GRAFT INDICTMENTS ARE DISMISSED

THE FAMOUS SAN FRANCISCO PROSECUTION IS NOW FINISHED

This Spray Will Kill Fruitfly

After experimenting for a period extending over several months' time, H. A. Weinland, representative of the California State Horticultural Commission, found a formula for a spray which he believes will effectually stamp out the Mediterranean fruitfly or at least will check its ravages to a considerable extent.

One of the ingredients used in the new spray is refuse molasses. This, mixed with brown sugar, arsenate-lead and water in the proper proportions, constitutes the spray which has been found stamps out the grub and the adult fly without affecting the fruit.

Several months ago, the first experiments in this line were made on commercial orchards in South Africa with fair success. A cheap grade of treacle was used instead of the sugar-mill refuse and, owing to the fact that the experimenters had commercial orchards to work on, they were able to definitely tell as to the results of their experiments.

Not being able to obtain the same kind of treacle as that used by the entomologists in South Africa, Mr. Weinland took refuse molasses as a substitute and made his first experiments on the wild guava bushes.

He next tried the formula on the mango trees and, although on account of the height of the trees, he was unable to reach the top, the experiment was very successful and showed that the formula would be very potent as an exterminator of the pests.

Three pounds of arsenate-lead, five gallons of molasses, ten pounds of sugar and fifty gallons of water were the proportions used.

Check-traps were placed in the trees at first to kill off the males, as the male of the species is alone affected by the pans of kerosene used as checks.

The spray was next applied to the trees and proved very effectual as an exterminator. Although the apparatus was not high enough to enable the sprayers to reach the tops of the mango trees, yet Mr. Weinland thinks that is not of much consequence, as they can be kept from spreading.

"While I do not think that this will kill off all the Mediterranean flies," said the entomologist, while discussing the new spray, "yet it no doubt will prove effectual in keeping the pest under control."

"We shall be able to spray all of the low host-trees, although we can not touch the tops of the high ones owing to the fact that there is no apparatus made to enable us to reach so high."

"I have been experimenting for quite a while upon this, but did not want to say anything until I was assured that the spray would be a success."

"It has worked very effectually, especially in the mango orchards where the fruitfly thrives most abundantly."

"Owing to the high wet grass that surrounds the wild guava bushes, the fly is not so bad here, because the maggots drop off the branches into the wet grass and drown."

"The real solution for the fruitfly problem is a suitable parasite, although Hawaii will probably never be entirely rid of the pest. Even with a parasite here, both will survive, one as a check against the other."

"In Australia at the present time, they have found a parasite which they think is an effectual check to the ravages of the fruitfly, and we have a representative in Africa now looking for a parasite to be brought here."

FEDERAL AID ASKED FOR ROADS

The above cable was sent to Delegate Kubie this morning, as a result of a matter brought to the attention of the meeting of the Republican Executive Committee, by R. W. Breckons. It means that Hawaii will try to get in on an appropriation for rural free delivery, on the same basis as is proposed for the various states of the Union. The bill was editorially described in a recent Star.

Hitchcock's Art Exhibit

The rooms of the Kiloana Art League were thronged last night by art enthusiasts assembled for a private view of a collection of twenty-seven paintings from the brush of D. Howard Hitchcock which will be placed on public exhibition beginning this evening for one week.

The canvases exhibited are for the most part representative of the toll of the painter for the past few months and the majority of them merited the praise which was unstintingly bestowed. They show "hat Mr. Hitchcock has succeeded in absorbing the Hawaiian color and reproducing it on canvas more successfully than any other artist." One is also able to see the steady improvement in his work and the fact that his forte is marine and shore views. With figures he leaves something to be desired.

Mr. Hitchcock has plainly come into his own here as he has abroad. Many of the canvases exhibited last night have already been sold, one collector who is a recent arrival here buying several, and others have been purchased by residents of the city, appreciative not only of the artist's work

Suggestions Of Municipal Amendments

1—Discontinue election at large of whole board of supervisors.

2—Permit Fourth District to nominate and elect three supervisors.

3—Permit Fifth District to nominate and elect three supervisors—probably two from city proper and one from country districts.

4—Eliminate seventh supervisor, but invest the Mayor with prerogatives, powers and duties of this place, Mayor to be elected at large.

5—Elect county officials for four-year terms.

6—Provide for popular recall of such officers.

7—County elections to be held only in "off" years from national or territorial elections.

These are some of the changes which are being suggested as amendments to the City and County charter just at present, and which will in all probability be urged upon the Republican Territorial convention for insertion as planks in the next election platform.

B. von Damm, chairman of the Central Improvement League, is one of the chief advocates of these changes. He is not, however, bringing them through the Improvement body, and probably will not, since, as is stated, leading members of this organization side-step the idea of introducing matters which might disrupt the organization on the rocks of political dissension.

J. P. Cooke is another who is in favor of some, if not all, of these suggestions. In fact the fifth, sixth and seventh, as above given, are largely his proposals.

It has also been suggested that the six supervisors, elected in accordance with the above plan, be given power to select the seventh; and, in case no majority vote can be secured for any one candidate, that the Governor be required to make the appointment.

Some of the advantages claimed by the advocates of the proposed amendment are:

That it would enable each of the two districts to nominate and elect its best men without interference or domination from the other.

That it would cut down expense, and would make the Mayor a useful, instead of largely an ornamental, member of the board.

That the four-year term would spell greater efficiency, and that the recall clause would check danger of abuse of power while in office.

That the holding of county elections separate from territorial and national elections, would make them less partisan in character, and that greater care and more consideration would be spent not only in the selection of nominees, but by the voters who would not be influenced greatly by territorial issues.

SCHMITZ AND RUEF AMONG BENEFICIARIES

(Associated Press Cables to the Star.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Judge Dunne has dismissed the indictments against Ruef, Halsey, Brown, Dinan, Schmitz, Arche, Graney, Cofroth, Gass and Lawlor under Rule 24. Schmitz had ten indictments. This finishes the graft prosecution.

VIGILANTES IN TROUBLE.

SACRAMENTO, May 18.—Harris Weinstein, special governor's commissioner to investigate San Diego reports that the vigilantes are more culpable than the industrials, and recommends their prosecution.

BAD BALL.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Regulars 24, Detroit Scrubs 2, was the baseball record today. A crowd of 20,000 saw the game and many demanded their money back.

MURDERED AND ROBBED.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Isaac Cohn, a tailor who has been missing since Sunday, was found today murdered and robbed of $500 in a vacant house.

JUAREZ LIKELY TO FALL.

EL PASO, May 18.—Juarez is likely to fall to the Federals. Orozco is surrounded and is likely to be making his last stand.

THE GREAT CATHOLIC FAIR AT THOMAS SQUARE TODAY

Thomas Square began to array itself prettily at an early hour for the May festival today. The electricians and carpenters had already done the most of the work and by the time the first cars came down many flags were suspended among the trees. Many booths showed innumerable articles for sale, as the festival is for the benefit of a new Catholic chapel, and as the Star goes to press crowds are buying freely.

Everything is offered for sale from Irish crochet to Hawaiian poi, persons with a partiality for ice-cream may gratify their desires and the men who want to smoke have a fine line of cigars and tobaccos to choose from

MORNING IN POLICE COURT

In the police court this morning eleven Chinese gamblers were discharged.

A. Nilsen and Andre, drunk, were fined $3 and costs.

On Tai Kam and On Lin Tai, charged with profanity, were fined $5 each.

T. Watanabe is being held at the police station as a suspected insane person.

On Kim was arrested this morning for keeping his hack on other than a licensed stand.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR HUNG NUNG

Mahoe tried to get free this morning from a charge that he had stolen coal from the naval pile by stating that he had stolen it from the Inter-Island supply. But it was Pochontas or naval coal and the U. S. commissioner did not accept the plea. U. S. Attorney Breckons says he will rout out all the natives who are making a living by appropriating government coal.

Rose Ladd got a divorce from Herman Ladd today for non-support.

Chung Mun got life at hard labor for criminally assaulting a four-year-old Hawaiian girl. Andrews moved for a new trial.

The jury in Judge Cooper's court yesterday brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $389.97, the full amount claimed, in the case of H. Hackfeld & Company versus P. Ah Kong.

Two indictments, both against Ramon Lopez and both charging him with assault and battery, were returned by the grand jury yesterday in a partial report rendered to Judge Robinson. Lopez was arraigned this morning and his plea to the indictments was continued to next week.

BUFFALO HERE MONDAY.

The transport Buffalo is expected here either Monday or Tuesday morning although it is thought probable that she will make port on Monday.

WILSON GETS ONE CONTRACT ON BELT ROAD

After resuming its session this afternoon, the belt road commission awarded the contract for the first section of the belt road to John H. Wilson, that for the second section having been previously awarded to the Lord-Young Engineering Co., as reported below.

John H. Wilson was again stood off, though the lowest bidder, from being awarded the contract for the first section of the belt road, by the Oahu loan fund commission this afternoon.

The Lord-Young Engineering Co. was awarded the contract for the second section. Then, after a long fight by Mayor Fern on behalf of Wilson, the meeting took an hour's recess. On reconvening the commission was going to take up the first section matter.

Bids for the first section (Heeia) were as follows:
Lord-Young Engineering Co., $55,000, to complete the work on or before September 25, 1913.
John H. Wilson, $75,998, to complete the work on or before July 31, 1913.

As there is a bonus of $20 a day on time, Wilson's bid is, in round numbers, $200 lower than the Lord-Young tender.

Chairman Andrew Adams made a statement on the finances of the commission, to the following effect: Up to April 30, the sum of $6800 had been expended on engineering and other preliminaries. Since then $10,500 had been incurred on contract for delivering rock on section two. Total expenditures were $17,300. There was a balance on hand of $182,700 and deducting from this $176,498, the sum of the lowest bids for the two sections, a balance of $6,202 was left for engineering and inspection costs.

Petrie moved that the contract for the second section be awarded to the Lord-Young Engineering Co. Seconded by Marston Campbell.

Fern did not think this fair. Wilson should first be awarded the contract for the first section. He moved that this be done.

Campbell withdrew his second of Petrie's motion, saying no discrimination was intended.

Fern argued that the fund for engineering was insufficient for both, and preference should be given to the first section.

Petrie said the work could be cut down on either contract to provide for a deficiency. Adams agreed with this.

Fern then changed his motion to one that the contract for each section be awarded to the lowest bidder.

He waited in vain for a second and then said he did not see why the board should delay. "It is one of the fairest of propositions," said he. "We have been dilly-dallying with this pro-

INDICATIONS OF FRUITFLY IN MANY SECTIONS OF MAUI

Kahului to Have a Kindergarten--School for Ministers--Improvements in Wailuku--Personal and Sport.

(Special Correspondence of The Star)

WAILUKU, May 17.—The fruitfly has actually been found this past week in traps set in the yards of Pita Cockett in Wailuku and Rev. R. B. Dodge in Wailuku. Government Inspector Davis of the Kahului breakwater did the work, and has proved without a doubt that the pest is here. Later developments seem to indicate similar conditions of the fruit in Iao Valley, in the yards of Mrs. Enos in Wailuku and Judge W. Kalua; at Keasea and at Kipahulu, though in these latter places the actual fly has not been found. Strenuous efforts are being made in all the places infected to destroy all the flies that can be caught. The method used is the pans of kerosene oil, which is protected from the rain by a cover held just far enough above the fruit pan to allow plenty of room for the fly to be attracted to the oil. Rumors have it that no more fruit of any description can be sold by the vendors in open market in affected districts. Such a measure might help in a large degree in the extermination of the fly.

Kindergarten in Kahului.

Arrangements have been perfected by which a kindergarten will soon be established in Kahului. The parents of little children are most enthusiastic over the prospects, and when the school starts in September there ought to be a very large enrollment. The new kindergarten will be secured from the East through a personal friend of Rev. Henry P. Judd. Her work will be affiliated with the Maui Kindergarten Association, to which organization she will report for methods of work, etc., though she will be paid under the direction of the church committee of the Kahului Union church.

Church Matters.

Rev. Frank S. Scudder, whose visit to Maui are always so much enjoyed, will be here over Sunday attending the organization of the Wailuku Japanese church on Sunday afternoon. He will preach at the Kahului Union church Sunday morning.

The monthly school for the ministers of central Maui was held at Kahului last Tuesday morning. The session was well attended, and the work that no more fruit of any description can be sold by the vendors in open market in affected districts. Such a measure might help in a large degree in the extermination of the fly.

Her work will be affiliated with the Maui Kindergarten Association, to which organization she will report for methods of work, etc., though she will be paid under the direction of the church committee of the Kahului Union church.

Church Matters.

Rev. Frank S. Scudder, whose visit to Maui are always so much enjoyed, will be here over Sunday attending the organization of the Wailuku Japanese church on Sunday afternoon. He will preach at the Kahului Union church Sunday morning.

The monthly school for the ministers of central Maui was held at Kahului last Tuesday morning. The session was well attended, and the work that no more fruit of any description can be sold by the vendors in open market in affected districts. Such a measure might help in a large degree in the extermination of the fly.

Kindergarten in Kahului.

Arrangements have been perfected by which a kindergarten will soon be established in Kahului. The parents of little children are most enthusiastic over the prospects, and when the school starts in September there ought to be a very large enrollment. The new kindergarten will be secured from the East through a personal friend of Rev. Henry P. Judd. Her work will be affiliated with the Maui Kindergarten Association, to which organization she will report for methods of work, etc., though she will be paid under the direction of the church committee of the Kahului Union church.

TRANSPORT SHERMAN ARRIVES EARLY

Reports a Fine Trip Across and Brings First Infantry--Mauna Kea From Island Ports--Alert Away Today--Changes in Lights

Coming off port at daylight this morning the transport Sherman was alongside the railroad wharf shortly after seven o'clock and reports a fine passage from Portland.

She brings the First Infantry for here and a number of through Manila passengers. There are about nine hundred men for here and thirty odd officers besides a quantity of general cargo.

The Sherman will go to the Alakea dock tomorrow morning and is expected to leave about half-past five o'clock on Monday for Manila. This arrangement is subject to alteration, however. Captain Rutenecutter reports that the weather on the trip across was exceptionally fine and that everything ran smoothly.

MAUNA KEA IN.

The inter-island steamer Mauna Kea arrived from Hawaii and Maui ports early this morning after a fine trip.

Included in her cargo were 230 packets of sundries, five sacks of awa, thirty-one ohio pins, twenty sacks of rice, fifty-four sacks of radishes and twelve pieces of ohia lumber.

FOURTEEN DAYS IN BOAT.

Sydney, N. S.—The Newfoundland fishing schooner Florence M., Captain Spencer, arrived at North Sydney with two fishermen named Barnes and Bungay, who strayed from the vessel on Tuereau Bank during a thick fog. The men were in an open dory for fourteen days and for nine days were hemmed in by the ice. Bungay's feet and hands are black from being frozen and he will likely lose them. The men were picked up 20 miles northwest of St. Pierre. They had lost an oar and had rigged up a sail.

RAISING THE TELEGRAPH.

Completing the preliminary work of one of the most difficult salvage operations ever attempted on Elliott Bay, Capt. James E. Pharo and his crew of submarine divers have succeeded in lashing the sunken steamer Telegraph, which was sunk in Seattle harbor last week by the Alameda, to two scows. The vessel during part of the operations at high tide was lying in nearly eighty feet of water, yet Diver William Benjamin succeeded in getting three steel lines under her as she rested at the bottom of the south slip at the Grand Trunk Pacific dock. As the tide recedes the scows will approach nearer the sunken vessel, and at low tide at 10:57 the lines will be tightened. As the tide rises the Telegraph will be lifted from the bottom of the slip, and the scows, with the sunken steamer between them and free of the bottom will be towed to Harbor Island and beached.

A great hole, eight feet wide, was cut in the side of the steamer by the steamship Alameda after her plunge through the Evans, Coleman & Evans' dock.

BIG UNDERWRITING LOSS.

The liabilities of underwriters through maritime disasters for the first three months of this year are the largest on record, the aggregate amount being near $10,841,000. The loss in January caused by the most important casualties was $3,212,500, and the amount for February was $2,285,000. Then since the beginning of March there has scarcely been a day that has not witnessed a misfortune of one kind or another. The sinking of the Oceana will probably cost Lloyds and the marine companies $500,000, even if all the bullion is recovered; but between Land's End and Dover five other vessels were lost during the month, their insurance value being $600,000. In addition, no fewer than eight steamers covered at Lloyds for a little over $1,500,000 have been wrecked in different parts of the world, while there is now little doubt as to the fate of the Australian inter-State liner Koombana, which is insured in the London market for $500,000. In all, during March 22 vessels were totally lost, and the value of ships and cargoes was $3,633,500. To these totals must be added $1,710,000, the value of five large steamers overdue and uninsured. While these losses are unparalleled in the history of Lloyds, they were but the precursors of the marine underwriters' huge loss by the foundering of the Titanic. The Titanic was covered by marine insurance to the extent of about $5,000,000. The insurance was placed with American and foreign companies and London and Liverpool underwriters; in fact, the marine insurance market of the world was practically exhausted in securing the amount required. About $1,050,000 was covered with underwriters at Lloyds, London. As there are 626 underwriting members of Lloyds, the individual interests there are divided. In addition to the amount on the vessel, Lloyds are heavily hit by insurances on the cargo, and on passengers' effects—jewellery, etc.—which will add very largely to the loss, while German transport companies lose about $375,000 through reinsurance of the Titanic, and the White Star line is said to have retained $750,000 of the risk on the vessel. The underwriters have been hard hit, and after such a series of losses a revision of rates seems likely. Had the Titanic carried gold in large quantities, the result would have been an immediate raising of rates, as was the case on the England-to-India route in consequence of the recent loss of the Oceana in the English Channel with several millions of silver on board.

A Wonderful Sanitary REFRIGERATOR

Most Sanitary

Most sanitary because nowhere in the entire lining or food department is there a single groove, crack, or crevice where a germ can dodge the cleaning cloth, and there can never be any such hiding places, because, unlike all other so-called stone, slate, or tile-lined refrigerators, Xyno stone can never chip, crack, or discolor—corners rounded, shelves, ice tank, everything slides out from front, then a glistening naked snow white lining of Xyno stone, as durable as nickel steel, beautiful as marble, and as easily cleaned as glass.

Most Economical

The Rhinelander is most economical. First: because of price, lower than any other Refrigerator daring to approach the Rhinelander in efficiency; second: because of minimum ice requirements. The casing is constructed of eight separate and distinct walls of casing, sheathing, and matchings, including a mineral wool lining and the Xyno stone lining. It keeps out the heat; keeps in the cold. Furthermore, the Rhinelander has a drainage system and a system of circulation that guarantees throughout the entire Refrigerator absolute dry air. The ice chamber is made of rust-proof galvanized iron, with back slanting floor to insure proper drainage. Cabinets of beautifully finished, air-dried oak, unconditionally guaranteed against warping or falling apart. Heavy nickel trimmings.

Hilo Lion Will Box George Ingle At Athletic Park

Honolulu is to be given a sporting innovation in the shape of an open-air boxing exhibition.

On June 1 at 4 p. m. two attractive preliminaries will preface fifteen rounds between Ben de Mello and George Ingle at the Athletic Park.

These curtain events will be in the nature of six-round bouts between Young Gans and Moriarty, the Fifth Cavalry favorite; and Wahlan, the hard-hitting native and Trooper Bauersock of the Fifth Cavalry.

The ring will be erected near the home-plate and will be of regulation size. The bouts will be pulled off without delay so as to let the spectators get home in time for dinner.

This will be the first open-air boxing exhibition ever pulled off in Honolulu and if it proves to be a success more events of this nature will be staged.

Popular prices will be charged for all but ringside seats, which will be sold for two dollars. The reserved sections of the grandstand will be priced at seventy-five cents, the covered bleachers at fifty cents, and the uncovered bleachers at two bits.

Ingle, Young Gans and Wahlan will train together and will go into camp on Monday.

Word was received from Ben de Mello this morning to the effect that he is training hard and will arrive by the steamer Mauna Kea next Saturday.

Despite reports to the contrary Young Gans will remain in Hawaii for at least seven or eight months longer. He is desirous of making another appearance in the squared circle and feels confident that he can make a better showing than he did on the occasion of his debut with Johnny McCarthy.

Cables made a good impression on the fans by his spirited boxing in the earlier rounds of his bout with McCarthy and also by his undoubted gameness.

He will be given a chance to meet some local boxer in the not distant future.

WARM RECEPTION IS PLANNED WHEN YACHT HAWAII ARRIVES

LONG BEACH, Cal., May 2.—The schooner yacht Hawaii, flying the burgee of the Honolulu Yacht Club, winner of the last biennial transpacific race from San Pedro to Honolulu, will leave for San Pedro harbor this week according to an official dispatch received by Secretary H. H. Wyatt, of the South Coast Yacht Club.

