WALLA WALLA WAS RAMMED.

Sank Off Cape Mendocino Probably Eighty Lives Lost.

Eureka, January 3.—A marine disaster that may develop into one of the worst on the Pacific Coast in recent years, occurred early yesterday (Thursday) morning, when the well-known steamer Walla Walla was run down by an unknown bark, believed to fly the French flag, and sank in thirty-five minutes. As the figures stand now 33 of the passengers and 40 of the crew have yet to be accounted for, a total of 73; and 43 of the passengers and 39 of the crew, a total of 82, are known to have been saved. These figures give a total of 155 persons on board when the ill-fated steamer came to her end.

The only positive knowledge of the loss of life is in the case of the boat that finally succeeded in making a landing at Trinidad light late today. This boat was swamped more than once, and each time fewer of its occupants succeeded in getting back into it when it was righted. It started with thirteen men in it and when a landing was made but seven were left. This makes it positive that six men perished in this case alone. The names of those who lost their lives are unknown, with the single exception of a man named Bartell, who was the first to go and was last seen floating away, with no support but an oar, which probably kept him afloat as long as his strength held out, and he then sank.

The collision occurred in the early hours of the morning, and the darkness was intensified by thick weather. The unknown bark loomed up out of the blackness and struck the Walla Walla without a minute's warning, and then drew away and was lost to sight almost immediately. A great hole was torn in the side of the Walla Walla, and she began to fill with great rapidity. Boats and life rafts were lowered immediately, and a large majority of those on board succeeded in getting off on them. A number, however, it is believed, had their escape cut off as a result of the great hole torn in the Walla Walla, and went down with her. Several of the boats and rafts were picked up by the steamer Dispatch after they had been trying to make land for more than twenty-four hours, but the last reports from Eureka were to the effect that two boats and one raft were yet to be accounted for. If they are safe tomorrow should bring news of them.

The Walla Walla, in command of Captain A. L. Hall, left San Francisco at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, bound for Victoria and Puget sound. Wednesday evening the weather was favorable, though the sea was rolling high. About midnight, however, the weather conditions changed and a fog began to rise. Second Officer Luke was in command, the shift being made at 4 o'clock. About 4:10 the passengers were suddenly awakened by a terrible crash on the port side. A French four-masted bark had collided with the Walla Walla, striking her just forward of the captain's stateroom, making a fourteen foot hole in hatch No. 2.

Waiakea Jetty.

The construction of jetties at the mouth of the Waiakea river by the Matson Navigation Company has progressed rapidly under the supervision of R. T. Guard. Mr. Guard says that beneficial results are already apparent. The confined current is cutting away the bar. When the improvement is finally finished, nearly 800 tons of rock will have been used.

BOERS TO CONTINUE WAR.

Botha Urges All Commandos to Keep on Fighting.

Johannesburg, January 3.—General Botha has sent a note to all Boer commandos, requesting them to keep on fighting, for the British Parliament is to be asked for another war vote, which will induce the British nation to demand that war in South Africa be stopped.

Pretoria, Jan. 3.—General De Wet has ordered the Boer commandants to retard the work of extending the British blockhouses at any cost. Further fighting may consequently be expected. General Bruce Hamilton has captured another Boer laager and twenty-two prisoners on the Swaziland border.

London, Jan. 3.—Lord Roberts has issued an official contradiction of the stories circulated on the Continent of the violation of Boer women by the troops in South Africa, and the employment of Boer female refugees for immoral purposes.

Cuba's First President.

Havana, Jan. 2.—The central board of scrutiny has made public the following returns of the election held in Cuba on December 31st: Thomas Estrada Palma, the Nationalist candidate for the Presidency of Cuba, has fifty-five electors, while General Bartolome Maso, the Democratic candidate, who withdrew from the campaign, has eight Electors. Senor Palma secured the unanimous Electoral delegations of the provinces of Pinar del Rio, Havana, Matanzas and Santa Clara and one Elector from Puerto Principe and five Electors from Santiago. General Maso secured three Electors from Puerto Principe and five from Santiago.

The following civil Governors were elected: Perez in Pinar del Rio, Nunez in Havana, Lecuona in Matanzas, Gomez in Santa Clara, Recio in Puerto Principe and Echevarria in Santiago province.

A Frenchman's Gift.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—One million dollars is the sum offered by Robert Lebaudy, the French multi-millionaire, for the establishment of a French industrial school in connection with the University of Chicago. It will be the greatest institution of its kind in the world. The offer was made to President Harper today through Lebaudy's agent, Emile Ridel of the French army.

The new school is to be an integral part of the University of Chicago, and the necessary buildings, for which Lebaudy will furnish the money, will be located on the campus of that institution. Lebaudy also will establish an endowment fund for the maintenance of the school.

President's Reception.

Washington, Jan. 1.—President Roosevelt's first public reception was attended more largely than any New Year's reception in a number of years. In all 8100 persons filed through the White House and shook hands with the President. This is 4400 more than President McKinley received last year. Mr. Roosevelt, on being apprised that the crowd in line outside the White House was unusually large, gave orders that the gates should not be closed until the last person desiring to do so had had an opportunity to pay his respects. The reception began promptly at 11 o'clock, and it was 2:30 o'clock before the last person in line had been presented to the President and a quarter of an hour later before the reception came to an end.

United States at Coronation.

New York, Jan. 3.—A special to the Sun from Washington says: The United States Government intends to participate in the coronation of King Edward VII in a manner befitting the dignity and importance of a great nation. The Administration has determined that the American Navy shall be appropriately represented, and with that end in view more war ships are to be added to the European naval station. Today the cruiser San Francisco was placed in commission at Norfolk, and the intention is to send her to Europe, probably in company with the new battleship Illinois. About February 1st the protected cruiser Olympia, famous as Admiral Dewey's flagship in the battle of Manila bay, will be assigned to the North Atlantic squadron. The cruiser Albany and the gunboat Wilmington, now in European waters, will be the other representatives of the United States Navy on that occasion.

There is a probability that the Brooklyn will also participate in the naval display. She will leave the Asiatic station for home in a few months and her itinerary may be so arranged that, coming by way of the Suez canal, she will join Crowninshield's flag at the naval exercises.

Big Vessels Due.

Two vessels of the American-Hawaiian line are expected this week. Both are from San Francisco. The Hyades should arrive about the 16th and the Hawaiian the day before. The latter vessel arrived in San Francisco on the day the last mail left the Coast. She made the trip from New York in sixty-one days and surprised her agents by appearing several days ahead of schedule time.

The Hawaiian will bring about 2500 tons of freight to Honolulu and will load there and then come to Hilo to discharge and finish her cargo.

An Election Dispute.

Auditor H. C. Austin has disallowed the bills for payment of W. A. Ray, E. W. Estep and J. W. Moanauli, inspectors, and Wm. Ragsdale Kawanoa, clerk, for services at the recent special election in the First Representative District, on the ground that the persons named received regular government salaries at the rate of $1200 a year each. Secretary Cooper has appealed from the Auditor's ruling to the Supreme Court.—Bulletin.

New Powder House.

