WILSON'S BUSINESS ARE PROBLEMATIC

If Shipping is Not Disturbed Islands Will Not Suffer Much, is Opinion

Effects of the war on the business of the territory are a matter of surprise among businessmen of Honolulu until it can be learned what course the United States will pursue relative to commerce and to shipping, especially to the shipping that runs between these islands and the mainland. Today being with many of the business houses a holiday it was impossible to secure interviews with all of the businessmen of Honolulu and those who were seen all expressed an unwillingness to undertake a definite forecast without more information at hand.

Sugar being the great industry of the islands, the Star-Bulletin called upon Manager Allen M. Nowell of the Sugar Factors Company. In reply to the query of probable effect of war on the sugar business Manager Nowell said: "It is impossible to say until we know what is going to happen to transportation. It will depend greatly on whether we are let alone and allowed to handle our large sugar crop. If we are so let alone it will not seriously affect us. If we have not the shipping facilities we shall certainly feel the war gravely in the business world.

Nowell expects to see most commodities used in the islands go higher, thereby increasing the cost of living. A. W. T. Bottomley, last year's president of the Sugar Planters' Association, agreed with Nowell as to the effect war would have on the sugar business depending chiefly on its effect on shipping. "All business will feel it," said Bottomley. "Taxes are bound to go up and we may expect war inflation of all prices."

Albert F. Just said that he presumed necessities would all be higher when the war effects became felt, that inflation of prices was naturally to be expected. J. L. Fleming, president of the stock exchange, said he thought stocks might sell off at first but that when it became determined that the government would not interfere with shipments nor arbitrarily fix prices he believed that there would be recoveries.

PROCLAMATION

Governor Pinkham Calls For Agricultural Activity to Make Hawaii Independent in Reasonable Subsistence

WHEREAS, Congress has declared the United States of America to be in a state of war with the German Empire; and

WHEREAS, All obligations of neutrality have, from the beginning of this day, ceased; and

WHEREAS, The Territory of Hawaii has its duty to the Federal Government and the various States of the Union, particularly those of the Pacific Coast, and the possessions, connections, and high seas; and

WHEREAS, The International Institute of Agriculture of Rome through its almost universal and constant statistical agricultural information has warned the world generally that a dangerous and impending food shortage threatens the populations of all civilized countries; and

WHEREAS, The governments of Europe and the British Islands have taken charge of the food supplies and their distribution and consumption within their own borders; and

WHEREAS, The last harvest in the United States was below the average and food has reached an almost prohibitive price, particularly to the poor and persons of limited means; and

WHEREAS, The Territory of Hawaii is not a self-contained, self-supporting division of the United States; and

WHEREAS, The annual charts and reports of the Governor to the Honorable Secretary of the Interior have, item by item, disclosed wherein the Territory of Hawaii fails to such an extreme in the production of her food supplies; and

WHEREAS, According to the fortunes of war, the Territory of Hawaii, by her indifference and inefficiency is exposing herself, her defenders and the United States at large by her helpless food condition;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, LUCIUS E. PINKHAM, Governor of Hawaii, insofar as the authority in me lies, do warn, urge and direct the owners, cultivators and managers of agricultural organizations of whatever nature, the owners of ranches, and the people having control of land for agriculture, that their enterprise and immediate assistance is necessary in the production of the food supplies requisite to render the entire population of these far-isolated islands and our defenders independent of outside assistance for reasonable subsistence.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the Territory of Hawaii to be affixed. DONE at the Capitol, in Honolulu, this 6th day of April, 1917. LUCIUS E. PINKHAM.

By the Governor: WADE WARREN THAYER, Secretary of Hawaii.

GOVERNOR TELLS ABOUT FEEDING OF GUARDSMEN

Gov. Pinkham today sent to the house of representatives a lengthy communication outlining the reasons for feeding members of the National Guard at the armory in 1916, partly from immigration funds.

The governor says that guardsmen were fed at the armory between January 8 and March 24, 1916. One Saturday afternoon Brig. Gen. Samuel I. Johnson informed the governor, the report continues, that he was going to Hawaii and that many of the guardsmen had exhausted their own means of shelter and subsistence, and that some of the men were forced to sleep in the open. Upon learning this, the governor says he ordered that cots be placed in the armory for such of the guardsmen as were without shelter. To settle for the time being the food problem, he says he gave $100 out of his own pocket and that, at the same time, Gen. Johnson contributed $50. In addition to this the governor secured an additional $80 from private sources. On January 8 or 10, says the report, things came to a point in the guard where he was forced to turn to the appropriation for the aid of the indigent and the unemployed. The governor points out that, in aiding the guardsmen, $830.37 was used from territorial funds, in addition to $694.19 that he secured from private persons, making a total of $1524.47.

of the shoe. Leather is becoming scarcer and scarcer and today cattle of only two years growth are being killed for the skins. T. H. Petrie said: "I do not look for a great change in the mode of living in the islands as a result of the war, unless the federal government takes over all the ships, having only enough to transport necessary food stuffs. I do not think it will come and I expect to see sugar shipped to the mainland the same as usual."

NAVAL BASE IS READY FOR WAR

"We have received a confirmation of the declaration of war. All preparations at Pearl Harbor for war have already been made."

This is the only news Capt. George R. Clark, commandant of the Pearl Harbor naval station, said he had at noon today for publication.

The commandant expressed himself as greatly interested in Associated Press dispatches read to him over the telephone by the Star-Bulletin telling of the navy's progress in making ready for war.

At the local naval station on Allen street the force was ready to act in minute orders came.

