London and Globe Finance Corporation Suspends Payment.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The London and Globe Finance Corporation, Limited, has suspended payment. When the brokers yesterday delivered stock purchased on account of the London and Globe and asked for payment they received checks which were dishonored. This was followed today by the failure on the Stock Exchange of twelve firms, as follows: Haggard, Hale & Pixley, Garle & Driver, Douglas, Jr., & Co., Cornfoot Bros., F. A. Cohen, Blockey & Buckingham, Gunn & Anbray, Richards & Sloper, Baker & Smith, F. C. Watts & Co., Flower & Co., and F. Bouilly & Company.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—There was a reflection in the opening stock market of the unsettled conditions in London, growing out of the embarrassment of the London and Globe Finance Corporation. A number of international stocks opened down from 1 to 1 5-8, Kansas and Texas preferred and Northern Pacific being the greatest sufferers. Sugar fell 1 3-4. The few stocks which showed gains were not aggressively strong. The opening declines attracted large buying orders all through the list and there were quick recoveries all around.

LONDON, December 31.—The failures of Thomas W. Egan, G. W. Barber and Fitzgerald & Co., jobbers in the West Australian market, were announced, but they had little effect. Americans were marked up from 1 to 4 points, and the rapidity with which all the offerings were taken up for New York had a good effect in steadying other departments. There was even a better feeling in West Australians. Lake Views showed a recovery, but London and Globe was offered and further declined 2s. 6d. British Columbias were steady. Lerol No. 2 was one point higher.

Diamonds Discovered in New Mexico.

EL PASO (Tex.), December 31.—The discovery of diamonds at Capitan, New Mexico, 120 miles northeast of El Paso, has created unusual excitement throughout this section. The first of the precious stones were found by J. J. Blow, a coal mine manager, in an ant heap. He dug twelve feet into the earth and uncovered a bed of the gems. They were submitted to a jeweler, who pronounced them genuine and of great value. The stones varied in size, some being as large as a pea. As soon as the news of the discovery got abroad prospectors began flocking to the Capitan district and this city presents a scene of unusual activity.

The Allies Threatened by Boxers.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—The Havas Agency has received the following dispatch from Peking: "A mustering of regulars and Boxers is reported in the suburbs and along the railway between Peking and Paotingfu. The French and German posts have been doubled to avoid surprise."

"Colonel Guillet and 1500 men are threatened near Tchieng-Tingfu by several thousand regulars, and General Bailloud has gone to the rescue." According to a special dispatch from Peking General Sir Alfred Gaselee, commander of the British forces in China, is seriously ill.

Invasion of Cape Colony.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The Boers have now reached a point half way between the Orange River and Cape Town; and, in spite of optimism of the London press, the Government announcement at Cape Town shows how seriously the invasion is regarded there. The only thing that really touches the British public is the loss of a big naval gun. The Times to-day, however, draws attention to what might prove a serious danger, namely, the possibility of another outbreak of enteric fever among the soldiers worn down by the hardships and privations of a prolonged and exciting campaign.

Boers Capture a Big Gun.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—General Kitchener, telegraphing from Pretoria, Sunday, December 30, says: "The post at Helvetia was surprised at 2:30 a. m., the enemy first rushing a 4.7-inch gun. At dawn the officer commanding the post at Swartzkopje sent out a patrol and shelled the enemy out of Helvetia, making them abandon the gun temporarily. The Boers, however, formed our prisoners around the gun and got away eventually. No ammunition belonging to the gun was captured. The casualties were four officers wounded, eleven men killed and twenty-two wounded. A column was sent out from Machadorp, but, owing to the bad roads it failed to arrive in time."

Watching the Old Century Die.

WASHINGTON, December 31.—In accordance with directions given by Pope Leo the closing of the nineteenth and the beginning of the twentieth century was observed with solemn high mass in all the Catholic churches of the city, the services beginning at midnight. At St. Patrick's Church Mgr. Martinelli, the Papal delegate, celebrated pontifical high mass.

Our Honolulu Letter.
 JANUARY 8th 1901.

