the astonished coachman.

"You'll oblige me if you can put her knowledge into words," the man Zadok declared, with one fascinated eye on the horse and the other on the man whose he evidently felt that his presence was wanted. "She was out that night, and I know it, as any coachman would know who doesn't come down about this time. She was and who took her, just her I tell if you can, for I don't know a more'n the dead."

"The dead?" flashed out Sweetwater, whispering suddenly about and pointing straight through the open stable door toward the house where the young mistress the old servant mourned lay in her funeral casket. "Do you mean her—the lady who is about to be buried? Could she tell if her lips were not sealed by a murderer's hand?"

"She?" The word came low and awesomely. Rude and unfeeling as the man was, he seemed to be strangely affected by this unexpected suggestion. "I haven't the wit to answer that," said he. "How can we tell what she knew? The man who killed her is in jail. He might talk to some purpose. Why don't you question him?"

"For a very good reason," replied Sweetwater, with an easy good nature that was very reassuring. "He was arrested on the spot, so that it wasn't he who drove this mare home, unharmed her, put her back in her stall, locked the stable door and hung up the key in its place in the kitchen. Somebody else did that."

"That's true enough, and what does it show? That the mare was out on some other errand than the one which ended in blood and murder," was the coachman's unexpected retort.

"Is that so?" whispered Sweetwater into the mare's cocked ear. "She's not quite ready to commit herself," he drawled, with another enigmatical smile at the lingering Zadok. "She's keeping a something back. Are you?" he pointedly inquired, leaving the stalls and walking briskly up to Zadok.

"You're overstepping your dooty. I don't know who you are or what you want with me, but you're overstepping your dooty," said the coachman.

"He's right," muttered Hexford. "Better let the fellow go. See, one of the maids is beckoning to him."

"He shall go and welcome if he will tell me where he gets his taste for this 'special brand of whiskey,'" Sweetwater had crossed to the cupboard and taken down the lower half of the broken bottle which had attracted his notice on his first entrance, and was now holding it out, with a quizzical look at the departing coachman.

Hexford was at his shoulder with a spring, and together they inspected the label stiff sticking to it, which was that of the very rare and expensive spirit found missing from the clubhouse vault.

"This is a bid," muttered Hexford into his fellow detective's ear. Then, with a quick move toward Zadok, he shouted out:

"You'd better answer that question. Where did this bit of broken bottle come from? They don't give you whiskey like this to drink."

"That they don't," muttered the coachman, not so much abashed as they had expected. "And I wouldn't care for it if they did. I found that bit of bottle in the ash barrel outside and fished it out to put varnish in. I liked the shape."

"Broken this way?"

"Yes; it's just as good."

"Is it? Well, never mind; run along. We'll close the stable door for you."

"I'd rather do it myself and carry in the key."

"Here, then. We're going to the funeral too. You'd like to?" This latter in a whisper to Sweetwater.

The answer was a fervent one. Nothing in all the world would please this protean natured man quite so well.

"IS THAT SO?"

CHAPTER VIII.

"LILA-LILA!"

"LET us enter by the side door," suggested Sweetwater as the two moved toward the house.

"And be sure you place me where I can see without being seen. I have no wish to attract attention to myself or to be identified with the police until the necessity is forced upon me."

"Then we won't go in together," decided Hexford. "Find your own place; you won't have any difficulty. A crowd isn't expected. Miss Cumberland's condition forbids it."

Sweetwater nodded and slid in at the side door. He found himself at once in a narrow hall, from the end of which opened a large room. A few people were to be seen in this latter place, and his first instinct was to join them; but, finding that a few minutes yet remained before the hour set for the services, he decided to improve them by a rapid glance about this hall, which, for certain reasons hardly as yet formulated in his own mind, had a peculiar interest for him.

The most important object within view, according to his present judgment, was the staircase which connected it with the floor above, but if you had asked his reason for this conclusion he would not have told you, as Hanelagh might have done, that it was because it was the most direct and convenient approach to Carmel Cumberland's room. His notice led him next to a rack upon which hung several coats and a gentleman's hat.

He inspected the former and noted that one was finished with a high collar, but he passed the latter by—it was not a derby. The table stood next the rack, and on its top lay nothing more interesting than a clothesbrush and one or two other insignificant objects; but, with his memory for details, he had recalled the keys which one of the maids had picked up somewhere about this house and laid on a hall table. If this were the hall and this the table, then was every inch of the latter's simple cloth covered top of the greatest importance in his eyes.

He had no further time for even these cursory investigations. Hexford's step could be heard on the veranda, and Sweetwater was anxious to locate himself before the officer came in. Entering the room before him, he crossed to the small group clustered in its farther doorway. There were several empty chairs in sight, but he passed around them all to a dark and inconspicuous corner from which without effort he could take in every room on that floor—from the large parlor in which the casket stood to the remotest region of the servants' hall.

