Paper By Rice At Civic Convention Brings Action

Delegates Criticise Executive Of Territorial Commission And Resolve For Territorial Fair 1924

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)
HONOLULU, Dec. 8—Senator Harold Rice's paper on "Territorial and County Fairs" which was read to the Civic Convention today was received with interest and created somewhat of a sensation since it roused a considerable amount of discussion and criticism was voiced by some of the delegates of R. M. Schofield, executive officer of the Territorial Fair Commission, for alleged failure to keep members of the commission from the outside Islands informed of the activities of the commission.
Dr. H. B. Elliott of Hilo in the discussion which followed the reading of Harold Rice's paper, said that he was appointed a member of the commission two years ago but had never received any notices of any meetings, that he doesn't know what is going on nor even whether he is still a member of the commission. Governor Farrington arose and said the speaker was still a member.

J. C. Plankington, also of Hilo, said he believed the commission is remiss and asked whether it is "a one man job."
Chairman Cooke strongly endorsed both Territorial and County Fairs and especially commended Maui County on its success in conducting five fairs in the past six years.
A resolution was passed favoring the holding of a Territorial Fair in Honolulu in 1924.

Tax Burdens Heavy
At the opening of the morning session the question of "Taxes and Taxation" was presented by F. D. Lowrey of the finance committee of the house of representatives.
The speaker reviewed the growth of governmental expenses and taxes since 1915 and advocated a revision of the present tax laws.

Lowrey said that Hawaii's bonded debt is $69 per capita, which is more than any but one state in the Union, and compared it with the average per capita bonded debt of the states, $10.18 for all the states of the Union. Only one state, North Dakota, exceeds Hawaii in its per capita debt and only one other, Oregon, approaches it. "When we see a sign as plain as this, we may well pause," he added.

Will Mount Higher
Lowrey then called attention to some of the requests for appropriations that will be made to the legislature at its next session and specifically referred to the school budget of $9,500,000 for the next biennial period. He said that such an appropriation would mean a tax for school purposes only of two percent.

The speaker compared a tax rate of $1.10 in 1912 with a rate of 2.89 this year and inquired where it was to end.
After Lowrey had finished, Superintendent Vaughan MacCaughy remarked that the "crop of school children continued to come in year after year without regard to war, famine or acts of providence."
Before adjourning the convention adopted the resolution endorsing the aims and results of the Tourist Bureau and petitioning the legislature to appropriate $100,000 for its work, favored parks and playgrounds in all thickly settled communities, recommended to consideration of the legislature harbor improvements for Molokai, endorsed agricultural education in correlation with industry, requested the federal government to extend any surveys of Hawaiian waters to Kingman Reef, recommended continued support for the Hawaii publicity bureau, pledged assistance to the federal labor commission, approved the hibiscus as the official flower of the Territory, endorsed the efforts being made to obtain federal aid for education, welfare work and highways and created an executive council of which the governor is to appoint one member and six organizations, including the Maui Chamber of Commerce one each to select officers, carry out the wishes of the convention and select the next meeting place.
The resolution favoring a change for tuition in high schools and the university was tabled.

Australia Reports Great Crime Wave
SYDNEY, N. S. W.—(By A. P. Mail)—Australia in general and Sydney in particular have been suffering recently from a crime wave almost unprecedented in point of violence.
A Hornsby bank manager was battered to death in a Sydney suburban train recently for the sake of the bank keys in his possession, and this crime was followed by the discovery of a partially-naked, murdered man in Centennial park, one of Sydney's principal air-spaces. The police have made one arrest in the latter case, but have been unable to discover a motive.
Through the accident of a brawl among underworld characters, another brutal murder was discovered after the victim's body had been buried in a much frequented public park near Sydney for nearly two years. The victim was a young woman who disappeared from home and caused great concern. Sensational developments are expected from an arrest that has been made.
The Cabinet, in an endeavor to stop the series of crimes, has provided for the jailing of men found with firearms without a license.
In Melbourne there seems to be a revival of the famous Fitzroy "vendetta" of a year ago, when members of the underworld were shooting "each other promiscuously in the main streets of the city. The latest victim is the famous "Squidzy" Taylor, who achieved notoriety for the manner in which, after absconding from bail, he evaded the police for a year and then, when he was ready, gave himself up.
Tasmania's share in the wave has been a triple murder.
It has been suggested that the introduction of flogging may be the only remedy for the prevalence of crime.