One of the first acts of Mr. Marston Campbell, Assistant Superintendent of Public Works, on this trip to Hawaii was to arrange for the removal and enlargement of the powder house. The necessity of such a precaution in the interest of public safety in the neighborhood was pointed out in last week's TRIBUNE.

The powder house will be moved a mile further out on the old Puna trail. The magazine as improved will be 16x24 feet and constructed of stone. The work will be commenced in a day or two.

Vancouver, (B. C.) Dec. 29.—Japanese papers received today by the steamer Athenian tell of an attempted assassination of the Emperor by a foreigner named Thorson.

Gives New Life Strengthens the Nerves.

When the blood is impure the whole nervous system becomes poisoned. It is impossible to throw off that terrible depression; and there is no ambition to work. But there is a way whereby you may again be strong and vigorous. Mr. Charles Richardson, of 37 Howick Street, Launceston, Tasmania, sends us his photograph and the following letter:

"Once my arms were covered with sores that were worse than boils. They were deep-rooted in the flesh and caused great suffering. My blood was in an awful condition. At another time I had a severe attack of influenza. I could neither eat, sleep, nor work, and I never expected to recover."

cured me from both of these violent attacks. The first time it took all impurities out of my system; and the last time it built me up and gave me new life. Now I am strong, work hard, and sleep well."

Ayer's Pills are a safe and sure cure for all liver troubles. They are purely vegetable.

THE HAWAIIAN RAIN GOD.

Vengeance Follows two Hoies Who Profane the Sacred Deity.

In the district of Kau, on the Island of Hawaii, there is a large and peculiarly shaped rock standing upright in a gulch near the big volcano, Mauna Loa, about six miles up the mountain from the sea.

This rock rises from the bed of a stony gulch, about ten feet high, and in contour resembles a man squatting down with a blanket or some sort of covering drawn close around him and held in position by his folded arms.

It requires no vivid imagination to discern this resemblance and being at an altitude where the atmosphere is constantly cool, the clouds drifting over from the warm sea are condensed into rain and the stony god receives a cool shower bath nearly every day.

On these accounts, this singular piece of lava has been for all time recognized by the Natives or Kana-kas as Kumauna, a Rain God.

It is supposed to control the precipitation of the whole island and when rain is desired in any particular section the naturally superstitious natives, in their ignorance, appeal in earnest prayer to this generous god to water their taro patches and fill their water holes with drink.

This reverence is an undoubted inheritance, for even that portion of the younger element of the day which possesses a moderately fair English education will not maltreat it in any way, not even by opprobrious epithet or reproachful language of any sort.

On one occasion, in company with Billie Waggie, a German who lived on the Island, I visited this renowned ruler of the clouds and found on arrival a number of natives doing homage to his august deity.

They were down upon their knees around the God with their faces buried in their hands, their bodies bent forward, and they were chanting in the native language of the Hawaiian Islands. As we too, could speak the language fairly well we understood them to be praying for rain.

In addition to the customary leis, they deposited a dime in United States currency and a "ten sen" piece of Japanese money upon the head of the God, as remuneration for the rainfall which they confidently expected would come in response to their invocation.

When they had completed their doleful ceremony and were about to withdraw from the scene, both Waggie and I, climbed upon the god and threw the leis—wreaths of flowers and vines—which they had placed upon its head, to the rocky bottom of the gulch below.

Spying the money we took it in our hands and laughingly said we were going to take it away with us. The natives were horror-stricken at our recklessness and promptly fell upon their knees. They implored us as we loved our lives not to trifle with, so terrible, so almighty a god as this; they said our acts of irreverence might so anger him that he would send a downpour of water which would drown us all before we could get away from the place; that if we took away the money we could not keep it as it would burn out of our pockets for it would grow hotter and hotter as we increased the distance between the god and ourselves.

The latter of course we believed less than anything they had said, and to prove the fallacy of their assertion we mounted our horses and rode away each carrying a piece of the money in a pantaloons pocket.

When we had ridden about a mile and a half and the conversation had drifted far away from the god and his money, we felt, simultaneously, hot spots on our skins in the neighborhood of our pants pockets. Suddenly recalling the statement of the natives we reached quickly for our pockets and at the same time exchanged glances of consummate surprise. But we were too late. The money had burned through our pockets and was gone, and had left a most distinct reminder in the nature of painfully blistered streaks extending from our hips to our feet.

The money fell in high grass which was very dry owing to a long absence of rain between that point and the sea. The grass was quickly ablaze, and we galloped away from it as fast as we could, but the stiff wind which was coming down from the volcano drove the flames so fast after us that our horses were soon in a sweeping run. We were frightened out of our very wits and the horses were soon flying wildly before the angry flames. The grass was rank and dry all the way to the sea where the earth ended in a perpendicular lava bluff, three hundred feet high.

It was indeed an agonizing predicament to be in, the fire was burning so rapidly we dared not veer to the right nor the left, else we would be overtaken and consumed, if we attempted to turn and rush through the fire to the burned district behind, cremation would be the inevitable result and if we leaped over the bluff we would be drowned. Death seemed certain and the horses appeared to realize it as well as ourselves. They became frenzied as well as we, and losing all control of them they flew with the speed of the wind toward a terrible death.

Nearer and nearer we approached the fearful bluff, truly bewildered by the awful mental strain, and the high reaching red tongues of fire gained fast upon us and seemed determined to pursue us to a terrible doom.

At last the dreadful moment came and scorched by the fire which died only at the brink of the precipice, we drew one long and final breath, closed our eyes and plunged head long into the air and down with increasing velocity to the fathomless depths below.

In the descent Waggie's horse turned over, causing him to lose his seat and he struck the water first. My horse went straight down and just before he reached the water my mind seemed to clear up and drawing my feet up to and upon the seat of the saddle I sprang upward into the air with all my might. This made so great a difference in the depth to which I sank in the water that before I was out of breath I had reached the surface again and was swimming to a native fisherman's boat which happened to be near by. Waggie never reappeared.—"Hooanoano."

Remarkable Cure of Croup a Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere of Goodwin, S. D., U. S. A., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—JOHN DEMONT, Inwood, Iowa. For sale

SOME TABOOED AMUSEMENTS.

Sermon Delivered by Rev. Cruzan Sunday Evening.

Text, I. Cor., 7:31—And those that use the world as not abusing it. (The Greek word translated "abusing" means literally using to the full, going to excess in.)

Here is a great principle: God has put man in this beautiful world fitted to supply the needs of his many-sided nature. Man is free to use every good thing, only let him beware of excess.

I want to apply this common sense life rule to amusements, especially to cards, dancing and the theater, which are so sternly tabooed by some Christians.

Good men differ radically as to the right of indulgence in these amusements. One cause for this difference is that, as that bright Methodist, Rev. Edward Eggleston, in his "Roxy" says, we have inherited our opinions from the Puritans. "There may have been good reason in the time of the Stuarts, when amusements and vices were so interwoven that it was impossible to separate them, for wholesale prohibition. This self denial on the part of the Puritans was so akin to religion that it came to be identified with it. When the crisis that drove the Puritans to their extreme position passed away, there was left a set of prohibitions all interwoven with religion, but forming no essential part of it and having no basis in reason or clear thought."

