Five Barrels Of Maui Corn Found In Unique Cache

Long Search Reveals Contraband Liquor Hidden In An Improvised Underground Warehouse

Manuel Franco of Puuomalei was lodged in the Makawao jail last night and it was expected that he would be given a hearing this morning on charges of possessing liquor in violation of the national prohibition act.

Five barrels said to contain 52 gallons each of corn whiskey were seized on the premises of Franco yesterday afternoon by Prohibition Director E. C. S. Crabbe and federal agent James C. Moriama of Honolulu. The liquor was cached in the most difficult manner the officers have yet found in the territory, they assert.

Woman "Squeals"

A tip from some woman led the officers to make the search and the resultant seizure yesterday afternoon. After a search warrant had been procured at the Makawao court, Crabbe and Moriama proceeded to the Franco homestead. Franco was not to be found but the investigation began. Some time was spent in search until a spot, covered with earth, was found to emit a hollow sound when tapped with a stick of wood. The earth was thrown aside, revealing a trap door which, upon being raised gave entrance to a cellar about 12 feet square. In this cellar were the five barrels alleged to contain corn whiskey. A ladder had been erected beneath the trap door and Crabbe by using it lowered himself into the hole but a moment afterwards returned almost overcome by heat and the strong fumes of liquor, he says. Moriama then ventured down but like Crabbe shortly returned, declaring he did not want to go down again. A few more trips into the cellar by Crabbe however, brought forth a bottle of desired evidence and destroyed the remaining liquor.

A further search was made for the still used in manufacture but it was not successful. Franco was later found at Olinda and placed under arrest. He was then taken to the Makawao jail and his hearing set for this morning.

Escaped Murderess Had Aid Without Belief Of Police

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—The husband of Clara Phillips, known as the "hammer murderess," was found today. He said he knew nothing of his wife's escape from jail. He is being held in technical custody by the sheriff pending developments in the case. No trace had been found of Clara Phillips last night.

It is believed the woman escaped about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, about six hours before her absence from the cell was discovered. It is also believed that she was aided by several persons from the outside, clambered over the roofs and descended to the street where she entered a closed automobile.

Armament Bills Much Curtailed By U. S.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The ordinance bureau of the department of the navy announced that reports show that the Washington limitation of armament treaty has curtailed the navy ordinance production of this country in the 16 inch gun program the manufacture of depth bombs has been stopped entirely and torpedo manufacture curtailed.

It is expected that $39,000,000 of a total of $47,000,000 appropriated for 1922 will not be expended this year.

U. S. Army Inadequate Secretary Of War Reports To Congress

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The present authorized regular army strength of 12,000 officers and 125,000 men is "inadequate" for national safety, and further cuts would be "inexcusable," Secretary Weeks declared today in his annual report to Congress.

"We should seize the first opportunity to bring the regular army back to the proportions which are required," he wrote. "We can not ever again make the mistake of expecting good soldiers to rise overnight and good officers to be turned out in quantities in three months' periods."

"We are making progress, and any progress is good progress. This progress is, however, scant and not really enough. And further cuts would force us to lose what we have gained and would accordingly be inexcusable."

Proof Costs Blood

"It has taken time and money to build what we have. It has taken blood and money to prove that we have not, even now, what we need. We should when practicable add to what we have and attain to the progress called for in our defense program under the terms of the law."

Declaring the officer corps, "is really the backbone of our military system," Mr. Weeks said that security for the future must rest "upon the foundation of our leadership."

"I do not belittle the enlisted man as ours is the best in the world," he continued. "It is because I appreciate him that I emphasize the need for officers to give the soldiers his best opportunity to fight for his country and for his life."

"We must have officers sufficient to handle the great army of the United States. We have not these officers now."

"Our reserve officers are the first to complain that their present lack of training is causing them to lose the knowledge that they gained in the war. Where is there any training to come from? Only through the regular officers."

Can't Meet Necessities

"In my last annual report I stated that, with 18,000 officers authorized we would not have enough to do all that might profitably be done. Now I must state that we have absolutely not enough to do what is necessary to our safety as an organized state."

"I appreciate the urgency of our financial situation that prevents us from reaching our maximum requirements. I can not believe, however, that the importance of this need is fully recognized by all who do recognize the urgency of the financial problems."