The Hawaii will be commanded by Captain "Bill" Stroud, who was second mate on board the boat two years ago when the boat won the race from a field of four entries.

Under normal conditions and with fair winds they should drop anchor at the South Coast Yacht Club anchorage on or before June. She will then have ample time for making preparations for the start of the big race, which will take place June 25.

From the time of their arrival until they depart on their 2500-mile trip back across the Pacific, the crew of the Hawaii will be the guests of the South Coast Yacht Club and yachtsmen of Long Beach and Southern California. A number of social functions have been arranged for them already.

It is likely that the South Coast Yacht Club will send a power craft out to meet the Hawaii and escort her into San Pedro outer harbor as soon as she is sighted off land.

BOWLERS BANQUET WAS MERRY FUNTION

The bowlers' banquet at the Y. M. C. A. last night was a great success. Nearly thirty were present, comprising the most prominent bowlers in Honolulu.

An elaborate menu was presented and the decorations were of a very original character.

Toastmaster W. O. Franklin presented the medals and trophies won in the two recent tournaments.

A silver loving-cup went to W. Williams, the prize won by him in the individual bowling tournament. He was also handed the mineralite ball presented by W. O. Franklin for the league player rolling the highest average in the tournament games.

The Brunswick-Balke trophy was presented to the Stragglers, winners of the senior tournament. Messrs. Edgecomb, Wisdom, Clymer, Franz and Barnard, members of the victorious team, were each presented with a gold medal.

C. A. Franz responded to a toast "For the Champions of the League." A. E. Larimer, "for the Association." C. K. Mitchener, "For the Press," and R. S. Young, "For the Bowlers." A number of others were called upon for extempore remarks.

Manager Wisdom is to be congratulated on the unqualified success of the affair. He has brought bowling into established popularity in Honolulu and to him every lover of the good sport is under deep obligation.

MAUI PLANS A MARATHON

Maui News: The ten mile race for Maui runners last Fourth of July morning, was such a success, that the promoters have decided to repeat the race again this year. There is a lot of work attached to getting up a race of this sort, as the money for the prizes must come through popular subscription. Last year the time made considering that the men in the race had very little experience, was exceptionally good. This year there will doubtless be many more entries, and the boys will have more time in which to get into condition.

In addition to the foot race, it is proposed to have a ten mile hand-cap bicycle race. This should prove quite an addition and should draw a large entry list.

The prizes last year were good, and an effort will be made to have equally good prizes again this year for both events.

Entries will be received for the foot race at the Maui News office up to July 1. For the bicycle race the entries will close June 27th, in order that the men can be properly hand-capped.

An entrance fee of $1.00 will be charged to cover expenses.

SCHOOL SPORT AT KAIMUKI

The annual sports of the Honolulu School for Boys will take place at the school this afternoon commencing at two o'clock.

An interesting program of events will be run through.

The officials of the meet will be drawn from the faculty.

The victor ludorum will receive a medal and prizes will be provided for individual event winners.

First place will count four points, second place two and third place one point.

The favorites for victor ludorum are Gordon Norrie and Jono who finished third in the school Marathon run a week ago. This performance gives him one point toward the school athletic championship.

Final play in the Clysme cup golf tournament is scheduled for Sunday, May 26.

MAUI AFTER JULY CROWD

Maui News: The Maui racing season is on again, and life at Spreckels park, Kahului, will be a strenuous one from now until the Fourth of July. Hilo has always threatened a counter attraction each year, and this year they are making more noise than ever, but the real sport will be here on Maui. Every year Hilo draws a few with the big noise, but everyone knows they get a good days racing on Maui, and the great majority come here each year regardless of the counter attraction.

This year the track will be in better condition than ever before, and the seating capacity will be greatly enlarged.

A number of horses are already at the track, four of them being from Honolulu. The stall's have all been engaged, and O'Rourke of Hilo will be on hand with his horses as usual, in an effort to lift the big purses.

It looks as though Maui horses will be a much bigger factor in the racing than last year, and Mr. O'Rourke will have the time of his life getting away with everything as he did last Fourth.

SPORTDRIFT

The following matches have been played in the Neighborhood Tennis Club's men's singles tournament this week:

L. M. Judd won from A. A. Hobson, 6-1, 6-1; A. G. Smith beat G. L. Duckworth 6-2, 6-1; William Thompson won from Fred B. Damon, 6-2, 7-5; Herbert Dowsett won from William Williamson, 6-3, 6-1.

There will be two matches today. Herbert Dowsett (scratch) meeting L. M. Judd (owe 15), and William Thompson (plus 15) meeting A. G. Smith (scratch).

The Y. M. C. A. chess tournament will open tonight. Each contestant will play two games with every other man entered. A win will constitute one point. A suitable trophy will be awarded the winner.

Following are the entries: H. B. Campbell, A. F. Cooke, E. K. Ellsworth, M. Emmons, W. F. Gaynor, F. Hurd, A. Hard, A. L. Mackay, C. F. Maxwell, E. C. May, H. Newcomb, J. Reardon, C. W. Renear, H. G. Smart, J. M. Tucker, A. R. Tulloch and F. Werner.

MAUI BALL SEASON OPENS

Maui News: Baseball opened up last Sunday, and a practice game was played in Wailuku between the Stars and the Kahului, and another game at Paia between the Camp One team and the Paia second team.

The game at Wailuku was very ragged, and the boys showed plainly their long layoff during the winter months. The Kahului team were unable to hit Bal to advantage at any stage of the game, while the slow twisters of Russell were knocked to all corners of the lot. The veteran George Cummings was not in the Star line-up, and it looks as though George was going to be content to rest on the sidelines this year. The passing of this player from active work on the diamond is a genuine loss, because with him in the game, things must go with a snap. George was always full of ginger on the ball field, and he was a sterling player as well.

At Paia, the Camp One team defeated the Paia's by a score of 8 to 7 in a well played game.

The Stars and the Paia first team will play at Wailuku tomorrow and the up country aggregation are reputed to be the real goods this year. The game tomorrow will be called at 3:30 p. m. at the Athletic Park. At 9 a. m. the C. A. C. Jrs., will play the C. A. U. and the Muhocks and the Whites, will cross bats in the second game.

Play will go on today and tomorrow in the Oahu Country Club's president's trophy competition.

Punahou and McKinley High School will meet at Alexander Field this afternoon in the interscholastic baseball series.

J. K. Noley has resigned as president of the Oahu Junior Baseball League. He will in future manage the league. M. R. Ferreira has been elected president.

The story in the Honolulu papers that the Puunene crew had wrecked their barge is not true, according to the Maui News. They punched a few holes in the bottom of the boat, but these will shortly be repaired, and the boat will again be in commission.

The Puunene Athletic Club bowling team will play their third match with Kaula tonight. The Puunene team consists of W. E. Bal, Jr., W. S. Chillingworth, F. Luffin, C. E. Meyers and E. E. Deinert. Each club has won a match, and this will decide which has the better team. It is probable the Wailuku gymnasium team will challenge Kaula after this match.

BIKERS WANT LIMIT CHANGED

There is considerable discussion among the bicyclists as to the age limit for the Haleiwa Junior race.

As originally arranged the limit for the event was placed at sixteen years. This, it appears, is not favorably regarded by the junior bikers who want the limit set at eighteen years and under.

Clarence Rawlins, Vincent Nascimento, Theodore Keiser and several meeting of the Haleiwa races of the age limit be placed at eighteen instead of sixteen years.

The matter will be considered at a meeting of the Haleiwa races committee to be held next week and the change will in all probability be made.

A MESSAGE FROM THE CANADIAN NORTHWEST.

Central Union church is doing a splendid public service in connection with its popular Sunday evening services in bringing before the people of Honolulu, from time to time, men of note from different parts of the world to tell of the happenings in their respective countries.

Tomorrow evening the Rev. W. G. W. Fortune, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, will deliver an address on "The Problems of the Canadian Southwest."

That this new country has such problems goes without saying, for perhaps no section of the American continent is growing as rapidly as is western Canada at the present time. As an instance of this rapid growth may be cited the city of Calgary which seven years ago had a population of less than ten thousand and today is a

THE HARVESTER ISSUE

The distinct question of veracity about the Harvester case scandal between Colonel Roosevelt and the President has been emphasized by the records of the Department of Justice which shows that Mr. Taft was away in Cuba when the question of prosecuting the trust was being discussed.

Conservative people who remember the building up of the Ananias club at Roosevelt's instance of men who had simply recalled events with which they were connected in a way different from the Rough Rider's, and had hitherto borne a good reputation, no longer take his individual anathemas at face value.

While this subject has not cut much of a figure in the primaries, where a minority only of Republican voters have turned out, it is certain to be made much of in case of a Roosevelt nomination, in the exhaustive debates of the national canvass.

Shutting Out Illiterates

Zion's Herald, a Boston religious weekly, basing its conclusions upon statistics contained in a pamphlet issued by the Immigration Restriction League, says that the proposed test would be a bar to practically one-third of the poor immigrants of Europe, and the St. Louis Star estimates that it "would reduce by one-half the present flow of ignorant and cheap labor, which is doing so much to reduce the average wages in the United States, particularly in the large iron and textile industries."

It is an effort to do two things. The first object is to preserve the standard of American labor and wages, and as such it should receive the hearty support of every man who works with his hands. And equally interested are those whose business depends upon the purchasing ability of the masses.

This is protection in its best sense. It is protection to American labor from cheap foreign labor and the lower conditions of living competition which it compels, and it is protection of the country as a whole from the threatened lowering of the average quality of citizenship.

The New York Sun quotes Senator Dillingham as having said in a debate on the bill just before its passage on April 19, that "from 75 to 85 per cent of all the males from southeastern Europe who are employed in the United States today are either single men or are living singly in the United States."

The life-interest and activity of the average wage-earner from southern and eastern Europe has seemed to revolve principally about three points: (1) To earn the largest possible amount of immediate earnings under existing conditions of work; (2) to live upon the basis of minimum cheapness; and (3) to save as much as possible.

The Sun thinks that we perhaps need drawn from southeastern Europe, but that the price we pay is too high if it includes a menace to our social, economic and political institutions or a degradation of American standards.

GREENS

By WALT MASON.

The pampered gourmet wishes for fancy kinds of dishes, kinds fit for kings and queens; but to the humble diner there's naught on earth that's finer than good old-fashioned greens. For months my soul was sighing for spinach, dandelion and other wholesome yarbs; they are the sign and token that winter's back is broken—the harbinger that harbs. Oh, greens! There's nothing beats 'em! The man who daily eats 'em has better grub, by jing, to still his stomach's groaning than ever yet was known in the palace of a king! Oh, greens! Our mothers stewed 'em, our fathers gladly chewed 'em, and hence those rugged sires who cleared the woods and prairie and scrapped with wild beasts hairy to guard their cottage fires. Note all those famous creatures whose proud and handsome features appear in magazines; if you but knew their story, you'd find they rose to glory through having eaten greens. All garden sass is splendid, and never may be ended the fame of peas and beans; may naught decrease the numbers of squashes and cucumbers—but best of all are greens.

A. MARCALLINO—The crowd seems to be pleased with the brand of ball that the league teams are putting up. The season is young as yet and there are many rough edges to be rubbed off but I believe that the teams at present comprising the Oahu Senior League will give the baseball loving public as good a season of sports as they have ever enjoyed.

R. D. WALL (Market Division)—I believe the importation of insectivorous song birds will go further toward solving the pest problem here than anything else. The expense would be comparatively light and if the birds did not destroy the pests they would at least work no harm by creating other pests and in addition they would add to the joy of living in the lands.

The Yokohama troupe of acrobats, the best acrobatic attraction since the time of Kalakaua, will be seen in daring and hazardous stunts. Their act alone is worth more than the prevailing price of admission. If you have already seen them this week, they will stand seeing again, as their act is original; if you haven't seen them yet it behooves you to do so tonight, for they'll only be here for a short while, and it's safe to say that it will be a long time before another opportunity of seeing such artists will present itself.

The Italian Saxophone quartet, master musicians, have a very good list of selections for tonight. They will render "Aloha Oe." This talented quartet is at its best in its rendition of the Queen's masterpieces.

"Current Events" is the title of a film that everyone should see. It's the most interesting film in the history of the Bijou. It shows President Taft and the late Maj. Butte witnessing a lacrosse game and reviewing a Sunday school parade. An aviation meet at Long Island shows a clever aviator flying over the city. It also shows a field day meet and a head-long collision between two locomotives. It's an interesting film all the way through.

HULA AT THE INDEPENDENT. The Independent theater tonight will offer a program that will please tourists. Two of Honolulu's foremost hula dancers will don the grass skirt and to the accompaniment of appropriate chanting will show how

PROPOSES HISTORICAL PAGEANT INSTEAD OF FLORAL PARADE

Although it was currently reported some time ago that the Promotion Committee proposed divorcing itself from active management of the annual floral parade, no evidence of such intention was manifest at the meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon, at which plans for the next big fete day were discussed. It is understood that the first thing that will receive attention is the selection of a director to handle the multitudinous and burdensome details connected with the ever enlarging parade and carnival week. The position was most ably filled by Arthur F. Wall, during the past two years, but the committee realizes that it could not, in justice to Mr. Wall, expect him to assume the task again.

It was also suggested by B. von Damm, a member of the committee, that the character of the event be changed somewhat, and that the name "floral parade" is becoming somewhat frite. He proposes that the celebration be made to center each year about some prominent event in Hawaiian history, such as the discovery of the islands by the Spaniards, some centuries ago, when a Spanish vessel was driven ashore on the island of Maui, and her crew became merged with the natives. Or of the more recent coming of Captain Cooke; the various conquests of Kamehameha I; the abolition of the tabus; the defying of Pele by Queen Kapulani; the seizure of the islands by the British, and their restoration by Captain Thomas, etc.

The idea met with favor from the committee, and the possibilities suggested will be followed up.

Moving Picture Proposition. The committee considered a proposition made by a motion picture company, of San Francisco, to exploit Hawaii through means of pictures taken in the islands. The 1912 Exposition Company, of the Coast city, is preparing to tour the United States with a train of fifteen special cars, which will visit 1416 cities, for the purpose of booming the big show and Hawaii has a chance to be represented in this through her moving pictures—if she is willing to come across with the cost, which is not mentioned. Secretary Wood stated that the train will probably carry an orchestra, and that his suggestion of a Hawaiian aggregation of singers for this purpose met with enthusiastic approval.

May Use Quarantine Launch. A letter received from Surgeon General Rupert Blue, of the U. S. Marine Hospital Service, grants the committee permission to have one representative accompany the quarantine launch to meet incoming vessels from the Coast. It refuses like permission, however, for vessels coming from the Orient.

ART EXHIBIT

but the fame which he has brought the islands in other lands.

The wide range of the artist is well exemplified by a comparison of his paintings, "Wai'alaia Stream" and "Night." The former is an airy symphony of color, tender and full of feeling, shrouding the spectator with the atmosphere of the South Seas. The other, representing a cypress against a cloud effect, is solitude and somberness typified, reminding one of Beethoven in this respect. It is remarkable for its coloring and original handling and exceedingly well done.

Another work of special mention is "Restful Reaches," sold to T. Clivo Davico. In this, the name is not needed to describe the picture, for the heart touch is ever present. The artist, through a touch of cold in the foreground, has emphasized the sunlight reaches of the beach beyond.

"Kahana Valley" is another remarkable effort. There is nothing flimsy in this painting but all is well ordered and in its place. The different planes give a splendid sense of atmosphere and the picture was one of those most admired. The artist has caught the cloud effects peculiar to the mountains of Hawaii perfectly and the coloring is exquisite. This picture is one of those already sold.

In No. 13, a "Color Study," sold to an eastern collector, the artist has again shown the wide range of his brush. It is a real color study. Here there has been no mixing of paints. The composition is forceful and bold, these qualities being applied with a full brush of paint. It is a picture which increases admiration the longer one views it.

One of Mr. Hitchcock's best things is the "Surf Rider," which is superb in composition and drawing.

It would appear that the people of the islands should owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Hitchcock for opening their eyes to the beauties of their land. Many of the scenes he presents are those which residents have passed unseeing scores of times but which after viewing Mr. Hitchcock's canvases will ever be remembered. With his work the artist is creating here an atmosphere of art which is a valuable asset to any community, and he deserves the greater credit in that he has worked these years without association with other artists, for the interchange of views and criticism among brethren of the brush has ever proved of the greatest help to those who would rise to fame.

A STUDY IN REFORM.

"That man is a strong reform agitator."

"Yes," replied Senator Sorwhum; "but he sees only the reforms that he can claim credit for. I don't know whether to call him a great reformer of a big advertiser."—Washington Star.

STOCKS BRIGHTEN UP WONDERFULLY

The local stock exchange showed more life today than at any time since the false report was given to the street that the House had turned down the Underwood free sugar bill. Like the cause of that activity, today's is largely due to Congressional news.

Stocks all along the list showed the effects of the stimulating news, and general strength is the rule. A large number of sales were made and reported on the street, though most of them were small. The last sale of Ewa was at 32 3/4, but bids of 33 today failed to bring out any, and holders are asking 33 1/4. H. C. & S. sold for 45 1/4, from 45 flat, and at close was holding strong at 45 1/2 asked.

Hauku and Pala plantations sold last at 200, but bids of 220 today failed to bring any out, and 250 was asked for the latter share at close. Reports that Pala will have a record crop this year—something like 35,000 tons of sugar—combined with good tariff news, is responsible for the rocketing tendency.

McBryde's advance was probably most noteworthy. Selling at 9 3/8 yesterday, it opened at 9 1/2 today and advanced to 9 3/4 sold during the session, and at close being held at 10, with 9 5/8 bid.

Olaa continues strong at 7 7/8. Holders are now demanding 8, and will probably get it.

Wai'alaia sold in considerable volume at 131, an advance of $1 over yesterday, and at close was being held for 131 1/2.

Since, if all about us is beautiful, the world is pleasanter to live in, a woman should do all she can to make herself as much of a delight to the eye as possible.

It will be contended that most women do this and give more time and spend more money to the doing of it than they should. But while it is true that some women go to one extreme, it is also true that some women go to the other extreme. And in between these two points are found many women who are in the main indifferent as to the effect their appearance makes. Vanity is not a desirable trait of character, and over-indulgence in the things of the toilet and dress are not to be commended; but nevertheless, a dainty, attractive appearance has its value. And it can be acquired without necessarily becoming vain or wasting time. And every woman who achieves it is adding beauty to the world.

Many women who may wish to give more thought than they do to their appearance contend that they haven't time. But perhaps they can find time where they haven't yet looked for it. The housekeeper with many responsibilities usually has her mornings full. But the afternoons are long, and here it is that she may find the time to give heed to her personal appearance.

One of the most helpful things the busy worker can do is to get a little rest in the afternoon. If she can only snatch forty winks, if she does this regularly, it will wonderfully improve her appearance. This will be particularly helpful to the nervous woman, or the one who works under a strain. Such a rest will take the tense lines out of her face, restore color, and work wonders in keeping her young-looking. Besides, when she is rested, she is not likely to be irritable, as she is when tired. And she is ready for any evening amusement the family may want her to share in.

Again, the woman who thinks she has no time for beauty culture can accomplish much by doing a little each afternoon. She should not give up in despair and do nothing, because she feels the chance for accomplishing anything is so slim. But if a few minutes in an afternoon are given to manicuring her nails, and a few minutes another day to vigorously brushing her hair, and so on through the things that must be done, she'll be surprised at the good results.

Many a woman who has little time and yet enviously regards the dainty woman, makes the mistake of trying to do too much at once. She decides she'll take an afternoon and give herself a thorough overhauling. She shampoos her hair, manicures her nails, and does the many other little things, the dainty toilette requires; and then, when she sees how the hours have flown and how neglected duties are staring her in the face, she decides all at once that she really hasn't time for such foolishness. And henceforth, she gives it up. Whereas, a few minutes each afternoon would in the end have accomplished the same result and have never been missed from the doing of the regular work.

And since daintiness and freshness add so much to a woman's attractiveness, if there is no other time to give attention to acquiring them, why not try to make the afternoon yield a few minutes daily to add to the beauty of life.

Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Templeton Crocker, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ivers, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dillingham, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Davies, Mr. and Mrs. George Potter and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dillingham.

Mrs. George Kimball and Miss Helen Kimball will be the house guests of Mrs. Andrew Fuller the early part of next week, until the departure of the Wilhelmina, when Mrs. Kimball will leave for the mainland.

