Paia Wins Maui Gridiron Title In Hard Battle

Field Goal by Coleman in Last Minutes of Play Is Only Score in exciting Championship Contest.

The Maroon won the right to the title of champions of the Maui Gridiron by defeating the Blue and White on Kahului Field yesterday afternoon by the score of 3 to 0. The victory yesterday over the champions of '21 not only gives the Maroon the championship but brought them through the three game fray undefeated.

Paia took the lead, the only score of the game, in the last quarter when there remained but a few minutes to play when Captain Coleman dropped back to the 15 yard line and booted a beautiful field goal over the posts from a rather difficult angle after the Blue and White had held the Maroon for two downs on its eight yard line without an inch of gain.

A few minutes later after the kickoff, Machado by intercepting a forward pass on the Paia 40 yard line saved the Maroon from what might possibly have been a touchdown. Coleman immediately punted out of danger and before the Blue and White could resume their savage attack the timers whistle whirled.

Score Not Allowed

Empire Paul Low's decision in the third period saved the day for Paia. After Churruand had punted on fourth down to the Maroon's 35 yard line the Maroon advanced the ball three yards by a line plunge and a right end run. On the next play a shift formation was called by quarterback Coleman. Center snapped the ball direct to the back who fumbled the ball. The Blue and White broke through the Maroon line, recovered the ball and dashed the 30 yards distance across to the goal. The side lines and bleachers went in riot over what appeared a certain touchdown for Wailuku, but the ball was returned and put in play on the original line. Referee Rice declared he did not see clearly what had happened and would uphold Empire Low's decision. Low held the play was an incomplete forward pass, although up to the time of the fumble there had been no attempt at pass made.

Strong Defensive

The contest was a better one by far than the local fans had been led to expect. Wailuku played the best game on the defensive that has ever been witnessed on this island. The Maroon's ram, Foster Robinson, hit an absolute stone wall each time he attempted gains through the line. Practically all yardage made in yesterday's game was by intercepted passes, end runs and on few occasions through tackle plays.

Has Chance

The Maroon worked the ball to within striking distance in the second quarter but were thrown back by strong defensive work. After Paia had received the ball on its own 25 yard line, two tackle plays advanced the ball six yards. A forward pass to Coleman gave the Maroon first down on its 42 yard line. Another gain of three yards around left end and the Maroon again worked a pass for first down on the Blue and White 40 yard line. A run around left end made another 8 yards. The next play through tackle made first down. It was then the big chance of the day came. Coleman took the ball around right end to Wailuku's 13 yard line.

Blue and White Hold

Cornered, with their backs against their goal the Blue and White put up a splendid defensive. The first play lost the Maroon a yard. A forward pass was attempted and grounded. Though left tackle advanced the ball three yards but on fourth down a pass was incomplete and Wailuku received the ball on its 20 yard line. Churruand punted out to midfield and when the Paia safety fumbled the Blue and White recovered on the Maroon 47 yard line as the timers whistle blew half time.

During the remainder of the game the ball passed hands often neither team making substantial gains and first downs were rare. A mentionable feature of the contest is the clean playing and good sportsmanship

Australia Adopts Rules On Hygiene

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—(By A. P. Mail)—A number of important resolutions on the subject of industrial hygiene, including one providing for systematic medical examination of all workers, were adopted at the recent conference between Commonwealth and State health representatives.

One resolution urged that all persons employed in factories or workshops should be examined medically before employment, until the person had completed his 18th year.

The conference asked that the medical records of the Educational Departments be made available to the authorized medical inspectors in the case of any child seeking employment in a factory in a workshop, and urged that factory medical inspectors be appointed.

Another resolution urged that the minimum legal working age should be fixed for factories and workshops at not under 14 years for boys and 15 years for girls.

Each state should have in effective operation legislation controlling occupations dangerous to the health of the employees, another resolution said.

