Renewed Activity at Kilauea Crater.

Word comes from the Volcano House of the renewed activity of the Kilauea crater. Dense smoke has been seen rolling up from Muka-weoweo, and yesterday morning a party consisting of Embert M. Brown, A. L. Williams and Mrs. H. G. Claxton made a special trip to the crater. Three cones were found to have formed in the bottom of the pit, two of which were throwing up continuous jets of live lava and ashes, while the third was emitting a steady stream of black smoke.

There is a lava flow from the crater nearest the Puna side, which is spreading over the floor of the pit. Mr. Brown who has seen the Kilauea three times before during the year says the present exhibition is the grandest yet witnessed.

Kukaiau Mill Is Burned.

Friday morning between 3 and 4 o'clock fire was discovered by the night watchman in the engine room of Kukaiau Mill, and before he could summon help to assist him in extinguishing the flames the entire building was afire. Fortunately one of the boilers was under a small pressure of steam and the night watchman vigorously blew the mill whistle, summoning the laborers nearby, who after diligent efforts succeeded in saving the vacuum pans, which occupied another building adjacent.

The engine and boiler house was quickly consumed owing to the oil and grease saturating the timbers, but the machinery was found uninjured. The loss is estimated to be about $5,000, fully covered by insurance. Preparations are being made for rebuilding and Contractor J. C. Carter of Hilo is on the scene making an estimate of the cost.

Flatly Contradicts the Governor.

In answer to Governor Carter's statement to the Hilo Chamber of Commerce that the last legislature was at fault in not providing for corporation income taxes, Representative Chas. A. Rice writes an open letter to the Garden Island, which flatly contradicts the Governor.
Lihue, Kauai, October 26, 1905.

Editor Garden Island,

Sir: I have read the letter written by Governor G. R. Carter to the Hilo Chamber of Commerce, dated October 21st, in which he states that the members of the last legislature are entirely to blame for the trouble the outside counties find themselves in, regarding their just share of the corporation income taxes.

Governor Carter states that the outside members did not try to adjust the law so as to prevent any dispute about the share of the outside counties in the income taxes, and by their indifference practically agreed that Oahu County should have all income taxes.

I deem it my duty as a member of the last legislature to take issue on his statement of fact.

The outside members all wanted this matter adjusted so as to make all dispute as to where the taxes should go, impossible, and to that end introduced the following amendment to the income tax act and passed the same through the House, to-wit:

"Section 9. Where Tax Payable. The taxes on incomes imposed by this chapter shall be payable in the Taxation Division in which the person has his legal residence and in the case of a corporation in the Taxation Division where the property of the corporation or the major part thereof is located."

This amendment was passed through the House by the unanimous vote of all outside members and was opposed by the unanimous vote of all members from Oahu.

This amendment was killed in the Senate by the interference of the Treasurer and the Governor, who represented that such an amendment might invalidate the constitutionality of the income tax act, and thus defeat a good law which the Supreme Court had upheld in its former condition.

Governor Carter stated at that time, before the Senate killed the amendment, that he would veto any bill containing this amendment.

Governor Carter and Treasurer Campbell sent for me to the Executive Chamber to consult with them in regard to this amendment which I had introduced, after the amendment had passed in the House, on the same day, and urged me to secure a reconsideration of the bill and have this amendment withdrawn, which I declined to do.

After the Senate had acted and the time came for the appointment of the conference committee from the House to confer with the senate committee as to whether the House would yield this amendment, Treasurer Campbell, who had prepared the original bill, again came to me to induce us to drop the amendment.

At that time I conferred with representatives from the outside islands regarding the matter, and stated to them what Treasurer Campbell had told me, "that in future he would try to have all the corporation income taxes collected in conformity with the spirit of the amendment, so as to give the counties their just shares" and acting upon this promise of the Treasurer, and the view of a leading member of the Judiciary committee that under the law, as it stood, the outside counties could get their share, anyway, we conceded to the administration's request and dropped the amendment.

Now, does the Governor mean to say, that the outside members of the legislature raised no objection to an unjust appropriation of the income tax by the Administration for the benefit of the County of Oahu?

Hawaii, Maui and Kauai members of the House did all in their power to protect their constituents and secure for them their just share of the taxes and would have succeeded in the legislature but for the interference and lobbying of the Administration, and its fair, false promises.

Yours very truly,

CHAS. A. RICE,
Representative from Kauai Sixth Representative District.

Honolulu, Nov. 6.—The Supreme Court has decided against the outside counties on the question of the income tax.

Judge Parsons is reversed and appointments of county sheriffs need not be approved by supervisors.

[The above decisions refer to the three test cases which have been before the Territorial Supreme Court on the construction of the County Act. The first case, known as the income tax case, was a mandamus proceeding brought before Judge Hardy in the Fifth Circuit of Kauai to compel Tax Collector Holt to pay over to the several counties the income taxes of corporations whose principal sources of income are derived from plantations or other interests within the respective counties. Under the county act all such income taxes are a Territorial prerogative for the exclusive use of the county of Oahu. The County of Maui and Molokai joined in the suit brought before Judge Hardy and appealed to the Supreme Court.

In the other cases, it is gathered from the above dispatch, that Judge Parsons was reversed only in one case, namely, the quo warranto proceedings brought by Supervisor John T. Moir against Harry A. Knell, questioning his authority to exercise the powers of a police officer by virtue of appointment of Sheriff Keolauui. On this question, Judge Parsons' decision construed Section 110a of the County Act to give the right to the Sheriff to appoint police officers subject to the approval of the Board of Supervisors. Judge Parsons is reversed.

Attorney C. M. LeBlond received a wireless message later in the afternoon from Judge Stanley, who argued the two Hawaii cases before the Supreme Court, as follows:

LEBLOND, Hilo:
Have won both cases before Supreme Court.
STANLEY.

