TAFT MEN CLAIM ADVANTAGE IN OHIO

VOTE OF TAFT'S HOME STATE IS SAID TO BE LIGHT

Civic Union For Public Welfare

An auspicious start was made last night toward uniting the various bodies having for their purposes the material and social betterment of Honolulu and Hawaii, when an assembly of about fifty representative men around the festive board at the University Club, after an interesting discussion by many speakers unanimously adopted the following resolution: "Resolved that the following gentlemen, W. F. Dillingham, B. von Damm, E. E. Paxton, L. T. Peck, E. A. Berndt, G. W. Smith, John A. Hughes, Richard H. Trent, Mayor Fern, John R. Galt, S. Sheba, Wm. Y. Kwai Fong and A. D. Castro, be appointed a committee to investigate the feasibility of forming a united civic organization in Honolulu, to be known as the Hawaii Chamber of Commerce, or another name equally suitable for the purpose, and at a public meeting, to be called by the committee, make a report, submit plans for such an organization, or make some other definite recommendations to carry out the spirit of this meeting." Joseph P. Cooke, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was chairman of the meeting, on his right being Admiral Cowles, H. Gooding Field and Alexander Hume Ford, and on his left General Macomb, Acting Governor Mott-Smith and Walter F. Dillingham. With the coffee at the end of a very good dinner, Mr. Cooke opened the business. He said the idea of a central civic body, replacing various organizations, came to his attention in San Francisco two years ago. Mr. (Continued on Page Five)

THE ORIENT LINE MAY COME HERE

There can be no doubt that with the opening of the Panama canal big things will develop in the Pacific as far as shipping interests are concerned. Although at the present time only rumors are to be heard, great significance is to be placed on the fact that Sir Kenneth Anderson, managing director of the Orient company, one of the largest companies running between England and Australia, would not deny the rumor that his company contemplates starting operations in this ocean at a later date. Sir Kenneth is a through passenger in the Canadian-Australian steamer Makura that arrived from Australia this morning. "There are all sorts of rumors flying round, Sir Kenneth, that the Orient company is contemplating starting a line across the Pacific following the opening of the canal. Is this true or not?" he was asked this morning. "You will not get anything out of me," was the answer. "Besides, I do not think that it is fair to ask me, I am on a pleasure trip and do not want to talk business." Particular stress is laid by the Australian papers just to hand on the (Continued on page Four)

Tried To Strangle His Wife

Manuel R. Freitas attempted to kill his wife this morning by hanging her from a branch of a guava-bush on a deserted Tantalus trail. The woman is in a delicate condition and her state is precarious. The inhuman husband is detained at the police station pending further investigation of the case. Freitas and his wife left their home at the corner of Alapai and Prospect streets about eight o'clock this morning. They went to Tantalus to cut grass to be used for stuffing mattresses. According to Mrs. Freitas her husband suddenly attacked her while she was stooping down cutting grass and after knocking her down tied a piece of new rope round her neck and throwing it over a stout guava branch hauled her up. She screamed for help but there was no one near to respond to her frantic appeal. While she was hanging Mrs. Freitas alleged that her husband treated her with fiendish cruelty. She lost consciousness and when she came to she was lying on the ground at the base of the bush bleeding from mouth, nose and ears. In some miraculous manner the rope had become detached from the branch and the poor woman slipped to the ground and to life. As soon as she had recovered sufficiently she walked home as fast as she could. Her husband was nowhere in sight when consciousness was regained. (Continued on Page Eight)

JAPANESE SUGAR PLANTERS SHIFT THEIR PATRONAGE FROM HONOLULU TO GLASGOW

Japan is rapidly forging ahead into the front rank of sugar growing nations and it is only a matter of time when she will prove a competitor not to be despised. This statement was made by Thomas Sammons, American consul general at Tokyo, who passed through here on his way to the Coast today, incidentally visiting Acting Governor Mott-Smith and taking luncheon at the University club. It was in the course of his conversation with Acting Governor Mott-Smith that the consul general discussed the sugar situation in Japan and commented upon the fact that in Formosa, where the sugar industry is at its height the planters are buying sugar-milling machinery from Glasgow instead of purchasing their machinery from Honolulu as has been previously their custom. According to the consul general, the Japanese planters are dissatisfied with the prices they have been paying here for milling machinery and, on account of the lower price asked, are ordering machinery from Glasgow manufacturers. Consul Sammons further declares that the Japanese planters claim that they are able to obtain as good a grade of machinery from the Glasgow manufacturers as they can obtain here and the price charged by the Scottish manufacturers is appreciably lower. In the course of his visit with the acting governor, the consul general called special attention to this and expressed himself as much interested in seeing Hawaii supply the oriental planters with machinery as heretofore.

The Kauai Quarantine

"Can you tell me the reason for establishing a quarantine against Kauai produce on account of the fruit-fly?" Hon. C. A. Rice asked a Star reporter. An answer could not be given, and Mr. Rice proceeded. "It is hard to see what reason there can be, when this island has had the fruit-fly all along, so can hardly be troubled by a few stray individual flies from Kauai. Besides, there is an embargo upon products that have not as yet become infested on Kauai—the alligator pear for instance. "The quarantine is a great hardship to the small farmers and truck gardeners. When I left there were sixty sacks of potatoes and vegetables belonging to the Kalahoe homesteaders held up. "Kauai ships $5000 or $6000 worth of alligator pears in their season to Honolulu. A lot of this fruit has been stalled on the wharf at Lihue, and had to be taken away by the intending shippers. These people stand to lose heavily, as they buy the fruit on the tree, paying all the way from $5 to $15 a tree. Now all they can do is to feed the pears to the hogs."

CHUN HOON MAY TAKE REJECTED POTATOES INTO UNITED STATES COURTS

Undeterred by the fact that all his shipments of sweet potatoes have been refused entrance to San Francisco and that one of 80 bags was destroyed by inspectors in a vain effort to discover signs of a pest, Chun Hoon, a market commission man, will consign four tons of inspected sweet potatoes to San Francisco on the Wilhelmina tomorrow. Although warned that the potatoes would probably be refused entry, Chun Hoon declares that he will take one more chance. Further than this he declines to talk, but it is intimated by his friends that if this shipment is destroyed or refused entry on other than adequate grounds, a suit will be brought in the United States courts to test the validity of the California State quarantine law. The question of the validity of the law has been raised before, it is said, on the ground that the state is assuming a power which is not delegated to it by the constitution, but no attack has been made in the courts because the amount at issue has not been large enough to warrant litigation. It is pointed out, if Chun Hoon loses the four tons which he ships tomorrow he will, when his other rejected shipments are considered, have suffered a serious financial loss which may warrant him in at least suing for the value of the potatoes destroyed. It is probable, it is said by those qualified to know, that the banana shippers will be interested in the question of the validity of the California law before long, as it is understood, the proposition of barring this product of the islands from California is now being considered as the result of reports received from here.

Copeland and Wells Explain Their Position

The following signed statement by Messrs. Copeland and Wells, the "insurgent" supervising principals, has been handed to the Star for publication:
The Statement.
The Commissioners of Public Instruction requested the supervising principals, at their meeting held last October, to make recommendations toward adapting the course of study for use in the rural schools. Having had no opportunity for considering or discussing the subject, the supervising principals were unable to formulate any recommendations at that meeting. Inspector Gibson, however, presented a report endorsing the course of study and urged the adoption of this report by the supervising principals as their report to the commissioners. The supervising principals refused to comply with his request; the matter was passed over to be considered at the present meeting. When this meeting convened on Saturday last, it was found that precisely as before, a cut and dried program had been prepared in the education department. (Continued on Page Seven)

BAKER MAY LEAVE SERVICE

H. D. Baker, American consul at Hobart, Tasmania, may retire from the consular service and take up commercial work instead, according to a statement made by him this morning when the steamer Makura arrived from Australia. Mr. Baker goes to Seattle and from there to Chicago where he has large interests. "My plans are rather up in the air just at the present time," he stated, "but it is more than probable that I may leave the consular service and go into the commercial department instead."

Two Consuls Entertained

Consul H. D. Baker, of Hobart, Tasmania, and Consul Thomas Sammons of Yokohama, en route home from their respective posts, are guests today of the Chamber of Commerce, and are being shown the sights of the city, despite the rain, under guidance of Secretary H. P. Wood. The Chamber had been advised some time ago, by the State Department, that Mr. Baker would be prepared to deliver an address to the local body during his stop in the city, but the Consul was not advised of this, and consequently asked to be excused. Consul Sammons has left some statistical data concerning the commerce of Japan, which will be presented at the next meeting of the Chamber.

THE PUNCHBOWL DEMON IS PLACED IN RETIREMENT

The Punchbowl Demon, christened A. Silva by his parents, was put down and out in one round this morning by Judge Whitney, and was sent to the reef for repairs. The pugilistic wonder of Portuguese town couldn't stand up at all before the hefty punches of his honor. In less than no time the judge had him begging for mercy and throwing the sponge into the ring in place of his hat that had been cast therein before. The fight marvel took the count of thirty—and will spend a corresponding number of days in the training quarters maintained by Julius Asco, trying to get himself into form to "come back." The weakness of the Portuguese Demon seemed to be that he imagined he could chase Judge Whitney around the ring as easily as he has in his pugilistic time chased the various victims of his ham-like mitts. He found the foot-work of His Honor, however, exceedingly good, while he discovered to his amazement that the judge has a punch that can put a man out and keep him out for whole months at a time. The casual bell and the Demon's neglect and refusal to pay counsel fees and temporary alimony as ordered by the Judge, in the suit for divorce brought some time since by the wife of the pugilist. He was cited for contempt of court. When he entered the judicial ring this morning, he made the usual ring speech. In it he stated that every Saturday regularly since the order was issued he had appeared at the circuit court at four o'clock with the money in his hand and a burning desire in his breast to pay his honest debts. But, unfortunately, the doors of justice were always closed, so he had to go elsewhere to spend the cash. Judge Whitney, however, apparently considered that the Demon was merely sparring for time, so he watched his chance and sent over a dream producer that floored the Pride of Punchbowl for the count.

