POOR SUGAR BARONS.

Do They Pay Proportionate Taxes?

Mr. P. C. Jones recently launched out against the Hawaiian Tramways Company because, as he claimed that corporation did not pay taxes on its capital stock, and insinuating that said capital stock is too large in proportion to assessed value of the corporation property. Without denying the soft impeachment we expressed ourselves surprised to find a man in Mr. Jones' position attacking a corporation on account of insufficient taxation and we asked him how the case was with Hawaiian corporations more especially sugar companies. The Star immediately rushed to the rescue of Mr. Jones and claimed that the case of sugar plantations was quite different from that of the Tramways Company because, the dividends of the latter were spent abroad while the sugar stockholder spent their incomes in Hawaii. If Mr. Jones' letter had surprised us the inspired answer in the editorial column of his paper fairly stunned us through its brazen effrontery. The main drawback to the prosperity of this country is the system of the absent landlords. The largest amount of the income derived from sugar is spent abroad and all Hawaii receives is a perfectly inadequate amount of taxes. We will not remind Mr. Jones of his own disappearance from this country. He had no intention of returning here. He made a moving address to the Y. M. C. A. previous to his departure "for good and for ever," and he took a goodly sum of money away from here. But look at the other sugar barons, who spend their princely incomes in California, Germany or England. Bailey, Alexander, Hart, Pfleger, Isenberg, Davies, Glade, Welch, Grinbaum, C. R. Bishop, Spreckels, Austria, Purvis, and several others. To enable our readers to calculate the amount of money that has gone out of the country by the absentees, we will mention the dividends paid by some of the sugar corporations a couple of years ago when all their patriots mentioned expatriated themselves and devoted their time to the pleasant occupation of clipping coupons and sucking the Hawaiian orange. The following table is correct:

NAME CORPORATION.	AMT. OF CAP'L.	PER CENT DIVID. OF
Pacific Sugar Mill.	$200,000.	130,000. 65 per cent
Kohala Sugar Co.	480,000.	290,480. 43
Waialua Mill Co.	300,000.	135,000. 45
Honolulu Sugar Co.	200,000.	110,000. 55
Onomea Sugar Co.	500,000.	100,000. 20
Union Mill Co.	100,000.	44,000. 27
Kukui Plant. Co.	120,000.	63,500. 53
Hanalei Mill Co.	240,000.	186,000. 77
Pala Plant. Co.	750,000.	320,400. 42
Waialeale Sugar Co.	265,000.	98,050. 37
Waianae Sugar Co.	255,000.	122,000. 47
Hawaiian Agric'l Co.	436,000.	183,120. 42
Hilo Sugar Co.	500,000.	300,000. 60
Maui Sugar Co.	500,000.	260,000. 52
Waianalo Sugar Co.	180,000.	81,000. 45
Koloa Sugar Co.	200,000.	80,000. 40

And how much taxes does Mr. P. C. Jones think that the above mentioned corporations which declared and paid such dividends paid? The assessed value as given to the tax assessors, of nearly every one of them did not exceed and several did not reach the amount paid out in dividends?"

The Hawaiian Tramways Co. stock is partly held in England and partly here. There are quite a number of small shareholders in that company—it is an English corporation, and the dividends are declared by the directors in England. We have in no year seen the corporation pay more than six or seven per cent, it certainly never made such returns as those mentioned above as ground out of the sugar mills. A revision of the system of taxation is certainly necessary and we fully agree with Mr. Jones that corporations should pay taxes on their capital stock or, if the capital stock is higher than the bona fide value of the property, should be made to reduce it. How that can be done profitably (to the large stockholders) no one can teach us better than Mr. P. C. Jones. The sinking of the capital stock of a certain corporation here is yet fresh in the mind of many of the small stockholders. Shrieking of stock and wrecking of companies are undoubtedly very pleasant and entertaining for a few monopolists. We can hardly believe though that the method can be advocated by a well known stock broker like Mr. P. C. Jones. The proposition, implied in Mr. P. C. Jones' letter, of disfranchising the Tramways Company, and thereby ruin a number of small stockholders is not unbecoming a man who, a few weeks ago proposed to throw the Volcano House Company into bankruptcy, and then buy the property in for a trifle—and a small syndicate. But by all means raise the taxes and let the sugar men pay.

WE AMERICANS.

Some Harsh Truths By One of Ourselves.