It is a great luxury to have steamers coming and going between here and San Francisco every two or three days. The three long whistles which notify the city that a steamer has arrived from the coast sound so frequently now that no one pays attention to them unless they have friends arriving or have special business with that particular vessel.

The steamer list is so long that instead of printing the whole year's list on a card as heretofore only three months list is printed and even that is to large for convenient reference. The fact is that as far as mails are concerned there is no need of keeping track of the steamers at all. Write your letters at any time and there will be no serious delay in their leaving Honolulu.

Two delightful ladies are lecturing in Honolulu on the subject of temperance. They are Miss Ackerman and Miss Murcot of the W. C. T. U. They are world-wide travellers and very interesting speakers. Miss Murcot had an audience in the Opera House last Sunday afternoon that would have inspired an opera troupe to great efforts. The promised crusade against intemperance has not been instituted yet but will probably materialize after the week of prayer.

The Superintendent of Public Works is making frantic exertions to get the streets in decent condition before the opening of the legislature. The big floods of November damaged them fearfully and he has been handicapped by one of his big steam rollers breaking down and by the streets being broken up for the sewer system and the Rapid Transit Electric Road. He has got new rock crushers and steam rollers now and may be able to get the most important all right in time.

A former citizen of Maui, Mr. Alfred Hoeking, (I suppose I should call him a citizen of Maui as he is still manager of Nahiku Plantation) is at the head of a very live institution in Honolulu, the new brewery. It has not begun making beer as yet but the immense brick building is practically finished and the machinery and appliances rapidly getting into position. In connection with the building they have an immense cold storage department and ice manufacture, and in connection with that they have inaugurated the Honolulu Market Co., and are furnishing a large number of people with ice and foreign luxuries and necessities.

Miss Edith Alexander late of Kulauni, Makawao, came down on the Claudine and is visiting her relatives in Honolulu. Miss Minnie Bailey has also returned from her Maui visit and is at Mr. W. O. Smith's. Miss Malone is down, also Mr. C. B. Wells, probably on different errands however.

HIGH SPY.

Origin of "Under the Rose."

In Greek mythology the rose was the symbol of silence, as it was said that Cupid, the son of Venus, gave the god of silence a golden rose as a bride to conceal the amours of the goddess of love. It was, therefore, sculptured on the ceilings of banquetting halls and placed as a sign above the doors of questionable resorts. Guests at feasts were crowned with roses to intimate that their conversations while in their cups were not to be repeated elsewhere.

The phrase obtained currency in Greece after Pausanias, the admiral of the Greek fleet, plotted with Xerxes to betray the cause of the Greeks by surrendering the ships, the negotiations being conducted in a small banquetting hall, the roof of which was, as usual, covered with sculptured roses. The plot, however, was discovered and orders given for the arrest of the traitor. Pausanias endeavored to make his refuge in a temple which possessed the right of asylum. Unwilling to violate the sanctity of the place by forcibly removing him and still more unwilling to allow him to escape, his fellow citizens walled up every entrance and, by one account, left him to die of starvation; by another, killed him by unroofing the building and throwing down the tiles on his head.

Popular Bound Books!
 The Hawaiian News Co., L'd, make a specialty of filling orders for all the late Popular Novels, etc.

The introduction of negro labor on the Island offers a possible solution of the labor troubles. But good judgment must be used in the matter. They should only be brought in limited numbers at first, and every plantation which uses them should also secure the services of a white man from the south who knows and understands negroes, and leave their management largely in his hands. They are not to be handled as are Chinese and Japanese, and any manager who is not familiar with them will not be able to get the best results from them. It must be remembered that they are American citizens, and are familiar with the higher forms of civilization. It must also be remembered that as a class they are easily led by kind hands, and they instinctively look upon their employers as their friends. If they are met and treated fairly, and receive advances to enable them to live till they become self supporting, they will form a valuable element of Island labor, and will come to the Islands by thousands. The better element of them will not come at first, but if they find it all right here, the very best class of them will come. All that is then to be feared is a stampede from the south to the Islands.