Another resolution, which was adopted, read:

"This conference considers that, in view of the importance, as a phase of public health administration, of systematic medical supervision of the health of individual industrial employees, and of the valuable information and results which have been obtained from the introduction by private employers of a medical service for their establishments, that every employer, including government, should be encouraged to provide efficient and regular medical service, which shall keep under view the health of the workers, and shall inquire as to any relation between variation in health and conditions of employment. Moreover, in order to obtain the greatest amount of public benefit from this measure, records of work done should be kept by a standardized method."

It was estimated at the conference that between 18,000 and 19,000 children under the age of 16 years are employed in factories in the Commonwealth.

Britain-France Are At Odds On Action In Ruhr

Conference Breaks Down and Takes Eight Day Recess; United States To Be Asked To Cancel Debt of France.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS)

LONDON, Dec. 11.—An adjournment of the conference of premiers was taken tonight for eight days to avert a rupture between Britain and France over German reparations.

It has been virtually decided that the British will respect the measure for the use of force for the Ruhr district upon which Poincaré has insisted. Bonar Law told Poincaré that British opinion is opposed to military measures against Germany.

It was announced this evening that the conference has broken down and adjourned to January 2.

It is stated in authoritative American quarters that the British will probably ask the United States if it is willing to cancel France's debt to the United States provided Britain will cancel France's debt to Great Britain and Britain agrees to pay its own debt to the United States.

Newspapers Strike; Town Crier Is Heard

(Associated Press Mail Service)

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Oct. 25.—The town bellman of Perth, who had slumbered peacefully for forty years, was revived during the newspaper strike which has just ended after a period of five weeks during which all newspapers had been compelled to close down.

The strike began when the proprietors refused to accede to the demands of the mechanical staff for increased wages. The men walked out and threw a cordon of pickets around each office, which prevented employees from entering the buildings.

The strike brought to the people of Perth forcibly the part a daily newspaper plays in their lives. Sundry public houses and coffee stalls, in order to satisfy the general demand for information, began posting real and imaginary cable and telegraph news and wild rumors of wars, murders, suicides, and general catastrophe. Auctioneers and stores found that few buyers attended their sales without the usual advertising. All business began to suffer and even the lawyers were held up because they were unable to do the advertising demanded by statute.

Motion picture screen advertisement writers began to work overtime, as did the sandwichmen, who returned to being with the bellman.

REACHING THE LIMIT.

There will have to be an immense amount of cutting, pruning and shaving done by both the county and territorial governments in the near future. The supervisors started work on their budget for next year today and in Honolulu various departments are working out tentative budgets for the next biennial period. Practically every department will want more than it has had before and there are various community projects that are hoping to secure financial assistance from the government which they have not enjoyed before or are looking for larger sums than they had given them in the past.

Hawaii may as well look matters squarely in the face. There are many things it would like to have, not so many that it really needs and still fewer that it thinks it must have in any event. Then there are the things it must have and can afford to have. The situation is a perfectly clear one. Hawaii can have only so much as it can afford.

The tax rate has risen to a figure beyond which it should not go. The assessed valuation is not increased this year. Hawaii has grown in two years but its wealth has not grown proportionately. The halt in the growth of its wealth has been but temporary, but there has been a halt.

The time has come for the exercise of a rigid economy. Hawaii and Maui cannot have all that they ought to have unless excessive burdens are placed on the tax payers. It may be said that the corporations pay the greater part of the taxes but what they pay is taken from the income of the shareholders. Even though the corporations pay the greater part, every little store has to pay, the clerk has to pay, the home owner has to pay. Burdens can be piled up to a certain limit only. Beyond that taxes become confiscatory. The man who is struggling to make a home for himself through agriculture cannot pay much larger taxes. The business man who struggles to make a living and keep prices down can not carry much added weight. Some projects cannot be halted but there are others that simply will have to wait.

COUPE'S SUGGESTIVE SYSTEM.