SEVERAL LARGE PUBLIC WORKS PROJECTS ARE MAKING PROGRESS

Tenders for the work involved in the Waialakea constructions near Hilo have been modified somewhat for the sake of clearness and will be opened on the twenty-eighth or twenty-ninth of May, according to Acting Governor Mott-Smith who, in company with Attorney General Lindsay, Marston Campbell and Lorrin A. Thurston, has been working on the propositions all morning. Details involved include the dredging of a slip, making of a fill, and the construction of a wharf at Kuliouliou. According to the acting governor, two big contracts will be disposed of (Continued on Page Eight)

PROFESSOR SEVERIN DISCUSSES THE FRUITFLY CAMPAIGN

That H. A. Weinland, the California horticultural entomologist who is engaged in fighting the fruitfly here, is not the discoverer of the spray for which he was given credit in the Bulletin several days ago, but that the spray in question has proved by tests to be the best weapon against the pest, is the declaration of Prof. Severin of the College of Hawaii. "The spray, for the discovery of which Mr. Weinland is given credit originated with C. W. Mally who used it in the Cape Colony in 1907," said Professor Severin this morning. "The only difference is in the proportions used and this is immaterial. "I used the same spray last year and in a lecture delivered in January of this year showed it to be the best weapon yet devised. I used a mixture of two and a half pounds of brown sugar, five ounces of arsenate of lead and five gallons of water. In making my tests of its efficacy I secured actual (Continued on Page Eight)

SITE NOT YET SECURED FOR BIG COMMERCE PALACE

The proposed joint building of the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' Association, Commercial Club and Stock Exchange is still up in the air as regards a site, according to a statement made this morning by W. R. Castle, chairman of the joint committee which has the matter in hand. "I am going to San Francisco very shortly," said Mr. Castle, "and while there I shall see what I can do toward getting a site which has been proposed, but I haven't much hope of success." Mr. Castle was referring to the proposition of securing from the Spreckels heirs the lot at the corner of Merchant and Bishop streets now occupied under lease by the Associated Garage. This site, when suggested to the joint committee, was very generally approved, and a sub-committee instructed to see what could be done toward securing it. It was stated that since the fight in the courts over the Spreckels estate, by the heirs, was settled some time since, it would probably be possible to buy property in Honolulu which heretofore had been unavailable. It is understood that various private interests are after the same property, however, so that it may not be feasible to put the deal through.

MANY VESSELS ARRIVE TOGETHER

Waterfront Workers Are Kept Busy-- Manchuria From Orient--Makura From Australia--Luka Gets Away

After being a quiet sleepy waterfront for the past few days Honolulu woke up this morning and became a live shipping port.

First of all the big Pacific Mail steamer Manchuria was whistled, followed soon after by the Canadian-Australian boat Makura bound from Sydney to Vancouver. A few minutes afterward the fertilizer steamer Prometheus smudged the horizon. Then coming along with the morning breeze the ship Wm. P. Frye was visible to the lookout.

Not satisfied with this bunch the transport Buffalo is expected along at any time as is also the transport Supply and one or two more sailing craft.

COSMOPOLITAN ARRIVALS. The Manchuria that arrived from Manila and the Orient this morning brought a cosmopolitan crowd for this port.

Chief among the arrivals were 133 Little Brown Brothers who were conveyed to the station in five carts and one motor truck, between rows of curious onlookers.

The bunch in the auto truck were evidently having their first ride for they clung on with the desperation of despair and never let up until they reached the station.

There were thirty-three Japanese men and sixty-one picture brides, nineteen Chinese and nine Russians.

By H. M. AYRES.

Ingle and Gans Start Training For Their Bouts

George Ingle, Young Gans and Johnny Wahliani have established training quarters at the Orpheum for their work-outs in connection with their flaic engagements on June 1 and will spar, punch the bag, skip the rope and perform other kindred stunts every evening from now until the day previous to the Athletic Park carnival.

Ingle started his road work on Sunday and will do some running every day between Honolulu and Pearl Harbor where he is working. Pearl Harbor, by the way, seems to be a favorite spot with the boxers, for Young Caples and Wahliani are also steadily employed there.

Ingles opened up last night with two rounds with Young Gans. The latter is in good shape right now and appears to be improving all the time.

There is a rumor that the coming bout with Moriarty will, win or lose, be Young Gans' last appearance in the local ring. If the bout on June 1 is to be a farewell nature all fight fans will wish that it may be of the Patti variety, for Gans has given good satisfaction in the past and is in line for a good match should a suitable opponent be found for him.

McCarthy Dons Mitts. After Gans, Ingle hooked up with Johnny McCarthy for three rounds which were of a fast and furious nature. McCarthy knows the kind of work that Ingle needs and is going to see that he gets it regularly and in man's sized doses.

A strapping named "Plug" Milne obliged with two rounds as a doer and doris to the evening's celebration and stepped around fairly lively, although he got his hair a bit ruffled.

Ingle stripped big and strong and went about his work in a willing way which pleased a number of old-timers who were present. Wahliani did not put in an appearance last night but is expected to be on hand to go through a course of sprouts this evening.

The Lellehua Boys. Moriarty and Bauersock will, of course, do their conditioning on the Lellehua reservation. Both boys regard their coming bouts as stepping stones to better things in the pugilistic line and will leave no effort unspared to deliver the goods as expeditiously as possible when they enter the ring to face Young Gans and Wahliani, their respective opponents in six-round bouts.

Some awful bloomers have been sprung on the local public from the ranks of soldier boxers, but there is every reason to believe that in Moriarty and Bauersock ring patrons will discover a couple of willing boxers of more than average cleverness.

Leary Training. Denny Leary of Fort De Russy, the hero of a hundred battles, is steadily getting into trim and taking the best of care of himself. He will be matched in the not distant future with a suitable opponent and will be given a chance to make as good as his scrap-book indicates that he is.

De Mello Fit. A Hilo correspondent writes that De Mello is fit and well and that he is faster and stronger than when he boxed his memorable fifteen-round draw with George "Slim" Gilmore. He weighs at present 146 pounds stripped and will enter the ring a week from Saturday afternoon at about 144 pounds.

De Mello will arrive from Hilo by the steamer Mauna Kea next Saturday.

George Tait, an old-time local boxer, will look after De Mello's affairs while he is in Honolulu.

BENEFITS OF ATHLETIC COMPETITION

Handicraft (Kamehameha Schools): There is a tendency among the members of athletic teams in schools, and the supporters, to believe that victory should be the aim and the only purpose of every game played. This tendency and feeling is of course quite natural. With the hope of victory much interest and enthusiasm are aroused, for victory brings honor and glory on the victors and the school they represent.

While victory is important and should be the final aim of all contests it must be kept in mind that if a team meets defeat it does not "lose out" in everything. Along with the practice and the training in preparation for contests and in the contests, there is a physical and mental development which benefit each player whether the team as a whole is victorious or no. The physical development comes about in endeavoring to excel in strength some previous record or the strength of an opponent. Quickness and control of certain muscles brings about a physical development.

Combination plays require mental effort on the part of the individual. Making a "play" at the right moment requires bringing into the game the thinking power.

Athletics are encouraged in most schools, because it is coming to be understood that in the proper training of the pupils interested in sports there is a good deal which is of educational value in the effort on the part of the pupils to develop physically and in the effort to do "head work" in the games.

ITEMS ABOUT KAM ATHLETES

Handicraft (Kamehameha Schools): Mr. Bartlett is to be congratulated for his good work in the management of the school athletics this year. This has been his first term and through his efforts Kamehameha has been able to accomplish much in athletics. He has held the chairmanship of the Athletic Association and his work although hard has been done faithfully and everyone appreciates it.

Mr. Bartlett has been prominent on the baseball field during the season and has been interested in all sports. He has certainly been a "live wire" during his term of office.

The girls of Oahu College, St. Andrew's Priory, and Palama Settlement expect to learn hockey next fall. The Kamehameha girls may also join the league.

Ring out the old, ring in the new. It gives us pleasure to announce at this time the captains for the different athletic teams for next year. Samuel Hossey will lead the soccer team and with him he will have strong support. George Manoha the sprinter will be the new captain of the track team. George has been on the team for two years and knows the fine points. The

OAHU POLO TEAM WON CLOSE GAME

At Moanalua yesterday the Oahu Polo Club's Blue team defeated the Fifth Cavalry team by the score of 7 to 5.

The attendance which was negligible included a number of the members of the press who took advantage of the thoughtfulness of the local club in providing a stylish rig for them to make the journey to the distant ground in.

Six periods of seven minutes each were played with five minutes rest between periods, and an extra five minutes between the third and fourth periods.

The goals were scored as follows: Oahu 3, Baldwin 3, Hanson Castle 3, Baldwin 3, Hanson Cavalry 1 1 0 1 0 1-5 (3). Groninger (2). Dillingham (1). Next Saturday there will be another game between the Oahu and the Cavalry, starting at 2:30.

Lieut. Harold Naylor, First Field Artillery, refereed. Laurence Redington was timekeeper.

The score by periods: Oahu 2 1 0 1 0 1 2-7 Cavalry 1 1 0 1 0 1-5

POPULAR PLAYER GOES TO COAST

Hyman Raphael, one of the most popular and best all-round players of the Oahu baseball league, leaves in the Sierra tomorrow morning for a six weeks' vacation. "Heine," as he is generally called, when he is not playing or talking baseball is a commercial traveler, being connected with the house of Scherlin Bros., manufacturers' agents. In the latter capacity the "long green" rolled in so fast that he decided a six weeks' sojourn in dear old Frisco would reduce his bankroll to normal conditions and permit him to recognize his friends on equal footing again hence his determination to renew mainland acquaintances.

A number of his friends, upon learning of Heine's proposed visit to the Golden Gate, decided that a banquet would be the proper way to wish him God-speed. Accordingly eight congenial spirits gathered together at the Union Grill last night and sat down to a sumptuous repast and told and retold the story of how the Hawaii won the pennant last year and how easily she'd win it this year.

Heine was in a very reminiscent mood and told of his first visit here as a Columbia Park boy and how they walloped the local teams. "The beautiful climate and the hospitality of the people," declared Heine, "was too much for me, so I had to come back to the land of perpetual sunshine."

"Heine" is the best catcher in Honolulu today and his absence will seriously handicap the Hawaii team, as his thorough knowledge of the game and his levelheadedness throughout has steered his team through many a hard corner to victory.

As "Heine" is as popular among the fans as he is among the players, a

A UNION FOR HONOLULU'S GOOD.

The idea of bringing the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants' association together into one body devoted to the welfare of Honolulu and Hawaii and massing effort instead of scattering it as now, was proposed and discussed at a banquet last night and a committee named to work out details. In this the commercial bodies approach the Southern California plan, which has worked so well. Young, strong, united and aggressive bodies, aiming at one mark, the general building up of their town, account in largest degree for the wonderful transformation of athen California. Los Angeles, San Diego and San Bernardino have shown us the way; but San Francisco, with a stodgy old Chamber of Commerce, a sort of sleepy Senate, which bore a grandfatherly relation to the growth of the city until it was superseded in the domain by the instrumentalities of progress, like the Commonwealth club, shows merely the road to obstruction and decay. The Southern California plan of making one Chamber of Commerce out of all live wire material the one with which to boom things; and now that a new era is coming the Pacific, booming Hawaii is in order.

A definite union of the two leading commercial bodies here with the doors open to all citizens who are interested enough to bear their share of the expenses, would soon be practically alone and sufficient in the field. It was pointed out last night that we have too many organizations working at cross-purposes or at least that we are over-organized. The time has come to concentrate effort.

A Chamber of Commerce, made over in the Southern California way, would have a working president and secretary, the latter a type of man like Frank Wiggins of Los Angeles and H. P. Wood here, who is once secretary of the San Diego chamber; an active President and a board of directors and a membership from which committees should be appointed covering every live project, such as are now administered by the Chamber, the Merchants' Association, the Civic Federation, the Promotion Committee and the Central Improvement Committee. This revamped Chamber would be the focus of all public effort that is worth while. Not only labor immigration but tourist visitation would concern it; the opening of land not needed for sugar but for actual use; the opening of street and road improvement; one on navigation laws; one on sanitation, one to co-ordinate the efforts of the civil and military authorities, one on new industries, are among the possibilities of thorough organization.