This intimates that the first decision of Judge Parsons on the celebrated Lyman mandamus case against Auditor Maguire was sustained. This latter case was a decision upon a writ of mandamus sued out by Norman K. Lyman to compel Auditor Maguire to pay Lyman's salary as Sheriff's Clerk for the month of July, basing his claim thereto upon an appointment by the Board of Supervisors. This case raised only a special phase of the question whether the Sheriff or the Sheriff had the right to appoint subordinates. Judge Parsons decided in favor of the Sheriff and his decision has a

The question that now arises in the mind of the average citizen and taxpayer is as to whom the set of police officers appointed by the Supervisors, shall look to be paid for the four months' services. Two sets of police officers have been doing duty in the County of Hawaii since July 1st, when the County Act went into effect. If Keolauui's appointees are the proper ones the others are not, but as has been suggested by one legal gentleman the County will have to pay for both.]

Supervisors Asked to Further Jail Construction.

Road Engineer Gere has received a communication from M. M. Jordau, by his attorney, stating that as the owner of the lease hold upon which it is proposed to build the new Hilo jail, he will release the same to the Territory for the sum of $350.

This is a reduction of $150 from the original price and below the sum allowed him by the appraisers. The letter is as follows:

Dear Sir:—In reply to your verbal request of this date, as to what would be the least amount my principal, M. M. Jordau, would take for his leasehold interest and house at Pihonua, which includes part of the new jail site, I would answer that having in view an amicable settlement of the matter and not wishing to obstruct nor delay the building of the new jail in any manner whatsoever, my principal will take the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars in full of his rights in the premises and upon the payment of this sum he will surrender his lease etc., in question.

I would call your attention to the fact that the Commission appointed by your Department valued my Principal's interest at $500.00.

Yours truly,
(Signed) G. F. AFFONSO,
Attorney in fact for M. M. Jordau.

Engineer Gere has turned the matter over to the Board of Supervisors asking that body to further the construction of the Jail, which has been delayed owing to the inability of the Superintendent of Public Works and the leaseholder being able to agree upon a proper figure for the surrender of the leasehold. C. E. Wright has expressed his willingness to purchase the building now situated on the premises for $100. This leaves a balance of $250 to be raised by popular subscription or by the County. It is claimed by the government officials that the entire amount of the appropriation has been exhausted in the payment of architect fees and the award of the contract. The Supervisors are now asked to make good the difference.

RAINBOW FALLS PARK.

Secretary H. P. Wood, of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, on the occasion of his visit to Hilo, was impressed with the natural beauty of the scenery and environments of Hilo. Among the other points of interest visited by him and his wife was Rainbow Falls. He immediately recognized the opportunities of making these beautiful falls one of the attractive features of a visit to Hilo.

He expressed surprise that no efforts had been made towards the improvement of the approach and grounds surrounding the falls and basin. When informed that it was the purpose of the Park Commissioners to convert this property into a park, Secretary Wood made a generous donation to the cause.

This is the spirit that is needed in the beautifying any town and Mr. Wood comes from a section of California which believes that one of the first inducements to prospective settlers and tourists is the making of attractive surroundings. The land surrounding the Rainbow Falls is under long lease to the county and steps should be immediately taken to preserve its natural beauties and grandeur into a park of which the county and community might well be proud.

A subscription fund has already been started by a number of ladies for the construction of a rustic pavilion and resting place where visitors to the falls can view the iridescent and prismatic colors of the waterfall with ease and comfort. The Board of Supervisors might now augment this fund by a substantial donation for the construction of a driveway and approach to the place.

In this manner, will Hilo and the County of Hawaii be able to present to future visitors in our midst a system of parks and pleasure grounds which will be a delight to the eye and a resting place for those wearied from the toil of labor and the cares of business.

DANGERS OF A DESPOT.

An autocratic government must needs rule by force, and where a weak, vacillating emperor sits upon a throne, surrounded by a corrupt court and a system of bureaucracy as exists in Russia today, we may expect to see a long suffering people rise up in revolt against a reign of misrule and oppression. The revolutionary spirit has been gaining throughout the empire and discontent and lack of confidence prevades the Russian people. The war just ended has been waged at great cost of lives and money and the majority of the people were kept in ignorance of the series of repeated defeats which the Russian army encountered.

The average Russian subject is a passive, stolid creature but when once aroused, neither death nor suffering will change his course. The greatest governing factor of Russia in the past has been unwavering faith in the Czar and the influence of the church. When these are shaken as they now appear to be and the people awaken to a sense of the wrongs they have suffered, the future alone can tell what will be the result. Never before in all the history of the house of Romanoffs has such a condition so full of threat and revolution confronted the empire as now surrounds Nicholas II, Czar of all the Russias.

PLANTS FOR THE PARK.

Admiral Beckley Brings Valuable Shade Trees For Moohau Park.

Not to be outdone by Governor Carter and teachers in the observance of Arbor Day in the public schools of the Territory, Admiral George C. Beckley brought from the Botanical Gardens at Honolulu a large quantity of trees and plants for the beautifying of Moohau Park.

The shipment, which includes rare acacia, poinciana, silken oak, cypress and other trees valuable for shade and ornament, came packed in damp earth in fifteen boxes. The plants were delivered to the Park Board and later turned over to Miss Nell Pomeroy and Mrs. Wm. McKay, who with other ladies have volunteered to transplant the trees and shrubs.

It is a matter of considerable difficulty to set out with a view to the future growth of the tree and its relative effect to other plants and surroundings, a collection of plants of such variety and magnitude as Admiral Beckley's consignment. Besides the 253 trees in the list below, the Admiral has 120 coconut palms, already sprouted, which he will turn over to the Park Commissioners. The collection of plants includes six coral trees, collected by the late S. T. Alexander in South Africa. This is a medium tree, bearing a brilliant red flower. All of the trees will be set out and properly charted, so that future generations may see and admire them.

The list of plants brought by Admiral Beckley and turned over to the Park Board are as follows:

- 6 Koa (Acacia Koa), flower yellow.
2 Acacia (Acacia Nigra), flower yellow; small tree.
24 Siris tree (Albizia lebbek), flower light purple; large tree.

A CHOICE LIBRARY.