Much is being said and printed about the Coupe system of self applied mental treatment for physical ills. Some pooh-pooh at it, others wonder at it, still others are trying it and to discuss it with an air of understanding is the present day fad. To the great mass of persons it is new and novel and so is accepted as a "wonderful discovery." As a matter of fact there is nothing new in it and it has been accepted and applied by many, many persons either consciously or unconsciously for a long time.

In early manhood and early womanhood the physical body is or should be at its best and yet at the very period when strength and vitality are at their highest persons pay more attention to their insignificant ills than they do later on in life. There is more "sickness" among folk under 35 than there is among persons who have passed that age.

When bodily vigor is supposedly at its highest stage one pays more attention to physical sensations than later on in life. Perhaps it is that as one advances in years and experience one heeds less discomforts and disagreeable things, becomes used to them and accepts them as a matter of course. Other things than physical sensations are given first attention and physical sensations are relegated to a subordinate place both in the conscious and the subconscious mind. In every day life one has many experiences to which one pays no attention and hence such experiences hold a very small place in the mental life.

Another reason why small ills attract more attention in early life than later and why small ills are permitted to grow into greater ones is almost purely subconscious. It is the period of life when one seeks pleasurable sensations and tries to avoid the unpleasant. The average person looks upon work as more or less of an unpleasant necessity and turns from work for fun and enjoyment. The mind of such a person says more or less unconsciously "if I did not have to work today I could have a glorious time out of doors. If I were sick I would not have to work." The suggestion of sickness as a means to avoid the distasteful work has been made and the unconscious is quick to act upon suggestion where the end to be achieved is satisfaction of a desire that has been suppressed, in the instance pointed out to avoid a day's work.

Through the unconscious a sense of discomfort has been created by the suggestion that illness is the means to the end. The symptoms that are created are interpreted as sickness, there is a headache or other ill recognized and the suggestion has been carried into reality. Purely imaginary? Coupe says the imagination is stronger than the will. But the will to carry on and work is not exerted to its full strength while unconsciously the desire to find an excuse for not working has no check. There is the Coupe system in the reverse.

Psychology is the youngest of sciences. It deals with matters that are more or less intangible and there are many wild theories that are being propounded as is natural in a new science. Psychoanalysis is in its early infancy. The law of suggestion is but little understood. When announcements of alleged psychological discoveries are made they should be received as something to be demonstrated, not denied in toto, not accepted as fact.

The average person would not expect to grasp any physical science through a little casual reading and more casual talking but the average person with the merest smattering of investigation of psychological subjects assumes a knowledge that the student of years has not yet been able to acquire.

There is much to be commended in the Coupe system, much in psychoanalysis, much in "mental suggestion" and much in Christian Science which has advanced furthest but medical science is not yet to be abandoned though there is much that it can learn through a study of applied psychology.

THE HOLIDAY SEASON.

Two weeks from today is Christmas. The public schools close at the end of this week. The Christmas holiday season is at hand and, as usual, Mr. and Mrs. Christmas shopper have been caught napping. They had meant to do their buying early. Now they discover that these are the last days in which they can get remembrances off to friends on the mainland. Toward the end of next week they will discover that they must do their Christmas buying at once.

Thus it is that what should be the gladdest, happiest time of the year is turned into a period of rush, bustle and worry. Not all of the gladness and happiness is taken away but it is lessened and life is made harder for the buyer, the merchant and the salespeople. The merchant has been waiting for the buying public to wake up. He has been ready to fill their needs for weeks past.

There are two weeks before Christmas. Why not proceed to do the shopping now, to get the greater part, at least, of it out of the way and have next week to pick up the loose ends of the buying to make the purchases of those things that were overlooked and forgotten this week? If this be done it will make next week easier for all and add materially to the joys of the Merry Christmas tide.

With good luck the senate may get the Ship Subsidy Bill out of the way before the session ends.