Christians have come to see this, and the most marked change in religious life in the last fifty years has been the revolt against these outworn Puritan prohibitions. Against the stout protest of a dwindling minority who still cling to these seventeenth century tabus, the great mass of Christians have asserted their freedom to use amusements. Two things have led to this change: A new view of religion. The Puritan regarded religion as a restriction, a prohibition, a policeman standing in the way of life to shut and open doors. We have learned that religion is not a set of rules but an inspiration—not a repression but a bringer-in of freedom, of enlargement; that whatever is not evil in itself is for our use, but not to excess. But a still more potent force working to bring about this revolt is the changed conditions of life. Recreation is a necessity to our highly organized, driving, nerve-wearing life. The Puritan life was simple, the pace slow, the wear and tear slight. He did not need play; we must have it, or we break.

You may deplore it but the great mass of Christians have broken away from the old inherited Puritan strictness. The Methodist stands alone among the great churches in retaining a rule prohibiting card playing, dancing and the theater, and at the last General Conference an attempt to repeal that rule had the support of a respectable minority.

In view of the fact that the great mass of Christians have claimed their right of freedom of conscience in the matter of amusements, what is the wise thing for us to do? We should make sharp and clear distinctions. It is still easy for one so inclined, to set up his conscience as the universal standard, and try to enforce the old Puritan prohibitions. It is easy, but useless. It is much more difficult to make clear and sharp distinctions between the innocent use and the harmful abuse of popular amusements. Unless our restrictions rest on reason they will have no weight.

This is not always the case. We make distinctions sometimes where there is no difference. For example, dominoes can be found in many homes where cards would be looked upon with horror. Why? "Cards are games of chance." So are dominoes. "Cards are gambler's tools, and are found in saloons." So are dominoes; you can find men gambling with them in every low dive. Many card games can be played with dominoes. In a certain district in these islands a short time ago there was a series of domino parties where the game of euchre was played, and the minister, an earnest, devoted, spiritual young man, entered into them heartily. It was all right, because the game of euchre was played with dominoes. But if he had played the same game with cards wouldn't it have been awful! It seems to me that we ought not to make any such senseless distinctions; and that it ought to be easy to see that while excessive card playing, to the neglect of one's work, or the squandering of time, or the playing for any stake is wrong, a game now and then in the home circle, or with friends, may be harmless recreation.

And just so in regard to dancing. I have heard of this argument against dancing: Herodias danced and pleased Herod; because her dancing pleased Herod he granted her petition; she asked for the head of John the Baptist; John the Baptist lost his head through dancing; therefore dancing is a sin! This is about as logical as the argument for dancing: David danced before the Lord; therefore I can dance until 4 o'clock in the morning! We forget that David danced without a partner. I suppose the veriest Puritan would not object to the young men of Hilo dancing in that way, for he would be sure they would not carry it to excess.

There is dancing and dancing. It certainly ought to be easy to discriminate between dancing all night, and dancing for an hour or two; between the promiscuous dance of the public ball room, where a pure girl may be whirled around the room in the arms of a libertine, and the quiet, seemly dance of the home circle, or the private party, made up of known friends.

And so also in regard to the theater: Call a play a charade, rig up a temporary stage in a church lecture room, have the play poorly or indifferently acted by amateurs, and it is all right! But to go to a theater and witness a clean play well acted is awful!

As Rev. Wolcott Fay, of Boston, says: "There are theatres and theatres, plays and plays, and actors and actors. All are not alike. There are theatres careful to admit nothing indecent. There are plays pure, elevating, healthful, stimulating—plays that impress the nobility of honesty, the value of chastity, the beauty of domestic life, and the folly, curse, and punishment of sin. Such plays never degrade, they uplift. They are sermons. What a preacher Shakespeare was! There is as great a distance between a play like Hamlet, or Macbeth, or The Old Home-stead, and scores more that could be named, and The Black Crook as there is between a work of Thackeray or Dickens and a vile French novel. We discriminate between novels; why not between plays? Because we will not corrupt the imagination with the rottenness of bad novels, do we argue that it is a sin to read good novels?"

Our grandfathers did—and even a later generation put all novels under the ban. I never saw a novel in my father's house; I doubt if he ever read one until after he was fifty. Well do I remember, thirty years ago, the sharp reproof of a good deacon who found me reading "John Halifax, Gentleman." "What! you, a Christian! reading a novel! You'd better read your Bible!" It was not many years ago that the novel was under the ban just as emphatically as the theater. Now Christian people have learned to discriminate—to place the ban only on the impure and the trashy, and to use the CITIZENS and residents of the United States will sharpen their conception of the American Constitution by a careful perusal of the decision of Judge Little printed on this page.

REV. J. A. CRUZAN's sermon, delivered last Sunday night at the First Foreign Church and published in this issue, has the ring of bold sincerity too notably absent in pulpits.

KITCHEN CABINET.

It is stated in the reports of the Executive Council that that body has decided all land on the Volcano road shall be reserved for residence lots rather than farms. What a lovely boulevard it will be when lined on either side with brown stone mansions. The policy should be pushed by the Kitchen Cabinet while the Volcano road is smooth. A rain at any time might make it an undesirable highway on which to build a city home.

The same report has it that a settlement association application for Puna lands was turned down on account of the proximity of the tract to Hilo and the probability that it might be required for public purposes.

Thus doth the Kitchen Cabinet legislate.

Decision of Judge Little on Question of Constitution and Flag.

The Constitution and the Flag have had their innings in Judge Little's Court.

Carl Smith, of the firm of Smith & Parsons, for the defendant Ah Quong, indicted by the Grand Jury on the charge of rape, presented a Plea in Bar Wednesday to the indictment on the ground that his client was being twice put in jeopardy for the same offense. Ah Quong was indicted by a Circuit Judge of this Circuit, tried and convicted and given a life sentence at the regular January term, 1899, upon a charge of rape, on a female child under the age of ten years. He was confined in jail on the island of Oahu, from which he was released by the Hon. Geo. D. Gear, second judge of the First Circuit. Coming home the defendant was regularly indicted by the Grand Jury, January 4, inst.

Argument on the Plea in Bar was exhaustive and able, Carl Smith arguing for defendant, John W. Cathcart for the prosecution.

The decision of Judge Little overruled the pleading of the defendant holding the prisoner for trial upon the Grand Jury indictment. The decision holds that the provisions of the Constitution of the United States took effect in these Islands, August 12, 1898, pursuant to the Newlands Resolution of annexation. After stating the case and setting forth the terms of the Newlands Resolution, the decision of Judge Little says:

Pursuant to the provisions of the above Resolution, the President permitted the civil officers of Hawaii to execute their tenure of office under the laws of Hawaii, "not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States or of this Act," "until Congress shall provide for the Government of such islands."

