

With the arrival of further medical personnel recently, improvements is predicted in all activities of the medical department. The diagnosis and treatment of patients, the training and utilization of native medical personnel, sanitation and sanitary instruction - - all are benefited.

With the procurement of technical and laboratory equipment now on order, greater efficiency and results will be attained in the field of investigative and statistical work.