There are 1100 more Filipinos than Japanese working on the plantations, the Governor's report says, but that doesn't mean that there are more Filipinos than Japanese in the Islands. The majority of the Japanese are not satisfied to remain at field work if they can find a way out into commercial fields.

The man who says he cannot afford to advertise is usually the one who cannot afford not to.

Philippines Sugar Growers Form Association Much Like Hawaii's

(Associated Press Mail Service)
 MANILA, P. I., Oct. 30.—The organization of the Philippine Sugar Association was effected at the conference of sugar men held this month. More than 100 delegates from all parts of the Philippine Islands attended the conference which discussed plans for increasing the yield sugar cane and the quality of sugar.

The Philippine Sugar Association is to be open to membership to all engaged in the production of Philippine sugar and the activities of the association will be through the medium of sections which will comprise owners, factors, planters, administrators and fabricators.

The fabricators' section will have subsections made up of engineers, chemists, sugar boilers, agriculturists and any other members of a sugar central staff, such as transportation men, and civil engineers who are actively engaged in the production of sugar.

A general board will be brought together, made up of one member from each of the Philippine sugar centrals, this member representing the owners of the central. The factory, planters', administrators' and fabricators' sections will each have one member on this control board which, with a membership of eighteen representing the centrals and four from the sections will comprise the general control board of twenty-two.

The general control board will elect annually a committee of five from within or without the board, which will be known as the executive committee, and which will deal directly with the problems of the association. The annual dues for members was fixed at twenty-five pesos ($12.50) and the sugar centrals represented in the association are to defray the expenses of the association up to an amount not to exceed one half cent per picul (133½ pounds) of the sugar produced annually.

The committee appointed by the conference to draw up the plan for the formation of the Philippine Sugar Association was composed of R. Renton Hind (Chairman), George H. Fairchild, E. W. Wilson, D. M. Semple and H. W. Lowden.

In an address before the Rotary club luncheon in honor of the delegates to the sugar conference, Mr. Hind, who is general manager of the Pampanga Sugar Mills, said:

"I have great faith in Philippine sugar. We are blessed with a climate suitable to cane growth, we have lands well adapted to cane and we have at the moment sufficient labor for our needs. It is only a matter of the influx of outside capital and its protection and the application of science in industry that will enable us to produce upwards of 1,000,000 tons of sugar annually within a generation.

"It is interesting to note that in spite of the tremendous investment of American capital in Cuba which practically controls the industry, this powerful element was unable to prevent the increase of the duty on sugar which has recently been raised from two cents a pound to 2.20 cents a pound as the full duty and 3.76 as the duty on Cuban sugar.

"In considering our economic problems, let us not lose sight of the fact that today the best market for Philippine sugar is the United States. Let us not forget also that the free admission of Philippine sugar to the home land means a differential in favor of our product as against that of foreign sugars of more than three dollars a picul (133½ pounds). If then the tremendous American interests in Cuba were unable to prevent the imposition of additional duty upon Cuban sugars, what hope is there to retain free trade with the United States in the event of independence being granted these islands?"

George H. Fairchild urged effective cooperation and cited instances of how it worked out in other sugar regions. He said Hawaii devoted to research about $1,000,000 annually and that Formosa by reason of the research activity of the Japanese had increased her sugar exports in a few years from 60,000 tons of muscovado sugar annually to 500,000 tons, chiefly centrifugals of high grade.

E. W. Wilson, general manager of the Philippine National Bank, which controls six sugar centrals, reviewing the benefits to be derived from organization of the sugar interests, said:

"The permanent sugar association formed at the conference has possibilities of great usefulness to the Philippine Islands. Lack of organization accounts for the fact that since American occupation of the islands exports of sugar have decreased, while in Cuba, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Formosa and Japan, all with excellent sugar organizations, the business has made wonderful advancement.