Nor need the women be eliminated from a modernized Chamber of Commerce. In San Diego the popular Chamber got the women of the city to co-operate through an auxiliary body which concerned itself with sanitation, the introduction of sericulture and other industries within women's reach, the servant question, clean streets, public entertainments and the like. The project was successful in that it aided the progress of the city and county and made it symmetrical. No doubt it would be equally successful here.

A Chamber of Commerce which spoke with authority for all Honolulu instead of two bodies that divide as bitterly as the present Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association have on the coastwise navigation laws, is what the occasion calls for. Judging from the sentiments expressed last night by representative men it is in the way of forming and when it does the signal ought to be given: "Full speed ahead!"

SAN DIEGO AND THE PROLETARIAT.

We do not understand that San Diego's row with the Industrial Workers of the World, involved any public repression at the start of free speech, as that term is generally understood. As the matter is explained by the I. W. W. occupying a busy corner of the principal street, where crowds gathered, to the annoyance of merchants and the public. So crowds gathered, to the annoyance of merchants and the public. Speech been from a position on Broadway or on State street, Chicago. Speech was not fettered, but the authorities and public objected to any interference with the right of clear streets and of merchandizing; but if the Industrials had hired a hall or made speeches in a public square, there would have been no interruption. But the Industrials got ugly at not having their way, and, on the other side, the people also got ugly over their attitude and a clash followed which was marked by breaches of law on both sides. It is probably true that the police discriminated between the offences done by the citizens, such as tarring and feathering and kidnapping, and those done in reprisal by the Industrial Workers of the World and that the latter got the worst of it.

As a general thing it is better to follow the London fashion and let the most radical classes have the same public privileges of speech that anyone else enjoys, providing that they occupy any of the recognized forums of debate. Anarchists may have their meetings in Trafalgar square and the people and police look on the scene complacently. There is never any explosion there such as there might be among the palaces if free speech were strangled. It is only confined powder or gas that goes off with devastating effect; that powder or gas which is widely spread merely burns or smells. And so if San Diego had invited the Industrial Workers to blow off in the public park no harm would have come, even if Emma Goldman had taken part; but as things stand some of San Diego's citizens, instead of the Industrial visitors, may be sent to jail to cool off and learn American principles.

RICHESON AS ONE OF THE SAVED.

There is something nauseating in the calm assurance of a callous murderer like Richeson who went to a shameful and yet necessary death with pious ejaculations on his lips, such as "I am ready to die now; I am going to Jesus." While forgiveness is Divine, it is a hindrance to true religion on earth to believe that the Saviour is surrounded by such folk as continually tell us that they are sure of rushing directly to the gibbet to His holy presence and His open arms. It was a doctrine like this which led Robert Ingersoll to say that he preferred to go to the other place for good society—that of pagan Caesar and worldly Napoleon, of heathen Sophocles and doubting Darwin, of unworldly Shakespeare and the cynic Voltaire and the brilliant heterodox of all ages; and which drew from Mrs. Harriet B. Stowe herself a keen scoff at men who ran an account with the Devil all their lives and then cheated him out of his due when the time for payment came. No discriminating Christian ever wants to meet Richeson again in the world to come, least of all Richeson with a halo on his head and a harp within his hand, nor to hear his vulture note attuned to praises of the Lamb. He, a minister, destroyed the life of a girl whose ruin he had wrought so that he might marry a wealthier one and he was punished for it with the extreme penalty of human justice; and if justice lives throughout the universe of God, Richeson will not see that decision overruled to place him among the eternally blest and sanctified. One regrets that the hell of the old orthodox has been eliminated by the new when looking for a fit place for the segregation of wolfish souls like that of Richeson.

From much practice at public banquets and public gatherings of all kinds the citizens of San Diego, even those who are using the English language as their least familiar tongue, have got to be ready and interesting speakers. General Macomb said at the Chamber of Commerce banquet last night that Honolulu had more "live wire" men than any city he had ever known; but he will agree that it also has more men who can think standing and express themselves clearly and forcibly than many more important places possess. The talent might be almost hereditary here, as the native Hawaiians are born orators. We have even seen a Hawaiian policeman arguing the point with a drunken sailor who thought he ought not to be arrested, with the intonations and gestures of a senator in the forum; while our typical business men,

HARD TO PLEASE

By WALT MASON.

"This rain," I said, to Farmer James, "will surely boost your little games. It is a good thing for the wheat, and you should chortle and repeat." He looked around with gloomy frown. "I hate to see rain coming down; we farmers want to sow our oats, and can't unless we sail in boats." I met him later when the sun was shining till it took the bun. "Why lookest thou," I asked, "so tough? This weather surely is the stuff." "We need a rain," the farmer said; "the grass is looking brown and dead; my squashes scarcely are alive; my peas and pumpkins do not thrive." I meet this farmer every week, and tears are always on his cheek; he wants dry weather when it rains, and when it's wet he still complains; he kicks because there's too much wind, and says the weather bureau's sinned, and when we have refreshing snow, he springs a little spiel of woe. And when his cribs in Autumn strain beneath their loads of golden grain, he stands around and sadly yawns about the shortage in his crops. "Had there been less sunshine and rain," he wails, "I hadn't toiled in vain!" I sometimes wonder that the gods don't lamm him with their chastening rods; they must grow tired of roastings rude, complainings and ingratitude.

though immersed in figures, can always get on their feet when occasion comes and make speeches worth while on any public topic. And what is more so can the Orientals, whether using their own tongue or a foreign one. It is one of the results of practice along our familiar lines of public argument.

The idea that Roosevelt is not acting like a would-be dictator when he is seeking the direct participation of the people in government, is contrary to history. All would-be dictators first got an army or a party behind them; and the people of whom Roosevelt has gained his greatest numerical support don't apparently care for the institutions of a republic at all and are ready at Roosevelt's word to stand for any kind of a "new nationalism." Every time Diaz took one more step in his dictatorship, he had a carefully organized election in support of "freedom." About fifty per cent of our electorate now is not so far removed from European influences that it stands aghast at third terms or any exhibition of one man power; and many of the others are like the old Athenians in their admiration of a new thing. Roosevelt knows how to make unthinking sentiment bend to his will with the art of a plotting Bonaparte.

The public will recall the announcement in the Star of a $750,000 hotel project for Punchbowl. Another in the same connection marks a great hotel project for the edge of Kilauea. It is all part of the great awakening that is coming over Honolulu, with the prospect of better tourist times and general development here. Every desirable place on the California beach and in the favored sections of Florida has a great hotel or more, and Honolulu is in that phase of development which also needs them.

Hilo should have a disinfector go along with H. Gooding Field if he is to look into county government on the big island. Both would come in handy.

Secretary Root ought to offset a lot of the Roosevelt rooters.

What Lorimer should have had was embalming fluid, not whitewash.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

JOHN HUGHES—I believe we could raise sugar here at a profit without and tariff.

JUDGE HARTWELL—The best thing about going away is the anticipation of coming back.

FRED MACFARLANE—There are lots of ways the women could help through a woman's annex of the Chamber of Commerce.

H. A. WEINLAND—Our new spray for the Mediterranean fruitfly is doing the business finely. The flies don't seem to like it one-half as well as we do.

HARBORMASTER FOSTER—This is one of the busiest days I have had in the port. Every vessel seems to have timed it to make here today.

E. B. BLANCHARD—By the time we are through with this ice-cream investigation, the dealers of the town will begin to realize that it is no joke and that we mean business.

LINK McCANDLESS—You hear a lot about what the Democratic party is doing just now, but it is nearly all hot air. It takes a lot of hot air to run that steam roller of mine.

BISHOP WILLIS—I am glad to get back to Honolulu again. I shall stay here a month and then go on to England for two or three months. Ten years in Tonga has not made me any heavier.

PRINCIPAL C. E. COPELAND—Any statement I make regarding this school curriculum matter is sure to be picked to pieces pretty well, so I prefer to have my published remarks made verbatim.

FRANK KRUGER—The Bulletin ticket takes no account of the Murray Kruger, Ltd. They must remember, however, that though our ticket is usually named last the scripture says "The last shall be first."

AUDITOR FISHER—I will be glad when this election is over, I am getting so tired of hearing the candidates' names at every occasion. It is hard to tell how many happy homes the campaign will disrupt.

A. J. GIGNOUX—I should think that the Rapid Transit Company would find it to its interest to establish and maintain an athletic park or grounds suitable for all kinds of sports and outdoor events, such as the floral parade.

A. E. LARIMER—It would be a good thing for every young fellow in town to take a Sunday school class for awhile. It would give him an opportunity to exert his influence on the young idea and would be discipline for himself.

MARSTON CAMPBELL—The artesian water level has sunk one-half a foot within the last thirty days and one of the remedies to alleviate this would be for every household to instruct his yard-boy to be economical with the water.

WILLARD E. BROWN—I have resigned from the License Commission Board more than a month before I leave for the Coast, in order that my successor may have time to become familiar with details of the work before the time for renewing licenses—July 1—comes around.

H. H. BRODIE—The supervising principals, being formed into five committees, are now putting the course of study into such detailed shape that it is expected teachers will be relieved of making out term outlines. This will unify the work of the schools throughout the Territory.

W. R. CASTLE—The Honolulu Gas Company is showing its good will by relaying its gas mains on Beretania street now, while the street is torn up by the laying of water pipes, instead of waiting three years and then doing it, as it might have done had it consulted only its own convenience.

JOHN ROBINSON—There is a greasy slab of sidewalk just outside the Bishop street entrance to the Young Cafe on which pedestrians continually slip and have to perform the most grotesque gyrations in order to save themselves from falling. Someone is going to break a limb on that pesky slab before long.

JAMES KIRKLAND—I have been away from Hawaii for a year and a half and I can tell you that it seems good to be back again. I saw "The Bird of Paradise" in Los Angeles and when I heard the Hawaiian music and saw the home scenes I had hard work to keep the tears from rolling down my face.

C. F. MAXWELL—The cricket season will start with a match at Makiki next Saturday. The ground is in excellent shape and a pleasurable game is anticipated. It is to be hoped that cricketers will turn out in force on the opening day of the season and that interest and enthusiasm will be maintained until the last match is played. The game is one of the oldest in the history of Hawaii's sports and an effort will be made by the Honolulu Cricket Club this season to restore it to its former popularity among local Britishers and others.

fact that Sir Kenneth is making the trip via Honolulu and Vancouver instead of returning to England on his own line, and the popular report is that the Orient company will effect a merger with the Union company of New Zealand.

Whether this supposition is true or not it is a hard matter to decide, but at the same time it is the most probable theory so far advanced. The Orient company and the P. & O. are the two big rivals for trade to Australia. The former company has extended its operations beyond Sydney to Brisbane in the State of Queensland and has also inaugurated special service between Sydney and New Zealand direct. The Union company acts as agent for Sir Kenneth's company and therefore it is thought likely that some compromise can be arranged.

Added to this fact that Sir Kenneth would not deny the rumor, it seems more than probable that Honolulu will be one of the ports of call for the world circling service.