Advantages Afforded by Hilo Free Library.

Hilo, November 1, 1905.

Editor Hilo Tribune,

Dear Sir:—During a visit of some weeks in Hilo I have been greatly impressed with the value of the Library and Reading Room. It is unusual to find in so small a community such a Library building and such a well selected collection of books. The room itself with its high roof and spacious quarters is eminently well fitted for its purpose.

It is a "thought center" of the best kind. I have been interested in helping to place libraries in several small towns in the state of New York, but none of them will at present, compare favorably with yours in Hilo. Most of them are sheltered in inferior rented rooms and are struggling for existence. The State University Extension work however has greatly aided by sending out its Traveling Libraries of one hundred volumes each.

To have founded a choice Library of more than three thousand volumes, and to have secured for it a fine building conveniently located to be able to give free access to the best current magazine literature, and circulation for a moderate fee to the works of the standard authors and the best and latest fiction is an achievement for the citizens of Hilo and vicinity to be proud of.

The Island of Hawaii has many attractions. Its scenery is unsurpassed in all the world. Here in this quiet town of Hilo, one finds a coterie of cultivated men and women, excellent schools of every kind, live churches and Sunday schools, and other privileges.

The believer in "the simple life" and the "nature lover" may well be satisfied here. With the constant ministry of the mountain and the sea, he may, if he wills live very near Nature's God.

I am glad to know that the press of Hilo is willing to speed the work of the Library by frequent notices and encouraging words. With our philosopher I believe that in books "there is bread and wealth and power and education for every man who has the heart to use his opportunity."

NOVEMBER TERM.

Work of the Term to be Postponed Two Weeks.

On Friday Judge Parsons issued an order directing the summoning of grand and petit jurors on December 1st and 5th respectively. The regular term begins on November 15th, when the court will formally convene and jury cases will be postponed for two weeks. It is supposed that the reason for the postponement of the trial of cases is to permit the question of the citizenship of jurors to be tested before the Territorial supreme court. This question as to the right of Circuit Courts to naturalize United States citizens as has been the practice, was raised before Judge Parsons at the August term at Honokaa. Judge Parsons has withheld his decision on the point raised at that time. It is desired that the question may be decided definitely by the Supreme Court, and it is probable that a decision may be given the supreme court before the trial of causes at the present term of court.

The grand jurors, drawn for the November term, 1905, are summoned to appear on December 1st, at 10 o'clock a. m. They are as follows: A. J. Watt, F. W. Thrum, Andrew Chalmers, L. B. Maynard, F. B. Weeks, Wm. Silver, J. M. Kaubi, E. E. Backus, W. Grotheer, E. M. Thompson, W. C. Cook, F. Hansell, E. Sojer, W. E. Smith, R. Hind, D. Aukai, L. Rich, A. E. Grindell, I. K. Kamoku, W. H. Johnson, A. Vollberg, H. H. Sisson, C. J. Giddings.

The trial jurors are directed to appear on Tuesday, December 5th, at 10 o'clock a. m., as follows: E. H. Lyman, Manuel Santos, V. R. M. Fitzsimmons, F. J. Williams, J. K. Like, H. S. Overend, G. H. Vicars, J. W. Conradt, Manuel Tavares, John Mann, M. Rokey, Henry Iken, A. Kaptenberger, W. M. Keolanni, C. E. Olsen, Jose Mowry, T. B. Ah Leong, W. K. Ragsdale, B. Tarpley, W. S. Mansfield, E. C. Mellor, Maikui, J. H. Barron, John Vierra, E. D. Baldwin, C. W. Backeberg.

The Succession

By Frank H. Sweet

Copyright, 1904, by Frank H. Sweet

Ryland, younger son and only two removed from a title, stood in the doorway of his dugout and gazed across the prairie. Ryland's gaze went idly along his fences and over his few scattering cattle and then returned to the object which had brought him to the door—the mail wagon.

The six dugouts and store in sight and a few more isolated dugouts below the horizon comprised Cattleboro, dignified with a triswickly mail and having Ryland, as the most literary man of the community and the recipient of the bulk of the mail, its custodian.

As the wagon drew near he saw that it contained a second occupant and presently that the second occupant was a woman. Then the wagon drew up in front of the dugout, and the woman descended, disclosing herself to be scarcely more than a girl and such a girl as Cattleboro had never seen before. Ryland made a quick step forward, the pleasure on his face mingled with a good deal of wonder.

"Where can I find a hotel, sir? Is the schoolhouse near? Will you be kind enough to direct me to Mr. Ryland's?" the girl asked almost in a breath.

Ryland's wonder became sudden comprehension.

"You are Miss Collinwood," he said.

"Yes, sir."

"Well, suppose you step into the dugout a moment. I will get the mail and then come in and explain. I am Mr. Ryland."

Outside, the dugout was like the others of the country; within, the similarity faded. Skins and Indian blankets concealed the rough walls, and there was a profusion of books and periodicals. The girl's eyes flashed a friendly recognition toward some of the titles; then Ryland entered with a little package of letters and papers in his hand and with a troubled look on his face.

"I'm sorry you didn't wait for me to write again," he said. "The fact is we haven't any schoolhouse yet. The boys are busy rounding up and branding their cattle just now, and so it's been put off. And—er—there isn't a hotel or boarding house in the whole country. The only thing I see is for you to go to the Rikshons' dugout, only a quarter of a mile from here. I think they will be able to squeeze a room for you, and they're good people, though Mrs. Rikshon cannot speak a word of English. My idea was for you to board with Stanley, but his wife is east just now, and they won't move into their dugout under a month. Why didn't you wait until I had something definite to write?" pathetically.

The girl laughed.

"I suppose it was because I liked your letter describing the country," she replied. "I wanted to take a vacation, and it occurred to me this would be just the place. I could see the people and get some idea of what school duties are. You see, this is to be my first attempt at teaching. As to the Rikshons, I think we will get along very nicely together."

Ryland's face showed his relief.