The clergyman had not yet descended, and Sweetwater had time to observe the row of little girls sitting in front of the bearers, each with a small cluster of white flowers in her hand—Miss Cumberland's Sunday school class, he conjectured, and conjectured rightly. He also perceived that some of these children loved her. His eyes dwelt lingeringly on these before passing to that heaped up mound of flowers under which lay a murdered body and a bruised heart. He could not see the face, but the spectacle was sufficiently awe compelling without that. Would it have seemed yet more so had he known at whose request the huge bunch of lilies had been placed over that silent bier?

The sister sick, the brother invisible, there was little more to hold his attention in this quarter, so he let it roam across the heads of the people about him to the distant hall communicating with the kitchen.

Several persons were approaching from this direction, among them Zadok—the servants of the house, so to speak, for they came in all together and sat down side by side in the chairs Sweetwater had so carefully passed by. There were five persons in all—two men and three women. Only two interested him—Zadok, with whom he had already made a superficial acquaintance and had had one bout, and a smart, bright eyed girl with a resolute mouth softened by an insistent dimple, who struck him as possessing excellent sense and some natural cleverness. A girl to know and a girl to talk to was his instantaneous judgment.

During the services Sweetwater found himself watching, with anxious curiosity, the attitude and absorbed expression of a good-looking young man whom he was far from suspecting to be the secret representative of the present suspect, whom nobody could forget, yet whom nobody wished to remember at this hallowed hour.

Had this attitude and this absorption been directed toward the casket over which the clergyman's words rose and fell with ever increasing impressiveness he might have noted the man, but would scarcely have been held by him. But this interest, sincere and strong as it undoubtedly was, centered not so much in the services, careful as he was to maintain a decorous attitude toward the same, but in the faint murmurs which now and then came down from above, where unconsciousness reigned and the stricken brother watched over the delirious sister with a concentration and abandonment to fear which made him oblivious of all other duties and almost as unconscious of the rites then being held below over one who had been as a mother to him as the sick girl herself, with her careless and impetuous "Lila, Lila!" The detective, watching this preoccupied stranger, shared in some measure his secret emotions and thus was prepared for the unexpected occurrence of a few minutes later.

The final words had been said and the friends present invited to look their last on the calm face which to many there had never worn so sweet a smile in life. Some had besitated, but most had obeyed the summons, among them Sweetwater. But he had not much time in which to fix those features in his mind, for the little girl, who had been waiting patiently for this moment, now came forward, and he stepped aside to watch them as they filed by, dropping as they did so a tribute of fragrant flowers upon the quiet breast. They were followed by the servants, among whom Zadok had divided his roses. As the last cluster fell from the coachman's trembling hand the undertaker advanced with the lid and, pausing a moment to be sure that all were satisfied, began to screw it on.

Suddenly there was a cry, and the crowd about the door leading into the main hall started back as wild steps were heard on the stairs and a young man rushed into the room.

"Take it off!" he cried, pointing at the lid which had just been fastened down. "I have not seen her! I must see her! Take it off!"

It was the brother, awake at last to the significance of the hour!

The clergyman, aghast at the sacrilegious look and tone of the intruder, stepped back, raising one arm in remonstrance and instinctively shielding the casket with the other. But the undertaker saw in the frenzied eye fixed upon his own that which warned him to comply with the request thus harshly and peremptorily uttered. Unscrewing the lid, he made way for the intruder, who, drawing near, pushed aside the roses which had fallen on the upturned face, and, laying his hand on the brow, muttered a few low words to himself. Then he withdrew his hand, and, without glancing to right or left, staggered back to the door amid a hiss as unbroken as that which reigned behind him in that open casket. Another moment and his white, haggard face and disordered figure would be blotted from sight by the door jamb.

The minister recovered his poise and the bearers their breath. The men stirred in their seats and the women began to cast frightened looks at each other and then at the children, some of whom had begun to whimper, when in an instant all were struck again into stone. The young man had turned and was facing them all, with his hands held out in a clinch which in itself was horrible.

"If they let the man go," he called out in loud and threatening tones, "I will strangle him" with these two hands!

The word and not the shriek which burst irrepressibly from more than one woman before him brought him to himself. With a ghastly look on his bloated features he scanned for one moment the row of deeply shocked faces before him, then tottered back out of sight and fled toward the staircase. All thought that an end had come to the harrowing scene, and minister and people faced each other once more, when, loud and sharp from above, there rang down the shrill cry of delirium, this time in articulate words which even the children could understand.

"Break it open, I say! Break it open and see if her heart is there!"

It was too awful. Men and women and children leaped to their feet and dashed away into the streets, uttering smothered cries and wild ejaculations. In vain the clergyman raised his voice and bade them respect the dead, for the rooms were well nigh empty before he had finished his appeal. Only the least of the children remained.

Soon these, too, were gone, and the casket was refastened and carried out by the shrinking bearers, leaving in those darkened rooms a trail of desolation which was only broken from time to time by the now faint and barely heard reiteration of the name of her who had just been borne away.

"Lila, Lila!"

Sweetwater, however affected by this scene to the funeral chamber, had not lost control of himself nor forgotten the claims of duty. He noted at a glance that while the raving looking stranger whose lead he had been following was as much surprised as the rest at the nature of the interruption—which he had possibly anticipated and for which he was in some measure prepared—he was of all present the most deeply and peculiarly impressed by it.