Alumni And Chinese Win At Basketball
One of the best crowds of basketball fans that has turned out in Wailuku witnessed the Alumni Alerts, under Brother Stephen, hand a 51 to 9 drubbing to the Pals at the Wailuku Gym last night.
The Alerts' superior basket shooting was responsible for the overwhelming score. The Pals played a good game, better than the score would indicate, but were woefully weak at shooting. The first half ended with the score at 25 to 9. In the second period the Alumni rolled up another 26 counters and held the Pals scoreless.
The stars of the game for the Alumni were Hangal, Sequeira and Kahoohanohano. For the Pals, H. Ah Chee and Hebert were the point makers.

Chinese Win Second
The second game of the double-header went to the Chinese-Americans over the Asahi quintet to the tune of 21-16. The game was a neck and neck race up to the last few minutes of play. Both teams are showing great development over the first games last week. Paul Low, Benny Dorego and Wilmington were the shining lights for the victors. Kahn, Fujimoto and Nakano played a good game for the Asahi team.

Supervisors For Kailua-Keanae Road To Hana

Proposal To Take Southside
Of Mountain For Road To Hana District Meets With Strong Opposition

It was a cool reception that members of the board of supervisors accorded the proposal that they consider the advisability of a route for the road to Hana on the Kahikinui side of Haleakala and they clearly indicated there is small likelihood of a change in belt road project.
Members of the committee from the Chamber of Commerce and the secretary of the Chamber appeared before the supervisors and presented the proposal made at the Thursday meeting of the Chamber. V. L. Stevenson spoke first and later in the meeting Frank Sommerfeld. The secretary gave the wording of the motion under which a committee was appointed and a digest of what had been said in support of the motion.
Supervisor Fleming said that if those who now advocate the Kahikinui route are right "there must have been a lot of fools a few years ago when the Kailua route was decided upon." He stressed the point that 10 or a dozen bridges have been put in through loan fund monies between Kailua and Keanae. That expenditure, he says, will reduce the further cost for the completion of the road.
Fleming and other members of the board also spoke of the Kahikinui route traversing a dry country which would not be made more valuable by opening up. Some members also called attention to the fact that even if the Kahikinui route should be taken it would still be necessary to put a paved road through to Kailua as all that country may be expected to be set to pines within a very few years if passable roads be furnished.
The County Engineer said it would take several months to enable him to give definite figures as to the cost of a road on the South side of the mountain as he would have to figure costs of bridges and grading while he could give figures from former estimates as to the Kailua-Keanae route. Some six months had been spent on the work when such figures were compiled.

TAXES GROW EXCESSIVE

In his address on taxation yesterday before the Civic Convention on the subject of taxes and taxation E. D. Lowrey gave his hearers food for reflection and sounded a warning that should go around the Territory when he compared the tax rate of this year with that of ten years ago and indicated what may be expected if matters are permitted to drift on as they have gone.

So far as the per capita bonded debt is concerned Mr. Lowrey's comparisons between Hawaii and the Mainland States are somewhat misleading. His figures as to the per capita debt in Hawaii being $69 are correct but the Associated Press dispatch does not indicate that he explained certain phases of the apparently small per capita debt of the states.

In most of the states, there are issued not only state bonds but county bonds as well and the per capita debt of the states does not reflect the per capita debt of the counties. Add county debts to state debts and the per capita would be much larger. Here in Hawaii there are no county bonds and so such indebtedness is all included in the figures for the Territory.

But the speaker reviewed the growth of governmental expenses and taxes since 1915 and compared the tax rate of 1.10 in 1912 with 2.89 in 1922, an increase of 1710 percent in ten years. Then he went further and showed what intended requests for legislative appropriations for the next biennial period will mean and showed that to raise the proposed nine and a half million dollars for schools proposed in the school budget would mean a tax of two percent for school purposes alone.

Such an increase in taxes would not affect the coming year but at that the taxes of 1923 will undoubtedly be higher than those of 1922. The Maui County Auditor said yesterday afternoon that he will not be surprised if the rate next year be 3.50. It will have to be based on this year's assessed valuation which is between 38 and 39 millions instead of more than 41 millions as in 1921. The year's assessed valuation upon which the 1923 taxes will be based will be somewhat larger. Under the law the rate is fixed on the assessed valuation of the preceding year and the taxes collected on the valuation for the current year so that there will not be the shortage in tax monies next year there has been this. There are certain fixed charges that have to be met and it is necessary to figure a rate on the valuation of the preceding year that will produce that sum. If it produces more, all right, but it must produce at least the amount required.