"I earnestly advocate a reconstitution of our officer body to a minimum of 15,000 at the earliest date."

Mr. Weeks said he was confronted, like most of his predecessors, with the necessity of appearing "before a peace loving people to urge bluntly and earnestly the continued attention to their needs for defensive preparedness."

"My conclusions are not entirely welcome at this time, when people have been hoping that nations had learned to avoid conflicts of force," he continued. "My conclusions are, nevertheless, that we should continue to prepare for such conflicts."

"If it is unwelcome, it is no less true that Americans, like all other peoples, are subject to the law which punishes those nations who fail to prepare for defense, as well as those who fail to strive for peace."

Learn From Past Faults

"We are right to feel confident in our strength. But we shall never deserve and fulfill our destiny except through the study of our past faults and the painful eradication of defects. A true America must be not only proud of our unvarying successes, but also humbly aware that many of these successes were barely won, and that in all of our conflicts success came only after the sacrifice of many brave souls to our indulgence of the tendency to be unready."

Reverting to the present status of the military establishment, Mr. Weeks said that "under the stress of economy" every element of the Army's preparedness program "in any sense non-essential" had been eliminated and there remained "only the bare framework" of the machinery of defense created by the National Defense Act. "The present tendency towards cutting that framework makes it necessary," he said, "for me to warn that any additional cuts would endanger our safety, since the framework is already out to the point of uncertainty. Our people cannot afford future cuts which must be paid for by the blood of American citizens."

Enforced reductions of the past year, the War Secretary said, had resulted in "measurable delay" in up-building the national guard element of the three-in-one army plan.

"The numbers of the guard have been held down by the failure of federal funds and equipments and the training of units has been somewhat handicapped by the shortage of regular officers who were available and suitable as instructors," he said. "The states have proven most eager to do their share in development. The citizens have accepted the idea and supported the units loyally. The applicants for enlistment have been in excess of the needs. Nothing but finances stand between us and a complete realization of the objects of the (National Defense) Act. The actual amounts required are not great."

"Above all we are short in the development of air power. We have scarcely the present store of effective planes that we would need in an emergency nor the complete facilities for training the personnel that we shall need in war. The national regulation of air activities and the provision of a system of airways are matters which are essential to the development of air power."

"Some steps in the direction of at least providing an effective plan for our development of air power should be taken at once, and as our finances are improved, the actual building of the emergency stores."

"Finally, we should not slack in the training of our citizens in the simplest technique of war, the handling of America's weapon—the rifle—nor in the further development of this important weapon."

Time Not Yet Ripe To Cancel Allies' Debt

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

HONOLULU, Dec. 6.—Labor Commissioner Hywell Davies in a speech at the University Club last night said it is not time to cancel the debts of the Allies.

"I fear that Europe in its present state of mind, with the debt out of the way, might figure that it would have that much more to spend on armies."

"Fear is the dominant emotion in the world today. When Europe recovers from fear and and looks its economical problems in the face soberly, America might go far toward reducing the debt as an act of good business."

"Two possibilities confront the world. First, a breakdown of European credits and second a gradual return to the normal state of mind. England has gone further in that direction than has Europe."

Failure To Vote Will Not Prevent Service On Jury

Different Attitude Is Taken by Circuit Court And Number Of Eligibles Will Be Largely Increased

Exercise of the right of suffrage is not a requisite for eligibility for jury duty, is the view of Judge Case, reversing the attitude of the circuit court in this circuit. He considers that the jurors commission may draw from all persons who have the qualification for suffrage whether or no such persons voted at the last election.

Recent drawings of grand and petit jurors have been made from revised lists of those registered voters who cast their ballots at the last general election. After election the names of those who were registered and did not vote were stricken from the list and in that way the number of persons liable to be drawn was considerably reduced. Especially was that so this year when many persons did not vote at the general county election when only one name appeared on the ticket.

The law, Judge Case says, requires the commissioners to apportion the number of jurors to be drawn from each district to the proportionate number of voters at the last general election in that district to the number voting in the whole county.

Beyond that Judge Case does not see any necessity for referring to the list of voters except for convenience. There may be persons not registered and not voting who still have the "qualification to vote" which is the qualification for jury duty also. In this county there are a few hundred persons qualified to vote who did not do so. They are subject to draft on the jury as well as those who saw their duty as voters and performed that duty. After the last general county election there were several hundred more.