There is now in Lahaina an excellent opportunity for the establishment of a business at a cost of not exceeding $12,000 to $15,000, which will make the fortune of a live man or company. This is the establishment of a cold storage plant in connection with a fishery, an ice plant and the manufacture of mineral waters. Electric lights, ice and aerated waters would each swell the total receipts of the company, but would pale before the traffic in fresh Molokai mullet and other edible fish which could be shipped to Honolulu, Hilo and Wailuku. The citizens of Lahaina should not wait for outside capital, but should themselves take hold of the matter and develop it at once. Wake up, Lahaina!

With the impulse of material development which has come to Wailuku, it is gratifying in the extreme there has also come a revival of social intercourse. Old differences, real or imaginary, have been relegated to the nineteenth century. Eyes that looked askance now look into eyes and meet an encouraging smile. Hands formerly withheld now grasp hands in friendly greeting, and the people of Wailuku, forgetting old differences, are uniting to form a delightful and enjoyable society, worthy of our growing town. This is quite as it should be, and any merit which the News may claim for having directly or indirectly helped to accomplish this should be its proudest boast.

If reports be true, the prediction made by this paper last week relative to a line of steamers direct from the Coast to Kahului is in one sense more imminent than was then supposed possible. If a line of steamers from the coast which will touch at Hilo and Kahului as well as Honolulu each trip is put on, as is now claimed, we will practically have direct passenger and freight steamer service. That means that we can ship bananas, pineapples and avocado pears to San Francisco bi-monthly, which will doubtless largely increase their production on Maui, and will yield a steady income of thousands of dollars to small landholders every month.

Now that we have a full fledged military company in Wailuku we may naturally expect its concomitant, a brass band. There is plenty of musical talent in the company, and our citizens will gladly meet them more than half way in the matter of securing musical instruments. Permit us to suggest that the company, at its next business meeting, appoint a committee on music, and instruct them to confer with the citizens of Wailuku. The result of such action on their part is a foregone conclusion, and evening concerts in Wailuku will soon materialize.

There is a large number of idle and loafing Japanese hanging around Wailuku who absolutely refuse to work even when it is offered to them. These men must live, and they are developing a tendency toward a parasitic existence. A comprehensive vag law enacted by the approaching legislature and strictly enforced by the police would be a good remedy.

Can we not have spring racing this year? The Maui Racing Association is in the hands of gentlemen who race solely for the sport that there is in it. We have the nucleus of a fine breed of running stock on the Island, and at least two racing meets a year conducted solely for the pleasure of the sport will develop a high class of horses on Maui.

The travelling public are still waiting patiently for the glad tidings that a hotel at Kahului and another at Lahaina is to be commenced and pushed to completion. Both places badly need hotel accommodations, and there should be no more delay in the matter.

The Hawaiian Islands have with the new century made a "running start" on the road to material progress and prosperity. Even the Kamaainas are beginning to rub their eyes and admit that there is a new life developing in this chosen land.

There is no doubt but that Maui will soon be included in the regular line of tourist travel, and work should be begun at once to the road up Iao Valley in good repair at least as far as the crossing.

A Lazy Beggar.

I once had a conversation, said an Isle of Man bank manager, speaking of Hall Caine, with two old friends of mine, a farmer and his buxom wife, who live within a few yards of Greeba castle, the great Maun author's residence. Hall Caine had just taken up his abode in his new house, and I started the conversation by saying to the worthy farmer and wife: "So you have the great Hall Caine near you now?"

Farmer and Wife—Aye, man.

Farmer's Wife—And what tremendous style they are keeping! It's amazing.

Farmer—And what's he doing for a living, Mr. —?

Bank Manager (greatly astonished)—What, don't you know he is a popular author?

Farmer—And what's that?

Bank Manager—Why, he writes successful books.

Farmer (with a fine show of contempt)—The lazy beggar!

I need hardly say, concluded my correspondent, that I collapsed.

Rose To The Occasion.