After taxes pass a certain limit they discourage investment in real estate and home ownership. A family invests its capital in a home and borrows half the needed money for the purchase. On that loan at least 8 percent must be paid, the loan is half the value of the property and so the interest paid on the whole is 4 percent. Add three and one half percent for taxes and then the amount paid for insurance and for repairs and it can be seen that the cost of ownership is not less than 10 percent with nothing allowed for depreciation fund.

This is the state of affairs that Hawaii must face and meet. Mr. Lowrey asked: "Can we continue to increase?" and it is a question every tax payer may well propound to himself. What the remedy is must be determined but it is certain there must be curtailment in some direction. Educational affairs are of primary importance but the home owner and the business man and salaried man cannot afford to pay a two percent tax for maintenance of the schools in addition to assisting in maintaining other branches of the government and paying a federal income tax.

HARDING FOR ENFORCEMENT

To those who have been hoping that President Harding would advocate legislation for light wines and beers the news of his message to congress in yesterday's dispatches must have been a sorry disappointment. He is quoted as saying that there is no apparent chance of a repeal of the prohibition amendment in the future, that he will call the governors of the states together with federal officials for cooperation in law enforcement and that he favors enforcement of the law with vigor. Not much encouragement for the "wets" there.

Harding might have gone further and said that there is little likelihood of legislation that is less drastic than the Volstead Act. As this paper has said before such legislation could hardly be expected to pass a senate where more than half of the members are from states that were dry before the amendment was adopted. It may be that the sentiment of a majority of the people of the country is for some mitigation of the law as the Literary Digest poll indicated, but neither that poll nor any other figures have shown that a majority of the states are other than for a strict enforcement of the dry measure.

Any hope then of legislation that will permit beverages with a small percent of alcohol to be manufactured and sold is idle and generally the wish is father to thought when it is insisted that there will be a swinging in that direction.

Proposal to run the road to Hana around the Kahikini way has not met with any encouragement from members of the board of supervisors. They have long planned the Kailua route and it would take strong reasons to swing them away from it.

General Wood shows himself the highest type of American as he puts aside his personal inclinations and bows before the call of his country. It is that attitude that has won him millions of friends in this country.

Kahului (Rosehol Troop)

"Kahului, Dec. 5.
 "Dear Miss Seibert:
 "The regular meeting of the Roseholi troop was held as usual in the Community House on Wednesday afternoon instead of Thursday, at four o'clock. Fifteen girls responded to the roll call. Business about the beach party for the Boy Scouts was discussed and finally we made arrangements to have it at Mrs. Wicke's on Friday at two o'clock.
 "For refreshments we planned to have cakes, punch and sandwiches. After a long discussion the meeting was adjourned.
 "On Friday afternoon at two o'clock the boys began to appear. Twelve boys were present at the party. Some of the girls entertained the boys by playing baseball while Puna, Mrs. Wicke and Mary Luke busied themselves in the making of the punch.
 "When the punch and everything was ready they came out and played ball with us. After the ball game we danced. At half past three we ate. The cakes, sandwiches and punch was delicious.
 "When we got through eating we spent most of our time in dancing. The music was played by Mrs. Wicke and Emma Brown. Each took a chance in playing the piano. At five o'clock the guests departed from Mrs. Wicke's home.
 "The party was enjoyed by all that were present and hope to have another one later.
 "Your loving scout
 "ANNIE BISSEN."