Jim Dole Is Pleased Mainland Prospects Pineapple Industry

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

HONOLULU, Dec. 5.—James Dole, president of the Hawaiian Pineapple Company, returned from the mainland on the Matsonia this morning after a stay of several months.

Speaking of pineapple prospects Dole said that they are exceptionally good as the apparent demand exceeds the present supply. The 1922 carry-over of mostly crushed and grated pines has been absorbed and dealers are asking for more. He considers advertising as mostly responsible for the excellent conditions.

The first concern of the company now will be the developing of Lanai and in such development it will seek a site for and build a wharf.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 6.—Child, the American representative, conferring with Ismet, head of the Turkish delegation to the conference, and discussed with him the subject of control of the Dardanelles.

Turkish delegates are reported to be much interested in the American attitude on the subject of the straits but no statement as to it has been made as yet by observers.

Marquis Curzon presented to a conference of the entente a plan to administer the Dardanelles under an international commission of control representing the great European powers and also including the United States, Turkey and countries bordering on the Black Sea.

It is understood that the attitude of the Turks is changing owing to a growing realization of the fact that if they have military control of the straits they must build a navy.

The Soviet delegates opposed the control plan and the conference adjourned to Friday to give the Turks time to study the subject.

Nine Millions For Prohibition Asked

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, appearing before the house appropriations subcommittee today declared that there is a crisis in the fight for the enforcement of prohibition and that $9,000,000 will be needed for enforcement in the next fiscal year. He said that if a similar amount shall be appropriated for the ensuing six years a reduction at the end of that time should be possible.

In the year ending June 30, last there were 20,483 convictions of violations of the prohibition law and 15,910 cases pending.

Japanese Course In Public School Now Considered

Governor Tells MacCaughy To Ascertain Number Of Teachers Required and Prepare Program for Inclusion

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

HONOLULU, Dec. 5.—Instruction in the Oriental languages, especially Japanese, in the government schools is Governor Farrington's solution of the Japanese language school problem. This is apparent from the fact that he has written to Superintendent of Public Instruction Vaughan MacCaughy to formulate a program for the inclusion of Oriental languages in the public school curriculum, estimate the number of teachers required to carry out such a program and the probable additional cost. The work of preparation of the required data was started by the department of public instruction today.

Governor Farrington, speaking of the subject today said in explanation of his inquiries: "My thought is to find out what is necessary to place the Oriental languages here practically on the same basis as the European languages are in the schools of the mainland. This will eventually be done because persons in business here have the same need for knowledge of the Oriental tongues that persons in business in the Eastern States and along the Mexican border have of French and Spanish."

From the time the Japanese language school problem was precipitated into the legislature by Representative Lorrin Andrews introducing a measure for the control of foreign language schools the introduction of a course of Japanese in the public schools has been advocated by a steadily increasing number of persons. The objection raised to it has been the question of cost when the expenses of maintaining the schools was mounting steadily. It has been suggested that the Japanese language might be made an optional course and a small tuition fee charged as the Japanese would not then have to maintain language schools as they are now doing.

It is urged that in the way proposed only the Japanese language and not Japanese ethics would be taught.

Howell Suggested As Member Land Board If Maui Gives Approval

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

HONOLULU, Dec. 5.—Governor Farrington contemplates naming Hugh Howell, formerly of Maui, as member of the Land Commission and will make the appointment if it has the approval of the Maui County Republican Committee. Howell's name was one of 11 presented to the Republican Territorial Central Committee by the Governor for approval before appointment.

The Governor and the Maui County Republican Committee have been at outs for nearly a year on the appointment to the land board. His selection was not satisfactory to the committee and approval was refused. He made a second effort to bring the committee to his way of thinking and the committee countered by the suggestion that a Hawaiian should be appointed. That proposal evidently did not suit Governor Farrington and the matter has just rested for several months.

GOVERNOR HEADS RIGHT

In his comparatively short administration Governor Farrington has shown generally an attitude in seeing the proper course as well as the desire to do the right thing. One of the most serious problems he has had to meet has been and is the foreign language schools but he is shown by the Associated Press dispatch on that subject published today to be bent upon heading the ship in the right direction, straight from dangerous rocks and reefs.