Sweetwater took occasion likewise while the excitement was at its height to mark what effect had been made on the servants by the action and conduct of young Cumberland.

It was not so easy to determine as the anxious detective might wish. Only one of them showed a simple emotion, and that one was, without any possibility of doubt, the cook. She was a Roman Catholic and was simply horrified by the sacrilege of which she had been witness. There was no mistaking her feelings. But those of the other two women were more complex.

So were those of the men, Zadok specially watched each movement of his young master with open distrust and very nearly started upright in his repugnance and dismay when that intruding hand fell on the peaceful brow of her over whose fate to his own surprise he had been able to shed tears.

And the women? Might not that curious droop of the eye with which the two younger clutched at each other's hands to keep from screaming and interchanged whispered words which Sweetwater would have given considerable out of his carefully cherished hoard to have heard.

It was impossible to tell at present, but he was confident that it would not be long before he understood them better at least. He had great confidence in his success with women so long as he was. He was not so sure of himself with men, and he felt that some difficulties and not a few pitfalls lay between him and, for instance, the uncommunicative Zadok. "But I've the whole long evening before me," he added in quiet consolation to himself. "It will be a pity if I can't work some of them in that time."

Plans had been made for carrying the servants to the cemetery, and, despite the universal disturbance consequent upon these events, these plans were adhered to. Sweetwater watched them all ride away in the last two carriages.

This gave him the opportunity he wanted. Leaving his corner, he looked up Hexford and asked who was left in the house.

"Dr. Perry, Mr. Clifton, the lawyer; Mr. Cumberland, his sick sister and the nurse."

"Mr. Cumberland! Didn't he go to the grave?"

"Did you expect him to after that?" Sweetwater's shoulders rose, and his voice took on a tone of indifference. "There's no telling. Where is he now, do you think—upstairs?"

"Yes. It seems he spends all his time in a little above opposite his sister's door. They won't let him inside for fear of disturbing the patient, so he just sits where I've told you, doing nothing but listening to every sound that comes through the door."

"Where's his room? In sight of the alcove you mention?"

"No; there's a partition or two between. If you go up by the side staircase you can slip into it without any one seeing you. Corner Perry and Mr. Clifton are in front."

"Is the side door locked?"

"No."

"Lock it. The back door, of course, is."

"Yes; the cook attended to that."

"I want a few minutes all by myself. Help me, Hexford. If Dr. Perry has given you no orders take your stand upstairs where you can give me warning if Mr. Cumberland makes a move to leave his post or the nurse her patient."

Five minutes later Sweetwater had slipped from sight, and for some time not even Hexford knew where he was.

Dr. Perry, may I have a few words with you?"

The coroner turned quickly. Sweetwater was before him. "I'll not take long," added the detective, with a short significant glance in the direction of Mr. Clifton.

Dr. Perry nodded, excused himself to the lawyer and followed the detective into the small writing room which he had occupied during the funeral. In the decision with which Sweetwater closed the door behind them there was something which caused the blood to mount to the coroner's brow.

"You have made some discovery?" said he.

"A very important one," was the quick, emphatic reply. And in a few brief words the detective related his interview with the master mechanic's wife on the highroad. Then with an eager "Now let me show you something," he led the coroner through the dining room into the side hall, where he paused before the staircase.

"Up?" queried the coroner, with an obvious shrinking from what he might encounter above.

"No," was the whispered reply. "What we want is here." And, pushing open a small door let into the under part of the stairway, he disclosed a closet and in that closet a coat or two and one derby hat. He took down the latter and, holding it out to the light, pointed to a spot on the under side of its brim.

The coroner staggered as he saw it and glanced helplessly about him. He had known this family all their lives, and the father had been his dearest friend. But he could say nothing in face of this evidence. The spot was a flour mark, in which could almost be discerned the outline of a woman's thumb.

WEALTHY MAN TAKES POST.

WASHINGTON, August 11.—Lars Anderson, who has been appointed United States Ambassador to Belgium, is another wealthy man to enter the diplomatic service. His wife is also rich—in fact, she is said to be the wealthiest woman in Washington.

Mrs. Anderson is known to the smart colony in Newport, Boston, New York and Washington for her magnificent social entertainments. She has won distinction in art circles, and Boston critics announce her sketches to be fine examples of art.

The Andersons have a magnificent home in Washington. Mrs. Anderson doubtless will add to her reputation as one of the most perfect hostesses when she goes to Belgium.

Anderson has been a resident of Washington during the large part of the year. He spends most of the summer months, however, in Massachusetts. He has had considerable experience in the diplomatic service. He was the second secretary of the United States Legation and Embassy at London from 1891 to 1899. From 1893 to 1897 he was first secretary and charge d'affaires of the Embassy at Rome. During the Spanish-American War he was in the army as captain and assistant adjutant-general.

The George Senate has passed a bill setting sixty hours a week as the maximum for work in cotton and woolen mills.