"Then it will be all right," he declared. "I'll corral—the men together, and we'll put up a log schoolhouse for you just as soon as their rush work is over. We've already selected a fine clump of trees to build under. And in the meantime, if you wish, we can arrange for you to teach the children out of doors under the trees. There will be no rains at this season."

"That will be delightful," she cried eagerly, "only," her face falling a little, "I haven't secured the position yet."

"I give it to you now."

"Without examination?"

He looked embarrassed, then laughed.

"Why, yes, I think I'd better. I don't believe I would know how to conduct an examination. You see, it's like this. The men out here are very busy people, and as I'm the only shiftless one they have a habit of loading all the offices upon my shoulders. On second thought," the relief on his face becoming complete, "I am glad you have arrived so early. These things naturally fall into line with a teacher's duties. You will design the schoolhouse—of logs, you know—select the books and make out a list of the apparatus necessary."

"But hold on," began Miss Collinwood, the merriment in her face changing to sudden dismay.

"No, no," hurriedly, "it is absolutely necessary. It is the—examination, you know—er—to take the place of it, I mean. I have felt worried about the school books, for I never went to an American school, you know. I couldn't refuse, of course, for they are all splendid, hardworking people here, and it would help them. I think we will make a great success of it now."

"I hope so," faintly.

He looked at her keenly.

"Of course I shall help you all I can," he reassured her. "The first few days I expect I had better even help with the teaching. Some of the young people can speak broken English, and some cannot speak English at all, and most of them are only half civilized. But I've been here several years and understand them, and they all like me. I think if I go to school with you while an't tell them hunting stories and perhaps take one of my half wild horses there for them to give exhibitions on and try to break during recess. It might keep them more tractable. But suppose we go over to the Rikshons now and arrange for your accommodation."

One week later school commenced on log benches and a desk under the trees. Ryland was there with an inexhaustible store of hunting and animal stories to bribe the scholars' attention and with a vicious horse fastened to one of the trees, which was to be common property out of school hours.

For the first few days Ryland was thoroughly interested in the novel work and was there when school opened and remained until it closed, and by the time the novelty began to pall he had become even more thoroughly interested in the teacher.

Among his letters from England two months or so later was one from the family solicitors, the opening paragraph of which read: "It is our painful duty to inform you of a sad accident which befell your Cousin Robert and the baronet while testing a new automobile. Robert was instantly killed and the baronet somewhat injured. He is already better, thanks to his robust constitution. This makes you the heir, and the baronet directs that you dispose of any interests you may have in America and return home immediately. Robert's allowance of £3,000 a year will be yours if you reside in England. We may add that the Lady Ellen is staying at the Hall."

Ryland read the letter thoughtfully, but, on the whole, with clearing face. Only that morning he had received an intimation that a mortgage would be foreclosed on his ranch unless the interest be paid immediately. That would leave him practically penniless. His natural bent was for quiet and his books. He doubted if he could make a living in America or anywhere, for that matter. The only thing was to return and accept the £3,000 and incidentally Lady Ellen.

Once decided, he thrust the rest of the letters into his pocket and started out to say goodbye to his friends. When something disagreeable was in prospect, the less procrastination the better.

It was this that took him straight to the schoolhouse. Miss Collinwood was more to him than all else in America; how much more he had not realized until he decided to leave.

She was just closing the door when he arrived, and something in her eyes as she greeted him changed his intended brief farewell into: "Suppose we stop under the trees a little while, Miss Collinwood. It is so pleasant here now, and, besides, I have something I want to tell you."

"Under the trees" had been their favorite talking place, and he found it even more difficult to speak the words of farewell there than he had at the schoolhouse door. Several times he forced them to his lips, but looking into her eyes and listening to her voice he could not give them utterance. England and the three thousand pittance were slipping farther and farther away, and America and this girl beside him were becoming nearer and more indispensable. She was telling him of some of her ambitions and hopes, and the indomitable courage was firing his own veins and making simple what had before seemed insurmountable. He had thought this girl his dearest friend; he now knew that she was infinitely more, and in this land or anywhere it would be easy to make a living for the woman he loved. Suddenly he reached out and took her hands in his, strongly, and she did not resist.

"Miss Collinwood—Ellinor," he said steadily, "will you marry me?"

And she, after a moment of silence, but not hesitation, answered quietly, "Yes."

They talked for half an hour longer, making plans and discussing hopes; then he noticed the bulk of unopened letters in his pocket. He took them out one by one and read them, still talking and making comments on what they contained. The last was from the same solicitor as the first, written two days later, but mailed in time to reach the same boat. It read: "The late baronet's injuries, at first thought slight, developed alarming symptoms yesterday, and he died this morning. You succeeded to the title. Please come at once."

Wherein Coffee Is Peculiar.

Probably every one who has noticed the green and roasted coffee sitting together in sacks in the dealer's storehouse has observed the difference in size of the beans. It is a peculiarity of coffee that in roasting while it loses considerably in weight it gains in bulk. At the reddish brown stage the loss of weight has been about 15 per cent and the gain in bulk about 30; at the chestnut brown, 20 and 50 per cent respectively, and, if carried to a dark brown, 25 and 60. It is in the roasting that the volatile oil to which the delightful aroma is due is developed, as it is not present in the green berry. If the roasting is carried too far—beyond a light brown—this oil is injured and destroyed, and the disappointed housekeeper properly complains that the coffee has been roasted to death.

Drink Buttermilk.

There would be more buttermilk sold if people only knew the good qualities of the drink. There is nothing in the line of simple drinks which exercises a more beneficial influence on the general health. It is at once food and medicine. The lactic acid it contains acts on the whole digestive system, while as food it has already undergone a semi-digestion in the churning to which it has been subjected. Instances are numerous of persons afflicted with Bright's disease living for many years in comparative comfort with no other medicine than a daily supply of buttermilk.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

It's Deterioration and Lack of Prestige.