The Governor's instructions to Superintendent MacCaughy to formulate a curriculum for the teaching of Oriental languages in the public schools, to estimate the number of teachers required and what the cost would be shows that he sees the one and only solution to the language school imbroglio.

Rightly the Governor says that the Oriental languages here hold the same position as do some of the European languages in the Eastern States and there is the same need of knowledge of Oriental languages here in business as in the business world of the Atlantic States there is for Spanish, French and perhaps German. He might have gone further and said here the need is greater.

On several occasions Maui News has advocated in its editorial columns the teaching of Japanese in the public schools as an optional course and has said that if a knowledge of Japanese is useful to the person of Japanese parentage here it is equally useful in business to the person of other parentage. The dispatch indicates that this is the view of Governor Farrington. Under his tentative plan not only would the language school problem be solved once and for all but the children of other nationalities would benefit with the Japanese. It would open a field of usefulness to American born Japanese as teachers and with such teachers on the public teaching staff there would no longer be ground for the criticism of teaching Japanese ethics as well as the Japanese tongue which is now charged against the language schools with their imported teachers.

In meeting the additional cost that would be entailed by such a plan it might be possible to make a charge for instruction in the optional courses. The Japanese would no longer have to support their language schools and could pay a part of what they now spend for such schools in having their children taught Japanese in the public schools while parents other than Japanese who desired their children to gain the advantage of acquiring that language might well be willing to pay therefore.

At the outset of the agitation against the Japanese schools the editor of this paper, then in Honolulu, advocated editorially the abolition of language schools and the adding of that language to the public school curriculum as optional with pupils.

DIRECT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS

Sweeping in intent and of grave importance is the Caraway resolution for a constitutional amendment for the election of the President by direct vote which was reported out from committee favorably in the Senate yesterday. So far as the proposed change in the date of inauguration of the President goes and for the taking of office by members of congress in January instead of March, there is much to recommend the proposal but the direct election of the President is a turning away from the path that was pointed out by the fathers of the country who in their wisdom planned even better than they knew, as results have shown.

When the union of states was formed direct representation was given in the legislative branch in one house, the house of representatives. But the states were jealous of their integrity and their rights and so the other house of the legislative branch was designed to represent those states. In that way in the senate the small state had an equal voice with the large one. Today, sparsely settled Nevada has the same representation in the senate as California and Rhode Island, now as then, the same senatorial representation as New York.

So with the election of the President, the smaller states did not want to have their voice entirely stifled by the more populous ones and at first congress, the people, as represented in the house and the states as represented in the senate, elected the President. Then the electoral system was evolved under which a strength based upon its population was given to each state, the voters expressed their choice for the party candidates and the states voted proportionately to their ratio in the total population.

New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois can and do roll up majorities far greater than the entire voting strength of the less populous states. The sentiment in Rhode Island or Connecticut would be entirely nullified by such majorities as New York returns. The majority Texas gives the Democratic candidates usually is entirely out of proportion to its ratio of population to that of the whole country and it was to balance just such conditions that the electoral college was devised.

But what the proposal would lead too is still more dangerous to safe and sane government than appears on the surface. The next move would be for Presidential primary elections. Direct primary elections have not worked out in the counties, cities and states with such a degree of success as to warrant their introduction into national elections. With direct presidential primaries the last reason for national parties would be removed. Personal popularity would then be at a premium over quiet ability and the capacity to govern. The wise statesman would have but little chance for the nomination over the rhetorical demagog.

Marvelous progress has been made by the United States under the form of government established by the pioneers in self government and such modern "reformers" as LaFollette and his like hardly compare in ability with that shown by the nation's leaders of the first two or three decades of national history.

Greece in the midst of her troubles from the Asia Minor debacle gets into worse trouble shooting those believed responsible for it. True enough, troubles never come singly and one leads to another.

No. 39—Early American "Turned" Tables

All through the seventeenth century and, indeed, for some time afterward, great number of small tables of a certain general type, with turned legs, were made for all manner of different purposes. In shape the tops were rectangular, round or oval, and might either project but a little beyond the underframing, to which they were firmly attached, or else they might be provided with drop leaves. Sometimes drawers, one or more in number, were set within the underframing; then, again, a great many were made without drawers. Besides having turned legs, tables of this sort almost invariably had the legs firmly braced with stretchers, which were also usually turned, in a manner corresponding with the legs.