Wailuku (Lehua Troop)

"A successful meeting of the Lehua Troop was held at the Girls' Home.
 "At first we had our opening exercise which was conducted by the patrol leader. Then we had our business meeting in which we talked about making signalling flags, and songs. Some of the girls had made their songs. We thank Mr. Kan very much for his kindness in making the poles for us. After this Miss Lacey demonstrated to us about child nursing. First we had bathing a baby. All the girls are very much interested in this work. We thank Miss Lacey very much.
 "We had our closing exercise as usual and all went home happily.
 "We, the girls of Lehua Troop were invited to a beach party by the Carnation Troop on Thursday afternoon. We started about 1 o'clock. When we reached there we were heartily welcomed by them. We played games in the beach house. On account of the rain and as the sea was rough we were not able to swim, but we enjoyed the indoor games very much.
 "After refreshments were served we played a little and started for home.
 "We thank the Carnation girls very much and hope we can repay their kindness sometime in the future.
 "TSUNEYO KURIO."

through the arches thus formed until he is back in his original place. Immediately Player No. 2 leaves the circle and begins to "weave" in and out until he, too, is back in position. When Player No. 3 begins to make the round. So it goes until the last player has danced to his place.
Meanwhile the players in the other circle are going through the same weaving dance. The circle finishing first sings out, "Warpo Webbo!" and scores one point. Then the weaving dance begins again, and so on until all the players of both circles have danced in and out three times. The circle first finishing two out of three rounds wins the game.
While the players who are doing the "weaving" dance in and out, the others chant the old weaving rhyme: Weave the web, tickle tick, Weave the warp a-riek! Weave the cloth all smooth and thick. Come this way and that way, Weave loop way and mat way. Up and down, inside out, Forward, backward, round about, Weave the warp a-riek.

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES
The Magic Fairy Cap
By ARTHUR W. STACE
Copyright 1921, by Public Ledger Co.

Jack and Janet, who have won magic fairy caps by rescuing Flitter-Flush, the fairy prince, from Black Dragon and Hairy Ogre, lose the caps, but regain them as a reward for saving the nest of Cocky and Merry Robin from Black Tom, the cat. They see a funny, hopping, red-vested fat man and fat woman, and while laughing at them are arrested by two queer-looking policemen.

CHAPTER II
Carried to Court
Jack and Janet were arrested. They looked in dismay at the two blue-coated policemen who stood beside them, alert and severe. The policemen were unlike any policemen Jack and Janet had ever seen. They were tall and stiff. They wore smart blue caps trimmed with black and white. They had gray vests and white bloomers. Their lower legs and long toes seemed to be painted black. On their heads they wore knightly crests of blue. Their faces were human, but their noses were very long and black, while their dark brown eyes were very large. They didn't appear to have any mouths at all.
"We haven't done anything wrong," stammered Jack. "Why are you arresting us?"

They looked in dismay at the two blue-coated policemen
"Say! Say! Say! Didn't you laugh at two forest folks?" demanded one of the policemen. And as the policeman spoke Jack and Janet noted one very odd thing about him—what they had thought was his nose wasn't his nose at all; it was his mouth, with the nose set away back on top of it.
"Say! Say! Say! Didn't you laugh and giggle?" repeated the policeman, for Jack and Janet had been staring at him in such surprise they had neglected to answer.
"Y-y-yes, sir," answered Jack. Then, as he remembered how odd the fat little man and the fat little woman had looked hopping away with their jerky stiff-legged hops, he laughed again.

"There!" screamed the policeman in a harsh voice. "That is why we have arrested you."
"But they really were very, very funny," giggled Janet.
"Say! Say! Say! Tell that to the judge!" screamed the policeman.
"Yea! Yea! Yea! and tell him how you come to be wearing magic fairy caps!" screamed the other policeman. Then both the policemen raised their voices in loud shrieks: "Hey! Hey! Hey! We want the patrol wagon to carry two prisoners to court." The two policemen, one beside Jack and one beside Janet, stood very primly, and cast an eye on the sky as if expecting the patrol wagon to come from that direction. Jack and Janet felt a thrill running through them. They didn't want to go to court, but it certainly would be exciting to have a ride in a patrol wagon. They listened intently. They expected to hear the loud clank of its gong.
"Haw! Haw! Haw!" laughed a coarse voice behind them. "Haw! Haw! Haw! Here I am! Here is the patrol wagon!"
Jack and Janet whirled around. There stood a big black chap grinning at them. But he was an ordinary black man. He, too, was one of the queer people. He was dressed all in black, his face was black, and he had a long black mouth.
"Say! Say! Say! Get on the patrol wagon!" screamed the policeman at Jack and Janet. One policeman opened his mouth and seized Jack by the trousers. He tossed Jack on the back of the queer black chap. The other policeman grasped Janet by the dress and threw her up beside Jack. When the policemen did this Jack and Janet noticed for the first time that they had no hands. And neither did the queer black chap have hands. But all three of them had something else—they had wings. And now they spread these wings and rushed upward like airplanes taking flight.
"Haw! Haw! Haw!" laughed the big black chap. "Look out for the patrol wagon!"
"Say! Say! Say!" screamed the policemen. "Here we come with two prisoners."