I wonder if we Americans will ever learn to mind our own business and to pluck the beam out of our own eyes. The amount of interest that our politicians and newspapers still take, or pretend to take, in the subject of Home Rule for Ireland is one of the most preposterous of our many absurdities. We do not know anything about it, as a rule, and there is no reason why any American who is not of Irish descent should care anything about it. The great majority of the educated and well-to-do people of Great Britain are opposed to Home Rule. They are certainly as competent to form an opinion of it as we are. The Home Rule movement came from the United States. This is one of the main weaknesses of the Home Rulers. Englishmen naturally resent foreign interference in their political affairs. It is true that they have by no means minded their own business, but their sympathies or prejudices have been only the sympathies or prejudices of individual Englishmen. They never gave the use of the House of Parliament to meetings held in behalf of the Southern Confederacy. Neither Liberals nor Conservatives have made a declaration of opinion as to American politics a part of their political manifestoes or programmes.

This is just what American political parties have been doing for years. Convention after convention puts into its platform an expression of sympathy with the Home Rule cause. What a beautiful row there would be in this country if the Carlton Club or the National Liberal Club should pass resolutions expressing its sympathy with a protective tariff, or a tariff for revenue only. There are hundreds of thousands of inflammable patriots who burn with a flame whenever the English newspapers venture to comment upon the American political news of the day. How the tocsin would be thumped and the hide taken off the war-drum if the English politicians should imitate even in a feeble degree the bad manners and the bad taste of ours.

We have no more business with Irish politics than the English have with the politics of Indiana. Englishmen are justified in resenting American interference just as Americans would be in resenting English interference. If we really cared anything for Home Rule we could not do more for it than to let it alone. As long as it is identified in England with impertinent and ignorant foreign intrusion, so long at least it will be under the ban. But the truth is that there is no American sympathy with Home Rule. The politicians and the newspapers are willing to howl and cavort for the sake of Irish votes and Irish subscribers. Of course the politicians and the newspapers argue that it is wise for them to support Home Rule because there is a solid body of Irish-American opinion in its favor, and no such solid body of opinion ranged in opposition to it. There are more Catholic Irish than there are Orangemen. If the reverse were the case, we should find the newspapers and the politicians opposing Home Rule with the same pretense of ardor with which they now support it. The opinion of Americans not of Irish descent is not felt and is not sought. If it were, they would be found to be weary of this continual hullabaloo and ashamed of our indecent interference in the politics of a foreign country. There is no hope that the achievement of Home Rule would be followed by a return of the kernes to Ireland. There is more money for them here. If there were any probability that they would go back, the American desire for Home Rule would be quickened immeasurably.

No doubt it would be very pleasant for the people of the United States to be able to turn away from the contemplation of themselves and busy themselves with foreign affairs. It was the old-fashioned theory—a theory still held and repeated with great effulgence of rhetoric by rural members of Congress—that the United States is the admiration and the envy of the rest of the world. We are "a beacon for the oppressed, far-seen by the tempest-tossed on the sea of despotism." I quote from a Congressman of fifty years ago, but you can find the same sentiment in the "Congressional Record" any week. We are the greatest and most virtuous people, intellectually and morally, that the world has ever seen, and foreign ers pass all their spare time in wringing their hands and lamenting that they are not as we are. There is no flattery too absurd or coarse to make the smudgy face of King People break into a self-complacent smile. To any American that loves the truth as well as his country this exaggerated national self-satisfaction seems painful.

What are the facts? The "beacon of the oppressed" business has resulted in our becoming the common sink-hole and sewer of the world. All the incapable and deceased poor devils, the graduates of the prison and the Lazaretto, the dregs and drippings of ignorance and poverty and vice, have come over here and begun to possess the land. Side by side with the development into the increased degeneracy of this rottenest refuse of all civilizations has gone on a development of crankhood, of semi-insane violence attaining to political power as a result of the blind ignorance and debasement of the masses. There are more crazy men at large in this country than anywhere else in the world. Among some Oriental nations a madman is regarded with peculiar reverence as partaking in some sort of inspiration from God. Our barbarians make rulers of their madmen. Look at Governor Lewelling, of Kansas; Governor Pennoyer, of Oregon; Governor Waite, of Colorado; Governor Hogg, of Texas. Tillman, of South Carolina, seems to be rather a shrewd and desperate knave than a fanatic. Look at the whole Populist crowd, with its ignorant and wild denunciations and its crazy panaceas! Look at Sovereign, the boss of the Knights of Labor! Look at the mad mouthings against wealth and financial knowledge and experience in which three-fourths of the public men of the South and West indulge! See the way in which newspapers like the "World" fawn upon ignorance and anarchy, and bespatter with filth all the conservative and redeeming force of society. Look at our public men, almost without exception toadies and tucklers to all the cheap and windy delusions of an ignorant populace. Everywhere, almost you see popular ignorance translating itself into hysterical declamation or frenzied action. Everywhere moderation is decaying, and the reign of law dying out.