The U. S. S. St. Louis was berthed at the navy wharf. Her officers refused to confirm a report in circulation today that she was to steam for the mainland April 15.

The four submarines of the third division, 35, 36, 37 and 38, are at Pearl Harbor, having been cleaned and painted in drydock here last week following annual battle practice off Lahaina, Maui.

HEEN'S NAME GOES IN AGAIN

(Special Star-Bulletin Cable)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—William H. Heen was re-nominatated today for judge of the Oahu circuit bench.

C. S. ALBERT.
 Heen's name went in last session but was not acted on by the senate judiciary committee owing to protests against his Chinese blood. It is said now that the new committee favors him and will recommend confirmation of the nomination.

ALIEN ENEMIES WARNED BY PRESIDENT TO OBEY RULES

(Associated Press Service by Federal Wireless)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—In his war proclamation, President Wilson today establishes the following regulations for alien enemies resident in the United States and its possessions:

"An alien enemy shall not have possession of firearms, or weapons or implements of war, ammunition, Maxim or other silencer, nor shall an alien enemy use or operate aircraft or wireless, or use a cipher."

"All property in his possession, for violation of the foregoing, is subject to seizure."

"An alien enemy shall not approach within half a mile of any federal or state fort, camp, arsenal, aircraft station, government or naval vessel, yard, or munitions factory."

"An alien enemy shall not write or print any attack or threat against the government, Congress, the military, naval or civil service; shall not reside in or enter any locality which the president designates as prohibitive (prohibited)."

"An alien enemy shall not depart from the United States until he receives a permit."

"If necessary, to prevent violations of these regulations the alien enemies will be obliged to register. Any believed to be violating any regulation is subject to summary arrest."

NAVY TAKES OVER WIRELESS PLANTS

Systems Between Here and the Mainland Seized; Mutual Gives Its Use

As the most drastic war measure adopted in Honolulu since the formal declaration of war by President Wilson, the United States navy department at 11:30 this morning took over all wireless companies and plants in the islands and established a rigid censorship over the cable office. The move means that absolutely no messages other than federal government or territorial official business will be received or transmitted in Hawaii by wireless and nothing but straight English messages—no code or foreign languages—will be accepted at the cable office.

It also means that temporarily at least the only means of communication between the islands will be by mail as the measure includes the Mutual Telephone Company's wireless department as well although in a slightly different manner than the others. A representative of the navy department has been despatched to the wireless plants of the Marconi, the Mutual and the Federal companies to take charge. All of the operators have now been enrolled in the navy reserve and consequently will remain at their posts. The city office forces of the wireless companies will not be disturbed but they will be able to take government business only.

Commercial Business by Cable. All commercial business will necessarily go by cable now and a censor will see all messages sent from here, holding back any which may deem improper. No incoming messages will be censored here inasmuch as they will be subjected to a rigid examination in San Francisco.

Although the Federal and Marconi offices have been absolutely taken over by the government the Mutual wireless department while practically in the same position has really been closed to commercial business without the navy taking it over.

Navy officials said this morning in regard to the Mutual Company and inter-island communication that after the report had been made to headquarters at Washington that possibly an order might be sent out to resume commercial messages among the islands in the next few days, among them: membe21slinc.

COMMERCE CHAMBER WILL MEET TO PASS RESOLUTION MONDAY

To pass a resolution indorsing the action of President Wilson and congress in declaring war on Germany, the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu will meet Monday morning at 10 o'clock and every member is requested to be present. This morning J. F. C. Hagens, president of the chamber, said that at that time he would make an address to the members but until then he did not care to say anything.

Wilson Hopes For Disarmament Later

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—In a statement approving the army plan presented to congress by the war department, President Wilson said today:

"The hope of the world is that when the European war is over, arrangements may be made composing many questions which hitherto seemed to require the arming of nations."

Must Haul Down Flag of Ahlers

"Haul the German flag down at once."

This is the short, decisive answer sent at noon today by Collector of the Port Malcolm A. Franklin to Deputy Collector Byron A. Baird of Hilo.

Baird wired, to the collector about 11 o'clock this morning, saying that the master of the German refugee merchant steamer O. J. D. Ahlers at Hilo objected to lowering the German flag on his vessel, which is supposed a war prize today. In the same status as the German boats taken possession of last night in this port on orders from Washington.

While Chief Immigration Inspector Richard L. Halsey of the local station would make no statement today concerning the Ahlers' crew, it is believed here that the sailors have been taken off the steamer and may be brought here from Hilo for detention with the crews of the German vessels at this port.

NO BREAK WITH OTHER CENTRAL POWERS AS YET

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—The United States has no intention of severing relations with Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey, allies of Germany, unless those nations force such a step, as is regarded extremely likely.

This was learned from excellent authority last night, just prior to the formal declaration of war by the United States upon Germany.

It was also learned that the officials of the state department are confident that the governments at Constantinople, Sofia and Vienna will not be allowed to continue at peace with this country, if Germany can avoid such a thing. They are confident that the Kaiser's ministers in Berlin are prepared for the declaration of war by the United States and have already matured their plans for dragging Austria into an open break with America.

NINETY-ONE GERMAN VESSELS SEIZED; U. S. MAY USE THEM; NOT CONFISCATE, PAY LATER ON

Teuton Craft From Atlantic to Philippines Taken Over and Crews Removed Under Guard--Congress Backs War Moves With Emergency Budget

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—Moving with noticeable swiftness, every branch of the federal government is joining in the war on Germany declared by the president today in formal proclamation.