Frederic Harrison in the Positivist says that the House of Commons is degraded. It has lost its authority and its prestige. It has suffered itself year after year to be bamboozled, deceived, hoodwinked. It has voted away enormous sums without adequate inquiry or guarantees for fair return.
It has allowed huge peculations to be made under its very nose, and it has colluded with the official efforts to screen the criminals. It plays into the hands of ministers who for years are carrying on a game of equivocation, evasion, or to speak plainly, of falsehood.

Can this moral rot in the constitution of the house be stopped? The evil of it is that there is nothing accidental or temporary in it. The new rules have made the house more the creature of ministers, have made it easier to silence minorities and to evade questions, but that was the deliberate action of the majority, which cares for nothing if its own side can win.
The change of days and hours makes the house more convenient for amusement.

More and more it has become a rich man's club; a sort of Ranelagh for the smart set, and, indeed, for the shabby set. It is a club with all the social habits of a club, with the coterie rows, good-fellowship, casual ways of a pretty mixed club.
Clubs take lenient views of the moral qualities of clubbable fellows, who can only play bridge and amuse the smoking room. The house of commons does not do its duty, does not want to do its duty, and does not care how long ministers may wriggle and maneuver, so long as they will stave off the dissolution. When the majority have got to that state of hardened selfishness, it is not easy to find a remedy for that which it carries in the bones. Whether a new house and a new speaker can cure it remains to be seen.

Meaning of Different Colors.

Colors have a language of their own. White, for instance, which is a reunion of the seven primitive colors, is the symbol of power, divine wisdom, purity, candor, innocence and chastity. Red represents fire. It is, therefore, symbolic of passion, power and riches, hence kings and powerful rulers of the earth wore red mantles. It is also emblematic of hardness and cruelty, being the color worn by the executioners of old and by the members of the inquisition.

Blue denotes fidelity, sweetness, tenderness, loyalty, a spotless reputation. With the ancients yellow denoted glory and fortune. Now it is called the color of infidelity and shame. How is it that yellow has become the emblem of infidelity, perfidy and misfortune? Because the Jews were forced to wear yellow during the middle ages, and the house doors of traitors were smeared with the yolk of eggs.

Green is the color of hope and joy and the emblem of youth. Pink denotes health, youth, pleasure, love. Black denotes sadness. Violet is the color allowed to faith.
Orange means divine inspiration and poetry. The muses are all represented clad in orange-colored draperies. Orange was also the color of Hymen. Brides once wore orange-colored veils called flammeum, and they could not pronounce their vows unless covered with the flammeum.

Coffee in Hawaii.

According to the Washington,
D. C., correspondent of the Tobacco Leaf, the Bureau of Statistics has prepared an elaborate combination of data regarding the coffee industry in Porto Rico and Hawaii, which, taken together with the information concerning the possibilities in the Philippines, demonstrates that a duty on coffee would speedily establish the industry in all our colonial possessions on a sound commercial basis. In the meantime the revenue that would be derived from importations from Brazil and other foreign countries would settle the problem presented by the current Treasury deficit.

To Figure Profits.

Nearly every merchant tries to mark his goods at a certain percentage of profit. In doing so he will find the following table valuable:

To make 16 2/3 per cent profit,
add 20 per cent to cost.

To make 20 per cent profit, add
25 per cent to cost.

To make 25 per cent profit, add
33 1/3 per cent to cost.

To make 33 1/3 per cent profit,
add 50 per cent to cost.

To make 50 per cent profit, add
100 per cent to cost.

You can mark goods by the preceding rule and any time you deduct the percentage of profit you will have the cost left.

A peculiarity of the southern part of the Congo valley is that one side of the hills is usually bare, the other covered with thick vegetation. This difference is due to the fact that one side gets little moisture, while the other is dampened by fogs blown against it every morning. The natives often shave off their hair from one side of their heads, the effect presenting the same appearance as the hills of the country.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

It's Deterioration and Lack of Prestige.

Frederic Harrison in the Positivist says that the House of Commons is degraded. It has lost its authority and its prestige. It has suffered itself year after year to be bamboozled, deceived, hoodwinked. It has voted away enormous sums without adequate inquiry or guarantees for fair return. It has allowed huge peculations to be made under its very nose, and it has colluded with the official efforts to screen the criminals. It plays into the hands of ministers who for years are carrying on a game of equivocation, evasion, or to speak plainly, of falsehood.

Can this moral rot in the constitution of the house be stopped? The evil of it is that there is nothing accidental or temporary in it. The new rules have made the house more the creature of ministers, have made it easier to silence minorities and to evade questions, but that was the deliberate action of the majority, which cares for nothing if its own side can win. The change of days and hours makes the house more convenient for amusement.

More and more it has become a rich man's club; a sort of Ranelagh for the smart set, and, indeed, for the shabby set. It is a club with all the social habits of a club, with the coterie rows, good-fellowship, casual ways of a pretty mixed club. Clubs take lenient views of the moral qualities of clubbable fellows, who can only play bridge and amuse the smoking room. The house of commons does not do its duty, does not want to do its duty, and does not care how long ministers may wriggle and maneuver, so long as they will stave off the dissolution. When the majority have got to that state of hardened selfishness, it is not easy to find a remedy for that which it carries in the bones. Whether a new house and a new speaker can cure it remains to be seen.

Meaning of Different Colors.

Colors have a language of their own. White, for instance, which is a reunion of the seven primitive colors, is the symbol of power, divine wisdom, purity, candor, innocence and chastity. Red represents fire. It is, therefore, symbolic of passion, power and riches, hence kings and powerful rulers of the earth wore red mantles. It is also emblematic of hardness and cruelty, being the color worn by the executioners of old and by the members of the inquisition.

Blue denotes fidelity, sweetness, tenderness, loyalty, a spotless reputation. With the ancients yellow denoted glory and fortune. Now it is called the color of infidelity and shame. How is it that yellow has become the emblem of infidelity, perfidy and misfortune? Because the Jews were forced to wear yellow during the middle ages, and the house doors of traitors were smeared with the yolk of eggs.