The news of the expected return in the latter part of May of Miss Lucy Miriam Dimond, who left the islands to attend school on the mainland about four years ago, has been received with pleasure by her many friends. During her absence from Honolulu Miss Dimond has been attending Miss Harker's school from which she graduated yesterday. Mrs. Dimond and her son and daughter will occupy the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Berndt at Kaimuki, while the latter will move into their new bungalow which is nearing completion. Miss Dimond's sojourn in Honolulu is indefinite as to time and many entertainments have been planned for her. During the past four years Miss Dimond has spent her vacations with her aunt, Mrs. Edward Dimond of San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Dillingham will give a picnic lunch tomorrow for the Mr. and Mrs. Charles Templeton

Crocker. There will be about fifty guests.

Mr. Gavien Bush, Mr. Roy Douglass and Mr. Kenneth Ables were incoming passengers in the Sierra yesterday morning.

Mrs. Young, of Lynchburg, Pennsylvania, the mother of Mrs. Alexander Lindsay, arrived in the Wilhelmina, Tuesday, and is the guest of Judge and Mrs. Lindsay at their home in Manoa.

General A. S. Hartwell, accompanied by his daughters, the Misses Dorothy and Bernice Hartwell will leave in the Manchuria, Tuesday, for an extended visit on the mainland.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Symmes, of San Francisco, California, will motor through Moanalua this afternoon, the guests of Col. A. G. Hawes.

Mr. and Mrs. Templeton Crocker for whom so many elaborate entertainments are planned will make only a short sojourn in Honolulu. They will leave for San Francisco in the Sierra, to be present at the wedding of Miss Jennie Crocker and Malcolm Whitman announced for the early part of June.

The College Club gave a luncheon at the Waialua today for the girls of the senior classes of Oahu College and McKinley High School. The invited guests were Miss Edith Baldwin, Miss Marian Brown, Miss Hazel Buckland, Miss Frances Cochran, Miss Helen Colebrook, Miss Alice Davis, Miss Margaret Forrest, Miss Hazel Gear, Miss Lorna Jarrett, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Edith Keola, Miss Ruth Lindley, Miss Martha McChesney, Miss Ruth Renton, Miss Garnie Rosecrans, Miss Beatrice White of Oahu College and Miss Adele Wicke, Miss Eleanor Vogel, Miss Grace Inz, Miss Zella De lo Nus, Miss Helene von Arswalt, Miss Meta Peterson, Miss Clara Ingalls, Miss Carrie James, Miss Lani Hutchinson, Miss Mary Haina, Miss Hiro Mirahara, Miss Olympia Soares, Miss Lydia Dias and Miss Josephina Azevido of McKinley.

The date set for the play "The Cricket on the Hearth" to be presented by the Punahou Dramatic Club, has been changed from Saturday the 25th, to Friday, the 24th of May.

Mrs. George Curry entertained informally at tea on Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. W. H. Hoogs who leaves for the coast next week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Watt were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Watt of Oahu, on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Harry Patten entertained at an elaborate card party on Tuesday afternoon at the Hilo Hotel. The guests numbered about sixty and included all of the younger set. The first prize, a handsome Irish crochet bag, was won by Mrs. Harry Irwin; the second, a cut glass dish, was given to Miss Hapai and Mrs. B. K. Baird carried home the consolation prize, a satsuma plate. The hotel is an attractive place for any entertainment and was especially homelike and beautiful on this occasion. Large palms concealed the office entrance and Mrs. Patten received her guests at the entrance to the first cottage. Card tables were arranged in the large reception room and also on the lanai which was enclosed in palms and ferns.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith of Hilo entertained at a five hundred party on Wednesday evening for Mrs. H. J. Lyman. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lyman, Miss Hapai, Miss Deyo, Miss Lyman, Mrs. Drahma, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. J. T. Lewis, the Misses Shipman, Miss Anabelle Low, Mrs. Cluet, Mr. Deyo, Mr. Day, Mr. Shipman, Mr. Ruddle, Mr. R. W. Anderson.

Last Saturday night was one of the most lively Hilo has enjoyed for several moons. In the elegant Masonic Hall the Elks and their friends held forth in the merry mazes of the dance until the witching hour of midnight; in Forester's Hall the recently born Moose held a smoker which was well attended and much enjoyed; at St. James Hall there was a generously patronized and joyous dance, and at Mocheau Park the band played for hundreds of twinkling toes. Other dances, public and private, in halls and in homes were under way and it seemed that half the town was on tip-toe. The theaters were crowded into the bargain, and Front street was alive with a big throng of shoppers and people on parade. There were assuredly a few doings.

Mrs. H. L. Kerr was hostess at one of the most elaborate teas of the season, on Thursday in honor of Mrs. R. M. Pogson, one of California's celebrated artists, and the guests were given the opportunity of viewing many of the lady's paintings. Mrs. Kerr's home on Alewa Heights was beautifully decorated with great white lilies and white oleanders.

Mrs. Pogson and her sister Mrs. F. W. Girvin received with the hostess. Mrs. James Wakefield presided over the tea table. She was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Katherine Kerr, Mrs. Katherine Paris, Miss Catherine Jones, Miss Hester Pratt and Miss Marcell Wakefield.

The invited guests were Mrs. R. N. Pogson, Mrs. W. D. Alebander, Miss Agnes Alexander, Miss Mary Alexander, Mrs. A. L. Andrews, Mrs. R. W. Andrews, Mrs. A. C. Alexander, Mrs. W. D. Adams, Mrs. J. B. ## Coast Society News

Coast Society Notes.
Examiner, May 9: Word was received yesterday by her San Francisco friends that the Princess David Kawanakoa has left London en route to San Francisco and her home in Honolulu. The Princess will meet her sister, Mrs. George Beckley, in this city and will remain here for a short rest before taking ship for the islands.

Los Angeles Times, May 5: Miss June Whittemore of No. 339 Kingsley drive, has returned from a three months' visit in Honolulu where she was the guest of Mrs. H. K. Castle, who returned to Los Angeles with her and is a guest at the Whittemore home.

Post, May 8: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lowe, who arrived yesterday from Raymond, Wash., called today for Honolulu, where they will be for some weeks. Mrs. Lowe was Miss Emily Johnson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Johnson. Her marriage was an event of the past month.

Oakland Tribune, May 8: Miss Edna Siegfried and Miss Alexine Mitchell leave shortly for Honolulu, where they will join Mrs. Charles Tilden and her daughter, and Miss Marguerite Carpenter.

SAN RAFAEL, May 9.—The wedding of Miss Irene Ciprico, a recent graduate of the Dominican college here and Alexander A. Bedford of Pasadena was celebrated this evening at the home of the bride's parents, Colonel and Mrs. E. S. Ciprico, in Belle avenue.

After a six months' visit to Honolulu, Mr. and Mrs. Bedford will make their home in Pasadena, where the groom has interests. The bride is charmingly pretty and is an accomplished pianist.

BOSTON, May 17.—Richeson, the clergyman convicted of murdering a girl, will be electrocuted in the week beginning the 19th inst.

The Sugar Duty.
WASHINGTON, May 17.—The Senate finance committee has authorized a favorable report on the Lodge substitute for the Underwood sugar bill, the substitute eliminating the differential on refined and the Dutch standard, and leaving the tariff otherwise unchanged.

The finance committee makes an unfavorable report on the Federal income tax amendment bill.

Mexican War Horrors.
YERMO, May 17.—The Federal forces are moving northward. The bodies of many rebels have been found. Many starving rebels stagger into camp.

JIMINEZ, May 17.—Three workmen have been caught and court-martialed for burning bridges to prevent the rebels from retreating.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Private Secretary to the President Hillis, in statements issued here, declares that the department of justice records show conclusively that Roosevelt stifled the harvester prosecution in 1906. These findings are taken as a confirmation of the declaration by President Taft that he was not present at the cabinet meeting when it was agreed to drop the prosecution. It was claimed by Roosevelt that Taft was not only present but acquiesced in the proposal to drop the case. Taft is shown by the department of justice records to have been in Cuba during the period when the prosecution was under way.

INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana, May 18.—Eugene V. Debs was nominated as the Socialist candidate for president in the national convention held here yesterday. Emil Seidel, former mayor of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, who was turned down for a second term at the recent election, was nominated for vice president. The convention condemned the constitution of the Industrial Workers of the World, which calls for constant and direct action against capital. The tactics of the industrialists in the present labor troubles throughout the country were also condemned.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The Teft faction will not contest the fourth district of California, where the result of the recent primary election remained uncertain.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Six piers eight hundred feet long will be constructed at Harbor View, the waterfront portion of the 1915 Panama-Pacific International Exposition, to handle the immense marine traffic that is expected leading up to and during the exposition year. They will be of extremely ornamental design, to harmonize with the general scheme of the Harbor View exposition buildings.

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—Ennis Tweedle,

Goldman and her anarchistic benchman, Dr. Ben Reitman, have been summoned to appear before the grand jury on charges of sedition.

(Continued from page One.) position for nearly a year. Adams objected to the word "dilly-dallying," when Fern retorted, "That's what the supreme court says." Fern went on to say that Wilson's bid was $2400 less than on the former call, while the lowest bid for the second section was raised a thousand dollars. He did not blame Lord-Young for raising, as they had hauled their material under the voided contract.

Petrie held the matter important, there being no extension of time, with which Campbell agreed. There was a penalty of $50 a day after the expiration of the contract time.

Fern thought there was something behind the failure of anyone to second his motion.

L. L. McCandless by permission offered remarks, indicating three ways whereby any lack of funds for expenses could be overcome.

Petrie then said he had not changed his mind from the former occasion about the question of Wilson's being "a reasonable bidder." He wanted action on the first section deferred to allow the commissioners to consult with each other. He then renewed his motion to award the contract for the second (Wahiawa) section to the Lord-Young Engineering Co.

Fern said that if there remained a question of Wilson's responsibility, after the supreme court's decision, Petrie should have had a clause put in the specifications stating that Wilson would not be allowed to bid. "If this continues we will never get out of court," he warned them.

Finally Campbell seconded Petrie's motion, which carried against the sole dissenting vote of Fern.

Fern then moved that the contract for section one be awarded to Wilson. There was no second and Campbell moved to defer action on section one for one hour.

Adams said he wanted to consult some business friends on the matter.

Against Fern's protest the meeting took a recess for one hour, which would bring it past the Star's press time.

B. H. KELEKOLIO STARTS A PAPER

Hilo is to have another weekly paper. This information was received through the treasurer's office this morning, where a letter was received informing the department that the Ka Lee o ka Lehulehu (Voice of the People) was about to be issued every Friday by the Hawaii Herald Publishing Company.

Bernard H. Kelekolio, the "boy orator" and politician of Hawaii, is the editor and founder of the new publication, which is to be printed in the Hawaiian language and devoted to the native interests.

The same mail brought Treasurer Conkling the information that the Hilo Masonic Hall Association has increased its capital stock from $50,000 to $200,000.

This year's assessed valuation of real and personal property on the Island of Hawaii amounted to $39,300,000—nearly $9,000,000 more than last year, last year's figures being $30,300,000.

TRANSPORT DANCE AT YOUNG TONIGHT

The management of the Alexander Young Hotel will give a dance tonight in honor of the officers and ladies of the transport Sherman, to which local army and navy people, guests of other hotels and society folk are cordially invited.

POSTOFFICE EXTENSION

Workmen are engaged in making alterations in the rooms in the McCandless building, recently occupied by the Star as offices to adapt them to the needs of the postoffice department, which has taken a lease on the apartments. A doorway is being cut through the partition separating the rooms from the present registry department, of which they will hereafter form a part. The postoffice will be installed in the new space during the coming week.

A NEW UNIVERSAL RELIGION

Rev. Dr. Scudder will preach tomorrow morning in the Central Unions pulpit on "A New Universal Religion." The subject is a suggestive one, with some glamour or heresy, but that is a point on which the inquisitive spirit of the Star has wasted its efforts. Dr. Scudder prefers to keep the sermon for those who come to church to hear it.

INDICATIONS

(Continued from Page One) leaving Tuesday night and returning on Friday. His purpose was to begin institute work for the Sunday schools for that side of the Island of Hawaii. He leaves this week Saturday for Molokai. Rev. Collins G. Burnham of Lahaina will accompany him. They will hold a Ministers' School and Teachers' Institute on Molokai, returning on Wednesday of next week.

Improvements. The addition to the Maui Hotel is rapidly being completed. The new rooms will be most attractive, and the dining room on the first floor one of the best appointed outside of Honolulu. Manager W. H. Field is to be highly congratulated upon his success.

The house for Mrs. Fanny M. Simpson which the Maui Aid Association is erecting on the beach on land leased from William Olson, is being rapidly completed. It will be a very attractive four-roomed bungalow style. The mission work conducted by Mrs. Simpson was never in more flourishing condition.

Over twenty new books were added to the Maui Library this past week. They are not fiction, but were purchased by the Maui Aid Association through a gift from an Eastern friend. They belong to the highest type of solid reading. The library committee expects to add new fiction as soon as a meeting of that committee has been arranged. All members who have not as yet placed their lists for new books should do so at once with Mrs. C. C. Gossin, librarian.

General Items

Baseball started in earnest last Sunday. Pala second nine was defeated by the Camp I team at Pala by a score of 8 to 7. Three hundred people were present to cheer the game on. The Kahului team and the Morning Stars played at Wailuku. The Stars won by a score of 14 to 2. The Kahului team had not had any practice, but just wait a week or so and then see what the results are.

Several unusually large hauls of fish have been made off Maliko gulch and the Pauwela coast. Early in the week passers along the belt road noticed an unusually large number of fishing sampans at work. One akule of tremendous size was caught, and a large shark captured near the light-house.

Mrs. W. E. Foster will be retained as district nurse and also has been appointed superintendent of the Kula Sanatorium.

Antonine Garcia has been appointed clerk in the office of the Wailuku district overseer.

The wife of R. Saida of the Haleakala Japanese Settlement died last week. Mrs. Saida had been prominent among the Japanese of Kula, having assisted her husband in the store business for many years.

Mrs. H. P. Baldwin sailed for Honolulu in the last Lurline. She will spend a short time in the city.

MISSES E. G. and H. C. HITCHCOCK are booked to leave in the Mauna Kea on Tuesday.

J. V. MARCIEL arrived this morning to attend the meeting of supervising principals held today.

MR. and MRS. R. A. COOKE and Miss Alice Cooke are booked for Molokai by the Mikahala on Tuesday.

REV. T. CARAHER, state chaplain of the Hibernians in California, who was accorded a reception by members of the order here, will return home in the Sierra.

WM. H. HOOBS, chairman of the Promotion committee will leave for the coast Tuesday, on the Manchuria. He will attend the Rose Festival at Portland in the interests of Hawaiian promotion work. He will look after such matters in San Francisco also.

VISIT TO WOMAN TRAPS GEM THIEF

San Francisco Call, May 10:—Friends of Mrs. Isabel Strong of Montecito, daughter of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson and sister of Lloyd Osbourne, the writer, will be congratulating her today upon her prompt recovery, through the police of this city, of some gems valued at $1000 stolen from her by Keoloha Kawawakea, a Hawaiian gardener employed until recently on the Stevenson place in Santa Barbara.

Kawawakea was arrested here last evening at 1504 Mason street by Detectives James McGowan and Nicholas Bakulich upon advices from the Santa Barbara police, having been traced to this address through a trunk which he had shipped to a woman friend named Annie Greeley, whom he planned to join. When searched at police headquarters last night one of the stolen diamonds was found on him. The other was located shortly afterward at a pawnshop. The prisoner refused to talk.

The prisoner was working about the place last Monday during the absence of the Stevenson family. Upon their return Mrs. Strong missed two rings, a diamond ring valued at $700, another ring set with two diamonds and three sapphires valued at $300, and a purse containing $35. Investigation disclosed that Kawawakea had entered the house. Later the police of Santa Barbara discovered that he had brought one of the rings to a jeweler there, who had removed two of the diamonds at his request.

Upon telegraphic advices a watch was kept on the Mason street watch, and when the man arrived there this evening he was taken into custody. He will be returned to Santa Barbara. Mrs. Strong is well known in San Francisco, having resided with her

THE BIRD OF PARADISE

A Story of the Great Play Now Being Acted in New York.

"Then Luana," frowned her husband in drunken disapproval, "why did you put down your glass and go?"

"Oh, I thought you all saw—it was not my glass!" The girl laughed in relief. "It was my finger-bowl!"

"Ha, ha," mimicked the Captain in angry derision. "And I suppose you sneaked out just now and met your Kanaka friends to sing a duet! That won't go down with me! I tell you I'm on!" And he emphasized the fact with another assault on the suffering table. "I won't have a man under me that's got a would-be Kanaka queen hanging onto his neck, whispering in his ear and pouring lava down his neck! Wilson, I'm through with you—you can go!"

"What!" gulped Wilson.

"You can go!" repeated the Captain with unnecessary emphasis. "You go back to Puna and eat poi under the palm trees! That's all you're good for! Commissionaire to the United States—huh!"

Wilson came unsteadily around to him.

"Hold on, Hatch!" he pleaded. "You don't know what you're saying! It isn't fair! You said you were a square man, Hatch!"

"I am!"

"Well, then, give me a chance for my life!"

"Your life!" exclaimed Luana.

"All right—go ahead! Ask her!" commanded the Captain in slightly modified tones. Wilson turned to his wife.

"Luana, have you been meeting Kanakas here secretly?"

"No!" replied the girl promptly, "but no secrets. I going to tell you. Hohono came!"

Wilson started "Hohono?"

"Yes, Hohono!" snapped the Captain. "That back-biting man shark!"

"Ah, no, no!" protested Luana. "He came just to see me and to ask me to go home. And I—I promised him that maybe—maybe we go back."

"You'll do that all right!" declared the Captain, grimly.

"No, no, Hatch! Please—just a minute!" begged Wilson. Then he turned angrily to Luana once more.

"So, Luana, you were scheming to bring me back to nothing—to spoil my career—my life!" His voice rose in virtuous indignation.

His Life Spoiled.

"Why, man," said the captain with brutal contempt, "you spoiled your life when you married that Kanaka!"

TITANIC POETRY

THE DEATH-ROLL

OF THE TITANIC.

If in the noon they doubted, in the night

They never swerved. Death had no power to appal

There was one Way, one Truth, one Life, one Light,

One Love that soared triumphant over all.

If in the noon they doubted, at the last

There was no Way to part, no Way but One,

That rolled the waves of Nature back and cast

In ancient days a shadow across the sun.

If in the noon they doubted, their last breath

Saluted once again the eternal goal.

Chanted a love-song in the face of Death,

And rent the veil of darkness from the soul.

If in the noon they doubted, in the night

They waved the trivial world of strife aside,

Flooded high heaven with an immortal light,

And taught the deep how its Creator died.

—ALFRED NOYES, in London Mail.

THE TITANIC AND THE TITANS.

"Build me a ship so big and safe
And strong," the master said.
"It will not feel the flood below
Nor tempest overhead."

And forth the giant liner swept
Upon her westward way,
A moving city of the foam,
With lights and music gay.

But from the north a ghostly fleet,
Mist-bannered, ages old,
Came gliding down by cliff and cape—
The navy of the cold.

A mighty squadron wrought and launched
By elemental force,
With nothing but the shifting tides
To steer its silent course.

Beneath the silver stars that watch
The dramas of the deep
From Pole to Pole forevermore,
With eyes that never sleep,
It met the proud Titanic, made
To conquer wind and wave,
And sunk her fathoms in the sea
And sailed above her grave.

—MINNA IRVING, in S. F. Examiner.

THE SEA.

"Who shall deny me my children?"
cries the sea.

"Who shall call me cruel when I croon
so bitterly?
Shall the mother of all men never take her own again?
Ye are heartless who bemoan the mother craving of the sea."
Man may not deny his mother when she stretches forth her hand.

See her river fingers, feeling for him through the furrowed land
She will find him on the hill where the streamlets do her will,
For the raindrops and the brooks are slaves at her command.

Sarcophagus or urn shall not hold man from the sea,
Though she fret and drain the soil for a long eternity,
She will draw him to her breast
where forever he will rest,
In the arms of her who sleeps not, the insistent mother sea.

Man's body made of clay shrinks in terror of the sea,
Dreads the silent tombless vastness of her boundless emgry
But the soul which knows its mother rushes to her like a lover,
And the brave man laughs at death
as he sinks into the sea.

O queenly mother sea, ever ancient ever young,
Glorious art thou and beautiful be yond the words of pen or tongue;
We have sent thee of our worth from this moriant, neckle earth,
Let thy long tides sing their glory as their glory should be sung.

—F. W. SHIBLEY, in New York Sun

THE ICEBERG.