Subsequently and further in pursuance thereof, the transfer of the sovereignty was consummated in due form August 12, A. D. 1898. Since that time we have been a Territory of the United States of America. There was such an absolute completeness in all the essentials to and surrounding the transfer of the Hawaiian sovereignty to the United States of America; that had the enlightened friends of this Territory, who were charged with the execution, interpretation and enforcement of our laws, "not insistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States and of this Act," spent as much time and labor in their effort "to support, defend, and bear true faith and allegiance to the Constitution and laws of the United States" as they have in their effort to weaken, evade and render nugatory its plain provisions, a ruling on the questions here presented would not at this late date be necessary by this or any other tribunal in this Territory.

By the Act of Annexation we became a Federal Territory, not a jural society, such as a State or nation.

The position of the Territories, in our system of government, is somewhat analogous to that of Colonial dependencies, though it finds no exact parallel in past or even in contemporary history. Territories are not States of the Union. They do not possess full powers even of local government. They are subject to the exclusive jurisdiction and legislation of the Congress of the United States, although they are practically entrusted with a considerable measure of authority in respect to the government of their purely local affairs. The principal officers are appointed by the President of the United States and the acts of their legislative assemblies are liable to be over-ruled or annulled by the Federal legislature.

The principle that as a Territory we could exercise any power not granted to us by the terms of the Newlands Resolution or could evade any of its plain terms by judicial interpretation or otherwise, has always been too apparent to require more than a reference to our enumerated powers under the Act of Annexation.

When the sovereignty of Hawaii passed "absolutely and without reserve" to the United States it was forever and complete. There can be but one unqualified national sovereignty in relation to any of the Powers. For, as all authority over foreign relations and affairs is confided to the national government, it follows as a necessary consequence that all such authority is denied to the States or Territories. The sovereignty of the United States resides in the people, who exercise it through the Constitution of the United States. In Vanhorne's Lesse vs. Dorrance, 2 Dall, 304, it is held to be the duty of the Court to examine into the constitutional validity of every statute brought fairly before them as applicable to a pending controversy; and if they find such statute to be in contravention of the Constitution they must pronounce it a nullity and no law.

We are therefore brought to the consideration of the section of the Statute under which the defendant was formerly convicted.

Prior to August 12, 1898, Sec. 616 of Chapter 57 of our Penal Laws was in force. The section reads as follows:

"The necessary bill of indictment shall be duly prepared by a legal prosecuting officer and be duly presented to the presiding judge of the court before the arraignment of the accused, and such judge shall after examination certify upon each bill of indictment whether he finds the same a true bill or not."

The crime for which the defendant was tried and convicted was an infamous one. He was tried under the provisions of Sec. 616 of the Hawaiian Penal Statute, notwithstanding the Constitution of the United States was in force and effect here, and has been at every moment of time since Aug. 12, 1898. The Fifth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States reads as follows:

"Every offense, the punishment of which is capital or infamous must be presented by a Grand Jury on indictment before the party can be tried."

Sec. 616 above referred to is clearly in conflict with the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution hereinbefore quoted. To try the defendant under that section was illegal and void. The Court had clearly no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant and he shall not have been twice in jeopardy if he be tried upon this indictment.

A man is considered to have been put in jeopardy when a valid and sufficient indictment has been legally found against him by a Grand Jury (if for an infamous offense) and duly presented to a Court of competent jurisdiction over both the person and the offense; and thereupon he has pleaded and a lawful jury has been impaneled and sworn to try the cause and render a verdict. And such proceeding is not "due process" unless the same be in pursuance of a legal judgment by a court of competent jurisdiction. Davison vs. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97. Millet vs. The People, 117 Ill. 294.

The decisions of our Territorial Supreme Court may be adopted but do not bind this Court on any question involving the construction of the Federal Constitution or laws of the United States. Commonwealth vs. Mongahela Nav. Co., 2nd Pa. 372. Neal's Lessee vs. Green 1st, McLain 18 Fed. No. 1065.

I have not forgotten that a section of my oath of office reads as follows: "And I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully support and defend the laws of the United States, etc. That I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same. That I take this obligation freely and without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion, etc."

The same oath was required to be taken by all persons holding public office Aug. 12, 1898, and if I were to sustain this Plea in Bar or the demurrer interposed to the Replication, in my view of the law I would be a proper subject for an investigation by the Grand Jury for a wilful violation of my oath of office, or by the Senate of the United States for official malfeasance.

"To support and defend the Constitution of the United States" surely means that we should not flagrantly violate its plain provisions. It seems to me to mean that we are not permitted to go on a tour of speculative mental exploration for the purpose of destroying the legal status of our own official existence, with a deliberate intention to tear down or impair the grandest political edifice extant. The Annexation Treaty was made and the ratification duly exchanged by authority of Congress by virtue of the power given it by the Constitution. Congress provided in that Treaty that all laws, etc., "not inconsistent with the Constitution, etc.," might remain in force until it acted. The President directed a continuance of the civil officers during his pleasure by virtue of his constitutional power. We were not subjugated or conquered or acquired as a result of military conquest. We deliberately entered into a civil contract or act of cession with the United States whereby for a valuable consideration we in due form "transferred our sovereignty absolutely and without reserve" and duly ratified this Treaty as required by law. And having done so deliberately with a full knowledge of all that the proceeding meant and with a perfect understanding of all of its terms we entered into the execution of this contract under and by virtue of its provisions on Aug. 12, 1898.

If the inhabitants of Florida and the residents of other portions of our national domain did not raise the question as to their legal rights it may have been a waiver on their part. A reference, however, to contemporaneous history clearly shows that the Florida cession was entirely dissimilar to that of Hawaii. The rights they possessed were whatever the terms of their contract of purchase gave them. We agreed in our contract of annexation that we would work under laws "not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States."

Our rights were clearly defined. And it illy becomes us to be continually endeavoring to avoid its plain terms. It would be rather anomalous to say the least for a judicial officer to swear to support and defend and bear true faith in allegiance to the Constitution and laws of his country and then be the first to deliberately break them by an opinion the conclusions of which of necessity must be reached through forced and unnatural channels. By the history of our Act of Annexation we easily reach the unquestionable conclusions that the Constitution of the United States has been here every moment of time since Aug. 12, 1898. No lapse of time will change it. No jugglery of words shall obscure or weaken its force if loyal lips and works and words can give it eternal significance. No spurious gospel of sentimentalism predicated upon purely speculative reasoning shall sweep from us the value of one hundred years of beneficial constitutional experience, or heedlessly destroy the ancient wise and time honored constitutional safeguard to personal liberty, viz: That of a presentment by a Grand Jury, and a trial by a jury of "twelve good men and true."

No transition period ever existed in this Territory. See House Document 509; containing the Insular cases heard in the United States Supreme Court, 1900. And in my view of the law every line and letter of the Constitution of the United States whether it applied here ex proprio vigore or not was expressly placed in control by the terms of our instrument of cession, which provided that all laws in Hawaii, etc., "not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States" were to be and remain in force until Congress should provide for its government. To decide otherwise would be clearly sophistical. This Court had no jurisdiction to try the defendant under Sec. 616 of the Penal Laws of 1897. In this view of the law this Court is sustained by the decision of Hon. Morris M. Estee of our United States District Court in the matter of the application of Osake Mankichi for a writ of habeas corpus; By Mr. Justice Galbraith of our Territorial Supreme Court in ex parte Edwards, 13, Haw. page 13; and by Hons. H. S. Humphreys and Geo. D. Gear, First and Second Judges respectively of the First Circuit Court of this Territory.