A man who is back from a visit to Paris and Germany is telling a story which ought to make the great American eagle flap his wings with pride. It happened at a little railway station in Germany, Grunewald by name, while the man who tells about it was waiting for a train on a branch line which connects with the main line at the place. Besides himself there were at the station a party of American tourists of the kind you read about in English books and an English family of the kind you read about in American books. The Americans were loud voiced and ungrammatical. They laughed a great deal and they ate peaches, the stones of which they threw at a post to test their marksmanship. They were persons for whom Uncle Sam himself would have felt apologetic, and the displeased the haughty British matrifamilias greatly. To the younger members of her family, a gawky boy and a lanky and "leggy" girl of the typical elongated English variety—they were objects of great interest, however, and the girl in particular edged nearer and nearer, to her mother's great disgust. At last she was so near that mamma could endure it no longer.

"Clara!" she called in her loudest voice, "come away at once. You might be mistaken for one of those disgusting Americans!"

A pretty young American looked up and swept Clara from head to foot with a calm glance. Then she went on eating peaches.

"Don't worry, madam," she called out cheerily. "There's no danger of that—with them feet!" —Washington Post.

He Knew the Spot.

An amusing anecdote is related of General Sherman, who, as commanding general of the army, visited West Point one June for the graduation exercises. He accompanied the commandant on his Sunday morning tour of inspection of barracks, and on entering a certain room he walked over to the mantelpiece. Stooping down, he picked up a brick from the middle of the hearth with his sword scabbard and revealed a hollow space about a foot square, in which was nicely packed a considerable quantity of tobacco and other contraband articles. Meanwhile the cadets occupying the room stood by mutely watching and wondering what sort of man the general was to have been able to discover the only "cellar" of its kind in barracks. Turning to the commandant, the general remarked:

"I have been wondering if that hole was still there. I made it when I was a cadet and lived in this room." —New York Tribune.

Tuesday's Star painted in lurid colors an innocent and harmless trifle of skylarking on the part of some of the most prominent and respectable gentlemen of Maui, to their utter justification and chagrin. Such newspaper enterprise is senseless, unjust and uncalled for. Is the Star turning yellow?

A Rough Deal.

Mr. Frank Correa, a prominent Portuguese of Kula, has recently experienced a little of the delights of syndicate government, which has at least converted him to a firm belief in the necessity of establishing a government of Maui by Maui for Maui, rather than having to depend on the sweet will of Honolulu for our sumptuary laws. Mr. Correa was the holder of a light wine and beer license at Paia, and his license expired January 1. He was notified to renew his license, and was sent a blank application and bond for that purpose. The bond was properly filled out and submitted to Sheriff Baldwin, who refused to approve it on the grounds that a barkkeeper of Mr. Correa, had without Mr. Correa's authority sold liquors there other than was allowed in the license.

The result is that Mr. Correa is left with a large lot of unsold stock on his hands. An application was made by Mr. Correa for a temporary license for few months to enable him to clear out his stock. This the authorities refused him, although Mr. W. G. Scott has been granted a light wine and beer license for Paia.

The sooner that the citizens of Maui are allowed to regulate their own affairs without dictation from Honolulu, the better. When that day comes, no one man on Maui or elsewhere will be able at his own will to dictate to or control the people of Maui or their affairs. The best that Mr. Correa was able to do under the circumstances was, so far as the authorities are concerned, to put up his stock at public auction and sell it for whatever it would bring.

Death of Miss Kirkland.

Miss Susan T. Kirkland, daughter of James and Elizabeth Kirkland passed peacefully to her last rest January 5, after a short but serious illness.

The deceased was born in Amador County, California, June 30, 1880. Her death was sudden and untimely, and was a terrible shock not only to her immediate family but also to her numerous friends.

Miss Kirkland was an estimable young lady, who held the high esteem of all who knew her; light-hearted, jovial, self-sacrificing of that noble and confident bearing which unconsciously comes only to those who possess these rare qualities. Admired and esteemed by all who knew her, she carried sunshine with her wherever she went.

She was interred at the Wailuku Cemetery on Monday afternoon, in the presence of a large number of sorrowing friends from Kahului, Paia, Spreckelsville and Wailuku, and the many handsome floral contributions which embowered her last resting place mutely but eloquently told of the wide circle of friends she has left behind.