A huge emergency war fund of $100,000,000 will be ready perhaps tonight or tomorrow. It has already passed the senate.

President Wilson signed the war resolution at 1:11 o'clock today, making war with Germany an actuality.

All naval militia and reserves have been called to the colors.

The president also immediately signed a proclamation formally declaring a state of war between Germany and the United States and calling upon Americans to give support to all measures of the government.

The navy department immediately wired all stations, yards and ships, telling them of Wilson's signing the resolution and proclamation and directing their activities.

Congress began immediately to provide the sinews of war. An appropriation of $100,000,000 as an emergency war fund, to be used at the president's discretion, was attached to the general deficiency bill. This action is similar to that which placed $50,000,000 at the disposal of President McKinley in the Spanish-American war.

This emergency fund was quickly voted in the senate. It must still be approved in the house, which is expected to take quick action. The senate, after voting the fund, adjourned until Monday.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 6.—It developed today that the seizure of German ships in American ports began immediately after Congress had declared war existing. Before daylight the United States had taken over all the vessels in the Atlantic ports. It is understood that the taking over of these vessels does not involve confiscation, but that the United States will use them and pay for them after the war.

Ninety-one ships in American ports were seized, of a gross tonnage of 600,000. These include 23 in Philippine ports, 11 in Honolulu, and one at Pago Pago. Twenty-seven were seized at New York.

The 11 listed as taken at Honolulu probably include eight merchantmen here, one at Hilo, and the interned naval vessels Geier and Lochsun.

Honolulu Receives War Declaration Quietly; No Excitement Whatever

Honolulu in the last 10 years has seldom been quieter than today—April 6, 1917—the day when war was declared with Germany.

The news of the house action, absolutely assuring the declaration of war, reached the city at 10 last night. Associated Press despatches to the Star-Bulletin and the Advertiser announced the fact and inside of a half hour the whole town knew it. The Star-Bulletin's telephones had rung almost ceaselessly all evening, with the question, "Is war declared yet?" and by the middle of the evening this paper was able to say that war was virtually declared through the action of the house.

However, though there were rumors abroad of the seizure of German ships, excitement was conspicuous by its absence. The downtown section of the city was almost deserted. A few auto parties came down to motor along the waterfront and look for excitement but it was impossible to tell what was going on. The sending of troops to the ships was accomplished so quietly and quickly that spectators without some special knowledge could not understand what was happening.

Neither at army nor National Guard headquarters were any special signs of activity noticeable.

Today was much quieter than usual in Honolulu. On Good Friday many business houses close all day and more for a part of the day, and the business section was sparsely peopled. Only a few businessmen came downtown except to look at their mail, many spending the day out of the city.

Honolulu Takes War News Quietly, Backs Wilson

GERMAN SHIPS ARE TAKEN OVER; OFFICERS AND CREWS DETAINED

Collector of Port and Army Act on Advices From Washington; Franklin in Control

The situation on the waterfront is this: All the German merchant vessels, seven steamers and one motor schooner, were under military control, with armed guards on every boat. Civilian guards are no longer aboard the Pommer and Setos.

Crews of the eight vessels, totaling 86 men, were in detention at the U. S. immigration station. The number taken into custody last night on orders received by Chief Inspector Richard L. Halsey was 71, but five, four Filipino sailors and one Chinese cook, were released at 8:30 this morning.

One company of regulars is guarding the immigration station and is quartered there.

The military guard on the vacated German vessels was reduced this morning and the dock patrol taken off.

No preparations were made this morning to move the German vessels from their present wharves. The U. S. tug-of-war Navajo left at 7 o'clock this morning on her usual trip to Pearl Harbor, towing a large barge filled with rock for concrete construction work there which is being rushed.

Acting under orders received direct from Washington at practically the same time that Associated Press despatches reached Honolulu telling of the house vote to pass the war resolution, the army and navy, cooperating with Collector of the Port Malcolm A. Franklin and Immigration Inspector Richard Halsey, took prompt action last night, removed the crews of all the refugee German merchant vessels from the boats, placed them in custody of the immigration officials and put military guards on each of the eight vessels.

Today the crews from the vessels are in detention at the immigration station, while armed soldiers are searching each boat, guards being placed at the bow and stern of every vessel, and relieved every hour of the day.

Officials Notified Directly

In addition to the orders received by Pearl Harbor and the Hawaiian department, separate instructions reached Collector Franklin and Inspector Halsey simultaneously. The immigration inspector received a cable at 12:10 last night signed by Secretary of Labor Wilson, directing him to take the crews of all German vessels in this port into custody. With the assistance of the military force this was done at once.

Sixty-six Men Are Held

The total number of officers and sailors rounded up by the soldiers last night from the eight refugee German merchantmen was 71. This morning at 8:30 U. S. Immigration Inspector Richard L. Halsey freed five of them because they were not Germans. Four were Filipino sailors from the Freina Waldemar, which had three, the Guvernors Janssens having the other Filipino; and the fifth man was a Chinese cook from the Setos.

Guarding the immigration station this morning was a company of regulars, 60 men, under command of Capt. William E. Hunt of the 2nd Infantry, Fort Shafter. The company pitched tents on the station grounds at 4 o'clock this morning and is quartered there.

Final Disposition Undetermined

U. S. Immigration Inspector Halsey said at 9 o'clock this morning he did not know what disposition would be made of the German sailors and officers in detention at the station. It is thought likely that after President Wilson signs the formal declaration of war with Germany the men will be interned at the internment camp of Fort Shafter, Schofield Barracks and other military posts on Oahu, where the crews of the interned German gunboats and her naval cutter Lockwood were interned February 4, the day after the United States severed diplomatic relations with Germany.