WHAT IS IT?

DO YOU KNOW—Who composed the opera "Faust"? Why do birds sleep with their heads under their wings? What name is given to the Emperor of Japan? When is a person said to be "fickle"? Where are the fangs of a snake?

Answers To Yesterday's Queries Catharine the Great is the name applied to Catharine II, Empress of Russia from 1762 to 1796. Florida takes its name from the Spanish "Pascua Florida", Feast of Palms or Palm Sunday, on which day it is said to have been named by Ponce de Leon. A penguin is a web-footed bird of the Southern Hemisphere, with flipper-like wings. A blue flag is displayed by the Weather Bureau as sign of rain or snow. President Roosevelt was born in New York City.

Answers To Yesterday's Queries

Washington bought Judge from Buffalo in 1915. S. L. Foster holds the record for "push-ups" on the parallel bars—58 times without a swing. The amateur record for the 220-yard run is 3.5 second faster than the professional. There are 2,598,960 possible poker hands in a deck of cards. Harry Wills was born in New Orleans in 1892.

The Daily Fun Hour

PUZZLEWIT

This is a Flemish variation of the old game—How, When and Where. One of the players selected to be Puzzlewit must leave the room while the others agree upon a word-while having more than one meaning or such as cap, pike, pole, rein-rain-reign, hymn-him, etc. Suppose the word "line" has been chosen. Puzzlewit is recalled and goes around the circle asking questions in the how-when-where manner, one guess to each player. "How do you like it?" Player 1, with a life-line in mind, answers, "I like it unbreakable." Then player 2, who is asked, "When do you like it?" thinking of a letter, may say "At breakfast time," and No. 3, when asked, "Where do you like it?" with his thoughts on a line of type, may reply, "In a song" or "On a screen." So it goes all around the circle, each one answering a how, when or where question in reference to the various meanings of "line," such as a cord, a fishing line, a clothes line, a musical line, a profession etching or engraving, a line spoken on the stage, an architectural skyline, a steamship or railroad line, etc.

If Puzzlewit had not guessed the secret word by the time he has completed the round of the circle he is allowed the privilege of trying again with negative questions, such as "How don't you like it?" "When don't you like it?" and "Where don't you like it?" These are more revealing as when a player who has clothes line in mind answers the query. "Where don't you like it?" with "Around my neck." The player whose answer gives the clue becomes the next Puzzlewit when a word is chosen.

Warsaw And Sierak Score Huge Success

Warsaw and Sierak opened their week's engagement in the Maui theaters last night at the Wailuku Hippodrome and were attributed an ovation that heralds the success of their act throughout the entire circuit. A return engagement has been arranged for the Wailuku theater on Friday night.

The program opened with a series of the latest song and dance numbers and repeated calls were made for encores. Professor Sierak's mystery act "Destroying a Woman" surpasses even the "Sawing a Woman in Half," as done here some time ago by The Great Jansen. Professor Sierak challenges a committee from the audience to tie the girl around the feet, neck and wrists and to seal the knots if desired. The lid is placed in position and locked and blades and swords pass through the box at all angles cutting it into eight small pieces. The lid is then unlocked and out steps the girl, quite unharmed. How is it done? That is what the audience asked last night.

Warsaw and Sierak will play to-night at the Puunene theater.

Constitution Of Ireland Becomes Operative Today

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)
 DUBLIN, Dec. 6.—Ireland became a free State last midnight and today the provisional government has ceased to function and the new government is in charge.

The following digest of the constitution under which the Free State is operating is furnished by the Associated Press.

A summary of the outstanding articles of the constitution follows:
 Article 1. The Irish Free State is a coequal member of the community of nations forming the British Commonwealth of nations.

Article 2. All the powers of the government and all authority, legislative, executive and judicial, are derived from the people and the same shall be exercised in the Irish Free State through organizations established by or under, and in accord with, this constitution.

Article 3. Citizens of the state shall be all persons domiciled in Ireland at the time the constitution comes into operation who were born in Ireland or either of whose parents was born in Ireland, or who have been domiciled in the Free State for seven years.

Article 4. The national language will be the Irish language, but English will be equally recognized as the official language.

Article 5. Liberty of persons by a process similar to a habeas corpus writ.