I am the iceberg!
Before man was, I was;
Since the sea was, I have been;
When first the sun came with its light
To rend the veil of frozen night
And with its warmth to touch the earth

And give to primal life its birth,
I brought me here,
Child of the Ice and of the Sun,
And made the sea.

For me to wander in.
Since my beginning,
Made again of ice and snow,
Unchanged, I come and go.

What first I was, I still remain,
Primeval, plain
And unimproved;
As in the past I was, I am today
Still of the same primordial way.

In ages gone the sea was mine alone,
But in these modern days,
Upon its ancient ways,
I meet man in his ships,
His signs of power afloat,
His monuments of what is best
And latest in the realm
Of his accomplishment

Man of the thousand years,
I of the millions;

He that is new,
I that am old;

He, in his pride of progress,
Forging far ahead of what he was;
I, still the same as I began,
I meet him in his ships,
And then
I, still the same,
Move on,
Alone.

—W. J. LAMPTON.

The Onlooker

By the Man at the Tailor Shop

Speaking of a spellbinder for the Fourth of July, I am inclined to think that, if the committee cannot get an outsider, it will have no trouble about securing a satisfactory public speaker at home. There are a lot of them; and the most scholarly one, to my mind, is Judge Whitney. Anybody who has heard Whitney has reason to remember what he said, and for one I should be glad to hang on his lips for a whole day if they could stand the strain.

One of the most eloquent and forceful speakers we have is Dr. Hobdy. Nobody leaves a hall while he is talking, and that is a sure sign. Besides he is a Southerner, and it is many a year since we have had a Fourth of July address from a man from the part of the country which produced Washington, Jefferson and Patrick Henry, and wanted liberty or death and a quick decision by the umpire.

Editor Matheson has been coming to the footlights in the last few years, and as an American by choice instead of sheer necessity, he would have a special advantage in his ability to tell how the Fourth appeals to the outsider. Matheson has a fine stage presence, a good voice and a well-stocked mind; and when he gets down to work the folks sit up and take notice.

John Hughes is a dynamo full of the right kind of talk. He "might have been a Rooshian, a Dutchman or a Proosian," as the song says, "but he chose a better station and belongs to another nation." He was pure Irish while a lad, but he came over to be an American and succeeded, as most Irishmen do who go into politics. I have heard him speak at banquets, and I forgot my tea until it got cold and my ice cream until it got warm. On a Fourth of July John would be at his best.

R. W. Breckons is a good man for forensic duty, as everybody knows. He was used to the eagle among the Rockies, and can make one scream by just looking at him as he does at a witness. And Robert has brains behind his tongue. When some trifier was going to supersede him as United States District Attorney it was succinctly remarked at the club: "Now we are going to have dignity without law, instead of law without dignity." But as Robert has got a new hat and shaves regularly, his dignity has improved.

There are more of them, but I have just so much space. Collector Cottrell makes a strong impression. Judge De Bolt is a persuasive public talker. Judge Robinson knows how. Chief Justice Robertson made a reputation on the platform a few months after he came out of college. Governor Carter leaped to the platform of the Republican National Convention a few years ago and stirred the gathering mightily. The clergymen can all speak well; and in the other islands there are men who can set the echoes going, Carl Carlsmith particularly.

So if we can't get a Coast spellbinder for a change, we have no cause to make the Fourth a mute-festival or leave it to mere cannon crackers for a big noise.

One of the other papers said, the other day, that something happened "down in Tennessee" and that a man came in from "the antipodes" with a lot of interesting things about Australia. All this shows the force of habit in language. Tennessee isn't "down" to us, if "down" means south. We ought to say "up" in Tennessee if we use such a descriptive term at all; and as for our "antipodes," it is in the Transvaal and not in Australia at all. But our writers generally forget that Hawaii is in a different latitude than New York or Wisconsin or wherever they hail from; and that the antipodes of England is not necessarily a fit for Hawaii.

Jack Kallekela hopes to be chief of detectives again when the wahines vote, and that is said to be the reason why Jack's better half is so prominent in the suffragette hul. Jack was a detective who helped to keep tropical life from getting monotonous. I remember when he went up to Manoa one morning to look into a robbery and get a clue. Jack wasn't sure what a clue was and he seemed to feel hurt that it wasn't something that made a noise like a fee. But he seen his duty and done it. As the tale went at the time, he tiptoed into the burglarized house, looked under everything, and then went among the bushes outside, ready to make a census of every criminal there. Then, after much hesitation, he said reassuringly to the lady of the house: "If this ever happens again, just you let me know."

I hope that "Alfred Honolulu," as he used to call himself, and who is coming back after long absence, will wear the same old garb and appear in the same old spectral guise. That would be like old times when, after his skeletalized figure had passed along the street, the mockers said of him that "he had no visible means of support." A thinner man never wore the raiment of an Anglican Bishop, which consisted of black coat, knee breeches and shovel hat; but thin or not he weighed a ton in many a controversy.

I had several flare-ups with him, over annexation, an American Episcopacy, etc., both of which he was opposed to, and want to say, in all candor, that it was no summer's day amusement to me. The old British Bishop may have been a ghostly father in his legs, but he was healthfully robust in his mind. He was always at war with his Anglican people here, but he never gave way to numbers. He might have said:

Come one, come all, this rock shall fly
From its firm base as soon as I.

If he had said it the others would have known that he meant it. How the Bishop did fight annexation, as with tooth and nail; and when the deed was done he intrenched his officials in St. Andrew's, thinking that he could hold the fort against the Episcopal Church of America. Little Kiteat, whom the public lovingly called Kittenat, was made canon of the cathedral; Fitz of the ingrowing visage was made something else, and there were several more grenadiers hidden around in ecclesiastical rifle pits. But the defense didn't work; and when Bishop Nichols came over to fix things up he made an American church of the old foundation with a simple turn of the wrist.

But it is all over now, and old quarrels will not be allowed to interrupt the good feeling which will greet Alfred Tonga, if that is what he calls himself now, when he comes to revisit the glimpses of the moon.

I see in The Friend that the hereditary mothers of the mission did not rally very strong before the camera to group as grandmothers. There are a lot of them here, but only a few were willing to pose, in venerated row, for the delectation of The Friend's readers. It is a mighty hard test of fortitude, either on the part of a woman or a man, to take one's place in a picture row of grandparents. Think of a sculptor's asking a subject to pose as a grandmother! He would be stabbed with a hairpin. Nobody takes pictorial pride in a grand-parental ripeness, and some of those who consented to join The Friend's photographic group were real martyrs to duty, especially those who did not look the part.

I wish that Hawaii had more historical pictures to go with its fine supply of historical portraits and landscapes. There are many events in our history that deserve an appreciative and convincing brush. The story of those ancient Spaniards wrecked on the shore of Kealakekua bay, opposite where Captain Cook was killed (man and wife, I believe) would make a striking picture. Dripping from the salt water, spent with swimming, kneeling thankfully on the sands and telling their beads in prayer, timidly approached, perhaps, by some kindly native woman with food—why such a picture, if well done, would be sure of hanging on the line. Then the landing of Kamehameha on the shores of Oahu, with his savage warriors, whose canoes crowded that little roadstead at Kahala opposite the Tenney Peck place. Tradition points out the flat stone he landed on. One may picture the scene in the mind's eye—the sunrise, the ochered bulk of Diamond head close at hand, with its warm slopes, the fleeing figures of a few Oahuans, the great war chiefs following their majestic leader ashore, the armed flotilla, the soft surges piling themselves upon the beach. By Heavens! if you'll

HAWAII FRUIT IN CANADA

The following from the Vancouver News-Advertiser is particularly interesting at this juncture when Hawaii fruit is being looked on with disfavor on the coast:

Fifty carloads of nursery stock, packed tight and inspected tree by tree, have gone through the hands of the local fruit inspection office already this season. Thomas Cunningham, provincial inspector of fruit, states that condemnations have been proportionally fewer than in former years.

"We find, however," said the inspector, "that a new trouble has developed. We have found the pith of some of the young trees coming in to be discolored and brown. This not being a contagious disease, I had serious doubts about my authority to condemn the trees, so I allowed them to go through, but I believed it was my duty to apprise the consignees and I am sending out this circular letter."

Cunningham here produced a copy of the circular setting forth the nature of the injury and advising growers to cut down below the discoloration to the white pith before planting. The circular stated that the discoloration was evidently caused partly by heavy rains in Washington, where most of the stock came from last fall. Cunningham said he did not wish growers to take any chances and cutting down the trees would do no injury, as it would tend to create trees with lower tops and better to handle.

Discussing a recent order of the Dominion Government restricting the importation of Hawaiian fruit and compelling importers to notify the Dominion entomologist, Cunningham pointed out that owing to the distance of this province from Ottawa, British Columbia was excepted from the provisions. He did not think the country would suffer from it, except that it might prohibit the importation of pineapples, of which we got some of the best from Hawaii. So far as he was concerned he was more anxious to see reciprocal trade relations with Australia in fruit importations. The only objection seemed to be that there might be danger of introducing from the Antipodes the Mediterranean fruit-fly to Canada. One of his staff had large experience in dealing with this pest, having been for seven years in the New Zealand department of entomology, so that he was well equipped for inspection of fruit infected with it. In New Zealand it could only be eradicated by destroying all trees in which infection was found. It was introduced to that colony on oranges, and protective measures were not taken until many peach trees were infected with it. There was little danger of having to pass through that experience in British Columbia, as we had the men and the equipment to deal with it.

MINOR CASES

In the police court yesterday morning August de Rego, charged with needless driving, was discharged.

Dah Nee, charged with violating the auto speed ordinance, was fined $15 and costs.

Noa, alias Mrs. Sam Kallil, charged with slapping the face of a Korean woman, was fined $2 and costs.

Manuel Rawlins, charged with profanity, was fined $5 and costs.

Hirao, violator of the rubbish ordinance, was taxed $3 and costs.

A. Martins alias Martin Abrahamson, drunk, was fined $3 and costs.

The case of T. Delaval, charged with assault and battery on a Hawaiian woman, and vagrancy, was remanded. Delaval ran amok Thursday night in Kakaako with a razor and threatened to carve several of the residents of that suburb.

wait a minute I'll have Johnny Martin fill in the outlines with four brands of paint.

Another picture would show the last stand of that Oahuan chieftain up Nuuanu valley. That would be a spirited one indeed. Then there ought to be scenes from Captain Cook's visit, and one called "The Temple of Refuge"—a pursued native finding asylum in a heau. And what of a cave burial and a Propitiation of Pele with the ancient rites?

If any artist will take this matter up, I will supply all the subjects he wants and give him half the proceeds. All he will have to fuss about is the art.

"MILLIONS IN IT"

I, the undersigned, do hereby certify that, with a party of honest men who will work above board, I will take them to a country where gold and platinum is to be found in great quantities.

Through my many years of experience in South America I have made discoveries as regards the precious metals that few of the outside world are aware of.

There is an island which lies twenty-two miles off the coast and a channel of sixty fathoms depth, and when the freshets are on in the rainy season the flake gold is washed up on the eastern beach and perceptible to the naked eye among the black sands which abound in that part of the country, which goes to show that there are mighty ledges from which the gold is washed out, and through coming down the rivers it chafes down thin, being soft (24 karats gold).

Description of the Country.

At the coast it is low land, thickly wooded with mangles and tropical foliage, and a thick underbrush. As you go up the rivers about eight or ten miles the scene changes. You come to the great hard-wood trees, such as rosewood, chachau, corazon, de bejan, ammerillo, guayacan, and lots of other valuable hardwoods, and also thick underbrush which has to be cut through with the machete, which no one is without when out traveling through the brush.

When you arrive at an altitude of two hundred and fifty feet you find one of the finest climates in the world. The air is so clear that you can see a man four miles and hear the ring of his voice. There is a four months dry season during the year, the other eight months it rains frequently, and then the sun comes out for several hours, followed by another shower. On the full and changes of the moon in these months it will rain incessantly for twenty-four hours and then clear off for a couple of days, whereupon the showers commence again. But in the dry season the rivers are low and the water clear. That is the time to get in your work with the diving apparatus in the deep holes where no doubt large quantities of gold are deposited.

Necessary for An Outfit.

A schooner of fifty to one hundred tons, net, metal at the water line; also the keel and garboard strake, to protect from the toro worms which abound in the tropics. Between the metalting copper paint can be used, as there are lots of fine beaches to clean the vessel's bottom on. Provisions must be hermetically sealed, as it is a damp climate where the schooner will lie, as she can only go up the river forty-five or fifty miles, then a launch will be the thing to tow up the canoes as far as the first gravel bar. Then the canoes will be dragged up by the natives over the rapids. A diving machine would be beneficial for many purposes, which will be explained in a personal interview. The centrifugal pump would be the thing to work the rivers, put up under my own design as regards the pipe, which is an invention of my own.

The Labor Question.

Labor can be obtained at the small rate of eighty cents per day in the coin of the country, or about twenty-seven cents in United States gold coin, with food which amounts to rice, beans and any kind of meat that is available.

On the passage down there are islands where a gold bearing lava may be found which assays in gold and silver:

Gold, value per ton, $4.82.
Silver, value per ton, $3.49.
Gold and silver per ton, $8.31.

I also had some more assayed which ran $10 per ton. There are millions of tons which can be worked with pick and shovel. As the island is volcanic and porous, by curbing down thirty feet, no doubt it would be struck rich, as the water flows through it at that depth and backs up the fresh water on the flood tide two miles inland, where the pool is dry at low water. There are also rich pearl oyster banks, which I discovered years ago, and which have never been touched—not even looted by any one but myself, where there is a fortune by itself.

Also, there is a certain kind of wood that produce an oil which if brought to a chemist and analyzed, might prove to contain great medicinal properties, as it is a powerful drug, but has never been introduced. This wood is used by the natives for the cure of many diseases, and has proved an invaluable remedy. There are forests of it on certain islands.

Professor Hilgard, of the State University, analyzed a piece for me in 1901, and was infatuated with the scent and the properties it contained. It burns as readily as a candle, and when burning smells like incense. Therefore I have named it incense wood. The natives call it "Palo Santor" or Saint Wood.

The natives are simple, honest and trustworthy. Also very religious Roman Catholics.

The passage by sail is about forty-five days; by steam, seventeen. A thorough mining man would be necessary, for without one I would not undertake the trip.

For further information, inquire of,
Yours respectfully,
R. W. NYE.

SHRINE SNAPSHOTS

(From Los Angeles Papers.)

Times, May 7:—The entire patrol of Aloha lodge, Honolulu, spent yesterday at Pasadena. Jim McCandless introduced his sunny smile to Avalon and denied that he was seasick. Some said that McCandless became so ill that he denied that he was a candidate for the Outer Guard.

Examiner, May 7:—The contest for the position of Outer Guard seemed to center last night on two candidates Ernest A. Cutts of Savannah, Ga., and Jim McCandless of Aloha Shrine of Honolulu. Many members of the imperial council expressed the opinion yesterday that Cutts was the leading candidate and that McCandless would be elected in 1913.

Times, May 7:—"Sunny Jim" McCandless, Aloha Temple, Honolulu, proved the fitness of his appellation every minute at Avalon. He saw more fish, more sea anemones and more marine curiosities than anyone else who took the glass-bottom boat trip.

Examiner, May 7:—There was a lull in the cheering and from Aloha Temple's section arose the haunting notes of Hawaii's hymn of parting.

"Until we meet again," closed the song, and a gripping feeling of the throat seemed to still the crowd. Then came a wild burst of applause, which Hawaii's contingent acknowledged with their yell:

"Kanaha, kanaha; e ola, e ola; hull aku, hull mai; ALOHA."

PASADENA, May 6.—Twenty thousand Shriners and their ladies—bearing twenty thousand perpetual smiles—the most whole-hearted, jolly throng ever within the city's limits, were entertained today by Pasadenans. Beginning with a tour of the Busch gardens and other show spots of Pasadena, the visitors were whisked away to Tournament Park, where they became parties to a real Spanish barbecue, partaken of to the accompaniment of music from half a dozen bands. Following the feast, a thrilling Roman chariot race, a polo match and several exhibition drills by patrols, ranging from one of snowy Winnipeg to the representatives from summery Hawaii, completed the Crown City's entertainment of the pilgrims.

Examiner, May 7:—"Mot" Flint—Motley Hewes Flint—potentate, banker, patrolman, politician and convention impresario par excellence, is the Atlas who is shouldering the slow. Of course he gives credit to his assistants for the excellency of the preparations, but they return them with accrued adjectives and—there you are.

In 1900, when Uncle Sam decided to show his new wards in Honolulu the latest improved methods in the postal line, Motley Flint was selected to do the job.

Women's Suffrage in Turkey--Father's Body in Alcohol--Motor Ship Coming--Spain to Have World's Fair

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 4.—The movement for the emancipation of Turkish women which under the regime of the Young Turks gained considerable momentum has now received a serious setback. Encouraged by the Young Turks, women permitted themselves greater liberty of movement and in a short time after the inauguration of the new regime it was no uncommon thing to see husbands and wives riding in the same carriage. The problem of the veil was influenced by the prevailing liberal tendencies and in a short time, although no one ventured to discard it entirely, it was so attenuated in many cases as to be little better than an apology for a veil.

These reforms were not received with good grace by the more conservative Turks. This profound distrust soon reacted on the Government and the Young Turks. The reformers found that their tolerant attitude toward their women folk's aspirations was strengthening the opposition and especially lending point to the argument that they were not true believers. To vindicate their conformity with the teachings of the Prophet it was necessary for the reformers to become reactionaries as far as the women were concerned, so orders were issued that no Turkish woman was to appear in public wearing a thin veil; she must not loiter in front of European shops; and she must not enter such places except under special circumstances.

In consequence of these harsh regulations the women are going more heavily veiled than ever under the old regime, but as some compensation lately they have begun to copy European dress in other parts of their attire, even their skirts in many cases being modeled on the hobble pattern. GREAT SCANDAL IN CZAR'S ARMY.

ODESSA, May 4.—The latest of an extraordinary series of army commissariat prosecutions, which have occupied the higher criminal courts in various military provinces during the last two years, commences at Warsaw within the next few days. The accused officers range in rank from Colonel to Lieutenant, and their thefts run from $150,000 down to a few thousands.

BURIED BEFORE CHRIST. GENEVA, May 4.—While digging the foundations for a hospital to be built at Neuchatel, the workmen lately discovered a beautiful vault built in bronze, which Swiss scientists state was constructed 600 years before the birth of Jesus Christ. In the tomb was the skeleton of a young woman, whose bones were still in natural position. On the wrists were six bracelets, four in bronze and two in lignite, and near the skeleton was a little bronze bell. Swiss archaeologists cannot account for such a discovery in Switzerland, and are continuing their investigations.

FATHER'S BODY IN ALCOHOL FOR YEARS.

PARIS, May 4.—In an old feudal chateau, with high walls and a round stone tower, situated near the little village of Virevois, in the Auvergne, there lives a weird old man who refuses to bury his father. M. Hector Granet, an artist and collector of curios, is the owner of the castle and the mummy. It is twenty-five years since his father died.

At the time the son could not bear the idea of his father being buried, so, without embalming his body, he simply put it into alcohol. Then he built a mausoleum, a gruesome place with a curious stained glass window designed by himself. Inside the little building is the coffin, full of alcohol, in which rests the perfectly preserved body of M. Granet's father. Through a hole cut in the head of the coffin lid M. Granet can see his father's features. He talks to him and plays on the accordion the old songs he used to love during his lifetime. Beside the coffin containing his father's remains M. Granet has placed another in which he wishes to be preserved in a similar manner.

NEW GERMAN DIRIGIBLE.

BERLIN, May 4.—A dirigible balloon unlike any existing type is receiving the finishing touches at Dulsburg. Its chief peculiarity is that it is to consist of three separate balloons, each complete in itself. Each balloon will be 300 feet long and sixty feet in diameter. They will be non-rigid, but each will be composed of many compartments, giving the airship one advantage of the rigid type. Five gondolas, connected by ventilators as the coaches of a passenger train are connected, will be carried. They will be equipped with ten motors, which will generate 1000 horse-power. The gondolas will have heating and lighting appliances. They are designed to carry 100 passengers.

SPAIN WANTS AMERICA TO JOIN IN SEVILLE FAIR.

MADRID, May 4.—King Alfonso of Spain is greatly desirous that the American Government and the American people will take a prominent part in the universal exhibition which will be held at Seville in 1914. He hopes that the United States will have an exhibit representative of its development in commerce and industry as well as in the arts and sciences. He is reported as saying that Spain is the best friend in Europe of the United States, and that Spain is the only nation in Europe which can fortify the bands of friendship with the Western Hemisphere without causing the suspicion of a desire for imperialism or even competition.

SHIPBUILDERS SEE COMING OF MOTOR BOAT.