Harbor Board Jurisdiction Ends

Chairman Charles R. Forbes of the board of harbor commissioners made a tour of the waterfront by automobile at 8 o'clock this morning. He said he thought it likely the German vessels will be placed in lock-up where they now are, but where he did not know. The jurisdiction of the harbor board over the vessels is at an end.

As soon as the army took over the German vessels the harbor board's civil jurisdiction has been taken off. The harbor board and the harbor board's civil guards were on the boats last night, but the boys in khaki with loaded rifles were on each vessel to see one except customs and territorial officials were allowed on board.

Boys Detained, Two Sailors

About 7:30 this morning some excitement was occasioned at the U. S. immigration station when C. Bolte, a German businessman of this city, arrived there and demanded that two German sailors among those rounded up last night from the steamers be released to him at once.

According to the immigration officials, Bolte had his coat down on a window sill and threatened to "beat up" the officials unless they would turn over to him the two men and their belongings immediately.

Trouble Averted

It was said politely but firmly that the men were being held on instructions from Washington and would not be released. Bolte manifested a little temper when he was told, declaring he would come back later in the day.

He said he hired the two Germans to go to Kona, Hawaii, on the Kilaua at noon today to cut some piling there and that it would interfere with his business if they were not released.

Foster Tells of Orders

Capt. William H. Foster, harbor master, said today he was notified about 10:30 last night by Collector of the Port Malcolm A. Franklin that the government had received instructions from Washington to take over the German steamers from the hands of the harbor board and assume responsibility for them.

A few minutes later army headquarters called up the harbor master and said soldiers were on the way to take possession of all the vessels. The guards began rounding up the crews and taking them to the immigration station a few minutes later. The harbor board's watchmen were taken off the Pommer and Setos about 2 this morning, he said.

It was learned today that a number of German sailors have been working up town in various business houses, a number of them employed by H. Hackfeld & Company, the steamer captains having given them the permission. Whether they slept aboard the ships is not known. If they rounded up the men are still at liberty but if they were on the vessels last night when the military rounded up the crews they are in detention at the immigration station today.

NO EXCITEMENT OVER WAR HERE

As a result, the war developments created no excitement whatever. Flags were floating everywhere and some bunting was displayed, but the lack of crowds on the streets was noticeable.

As a matter of fact, Honolulu had expected war with such assurance that there was no shock of surprise when it came and no resultant outburst of excitement. Businessmen talked very calmly of the situation, facing frankly the belief that Hawaii will have to stand a large burden in war taxes.

However, it is also noticeable that there appears virtually no fear of a business depression. The business community expects Hawaii's trade and industry to be materially affected.

CRUISER HOLDS NIGHT PRACTISE

No direct orders have been received calling out the naval militia of Hawaii, W. H. Stroud, commander, said this morning. "We are, however, making every preparation to be ready to answer the call at a moment's notice and the order to meet at the hangar this evening is to prepare the clothing, bedding and other equipment for service," he said.

Com. Stroud conferred for several hours this morning with Lieut. Com. Victor S. Houston, commanding the cruiser St. Louis, and other officers of Hawaii's navy.

At 10 o'clock this morning the cruiser was holding night battle practice, using the guns and operating searchlights as in case of actual fighting after nightfall, with officers and gun crews in their places as required when the vessel is stripped for action. The practice was held with the St. Louis lying at her dock in the navy slip.

"CLOSE SALOONS" URGED IN CRISIS

Sentiment is being expressed in several quarters today that the territorial legislature should at once rigidly restrict the sale of intoxicating liquors, either by its own act or by direction to the several island boards of liquor license commissioners.

One businessman said today: "Our nation is at war and Hawaii has to conserve every cent. We have to be absolutely economical and we have to preserve order. The saloons ought to be closed without any delay. It is a time the situation was handled firmly and without any political interference."

John Regan has been denied privileges of the Cuban-American Jockey Club. "Conduct detrimental to the best interests of racing" was the cause.

FLOUR GOING TO RECORD PRICES

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless) CHICAGO, Ill., April 6. — Retail prices of $16 per barrel for flour rival the $2 wheat which was touched a few days ago.

What Honoluluans Say of the War

W. R. FARRINGTON: Stand by the Administration. It is the commanding spirit of the hour. And that means the administration in Hawaii as well as Washington. If there is one local feature brought to the front by the present national crisis, it is the wisdom of the Governor of Hawaii in making every possible effort to develop the National Guard of Hawaii and bring it to the best possible state of quantity and quality—preparations. Yet for this he is made the specific object of a most treacherous attack. This is significant of the brand of American loyalty to be found in the hearts of men sponsoring and supporting this attack. If Hawaii has men, American men, of the type that is carrying our country forward in its splendid mission, these men will come to the front in Hawaii like Americans, and not as treacherous, white-blooded hyphenates who stab their country in the back, though loudly proclaiming their good intentions. This is a time when the nation is getting right down to brass tacks; a time when treachery should be given its just and prompt deserts; and the leaders in this work nailed to the cross of infamy where they belong.

NORMAN WATKINS: It is difficult to say in specific terms just what Hawaii should do, but certainly it is the duty of the people of the territory to practice the strictest economy for we are all going to be called on to bear unusual financial burdens to meet national needs.