Article 6. Dwelling is inviolable; there cannot be forcibly entered except in accordance with the law.

Article 7. Freedom of conscience and the free profession and practice of religion are inviolable rights of every citizen.

Article 8. The right of free expression of opinion and assembly without arms and the formation of associations not opposed to public morality.

Article 9. Provides that all citizens shall have the right to free elementary education.

Article 10. The legislature hereby created, known as the Parliament of the Irish Free State, is to consist of the King, a Chamber of Deputies and a Senate.

Article 11. Confers the right of suffrage on all citizens of the age of 21 of both sexes. All those of the age of 30 may vote for the Senate; those of the age of 21 for the deputies.

Article 12. Providing for the oath of allegiance, says: "I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the Constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established and that I will be faithful to His Majesty King George V. and his heirs and successors by law and in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland and Great Britain and her adherence to and membership of the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of nations."
 The oath shall be taken and subscribed to by every member of parliament of the Irish Free State before taking his seat therein.

Article 13. The number of members of the Chamber shall be fixed from time to time by the Parliament, but shall consist of not less than one member for each 30,000, or 20,000, to be elected on the principles of proportional representation. Every university in the free state shall be entitled to four representatives in the chamber.

Article 14. The Senate shall be composed of citizens who have done honor to the nation by reason of useful public service, or who because of special qualifications or attainments represent important aspects of the nation's life.

Article 15. The number of Senators shall be fifty-six. The Senators must be 35 years of age, the term of office is twelve years, subject to the provisions for the constitution of the first Senate.

Article 16. Provides for the election of Senators every three years.

Article 17. Article 18 and Article 19 cover money bills. It is provided that the chamber shall have legislative authority relative to money bills, exclusive of the Senate, but money cannot be appropriated unless the purpose of the appropriation is recommended by a message from the representative of the crown.

Article 20 covers the withholding of royal assent. The representative of the crown in withholding assent to a bill must act in accordance with the usage in the case of the dominion of Canada. Bills shall be without force unless royal assent is given them within a year.

Article 21. The Parliament of the Irish Free State has exclusive right to regulate the raising and maintenance of such armed forces as are mentioned in the Anglo-Irish treaty, and such forces shall be subject to the control of the Parliament.

Article 22. A bill passed by both Houses may be suspended for ninety days on the written demand of two-fifths of the chamber or a majority of the Senate within seven days of its passage. Such bill shall be submitted to a referendum of the people, if demanded, within ninety days.

Article 23. The Parliament may provide for the initiation by the people of proposals for laws of constitutional amendments, such legislation must provide that the proposals be initiated on petition of 50,000 voters. If the Parliament rejects such a proposal it must be submitted to an ordinary referendum for decision.

Article 24. Provides that "except in case of actual invasion the Irish Free State shall not be committed to active participation in any war without the assent of the Free State Parliament."

Article 25. Amendments to the Constitution must be submitted to a referendum.

Article 26. The executive authority of the Free State is vested in the King, exercisable as in the Dominion of Canada by a representative of the crown. There will be a council to aid and advise in the government, styled the Executive Council, responsible to the Chamber.

Article 27. Provides that the Council shall prepare an annual government budget.

Article 28. The courts shall compose courts of first instance and of final appeal, termed the Supreme Court, and also courts of local limited jurisdiction.

Article 29. Provides that all judges, including those on the Supreme Court shall be appointed by the representative of the crown on the advice of the Executive Council.

Article 30. The jurisdiction of courts martial shall not be extended to or exercised over the civil population save in time of war and for acts committed in time of war.

Article 31. After the constitution comes into operation the House of Parliament elected in pursuance of the Free State agreement act may for one year exercise all the powers conferred by the constitution on the Chamber. The first election for the Chamber shall be as soon as possible after the expiration of such period.

CUBAN POLITICS HUMOROUS

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 6.—(By Associated Press Mail).—Credit is given President Alfredo Zayas for the only humorous sidelight that has marked the recent reform upheaval in the Cuban administration, in which the disposal of public funds has figured to a considerable degree.

Asked by a personal friend how he replied to certain pertinent questions regarding Cuban affairs asked by the special American representative, Major General E. H. Crowder, the president is quoted as saying: "Oh, I have adopted the principle embodied in the XYZ Method of teaching languages." Pressed for further explanation, he