That the Constitution took effect here immediately upon the exchange of ratification of the Newlands Resolution. By the plain terms of that Act of Cession has not since that time been an open question, in this Territory, and where that sublime document is in force there it must be obeyed, and time has not been in this Territory since Aug. 12, 1898, when it was within the power of any Territorial Court to construe away from our citizens the beneficent protection of its wise provisions.

There are certain fundamental principles from which a free people ought never to depart, to-wit: A strict observance of justice and public faith. And the judges of this Territory are held to the strictest accountability not only by their oath of office but by the people and by the principles of good government to a strict maintenance of these principles. To what quarter will the citizen look for protection from an infringement on his Constitutional rights if not to the Courts of this land? And for the judge of this Court so to construe the plain provisions of our Act of Annexation so as to deprive anyone of his sacred constitutional right would be as grave a violation of his oath of office and the result would be as mischievous to the general welfare of society, to the extent and influence of the Court rendering it, as if he were to order the citizens of his judicial district to fire upon the United States flag.

In my judgment it is the solemn sacred duty of the courts of this Territory in all proper cases where these questions arise to keep the old loyal landmark of Constitutional Liberty clearly and sharply defined. Therefore, the demurrer to the Replication of the Territory interposed by the defendant must be over-ruled. The Replication of the Territory is sustained and the Defendant must be ready for trial under this indictment.

TEACHER'S MEET AGAIN.

Greek Architecture and the Poems of Bryant Are Discussed.

Notwithstanding the threatening weather on last Tuesday night the attendance at the Teacher's Union was larger than usual. The meeting was the first since the Holidays, and more than thirty teachers were present.

The program was an excellent one, and was heartily enjoyed by the teachers. The subjects dwelt upon were Greek Architecture and the Life of Bryant. The first paper read was a paper on Current Events by H. I. Cruzan. Miss Helen Severance followed with an address on Greek Architecture, placing her subject before her listeners in a clear and logical manner that was quite delightful. Miss Deyo, Miss Coan and Miss Potter followed with short talks on Greek geography. The former took the general geography as her topic, the latter enlarged on the beauties of Attica, while Miss Coan gave some facts in regard to Thessaly and its people.

Mrs. Levi Lyman followed with the address on the evening of William Cullen Bryant. Beginning with his childhood Mrs. Lyman gave a charming sketch of the poet's life up to his sixteenth year. A description by Bryant of his boyhood home was read by Miss Akama. Miss Deyo read "The Rivelet," and Miss Hansen followed with a short reading. Miss McCord also gave one of Bryant's poems. Mrs. Lyman gave several of his political poems which concluded the evening's entertainment. The reading of "Thanatopsis" by Mrs. Cruzan had to be omitted through lack of time.

Resume of Courts.

The past week has been an active one in the Fourth Circuit Court and the Criminal sheaves that were ripe for the harvest have been for the most part gathered in. Out of about fifty-five cases upon this department of the terms [calendar all but two have been disposed of. These two are the Territory vs. Kawagichia Paurekichi, a Japanese charged with extortion; and the Territory vs. Ah Quong charged with rape which is continued to the June term on account of the question involved being a Constitutional one which is already before the Supreme Court of the United States on an appeal from Judge Este's Court.

The following is a resume of the disposal of the other Criminal Cases taken up since the TRIBUNE last week to press. Territory of Hawaii vs. Kopolani and Kainoa, two boys charged with burglary in breaking and entering the office of the Hilo Market Co. and stealing therefrom $24. The jury found the defendants not guilty. Lim Hin, for assaulting with intent to murder seventeen companions in a camp at Papekahi by putting paris green in their tea, was found guilty by the jury and sentenced to a term of ten years at hard labor.

In the Territory of Hawaii vs. Mrs. Ross, selling spirituous liquors without a license the prosecution fell down badly in attempting to sustain their case. Marston Campbell gave a spy for the purpose of buying liquor from Mrs. Ross, was found in and taken from the till of the defendant by the officers making the arrest. This money the Government attempted to put in evidence, which evidence was objected to by Mr. Wise, attorney for the defense on the ground that it was opposed to the Constitutional provision relative to making a defendant testify against himself. In this objection Mr. Wise was sustained by the Court.

J. Nahi Kumuhon of Puna was sentenced to three years at hard labor for abducting another man's wife. Ah Moon steward on the Kinau was fined $150 for selling opium without a license. Defendant appealed.

Nagayama Gingua, pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary and was sentenced one year.

Monido Monio and J. M. Rodriguez got five years for assault with intent to rob.

Chan Kee, for embezzling $186 was fined $500.

A few very handsome chairs, upholstered in leather and velvet, have just been opened by E. N. Holmes.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Hilo Library last Saturday evening, the sum of $75 was appropriated for the purchase of new books. Useful improvements in the library room were also arranged for.

There will be an AUCTION SALE of Dry Goods damaged by water, at the old L. B. Kerr Co. store, the sale will begin at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, and last until the lot is closed out, come early and get bargains.

Harry Rycroft, well known in Hilo is reported by his father as prospering at Manila. He is general agent for an Extensive Tobacco Manufacturing. C. G. Campbell who accompanied Mr. Rycroft to the Philippines is the star reporter on the staff of the Manila Freedom.

The stone building on J. G. Serrao's lot on Bridge street is about finished. The exterior finish makes it the most striking business block in the city. It shows what may be done architecturally with the building materials available in Hawaii. Mr. Serrao is to be congratulated for giving the community an object lesson in building.

George Mumby Hart, proprietor of the Enterprise Planing Mill, was seriously hurt at the mill last Monday. He was operating a sticker machine used in gutting siding. A loose bolt allowed a four pound knife to escape from the wheel on which it was revolving 3600 times a minute. The flying instrument struck Mr. Mumby on the right side of the head inflicting a wound that will keep him in the hospital some time. Yesterday Mr. Mumby was feeling very much elated over his improved condition.

DOCK WILL BE BUILT.

Phillip Peck Returns from Successful Interview With Officials.

Mr. Phillip Peck of the First Bank of Hilo returned by the last Kinau with the information that a complete understanding had been arrived at between the Hilo Dock Company and the government officials at Honolulu. There is now no obstacle in the way of the progress of the big dock.

Mr. Peck's visit to Honolulu was for the purpose of interviewing the Territorial officials regarding the dock. He says that the plans of the company were approved, and that he found the officials willing to do all that had been asked of them. The enterprise now is upon a good business footing and the actual construction will presumably go forward. A meeting of the members of the dock company will be held in a short time at which various questions will be decided.

Polo Reviving.

Polo, that king of sports has at last given promise of a flourishing existence in Hilo. The popular pastime which has been showing only mediocre signs of life has at last budded out into an enthusiastic reality. Two full fledged teams have at last been picked and exciting and interesting sport will hereafter be the rule on Saturday afternoons. Polo has every thing in its advantage to make it a very enjoyable form of amusement in Hilo. To begin with Hilo has no regular Saturday sport so that an amusement of this kind every week would meet a long felt want in the community. The grounds of Hoolulu Park are so arranged that viewing the game from a carriage would be not only a matter of ease but of decided enjoyment.