SPEAKER H. L. HOLSTEIN: I have written a letter to Company K, N. G. H., on Hawaii of which I was formerly captain, expressing the hope that every man will respond if the call to duty is sounded through this crisis. The real meaning of this crisis has come home to these boys in the sinking of the Aztec and the supposed loss of several Hawaiians. I know there can be no question as to their loyalty.

REPRESENTATIVE W. E. MILES: I felt the same as every American here in Hawaii must feel; that the president and congress have done the right thing for the nation. Let us all unite in undivided support of the national government.

CAPT. H. MINNSEN, master of the German steamer Pommer (speaking to a harbor pilot last night): Well, my mighty star war has been declared. The last two months have kept us in dreadful suspense. The relief now that it is over is tremendous.

RICHARD L. HALSEY, inspector in charge, United States immigration station: I makes me feel sarcastic to think that the individual in charge of the local agency of the Pacific Mail and China Mail steamship companies, both American lines, is a German and his company a German firm. That he should have the right to go out to vessels of those lines in a United States customs launch is a thing the papers should look up and try to get some action on.

BOATSWAIN J. H. MACDONALD, naval station: President Wilson has upheld the nation's rights honorably and we are ready to stand back of him and see the war through honorably.

Resolutions Declare People of Hawaii Are True to Allegiance

The legislature assures the national government that the entire people of Hawaii stand ready to render any support in their power in the present crisis. This is substance of the summary of a message which the governor is directed to send to President Wilson in this hour of national crisis where the United States enters on war with Germany.

Provisions for the transmission of the message are contained in a concurrent resolution introduced in the house of representatives this morning by Speaker H. L. Holstein.

The resolution points out that the people of the territory are practically unanimous in their support of the action taken by the President and Congress in declaring that a state of war now exists between the United States and Germany.

Prior to taking a vote Speaker Hol-

Consuls Glad to Welcome Uncle Sam as New Ally

CAPT. M. A. MADSEN, territorial pilot: My boy is in the Signal Corps of the National Guard of Hawaii and I am proud that he is a member.

A. F. JUDD: We have reestablished our national self-esteem. The United States has been like a big boy that has grown to manhood but did not want to recognize the fact and assume the responsibility which manhood entails. Those responsibilities our country will now assume.

WALTER F. MACFARLANE: It was about time that action for war was taken. It was inevitable that it should come and it might just as well have come sooner as to have come now.

E. L. SCHWARZBERG: I don't like war and I don't like this war that has just been declared but I am ready to shoulder a gun and do my duty for the country as my ancestors have done for the last three generations.

HARRY ARMISTEAD: Yes, war has come and I am glad of it. I considered it high time. Business will go on just the same as ever and I think we here in these islands will notice little effect.

JOE ANDRADE: We have been expecting this declaration for days and days. What is there to say now that it has come that we have not already said?

SENATOR W. T. ROBINSON: I am for the country's stand.

SENATOR CHARLES F. CHIL LINGWORTH: I shall offer my services to the country when the legislature adjourns.

SENATOR E. W. QUINN: To have submitted longer to Prussian outrages would have been against our honor.

JOHN L. FLEMING: It was our only course. We could do no more and certainly we could do no less.

GEORGE W. SMITH: Hawaii is the safest place under the American flag. While I am not a prophet I cannot see how people here can become very badly off as a result of this war.

MAYOR JOHN C. LANE: Every city and county employee should consider it his duty to answer the call of the president in some way.

U. S. MARSHAL J. J. SMIDDY: It is a good move. The peculiar thing, though, is that Democrats here are taking it as a direct vote for Hawaii that action was taken as soon as it was known Hawaiians were lost on the Aztec.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE J. L. COKE: Regardless of all discussion pro and con this is a crucial test to the loyalty of naturalized German-American citizens. I hope and believe that they will not be found wanting.

CURTIS P. LAUKEA: War is an awful thing but it is unavoidable in this instance. Now let all those who have been clamoring for it come out and help fight.

The resolution reads as follows: "Whereas, the Congress of the United States of America has declared that a state of war exists between this country and Germany, and has thereby authorized the President, as Commander in Chief, to employ the military and naval forces of the United States in the prosecution of that war; and

"Whereas, the people of the Territory of Hawaii are unanimous in support of the action taken by Congress and the President, and stand ready to assume their share of the burdens of the war;

"Now therefore, be it resolved, by the house of representatives of the territory of Hawaii, the senate concurring therein, that the governor of the territory is hereby directed to immediately communicate to the president of the United States, that the people of the territory stand ready to render to him, as president and commander in chief, all support in their

No Trouble Here If Foreigners Orderly

General F. S. Strong, commander of the Hawaiian Department, had very little to say this morning except that he is glad the matter has been settled and everybody knows where the country stands.

In regard to the German residents here he said, "I do not believe that there will be any trouble, but if it does occur drastic methods of protecting property will be taken. Everyone, however, who behaves and attends to business will be given every consideration and fair treatment."

power, and that the legislature of the territory, now in session, is ready to adopt any and all suggestions made as to either needed legislation or appropriations for the national guard and naval militia, by forwarding to the President the following message: "I am authorized and directed by the legislature of the Territory of Hawaii to assure you that the entire people of Hawaii are ready to render any support in their power in the present situation, and the Legislature, now in session, is ready to adopt any and all suggestions as to the needed legislation or appropriations for the National Guard and Naval Militia."

PRETTY PETTICOATS

Some fancy net lace designed in petticoats are elaborately trimmed with vines of tiny roses and ribbon and are very wide, being four to five even six yards in width.