"The plan contemplates aiding the planter to raise two tons of cane where he now raises only one. Following the experiences of other organized sugar countries, and appropriating some of their achievements in seed selection, in better cultivation and deeper plowing, in drainage and irrigation and the intelligent use of fertilizer, a doubling of cane tonnage may reasonably be expected. This new organization will supply the thing that has been lacking—cooperative effort."

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

The Magic Fairy Cap
By ARTHUR W. STACE
Copyright 1921, by Public Ledger Co.

Jack and Janet, wearing magic fairy caps, start to visit King Hummer of the fairies, father of Prince Flitter-Flash, whom they have rescued from Black Dragon and Hairy Ogre. They see queer little fat folks at whom they laugh. They are arrested by two queer policemen, and are carried to court by a queer black chap.

CHAPTER III
The Fairy King's Queer Order

Jack and Janet, arrested by the two queer policemen, had expected to be hauled into police court. They had trembled a bit as the queer black chap, acting as a flying patrol wagon, had borne them through the air to judgment.

Great was their relief, therefore, as they looked down and saw that the court was not a police court, but the court of King Hummer, ruler of the fairies. Now thought they, everything would be alright. They had started for that very court at the invitation of Prince Flitter-Flash, the king's son, and while they were arriving in a way much different from what they had expected, they looked for a warm welcome.

THE HOME IN GOOD TASTE

No. 55—William and Mary Tables

During the latter part of the seventeenth century the gate tables and various sorts of "turned" tables, already described, continued in common use, but in addition to these there were also made numbers of smaller tables for different special purposes that were thoroughly characteristic of the period in their design. The little table shown in the accompanying illustration represent the general type of these tables. They were usually made of walnut, although other woods also were occasionally used.

These tables had a shaped apron in the underframing, the lowest points of which often terminated in little knobs or pendants turned in a sort of scorn shape. The legs were tapered from top to bottom, with inverted-cup turnings at the top, and had ball or bun feet. Just above the floor, at the top of the ball feet, the legs were connected by flat, shaped stretchers, which either ran directly from leg to leg or were crossed like the letter X. In the latter case they were said to be set "saddle-wise." The underframing sometimes contained one or more drawers. The "lowboys" of the period were virtually the same as these small tables. Tables of this sort are being reproduced, and are not only suitable for use in almost any room, but are exceedingly convenient as well.

Marines in China Retain Vernacular

PEKING—(By Associated Press Mail)—"Kidding" is not a lost art in China. A young American woman was being escorted recently by an American tourist of tender years to the Ming Tombs. Some two hundred marines from the American Legation Guard, on a hike, were resting beside the Avenue of Stone Beasts, which forms the approach to the tombs. The young woman and her escort were mounted on burros about the size of a six-months-old calf, urged to activity by Chinese mule-boys with their explosive shouts of "Ndah, ndah." As they arrived abreast of the marines the tourist's mount stumbled and spilled his rider in the dust. "Oh, you Cowboy" sang out one of the hard-boiled ones. The young woman told the story with great effect at a luncheon. A Frenchman present insisted upon its being translated into French for his benefit. "Oh you Cowboy"—in French?

LUMBER OF HIGH GRADE MAY BE MADE FROM CANE BAGASSE

People's Comment

The Wailuku-Kahului football game seems to have commanded a territorial interest. Now comes a letter from a Mr. W. Smith of Honolulu in which light is thrown on an entirely different angle of the game, heretofore not publicly discussed although several local fans have been heard to voice doubts concerning the decision on the "safety" that won the game for Kahului.

The letter follows: Editor Maui News: Dear sir:—Referring to the Kahului vs Wailuku football game of Dec. 3rd, I would like to state that I believe an error was made by the referee in awarding a safety to the Kahului team.

I believe that the play in question was a touch-back, and not a safety. The rules read: that a ball kicked whether touched by a player in the field of play and goes out beyond the goal line is a touch-back. Yours truly, W. SMITH.