The bereaved and sorrow stricken family have the deepest sympathy of her many loving friends.

One Who Knew Her.

Attorney Coke Will Leave Us.

Attorney J. L. Coke, who has recently dissolved partnership with Attorney George Hons, will shortly leave for the coast with his family. Later he will revisit Maui on his way to China where he expects to make his permanent home.

Mr. Coke has been in Wailuku for a little more than two years, first as a law partner of Attorney John Richardson, and later with Attorney Geo. Hons. He has made many friends here, whose best wishes will follow him to his new field of labor.

Trouble Pending.

There is trouble pending between the two big sugar companies of Maui concerning the water rights in Iao Valley, but the managers and owners of the two companies should have too much good sense to go to law about it. There is water enough for both companies, if developed, and the money which would be spent in litigation would go far to develop it. Picks and spades would be more effective than law books in securing water rights.

SETTLE UP!

Those knowing themselves to be indebted to the KA LEI STORE on 1900 accounts are requested to call and settle, otherwise their accounts will be placed in the hands of a collector.

THE MAZEPPA.

As an Investment.

EDITOR MAUI NEWS:—

The MAUI NEWS of Dec. 29 has an article headed "The Mother Lode of California." In that article I endeavored to show that gold mining is not the haphazard business that those think for, who say, "gold is where you find it." No business that I have any knowledge of has received more attention than scientific gold mining. Many of our rich men in California are having their sons trained as scientific mining engineers. The wealth of the earth is not all on the surface. Gold mining, where successful, has proved the most profitable of all industries. The best part of San Francisco, including the Palace Hotel, was dug out of gold bearing ledges. The Haywards, Hobarts, Hearts and a host of others got their start from gold mines. Some of them have seen the time when their credit was not good for a sack of flour.

Millions of dollars are being invested annually in California mines, mostly in quartz mines. Boston alone is credited with having put $10,000,000 in California mining property last year. This was not in dividend properties, but in mines that required capital to bring them to the dividend paying point, with a knowledge that a certain amount of capital must be expended as preliminary work, and that when the ore was in sight the gamble had passed; and an assurance that every dollar put in machinery and "dead work" would come back with interest, with a developed property that would not be exhausted in the age of any one man.

The Mazeppa gold mine has reached this point; it is no longer a prospect; the ore is now in sight. More than 50,000 tons have been exposed to the 300 feet level. It only requires a mill to utilize it, and for this purpose our stock is offered for sale. The company have taken the gamble and have reached the lode. The experimental period has been passed, the harvest is in sight, and before six months are over our stamp mill will be beating time with the Jumper mill, 200 feet from our line. When that time comes, no company stock will be for sale, and many who could buy at the present low figure can say, "if my front sight had been equal to my hind sight, where would I have been?"

I am one who could have bought Jumper stock about four years ago for the present price of Mazeppa. Had I put in a thousand dollars, I should not need to worry much about the future. The question has been asked me, "If your stock is so good, why do you come here to sell it?" In reply I will say that my health was impaired, and by the advice of Dr. Dodge of St. Luke's Hospital, I took the trip; the stock was a side issue. Again you say, that a former resident of Honolulu, well known for his careful business methods is one of our largest stockholders, and ask, "Why don't he buy up all your stock?" He has put $50,000 in the mine when it was not nearly as promising as at the present time. Capitalists don't put all their eggs in one basket. Why don't Castle & Cooke buy up the whole of the Eva stock?

In reply to all these questions, I will say that I was in Kohala two months, and in that time every prominent man in that section bought our stock. One of our largest stockholders there, Henry Renton of the Union Mill Plantation, has been to California since investing, and visited the mine. Since his return, another stockholder of Kohala, Mr. Henry Duncan writes me, "We all feel that we have made a good buy and I will increase my holdings if I can make the raise." Another, John Hinds, writes me, "I am sorely tempted to lay in another thousand shares while it is at low figures. No one can make a mistake in buying Mazeppa at its present figures." These gentlemen are representative men, well known in Hawaii.