A new fad shows the petticoat trimmed with sprigs of paradise feathers in place of ordinary silk fringe. The paradise fronds are interspersed with tiny flowers that trim a series of pleated flounces. The petticoat itself is of silk mouseline made of two shades of chiffon. The arrangement suggests two separate garments hung from one belt. There are two flounces that extend to the hips, so that there is no chance of a thickening of the hip line by the superfluous layer of even so sheer a fabric as chiffon.

Green, purple, wisteria, Copenhagen, coral, rose, gold, Belgian blue, &c., are all good petticoat colors. Dark colors are worn with plain tailored suits, but are frequently bound or piped with a bright color. Braces are added to some petticoats. The best grade of mercerized petticoats have similar stripes and floral patterns to those of silk and are made up in as great a variety of patterns.

The ancients supposed rock crystal to be merely ice congealed by intense cold.

American dealers in the last three months have purchased most of the goatskins in Aden, Arabia. Prices have increased from $6.50 to $12.33 a tiny flowers that trim a series of pleated score.

BITTER FIGHT WAGED IN HOUSE ON PROPOSED MOLOKAI JOURNEY

Resolution That All Solons Take Trip Adopted Despite Opposition

What might otherwise have been a peaceful day in the house of representatives this morning was shattered by a wrangle and interchange of polite discourtesies lasting more than an hour and in which nearly every member of the house had a hand—and all because there was a movement on foot to send the entire house to Molokai with the health and military committee, which left at noon.

The whole trouble arose when the rules committee reported out on a resolution providing that all the members of the house accompany the military committee to Molokai. The majority members had their report ready and had it read.

Holstein Fights Trip
Then Speaker Holstein, minority member, took the floor. He wanted the report of the minority committee deferred until Monday. He declared that in the majority report certain criticism was directed at members of the house which reflected on the dignity of the legislature. He added that in his opinion the report had been drawn by a person outside the legislature professing to have more talent than anyone in the house. He said that the military committee of the house had a perfect right to go to Molokai, but did not believe that the whole house should go on what he called a jantanking trip.

Representative Jarrett jumped to his feet and seized that the report had been drawn by a person outside the house. He said it was a shame to send only the military committee to Molokai.

"This proposition of curtailing expenses is a joke," he declared. "We have appropriated $40,000 to bring our members here and if we can't send this house to Molokai then let's all stay away."

Political Motives?
Holstein said that if any man in the house was proposing to go to Molokai to build his fences for the next election that such a one should be handed out for the trip.

Representative Silva of the military committee said 25 members of the house wanted to go to Molokai, but that no steamer could be secured. He added that the military committee had decided to go today.

The opposing factions fought away on the floor for half an hour longer and finally a vote was taken to defer the minority report until tomorrow. This was lost. In the meantime the members of the military committee had slipped away to the wharf. Then a vote was taken to adopt the majority report, and was carried.

Collector Franklin Praised By McAdoo for Customs Force's Quick Work Last Night

"That the German refugee merchant vessels which were taken possession of last night by military forces of the Hawaiian Department are in the status of war prizes," is the belief expressed today by Collector of the Port Malcolm A. Franklin.

"Although I have had no instructions from Washington today outlining the present status of the vessels I should think they may be considered as war prizes," said the collector shortly before noon today.

However, it is possible that, as indicated by today's Associated Press despatches, the United States will consider these as war prizes only for the term of the war, their use to be paid for afterward by the United States.

Congratulated On Quick Work
After the custom house opened for business at 5 o'clock this morning Collector Franklin received a cablegram from Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo congratulating him on the prompt and efficient work of the customs forces in taking charge of the vessels last night until the soldiers arrived.

"I received a cable from Secretary McAdoo at 10:45 last night directing me to place military guards on the German vessels and to keep everybody off them," he said. "At 10:17, exactly 12 minutes later, our customs inspectors were on board the refugee vessels, two to each boat. I consider that exceptionally fine work on the part of our men."

Collector Notified Army
The collector immediately on receipt of last night's orders to have military guards placed on the refugee merchantmen called up Gen. Strong, commanding the Hawaiian Department, and notified him. The general at once dispatched three companies of the 2d Infantry to the waterfront from the battalion's camp in the Capitol grounds. They were commanded by Lieut. Col. Francis E. Lacey, general staff corps, Hawaiian Department; and Maj. Guy G. Palmer, 2d Infantry, Fort Shafter. The soldiers took possession of the steamers at once, rounded up the crews and marched them to the United States immigration station.

Sharp Stayed All Night
Collector Franklin stayed on duty at his office until 3 o'clock this morning. Special Deputy Collector Raymond Sharp was in charge from that time until 7:30 this morning.

Consul Calls On Collector
Spanish Consul Senor Luis Guillen

that time it was too late for the anxious members to get to the dock and no one left the hall. When the house will visit the settlement in a body is not known. Speaker Holstein, for one, is not going.

Little Business Done
Very little business was accomplished in the house today owing to the argument over the Molokai trip. The health committee reported out on the bill providing that licenses be granted to chiropractors, recommending its passage. A minority report by Representatives Wheeler and Miles declares that the bill does not offer sufficient safeguard to the public health. Discussion of the reports has been deferred until next Tuesday.

Representative Andrews' bill outlining grounds on which licenses of physicians may be revoked, passed second reading.

Fail to Concur
The house today declined to concur in the lengthy amendments made by the senate to Representative Cooke's resolution providing for a federal survey of the schools of the territory. Speaker Holstein announced that he would appoint members of a conference committee during the session this afternoon.