LONDON, May 4.—Great economic advantages in favor of the motor-ship are shown in the first series of comparative data that have been made public. The success of the maiden voyage of the Selandia, the big motor-ship of the Danish East Asiatic Company, has stirred British shipbuilders to consider the possibility of still further developments in this new system of marine propulsion.

In one of the tables prepared by the representative of a prominent steamship company the Selandia has been compared with a steamship of similar tonnage and speed. The comparisons show that in the matter of dead weight cargo capacity the steamship shows a saving of $1300 on the round voyage. Against this appears a saving of $7800 in fuel by the motor. On a year's work with heavy cargoes the motor-ship is given a net gain of $18,000. The extra initial cost of the motor-ship (which is estimated at $75,000) should, according to these calculations, be wiped out under the most adverse conditions within four years. Under favorable conditions two years might be sufficient.

PLANS SUBMARINE FLEET. BERLIN, May 4.—The new armament bills, which have just gone to the Reichstag, contain one feature not published in advance. This is the Government's proposal to build six submarines yearly for the coming six years, which would give the navy seventy-two of this type of craft in 1918. There are now fourteen submarines in commission, but these will be obsolete in six years.

BY AUTHORITY

SEALED PROPOSALS. Sealed proposals will be received until 2 p. m. of Wednesday, May 29, 1912 by the Board of Harbor Commissioners for Constructing a 10" Oil Pipe Line Along the Water Front of Honolulu, from the Oil Tanks at Iwilei to the Sewer Pumping Station at Kakaako.

Plans, specifications and blank forms of tender are on file in the office of the Superintendent of Public Works, Capitol Building, Honolulu.

The Board of Harbor Commissioners reserves the right to reject any or all tenders. MARSTON CAMPBELL, Chairman, Board of Harbor Commissioners. Honolulu, May 14, 1912.

RULES AND REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE STORAGE OF FREIGHT ON TERRITORIAL GOVERNMENT WHARVES, AS AMENDED MAY 8, 1912.

No. 1. Foreign Cargoes: Foreign freight may remain on the wharf, after a General Order has been issued by the Custom House, as follows:

Cargoes of less than 2500 tons, forty-eight hours. Cargoes of over 2500 tons, seventy-two hours.

The above does not apply to freight for trans-shipment when such trans-shipment is designated in original bills of lading and on packages. No. 2. Cargoes from Outside the Territory: Freight must be removed from the Territorial Government wharves within the following number of days, to commence on the day upon which the vessel completes discharge:

Cargoes up to 2000 tons, delivered at any one wharf, must be removed from said wharf three days after completion of discharge of vessel.

Cargoes from 2001 tons up to 3000 tons, delivered at any one wharf, must be removed from said wharf four days after completion of discharge of vessel.

Cargoes from 3001 tons up to 4000 tons, delivered at any one wharf, must be removed from said wharf six days after completion of discharge of vessel.

Cargoes from 4001 tons up to 6000 tons, delivered at any one wharf, must be removed from said wharf eight days after completion of discharge of vessel.

The above does not apply to freight consigned to any person, when such freight is destined for trans-shipment to any port in the Territory of Hawaii. In such cases demurrage will be waived up to the time of the sailing of the first vessel whose destination is the port for which the freight is intended.

No. 3. Inter-Island Cargoes: Domestic freight from Inter-Island ports, for delivery within the City and County of Honolulu, must be removed within two (2) working days after the day of the arrival of the vessel bringing such freight.

No. 4. Outgoing Freight Originating in the City and County of Honolulu: On all outgoing freight, originating in the City and County of Honolulu, three (3) days' free storage on wharf will be allowed prior to the commencement of loading of vessel.

No. 5. Gasoline, Etc.: Gasoline, kerosene, distillate, benzine and other products of petroleum; also paint and paint oils, if in leaky containers, must be removed by the consignees from the wharf by 5 o'clock p. m. of the day of their being discharged.

None of the above articles shall be discharged from any vessel, except between the hours of 7 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. of any day. Upon failure to so remove said articles prior to 5 o'clock p. m. of any day, the Harbor Master must remove said articles; all charges in connection therewith being borne by the consignee.

No. 6. Demurrage: Demurrage will be charged at the following rates per ton per day: On freight originating in the City and County of Honolulu, or destined for Honolulu delivery, 25 cents.

No freight, subject to demurrage, shall be removed from the dock by the consignee or other person until all charges thereon shall have been paid and a written release given by the Harbor Master.

No. 7. Definition of a Ton: For the purpose of computing demurrage, a ton is 2000 pounds, or 40 cubic feet, as listed on a ship's manifest which discharges such freight.

No. 8. Definition of a Day: Twenty-four (24) hours shall constitute a day, commencing at 12 o'clock midnight; and fractional parts thereof shall be charged as a full day.

No. 9. Penalty for Violation of Rules and Regulations: Any person or persons who shall violate any of the above Rules or Regulations shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to the penalties as provided by Section 9, Act 163 of the Session Laws of 1911.

Approved Wednesday, May 8, 1912. MARSTON CAMPBELL, Chairman, Board of Harbor Commissioners. EMIL A. BERNDT, Secretary, Board of Harbor Commissioners.

NOTICE.

During my absence from the Territory, Mr. Charles P. Osborne will carry on my undertaking business as usual.

The embalming branch will continue to be carried on by two experienced assistants whose specialty is shipping cases, and work first-class as scores of letters on file testify. H. H. WILLIAMS. Honolulu, April 24, 1912.

GOLF AND TENNIS.

The place for recreation and a quiet time is Haleiwa. The golf links are as good as any in the country, the wind from the sea constantly blows in and the view of the country adds to the attractions of the place. There is a tennis court, as well, and the best swimming beach on this island; no coral, no broken bottles. The table at Haleiwa attracts many tourists who leave satisfied and well pleased with what they have seen and with their entertainment. The management of the hotel has an automobile in the rent service and guests secure it for rides through the country where the pine are growing yellow on their plants.

Are You Daft?

Would You Like To Find Out?

Try Uncle Sam's Test

Would You Like To Know Your Own Mind? Very Well, Then, You Can Now Test Your Own Mental Status and Determine Whether or Not You Are Sane Enough To Pass Muster Among Your Fellow Men and Women. The Card Test is a Part of the Official Test of the United States Government. Prepared by Government Alienists Who Know Sanity and Insanity When They See Them.

Stung by recent unfavorable comment in the press, goaded into increased activity by the fact that the State of New York has spent $25,000,000 on its alien insane, the Public Health and Marine Hospital Surgeons who pass judgment upon the physical and mental qualifications of those who knock at our gate are exerting themselves to keep out of these United States the imbecile, the idiot, the epileptic and the mentally deficient.

As a means toward this end they have prepared a card containing certain questions—a card which at first sight appears to contain some ridiculous questions.

But, as the cerebral man would say, "there's a reason."

How many city men can tell how many days it takes to hatch an egg? How many residents of Los Angeles, Council Bluffs or Jersey City can say how much milk a cow will yield in one day? How many male natives of Greater New York can tell how much cloth it takes to make a dress?—unless, perchance madame has a charge account and some of the items are fresh in his mind.

In so far as where the sun goes overnight the writer wots not, nor is he deeply concerned. The Easter question is easy, particularly for a man of substance and family. The writer would define it thus: "Easter is the harvest season for dressmakers and milliners; then the price of butter tumbles a cent or two, and 'fresh-laid' eggs, less than one month old, may be obtained at the corner store."

But this card is no joke, according to George W. Stoner, the surgeon in charge of the Marine Hospital ships at Ellis Island.

"I don't understand how the card came into your possession," said he, "and I suppose you newspaper people will try to twist it into something funny. There's nothing funny about it." On the other hand, it is simply one of our office helps and devices by means of which we may estimate the approximate intelligence of certain immigrants whom we detain for a more extended mental examination.

"We don't expect the immigrant to answer all the questions perfectly. If he is color blind, that does not necessarily debar him from admission. Were he a locomotive engineer by trade his color blindness would be a fact to be taken into consideration by the Boards of Special Inquiry. They would exercise their judgment in either admitting him to the United States or deporting him to the country whence he came.

"As to the question, 'Where does the sun go overnight?' we don't expect a scientific answer. The immigrant, in answering this question, gives the examining surgeon a pretty fair estimate of his reasoning powers.

"At first sight, the question about hatching an egg seems difficult, but when you stop to consider that a great majority of our immigrants are from the country districts of Europe you are brought to realize that it is a question which any bright country boy ought to be able to answer without hesitation. If an immigrant from a European city cannot answer the question about hatching an egg we make allowances for him. The foregoing applies also to the question about the amount of milk a cow yields in a day. In fact we don't expect a perfect answer to all of the questions, any more than the Civil Service Examiner did when he asked the man taking an examination for the postal service how far it was from the earth to the moon.

"And what was his answer?" Doctor Stoner was asked.

"He said that he didn't know and wasn't interested in the subject complained of. The fact that the immigrants are contributing very much more than their proper proportion of insane to our State hospitals, and that no radical steps are being taken to put an end to the practice in Europe of sending mentally deficient members of the family to America to earn a livelihood if possible, and if not, to become public charges. We cannot help it if potential lunatics are born in this country, but we can help admitting them to the United States through Ellis Island.

"Last year forty-eight per cent. of the insane in our State hospitals were of foreign birth. That means that the aliens furnished more than eighteen per cent. in excess of proper proportion, even when that proper proportion is most liberally calculated.

"The National Government resumed charge of immigration in 1882. Since then the States have had nothing to do with the regulations, and the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service have had full charge of the mental and physical examination of 'immigrants. Insofar as Ellis Island is

The surgeons at Ellis Island do their best to weed out the imbeciles, idiots and others mentally deficient; but, it must be understood, they are working under pressure, that they are kept quite busily employed in searching for physical defects and contagious diseases among the newly arrived, that they have but a brief space of time in which to glance over the marching lines of immigrants as they tramp up the stairs for inspection and down again after the ordeal is over.

Where they spot a boy with a dull eye and drooping lip he is chalk-marked and "caged" for a more leisurely examination. This is where the card comes in. By the means of the printed questions upon it the examining surgeon is enabled to appraise the intelligence of the lad, to tabulate the result. He may prove to be a bright lad after all. He may be a dullard. He may be a deaf mute, an imbecile—who knows? The card helps the surgeon to his ultimate finding.

he didn't care, either, because he never expected to make the trip."

Mr. Goodwin Brown, a former New York State Commissioner in Lunacy, and an authority on matters pertaining to the heavy burden thrown upon the taxpayers of the country by reason of the admission of the alien insane, recently expressed himself in part as follows:

"In some years New York State has spent as much as one-third of its entire revenue in the care of its insane. This year it will probably spend—at least the Lunacy Commission has asked for—$9,000,000, or one-fifth of its income. Startling as these figures are, there are others even more surprising. Of the inmates of the State hospitals for the insane about one-half are foreign born. The logical inference is that a large number of lunatics, or potential lunatics, are successful in passing the examination at Ellis Island.

"We have in New York State fifteen State hospitals for the care of the insane. They have more than 32,000 inmates. The employees, exclusive of the physicians, number between 5000 and 6000. The cost of the plants and equipments of these hospitals approximates the staggering sum of $60,000,000.

"We have quite enough of our own insane right here in the country, and the burden of caring for them would be heavy enough under any circumstances, Commissioner William Williams is in charge there. He has stopped many of the frauds formerly practiced upon foreigners, and I feel that too much cannot be said in his praise. But, on the other hand, he does not control the medical inspection, and he cannot see to it that the mentally defective are kept out. Furthermore, the Marine Hospital Service is greatly hampered by lack of funds.

"It takes a trained alienist to detect symptoms of insanity in a quiet, well-behaved person, and trained alienists have not been sufficiently employed by the government at Ellis Island. We have been particular about admitting eye diseases and such things which, after all, are curable diseases; but about admitting the insane for whom there is no cure, or very little hope of cure, the National Government has not exercised the care that might have been expected."

In justice to Surgeon General Blue and Surgeon-in-Charge Stoner of the Ellis Island contingent of the Marine Hospital forces, let it be here noted that they may not do as they like. The National Congress appropriates annually a certain sum of money for the maintenance of the service, and no expenditures may be made in excess of the amount of the appropriation. A trained alienist is a specialist—a skilled man whose services come ment, etc. An alien may be held under observation for days and finally passed as sane and physically sound.

But, to return to our mutton—the card—we doubt very much if Commissioner General of Immigration Keefe can answer all the questions, particularly the one about where the sun goes over night.

William Williams, the Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, ought to answer most of the questions, as he is college bred and countryborn; but without doubt he would find the question about the number of yards of cloth required to make a dress difficult to answer, inasmuch as he is a bachelor.

We have our doubts as to whether Deputy Commissioner Byron Uhl knows how many days it takes to hatch an egg; and if Superintendent Percy Baker can tell us how much milk a cow gives in a day we will gladly buy the cigars when next we meet. Doubtlessly, Yankee-fashion, he would come back at us with, "How big is a piece of chalk?"

All of which tends to show that the card is not such a funny thing after all, and that it is no despised factor in determining an immigrant's right to land.

Try answering the questions yourself.

THE LATEST SHOT IN BATTLE AGAINST CONSUMPTION

Selection of a new point of attack on the horrid monster consumption in the never ceasing warfare against the disease which claims more human victims than any of its death-inflicting brethren is always interesting and important. If for no other reason than the wide spread of the plague and the range of its selection of victims. That is why physicians and laymen have evinced so much interest in the announcement that the new Vanderbilt tenements in New York, known officially as the East River Homes, are to be used in an experiment to demonstrate a plan to wipe out centers of tuberculosis infection in tenement districts of New York and other cities. The theory includes the preservation of the home with successful combating of tuberculosis. For the purposes of the experiment the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor has leased an entire section of the East River Homes for three years and has converted it into a home hospital.

only on the advice of the physician, and when permitted they will resume activities gradually, as their strength permits. In order that cures may be permanent families will not be dismissed from the hospital until the patients have practically recovered full strength and until they are able to work full time. After dismissal each family will be moved into a suitable home and supervision will be continued until it is assured that the cure is permanent and the family is self supporting. The children who have the disease and those predisposed to it will attend an open air school to be established on the roof of the East River Homes. This will be equipped, and the teacher will probably be provided by the board of education. The children of school age who are in good health will attend the public school, and others whose health will permit will work.

"Your life—spoiled!" echoed Luana.
"But, Hatch, if you will listen!"
"You shut up and listen to me!" interrupted the captain. Luana sprang at him with flashing eyes.
"No, you listen to me!" she cried, with sudden fury. The captain turned mottled pink and fell back a step as if he felt that he was in danger of a physical assault. "You call me kanaka woman—all right But I tell you this: I am as-good as you! And I am better, because I have a heart inside of me instead of a money-bag!" She struck her breast fiercely with her clenched hand. "What do you care for your country or your people—nothing! Just money! Money! You call me kanaka woman, but I—I am a Hawaiian princess! And for my people and for the man I love—right now I would die!"
She glared at him, panting for a few seconds longer and then suddenly threw herself into a chair.
"Ah, Paula!" she sobbed. "You believe that, Paula! You believe that!"
The captain swallowed hard, shook his shoulders and turned to the house, switching off the lights as he reached the porch.
"Well, Wilson," he said over his shoulder, "if your wife is through with her insults, take her and get out!" And he marched into the house and closed the door behind him.
"Now," demanded Wilson in a weak whine, "what did you say that for?"
"But, Paula," protested Luana, tearfully, "he called me—"
"Oh, shut up! You didn't have to howl that you were an Hawaiian princess. And you called him a money-bag—now you've done it!"
"Oh, Paula! I am sorry! I didn't mean!"
"Unless I can talk to Hatch and fix it, you'll be sorry, all right," he assured her as he started for the door. Luana ran after him eagerly.
"Ae, that is good! Tell him I—" "No; you've said quite enough. I want to talk to him—alone!" Luana stopped and Wilson hastened unsteadily in on the trail of the late captain. "Oh, I see—alone," murmured Luana, hopelessly. And for the first time her brave, warm heart knew despair.

Mahumahu crept to her weeping.
"Ah, my Luana! I hear—trouble!"
"Ae, trouble. Trouble! But the last—the last!" With a dry sob of anguish the girl bowed her head and pressed her clenched hands to her cheeks. Mahumahu turned a sickly, dirty white.
"You mean?" she whispered in terror and awe.
Luana slowly nodded twice. "Ah, Mahumahu! I see it all now; Hewahewa was right when he said it was tabu. But I foolish! I think just my arms and lips could make everything right. But I was wrong!" She raised, full of dumb, hopeless longing toward the door where he had vanished. "Oh, my lover-husband! I spoil your life—ae! Ah-h!" this was a hysterical dreary little laugh. "I said I was a princess and as good as they are. But I lie! I am a fool! It's not the color—that only shows what's outside. I am a Hawaiian princess and yet I will never be white. It is tabu—tabu to my son and my son's son and after that—tabu. Oh but he shall be free—free to be the big white man he wished! Ae, that is the best way!"
"You mean?" repeated Mahumahu in the same tone.
"My people!" exclaimed Luana, her eyes shining like stars. "In far away Puna they wish a woman to sacrifice to save them from Pele. Well," she added calmly, "I will be that woman!"
Mahumahu grovelled at her feet in an ecstasy of grief.
"Ah—h! Then you know—you know!" she moaned, unable to understand the heroic grandeur of soul that had inspired the sacrifice.
Doomed!
Luana heard in dull wonder.
"What?" she asked.
"The prayer of death!" moaned the old woman faintly.
Luana started and drew a long breath.
"Ah! Then it is—against me," she said slowly.
"Ae!"
"So that was it. Hewahewa made the prayer of death against me." She paused and gazed off into the darkness. "And why?"
"Ah, no, no, no!" pleaded Mahumahu.
"Why? Don't lie to me! Tell me!" commanded the girl fiercely.
"You—defy—Pele!"
"But he could not! Over what of my body did he have to pray?"

"The nails of your fingers."
"The nails of my fingers," repeated Luana slowly, gazing down at her well-manicured hands.
"Ah, no, no, no!" cried Mahumahu, seizing them. Instantly she dropped them and sprang up with a scream of terror. "Ah-h, they cold!"
Luana caught her breath and the color left her face.
"What! You think it begins now!" Slowly, fearfully she crossed her hands on her arms and then raised them to her face. Mahumahu watched fascinated with horror.
"I my—hands! Cold they are!" whispered the girl. "Nothing can I feel!" Her face was suddenly drawn and old as she touched it with the tip of a finger. "With my finger—nothing!"
"That candle!" cried Mahumahu hoarsely. "Try! It will not burn you!"
With jerky, mechanical steps Luana approached the table and slowly lifted a lighted candle with her left hand. A moment she hesitated and then with a sudden movement thrust the rigid index finger of her right hand into the flame!
One second, two, three, five, ten seconds passed and the girl gave no sign. She stood like a statue staring with wide eyes as the yellow flame licked around her finger which sent to her brain no warning of the blistering destruction. With a shuddering moan of horror Mahumahu sank down again and buried her face in the grass.
Slowly Luana drew her finger out of the flame.

Weekly Letter Of Von Hamm-Young Company

The S. S. Sierra brought for the von Hamm-Young Company, the first of the much talked about new type "Greater Hupmobile," touring cars with three speed transmissions and thirty-two h. p., four cylinder motor. This is one of the snappiest little cars even seen in Honolulu, and for its factory price of $900.00, it is simply a wonder.

The motor of this car has four cylinders, cast en bloc, valves on one side, inlet and exhaust manifolds cast with cylinder block. Three and a quarter bore by five and a half inch stroke, following the practice now greatly in favor in the latest types of foreign cars, of a very long stroke, which enables the car to do exceptionally fine hill climbing.

This little "Greater Hupmobile" has been given an extensive test since its arrival, and it has proven nothing short of marvelous. Every one who has taken a ride in the car was impressed with the wonderful way in which it rides, drives, pulls and takes the hills. It fairly runs away from all other cars on the steepest inclines, and is also very fast on the level.

In addition to the three speed transmission, another change is the location of the levers in the center of the car, making same very accessible and at the same time making the change gear much more compact.

The front axle is of the new foreign type, and is roomy, the tonneau is large and has luxurious upholstery and good sized entrances. The body has the same straight line effect as seen on the high class cars.

The head and side lamps are elegantly designed, according to the very latest type.

The body springs are much longer than in the former models, and hung differently, making the car ride as easy as the cleverest large machine.

The front axle is of the new foreign type, which is being so generally adopted.

The gasoline tank is included in the dash hood, insuring gravity at any grade, with shut-off valve located directly under the hood.

The car is also equipped with a fan and spark control, and a much larger radiator than the former models.

The brakes are externally contracting, and are very powerful.

