

(a) The completion of the Ujelang project probably marks the beginning of a contented and prosperous Marshallese community. The island of the atoll afford an abundance of all fruits and foods common in the northern Marshalls and the lagoon and surrounding waters yield much seafood. Under the guidance of the two, very capable chiefs, they should develop the island to its maximum output in a very short time.

(b) Although the Rongerik people have not yet decided where they want to resettle they are in no way suffering in their present setup. They have good dry homes and sufficient food and those able bodied are encouraged to work that they may have money for the start of their new homes. It is considered that the interim move from Rongerik to Kwajalein was a wise action in that it has given the people a temporary security in the time they need in reaching a decision and at the same time the Medical personnel have had sufficient time to diagnose and study them.

(c) The welfare of the Marshallese of the Kwajalein district is high. This may be attributed in a great part to the freedom of speech and movement. The people are amazed that they may speak their mind and not be rebuked and that if they desire to travel from one island to another they may do so at will.