Green is the color of hope and joy and the emblem of youth. Pink denotes health, youth, pleasure, love. Black denotes sadness. Violet is the color allowed to faith. Orange means divine inspiration and poetry. The muses are all represented clad in orange-colored draperies. Orange was also the color of Hymen. Brides once wore orange-colored veils called flammeum, and they could not pronounce their vows unless covered with the flammeum.

Coffee in Hawaii.

According to the Washington, D. C., correspondent of the Tobacco Leaf, the Bureau of Statistics has prepared an elaborate combination of data regarding the coffee industry in Porto Rico and Hawaii, which, taken together with the information concerning the possibilities in the Philippines, demonstrates that a duty on coffee would speedily establish the industry in all our colonial possessions on a sound commercial basis. In the meantime the revenue that would be derived from importations from Brazil and other foreign countries would settle the problem presented by the current Treasury deficit.

To Figure Profits.

Nearly every merchant tries to mark his goods at a certain percentage of profit. In doing so he will find the following table valuable:

To make 16 2/3 per cent profit, add 20 per cent to cost.

To make 20 per cent profit, add 25 per cent to cost.

To make 25 per cent profit, add 33 1/3 per cent to cost.

To make 33 1/3 per cent profit, add 50 per cent to cost.

To make 50 per cent profit, add 100 per cent to cost.

You can mark goods by the preceding rule and any time you deduct the percentage of profit you will have the cost left.

A peculiarity of the southern part of the Congo valley is that one side of the hills is usually bare, the other covered with thick vegetation. This difference is due to the fact that one side gets little moisture, while the other is dampened by fogs blown against it every morning. The natives often shave off their hair from one side of their heads, the effect presenting the same appearance as the hills of the country.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Benefits a City Councillor at Kingston, Jamaica.

Mr. W. O'Reill Fogarty, who is a member of the City Council at Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies, writes as follows: "One bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy had good effect on a cough that was giving me trouble and I think I should have been more quickly relieved if I had continued the remedy. That it was beneficial and quick in relieving me there is no doubt and it is my intention to obtain another bottle." For sale by Hilo Drug Co.

Russians Raise Tobacco.

Mrs. N. Russel, who returned to her home at Mountain View this morning, brought to the TRIBUNE office two handsome bunches of Sumatra tobacco grown by Galicians at the Russian settlement near Glenwood, Olaa. The leaves are of good length and measure eight inches across. The tobacco is smooth, free from blemish and a beautiful golden brown color, especially adapted for wrappers. No especial protection of cloth or other device was used to mature the tobacco, and Mrs. Russel declares that the home-steaders at this locality are anxious to engage in its cultivation on a larger scale. There is a rumor abroad among the settlers that the government proposes to eject them from their holdings for non-payment of rent and give the lands to others free of charge. After spending so much pains and trouble in clearing and planting the land, there is a general feeling of dissatisfaction growing among these sturdy people.

CUT OUT LAUPAHOEHOE.

Tourists Objection to Travel by Kinau.

"The question of a new and larger boat for the Honolulu-Hilo run has never come up before the directors," said President Kennedy of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, recently to an Advertiser reporter. "Such an idea has only been a thought in my mind, that's all. I have thought Kauai needed a larger boat, and the only way to get it would be to put the Kinau on the Kauai run and get a bigger boat with more passenger accommodations for the Hilo run."

There is some talk of cutting out Laupahoehoe from the run taken by the Kinau. Passengers seldom embark or disembark there, but it's in the mail contract for the Kinau to stop there regularly. Laupahoehoe is a sore spot with passengers going to and coming from Hilo. The Kinau rolls and pitches at the anchorage to an extent which gives the people mal de mer. If Laupahoehoe were omitted, the trip to Hilo would be mostly a pleasure throughout.

The new Hilo vessel will be larger, faster and be able to accommodate many more passengers than the Kinau.

While the plans and specifications have not yet been prepared, the building of a new boat is seriously contemplated and the matter will be material for consideration at the next meeting of the directors of the company. It is planned, with the new boat, to leave Honolulu at noon or 1 o'clock every Tuesday and reach Hilo before 7 o'clock on the following morning.

CLIMATE AND VOLCANO.

Chief Attractions for Tourists to Hawaii.

"I had a delightful trip to the Volcano," said H. P. Wood, secretary of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, on his return to Honolulu.

"The Volcano House is splendidly kept, the rooms are clean and the table is excellent. Lycurgus raises all his own vegetables and he supplies them in great quantities to the table. It is an attractive place, and the whole trip is one that no one should miss. It is the greatest attraction that Hawaii has to offer to the tourist."

"Hilo is an attractive little town, and much improved since I was there last. The most beautiful thing there is the 'Rainbow Falls.' I understand that the citizens are arranging to have the falls and adjacent land set apart as a public park, which is an excellent plan."

"I realize more than ever before how attractive the islands are to tourists. California has a delightful climate, but it is no such climate as Hawaii possesses. The mornings and evenings in Hawaii are delightful and there is no comparison with other places."

"I believe that the climate conditions of these islands will result in a largely increased travel this way."

KILLED BY FALLING BOX.

Fatal Accident at Scene of Dedication of Japanese Temple.

At the dedication of the Japanese temple on Volcano road Sunday morning a distressing accident occurred which was kept very quiet and did not appear to mar the celebration in any way. A small Japanese girl, daughter of Fujima and aged 11 years was struck by a box dropped from one of the platforms surrounding the temple. She was immediately taken to the hospital and died Sunday night from concussion of the brain. The individual who caused the accident, a Japanese by the name of Kuwamoto, was placed under arrest and is held pending an investigation of the coronor's jury. He was under the influence of liquor at the time.

The celebration was one of the most brilliant and gorgeous ceremonies ever witnessed in Hilo. A parade of two hundred small children in gaily bedecked Japanese costume through the principal streets of the town preceded the literary and musical exercises which took place at the temple. Geisha dances, songs and dramatics were a part of the program which drew hundreds of followers of the Buddhist faith as well as many strangers, attracted by the beauty of the scene.

LADIES' SOCIAL.

Pythian Knights Gave Pleasing Entertainment.