The engine design is very much improved, with a new type of intake and exhaust manifold, which are out of the way of the valves. These are especially designed so that the valves are very accessible. The valves themselves are enclosed rendering the motor as silent as any car on the market.

The car is equipped with a "Zenith" carburetor, which has wonderful elasticity. With the engine running very slowly one can step on the throttle and she is off just like a six cylinder car, and never chokes or hesitates.

It is also equipped with exceptionally large grease cups all over from stem to stern. Has a full floating type of rear axle and differential, and the driving gears are strong enough to drive a ninety h. p. car.

Considering the price, the Greater Hupmobile is certainly a marvel.

This car is creating a great deal of excitement in the von Hamm-Young Company's garage, and all who have had a ride in it are more than pleased with the remarkable showing which it makes.

The S. S. Wilhelmina brought for the von Hamm-Young Company three of the always popular Cadillacs, two touring cars and one torpedo.

The handsome torpedo, finished in gray was especially ordered by Mr. A. W. T. Bottomley. It is finished with nickel trimmings, is equipped with demountable rims and has in addition to the famous electric self-starter, the Delco system of electric lighting throughout, air pump for inflating the tires, and other standard equipment so well known on the Cadillac cars.

Interesting news was contained in a letter, just received by the von Hamm-Young Company, telling of a devastating fire and tons of water which were poured on a Cadillac car without having any effect on the self-starter or lighting system.

One of the fine Cadillac touring cars was shipped this week to C. J. Schoening & Company, of Wailuku, Maui, for delivery to a prominent Maui man.

Amongst the cars which have lately come to the notice of automobilists is the Kissel Kar, which has won for itself thousands of enthusiastic admirers all over the mainland. The von Hamm-Young Company took the agency for this car only a short time ago, but have already delivered a number of these cars on the islands, all of which are doing excellent work.

One of these handsome cars, a powerful thirty h. p. model, finished in gray and black, was shipped this week to C. J. Schoening & Company, for delivery to Mr. W. H. Engle, of Wailuku, Maui. These cars are rapidly growing in favor, owing to their splendid workmanship and reliability.

Another Kissel Kar sale made by the von Hamm-Young Company was a Police Patrol to the City of Honolulu. After investigating a great many cars, the Board of Supervisors decided to purchase the Kissel Kar. This car will be equipped with a specially built body to carry sixteen passengers, it will have the latest improvements of the police patrols used on the mainland, and it is so constructed that it can be instantly changed into an emergency ambulance, a stretcher being provided to take care of the patient.

HUBBARD AND THE CHALMERS AUTO

What Elbert Hubbard had to say after a trip through the Chalmers' factory:

"I ride in a Chalmers.

"I have a Chalmers that has been in almost constant use for three years, in all sorts of weather and on all kinds of roads.

"This car has never been towed to town; never been in the ditch; never had a grouch nor gone on a strike.

"It has been run fast—but not too fast.

"The man who runs a car as fast as it can go, is as big a fool as the man who tells all he knows.

"I am proud of my Chalmers—I am proud of being a Chalmers man. I am proud that Hugh Chalmers is my friend.

"A Chalmers car looks like Chalmers—it is honest, strong, effective and efficient. Also it 'looks'.

"Also I am glad to say that the Chalmers workers who make cars are good lookers and look good. Probably because they are.

"They take a pride in their work, and they should."

How Auto Trucks Will Solve the Garbage Problem

The investigations made during the past week or two by the special committee of the Central Improvement League into the feasibility of motor trucks as garbage carriers for the city, has created a good deal of interest among auto men, as well as among the citizens of the town generally. As might have been expected, the committee was soon convinced that motors are really the only economical way at present in sight, of keeping the city clean. It is also significant that the report of the committee was promptly adopted, and the League went on record as strongly favoring the motorizing of the city garbage department, as the first step towards the establishing of a free garbage

Some of the facts discovered by the improvement committee in its investigations are very interesting. In order to get down to the bottom of cost of buying and operating a motor truck, letters were addressed to many of the firms at the present time using these vehicles in their business. Practically without exception, the reports were most highly favorable although as a matter of fact the very fact that these firms continue to make use of motor cars in their own business, is the best possible testimony of the efficiency and economy of these vehicles.

The International Motor Car Company, of New York, has lately compiled a very carefully worked out table of comparative cost between motor truck haulage and that by horses. The figures are in favor of the auto truck by from a third to a half, according to the size of teams and trucks compared. From the fact that cost and maintenance of horses are very considerably higher than they are in mainland cities, in which the comparison was made, the difference should be even greater here. The difference in cost per ton mile in vehicles of one ton capacity, for instance, was thirty-six cents for horses, as against twenty cents for the auto truck; and for three tons vehicles, twenty cents for horses as against thirteen cents for motors.

This of course takes nothing into account of the matter of time, in which particular the auto has from four to six or eight times the advantage over the horse. Even with the cost per ton mile the same, this item of time would warrant the city's adopting motor trucks for garbage collection, since on long hauls, such as from Kaimuki, Waikiki, Manoa, Nuuanu, Paoua and Kalihi, the cost of hauling by horses is almost prohibitive, owing to the fact that but one load per day can be made. A motor truck could make from four to six trips to all these places in a day, and do it easily.

AUTO LAW UPHELD IN MISSOURI IS INVALIDATED IN NEW YORK

Missouri and New York state each have laws almost identical, making it a felony for an autoist to fail to stop in case he has an accident involving others, and give his name and address, besides rendering such assistance as is in his power. But while the Missouri supreme court has sustained the measure in force in its jurisdiction, the New York courts have declared an almost similar statute unconstitutional on the same line of reasoning.

Here is the way the Missouri case is reported, in a not decidedly friendly fashion:

"A St. Lou's commission merchant had the misfortune to run down a negro, killing him almost instantly. Instead of stopping to investigate and give help if possible, he put on all power and escaped. When subsequently apprehended he interposed as defense that he could not be compelled to furnish evidence incriminating himself.

"The case went immediately to the Supreme Court of the State in the form of an appeal to quash the information, which was denied. The court held that to require a motorist to stop after his car had injured a person and give his name and address is in no sense taking for incriminating evidence. It simply elicits the particulars upon which an intelligent investigation of the affair may be based.

"In this decision common sense triumphs over legal sophistry and mere technicality. The spirit of the law is vindicated as well as its letter. The community is safeguarded as far as may be against a very real menace.

"There are not many motorists cowardly and inhuman enough to maim or kill and then speed off, leaving the victims without assistance. Some such do exist, however, enough of them to necessitate a law ordaining their punishment. It is gratifying to know that no legal quibble is to invalidate a statute which so commends itself to enlightened judgment and plain common sense."

In New York the case of Edward T. Rosenheimer brought up a like contention. Rosenheimer drove a car which struck a rig in which were riding two women and a man. One of the women was killed. Rosenheimer was indicted as having evaded the Callan law.

Justice Crain, in sustaining the demurrer to the indictment, said: "It is one thing to require operators of motor vehicles to carry identifying evidence before such persons have broken the law and quite another to demand either that they make self-accusation in case of infringement or furnish in such case a link in a chain of criminatory evidence against themselves. The former can be lawfully done. The latter violates the Constitution."

Later on the Appellate Division sustained the demurrer. Presiding Justice Ingraham, in his opinion, said that the statute did not relate to a criminal action, nor did it make the declaration of the person operating the automobile admissible in evidence in any criminal proceeding.

The language of the section in the Callan law is this: "Any person operating a motor vehicle who, knowing that injury has been caused to a person or property due to the culpability of the said operator or to accident, leaves the place of said injury or accident without stopping and giving his name, residence, including street and street number, and operators' license number to the injured party or to a police officer, or in case no police officer is in the vicinity of the place of said injury or accident, then reporting the same to the nearest police station or judicial officer, shall be guilty of a felony punishable by

Alignment

Perfect alignment is absolutely essential in a motor-car. Imperfect alignment wastes power, wears out bearings, and strains the mechanism.

With the Unit Power Plant—motor, clutch, and transmission in one continuous housing—the mechanism can only be put together with perfect alignment.

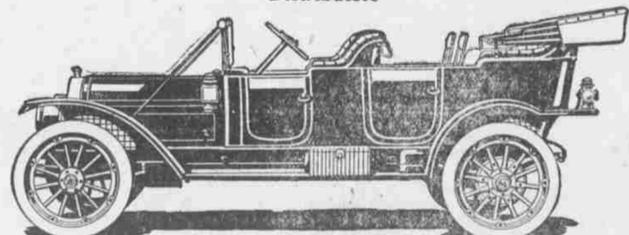

The Three Point Support preserves this alignment, no matter how much the car may be twisted and turned by the inequalities of the road.

The Stevens-Duryea simply cannot get out of alignment—it never has, and it never can.

This is the most important fact about motor-cars. Ask us about it, or send for catalogue.

Drawn Wire Lamps on Battle Ships

Extract from "Popular Electricity" Magazine, April, 1912

The Navy Department has recently ordered 50,000 clear and 10,000 frosted 25 watt, 125 volt "Columbia" drawn-wire Mazda lamps. In connection with the use of drawn wire lamps on battleships, tests have shown that these lamps are suitable for any kind of service conditions on board ship. A particular case might be cited. After a target practice with twelve inch guns on the U. S. S. Delaware it was found that one-third to one-half of the carbon lamps on board the vessel were put out of commission, while of the twelve drawn-wire Mazda lamps which were placed in the compartments immediately beneath the large guns, where vibration was greatest, none were noticeably affected.

A NOVEL ALCO CAR

Manager Wells, of the Royal Hawaiian Garage, calls attention to the description of a novel Alco car built recently on special order to meet the fancy of a wealthy customer. The note appears in the "automobile," and follows:

"The Alco car just received by William K. Vanderbilt Jr., is unique for the novel body lines which were designed after ideas of the owner. The car is of the tourabout type and has the appearance of a racer. Among the conspicuous features are the raked in the steering column and a considerable tilt of the fenders, which narrow down at the front. The seats are built close to the tonneau floor. In place of running boards along the sides there is a step close to each rear door. The doors open from back to front. The body lines dip instead of possess the straight line effect."

TWO GLASSES A DAY

(Republished by request.)

"Tomorrow is the twenty-fourth isn't it Mary?"

"The twenty-fourth," answered the young wife, sadly.

James Carroll knocked the ashes from his cigar, held it carefully between the thumb and forefinger or his left hand and looked thoughtfully into the fire. Mary's tired fingers showed no signs of weariness, but turned the hem of a sheet mechanically, then proceeded to baste it for sewing.

"Belle will be three years old?" he said interrogatively.

"Three, James," replied Mary without a trace of the bright smile lighting up her pretty young face. James gave a few more whiffs at his nearly consumed cigar, but did not seem to enjoy it much. A listener would have pronounced Mary a cold, unloving wife, whom the genial presence of her handsome husband, or the return of her baby's birthday, failed to please.

Looks and listeners do not always look into the depths of the heart to see what trials and struggles are there. So in this instance. Another woman whose life is all sunshine would have pronounced Mary Carroll heartless. Poor thing! She had too much heart for this world's trials. Her wedding day was a blissful one; her husband, the ideal of many a perfection. His love, unaccompanied by wealth, was more to her than all the treasures of the earth. But a cloud arose to dim the brightness of the sky. She soon made the discovery that her husband was human; that the love of wine, and possibly something stronger, filled his heart as well as the love of his wife. He was not what the world calls an intemperate man—one glass a day does not constitute a drunkard; why should she fear?

At the end of three years he took at least two glasses a day; what had she to hope for in the years to come?

"I wish, Mary, I were able to make Belle a present every birthday in her life; but you know it is all I can do to get along as it is."

"I know it, James," meekly replied the wife.

James was ill at ease. Something in Mary's manner disturbed him.

"What makes you so solemn and quiet, Mary? Why not sympathize with me, and say you know I have a hard time, to get along, and that Belle can do without presents better than we can afford to make them? Fox gave me the wood bill this morning, and Jones wants to know when the grocery bill will be paid. I don't like to bother you with these things, only I want you to understand that, as much as I love our little girl, I can't afford to make her presents."

Mary's color came and went. Tears stole into her violet eyes, and her heart beat quick and fast. Her trembling fingers guided her needle unsteadily, and her stitches were long and irregular. Three long years she had brooded over her husband's weakness, without a word of reproof; and much as she dreaded to speak, she knew that her time had come.

"I wish, dear James, I could economize in something, and save money to buy our darling a present. It seems cruel to neglect her birthday so soon."

"I know nothing you could be more prudent in. Mary, and you know I am as economical as possible, don't you?"

It was very hard for the lips that praise to say no, but a strength not her own came to her aid, and with a sweet, sad smile the wife uttered her first rebuke:

"No, James, I am grieved to say that I feel that in some things you are too extravagant. It must be a sin of ignorance; for I know, if you realized it, you would never wrong your wife and child."

James started from his seat. His eyes flashed and his cheeks paled.

"For heaven's sake, Mary, are you crazy?"

"Not crazy, James, but too clear-headed for our happiness." After the shock had passed, and he was prepared to listen, she went on and in a clear, concise manner laid before him the cause of her bitter words:

"During the last year you have drunk at least two glasses of liquor a day, haven't you?"

"Why, yes, I suppose so. What of that? Only ten cents a glass; that cannot ruin a man."

"Three hundred and sixty-five days which, multiplied by twenty cents, amounts to seventy-three dollars. Three cigars a day, which you know is below your average of smoking, will amount to as much more, which makes $146. Fifty dollars would pay our coal and grocery bill now due, and leave a balance of ninety-six dollars for baby, you, and me. You know, too, that the time spent in drinking and smoking is worse than wasted; for tobacco and liquor poison the system, destroy the health, soften the brain, weaken the nerves, and bring ruin to thousands of happy homes. There is a lack of tenderness in your tones to Belle and me when your nerves are excited by drink. I forgive you freely, but the sting is left in my heart."

Mary's effort overcame her, and she burst into a passionate fit of weeping.

The strong man trembled. "Am I blind? Is it possible I have wronged my dearest treasures?"

They mingled their tears and talked till a late hour, laying plans for the future; and James begged forgiveness of her he had wronged.

"It is not too late to prove my love and strength," said the penitent man. And so it proved, in one year from that day two beautiful silver cups were brought home by the happy father, one for Belle's fourth birthday, the other for the wife who had saved him.

Mary's bore the inscription: "An angel saw me falling and lifted me up." Belle's was also neatly engraved: "A little child shall lead them."

Years have passed, and the happy couple, in the vigor of life, on each recurring birthday of Belle, who is now a young lady, relate to her the little trials of their married life, and the great happiness that has grown from self-denial and justice.

The good wife and mother has kept the silver bright, and at every meal these cups are on the table where James can be reminded of the promises he made and has so faithfully kept.—Lyceum Banner.

FEEDING A STEER INTO BEEF
AT 90 CENTS A POUND.

Ninety cents a pound seems a steep price to pay for beef on the hoof, but that is precisely the figure at which the champion steer of the International Live Stock Exhibition at Chicago in 1911 brought for slaughtering. The method by which a stock raiser produces beef that will bring such a price is told in a bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, in which the feeding of eight of the champion steers of the last twelve years is described in detail. These eight had all been fitted and exhibited by agricultural colleges and experiment stations in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Indiana and Illinois.

Victor, the winner at the 1911 international, was a grade Angus, calved in January, 1903, and winner of many prizes. He was bought by the Iowa Agricultural College October 15, 1910, weighing 1100 pounds, a little light for his age. He was light in the quarters, a little down in the back and beginning to get a little rough at the tail head. He was put on a ration of boiled wheat and oats, mixed in equal parts, with a little grain, two or three pounds of roots and plenty of clover hay. This was given three times a day and the amount limited only by the appetite of the steer. To keep up circulation and appetite he was given a two-mile walk every day.

He was shipped back to Ames and roughed through the winter, and twice a day was given what he would eat up clean of equal parts of shelled corn and bran, with a little corn meal. Clover hay was supplied as roughage and three or four pounds of alfalfa was added as an appetizer. During the day he was turned out in the field, and as soon as grass came he was put on pasture. About May 1 he weighed 1220 pounds.

On the approach of hot weather he was left in a cool, dark basement stall during the day and turned on pasture at night. About September 1 his ration was increased to three meals a day, the morning and noon meals consisting of equal parts of corn and bran. The afternoon feed was a boiled mixture of three parts oats, one part wheat and one part peas. The grain ration was increased as fast as he would clean it up, and in addition he was given about three pounds of roots. As soon as green corn was fit to feed he ate all he could clean up at one feed in the afternoon. Though he showed signs of getting patchy, the soft-boiled feed kept him in a smooth condition.

Early in October the number of feeds was increased to four a day, two meals being boiled feed, and all that he would eat was fed at a time. This plan was kept up for one week before the show, when the boiled feed was taken out of the ration to guard against shrinkage in shipping and showing. At the time of the show Victor weighed 1670 pounds, a gain of 450 pounds since May 1. He sold for ninety cents a pound and dressed 69.87 per cent of live weight.

MEERSCHAUM A ROCK.

NOT SEA FOAM.

The origin of the word "meerschaum" has been much discussed, and it is only comparatively recently that the origin of the substance was discovered. It is now known to be a disintegrated product of serpentine rock found in Asia Minor. Some believe the name to be a corruption of the word "myrsen" or "myrschen," by which it is known in Asia Minor, but the Koelnische Zeitung says it is more probable that the Italians, who first introduced it into Europe, called it "schiuma del mare," sea foam, on account of its lightness and appearance, and that the Germans, who first appreciated its value as a material from which to make pipes, translated this literally into their own language.

The property of meerschaum to take on a rich brown color by soaking up the oil of tobacco was discovered by accident. It is said that a cobbler named Koneatch, who lived at Budapest in the middle of the seventeenth century, was mending a pipe for Count Andrassy when he dropped the bowl on a piece of wax he was using for waxing his thread. He wiped off the wax but later when the owner was smoking the pipe a beautiful dark spot appeared where it had been touched by the wax.

PULLS OUT SPLINTERS

WITH MAGNET.

Dr. Haab of Zurich, Switzerland, has invented an electro-magnet for the special purpose of removing iron splinters from wounds. He uses it constantly in his work as an oculist, finding it more efficacious than any of his older instruments, for it needs not to depend upon the operator's sight to find the splinter, but draws it out even when it is too small to be seen. All that is necessary is to prop open the eyelids, approach the magnet to the eye turn on the current—and the splinter is out. The same is true of iron splinters in any part of the body, though, of course in every case care must be taken to prevent the splinter from tearing the flesh as it comes forth.

And all the world loves a good liver. A lazy man often gets busy manufacturing excuses.

BEGINNING OR END.

A lot of people in the world enjoy going away for the "week-end" and a majority of those who live in Honolulu select Haleiwa as the best place for a change of climate and environment. The selection is a good one and shows judgment but there is no reason for confining it to the week-end. There is just as good a climate at the beginning of the week and the water is just as fine. The beach is free from coral always and the hotel replote with all conveniences for guests. A postoffice, telephone and telegraph station at Haleiwa enables the guests to "get outside" with the same facility as the person who remains in Honolulu. The rates are low.

TARIFF NEWS HELPS MARKET

The local stock market immediately responded to the news received by special cable to the Star yesterday, to the effect that the Senate finance committee had returned a majority report recommending no change in the present sugar schedule, except that caused by the elimination of the refined differential and the Dutch color standard. No undue jump in stocks occurred for the reason that it has generally been anticipated by local sugar men that the Senate committee would make but slight change in the present tariff. The present news, however, was even better than had been expected, and as a consequence stocks generally showed a firmer tone. Oahu sold freely at 7 3/4, after the news became generally known, and Oahu Sugar rose to 29 from 28 3/4.

WAS THE TITANIC AMERICAN SHIP?

LONDON, May 4.—Among the salient points raised by the public and the newspapers in their comment on the investigation of the Titanic disaster by the committee of the United States Senate there is one in particular which seems to be puzzling. This point as to the status of the White Star Steamship Company, a British concern, as part of the International Mercantile Marine, a corporation organized under the laws of New Jersey.

Here comes the question: Suppose war should break out between the United States and the United Kingdom, something that everybody admits is extremely remote, but which is still a possibility, what would be the status of British captives, of White Star boats, who in most cases are royal navy reserve men, and also the British crews of the ships? Was the Titanic British or American owned? If she was American owned—by the International Mercantile Marine Company of New Jersey—then she was an auxiliary to the United States navy. In that case the Salem and Chester of the United States navy in seeking information of the Titanic would be looking for news of a sister ship.