THE THEATERS

JUVENILE BOSTONIANS AT THE LIBERTY THURSDAY

Twenty odd young damsels ranging from 10 to 18 years will set foot on Hawaii for the first time tomorrow per the Marama and will make for the Liberty theater where the theater's augmented orchestra will be awaiting them and they will immediately get down to rehearsing the tuneful musical comedy, "The Ransom," which will be the opening play. The reservation of seats for this engagement began at ten o'clock this morning at the Promotion Committee rooms, and judging from the busy condition of the box office the house will be sold out before Thursday.

The Bostonians are the greatest aggregation of artists in the States today and their coming here is due to the energetic efforts of J. C. Cohen under whose direction they will show. "Leave it to Joe and he'll get the best," is applicable to the genial Joel in this instance.

The company will present a repertoire of New York and London comedies successes and will give two changes a week.

TWO MORE NIGHTS OF HOMER'S ODYSSEY.

Tonight and tomorrow night will be the last nights of the world-renowned film "Homer's Odyssey" which is having a phenomenal run at the Liberty theater. This $200,000 production is shown in four reels and is instructive all the way through. The new pipe organ of the theater furnishes very appropriate music for the play and adds to the realism of the production.

MAY NANNERY CO. IN ENJOYABLE SKETCH

Before a crowded house the May Nannery Co. opened their engagement at the Bijou last night under most favorable auspices and proved herself a very clever actress. She is very well supported by her company of four who were seen to advantage in the comedy sketch, "Who's Afraid." The one act sketch though a comedy had some heavy dramatic situations which called for heavy acting by the company. The act all through was a very enjoyable one and with the same line of sketches the company will draw well here.

Ryan and Bryan, the other new act, was a very versatile one and embraced singing, dance and farce comedy. Ryan in acrobatic dancing and feats was very funny. His make up was in keeping with his act. The Yokohama Troupe had a new act that was replete with feet balancing and contortioning. They are still strong favorites and drawing well. The Italian Saxophone players closed their all too short engagement last night amidst a blize of glory. They left by the Mauna Kea this morning for Hilo and it is hoped that they will be seen again on their return as their playing is a very rare treat. The program on the whole compares favorably with any mainland show at the same price.

MINSTRELS LAST NIGHT. The minstrel troupe will give its farewell performance at the Opera House this evening and, as an acknowledgment of the exceptional patronage which they have received during their engagement here, a special bill of features will be staged in addition to the regular minstrel performance.

Miss Clark, the nightingale of minstrelsy, will repeat her airship flight this evening for the last time, the Era Comedy Quartet—the original Melody Four—will make its last appearance on the stage of the Opera House.

The Ten Dark Knights are funnier than ever and when the new features are interspersed in the first part minstrel show as has been promised, tonight's performance will be one long to be remembered by local theatergoers.

It is not often that an equally good aggregation of talent putting up as good an entertainment visits these shores and so if you don't want to miss your last opportunity to see the biggest, brightest and funniest entertainment that has been here for a long while, you had better telephone the Promotion committee and have a seat reserved for this evening's performance.

Alexander of that city, who was here a short time ago, told him that it was a great success, the chamber having nearly four thousand members. He then introduced Mr. Field to address the gathering on the subject.

Mr. Field read the paper that is printed in full on another page.

James A. Rath, superintendent of the Palama Settlement, was next called on. Referring to the consolidation of philanthropies by the Cleveland chamber, he said there was now in Honolulu a great deal of duplication. Specialization is today the keynote of all advancement. With specialization goes cooperation. Efficiency and cooperation should be the watchwords.

The chairman read a letter from former Governor G. R. Carter, who was unable to be present on account of his intended departure tomorrow, which told of the great benefits obtained by Rochester, N. Y., from concentrating its civic efforts and employing a professional secretary. In conclusion he said:

"It is evident to all the business men of Honolulu that the special work of H. P. Wood has been of incalculable value. So much more is known about Honolulu today than ever before. This illustrates what one man quietly, unostentatiously working along one line can accomplish. If the plan of the greater chamber of commerce is approved, I certainly hope that through it Honolulu may secure a town dynamo, who will work without smoke or noise, but whose consistency and effectiveness will work the same change in Honolulu that we have seen take place in Rochester."

A Friendly Critic.

George W. Smith was called on to give "the other side," but he only stated obstacles apparently to show that they were not insurmountable. He said in substance: It is not so much obstacles as differences of opinion, which might be called obstacles. Centralization was not a new proposition. It was the idea of the late James F. Morgan, when president of the Chamber of Commerce, and came before the Merchants' Association, where it was thrown down. A better result might come later. The Merchants' Association, of which the speaker was one of the organizers, was formed because the little men—the retail merchant—felt he might get but little assistance in the Chamber of Commerce for any idea he might have. Since then the chamber had adopted a new constitution and bylaws, broadening its scope. Still the merchant may feel he might lose something by giving up the association and becoming a member of the chamber.

On the other hand the Chamber, knowing that the Association is larger numerically than the Chamber, may be afraid that amalgamation will permit inimical legislation. Mr. Field has presented a number of good arguments. The plan will succeed if the different organizations can be assured of a fair deal. The Promotion Committee is only a bureau of the Chamber and the Association. I very much doubt if the Commercial Club can be amalgamated with the proposed body. The Civic Federation could well be brought into this large organization. So might clergymen whose advice would be valuable. Medical men ought to belong to it. Our enemies the lawyers (laughter) ought to belong—their advice is often needed and if they join we should not have to pay for it (laughter).

The Cleveland idea has greatly interested me, particularly the philanthropic feature. We tried to introduce that into the Merchants' Association but could not get the cooperation of those having to pay for charities.

The new era has wonderful promise and, although I am asked to speak as an opponent, I believe that the larger organization proposed would be of great value. When it comes this organization should be conducted by the strong and able men who have built up this community, and by the lawyers and the medical men. It should not be cheapened. There is danger from the majority. If too large in numbers there would be liability of excuses for not attending—"the other fellow will be there," etc. The organization should be left to a strong committee. There should not be opportunity for one person or one set of persons to dominate. Above all it should be an organization led by the best men.

For Centripetal Impulses.

L. Tenney Peck, being called on, said he believed that in all the various elements of this community they should endeavor to find every centripetal force they could. Their tendency had been to break up into groups and be governed by centrifugal forces. He knew of nothing that would furnish a balance in any community so much as altruism. We have had organizations to build up the business interests. But those who have observed the development of the past twenty years will see that there is something higher than the business interests. Where were the business interests when the Titanic sank. Where were the business interests in philanthropic enterprises? The public welfare is the highest interest. In education, charity, art, the public welfare should be the controlling motive. Let "Work, work, everlasting work" be our motto and then we will have no trouble in finding expression in some central organization.

They should be loyal to their organization and as long as the body to which one belonged was working on the lines of public service he should stay in it. Ideals of public welfare will go far beyond mere business interests. The last word from the excursion steamer Cleveland came from Rangoon, and it was this, "The city that charmed us most was Honolulu." There is some charm here that appeals to everyone. Let us see that we have something that will appeal to our highest ideals, something that will mean "work for all."

The Federal Viewpoint.

General M. M. Macomb, commander of the Department of Hawaii, responding to the call of the chair, said he would offer a few words from the viewpoint of a Federal official. Honolulu occupies a unique position as the central point for Federal forces in Hawaii. I should like to feel that there was a central organization with which the Federal authorities could cooperate. The Government has to go ahead with improvements that have to be done in quick time, such as those at Kamehameha and Fort Ruger. In building a post it is put up on sanitary principles. The object is to make every post in Honolulu sanitary, but also as beautiful as possible. The Government is doing this by the planting of trees, etc. You will have noticed what has been done at Fort Shafter in a few years—converting the ground from a virtual waste to one of the prettiest suburbs of the town. A citizen of Honolulu had done similar work at Moanalua, but these examples were not from coordination but just good luck. The waterfront is no better than a waste. The Government is going to do something there but if there was coordination with the citizens it might hasten appropriations. There has been some filling-in at Fort De Russy but only a small part of what should be done.

We must unite on some sort of a city plan. There is needed the cooperation of citizens to make the town beautiful—some plan by which the Government and the city can work together. We all know of certain improvements that have been projected on the slopes of Punchbowl. The Government is willing to turn over part of the reservation. There should be a great park there. There is no place now for the troops to assemble when they come into town. Not only should there be a central park for the troops, but for various civic processions and celebrations. There is no sufficient place now. A park should be established between Forts Armstrong and De Russy. It is a question how much money the town can appropriate for this purpose. I have heard these gentlemen speak of live wires in Cleveland and Rochester, but from my experience I can say I have never seen more live wires anywhere than in Honolulu. The only trouble is that the wires are pulling different directions. If you can unite to do something for Honolulu it will become one of the most beautiful and most visited cities in the world. (Loud applause.)

Other Speeches.

J. R. Galt, quoting the advice of someone to repeal three laws before enacting one new one, thought there was too much organization here, which was a sign as well as a cause of weakness. He instanced the foolish position Honolulu was put into in Washington by the conflicting expressions of the Chamber and the Association on such a vital matter as the coastwise suspension bill. Organization whereby all could work together would come sooner or later. He fully believed that before another year they could bring about one large organization to work for the best interests of Honolulu and the entire Territory.

John C. Lane argued that the whole matter rested with the Chamber and the Association. If these organizations agreed to cooperate all the others would fall in.

Alexander Hume Ford told of a terrible disease the doctors told him he had when he arrived here, which would take two years here to cure. Being a malingerer seemed to be a disease about as bad as leprosy. Frankly he considered it a great mistake to regard the Chamber and the Association as the main stones to be cemented together. They must trust the people or the people would not trust them. If they did not consult the people, the people would write letters opposing their schemes. "If you are going to have an organization you must take the people in as men," was his parting shot.

Prof. T. F. Sedgwick made an impassioned appeal to the meeting to go ahead there and then with organization, but the chairman calmed him with the statement that the invitations had conveyed an assurance that no precipitate action would be taken.

Bishop Restarick stated he would be very happy, by his influence and in every way, to help the movement as a citizen.

Bishop Lambert said when he was born he was not so big as he was now, and he thought they should follow the course of nature. He quoted the saying of the old Romans—"Festina lente"—and said they should go slowly. He had noticed that some things flared up like a flash and soon went out. He would agree with the proposal to appoint a committee which could tell the people what the organization was going to be. "My heart is with the movement and I hope it will succeed," he concluded.

Rev. Dr. Scudder had lived in California, New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, and considered Massachusetts surpassed the others in civic ideals. This he attributed to the New England town meeting. They should spare no pains in endeavoring to secure such an organization as that proposed. It was possible and would do everything prospected for it that evening and more. When all the gases in a community had a vent there would be no explosion.

Action Approached.

Frank C. Atherton then proposed a resolution that, after some amendments, was passed as printed above. Before the motion to adopt the resolution was put, F. W. Macfarlane wanted to hear from representatives of the press.