The stock will surely increase in value. I received notice from the company last week that "You may expect a raise in the price at any time." It can be bought till a change takes place for one dollar a share in blocks of 100 shares and up. In the words of John Hinds of Kohala, "None can make a mistake at these figures."

Personal Mention.

Mr. R. O. Bean leaves for Honolulu and the coast this afternoon.

Mr. C. B. Wells received a fine driving mare and a fancy bred Jersey cow by the Wright.

Mr. Walter McBride of the McBride plantation, Kaui, visiting Wailuku this week.

W. R. Castle and F. M. Hatch of Honolulu came to Wailuku on the Maui and visited Iao Valley on Wednesday morning.

Rev. W. Ault has returned from Honolulu and will hold services at the Anglican Church, Wailuku, tomorrow morning at eleven.

R. E. Lockwood, representing the Provident Life came to Maui on Tuesday night's Maui, to remain a couple of weeks on business for his company.

Interpreter Crawford, "fat Willie," was last week arrested in Honolulu by Charles Chillingworth, for being tangled up in a Chinese gambling game.

L. R. Crook of Ulupalakua spent last Saturday and Sunday in Wailuku. The disease among the horses on the ranche has about disappeared. The grass is fine and the cattle are fat on the ranche.

Charley Jacox, the popular and rustling agent for the New York Life, recently of the Provident Life, now visiting Wailuku, has written a hat full of policies for the New York Life this week, aggregating nearly $20,000.

Mr. Henry Gibson, a first class baker and confectioner, is visiting Wailuku this week with the view of looking over the situation, and if he finds it favorable, he will establish a bakery here at an early day. This is an industry which has long been needed in Wailuku.

BOWSER KEPT BUSY.

THIS TIME A SMALL BOY CAUSED ALL THE TROUBLE.

He Was a Very Small Boy, but He Had a Very Large Voice and Drove the Poor Old Gentleman Almost Insane.

(Copyright, 1930, by C. E. Lewis.)

It had been arranged that Mrs. Bowser and the lady next door should attend to some church matters in the evening and that the lady's 4-year-old son should be the guest of Mr. Bowser and the cat for a couple of hours. The little fellow looked around in a dubious way as he was brought over, but fell asleep before the ladies got away and was tucked up on the lounge.

"Don't you worry in the slightest," said Mr. Bowser to the mother. "If he happens to wake up, I'll do everything to amuse him. I always loved children, and they have always taken to me. Bless his little heart, but I wish he hadn't fallen asleep."

Five minutes later the front door closed on his mother, and the boy awoke. He didn't awake with the languid gentleness of a rabbit, but all of a sudden he got up with a howl of fright. The howls ran from No. 1 to No. 17 before Mr. Bowser could realize the situation, and the family cat, who had been prowling around the room, made a dive for the hall and appeared totally panic-stricken.

During the next ten minutes Mr. Bowser tried hard to be a mother to that boy. He drummed on the piano, knocked on the window and cooed

But the boy refused to see. He'd heard bear stories before, and he knew that there was a screw loose somewhere. He sat up and howled, and he lay down and howled, and the cat fled in terror, and Mr. Bowser felt chills go up his back. There was more lively drumming on the piano, more wild galloping around the room, more singing and whistling. Exercise in a gymnasium couldn't compare to it, but there were only two ways to stop that howling. The boy must be either choked to death or hear another story.

Mr. Bowser wasn't quite ready yet to do murder, and so he gaspingly began: "Well, you know, there was once a boy named Willie Scott. [The howls ceased.] He had a goat. It was a black goat. You've seen a goat, of course. He has horns and climbs over fences. This goat loved the boy because he was so kind to it. Some boys would hit a goat with a crowbar if they got mad, but Willie never even struck his goat with a stick. If ever you get a goat and want him to love you, don't abuse him. A goat has feelings as well as a boy. Well, one day Willie and his goat were out on the sidewalk, and along came a lion. The lion was hungry and wanted to eat the boy up. The boy began to cry, but the goat said to him—'Let's see. What did the goat say? I don't remember just what he said, but—'

There was no fish, and there were howls and sobs and lamentations from the kid on the lounge. He wanted to know whether the goat ate up the lion or the lion ate up the boy, and Mr. Bowser had left it all a mystery. He was picked up and danced around the

AN EASY VICTIM.