They soared over the woods, and after a time they dove downward into a sunny opening among the trees. Jack and Janet peered anxiously below, expecting to see a jail or a police court.
They did, indeed, see a court, but it was not a police court. It was the beautiful court of the Fairy King.
(Monday will be told how they meet the Fairy King and find themselves on trial.)

No. 42—Late Stuart "Turned" Chairs

In the second half of the seventeenth century, especially right after the Restoration of Charles II in 1660, it became the fashion to make the chair frames much lighter than they had been before. The "turned" chair, which in a way corresponded with the "turned" table in point of time and general style, was one of the lighter types that came into vogue in both England and America.
Its lines were somewhat like those of the earlier "leather" chair, but the upper part of the back, instead of being upholstered, had a number of turned spindles. Not only were the front legs and front stretcher turned, but also the other stretchers and the back legs as well. Likewise the back posts (the two uprights supporting the back) were turned and the two rails into which the upright spindles were fastened were graced with the same sort of executed ornament. The seat was either upholstered or filled with cane. These chairs were made of oak, walnut or other woods. After the middle of the seventeenth century walnut was used to a greater extent than previously.
The reproductions of these chairs are desirable for dining rooms or as side chairs in living rooms or libraries. They may also very properly be used in bedrooms.

For Lahaina Cemetery.—Surveys of the proposed land exchange for a new Lahaina cemetery are in the county engineer's office and maps and descriptions have been sent to Land Agent Bailey.

Paia Road Paving.—County Engineer Low informed the board of supervisors that he and overseer Bal have made their plans to start paving the Paia road toward McGregor's about the first of the year.

Fleming Tract Addition.—David T. Fleming has secured about 17 acres of land adjacent to the Fleming Tract on the hills between Wailuku and Kahului and purposes to subdivide into home lots and put them on the market.

Poi Contract Let.—Frank Sommerfeld will furnish poi for the jail and for Malulu Hospital. His bid, opened yesterday, was two and a quarter cents a pound. There were two other bidders, one for three and four tenths cents and the other for four cents.

Gets Meat Contract.—Wong You gets the contract for furnishing meat to the county for the hospital and for jail prisoners. His bid for choice cuts of beef was 32 cents, for stew beef 15 and for pork 25. The other board of supervisors for three street cuts, 17 1/2 stew meat and 45 cents for pork.

Wants Explanation.—Supervisor Fleming asked yesterday that a claim of $74 from the janitor fund of the high school be not paid at present and that Principal Judd be asked to explain who are the several persons named in the claim for various amounts and what services each of them performed.

Want Road Repair.—Residents along the road to the Mormon chapel out of Wailuku petitioned the board of supervisors for road repair. Members of the board who investigated said the road was washed by overflowing flames and the county engineer was told to take the subject up with Wailuku Sugar Company and the engineer and overseer authorized to make necessary repairs.

Wants Homestead Road.—Senator-elect Goodness yesterday asked the board of supervisors to have a survey of costs made for a road for the Keokea-Waihole homesteaders that he may secure an appropriation therefor through the legislature. He said that the homesteaders had been on the land more than 10 years and the land board taken no steps to give them the road they are entitled to.

Wailuku Street Sweeping.—There were eight tenders for the sweeping of Wailuku's streets presented to the board of supervisors when bids were opened yesterday, several of them lower than had been expected. The award was made to Sam Keala for $62 a month, he being $7 lower than the next lower bidder. Tenders were as high as $139.

More Time Refused.—E. C. Mellor's request from an extension of 15 days in the time to finish Puunene School was refused yesterday. The work to be done by December 15, and contractor Mellor said it would take until the 30th. The board held it would establish a precedent by granting the request and cited instances in the past where requests for extension were refused.

For Game Propagation.—The county has appropriated $500 for game propagation to be spent in support of the breeding park on Oahu from which young birds will be sent here. E. R. Bevin, secretary of the Gun Club, advocated it in a letter in which he enclosed one from H. L. Kelly of the Board of Agriculture and Forestry. There is needed $2000 for the year and Maui County's share was the $500 appropriated.