Editor W. R. Farrington of the Bulletin told of a citizen riding into town on a car with him, who had many grouches about Honolulu to express but on getting off managed to admit that business was looking up anyway. There were too many men here who wanted only to make something for themselves out of every proposition. What we would like to see is the Chamber of Commerce throwing open its doors and letting everybody in. There you would have an organization that would wipe out every other organization. You don't realize that the man on the waterfront is working six days in the week and has a family to support. If he has a suggestion he doesn't know what to do with it. If we can build up a spirit of helping the community there will be no trouble about an organization.

Editor Walter G. Smith of the Star gave a reminiscence of San Diego when Bishop Restarick and he were residents of that city. It had a Chamber of Commerce that threw its doors open to every respectable man. All of the members did not attend the meetings, but every man who had the interest of San Diego at heart belonged to the Chamber.

It contained representatives of the dominant interest there, which was that of citrus fruits, the same as the Honolulu organization had of the sugar interest, but they all worked together to get a large number of residents. They got tourists there and they showed them the town. Nobody told the visitors that things were wrong with the town. Of course we have the dominant interest here, the sugar interest, but that does not prevent others from working. The speaker quoted, "There is a tide in the affairs of men," etc., from which he referred to the coming opening of Panama canal. While all the steamer lines heard about might not call here, there was certain to be an immense excursion traffic in the Pacific from that event, of which Honolulu would have a large share. This was the nearest position in the Pacific from Europe and the American continent. We ought to be ready to receive the excursionists and show them the community's growth. Southern California has made enormous wealth from its tourists, perhaps as much as Hawaii is making from sugar. We ought to do all we can to bring these excursionists here—to get people who will come and invest their money here, and who will promote diversified industries. The time is past for keeping all our eggs in one basket. For one I want the Chamber of Commerce to throw open its doors and admit every good citizen.

Mayor Fern favored the movement but thought another meeting should be held before appointing a committee. He told of his futile inquiries, although he had organized a number of beneficial societies, to find out how he might join either of the large commercial bodies. Messrs. Peck and Macfarlane joined in the discussion of amendments to the resolution.

Editor S. Sheba of the Hawaii Shinpo expressed, on behalf of the Japanese community, his appreciation of recognition in placing him on the committee. The resolution was then carried and the company dispersed.

WORKING HARD ON STUDY PLAN

When the five committees make their report at the supervising principals' meeting this afternoon, they will have covered work for the first three grades, according to Miss Ben Taylor who is on the committee attending to the mathematical course.

Miss Taylor says the entire work of remodeling the course of study will not be completed until Saturday morning at the earliest and may not be finished then. All five committees have been working on their reports since early this morning, each committee taking one of the five branches of study, and none have progressed farther than the third grade, while one or two are only getting under way with the first grade work.

"We are keeping to Mr. Pope's original course of study," said Miss Ben Taylor. "We are not creating but are making changes and alterations where they are needed. In certain places we are making additions and in other places striking off, but we are not making a new course of study, aside from that submitted by Mr. Pope."

OLAA TAKES ON A BOOM

Heavy street sales of Oloa at the uniform price of $8 per share, was probably the feature of greatest interest reported today on the local exchange. Over 2000 shares of this promising sugar stock were thus sold, and another 100 shares sold on the board at the same price, with more called for. Holders are now asking 8 1-8.

Hawaiian Commercial & Sugar was also a popular buy today; some 200 shares changing hands at an advance of 25 cents a share, or 45 3-4. 295 shares were reported sold between boards at 45 1-2.

$15,000 in Oloa bonds brought the established price of 97 1-2. The market generally continues firm, and although sugar prices continue to sag almost daily, the general belief seems to be that there will be no serious break in prices in the near future.

WHAT HAPPENED TO FRED JONES

Fred Jones is held at the police station pending the arrival of the Australian boat tomorrow.

Jones, who is well-connected, in some strange way saw a friend off in an Australian port not wisely but too well, and made an unexpected trip to these fair isles.

He had $30 on him when the trip started and this he paid for passage money.

The steamship people, however, regard him as a stowaway and as he has no money and wants to return to his home he is being taken care of by the local police until the S. S. Marama arrives from the north tomorrow.

These Flores was arrested this morning for vagrancy.

ARGENTINA IS PROTECTING SUGAR

Argentina has recently adopted a law imposing a very heavy duty on sugar—one that will presumably practically shut out imports of that commodity. The South American republic is bending every energy toward developing a domestic sugar industry, and the new duty is presumably by way of protection until the new industry shall become established.

Argentina's sugar production now amounts to about 180,000 tons. Last year it was 148,000 tons, and for the year previous 123,000 tons, showing that the production is steadily increasing.

Consul General R. M. Bartleman, Buenos Aires, has transmitted a copy with translation of a law of February 21, 1912, which establishes new rates of duty on sugar, in effect from June 1, 1912. The law provides for the imposition of specific rates of duty, which are to be gradually reduced from 1912 to 1921. The duty applicable from June 1, 1912, on sugar of not less than 96 degrees of polarization is 0.088 peso per kilo (about 4 cents per pound); on unrefined sugar, or sugar of less than 96 degrees of polarization, 0.068 peso per kilo (about 3 cents per pound). After that year until 1921 the annual reduction on both the refined and the unrefined is to be 0.002 peso per kilo (peso equal 96.5 cents; kilo equal 2.2046 pounds). The present rates on the grades of sugar mentioned above are 0.09 and 0.07 peso per kilo, respectively.

Sweet Sixteen doesn't often think of ethical questions in connection with her graduation gown. Her principal concern in reference to it has to do with style and material and lace and ribbon. But ethics are mixed in with it. And the graduate might find her dress for the great occasion lots more interesting, if she would give a little thought to this side of the matter.

Woman's dress, from the point of view of beauty, comfort or cost, is by no means all that it might be. And the people who are going to improve this condition of things are the younger generation. So you see, quite a responsibility rests upon the graduates of today and the graduates that are to come. If we are to have dress that is artistic, that is healthful, and that is not wildly and foolishly extravagant, the people who are coming on will have to take the matter in hand.

And it certainly is a problem worth grappling. For it is a problem that reaches very deep into economic conditions. It is quite as worthy a girl's earnest efforts as settlement work, the discovery of new stars, or researches in the laboratory. For it is the love of dress, and the desire to dress better than can be afforded, that keeps sweatshops going, drives many a husband and father to speculation, and bars many of the finer things out of life. And yet, when the jewels and silks and satins and laces and furs are acquired, often almost at the price of blood, what, after all, have those who possess them? Very little of real value, very little that is of real beauty,—for the styles into which the materials are contorted often rob them of all real beauty,—and very little that conduces to health or comfort. For woman's dress today, from her heavy hat to her high-heeled shoes is to a large extent unhealthy and uncomfortable.

So you see, there is more to the question of the graduation gown than one might perhaps think. And the girl graduate who will take a stand for simple, dainty dresses that are beautiful because of their artistic lines and the intrinsic merit of the lace or trimming that may be put upon them, and that express the value of the service they are intended to give and no more, will be driving the first nail in building up the right kind of dress reform. Dress reform does not by any means imply freak attire, bloomers, or lack of beauty. It simply means dress that is based upon the principles of art, that is appropriate to the service demanded of it, and that does not cost more than it is actually worth. As we do not live to eat, neither should we dress simply for ornamentation. There is a fundamental need underlying dress, and this should be the governing principle in the selection of what we wear, and not largely show as it is today. And then, with this need as the foundation, we should add beauty,—real beauty from the art point, and this is often a vastly different thing from the heralded beauty of fashion experts,—because we should add beauty to the world in every form we can.

Last year the graduating class of one of the country's leading schools got together and decided that their graduating dresses should embody some such idea. No dress was to cost more than a certain amount,—and it was a small amount, a few dollars. The dresses were to be simple and dainty and not a mass of elaborate trimming that had no use and was put on merely for show. And among all the country's graduates, there were few more charmingly dressed girls than these.

It is to be hoped that many schools will follow this example this year, and that graduates will see in the question of the commencement dress something more than the selection of snowy material, fluttering ribbon and filmy lace.

TRIMMINGS ARE CREEPING UNDER THE HATBRIM.

Hats have hugged the head so closely for the past season or two that there has been room for nothing but the hair under the drooping brim. Now, however, the hat brim is rolling up to show the hair and the inevitable consequence is the feather or flower or ribbon ornament poised beneath the brim. This new Georgette hat of cerise malin has a crown and upper brim of white Venise lace and a cluster of green satin grapes are caught to the crown at one side. Under the rolling brim is a feathery osprey in taupe color. The hat accompanies a frock of taupe chiffon over green taffeta worn with buttoned boots of black satin.

MRS. HERBERT WADSWORTH IS MAKING HER ANNUAL 1,000 MILE HORSEBACK RIDE

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Washington society is showing intense interest in the long distance endurance horseback ride in which Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth and a party of friends are participating. The party left Washington with the determination to reach Hot Springs, Va., in record time. They expect to arrive there about May 6 and then ride to Mrs. Wadsworth's home at Geneseo, N. Y. On the way they will sleep in farmhouses or camp by the roadside, at all times cooking their own meals. Mrs. Wadsworth, who is a prominent society leader, is probably the best woman rider in the country. She has taken part in many long distance contests and several years ago rode 153 miles in sixteen hours, beating the record established by Colonel Roosevelt. She loves horses and practically lives in the saddle summer and winter. She is also fond of hunting and has had many thrilling experiences.

HANA WITNESSES BIG HAUL OF FISH

HANA, Maui, May 14.—On Friday the Kelenaha and Makakhe hui made a haul of akuie that totaled 62,228 fish. The people of Hana never have seen such a catch.

Okada at the head of a Japanese hui bought the fish without counting at $1 per 1 kaau (40 fish). After the tally reached 20,000 he threw up his hands and wanted to call the deal off. Chin Kee at the head of another hui bought all the available fish in the district, and had a corner on this article, so salt jumped to $5 per bag. After all the fish were counted the price for the balance of over 20,000 dropped as low as ten cents a bag, three kaous to the bag. Finally Sheriff Crowell came along and instructed the combine that, at 6 P. M. Saturday, all fish remaining unsold and salted had to be buried, so a number of cane planters who knew the value of fish fertilizer carted the balance, some 28,000 out into the cane fields.

Today Hana is a queer sight. Every house in the village is shingled with fish drying in the sun.

The fruitfully is now well established throughout the district of Hana. It has been found in Kipahulu, Nahiku and Hana proper.

BLANCHARD WILL PUBLISH ICECREAM ANALYSES RESULTS

Inasmuch as Food Commissioner Blanchard has brought his work of inspecting icecream to an end and at the present time is busily engaged in analyzing the frozen product, the public will not have to wait longer than Thursday morning in order to find out whose icecream is pure and whose fails to come up to governmental standard.

Ever since the inspection work and investigation of conditions started, the food inspector has been kept busy answering telephone queries in regard to where to buy icecream and which has proved the best quality, etc., etc.

Partly to satisfy those making the inquiries and incidentally to see whether publicity will assist any in improving manufacturing conditions, Mr. Blanchard intends to publish a list of all the icecream dealers in the city and showing the percentage of butter-fat in their icecream.

The food commissioner will take pains to slight no one in his report and will publish the exact figures reached after analyzing the samples of each.