The Western Grocer Took Home a Good Story From Chicago.

"I'd been up to Chicago a hundred times or more," said the western grocer as a sheepish look flitted over his face. "and I'd bragged to everybody that I was on to all the little games ever worked on the gullible, but they got me at last with my eyes wide open. I was in the billiard room of the hotel one evening when two sitters near me got into a dispute about how the word 'fulfill' was spelled. Each had his own way, and I knew that one of them was dead wrong. I'm nothing to brag of with the pen, but when it comes to orthography it takes a dictionary to down me. Naturally enough, I had to shoot off my mouth and side with the one who was right. That made the other fellow hot, and he offered to bet me $10 that he was correct by every dictionary in the land. I put with my bill, but the man I was standing up for claimed the right to make the wager. He ran it up to $50, but found he had only a New York draft in his wallet, and the other wouldn't take that. That left an opening for me to come in, and I had my $50 up in a jiffy. It was given into the hands of my friend with the check. The word was written down as we each contended was right, and we started off to see if a dictionary could be found. Nothing of the kind was to be turned up at the office, and my rival went up stairs to see a friend who might have one. The first thing I knew I was all alone, but it was ten minutes before I realized that the 'fulfill' had been 'fulfilled.' It was a put up job on me, and it worked so easy that the fellows must have been disgusted. I got mighty mad over it and took a walk to cool off. A block from the hotel I met the man who held the stakes and went for him at once. In the sanest and gentlest manner he denied his identity, and he was so cool and placid that I soon began to doubt. Then he took me by the arm and walked back to the hotel with me and gave me some brotherly advice and a kind good night. He had bluffed me down."

"And that was all?" queried one of the smokers.
"Well, about all," replied the grocer. "It was probably half an hour later when I missed my watch, and of course I didn't go out expecting to find that infernal scoundrel standing on the same corner again!" M. QUAD.

Her Idea of It.

"What is your idea of an egotist?" asked Willie Washington conversationally.
"An egotist," answered Miss Cayenne thoughtfully, "differs from the rest of mankind only in one respect. Every person feels at heart a certain sense of superiority. But the egotist has sufficient courage to publicly admit his opinion."—Washington Star.

Where It Was Faulty.

"No," said the managing editor, "we cannot use your poem. The sentiment is beautiful, and the meter and rhyming are perfect, but nevertheless it is not suitable for a high class literary magazine."

"So do I, but your brother Tom carries it too far. Why, if the president were to ride down this street and Tom happened to be the drum major with the band, he'd think the cheers were all for him."—Chicago Times-Herald.

SHIPPING NEWS

The bark Andrew Welch is expected from Honolulu to load sugar at Kahului for the coast.

The American schooner Helen N. Kimball, Captain Hansen, is thought to be lost with all on board.

The ship Charmer, Capt. Slater, is now 50 days out from Port Townsend for Kahului, and some uneasiness is felt concerning her.

On Wednesday afternoon a large ship with sky sail yards was sighted off Kahului, supposed to be the S. D. Carlton, bound for Lahaina.

Quite a number of vessels are due or expected at Kahului from the coast, including the Charmer, Challenger, Wright and Stanley.

The Kinau has been laid off for repairs, and the Claudine took the Kinau's run to Hawaii this week, the Maui taking the Claudine's run.

The little schooner Mokihana arrived from Kahului last evening. She grounded on the shoal off the new Channel wharf on her way in the harbor, but was gotten off without much difficulty. The little vessel is swift and will be used to transport lumber from this port to Kahului for the railroad there.—Honolulu Republican.

There were several people among the passengers who arrived from Hilo and way ports on the Kinau on Sunday who have been kicking ever since at the action of Purser Beckley of that vessel, in holding the Kinau for almost twelve hours at Lahaina while former Queen Liliuokalani and her party were entertained by friends ashore.