Representative Jarrett's promised bill providing for payment to prisoners for work done by them while serving their sentences was introduced today. As already outlined in the Star-Bulletin, this measure provides for the encouragement of new trades in the territorial prison and for the payment of prisoners for the work done or articles turned out by them. This is one of several bills relating to the prison that have been introduced by Jarrett.

A bill introduced by Representative Leal provides that in all cases of felony where a prisoner cannot secure counsel, it shall be appointed by the court. In all cases where the offense carries a penalty of death, life imprisonment or in excess of 20 years, the counsel fee shall be $100, and in other cases $50.

Many Bills Come In
The following bills were introduced today:

House Bill 392—Providing for payment for work done by prisoners.—Jarrett.

House Bill 393—Relating to salaries and expenses of certain courts.—Lyman.

House Bill 394—Relating to sites on public lands.—Lyman.

House Bill 395—Providing that school books and supplies shall be furnished pupils free of charge.—Lyman.

House Bill 396—Relating to the assignment of counsel to prisoners.—Deer.

Gil, acting for Germany, called on Collector Franklin this morning to ascertain the present status of the vessels and their crews. The collector told the consul he could not tell him definitely as he has not been advised from Washington.

As to the crews, he related the consul to Richard L. Halley, inspector in charge of the federal immigration station.

Keeping Property For Safety
Collector Franklin, as a precautionary measure, to protect the belongings of the steamer's officers, had the safe of the Loongmoon taken from the steamer early today and removed to his office. He also has in his office for safe keeping $155 in silver, the property of one of the sailors, for which he gave the man a receipt.

HANDSOME KOA DESK
GIVEN W. L. WHITNEY

In appreciation of his many years of service as judge of the local circuit court, Attorney William L. Whitney yesterday was presented with a handsome koa desk by a number of the circuit court officials. Attorney Whitney has written the donors as follows:

"This is just an attempt to express my thanks to you for the desk. You know how I loved the boys. They were the best part of life to me, and I cannot tell you how I have appreciated your desire to give me some sort of remembrance. If you forget me no sooner than I do you, we shall continue to know each other forever."

Those who presented the gift were Chester A. Doyle, A. Kaeli, Anna, Arthur E. Restarick, Herbert R. Jordan, Say Kan Lau, Henry Smith, Joseph Leal and Charles Hopkins.

Mrs. Emma Nakulua of King street, Kailua, was "considerably taken aback," she said, in police court today, when she found Robert Sharp, a stranger, asleep on her bed with all his clothes on. The defendant told Judge Monsarrat he was drunk and remembered nothing about it. He was fined $10.

Collector Franklin stayed on duty at his office until 3 o'clock this morning. Special Deputy Collector Raymond Sharp was in charge from that time until 7:30 this morning.

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)
It is interesting to note that eight out of Wisconsin's ten representatives in the lower house last night voted against the war resolution—Brown, Cary, Cooper, Esch, Frear, Stafford, Nelson and Volght. THE RHYME OF THE MODERN MARINER

(Frederick Dixie, in New York Evening Sun.)
No longer could I stand the ukulele,
The yaaki-hoola Honolulu refrains,
The minstrelsy of aged William Bailey
With all his mighty hicki-doola strains.

I thought to travel many miles away
From
Hawaiian tunes as well as Gotham
throats;
The ragtime crowds who try to sing and play from
One week to still another, hoola songs.

Accordingly I voyaged on the ocean.
At last, thought I, I'm going far away.
From ukulele rags and swaying motion,
The incoherent lyrics that they play,
But as the steamer left the noisy city
The band on board strummed—on the open sea—
A syncopating, aggravating ditty
About the darned old beach at Wakiki.

To Europe then and straight across to Asia
I traveled in a stubborn frame of mind.
Determined to believe I had aphasia
And consequently left the past behind.
But when I mingled with the Turk and Persian,
And when they played their dominant refrains,
They won from me my bitterest aversion
By playing hoola-yaaki-hoola strains,
And doggedly I clung to my intention—
My purpose was a tonic to my will—
To lose those songs, whose names I will not mention
For fear that I'll grow faint and weak and ill.

But Fate, the jester, cruel and satiric,
Had not the mind to grant me my desire,
For, everywhere the darned Hawaiian lyric
Received me with its cursed ukutye.
At last, I thought, these instruments pursue me.
I care not now. Let slip the dogs
of song,
And let them pierce their painful mel-
lars through me:
Hawaii is the place where I belong,
And so I traveled thence to Honolulu,
And here's the point of all this lengthy lay:
I never heard a strain of yaaki-hoola
From when I landed till this very day.

Collection of tolls at the Panama Canal during the month of January, amounted to $53,331, while the sales of commissary supplies to ships totaled $36,245.

The Test of War For The Nation and Hawaii

A whole host of steadfast, patriotic, splendid Americans look out of the pages of history today upon the men and women of the United States as we enter war for human rights.

Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, John Adams, Webster, Lincoln, Grant, Garrison, John Paul Jones, Farragut, Franklin, McKinley—the list is endless. Generals, admirals, statesmen—their names ring in this solemn hour like the alarm-bells that summoned the regiments of the Continental Army; like the peal of battle-trumpets; or the boom of the 'Long Tom' with Yankee gunners at the laneyards and Yankee sailors winning the freedom of the seas for a new-born nation.

No nation ever went more deliberately into war than the United States, when at 3 o'clock this morning the lower house of Congress joined the upper in declaring an existing state of armed hostility with Germany.