"This is practically the only way to remedy the evil and while it will doubtless cause a terrible howl to go up from the dealers involved, it will work wonders in the long run toward keeping the city icecream up to the standard," said Mr. Blanchard this morning.

"Publicity means more to the white dealers than prosecution and, when they see their names included in the list of those who sell icecream that is below the standard, they will come to time and give their customers what they are paying for—real icecream.

"But prosecution is the only way to reach the oriental dealers, as they don't seem to mind publicity; the only way to reach them is to hurt their pocketbooks.

"We have finished our canvass of the dealers and are now hard at work in the laboratory analyzing samples. When this is done, a list will be drawn up of all the dealers and their relative standing indicated.

"This list will be ready for publication by Wednesday afternoon or Thursday morning at the latest and prosecutions will begin next week."

COPELAND AND WELLS EXPLAIN

education office for ratification. Nothing whatever had been done toward any substantial compliance with the mandatory instructions of the commissioners. It was distinctly proposed that the official section of the meeting should be in control, and that any action taken should be along lines laid down by them, all the rest of the members being considered interlopers. It being evident that no independent or useful discussion could be had with the official whip continually cracking over the heads of the principals, it was thought best to reorganize with a presiding officer chosen from among the principals, retire to some convenient place, sit down informally about a table, and try to ascertain the real sentiments of the meeting, uninfluenced by official direction or suggestion. The vote on the motion to reorganize resulted in a tie, and Superintendent Pope retained his seat in the chair by virtue of his own ruling.

When the Copeland-Wells course of study was prepared by them, it was with the full realization that it could be nothing more than a clear, definite plan which might be useful to the supervising principals in their work. It was never supposed or intended by its compilers that it would or ought to be adopted as a whole by the meeting. It was hoped, however, that the experience of educators in New York and San Francisco, where educational conditions are not greatly unlike those prevailing in Hawaii, and whose ideas had been freely drawn upon, might be found useful here.

The motion to introduce this course of study met with the most bitter opposition from the official side of the meeting, who seemed determined to prevent its consideration. The attempt to bar it out, however, was defeated by the spirit of fair play which generally prevailed among the members and its main features were briefly outlined by the compilers.

Subsequent to the close of Saturday's session, the whole situation was canvassed by the "insurgent" faction. An agreement was reached to the effect that on Monday morning the attempt at reorganization should be resumed; the Copeland course of study as a whole, laid aside, to be referred to only as its ideas might be generally acceptable, and an earnest effort made to accomplish some constructive work. In this decision there was no intention of slighting either the office or the personal feelings of Superintendent Pope, or of Inspector Gibson. It was, however, clearly seen that no substantial advance could be made in accordance with their views, which were already perfectly represented in the present course of study. On Sunday two or three supervising principals who had voted against reorganization were converted to the idea, and one of them definitely agreed to introduce a motion to reconsider. Having thus, as they supposed, reorganized their forces, the "insurgents" calmly awaited the opening of Monday's meeting. But the best laid plans sometimes go awry. Official pressure proved too much for the resolution of the convert who had agreed to reopen the subject. Pale and trembling, he came to the leaders of the progressives, and informed them that he could not keep his promise. Accordingly, the steam roller was started and the champions of free speech were squelched.

Why, it may be asked, was there so much acrimony displayed in interminable wrangling over seemingly unimportant points? The opposition was voiced almost entirely by the standard element, who regard the present course of study as the last word of educational progress, as something holy, sanctified and inviolable, not to be touched or questioned by any save the official hierarchy who have been instrumental in constructing it. So entirely satisfied are they with it that they go into hysterics at the mere suggestion of alteration or improvement. They cannot tolerate the idea that any improvement of it is possible or desirable. Consequently they oppose with the whole weight of their official prestige any proposition treating of the course of study along any lines other than those mapped out by themselves. Hence, these loud cries of anguish, these predictions of overthrow of the whole educational system by the legislature, the endeavor to inject the race question into the matter, the pathetic concern for the pocket-books of the poor, and the general imputation of base and unworthy motives to the progressives.

Now, it may well be that the present course of study is perfectly adapted to the educational needs of the Territory. It may be that in the official element of the supervising principals' meeting is concentrated all educational skill, wisdom and integrity,

It may be that the compilers of the course of study, proposed for consideration only, are, as has been publicly asserted, merely ignorant, bumptious and presumptuous sore-heads and disturbers of the peace. It may be that the proposed course of study is utterly unworthy to be considered by intelligent men and women. Even so, what harm could possibly result from extending to everybody, proponents and opponents alike, the ordinary courtesies and facilities for debate? What good can come from misrepresenting, ridiculing and impugning the motives of those who may differ professionally from the official element? We are firmly convinced that this meeting, although hampered, fettered and cowed by continual appeals to "stand by the department," will make some real progress toward fulfilling the directions of the commissioners. We are also convinced that much more would have been accomplished had we been permitted to get about our work in a rational manner unhampered and unoppressed by stand-pat official influence.

A Wonderful Sanitary REFRIGERATOR

Most Sanitary

Most sanitary because nowhere in the entire lining or food department is there a single groove, crack, or crevice where a germ can lodge the cleaning cloth, and there can never be any such hiding places, because, unlike all other so-called stone, slate, or tile-lined refrigerators, Xyno stone can never chip, crack, or discolor—corners rounded, shelves, ice tank, everything slides out from front, then a glistening naked snow white lining of XYNO stone, as durable as nickel steel, beautiful as marble, and as easily cleaned as glass.

Most Economical

The Rhinelander is most economical. First: because of price, lower than any other Refrigerator daring to approach the Rhinelander in efficiency; second: because of minimum ice requirements. The casing is constructed of eight separate and distinct walls of casing, sheathing, and matchings, including a mineral wool lining and the XYNO stone lining. It keeps out the heat; keeps in the cold. Furthermore, the Rhinelander has a drainage system and a system of circulation that guarantees throughout the entire Refrigerator absolute dry air. The ice chamber is made of rust-proof galvanized iron, with back slanting floor to insure proper drainage. Cabinets of beautifully finished, air-dried oak, unconditionally guaranteed against warping or falling apart. Heavy nickel trimmings.

BISHOP PLEASED TO SEE HONOLULU

"You can tell the people of Honolulu from me that I am more than pleased to be with them again. After an absence of ten years it is good to see Honolulu again."

Such was the message to the people of Honolulu given out by Bishop Willis of Tonga who arrived by the steamer Makura this morning and was met on the wharf by a large delegation of local church people. The bishop stays here a month to attend the big conference and then leaves for England where he will spend some two or three months. He is accompanied by Mrs. Willis.

Bishop Willis is looking much the same as when he left here ten years ago and resigned the position as second Bishop of the Territory. He still retains his beard and has not put on any additional flesh.

MAHUKA SITE TRIAL IS DULL

The Mahuka site trial was resumed in Judge Dole's court at 8:30 this morning, several witnesses being examined before the noon recess. None of the testimony, however, was in any degree sensational, all of it being along the line of fixing the value of the leases which form part of the property to be condemned.

Among the witnesses examined were A. C. Alexander, who was recalled by the respondents; I. Abrams, R. A. Cooke, E. A. McInerney, S. A. Walker, C. H. Cooke and R. R. Reidford. All of these, except Alexander, testified as to what they paid on leases of property located near to or adjoining the property which the present suit is brought to condemn.

It is not expected that there will be anything sensational in the present trial. The ground to be covered is about the same that was gone over in the first case and the witnesses promise to be, for the most part, the same.

For this case Judge Dole is opening court at 8:30 in the morning and closing at 12:30, instead of holding two sessions during the day as is customary.

stored but the cut grass remained packed up for carrying away and the two knives were lying on the ground nearby.

On her arrival home Mrs. Freitas notified the police by telephone of her horrible experience, and Sergeant Komahu, together with David Kamanoha and H. Clark, started for the house in the police auto.

Mrs. Freitas was found at home but she could give no coherent direction for the police to follow.

An old Portuguese man volunteered to act as guide, however, and was taken along in the auto.

The spot where the crime took place was located after a long search by the patch of cut grass. It is on an old trail and about half a mile from the new road up Tantalus.

Nothing could be seen of Freitas and the Portuguese told the police that their man had in all probability gone home Makiki way.

The route indicated by the old guide was followed and Freitas' trail of cut grass was soon struck and led right to his house.

He was not in his house when the officers arrived but came in shortly afterward and was placed under arrest, and taken to the police station.

The only explanation that he vouchsafed for his extraordinary conduct was that he was a sufferer from rheumatism and that the pain must have driven him crazy.

JEROME TO OPPOSE THAW'S LATEST MOVE TO OBTAIN FREEDOM

W. T. JEROME

ALBANY, N. Y., May 20.—Attorney General Carmody, upon whom devolves the task of trying to prevent Harry K. Thaw's release from Matteawan, has retained William Travers Jerome as counsel. Mr. Jerome was district attorney of New York county at the time of Thaw's trial for the murder of Stanford White. His entry into the case may mean a delay of several weeks in bringing the issue to trial, as Mr. Jerome will require some little time to familiarize himself with the details of the case since his previous official connection with it. The case will be called in White Plains May 6.

EFFORT TO FREE CHUNG NUNG

Claiming that he has discovered new evidence which, if it had been available at the time of the trial would probably have resulted in the jury bringing in a verdict of acquittal instead of one of guilty, Lorin Andrews, attorney for Chung Nung, this morning filed in the circuit court a second motion for a new trial. Chung Nung is the Chinese who was convicted last week of the rape of a four-year-old Hawaiian girl and who was sentenced last Saturday by Judge Robinson to life imprisonment.

Andrews bases his motion on two affidavits, one sworn to by himself and the other sworn to by Dr. C. Wood.

Andrews in his own affidavit makes the surprising statement that after the trial he was informed by a judge of the circuit court that Dr. Wood had made an examination of Chung Nung and failed to find the germs of the disease from which the Chinese was supposed to be suffering, and which he was supposed to have communicated to the little girl. Had this evidence been available at the time of the trial, says Andrews in his affidavit, the jury would probably have returned a different verdict.

The affidavit of Dr. Wood is less emphatic. The physician says that he examined the Chinese and failed to discover germs which he could be sure were those of the disease from which he was supposed to be suffering and which it was claimed he had communicated to the little girl.

ANGUISH OF ROBERT ROWE

Robert Rowe, into a printery chanced to go. The shop was on the street called Smith—this story, reader, is no myth.

It happened that last Saturday Rowe in the print-shop chanced to stray.

Great carelessness he showed, which means that he started to monkey with the machines.

A good friend told him to go away but Rowe made up his mind to stay.

What happened isn't exactly clear but somehow he trifled with some gear and caught his digits in a cog, though not with set intent to clog.

With Rowe disaster's memory linger, for now he mourns a couple of fingers.

If here the details are not all, you'll find them at the hospital.

To get into print is oft a curse but to idle in a print-shop is ten times worse.

Oh, straitly on your way then go, remembering the anguish of Robert Rowe!

Two new projects are being formulated by the executive and the department of public works. One of these is the reclaiming of the land in the Kikihale district, situated between Oahu prison and the Palama district, which awaits the project for dredging Honolulu harbor. The other scheme involves a large area of land in the Waialakea district near Hilo and has been discussed for some time. Several trips have been made up to the place with this end in view and work is expected to begin in the near future.