Those who play polo in Hilo are, Prouty, Balding (2), Guard, Kennedy, Grace, Scott and Elgin. Efforts are being made to increase the membership of the clubs but the material now at the disposal of the players is sufficient to make up two rattling good teams. Two combinations made up on the following lines would need an authority on the sport to pick the winners.

No. 1—Prouty (captain), Guard, Elgin, and W. T. Balding. No. 2—Kennedy, (captain), Scott, Grace, and Balding.

Prouty has by far the best horse of the outfit for the heat follows the ball well and gets the spirit of the game. Kennedy's horse as soon as it gets over the sulks will be an animal that will be hard to beat. Balding has a fair horse but more training will improve the beast. All the others are fairly well mounted.

Supreme Court and Constitution.

An important Hilo case was decided by the Supreme Court last week, showing that august body has at last become convinced that the Constitution of the United States has arrived in Hawaii. It was the case of the Territory vs. Wing Tung, convicted by the District Magistrate here for having illegally in his possession wine and liquors. At the time of the trial, defendant's attorney, Wise and Nicksen, demurred to the information on the ground that the seizure was illegal and unwarranted and in violation of the 4th and 5th amendments to the Constitution of the United States, relating to unreasonable seizure of private property. The demurrer was overruled and the trial proceeded.

The Supreme Court on appeal reversed the decision on the grounds stated.

Comes Back for Re-trial.

Last week a decision was rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of Paakiki vs. Owaanui, action in ejectment, reversing the decision of the Fourth Circuit. In the trial below the plaintiff introduced deed showing complete chain of title from the Royal patentee to himself. Afterward in the trial, the plaintiff offered to show a conveyance of the property from the royal patentee to one, Kaalii. To this, the defendant objected and was sustained by the Court. The Supreme Court held that while it was not necessarily error for the lower court to rule out the deed, still the failure of the court to instruct the jury that the plaintiff had proved good title in himself, is held sufficient to warrant a new trial. Magoon and Thompson for plaintiff; Smith and Parsons for defendant.

Olaa Athletics.

Manager McStocker of the Olaa plantation has been interviewed by some of the lovers of sport at Nine-Mile, with the result that the latter are elated over the outlook at that place. Mr. McStocker promises cooperation in the building of a gymnasium and reading room to be open evenings and Sundays. He has also said he would do something to encourage baseball, if sufficient interest is shown by the young men. Embert M. Brown, now located at Nine-Mile, believes he can make up an Olaa nine that will be able to give Hilo teams cards and spades.

Campbell to Maui.

Marston Campbell returned from Laupahoehoe where he went to oversee the beginning of the work of repairing the washed out culverts and bridges. He found that the Maui had landed at Papeaia, just one week from the day on which the Department of Public Works received the Road Board's requisition, a cargo of materials, which will make the road from Honohina to Laupahoehoe as good as new. The Department has acted with military promptness and the work will go forward with alacrity.

SOME TABOOED AMUSEMENTS.

good and the pure novels. Perhaps the day will come when we will be as wise in regard to the theater. What we need to do, not only in regard to amusements, but all things, is to make sure that our theories rest on reason and common sense, and that we make clear and right distinctions.

Let me put plainly certain cautions in the use of the freedom which this text gives to every man: 1. In exercising your right to use amusements be very sure that you keep them in their right place. They are for your re-creation, to re-plenish your wasted strength, to refresh your tired, fretted spirit. Amusements are not the end; they are to re-create you, so that you can go back to your work with renewed energy. Work is the privilege of every man; that is the main thing. If you have no work you have no right to amusement, no right to food, shelter, raiment, no right in this universe. You are a parasite, an intruder. If you have some honest work to do you have a right to just as much amusement as will fit you to do your work well, and no more. When your play interferes with your work it is an evil, a wrong, no matter what the play is, whether dancing or dominoes, cards or croquet.

2. Guard against excess in amusements. That is the sharp point of the text: "Use the world, but not to excess." Be on your guard lest your amusements make excessive drafts on your purse, your time, your strength. Here is the great danger in those fascinating recreations, cards and dancing. I have wondered as I have studied our Hilo social life, if some people had not made the mistake of regarding these as the end of life, while work was a grudging incident. Are not some of you wasting your time and your strength—changing your recreation into exhaustion? It may be possible to dance an hour or two without ill effect, but to dance all night is not recreation, it is dissipation. At the end of such a dancing debauch do you feel refreshed and invigorated for your work? Such folly is an outrage upon your body; it puts a mortgage on your strength, which nature will relentlessly foreclose.

3. Bring this matter of indulgence in amusements to the bar of your own conscience. "Is it right for you to dance, to play cards, to go to the theater?" That is a question no church, no minister, no friend, no man has a right to decide for you, much less to dictate to you what you shall do. You are free, a son, a daughter of God. You have your own life to live, the prize of manhood, womanhood to gain. Are you striving to win? If you are prepared to abandon the struggle for mastery, you can do as you like. But if you mean to win, then you must bring every amusement to the bar of conscience: "Will this help me, or hinder me?" A pure amusement, rightly used, will help you; abused it will hinder you. God's word does not settle details for us in this thing, or anything. It lays down broad principles, and leaves us free in the application. The principle which should govern us in every amusement is very plain: "Does this help me? Does it increase my strength of body and soul?" If it does you are free to use it. "Does it injure me? Does it weaken me physically, mentally, morally?" Yes? Then you cannot as a Christian, you cannot as a man, afford to indulge in it.

SEED CANE TESTS.

Tops of Cane Prove Equally as Successful as Full Joints.

The local bureau of the Department of Agriculture as well as several prominent sugar planters have recently secured some valuable information from the mainland in regard to the work now being carried on at the experimental station in Louisiana.

Various methods have been thoroughly tested in deciding upon a proper seed cane. The discovery made at the southern experimental station has demonstrated that the tops of cane have proven as successful as the fully developed joints that were formerly used.

It is further stated, by those in charge of the Louisiana Experimental Station, that they have found out that fully as good results are obtained by using the tops of the cane. Heretofore the tops have been thrown away, being deemed entirely worthless, and the theory that only the fully developed eyes of the stalk make good seed has been widespread. In that section the tops have never come into use as seed, it being deemed absolutely necessary to plant the fully developed joints in order to produce success of the Louisiana Experiment Station will doubtless open the eyes of farmers in that section to the extent that the production of the crop will be still further cheapened.—Republican.

JUDGE ESTEE COMING.

Will Open January Term of Court
Wednesday, 29th.

Judge Morris M. Estee, of the United States District Court at Honolulu, will arrive in Hilo by the Kinau January 29, for the purpose of presiding at a January term of the Federal Court. Judge Estee had intended to arrive in Hilo a week previous to the convening of his Court on the 29th, but has been so occupied with the Pearl Harbor land condemnation proceedings that he will start for Hilo one week later than he had planned.