Another correspondent of the newspapers finds fault with the Marconi company's control of wireless affairs aboard a ship. He contends that the captain should have charge of this as well as everything else aboard a great liner with thousands of passengers under his protecting hand. This correspondent says:

"There seemed to be more eagerness to attend to the sending of commercial messages to Cape Race than of messages appertaining to the safety of the passengers on the Titanic." Among the crowd of suggestions which are bobbing up is one that the warships of maritime nations should patrol the North Atlantic in fog and ice seasons. Rear Admiral Sackville Hamilton Carden suggests that the carrying of collision mats by ships of the mercantile marine should be made compulsory.

A Monster Berg

Photographed from the S. S. Carpathia

The sinking of the giant White Star liner Titanic, after having collided with an iceberg, going down with more than 1600 souls, has quickened the pulse of every master of the great steamships that ply the Northern route between this country and Europe. And well it may, for all perils of the deep are as nought compared with the awfulness of striking one of those huge pieces of floating ice.

That it was a submerged shelf of ice that dealt the death blow to the Titanic there is no doubt and it seems strange that there should be no record of an instance of another vessel being similarly injured, although not so seriously, for she managed to make port. This vessel was the British steamer Nessmore which made Halifax a few years ago with her bows stove in. When she was docked for repairs it was found that there was a deep score extending two-thirds the length of the hull. Four frames were broken and many of the plates were almost cut through, showing that had the impact been greater the plates would have been cut through and the vessel must have been overwhelmed by the inrush of water which no pumps could have checked.

At the inquiry that followed the skipper of the Nessmore testified that after striking the berg he backed off and changed his course and expressed the belief that it was possible that the steamer had struck a projecting ledge deep under the water, for there was clear water between his ship and the berg up to the moment of striking.

Icebergs have always been a terror to navigators since the sailing of the first trans-Atlantic vessel from America for European ports. In the beginning it was customary for steamers sailing eastward to edge along the coast until they made Cape Race, on the lower extremity of Newfoundland, their last landfall, and sailing westward, to make this point their first landfall. This course took vessels fairly across the Grand Banks, a region of forty-five per cent. fog, and in a few years the coast around Cape Race became strewn with wrecks of vessels that had lost their bearings and had piled up on the rockbound shore.

About ten or twelve years ago the several big steamship companies made an agreement to adopt a course known as the Northern route for westbound steamers and a Southern route for eastbound steamers. The Northern route for a westbound steamer took her from Queenstown in a southwesterly direction to about forty-two degrees North; forty-seven degrees West, at which point the course was changed almost to due West for New York. Eastward, from New York the course was almost due West to forty-one North; forty-seven, West, thence the course was changed northeasterly.

By these routes even the northernmost was more than 700 miles from Cape Race, and it passed by seventy or more miles the outer edge of the Grand Banks and its dreaded fog and ice zone. The accident to the Titanic, however, has shown that even the fact that she was fully sixty miles to the south of the course she should have followed, having been in the path of the eastbound ships, did not put her clear of ice, and so the various steamship companies have laid off new ocean lanes, this time still farther to the south.

To the arm-chair navigator nothing is more certain than the belief that if one will draw a bucket of fresh sea water and place in it a thermometer, a rapid fall of the mercury will at once denote the presence of ice. This is a fallacy, proven by numerous experiments by ship masters and by naval officers who have sought, and sought anxiously, for some real indication of the whereabouts of bergs when the air is thick with fog.

Shipmasters, in making experiments along this line, have found that at the point where the waters of the Labrador current and the Gulf Stream comingle there is frequently a difference of twenty degrees in the temperature of the surface sea water within a distance of a few hundred yards, and not a piece of ice within twenty miles. On the other hand, in clear weather these same shipmasters have paved close to huge bergs and noted no difference in the temperature of the water they have drawn to test.

Not in many years have there been so many bergs reported as during the past few weeks. Not only have the floating fields been larger in extent but they have been reported many miles to the south of where they have been reported in the past. From Western Greenland, where the bergs originate, come reports of remarkable freedom of ice, indicating that the entire formation has worked its way into the Atlantic to become a menace to shipping.

In Western Greenland the bergs are in formation all of the year, but in the middle of summer the ice begins to break up, setting drifting thousands of these "follies" of majestic but terror-inspiring formations, many of which reach the Grand Banks the following spring. In size these bergs vary, but one that is from sixty to 100 feet to the top of its walls, with spires or pinnacles from 200 to 275 feet high, and a length of 1000 to 1500 feet is considered to be an ordinary Arctic berg. These measurements, however, apply only to the part that may be seen, which is generally conceded to be but about one-ninth of the size, eight-ninths being under the water.

When a berg, such as described, breaks adrift from the ice pack it starts on its southward journey via the Labrador current. Its drift is not an easy one, however, for the whole coast of Labrador is cut up by numerous islands, headlands and bays that form serious, and, perhaps, fortunate obstructions for the bergs. Some of them ground in the Arctic basin and are ground to small pieces; others reach the shores of Labrador, where they continually ground and float, each time reducing their bulk. Many of them disappear entirely through the steady grinding.

It is remarkable how little it sometimes requires to break up a huge berg. Often the concussion of gunfire will cause a huge white monster to split. Striking a rock will have the same effect. Fishermen and whalers give the bergs a wide berth fearing that they will be caught beneath a portion should the berg split. The noise of the rending of the bergs along the Labrador coast during July and August is said to be almost deafening at times.

But in spite of the long drift and the many obstructions some of the huge bergs do reach the open waters of the North Atlantic and there have been, from time to time, reports of having sighted gigantic floes, some of which were said to be 300 to 600 feet high and 1000 to 2000 feet long. Allowing a little for imagination, and something for the breadth of the berg, one has to admit that a steamer striking such a floe would have but little chance.

In one instance an iceberg proved to be a floating home for a company of twenty-seven men, members of the crew of the exploring steamer Polaris, which, in 1872, was crushed in an ice-pack. The men managed to save a vast quantity of the ship's stores and were also fortunate in finding themselves upon solid ice when the pack broke up. In a short time the men discovered that they were upon a berg that was drifting to sea. As long as the berg held together they felt that they were safe, although there is no knowing the many horrible hours they had through the 195 days and nights they were adrift upon their strange craft. It was on the last day of April that they managed to attract the attention of the sailing steamer Tigress and in a little while they were safely on board and enroute to civilization. Surely no party could have had a more terrible experience or a closer shave.

Another instance in which a berg proved to be a life raft was when the crew of the steamer Castlegate sought refuge upon a berg with which their vessel had collided and sunk through the injury. For two days and nights the men were adrift with practically no shelter, whereas the crew of the Polaris had tents and ample supplies. In this case, however, help was quick, for they were rescued by a sealer; and just in time, for there sprang up a blizzard that broke up the berg.

The most unusual experience that ever a ship had was when the skipper of the Portia, in 1895, was persuaded to approach close to a berg so that some of the passengers might take pictures of it. The genial skipper accommodated them and steamed close in. The steamer ran over a portion of the berg that was under the water. The movement of the steamer disturbed the equilibrium of the berg and it turned over. The Portia was lifted clear of the water as the sheet of ice under her arose, and what might have happened it is a matter of conjecture, but the ice broke and the ship once more settled into

WHY THE BABY SAYS "DA" AND NOT "GA" WHEN HE POINTS

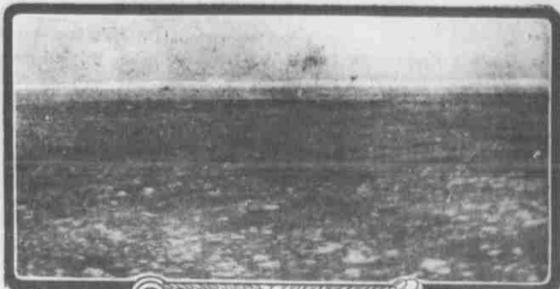

Everyone knows that the average baby says "Da," and points at a thing with his tiny, chubby little finger, his face beaming with delight and happiness meanwhile. Why should he not say "ba," or "ga," or "ta," or "ra," and similar sounds,—instead of always "da?"

The reason for this, says Professor Max Meyer, is because the nervous impulses which are called into play in the act of pointing, are connected with the nerves in the front portion of the mouth, and not with those of the throat. The latter belong to an entirely different set of internal muscular and nervous influences; and are not so directly connected with the movements of the arm, in pointing. Because of this closer connection it is more easy and rational to say "da" than to say "ga." Try for yourself and you will find it much easier to make use of the dental than the guttural sounds, when pointing.

This shows us that the reason for the child's behavior—in this particular instance—is due, not to training, or teaching, or imitation, or because of any mysterious interior promptings but simply and solely because of the fact that the paths of nervous energy run more simply and naturally in that way. It is due to the universal tendency to take the path of least resistance. It is upon this principle that Prof. Meyer builds his whole system of the training of the nervous system, and the rearing and education of children.

The life of the baby depends entirely upon the condition of his nervous system. The life of any animal depends upon the same thing. The early behavior of any animal may be explained entirely by a study of the nervous reactions, says Dr. Meyer, and we need think of nothing else in studying the actions of a very young baby or the life of the lower organisms.

The nervous system of the baby is arranged in this wise: There is first the nerve for the incoming impulse, then a nerve-cell of center, and then a nerve for the outgoing impulse. The first nerve brings in the impulse from the outside world; the cell of center decides and acts upon it; and the remaining nerve carries along its inner surfaces the impulse to move a muscle, her native element. It is safe to say that no more passengers with cameras will be accommodated by that particular shipmaster, who afterwards declared that it was the narrowest escape from disaster that any man could have.

Even the hardy Newfoundland fishermen, with all their knowledge and skill, are sometimes victims. There was the bark Nellie that sailed in May 1904, with a crew of ten. Before dark the two survivors were back in port, having been picked up from a floating spar by another fisherman. The Nellie had struck a berg. The sealing schooner Albatross, with a crew of twenty-two, sailed in March, of the year before, never to be heard of again. The presumption is that she struck a berg shortly after leaving port for the weather was foggy.

There is not a year but that fishing and sailing craft hailing out of St. Johns and other far north ports disappear, victims of what no one knows, but it is generally conceded that icebergs play a principal part in the tragedies that are never told.

From April to October the Grand Banks off Newfoundland are veiled by heavy fogs through which the giant, pallid glaciers drift in silence, borne by the currents and wind in a general southerly direction, sometimes fast, sometimes slow, and not until they strike the warmer water that flows in the Gulf Stream do they begin to melt. Of the ships that have collided with these floating islands and not reached port to tell there are many; indeed it is a question what does happen to the ship that is posted as "missing" month after month, until the years elapse and all hope is abandoned.

Even steam craft built especially to withstand the hard usage of Arctic ice succumb. The Wolf, the Hope, the Mastiff, the Resolute, the Eliot and many others are on the records as lost in the ice—some by being caught in packs and crushed, others from colliding with bergs. Among the long list of "missing" is the Collins liner Pacific, which is supposed to have struck a berg and gone down with all hands. A few years ago one of the "Turret" steamers, a huge freighter, sailed from Baltimore with wheat for Europe. She took the Northern route and she has long since been posted as "missing." Her fate is not known, but it is not unlikely that she struck a berg.

It is no wonder that the sinking of the Titanic has caused every shipmaster running a trans-Atlantic route to be apprehensive lest a like fate befall him.

PORPOISES VALUABLE IN MANY WAYS.

The only porpoise oil factory on the Atlantic coast is established about six miles below Cape Hatteras and near Hatteras Inlet. Along this coast porpoises are plentiful through about six months of the year, and there are three crews of fishermen who make a business of catching them for the oil factory. For the reason that porpoises are easily frightened the fisherman must be wary and quiet who would meet with success. The method employed is to impound a school in a wide-meshed net first and then to take them with a sweep net of much finer mesh.

The porpoises are five to ten feet in length, big and powerful. They are skinned for their hides and the blubber is removed. The hides are salted down and sent in their green state to a tannery in New Jersey to be tanned and made into leather. Porpoise hide is used for shoe strings, pocketbooks and traveling bags or suit cases. The oil from the blubber is tried out at the factory on the beach and then sent to New Bedford, Mass., for refining.

The valuable head oil, the famous porpoise oil that is used for oiling watches and other delicate machinery, is obtained from the marrow of the porpoise's lower jawbone and from a small quantity of blubber found between the snout and the blowhole. In making the oil this blubber and the marrow are mixed. The production of this oil may range from half a pint to a quart from one porpoise. Refined porpoise oil for jewellers' use is worth from $900 to $1200 a barrel.

The body oil obtained from a porpoise amounts ordinarily to thirteen or fourteen gallons. This is used for various purposes and brings far less than the head oil. The carcasses are made into fertilizer.

WHY MILK SOURS IN A THUNDERSTORM.

It has often been observed that some foods, such as milk, meat and soup, go bad when there is a thunderstorm. This has generally been attributed to the electricity causing an extra supply of ozone in the air, but experiments conducted recently by Prof. Trillat in France do not confirm this theory.

Prof. Trillat has proved that infinitesimal traces of the gases of putrescence cause lactic ferments to progress with great rapidity. It is known that atmospheric depressions cause the gases lying in the earth and in all other objects to come to the surface. This is what makes odors more perceptible after a storm. From this it was a natural deduction that atmospheric depression accelerated decay by liberating the gases in milk or other perishable foods.

Prof. Trillat made many experiments with substances under varying degrees of atmospheric pressure and proved that the lower the barometer the more rapid the decay.

AUTOMATIC SELF-SUPPORTING BUSINESS

We read that President Taft has received an offer to invest in a cat farm which is shortly to be established in Tripoli and which its promoters claim will yield unusually handsome profits. The offer was sent to the President by Thomas J. O'Brien, American Ambassador at Rome, who, in forwarding a letter from the promoters of the cat farm, sent a note to the President saying:

"My Dear Mr. President: I haven't the heart to keep you from taking stock in so good a thing."

The letter which Mr. O'Brien forwarded to the President was written by an American resident in Tripoli, whose name was not disclosed. He says that a large corporation will be formed to exploit his cat farm. His letter was in part as follows:

"The object of this company will be to own and operate a cat farm in Tripoli, near Berns, where land is cheap and the climate is good.

"To start with, the company will collect in Italy, say, 100,000 cats. We can count on each cat having an average of twelve cats a year, which would be full grown in less than three months. The skins will sell for from ten cents for the white one to seventy-five cents for the pure black ones. The average output of from five to fourteen kittens per cat per annum means an output of 12,000,000 skins per annum, which would sell at an average of thirty cents each, making our revenue $3,600,000 a day gross.

"A man can skin fifty cats a day. Such labor would cost us an average of $2 per day per man. As it would take 100 men to operate our plant, the expense per day would be $200. Our profit would be, therefore, $9800 a day.

"We will feed the cats on their natural food—rats. To secure the proper food supply, we will start a rat farm adjacent to the cat farm. The rats multiply four times as fast as cats. If we start with 100,000 rats we shall have four rats a day for each cat—an abundant food supply.

"We will, of course, be able to feed our cats on the rat supply exclusively, and we will in turn feed the rats on the skinned carcasses of the cats, thus giving each rat for its day's allowance of food one-fourth of a cat.

"It will be readily seen that this business will be self-supporting, automatic and self-acting. The cats eat the rats, the rats eat the cats, and we skin the cats."

ELECTRICITY SAVES A WATER TANK

On the roof of the six-story loft building No. 388 Hudson street, New York, stands a great tank of water, the supply for the sprinkler system of the building. As it is exposed to the winds off the North River, it was necessary to devise some method of keeping the water from freezing. There was no danger of the pipes bursting, for there is no water in them until a fire burns away one of the metal caps.

It was decided to install electric heaters in the tank, and many experiments were made to learn just how these could most effectively be placed. The best results were obtained from heaters set in the eighteen-inch air chamber at the top of the tank and attached to the under side of its airtight cover. Four such heaters of 1200 watts each were installed with a thermostat control to keep the temperature of the air chamber always at thirty-four degrees Fahrenheit.

On January 5 and 6, when the below zero weather froze almost everything solid, the operation of this device was watched with interest by the electricians who had installed it. They were delighted to find that it worked exactly as they had planned that it should. As soon as the temperature in the air chamber fell to thirty-four, the thermostat acted automatically and set the heaters in operation. When these had warmed the air sufficiently the current was automatically shut off until it should be needed again. The water in this exposed tank never froze throughout the winter.

Ten Ways of Cooking Cheese That Have Proved Successful

Corn and Cheese Souffle.
One tablespoonful of butter.
One tablespoonful of chopped green pepper.
Quarter cupful of flour.
Two cupfuls of milk.
One cupful of chopped corn.
One cupful of grated cheese.
Three eggs.
Half teaspoonful of salt.
Melt the butter and cook the pepper thoroughly in it. Make a sauce out of the flour, milk and cheese; add the corn, cheese, yolks and seasonings; cut and fold in the whites beaten stiffly; turn into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes.
Made with skimmed milk and without butter, this dish has a food value slightly in excess of a pound of beef and a pound of potatoes.

Baked Crackers and Cheese No. 2.
Nine to ten butter crackers or soda crackers.
Two cupfuls of hot milk, whole or skimmed.
One cupful of grated cheese.
Quarter teaspoonful of salt.
This is more quickly prepared than the preceding recipe, but as the milk is likely to curdle it has not so good a consistency.
Soak the crackers in the milk; place them in a buttered baking dish in alternate layers with the cheese; pour the remaining milk over them and bake. This dish may be covered with buttered crumbs. Variety may be secured, in either this recipe or the preceding one, by putting a very small amount of mixed mustard on each cracker.

Pimiento and Cheese Roast.
Two cupfuls of cooked Lima beans.
Quarter pound of cream cheese, commercial or home-made.
Three canned pimientos chopped.
Bread crumbs.
Put the first three ingredients through a meat chopper. Mix thoroughly and add bread crumbs until it is stiff enough to form into a roll. Brown in the oven, basting occasionally with butter and water.

Boston Roast.
One pound can of kidney beans or equivalent quantity of cooked beans.
Half pound of grated cheese.
Bread-crumbs. Salt.
Mash the beans or put them through a meat grinder. Add the cheese and sufficient bread crumbs to make the mixture stiff enough to be formed into a roll. Bake in a moderate oven, basting occasionally with butter and water. Serve with tomato sauce. This dish may be flavored with onions, chopped and cooked in butter and water.

Cheese Rolls.
A large variety of rolls may be made by combining legumes either beans of various kinds, cowpeas, lentils or peas, with cheese of various kinds, and adding bread crumbs to make the mixture thick enough to form into a roll. Beans are usually mashed, but peas or small Lima beans may be combined whole with bread crumbs and grated cheese, and enough of the liquor in which the vegetables have been cooked may be added to get the right consistency. Or, instead of beans or peas, chopped spinach, beet tops or head lettuce may be used. Home-made cottage cheese and the soft cream cheese of commerce, standard cheese, or English dairy may be used.

Cheese Omelet No. 2.
Grated cheese may be sprinkled over an ordinary omelet before it is served.

Cheese Omelet No. 3.
Yolks of four eggs.
Two tablespoonfuls of hot water.
One cupful of grated cheese.
Salt and pepper.
Whites of four eggs.
One tablespoonful of butter.
Beat the yolks until lemon colored and add the hot water and the seasoning. Beat the whites until they are stiff and add the cheese. Cut and fold the two mixtures together. Heat the butter in omelet pan and cook the mixture very slowly until it is brown on the underside. If possible, cook the top of the omelet in the oven or by means of a hot plate held over it.

Scrambled Eggs with Cheese.
Half pound of cheese grated or cut into small pieces.
Eight eggs.
One tablespoonful of chopped parsley.
A pinch of nutmeg.
Half teaspoonful of salt.
Beat the eggs, mix them with the other ingredients and cook over a very slow fire, stirring constantly, so that the cheese may be melted by the time the eggs are cooked. In food value the dish is equal to nearly two pounds of average beef. The calculated cost is about thirty cents.
Three tablespoonfuls of butter.
Quarter cupful of flour, two-thirds cupful of milk.
Yolks of two eggs.
One cupful of cheese cut in very small pieces.
Half cupful grated cheese. Salt and pepper.
Make with a white sauce, using the butter, flour and the milk. Add the unbeaten yolks and stir until well mixed, then add the grated cheese. As soon as the cheese melts remove from the fire, fold in the pieces of cheese and add the seasoning. Spread in a shallow pan and cool. Cut into squares or strips, cover with an egg and crumb mixture and fry in deep fat.

Fried Cheese Balls.
One and a half cupfuls of grated cheese.
One tablespoonful of flour.
The whites of three eggs.
Salt, pepper, cracker dust.
Beat the whites of the eggs; add the other ingredients; make it into balls and roll in cracker dust. If the amount of flour is doubled, the mixture may be dropped from a spoon and fried without being rolled in crumbs.