FRUITFLY

(Continued from page one.) figures as to its power of destruction. Selecting a certain group of trees I placed kerosene traps therein and in thirty-five days caught 10,239 fruitflies. The same trees were then sprayed at intervals for thirty-five days and during the time the spray was in use I caught but 182 fruitflies. This should prove beyond a doubt that the spray is superior to clean culture as the latter is now being demonstrated.

"Despite the fact of the proved worth of the spray and its entire adaptability, Mr. Ehrhorn, in a bulletin issued by the Board of Agriculture and Forestry, attacks the method on the ground of impracticability and also that the same poison which destroys the fruitfly will destroy the honey bees. As to the latter argument I proved that to be the case some time ago and so announced it, saying at the time that the choice might have to be made between the bee and the fruitfly. At the same time I pointed out that it was possible to move the beehives away from the trees so treated.

"In my opinion a spray which has proved its value as this one has, and its entire practicability and cheapness, is far superior to the 'clean culture' method advocated by the Board of Agriculture, which, as far as Honolulu is concerned, is simply a farce as I am prepared to prove.

"The industry of the fruitfly commission in locking the door after the horse is stolen by preventing produce from the other islands from coming into Honolulu would be worthy of ridicule were it not for the serious effect it is having on the inter-island commerce.

"Two years ago, with proper quarantine inspection, they might have kept the fruitfly confined to Oahu. The attempt now being made to keep a few flies on the other islands from calling on the innumerable swarms on this island simply indicates a desire to cover up shortcomings by clouding the issue.

"Although Mr. Weinland was in error in believing that he had discovered the spray, I am glad to see, in the same article which gives him this credit, that he agrees with me as to the superiority of the spray over the alleged 'clean culture' method now in vogue."

A meeting of the trustees of the Chamber of Commerce has been called for Thursday afternoon for the purpose of listening to reports from its health committee, and from the mosquito campaign committee.

VON DAMM DEFENDS HIS MUNICIPAL REFORM SCHEME

"A revolution never accomplishes a permanent reform," declared B. von Damm, yesterday, in commenting upon the criticisms which have been made upon his suggestions for amending the county act, as published in the Star on Saturday. Continuing he said: "The Advertiser goes into the matter at considerable length editorially, in which it strives to show that my suggestions would accomplish no reform, and advocating instead the adoption of the so-called commission form of government, adopted by some of the mainland cities. Those ideas would be essentially revolutionary here. Besides they have not really stood the test of time where they have been tried, although seemingly they are working well in many places. But the conditions under which they operate are quite different from what we have here.

ARGUMENT OF H. GOODING FIELD FOR UNION OF CIVIC BODIES

Following is the paper read by H. Gooding Field before citizens gathered at a dinner at the University Club last night, which formed the topic of discussion followed by action, as elsewhere reported, respecting the union of various civic bodies into one large organization:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:—The modern chamber of commerce, or to use a more comprehensive term—the People's Forum—had its prototype in Cleveland, Ohio, nearly twenty-five years ago. In a number of progressive communities at the present time, such a chamber has become the active agency by which a city builds itself—moulds its character, shapes its physical qualities and forms its social ideals. Wherever it has been established, prosperity has invariably followed and good government and good public service has been secured. The secret of its success can be directly traced to the spirit of active cooperation which has prompted the better manhood of the city to merge all its civic organizations into one large, vigorous and progressive body.

The Cleveland Chamber of Commerce was a success from the start, and so important has this institution now become that it literally guides the course of its community. It stands sponsor for any and every movement for the betterment of the city and the uplift of its citizens. City planning, medical inspection, infant mortality, industrial betterment, public baths, prevention of tuberculosis, forestry, play grounds, milk inspection, civic service, housing reform, supervision of charitable organizations: all these come within the province of the chamber. Its membership includes clergymen, educators, physicians, publicists, social workers, business men, and, in fact, earnest workers from all walks in life. So marked has been the loyalty and support of its citizens to the undertaking and so gratifying the business-like solution of its public problem by this body, that other cities—Boston, Detroit, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Spokane, and many others—have adopted a similar plan for the centralization of their civic effort. These cities now have each a chamber of commerce which is acknowledged by the entire community as the head center of civic activity, having as the underlying motive the communal welfare rather than that of any particular interest or a group of interests.

What prompted Cleveland to depart from the traditional conservatism which has so long been associated with commercial bodies in general was the belief that a chamber of commerce, to be effective, should be as well a chamber of citizenship; that it should be the strongest organization in the community not alone in the city's health but also in its intelligence, and that it should take the lead in all civic undertakings. Experience has long since demonstrated the fact that such a public body is not enough to be a clearing-house for industrial statistics or to be a promotion agency; its energies should be focused on everything that relates to make the community good—richer in its resources, more widely known for its advantages and distinguished for the care of its people. It will be seen, therefore, that the most important element in successful civic endeavor is the development of a spirit of cooperation. With us, we have failed to take the position that all our civic needs are but component parts of the same general problem of civic betterment. What might have been considered good organization twenty years ago would not be able to stand criticism in the light of modern methods. Too often the making of parks, the planting of trees, the beautifying of residential property, the preservation and enhancing of natural scenic beauty is regarded as purely aesthetic. Those holding such views are woefully in error. Let us use a familiar illustration. When an individual invites a guest to his house, he sees to it, or his good wife does so for him, that his home is immaculately clean and that every provision is made for his guest's comfort, convenience and pleasure; but in the face of what he would do as individual, the member of a civic organization invites, not as guests for a few days, but as permanent residents, men, women and children to a city too often lacking in practically all the essentials that contribute to good living. When a capitalist goes to a new community he is thinking about some other things than plenty of territory for development, cheap water rates and fuel supplies. As in our case, if he becomes mud splattered or dust littered upon his arrival, he is likely to make more than a mental account. Does he look in vain for street signs and for good roads? He is thinking of just a few other things than the opportunity to make money easily. The community that wants to increase its population must have specific advantages to offer in living conditions. The day is passed when the representative body of the community can say "That work is for others to do."

"I would not increase the number of supervisors, but I would make the mayor, to be elected by the six supervisors, a seventh working member of the board."

We must all seriously realize that now is the opportune time for the centralization of our civic effort into one strong public body. With the joining of hands of all our earnest workers into one representative Hawaii Chamber of Commerce, let us say, we would then be able not only to cement the good work which has already been done but to have the assurance of far greater things in the future. With our Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' Association, Promotion Committee, Civic Federation, Public Service Association, and our many other equally useful civic organizations so consolidated, and each pulling together as strong communities in carrying on their various lines of civic usefulness, we shall have an alert and enlightened body of men and women stirring up the people, and by the pressure of opinion, impelling civic affairs towards the improvements that are so urgently needed.

What better illustration of centralized civic effort can we apply to our own case than that of Cleveland? If this city has accomplished so much towards meeting community needs, there is no reason why we cannot achieve the same success by marshaling our civic forces into one strong representative public body. The growing importance of our islands demands our careful thought for the near future. We have our perplexing problems of city planning, legislation, sanitation, and numerous others equally important yet to solve, some of which our mainland communities are not confronted with. Our climatic advantages are well known abroad to be unsurpassed, but we must not leave too much to nature. It can be expected also that we shall receive a full share of the benefits accruing from the opening of the Panama Canal. Let us ask ourselves are we preparing the way? Gentlemen, we must take advantage of the present opportunity, by every means in our power, and so concentrate our forces now that we may, as a community, reach the very highest mark of civic excellence.

WHERE THE WATER IS REFRESHING

There is a lot of pleasure going into the surf where one may fall on his knees and not get out with coral according to one of the characters in Katherine Yates' story and all the pleasure which bathing in the briny affords may be had at Haleiwa where the best beach in the islands is boasted. There is always something doing; you are pretty sure to meet a friend no matter when you go there and you are always sure of getting a worth-while dinner or luncheon. Trains go to the door and there is an auto in the rent service on the premises.

BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR HAWAII IN "EXHIBITING AMERICA" SHOW

Hawaii has just been offered one of those rare opportunities of getting something worth while, for nothing—or next to nothing, and it isn't a gold-bribe, either. Secretary Wood, of the Promotion Committee, is grieving that he will be unable to take full advantage of the golden opportunity, but hopes to next year—for this remarkable opportunity is to be offered once a year. However, Hawaii will be on deck to a limited extent this year.

The project in question is a big advertising exhibit to be given in New York City during the months of July and August, under the direction of the Hotel and Business Men's League, Inc., of Greater New York. It is to be known as "Exhibiting America," and will consist of advertising floats arranged in a big pageant daily, and afterward exhibited in permanent place. But the unique feature of the plan is that the exhibitors will not be charged a cent for the privilege accorded them, nor will the sightseers be asked to pay. The only cost to the exhibitors will be the preparation and maintenance of their exhibit.

The whole cost of the undertaking is to be borne by the business men of New York City, who believe that they will be well repaid for the outlay by the business which will be brought to the city, during the time of the big show, as well as by a lot of permanent business which they believe will be turned into New York channels through their enterprise.

Secretary Wood is acquainted with the director of the enterprise, A. H. Stoddard, who was formerly the director of the great Mardi Gras Carnival of New Orleans, and the organizer of the Portland Rose Carnival. The officers are Harry P. Stimson, president; Fred A. Reed, vice-president; Edward M. Tierney, treasurer; David H. Knott, secretary; George W. Best, assistant secretary; Milton C. Roach, director of publicity; and Albert H. Stoddard, director of exhibits. Besides these there is a long list of honorary vice-presidents including such names as J. Pierpont Morgan, August Belmont, Andrew Carnegie, Edwin Gould, Henry Clews, Ralph Pulitzer, Theodore P. Shonts and John Wanamaker.

It is stated in the advertising matter sent out, that exhibits will be accepted from every section of the country based on population—sections of 500,000 or over to be allowed not more than five exhibits down to one exhibit for sections less than 100,000.

The Promotion Committee will probably secure the services of Loyd Childs and a band of Hawaiian singers. Mr. Childs has some excellent moving pictures of Hawaiian scenes, and he will have opportunity to lecture daily on Hawaii. It is also intended to forward Hitchcock's volcano picture, now in San Francisco, and a large amount of printed matter for distribution.

The circular and letters state that every facility will be accorded exhibitors to get in touch with the people who might be benefited, and for lectures, distribution of printed matter, etc.

endeavor to remedy sometimes "appalling conditions in cities, Mr. Carlsmith is still deeply interested in all problems that refer to the so-called social evil.

Although the activity of the American Vigilance Association is not likely to extend to Hawaii in the immediate future, there is much curiosity being shown about the unique position that Hawaii holds in regard to the very serious problem.

While Mr. Carlsmith has a thorough knowledge of conditions as they exist in this group, he feels that the whole question is a difficult one to handle. He, however, has gathered all his data and will take it with him when he leaves for the mainland on May 29.

On June 18, Mr. Carlsmith is due to be at the Republican National convention, and he will have to do some hustling to keep his appointment.