Woodless Lumber from Waste Of Sugar Mills Has Been Produced in South; May Affect Local Industry

Lumber as a by-product of the sugar cane being grown by the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company near Miami, Florida, is a possibility of no small significance, declares the Miami Herald in a late issue. Such an industry, if heralded one of import to cane growers in the southern state, would certainly be of equal importance to the growers here in Hawaii.

The article follows: "A new 'woodless' lumber, manufactured from sugar cane waste and remarkable for extreme lightness, strength, and excellent insulating qualities, is now being turned out by Louisiana manufacturers who claim that their product will lower the cost of house construction, cut home fuel bills in half, and when made into shipping containers, save hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in freight bills."

"One of the unique characteristics of this 'magic cane lumber' is the extraordinary size in which it can be manufactured, boards 12 feet wide and 300 feet long—nearly the height of the Eiffel Tower—having actually been produced in a plant recently erected in New Orleans, La.

"The new lumber is made from 'bagasse' which is the fiber left after the juice is pressed from the sugar cane. A yearly production of nearly 500,000 tons of bagasse was formerly burned under the boilers of the sugar refineries as the cheapest way of disposing of it; but recently a process has been discovered by which it can be converted into lumber, that will not split, and which is so light that a man can lift a board four feet wide and 12 feet high with one hand.

"The first step in the lumber making process is to cook the fibers in huge vats to kill the spores that otherwise would cause decay. The fibers are then placed in beating machines, which separate them. Here they are treated with waterproofing chemicals and coated with a sticky substance that makes it possible to mat them together.

"The final step in the manufacture is to compress the fibers into lumber by passing them beneath heavy steel rolls. The lumber leaves these presses in long, continuous sheets that move slowly through a 900 foot drying oven, heated at 300 degrees F., where the water content is evaporated. This oven is said to be the largest of its kind in the world, removing 120,000 pounds of water daily. The sheets are then cut automatically by saws into standard lengths, and stacked for shipment.

"Like wood, 'bagasse' lumber is composed chiefly of cellulose. The finished product resembles exceedingly hard, tough cardboard. Because the fibers are very long, the material cannot easily be split by driven nails. The felting and compacting process fills the structure with tiny air cells that make it light and impervious to heat.

"The new lumber is being used for siding on houses and for making packing boxes. Since quarter inch 'bagasse' boxing material weighs only a quarter of a pound to the square foot, its use results in a great saving in freight charges. For example, one company that formerly shipped 100-pound packages of merchandise in wooden containers weighing 20 pounds now ships the same merchandise in 'bagasse' weighing only eight and one-half pounds. For a distant shipment in carload lots, this company announces a saving of $1,400 a car.

"Because of its insulating quality, the new lumber in the form of boxes is said to hold merchandise at three days when shipped in ordinary freight cars. This quality often eliminates the need of refrigerator cars.

"Experiments seem to indicate that 'bagasse' lumber is stronger than wood for house construction. In one test, studding was covered with the 'bagasse' lumber and ordinary wood sheathing, to imitate a section of the side of a frame house. This siding was nailed on in the usual way, and the lower sill of the frame was clamped to the base of a testing machine, while an upward pull was applied to the top plats.

The Stock Market

"In the 'bagasse' lumber there was a movement of only 0.01 inch at a pull of 1,200 pounds, and 0.42 inch at 2,500 pounds, while the wood sheathing of three-quarter inch boards six inches wide was moved 2.14 inches at 1,200 pounds.

"'Bagasse' lumber is said to be fire resistant and to take paint, plaster, calcimine or stucco without treatment. One ton of 'bagasse' will make 2,000 board feet of lumber. The makers estimate that the waste from the Louisiana cane fields alone could produce a billion and a half board feet of 'lumber' annually. The best grades of this 'woodless' ceiling and weather-boarding lumber recently sold at $35 a thousand square feet, as compared with a price of from $50 to $60 on ordinary ceiling."