SKIRTS AND PANIERS.
Skirts are fuller at the waist, but this is merely that they are cut rather straight in shape than curved, and the fulness is put in in gathers, not in darts or seams. Around the foot they are still as narrow as ever, though more width is predicted.
Paniers are not in any way prevalent, although a few have appeared on the gowns of extreme designers. They are not so far from pretty that they have not caught the American taste.—Harper's Bazar.

Vegetables For Health

If coupled with exercise, the woman who would fain be well and beautiful looks out for her diet, eating the good spring vegetables, each a little medicine chest in itself, she will doubtless achieve her purpose, and that without recourse to a physician. Among the who esome spring vegetables the onion usually ranks, first, the old couplet running:
Eat onions in May
And all the year after physicians may pray.
Containing a large amount of sulphur, it stands approved as a complexion beautifier. Besides that, it tones up the stomach, soothes the nerves, loosens a cold, quiets a cough and stimulates the kidneys. As an appetizer there is nothing to excel young home-grown onions or the Spanish or Bermudas sliced water thin, lightly salted and placed between thin slices of bread and butter. If one is distressed by a burning sensation after eating onions, it can be remedied by covering the sliced onions with cold water for an hour before eating, then pressing out as much of the juice as possible. Cress is another wholesome spring vegetable, believed by the ancients to excel as a system invigorator and mental stimulant. This belief was crystallized into a proverb attributed to Pliny:
Eat cress and learn wit.

Analyzed, it contains sulphur, iodine, iron, phosphate and other "salts" which enable it to prevent scurvy, promote digestion, remedy phthisis and induce perspiration.
It is claimed for asparagus that it calms the action of the heart, stimulates the kidneys and acts as a preventive of calculi. The dandelion stands approved according to the doctors for its aperient, detergent and diuretic properties.
Fresh mint stimulates digestion and allays pains, particularly heat headaches. All older housewives know the value of the various spring bitters and dandelion wine, but younger women may be glad to know how to prepare them, as well as a little out of the ordinary way of preparing seasonable vegetables.

SOME EPIGRAMS BY A CLEVER FRENCHWOMAN.

Here are a few thoughts culled at random by Mme. Dulafoy from two books by Mme. Barratin, which the former considers worthy of La Rochefoucauld:
The one thing we can give without possessing is happiness.
Nothing rejuvenates us like gladly growing old.
Honor obliges us not only to be honorable, but not to live with those who are not.
Love does not see; friendship cannot see.
A fine morning is a promise; a fine evening a benediction.
To avoid a scene, make it.
Vanity is small in stature, but she has heels that make a clatter.
Happiness grows selfish; that it its way of withering.
Once is not a habit, but it is a debut.
Poverty is a crime only when you let the other fellow steal your opportunities.

Age and Marriage.

A correspondent writes to know if of mind.
But when it comes to marrying a girl of sixteen or seventeen, this is quite another matter. A girl of sixteen or seventeen is too young to marry, no matter what the age of the prospective husband. The tastes and aims of a girl of sixteen are not yet formed. She doesn't know herself, she doesn't know what she wants of life, she doesn't know what sort of woman she will be at twenty-five. And it is not fair to her to marry her at sixteen when her judgment is so immature.
All may go well. She may love her husband very truly. She may be moulded by his wishes. She may grow into the woman he wants. But, again, she may not. There may come a strong individual development, a great awakening some day. And then, there may be a tragedy. There is always this probability in the wife of sixteen.
All of us change. We are continually growing and developing. But at twenty-two or twenty-five, a woman is apt to know a little more surely what she wants of life. She is a little more likely to have set her feet in the direction in which she wishes to go. She realizes more clearly what marriage means. She knows what she is doing in shouldering its responsibilities.
So it would seem as if this man ought to wait for his little girl to grow up. They can be friends. He can watch her development. And the probability is, if he is the right kind of man, she will come to care for him very deeply. And such an association for several years will bring him a deeper satisfaction in marriage than that of merely "settling down."

Three Perisan Recipes

Persian Chelov.
Take four pounds of whole rice and put it in a kettle of cold water to soak for one hour. Add one-fifth of a pound of rock salt to flavor the rice while being soaked. Then take the rice out and boil it until it is well cooked, without breaking the grains or letting them become too soft. In fact, it should boil until the core of the rice kernel is cooked. Then drain off the water, and add one cup of butter melted with a cupful of boiling water in a saucepan. Add a pinch of good saffron. Then put the rice gradually into the saucepan and form it into a conical shape with a spoon, always being careful not to break the grains. Then take a large napkin and cover the rice so that the moisture formed by evaporating will not mix with it. Afterwards put a cover on the saucepan and place it on a very gentle fire for over an hour. Before serving, take a quarter of a pound of butter, melt it in boiling water and sprinkle over the rice in the saucepan so that it may penetrate through the contents for ten minutes with the saucepan covered. Take a little saffron and mash with a spoon in hot water and spread it at the top of the rice, after which it is ready to serve.

Khoresh.
Another dish often served with chelov is a kind of stew made of meat and vegetables called khoresh. A favorite form of khoresh is made with eggplant as follows:
Take from two to three pounds of lamb from the shoulder or leg with all the fat and grease taken out. Boil the meat until it is done. Then take two or three eggplants, peel, cut into pieces and fry in butter until browned. Take also from two to three onions, chop into small pieces and fry in a little butter. Then let the cooked meat and onions fry together a little, after which place the eggplants and the meat and onions in a saucepan with a cupful of the meat juice. Cover the saucepan and let it stay on a slow fire for an hour. Add salt and pepper to suit while boiling and add flavoring of lemon juice or tomato just before serving.
The rice or chelov is served in individual plates and the stew is placed on one side over the rice.
With these two dishes is served the most delicate and sweetest of melons, the melon of Ispahan.

Here Is Uncle Sam's Own Recipe For Boiling Ham

Dr. E. W. Magruder of the Virginia State Department of Agriculture, the great authority on curing hams and bacon, is quoted in a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture as giving the following directions for boiling a ham:
"A large ham—say eighteen pounds—is much better flavored, sweeter and more juicy than a small one—say under eight pounds.
"Wash the ham thoroughly, then soak in cold water several hours, the time varying with the size of the ham. This soaking is to dissolve out the excess of salt. The ham is then put in a boiler full of boiling water. The temperature should then be lowered slightly and the boiler just kept simmering. Keep the water just barely boiling for four and a half hours for an eighteen pound ham; that is, a quarter of an hour for each pound of ham. If the hams are larger or smaller, vary the time to suit the weight.

As the water boils out, add fresh boiling water, and always keep the boiler full. For very large hams it is advisable to cook in two waters.
"Why should the ham be put in boiling water? Portions of the lean meat, the albumin, and some of the juices and flavors are soluble in warm water, while boiling water coagulates the albumin just as it does the white of an egg. So, if put in cold water and heated to the boiling point, some albumin and much of the delicate flavors which are so sought after in hams would be dissolved out by the water as it warmed up to the boiling point; but if put into boiling water, the albumin is coagulated at once on the surface and all the juices and flavors are sealed in and kept there till eaten. While cooking, the ham is just kept at the boiling point of water, which is sufficient heat to cook it thoroughly without separating the fibres or boiling it to pieces, as a rapid or hard boiling would do."

sought or a kind of meat soup. This is a very nourishing, simple and delicious food and is to be found in every table throughout the land, with variations in the flavoring and making.
Take three pounds of lamb, shoulder or leg, with the grease and fat taken out. Boil in a saucepan more than half full of water. While boiling skim the surface. Take half a pound of white beans or split peas and put them in the boiling water with the meat to cook. Then for every pound of meat add a whole onion. When the meat and beans are cooked enough then add several peeled potatoes. Never allow the water to evaporate, but add in reasonable quantities while the meat is boiling. Pepper and salt to suit the taste and ten minutes before serving flavor with lemon juice or with tomato juice. The dish is made also with apples, prunes, apricots, eggplant and other vegetables instead of the potato.

THE NEW TAFFETA WRAPS.
This summer one's wardrobe is not considered quite complete without one of the attractive new taffeta wraps. These are fashionable often on the simplest lines imaginable.
Some are unlined and trimmed merely with a one-inch shirred band of the material about the edges. Others are designed on the draped dolman lines, and finished with wider corded bands, with deep lace collars, draped revers of cream Chantilly or Venice lace or with draped hood effects of point d'esprit.
These wraps are developed in Alice blue, Dutch blue, black, pink, old rose, emerald green and all of the changeable Taffetas, and are expected to do service either over evening gowns or over one of the embroidered voile, muslin, or crepe robe dresses which are so much in vogue for afternoon wear.—Harper's Bazar.

NEW SPRING HATS.
Feathers are more used than flowers on the earliest spring hats, but later the flowers will be as much seen as ever. The display of colors in the flowers is this year more than ever gorgeous.
The smartest color for hats, parasols, and veils is purple in all shades from deep violet to pale lavender. This is what the Paris milliners say, and it is safe to predict that the color wave will reach to all parts of America.
Made-up feathers in large and small form are fashionable as well as ostrich plumes in black and white. The French plume with curled effect is used again, and the group of three small tips called Prince of Wales feather is much seen after years of retirement.—Harper's Bazar.

SUMMER GOWNS.
Summer gowns this year are simpler itself in the majority of cases, although many of the new models, of simple outline, preserving the straight, slender lines and rather larger waist-line, are, nevertheless, extremely intricate in cut. This is especially true of the white serge and linen dresses which are worn on all informal occasions when out-of-door sports and informal affairs are the order of the day.
These tailored dresses, with their unusual seaming forming simulated peplums, tunics, and side insets in the skirts and attractive vest effects, shoulder pieces, and surplice closing on the bodice, require the most reliable patterns and clever handling to insure their complete success.—Harper's Bazar.

ACCORDION PLEATING AGAIN.
The much-lamented accordion pleating is again coming into favor, which indicates a tendency to wider skirts. Some chiffon frocks with accordion-pleated skirts have been shown among the advance models for summer. The pleats are stitched flat at the upper part. Some gowns have been made by the Paris dressmakers with thin tunics under which are skirts of pleated satin.—Harper's Bazar.

SOUP FOR THE SICK.
A good simple soup is made of pearl barley. Soak one cup of the barley overnight, drain and cover with three pints of boiling water. Add one teaspoonful of seeded raisins and the grated rind and juice of an orange. Set the saucepan on the back of the part. Some gowns have been made by adding a little water if it evaporates too much. Serve this with thin sandwiches.—Harper's Bazar.

THE PLACE OF SOUPS, JELLIES AND SALADS IN THE WELL-BALANCED DAILY DIET

By a Health Expert.
There is an old saying that "soup should be seen and not heard!" This is true in more senses than one, for while the usages of polite society require that all eating processes should be noiseless, the process of eating soup so hot that it is cannot be eaten except when taking a certain quantity of air in the mouth at the same time in order to cool it off is harmful to the stomach and to the delicate lining of the tube which leads from the throat to the stomach.
The habit of eating scalding hot soup is very harmful, because excessively hot (or excessively cold) drinks of any kind tend to destroy the delicate inner lining of the stomach, as before explained. Soup should be warm, but not hot. This holds good for drinks of all kinds.
Soups contain far less nourishment than most persons imagine. This is especially true of meat soups. Beef tea, which was for so long given to invalids and considered an ideal food, is now prohibited by many physicians, and is, by practically all of them, considered a stimulant rather than a true food.

The reason for this is that many of the poisons contained within the meat are boiled out, into the soup, while the nutritious portions are extracted hardly at all in the process of cooking.
Real, healthy tissue does not dissolve in water, but the materials held in solution in the tissues do. For this reason meat soups contain comparatively little nourishment.
This is not so true of the thick vegetable soups, which are less stimulating, but in reality more nutritious. Pea soup, bean soup, asparagus soup are especially wholesome and nutritive and are real foods. The same may be said of cream soups of all kinds; the very materials they contain make them nutritious.
Thin, watery soups are little better than appetizers, and at big dinners are only intended to be such. In many forms of illness liquid foods are all that are allowed to a patient.
Jellies are tasty articles of diet, and when eaten with meat often give a dash of flavor which is needed by the very nature of the dish. They are generally eaten as a side dish or condiment, and this is their true place.

As such they neither do much harm nor much good. The idea seems to be very prevalent, for some reason hard to tell, that jellies are good food for invalids. No medical man now believes this to be so. Dr. William Tibbles, for example, the great food expert of London, England, says:
"The public have great faith in jelly of every kind and name, but, like beef tea, it is of low nutritive value. Animals fed on jelly die nearly as soon as if they were not fed at all."
Again, Florence Nightingale in her "Notes on Nursing" says:
"It is now known that jelly does not nourish; that it has a tendency to produce diarrhoea, and to trust to it to repair the waste of a diseased constitution is simply to starve the sick under the guise of feeding them."
It is very evident, therefore, that the value of jelly has been greatly overrated, and that it cannot be considered a true food at all. As a condiment it is harmless, but as a food for the sick person it cannot be recommended.
America is pre-eminently the land of salads, and a great variety of all kinds are to be obtained in this country. Many of them consist of vegetables of various kinds, chopped into small pieces. These are the strictly "vegetable salads." Then we have the great number of salads of which lettuce forms the base. To this are added tomatoes, onions, endive, radishes, cresses, cucumber, beetroot, celery and nuts.

Salads are valuable as food mainly because of the freshness of the vegetables composing them, for their juices, containing valuable organic salts, and especially iron, which is obtained in connection with the green coloring matter which is upon all green food.
Salads sometimes cause indigestion because of the large amount of fibrous matter they contain, and for this reason are hard to digest. Still, when they can be eaten, they are cooling, appetizing and of value to the blood as cleansers.
Pickles, when eaten at all, should be well medicated, as they are otherwise liable to cause indigestion. Celery is a mild stimulant and is considered good for the nerves, and is often prescribed for those suffering from rheumatism. Endive is given to people suffering from liver troubles. Cresses, capers, dandelion and radishes are widely eaten and form appetizing salads.
Only within the last few years it has been found that sugar, in a pure form, is a wholesome food and not a mere "dyspepsia producer," as was held for so long. When children craved sweets and candy is used to be forbidden them on the ground that it was unwholesome and that their appetites were unnatural.

But all this is now proved to be untrue. Sugar is certainly a valuable and true food, and the craving of children for sweet stuffs of all kinds is only the natural outcry of the system for material which they need and which their bodies crave.
If more sweet stuffs were eaten, less protein or muscle-forming elements would be necessary, and this is an advantage, because it is the "proteids" which cause most of the trouble in the system. An excess of fatty material, for example, may be stored up simply as fat, but an excess of muscle-forming elements cannot be and float about in the blood stream or are deposited in the joints and tissues of the body as previously explained, causing rheumatism or lassitude, fatigue, &c. So it is an advantage to eat sugar and sweet things on this account.
Miss Abel, in her official report, in the United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin ("Sugar as Food"), says:
"Within certain limits we can look upon sugar as the equivalent of starch that has been digested and made ready for absorption. A mealy potato or a lump of laundry starch is, in fact, very near akin to a lump of sugar; and the potato, like all form of starchy food, must be turned into a kind of sugar by the digestive juices before it can be absorbed by the system. The main function of sugar, as found in the blood, whether resulting from the digestion of starch or sugar, is believed to be the production of heat and energy."

All this is not saying that sugar or sweet stuffs of various kinds cannot be indulged in too freely, for they can. If eaten in too great quantities they tend to clog the functionings of the liver and cause acidity and flatulence. They may also cause grave kidney disorders. Moderation in this, as in all things, is necessary.
In saying that children should be allowed sweet stuffs, this does not mean that they should be allowed to eat cheap and usually adulterated candy, for this is the very worst form in which to obtain sugar. Sugar should be provided to them in the form of sweet, juicy fruits of all kinds, and particularly dates and figs, which are rich in sugar.
If the child is allowed to eat a fair number of dates it will usually crave little else in the way of sugar.

Honey is also good and is a pure food when eaten from the comb. Jams, when they are pure, are good and may be allowed in moderation. As sugar is a very concentrated food it must be eaten in moderation. It is also not advisable for persons who have liver troubles or who have any trace of diabetes. Acid, such as that contained in the lemon, is good for the patient who is suffering from too much sweet eating.
Because of the fact that a large proportion of the starch eaten is converted into grape sugar and acts in the body just like any other sugar, it is obvious that the same meal should not contain large proportions of both starch and sugar, for this would be eating the same food twice over.
Just as we saw that peas and beans should not be eaten with meat as a rule, so starches and sugar do not mix well together. Either of them may safely be combined with muscle-forming elements or fats and acids. This is usually the case in a well rounded out diet in which various articles are blended one with another. As the meal is proportioned, this is generally the case.

Stearns' Headache Wafers (Shac)

Many people say "they are as refreshing as a night's sleep" for they simply drive away the pain, leaving the head normally at ease.

You can depend upon Stearns' Headache Wafers just as millions of others have done for years; and they relieve not only headaches but many other kinds of pain; yet they are and always have been free from opiates, morphine, chloral and other habit-forming drugs.

After one trial you will know that these tiny, tasteless snow-white wafers should always be kept at hand. Be sure to get STEARNS'—the genuine.

FRISCO'S PLANS FOR HER GREAT SHOW
Panama-Pacific Exposition Will Cost More Than Any Other Ever Held—Eighty Millions Will Be Spent.

San Francisco is planning to entertain the world on a grand scale in 1915. Before the city had been selected as the location for the Panama Canal Exposition more than $17,000,000 had been publicly contributed in California for the big show. Since then the public fund has reached $22,000,000. It is estimated that more than $80,000,000 will be expended on the exposition.

Several sites will be occupied by the buildings, but according to a writer in Harper's Weekly they will be units in a superb group. The two principal sites are at Harbor View and in the west side of Golden Gate Park. Harbor View lies as a crescent on the bay half way between the ferry and the sea. Golden Gate Park faces the Pacific Ocean and runs back to the city. A winding boulevard will be the link between these two sites. A trackless trolley will run over it and it will be a permanent addition to the city's attractions.

At Harbor View will be located the Midway and other features that lend themselves to brilliant electrical effects. An existing lagoon will be converted into a superb yacht harbor; an aquarium will be located there and the most marvellous collection of the strange and brilliantly colored fish of tropic waters will be brought together. Also at Harbor View will be located great structures to house the heavy exhibits that may be unloaded from ocean-going vessels directly upon the grounds. Among these will be the manufactures and machinery building the Palace of Liberal Arts and the buildings to house industrial features.

Lincoln Park is a lofty knoll 150 acres in area, 200 to 300 feet above the waters of the Golden Gate. The park will be adorned with terraces and statuary and an observation cafe, glass enclosed and of several stories. But the crowning achievement will be the St. Francis Memorial Tower, a huge commemorative edifice which, like Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty, will welcome vessels from afar.

Plans have been accepted and the tower, will be 850 feet high, including the shaft and a granite anchored base 226 feet square. The shaft will be eighty-five feet square, of steel construction and of marble and terra cotta veneering. The approximate cost will be $1,000,000. From its summit one will be able to look almost straight down upon the waters of the Golden Gate, 1100 feet below.

From Lincoln Park south to Golden Gate Park the distance is almost one mile. Between these parks the exposition directors have secured a connecting strip of 200 acres of privately owned land that will be devoted to the use of foreign concessionaires, to live stock exhibits, to gardens, and doubtless to exhibits from Alaska, Hawaii and foreign countries.

One of the most notable foreign concessions will be that just proposed by the Chinese merchants of San Francisco, who have at their command many millions and are enthusiastic. A Chinese display of large dimensions will be surrounded by a model of the great wall of China.

The concession will be built at a cost of $1,000,000 and it is planned to have the whole work completed by the latter part of 1914. Junks, sampans, temples, and pagodas will be included within the concession, and the visitor may if he wishes take a rickshaw or automobile around the top of the great wall.

Golden Gate Park will be the site of the permanent structures which will remain after the exposition. Among the striking structures here will be a huge concrete coliseum to surround an existing stadium with a seating capacity of 75,000 people and in architecture like that at Rome. Awnings will shade it and it is planned that an automobile racetrack shall pass into the stadium.

A marble art gallery with the noted paintings of the world will be among the features, while a chain of lakes at different levels will be connected by a working model of the Panama Canal. In Golden Gate Park Japanese and Chinese residents of the Pacific coast may build typical edifices in which their societies can meet and their archives may be kept.

Perhaps the most remarkable and unusual feature will be a wonderful series of Chinese, Japanese and Hawaiian gardens. The rarest plants of the tropical Orient will be shown with those of more temperate regions. The marvels of Oriental gardening as developed for centuries will be expounded and a wonderful Hawaiian water garden is planned. Many acres will be comprised in this exhibit.

All told San Francisco will spend more than $100,000,000 in public improvements within the city itself. The State of California has voted $9,000,000