Butter and Flour Bids

Bids were opened at 10 o'clock yesterday by Capt. D. B. Case, depot commissary, for supplying butter and flour for the U. S. Army in Hawaii during the coming fiscal year beginning July 1 next. The specifications called for the furnishing of 7500 pounds of butter, and 75,000 of flour monthly, in Honolulu. It is possible that this quantity may be considerably increased.

A number of the tenders were made by coast firms. The awards have not yet been made.

The bids for butter were as follows: Western Meat Company, 33 cents; Fred B. Haight, 41 cents; Sherry, Freitas & Co., 34 1-2, 35, 32, and 33 cents, according to kind of package; Hawaii Meat Company, 35 2-8 and 24 5-8 cents, according to package; Theo. H. Davies & Company, 34.29, 34.83, and 33.17, according to package.

The bids per pound for flour were—H. Davies & Company, 34.29, 34.83, Theo. H. Davies & Company, 2.85, 2.95, 2.8, and 2.75 cents.

KAUAI'S INTELLIGENT METHOD OF MAINTENANCE OF ROADS

(Special Correspondence to the Star.) HILO, May 18.—John F. Hackfeld, the head of the famous Honolulu house of the same name, was a visitor to Hilo last week. He made the Volcano trip, and then remained in Hilo as the guest of Mr. Castendyk for the weekend.

Mr. Hackfeld has recently been on Kauai, and when he went out last Thursday to the end of the Hilo railroad, and then took an automobile run along the coast roads, he declared that the Kauai thoroughfares were much in advance of those on this island, and that the reason is not far to seek.

On Kauai, said Mr. Hackfeld, the roads are a treat to drive over. The surfaces are perfect, and no chance of ruts developing is taken. Every mile or so piles of graded stones are to be seen on the side of the road. Barrels containing oil are also deposited at intervals.

As soon as a rut is noticed by the section men, the place it at once dug out. Oil is sprinkled in, new stones deposited, and the rut is patched up so that it cannot be felt or noticed. By constant attention and good patching work, the surfaces of the different roads are never allowed to get into a state that would cost much money to repair.

"A stitch in time" is the policy of the Kauai road engineer, and it is working well. The Kauai roads are like motor racing tracks, says Mr. Hackfeld, and it would seem to be a good idea if the Hawaii road authorities would follow suit.

FRIESACK, Prussia, May 21.—While speeding his automobile, in which he was hurrying to Copenhagen to attend the funeral of the late King Frederick, Prince George William of Saxony was instantly killed yesterday when his machine skidded and turned upside down. His chamberlain, Herr von Grove, was also instantly killed. Word of the accident was at once sent to King Frederick of Saxony, and instructions were sent to hold the bodies here until they can be taken home in state.

CHICAGO, May 21.—That the Taft forces are strongly in control of the Republican national committee was evidenced yesterday when a pronounced Taft man was named to be the temporary chairman of the Republican national convention next month. The announcement was made by Harry Stewart New, national committee chairman, and Senator Elihu Root of New York is the man selected to preside over the convention when it comes to order.

BOSTON, May 21.—Clarence V. T. Richeson, the Baptist preacher who murdered Miss Avis Linnell on October 14 last, paid the penalty in the electric chair at the Charlestown prison last night. He was calm when the end came and walked unassisted to the death chamber, and even assisted in fastening the apparatus. "I am ready to die, now," he said to the warden, when the latter asked, "I am going to Jesus," were his last words.

SAN DIEGO, California, May 21.—Citizens here are planning a monster demonstration against the Industrial Workers of the World for today. The affair will come off at the same time that the alleged vigilante leader, Mr. Porter, appears in court to answer a charge of contempt.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—Dr. Ben Reitman and Emma Goldman reached here last night from Los Angeles. Reitman declared he was subjected to the grossest indignities by the vigilantes before he was finally tarred and feathered in San Diego.

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—Eleven jurors now sit in the jury box awaiting the opening of the trial of Clarence Darrow, the attorney for the McNamara, who is charged with bribery of a venireman in the famous dynamiting case.

HAVANA, Cuba, May 21.—What is believed would have been a wide-spread uprising among the negroes of the island has been frustrated by the authorities, who have seized the suspected leaders and confiscated various stores of weapons and ammunition.

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 21.—The lighthouse tender Armeria went ashore in a gale near here yesterday and was pounded to pieces against the rocks. The members of her crew, with one exception, were rescued.

THREE YEARS OF MISERY

Mrs. Burnside Escaped an Operation by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mahoningtown, Pa.—"For three years I suffered untold misery every month, and had to stay in bed the first two or three days. I also had a displacement and other ailments peculiar to women. I became so weak and run down I could scarcely walk across the floor. The doctor told me I would never be well unless I would undergo an operation, but I was advised by my mother to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after I had taken four bottles I am strong and well. I have got others to take your medicine with the same good results and they cannot say enough for it."—Mrs. J. A. BURNSIDE, Mahoningtown, Pa.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

BOOMS HONOLULU

Mr. Starrett has done a great work for Hawaii by showing its people how to truck farm small patches of ground. He believes that there is a great future in onions and when he goes back to Honolulu he will give the Hawaiian people the benefit of his experience in gardening in California. Asked about the pineapple, he said, "The largest of these that Hawaii produces never reach this country, the cans are not large enough and the 'pine' is cut down to suit the container. Many people have found that the pineapple and its juice are beneficial in certain forms of throat trouble."

DETECTIVE SHOT DEAD IN PARIS

PARIS, April 24.—The detectives on the track of the motor-car bandits who perpetrated the crimes of the Rue Ordener, the Rue du Havre, Montgeron, and Chantilly nearly succeeded in arresting unawares the leader and most desperate member of the whole band, Bonnot, this morning. Unfortunately they were not expecting to encounter this desperado, and he managed to escape after shooting the Assistant Chief of the Detective Service, M. Jouin, dead and seriously wounding another detective named Colnard.

It has been abundantly proved that the desperate band of motor-car bandits is in close touch with the Anarchist organization in Paris, and uses it both for disposing of the proceeds of robberies and for securing means of escape and places of hiding. The police have, therefore, of late been following up Anarchist tracks with special keenness. This morning the Assistant Chief of the Detective Force, M. Jouin, with another detective, Colnard, Chief Inspector Robert, and two other police officers, proceeded to the southern suburb of Ivry-sur-Seine in order to search the sloop-shop of a man named Gouzy, who was suspected to have received and concealed the proceeds of a robbery committed by the bandit Carouy. They did not for one moment suspect that the most desperate of the motor-car robbers, Bonnot, was in hiding on Gouzy's premises, which are situated at No. 63, Rue d'Ivry.

When the detectives entered the chop this morning Gouzy quietly said to them:—"Yop will find nothing here. You can go upstairs and search if you like." M. Jouin, accompanied by Detectives Colnard and Robert, then proceeded to the upstairs living rooms. As a measure of precaution they took Gouzy with them. Two of the detectives entered a front room while the third, Robert, remained with Gouzy on the landing. Downstairs two other police officers remained in charge of a man named Cardy, whom they had taken into custody.

A Desperate Struggle.

Robert the only police officer who was able to give an account of what took place, did not see with his eyes what happened immediately after M. Jouin and Colnard entered the front room. But he presently heard the noise of a desperate struggle. He rushed in and found M. Jouin and Colnard rolling on the floor with a man whom they had seized. Colnard cried to Robert:—"Catch him by the shoulder; he has a revolver." Almost at the same moment four shots were fired. M. Jouin and the man with whom he had been struggling lay motionless on the floor. The other detective, Colnard, tried to rise, but could only exclaim, "I am done for." Robert, thinking that M. Jouin and the bandit were both dead, hastened to remove his wounded comrade Colnard from the room and carried him downstairs and to a neighboring shop. When he returned to the scene of the shooting he found M. Jouin lying dead on the floor, but his assailant had vanished.

The mystery of the bandit's escape was revealed by a respectable woman who occupied rooms on the same floor as the scene of the crime. She narrated that she had heard the report of four shots, and that shortly afterwards a man rushed into her kitchen and threatened to shoot her if she raised an alarm. He looked out of the window, and, evidently with a view to letting himself down, asked her to give him a sheet. She replied that she had none, and immediately afterwards the man jumped from the window on to the roof of some outhouses and escaped by way of the courtyard.

Murder Identified As Bonnot.

The local magistrates, the Prefect of the Paris Police, M. Lepine, and the Chief Detective, M. Guichard, soon afterwards arrived on the scene. The room where the struggle had taken place was carefully searched, and various effects of the fugitive bandit were examined. Ultimately in the inside pocket of a traveling bag, M. Guichard discovered a quantity of cartridges with nickel-plated bullets, and from the similarity of this ammunition to that which Bonnot habitually employed he formed a strong suspicion that the escaped criminal was no other than Bonnot. Photographs of Bonnot were then shown to various persons who had seen the fugitive, and in particular to the woman through whose kitchen he had escaped. None of them had any difficulty in identifying the bandit as Bonnot.

KITE FLYING.

Editor Star: The kite flying contest of the boys of the Mid-Pacific Institute on Saturday was a great success.

Indeed, it would be very hard to find anything more interesting, instructive or beautiful than this kite flying contest, or anything in which a greater amount of ingenuity and skill had been displayed in the design and the making of them.

These kites were of every imaginable design and varying from a butterfly to an angel, and most of them were beautiful beyond description. Their flying capacity was no less wonderful than their beauty, and their peculiar designs, and many were the "Ohs!" and "Ahs!" and other exclamations of ecstasy that one heard as these kites went through their various evolutions, or sailed majestically away up in the clear blue sky.

To one unaccustomed to such a sight it was something wonderful and there were many of the spectators who expressed their delight at witnessing such an unusual display, and have decided to write their friends in the East of the joy they experienced in viewing it.

Much ingenuity was also displayed in the fighting contest, in which one boy's kite seemed to surpass all the others. No less beautiful and commendable was the behavior of these boys, who seem to be imbued with a true spirit of courtesy and kindness, which they displayed toward every one and which seems to go a long way in solving the race problems, and to some extent doing something toward bringing about the peace of the world.

Indeed, the faculty of the Institute is deserving of great praise for reviving this beautiful custom of the far East, and for the many other great things that they are trying to accomplish.

If space will permit, I should like to say a word or two about the May-day Fete on Saturday, which to all lovers of the beautiful was both a pleasure and a delight.

In the first place the grounds of Thomas Square were beautifully decorated for the occasion.

The various booths were perfect in design and in their color scheme, and were only surpassed in beauty by the fair occupants. The flags of the various nations fluttering in the breeze and the two bands and the many other attractions added in no small degree to the pleasure of the spectators.

Not the least charm of the place was that of the many really beautiful children and young girls that roamed the grounds, or sold flowers, candy, etc., or who waited on the tables.

Indeed, it would be impossible to mention all the attractions, or to do justice to the perfect order and the fine arrangement of everything.

There was but one disappointment and that was to find the luau had given out so early in the day, for many persons had neglected to get luncheon and had arrived there famished only to find that the luau was pau.

No one could complain of a lack of amusements on Saturday with this big fete, kite flying, ball games, minstrel show, bathing and surf riding, auto parties, and many other sports going on all at the same time.