Spreckels' Hall was crowded Friday night with a large gathering of members, wives, sweethearts and friends of Hilo Lodge No. 7, Knight of Pythias, to enjoy the ladies' social given by that popular organization.

The hall was tastefully decorated with palms and evergreens and during the first part of the evening an excellent program of music and literary exercises was rendered, after which the hall was given up to dancing. W. S. Wise delivered an illustrated lecture on the history and principles of the Pythian order and the strong ties of friendship and fraternalism which unite its members. Miss Amy Williams and Rosie Helbush rendered a piano duet in a pleasing manner and Mrs. J. T. Lewis gave an instrumental solo which was well received. The bagpipes were played by Mr. Robert Forbes, and the Kamehameha Quartette and Hoolulu Club sang several selections which earned repeated encores. At different times during the evening pictures of famous scenes of the world were thrown upon a screen, the stereopticon being operated by J. McNichols. The committee on arrangements consisted of L. Helbush, chairman, L. A. Andrews, N. C. Willfong, Carl Wichert and John Deter.

The history of the order as sketched by Mr. Wise was, in part, as follows:

"The order of Knights of Pythias was founded by the organization of Washington Lodge No. 1, in the City of Washington, D. C., on February 19, 1863.

"The founder, Justus H. Rathbone, was born in October, 1839, and died in December, 1889, being buried in Forest Hill Cemetery at Utica, N. Y. His resting place is marked by a monument erected to his memory by the order which he founded.

"The name of the order was suggested to the founder while attending a theater at which the play 'Damon and Pythias' was being produced, and like most secret societies, its objects are for mutual benefit and protection of its members—its chief teaching being that of friendship.

"The organization owns and maintains at Springfield, Ohio, a Pythian Orphan's Asylum, the value of which is about $350,000 and it annually cares for 250 to 300 orphans of deceased members. The order is fourth in numerical strength in the U. S., its membership being upwards of 500,000.

"Hilo Lodge No. 7 was instituted January 19, 1899, through the efforts of P. C. Fred Waldron, who at that time was manager of the Volcano House. The order has ever since been and now is, in a flourishing condition and have very desirable lodge rooms, occupying the entire third floor of the Baldwin Building."

A Pure Beverage.

The U. S. Government and manufacturers of pure foods and pure beverages are spending a great deal of work, time and money, to show the consuming public the benefit of purity in the above goods.

It is well for the consumers to know just what brands are pure. The best evidence that can be obtained at this writing, is the sworn affidavit of chemists of long experience and reputation.

The Rainier Bottling Works publishes in this issue the sworn affidavit of Edmond O'Neill, Associate Professor of Chemistry in the University of California, as to his strict analysis of Rainier Beer.

COMPLAINT.

PETER HANSON, ET AL,
DEFENDANTS.

AFFIDAVIT OF
EDMOND O'NEILL.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, }
City and County of San Francisco. } ss

EDMOND O'NEILL, being first duly sworn, deposes and says: I am and for the last nineteen years have been Associate Professor of Chemistry in the University of California. Before I became such Associate Professor, I was connected with said University for seven years in the capacity of an instructor in the Department of Chemistry there. I was graduated from said University in the year 1879 as Bachelor of Philosophy, and ever since that time have pursued the study of organic and inorganic chemistry there and at various other places within the United States and also in Europe.

I am thoroughly familiar by study and practice with the methods of analyzing food stuffs, and have had a wide experience in that work.

Upon the 16th day of August, of this year, John G. Rapp, Esq., the manager of JOHN RAPP & SON (a corporation), which I am informed and believe is the agent in this city and County of the SEATTLE BREWING AND MALTING COMPANY, the complainant in the above entitled cause, furnished me with a sample and specimen of the beer manufactured by said Seattle Brewing and Malting Company in the State of Washington and known as "Rainier Beer." I made a thorough examination and analysis of the sample and specimen so furnished me, with the result shown in the following tabulation:

Specific gravity, Temp. 15.50° Cent=60° Fahr.....	1.014
Solid residue. (Malting Extract, etc.).....	4.91 per cent.
Ash.....	.20 "
Carbonic Acid.....	.15 "
Total Acidity (other than Carbonic Acid).....	.024 "
Volatile acids (other than Carbonic Acid).....	.005 "
Alcohol (by volume).....	3.65 "

I applied the usual and proper tests to discover whether or not any of the following antiseptics or preservatives were present in said beer, to wit: Salicylic acid, Benzoic acid, Boracic acid, and Hydrofluoric acid, Salicylates, Borates, Benzoates, Fluorides, Formalin or Formaldehyde. The foregoing comprise the usual antiseptics and preservatives used in beer. I FOUND NONE OF THE AFORESAID ACIDS OR CHEMICALS COMPOUND IN SAID RAINIER BEER.

After making the analysis and the tests herein above referred to, I analyzed and tested two additional samples of "RAINIER BEER," both of which samples were procured by me about a week ago from dealers in said beer doing business in the County of Alameda in this State. The dealers had no reason to suspect or think that I was obtaining the same for any analysis or examination; I am convinced that the samples so obtained were fair samples of said RAINIER BEER. Besides analyzing the samples thus obtained, I applied to said samples the same, or practically the same tests for preservatives and antiseptics that I have previously applied to the sample and specimen obtained from Mr. Rapp, as before stated.

The result of said last mentioned analysis and of the tests made for preservatives and antiseptics was substantially the same as that obtained by me when I analyzed and tested the sample which I had obtained from Mr. Rapp.

It is my judgment, based on said analysis and said tests, and confirmed by all I have heard and seen in regard to said beer, that the same is of good quality, is made from pure malt materials, is brewed in a proper manner, and is of a quality equal to any brewed on this Coast.

(Signed) EDMOND O'NEAL,
Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 21st day of Aug., A. D. 1905.

CZAR OF RUSSIA AND HIS AUTOCRATIC POWER.

The Russian System of Government—Political Divisions—Four Great Governing Boards—The Ministry and Holy Synod—Hotbed of Socialism and Anarchy—Influence of Czar and the Church.