The political situation could be expressed with no great injustice by saying that United States is a country in which the cities are governed by thieves and the States by fools. This used to be regarded as a temporary condition. We were told that everything was alright, because the heart of the masses was still sound. The trouble is that the heart of the masses is exceedingly unsound. Reverence for law, for the courts, for the Constitution and the restraints and limits of order and authority is dying out. A few years ago philosophers used to talk with mild dread of the "Mexicanization of our institutions." We have long passed that point. Mexico is an orderly and conservative Republic. Hayti seems to be the model we have followed. The murderous passions that break out in the Black Republic are paralleled if not exceeded by such fierce outbreaks of violence as the Home stead riots and the rising of the Tennessee miners in 1892. The State of South Carolina is at this moment involved in civil war, and a Winchester rifle is the only legal principle recognized there. Kansas and Colorado have both narrowly escaped being involved in similar civil wars through the violence of their executives.

This organized violence is only the expression on a larger scale of the disregard for law, and the reckless substitution of personal for legal redress, that prevail throughout the country. The annual number of lynchings is enormous, and seems to be increasing. Both New York and Pennsylvania are included in the lynching States, and there is no localization of that disrespect of law of which lynching is only one form among many forms. The coming of hundreds of thousands of foreigners, to whom democracy means simply a release from all legal restraint, seems to have stimulated the old native tendency to lawlessness—a tendency that originally may have had some excuse in the difficulties of serving legal process in a thinly-settled community. But, whatever be the cause, the effect is certain. Lawlessness of all sorts is on the increase. The number of murders in the United States amounts to about one an hour, and when you add to these instances of individual violence the instances of combination for violent purposes, amounting, in many cases, to actual insurrection—the lynchings, the strikes, the riots, the country seat wars, and so on—the annual aggregate amount of acts of murderous violence in the United States is monstrous. In the cities in the winter, and roaming through the country in the summer, preying upon the country, incurably worthless and often criminal, is a great collection of tramps—men that never worked much and that will never work again. Why should they? Sentimental philosophers, clergymen of the friends of the people order, and blather-skites of many names are constantly impressing upon them that the world owes them a living, and that plutocrats, gold bugs, money sharks and bloated bondholders have defrauded them of their rights in some way. The philanthropists and the reformers of society, and the labor reformers, baked and half baked are, stimulating as far as they can the hatred of the poor for the rich. So this is the lovely actual condition of the United States. Ignorance increasing, violence increasing, disregard for the law increasing, hatred of the worthless and ignorant for the well-to-do and educated increasing, willingness to work decreasing, crankism increasing. Every American daily newspaper is a record of the violence, the crankism, the lawlessness, the scottish and incredible ignorance of the American people. They have disappointed the hopes of their few generous and candid friends abroad. Their failures and their follies have postponed indefinitely the hour for republicanism in England. They are neither loved nor admired nor envied nor even hated. They are simply despised.

It is more than time for these grimaces of vanity to cease. The American people should stop admiring itself—a composite photograph of the ignorance and the lawlessness of many alien nations. It should stop believing, with Mr. Lowell's politician, "in freedom's cause as far away as Paris is," and let the foreign nations alone. There is no more foreign nation in composition and want of real national sentiment than this. Our historical yelling and bullying abroad arises from a secret consciousness that there is really no deep and common national spirit among us, the aliens of a hundred bloods. Let us put away our guns and take up our pens, stop shooting and shouting, mind our own business, respect the law, cease trailing after cranks and blatherskites as if the whole American people were a Coxe's Commonwealth, set our house in order, live cleanly, repent in sackcloth and ashes, and shut up AMEN!

LOCAL NOTES.

E. P. Low is in town.

Buffalo Beer at the Royal.

Punahoa closes to-morrow for the long vacation.

The Constitutional Convention is at it again to-day.

The Paradise of the Pacific for June is out, and for sale at the bookstores.

The Arawa should arrive here next Saturday with one week's later news.

The Discovery left yesterday for Port Townsend. The Newsboy leaves to-day.

It is stated that the new Constitution will be promulgated on the 4th of July.

B. Schneider has been appointed Government Veterinary vice W. T. Monsarrat resigned.

Messrs Spreckels and Follis left for Maui yesterday. They will remain at Spreckelsville for some time.

Mr. A. Rosa and Mr. W. A. Kinney returned from Wailuku this morning, where they have attended Court.

A Salute was fired at noon from the war-vessels in port in honor of the Anniversary of Queen Victoria's Ascension day.

To-morrow night the benefit performance for Jerry Connor takes place at the Opera House. Don't make any other engagement but go there.