He will open Court in the Circuit Courtroom on the evening of January 29, immediately after the arrival of the Kinau. All persons having business in the Federal Court this term should bear this in mind.

Settlement Associations.

There was a protracted session of the Executive Council last week at which land matters on this island consumed most of the time.

Commissioner Boyd obtained the lion's share of attention for business in his department. It related mostly to settlement associations.

John T. Baker wanted 1800 acres at Twenty-nine Miles, Olaa, near Peter Lee's association, for nine persons. It was recommended that his application be granted with a year in which to perfect the association.

C. Moore applied for ninety-six acres for an association of ten people, the land being lots 4 and 5 in Puna. His application was denied, as the land, being near Hilo, might be required for public purposes.

Otto Rose had his application approved for 1600 acres at Nine Miles, Olaa, the association having eight members.

F. Brughelli's application for 1800 acres for nine persons at Twenty-five Miles, Olaa, was turned down, the Council deciding that the land, being on the Volcano road, should be reserved for residence lots rather than farms.

Instructions Sent.

Acting Secretary J. D. Avery, of the Republican Territorial Committee, wrote to Messrs. McStocker, Estep and Walker by yesterday's steamer, conveying the decision of the committee that they should come together and elect a man to their District committee in place of Mr. Gibb, resigned, and advising them, when this is done, that all four should elect a member to fill Mr. Gibb's place on the Territorial committee.—Bulletin.

An Attack of Pneumonia Warded Off.

"Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for the past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annotto Bay, Jamaica, West India Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. Sold by Hilo Drug Company.

Why not look young? There's genuine pleasure in holding back Father Time fifteen or twenty years. You can do it easily with Ayer's Hair Vigor, for it gives all that dark and rich look to the hair which belongs to young life.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

You know the story—how good Queen Bess, pointing to the beautiful hair of a peasant girl, said, "There's a real royal crown. I would trade my golden one for it." That was long ago. Now you can have a "real royal crown" of your own, simply by using Ayer's Hair Vigor. It makes the hair grow thick and long and stops it falling out. When your hair is rich and heavy, and when the closest inspection fails to detect a single gray hair, you will certainly look a great deal younger, and you will be much better satisfied with yourself, too. Isn't that so?

RODERICK DHU IS SPEEDY.

December Trip to Frisco Was on Steamship Time.

The Roderick Dhu's last trip to the Mainland was so near a record maker that the story in the Examiner will be read with interest:

Captain Johnson, on the American bark Roderick Dhu, had almost beaten the sailing record between the Hawaiian Islands and this port when adverse winds blew his vessel out from her course and away to the northward.

The record is nine days. Coming up from Hilo, the Roderick Dhu logged from 300 to 350 miles a day during the first five days. Then she was within 700 miles of San Francisco, and Captain Johnson confidently expected to complete his run in seven days. At the beginning of the sixth day, however, a dead calm came on, and it was another case of

"Where—where was Roderick then?"

The calm was of short duration, but it was succeeded by strong head winds. Captain Johnson put about and stood as far north as 41 degrees, which is about the latitude of Eureka. He was compelled to beat all the way back, and so his voyage was lengthened out into fourteen days.

Off Eureka last Monday the Roderick Dhu spoke the French bark Genevieve Molinos, now 122 days out from Havre for this port, coming in ballast, and the American bark S. C. Allen, already twenty-four days on the way from Honolulu. Captain Lemaitre of the Genevieve Molinos is a stranger on this coast, and when spoken by the Roderick Dhu he asked for information about the prevailing winds and the weather probabilities. Captain Johnson, on whose bark is a complete cold storage plant, got a small boat in readiness to send a side of beef, some mutton, pork and vegetables to the Frenchman, who had been four months at sea. Just as the boat was being lowered, however, a brisk wind blew up, and the Genevieve Molinos squared away and put out to sea.

There were five passengers on the Roderick Dhu, including Dr. and Mrs. Blake of Honolulu. Many persons are coming up from the Islands on the sailing vessels, but most of them came on crafts that started ahead of the Roderick Dhu, in order to be sure of getting here before Christmas. Captain's Johnson's bark, however, has beaten the fleet, which includes the bark St. Katherine, now nineteen days out from Hilo; the bark S. C. Allen, twenty-four days out from Honolulu; the bark Santiago and Mohican, Loth out nineteen days; the bark Mauna Ala, out eighteen days, and the schooner W. H. Marston, out seventeen days, all the latter vessels being from Honolulu.

BUCHOLTZ TALKS FARMING.

Variety of Crops That Can be Raised at a Profit on Hawaii.

Franz Bucholtz, the well known farmer whose plantation at Kona, Hawaii, is the pride of the Islands, is in the city, and made an extended call at the offices of the agricultural experiment station and commissioner of agriculture yesterday. He talked enthusiastically of the success of small farming on a large scale, and is convinced that not only can almost any crop be successfully cultivated in the Islands, but at a profit as well. He has but lately formed this opinion of the success of small farming as a financial venture, but his farm in Kona is a growing example of agricultural success in Hawaii. The chief difficulty which confronts the small farmer in Hawaii, is the expense of marketing his crop, and this is attributed by Mr. Bucholtz to the middlemen in Honolulu, as well as to exorbitant freight charges. Since his visit to Honolulu this time, Mr. Bucholtz has been more successful, and stated yesterday that he had secured the services of a middleman who would handle the products of his farm; which would allow him some profit. "The Honolulu middleman wants to get rich all at once," said Mr.

Bucholtz yesterday. "They are not satisfied with a profit of 20 per cent, but it must be 200 per cent. Then they fear the coming of home-grown products to this market. It is liable to reduce the cost to the consumer, and that means smaller profits for the middleman again. The freight rates, too, are high, but I have made arrangements for the handling of some of the products in Honolulu now, and it will pay a small profit. As it is, I raise only things for my own use, and as I am by myself, it doesn't take much to supply the demand. I have about 270 acres, and 400 more under lease.

"Everything grows well in our district, and there appears to be no limit to the crops that can be raised. Cabbage, celery and cauliflower can be picked all the year around. The celery is of the finest quality. It may remain in the ground a year or more, and that doesn't appear to affect its quality in the slightest. Cabbage the same way; it may be planted in summer, winter, fall or spring and grows to enormous size—two feet in diameter, and has the quality to rattoon. Potatoes, the same way; I have planted them four times in succession on the same piece of ground, and they cost but half a cent a pound.

"Artichokes, parsley, parsnips, carrots and red beets grow the year round, and lima beans have to be gathered every week. Cucumbers, turnips and tomatoes are all growing on my farm, and are doing finely. The melon was first attacked by the melon fly, but it doesn't grow well at my elevation. Peas do not pay, though they grow readily. However, they must be picked right away, as they ripen too quickly, sometimes in six weeks.

"Some more of the things that may be grown here? I guess pretty near everything that grows anywhere, can be successfully grown in Kona. Besides the things I have mentioned, I have growing corn, onions, radishes, leeks, eggplants, lettuce, peppers, squashes, pumpkins, strawberries, raspberries, gooseberries, currants, apples, pears, almonds, walnuts, olives, prunes, cherries, peaches, apricots, oranges, limes, alligator pears, grapes, figs, pineapples, dill, lavender, marjoram, sage, thyme, peppermint, mangoes, papaya, wheat, barley, corn, alfalfa, oats, blue grass, in fact, everything can be grown there, and is growing on my farm now.