On Thursday the Wright from the coast and the Honoipu from Newcastle, arrived at Kahului. Pilot English boarded the Wright and brought her in, and the Honoipu trailed in after her, making a safe mooring without the aid of a pilot. Capt. Olsen of the Honoipu reports a prosperous and pleasant voyage. On Dec. 14 he spoke the Chehalis, 30 days out. The Honoipu is one of Hinds, Rolph & Co.'s, and it will soon be followed by a large fleet of vessels owned by that enterprising firm.

HE HAD JUST PICKED THE HOWLER UP.

about the room. He looked over his watch, his wallet, his keys and his knife. He ran to the kite on the lounge, but the cat was sitting on it. Anything and everything was at the disposal of that boy until he ceased to howl and sob.

"We want story," he said as he dug the tears out of his eyes with his toes.

Thereupon Mr. Bowser told him the following story: "Once upon a time there was a bobtailed dog. He was scottish, he was 4 years old. He loved bones and meat and tried owners and his dream. He had no mother or father, but was not a dog to be wicked times. He didn't swear or chew or urinate, and he was no liar. There were dogs who wanted to fight with him, but he would not fight. When they came around and said they could knock him off, he would run in the mud, he jumped over the fence and ran away. Well, things went on this way for a long time, and then—and then—"

And then the boy began howling because there was no more bobtailed dog. Mr. Bowser set the cat in, but the howls continued; then he got down on hands and knees and said he was a hare, but that wouldn't work. He got out a book with pictures, sang "Rock-a-bye Baby" and whistled "Zoo-Dee Doodle," and after ten minutes' work thrown away he was greeted with that same fearful remark: "We want story!"

Thereupon Mr. Bowser, who had wadded his collar and busted the straps on his vest with his exertions, sat down and began: "There was once a bear. He went around looking for boys who cried. [Howls of fear from the boy.] No, I mean he went around looking for girls on roller skates. This bear lived in the woods, and he was not afraid of either man or grizzly. Whenever he caught a boy— [Howls.] I mean, whenever he caught a girl, he would carry her off to his den and eat her up at two mouthfuls. In one year that bear ate up 10,000 girls. One day when there were no girls about and he was very hungry he thought he would eat a boy. [Awful howls.] Hold on, now! I'm going to tell you how the boy killed the bear. You see—" room, but he added kicks to his howls. He was carried up stairs and down stairs, but he would not be quiet. There came half formed ideas of throwing him out of a back window or clucking him into the coal bin, but he was at length returned to the lounge.

Then Mr. Bowser swore about 40 swear words to himself and began: "You know that a boy should always mind what his father and mother tell him. [Howls cease.] If he doesn't, that he is a bad boy and something will happen to him. I once knew a boy whose name was Sammy. He was about as old as you are and about as mean. One day he wanted to throw the clock out of the window, but his mother said: 'Sammy, don't do that. If you do, a wolf will come and eat you up.' What did that boy do? He waited until his mother went down to the store, and then he threw the clock out. He didn't believe that a wolf would come, but that same afternoon, when he was playing in the back yard, a great big wolf, with eyes as big as saucers, and a tail ten feet long, jumped over the back fence and growled and growled, and the boy yelled for his mother, and the wolf showed his teeth and—well, that's all."

But it wasn't. That wolf either ate that boy up or he didn't, and the youngster on the lounge wanted to know. He began howling with redoubled vigor, and Mr. Bowser determined on his death. He wouldn't kill him in the house, but he would take him to the river and cast him in. He had just picked the howler up and got him under his arm, and the cat was looking on with great satisfaction, when the ladies returned and the murder was prevented.

"Woman," said Mr. Bowser after the mother of the child had departed with him in her arms, "the law will probably allow you alimony!"

"But what for?" she asked.
"Divorce," he hoarsely replied. "The limit has been reached. My lawyer will serve the papers on your lawyer tomorrow, and you can go home to your mother by the 10 o'clock train." M. QUAD.