The League meets to-night at 8 p. m. at its hall, corner of King and Nuuanu Streets. Messrs Baldwin and Robertson will speak. The public is invited.

Messrs G. J. Stoneman and A. Bronson have been admitted to the Bar, and will practice law in this city. The new law firm occupies the office above Bishop & Co's bank.

Through a misunderstanding a notice was published in the HOLOMUA stating that a meeting would be held of the members of the Jockey Club next Friday. Such is not the case.

The new directory which will be issued by Messrs Bradford and Clay will undoubtedly prove a success and will be a valuable book of reference. All the mechanical work will be done in Honolulu.

Today is the Anniversary of Queen Victoria's Ascension on the British throne which took place on the 20th of June 1837 upon the death of William the Fourth. Her Majesty has consequently ruled 57 years.

The Star states that there will be a combined parade and drill of the p. g. braves and the Philadelphia men on the 4th of July. Is the commander-in-chief with the rank of Colonel going to handle the combination?

A Taxidermist.

Mr. Flood of Boston a well-known taxidermist who is visiting the islands, returned this morning from an excursion to Waimanalo and islands in that vicinity. A very good result paid Mr. Flood for his trouble. He shot about 50 birds of different classes and collected nearly a hundred eggs. The birds will now be stuffed and preserved.

Resurrected.

Mr. W. H. Aldrich, in whom the authorities lately have shown an intense interest, appeared this morning at the station house and paid his respects to Marshal Hitchcock, who, in return, served him with a warrant and took him into custody. Billy hasn't been in hiding at all, so he says, and he was rather surprised to hear that "Old Sleuth" Larsen and forty-seven other detectives have been looking for him in vain. Why, he was right there all the time, except when he took a ride or a walk. Mr. Aldrich will now play hide and seek in Oahu jail as a prisoner of State for the next thirty days.—"The man with the iron gall!"

For The Ladies.

A special committee of the convention meets this afternoon to discuss the female suffrage. All ladies interested in the business have been invited to be present and offered the freedom of the floor. Very few went and why? Because Charles Girdler on Kaahumanu street had issued an invitation to the ladies to come to his store and inspect his new invoice of the finest lot of Swiss embroideries, insertions, flouncings and edgings ever imported here. They must be seen to be appreciated and Girdler nearly gives them away for cash. And who wouldn't prefer insertions to suffrage?

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions or the utterances of our correspondents.]

EDITOR HOLOMUA:

Sunday morning while the conflagration was in progress, complaints were loud on all sides about the inactivity and inefficiency of the so-called Fire Department. In the absence of the Chief Engineer, the men after finally getting in readiness to utilize water, wasted more injudiciously applying it than in playing it where it would do most good. They were apparent bereft of reason and thanks to the courage, and assistance of the volunteers of the old department, as well as providence, in that there was no wind at the time, the fire was soon under control. The corps of men as constitute the present Fire Department are decidedly out of place and incapable in case of an emergency and the Board of Underwriters should lose no time in looking into this deplorable state of affairs.

Imagine the consequences, if the fire had started during the night and been fagged on by a gentle breeze?

UNDERWRITER.

The Japanese Vote.

The Japanese Government and its agent here have won a significant victory in obtaining equal rights for Japanese residing in Hawaii. The provisions are so that the Japanese in Hawaii no longer is classed as an "Asiatic" and no special legislation can be made against him as formerly has been the case. This is a step in the right direction and the convention is to be complimented on ignoring the howl of the anti-Asiatic clubs and do in what is fair and just.

At present the clause in the constitution will have only small practical effect. A number of Japanese are possibly qualified to become naturalized and voters, but it is very doubtful if any of them will be willing to sacrifice their allegiance to the Empire of the Rising Sun. Should they choose to do so the rights granted to them may some day prove of considerable moment.

There are about 35000 Japanese in the country today and negotiations are now going on for an increase of that amount. The majority of the Japanese will make Hawaii their permanent home and the more intelligent class are rapidly learning to read and write English. There are more than a dozen night-schools for Japanese which are well frequented and where merchants, clerks and domestic servants are taught the English language. A project has been on foot for some time for the establishment of a large Japanese school and will probably be carried out. Similar schools like those now operating can be found in Hilo, Wailuku, Spreckelsville and other places. The result will be that in less than 10 years the Japanese will, if willing to become naturalized, furnish a large contingent of voters, who will prove themselves more clanish than even the Portuguese have done. Of course it is not more than right that the Japanese should have the privileges now to be granted to them, but that the step will lead to future complications is beyond doubt. But then the missionaries don't care. To them the question is to get a dividend or not, while they sing "Apres nous la deluge."