The state of unrest prevailing in Russia makes a study of the political condition of that country interesting to the average reader. Few persons are familiar with the form of the Czar's government, which contains a considerable degree of independence, subject however to the supreme will of the Emperor who can set aside any or all laws. The Czar of Russia is invested with legislative, executive and judicial authority and his edict or ukase is paramount.

The empire is divided into seventy-eight provinces. At the head of each is a governor general who may be a civil or military officer, and he is assisted in the administration of affairs by a council appointed by the minister of the interior. The local affairs in thirty-four of the provinces are intrusted to zemstvos, or assemblies, composed of representatives elected by land owners, house owners and taxpayers. The provinces are divided into parishes, or communes, presided over by starshinas, or "elders," elected by the people, each community having one vote for every ten houses.

The people also elect communal assemblies, which meet at intervals to discuss and decide local affairs, according to their own dispositions. They are very seldom interfered with by the general government, provided that the taxes are paid promptly and the young men report for military service. The tax collector is also elected by the commune, and assesses the people according to his best judgement and ability. He is required to raise a certain sum annually, and he gets it as best he can.

While the government of Russia is an absolute despotism, its administration is entrusted to four great boards, or councils, possessing separate functions and jurisdictions. The highest board is the council of state, established by Alexander I in 1801. It consists of four departments—legislative, ecclesiastical, finance and industry, education, science and commerce. Each department has its separate organization and sphere of duty, but the presidents and members often meet for conference concerning matters of mutual importance and interest. The council does not often originate matters of business, its chief duty being to review and revise legislation submitted to it by the heads of the several departments and to discuss projects brought before it by the ministry, who are members ex-officio. It also approves the budget and schemes of taxation. Practically the council is a legislative body, or a consulting body, without executive authority or final power. It can only recommend to the emperor, who can approve or disapprove the recommendation and adopt, amend or reject them, according to his judgement or personal whims.

The second board is known as the senate—the Russian word is "pravitelstvuyuschy," one of the most formidable in the official dictionary.

The senate was established by Peter the Great and corresponds to the Supreme Court of the United States. It has, however, legislative and executive, as well as judicial, functions. It is composed of lawyers of high rank, appointed by the emperor, and is divided into six departments which have jurisdiction over criminal, civil, commercial, political and other branches of legal practice. The minister of justice is its presiding officer, and its members are supposed to have advisory power in directing the affairs of his department.

The senate supervises all of the courts throughout the empire, is expected to see to the general administration of justice by the local magistrates and to review all new laws proposed by the council of state before they are submitted for the approval of the emperor.

At present the senate is engaged in reorganizing the local courts throughout the empire in introducing a uniform system of procedure based upon the French model. They are preparing a code of laws out of the enormous mass of imperial edicts, legislation and regulations, which have accumulated during the last two centuries or more.

The greater portion of the Russian laws are in the form of edicts, beginning: "I forbid," and ending with the signature of the czar. These are so contradictory, conflicting and ambiguous that it is said to be possible to acquit or convict any person of any crime that may be mentioned, upon any evidence that may be submitted.

At present judges of the higher court throughout the empire are appointed by the minister of justice, but in the villages or communes, justices of the peace are elected by the property owners and upon nominations made by the nobility, and have wide powers of discipline over the peasantry. They are practically autocrats, subject only to the nobles and the priests. They conduct trials each in his own individual way, they make laws and regulations, render judgments and impose penalties as their sense of justice or prejudices may govern them, and are the willing tools of provincial governors, military commandants, large land owners and other persons favored by the throne or by fortune. While the senate is intended to be a court of appeals, it seldom acts in this capacity.

The third board, is the holy synod, presided over by the metropolitan, or highest ecclesiastical authority of the Greek Church, of which the czar is the nominal head just as the Sultan of Turkey is the head of the Mohammedan faith.

The holy synod consists of the several metropolitans, or archbishops, of Russia, and other ecclesiastics. It has jurisdiction over all religious affairs in the empire, including the pay of the clergy, the management of cemeteries, hospitals, parish schools and other ecclesiastical dependencies. There are sixty-one bishoprics, fourteen archdioceses and three metropolitans. The procurator of the holy synod is the executive officer of the church in Russia. He is a member of the ministry, the personal representative of the czar in all ecclesiastical assemblies and functions, and next to the minister of the interior is the most powerful official in the empire.

He can transfer and dismiss, elevate or degrade, imprison or banish, any priest, bishop or other ecclesiastic, acting always in the name of the emperor, but never interferes with theological questions or doctrinal controversies. He exercises the same jurisdiction over all other religious organizations with more or less vigor.

The fourth and most powerful board, or the ministry, consists of fourteen departments, usually presided over by the minister of the interior, whose functions are the most important and whose authority is more far-reaching than any other official.

He is usually spoken of as prime minister of the empire, although such an office and title are officially unknown. The ministry does not often hold joint meetings like the cabinets of other nations, but each minister has his special day to visit the palace for a conference with the emperor, at which time he makes reports and submits matters of business which are interesting to his majesty. The czar is entirely at the mercy of his advisers and knows only what they desire to communicate to him.

Besides these four principal governing boards, the emperor has two private cabinets. One of them consists of the five senior grand dukes, several of the ministers and other high functionaries, whose duties are undefined and merely advisory. He also has a board of almoners, which looks after public charitable institutions and his own private charities.

So it will be seen that the people of Russia have more or less self-government, so long as they submit to higher authority, pay their taxes and render military service.

Conditions differ in various parts of the empire according to the character and treatment of the governors. The nobles and boyars or large land owners have a great deal to do with the happiness and prosperity of the peasants.

The priests, however, exercise the greatest influence. The ordinary Russian peasant is a religious fanatic, loyal to his God and to his Czar. He is a stupid, stolid, stubborn creature and bears his misery without complaint until educated. Then he struggles to break his fetters and becomes socialist and too often nihilist or anarchist. Russia is a hot bed of anarchy and revolution.