"Onions grow to a thickness of three or four inches, and are of the finest quality, yet I have been offered but a cent and a half to two cents a pound here in Honolulu, and they sell for five and six cents. Eggs I was offered but nineteen cents a dozen for—one shipment I made, and two dozen were broken en route. Other produce I have shipped to Honolulu, and the middleman says he could not sell it. Now my arrangements are with a man who says he will give away the stuff if compelled to, just to make the people see what can be raised here. I don't see why small farming should not pay in Hawaii, and some day the middlemen will be sorry that they treated us as has been done."

Mr. Bucholtz will probably remain in the city for ten days before his return to Hawaii.—Advertiser.

ROOSEVELT'S IRON HAND.

New Methods in the Distribution of Patronage in All Parts of Union.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—The events of the present week have emphasized and broadened the President's policy as to patronage. His announcement that he will make judicial appointments himself, but be glad of recommendations and advice, is of highest importance. It means that judicial appointments are not to be used to pay political debts of Senators, and that the President, after consultation with his Attorney General, will decide who of those presented to him deserve appointment. The President fully understands the necessity of a judiciary of the highest standard, and proposes to maintain that standard, even if, by doing so, he seems to prefer one Senator over another. The question of Senatorial influence is not to be regarded, only the question as to what lawyer, no matter by whom recommended, comes nearest to filling the requirements of a Federal judge.

This policy is practically the same as that governing military promotions, which was announced some time ago, when the President let it be known, to the displeasure of several Senators, that he proposed to make his promotions upon the service records of the officers of the army. And he does not regard seniority in rank as giving preference in making selections for line officers, where the law does not give seniority the call. The question in his mind is as to the fitness and capacity of officers whose names are brought to his attention, and the fact that an officer has youth, with the steadiness and experience which usually comes with age, is rather to his advantage than otherwise. In his message, the President, appreciating that there was some dissatisfaction with this attitude of his, made it stronger by saying that where Senatorial or social influence was exercised in an officer's behalf, it would militate against him.

In the week, the President has also shown that he will not countenance, much less will he permit, interference in local politics by Federal officials, for he has removed several who promoted factionalism by their meddling with local concerns. He does not object to legitimate political activity, to work to promote the success of his party, but he removes, immediately, the officials who promote factionalism. He wants Federal officers to attend to their business and make their offices business-like in every respect. Then he has several times impressed Senators and Congressmen with his objection to receiving their written recommendations. He knows how easy it is to sign a petition or a letter of recommendation, and that this is so often done to get rid of a persistent applicant or to place the responsibility for failure to secure an office upon the President. President Roosevelt wants recommendations made in person by Senators and Congressmen, and then he interrogates them regarding the men they suggest, and holds them to account for the representations made. Thus an indorsement to Theodore Roosevelt means more than it has heretofore. If, however, he finds that a satisfactory man has not been proposed, he insists upon another being named or selects him himself.

The President has astonished Southern Republicans by generally declining to follow their recommendations—in fact no Southern Republican organization can claim to have had its recommendations carried out by the President, and if a good Republican is not proposed or discovered, he appoints a Democrat from the South. That may lose him Southern votes in the next national convention, but, just now, he is not giving consideration to his renomination, and will probably never plan to secure it, being content to know he has done what he deemed right and letting the future care for itself.

The President has been active in carrying out his theories of Civil Service reform, extending the classified service over the rural free delivery system and over some places in the War Department, removing officials who have violated the rules and approving rules to make Civil Service reform more effective in operation. When he appointed William Dudley Foulke as Civil Service Commissioner he gave notice of his purposes. In the present week important changes have been made in the Civil Service rules that will lessen the temptation to evade them. The Civil Service Commission has now power, in the case of a person holding a position in the Civil Service in violation of the Civil Service act or rules, to certify to the head of the department the fact of violation, and if the employe is not dismissed in thirty days, to have his pay stopped. Then there is to be no transference from one department to another unless the employe has worked six months and in some position in the classified service. This will prevent the appointment of men with political pull to unclassified position, their almost immediate transference to the classified service and promotion to a good position, as has been frequently done in the past. Again, the same strict adherence to the merit principle is insisted upon in the insular service, so the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii are not to be dumping grounds for political favorites.

So high is the President's standard, and so rigidly is it adhered to, that reappointments are decided distinctions, and the failure to be reappointed is not discredit, in the ordinary acceptance of the word.

Burns' Anniversary.

The members of the Burns Club are planning to celebrate the 143rd anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns at the Hilo Hotel, Saturday evening, January 25. The occasion is always remembered in Hilo in a fitting manner by the countrymen of the great poet and this year the plans are even more elaborate than ever. The matter of refreshments are in the hands of Mr. Scott whose ability in this line is a guarantee of satisfaction. The menu of eatables will be topped with story and song.

Hilo's Ice Wagon.

The Hilo Electric Light and Ice Company have recently put upon their delivery route the most gorgeous ice wagon that was ever built. It is a car or chariot painted a magnificent red. It carries on either side a startling paradox in the initials of the Company and the word ice, viz: H. E. L., Ice. The contrasts suggested by this ice wagon are as vivid as those in a Dore drawing, where unfortunates are depicted as working alternating shifts in the boiler room of a man of war and a brewery refrigerator.

Maui Came Sunday.

The Maui arrived at the Hamakua coast Sunday bringing over 60,000 feet of lumber and other materials for the repair of bridges between Honohina and Laupahoehoe. Marston Campbell went out Monday morning to superintend the beginning of the work.

The Maui also brought news which was telephoned in Sunday afternoon telling of the foundering of the coasting steamer Walla Walla off Eureka, California, with a loss of thirty-six lives. The same message told of the marriage of Col. Sam Parker and Mrs. Campbell, and Prince David and Miss Abbie Campbell at San Jose, California.

Want Cupid to Run.

The Home Rule Republicans are determined to run Prince Cupid at the special Honolulu election to choose a successor to Archie Gillfillan in the Legislature.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Richey entertained friends last Thursday evening in honor of Mr. Richey's fifty-eighth birthday. The company engaged in a game of progressive whist after which delicious refreshments were served.

Silva Patella, born in the Azores, was made a citizen by Judge Little last week.

Buggy Smashed.

The Volcano Stables and Transportation Company is short one buggy since last Sunday evening. The buggy was smashed into kindling wood in a runaway. One of the stable employees was returning from Puueo with the rig which had been used during the day by Mr. Wise. On Pitman street the horse got away, and went hurling into Waianuenu. A big electric light pole caught the buggy and jerked it loose from the horse which went on with tattered harness.

Livery Barn Change.

F. Brughelli is building new barns on Volcano street to which he will move the entire stock of horses and carriages from the City Stables, February 1. Mr. Brughelli will make his new stand an up-to-date livery and boarding stable. The old barn will be used by Mr. A. James as a housing place for his automobiles when they arrive.