It is the deliberate conviction of the overwhelming majority of American people that we have borne from Germany all that can be borne without surrendering those inalienable rights we won more than a century ago. It is their deliberate conviction that for the sake of America, for the sake of humanity, it is our plain duty to join in crushing the military power that threatens human liberty everywhere.

Germany's desperation is exhibited in unparelled misdeeds. It is so obvious that every consideration but German success has been thrown to the winds that no argument whatever is necessary. It is also obvious that the war should be brought to a close as quickly as possible, not only for the sake of Europe, but for the sake of the United States, and not only for the sake of our international rights, but for the sake of our domestic happiness and prosperity.

As this war drags on, the drain and stress on the neutral nations grow into almost intolerable suffering. The United States has scarcely felt it, yet already there is evident a vast domestic unrest, born of high and increasing prices, the beginning of shortages in various lines, real privations in the larger cities. Another year of such war and our home hardships will be acute, resting primarily upon the very poor.

In Europe, the Scandinavian countries are on rations. Holland is gravely threatened with food shortage. Greece is in really bad straits. Spain's entrenchment is bringing that country dangerously near to revolution.

Another year of war and these neutrals will be reduced to terrible straits.

How Hawaii Can Help

One immediate and absolutely effective way to meet the possible shortage of foodstuffs in Hawaii is for ninety families out of every hundred in the territory right now to cut down their rate of consumption.

Ninety families out of every hundred are consuming considerably more than necessary in certain lines of luxuries. And shipments of needless luxuries here take up cargo space needed for necessities. This is self-evident, and England has met exactly the same situation by placing the ban on the importation of unnecessary articles.

Perhaps ten families in every hundred in Hawaii are down to a 'bed-rock' basis—they are consuming no more than is absolutely necessary. But in most cases it will be found that a good many articles may be dropped altogether without sacrificing health, comfort or craving of appetite.

It is hardly likely that Hawaii will have to face any material lessening of the food supply. The United States government realizes the situation of these islands and is not likely to demand that our freighters be taken from the Coast-Hawaii run. Yet it is barely possible that cargo-space will be substantially lessened.

The United States is in the war now. We have got to face every fact resulting from that main fact. We have got to face possible and probable results—not as alarmists, not in hysterical timidity, but coolly, deliberately, fully, understandingly.

Yesterday the Star-Bulletin published an Associated Press despatch from Rome. An American agricultural authority, who has been making a survey of world-crops for President Wilson, reports that these crops are short, and urges imperatively the 'mobilization' of American agricultural resources.

What does this mean? If it means anything, it means that we are in, at the very least, for an era of unprecedentedly high prices in foodstuffs, canned goods as well as cereals and other lines. War or no war, it behooves the householder to practise rigid economy.

The American family is notoriously the most profligate, the most wasteful in the world. But we cannot continue to waste if this war is to go on for a year, or two years. And it will not do for America to count the enemy too lightly, hold him too cheaply.

Heavy war taxes for national defense, probably for emergency territorial needs, are a certainty. Just how heavily this new war burden will fall no one can tell. But from every standpoint, Hawaii ought to get on a war basis in the consumption of

Then, too, praying for either death or the end of war, are literally millions of Armenians, Syrians, Persians and other nationalities in Turkish territory and in that devastated zone taken from Turkey by the British, French and Russians.

And all the while Belgium is slowly starving and Poland is in a condition of pitiable need which only peace can alleviate.

It is not alone for America that we enter the war. It is for the neutrals of the world, for the lesser nations dying under the heel of the heartless god of war, for the peoples of the belligerents who in another year or more of war will be the victims of incredible suffering.

Once in the war, Americans face the supreme duty of supporting their country. Let there be no suspicion of lack of unity, lack of hearty cooperation.

Every man now who holds United States citizenship is either absolutely for America, with his heart, mind and body, or he is against America.

There is no middle zone. There is no place on the fence. There is no inch of ground in America for the disloyal citizen.

The fullest support, the most energetic work, the most unflinching voluntary offering of patriotic service is the need of today. It is the need in Hawaii quite as much as anywhere else under the Stars and Stripes.

Patriotic calls now on all Hawaii to put aside factional differences, to thrust away political bickerings, to forget personal squabbles and prejudices, and unite in the work that is before the people of this territory.

In Hawaii, the army, the navy and the marine corps, the civilian federal officials and the territorial administration represent the president and the government of the United States.

They are entitled to the support of the citizens. Anything less than full, fair-cooperation, is wrong, gravely wrong. It is disloyal.

We as a nation have chosen our course. Hawaii's sentiment is unmistakably with what the president and Congress have done. The test of our patriotic loyalty and our patriotic energy is upon Hawaii. It is a test not only of our energies but of our self-control. In this comparatively small community, self-control is necessary to promote order, tranquility, safety.

Impassable history is being made these days. What Hawaii does, what Hawaii's response to the national call shall be, will determine what history shall say of the patriotism of Hawaii's people in 1917.

foodstuffs—not from any 'scare' but as a matter of plain common-sense.

BUSINESS AND THE WAR.

System, that live-wire magazine of business, recently published something about the international crisis which every businessman may well read. Here it is in part:

'The essential thing for us as businessmen to remember now is that war under such conditions as the United States may have to wage it means more for businessmen to do, not less. To keep this steadily in view, and to prepare accordingly, is our new responsibility.'

'It makes little difference what part the United States may take in the war. If it is to be a detached industrial part like Japan's, we have her vigorous industrial revival as an example; if an active military part, like England's, say, we have only to recall how 'Business As Usual' soon proved too mild a motto.'

The time has plainly gone when a country can afford to let its economic life slow up while its men go out and fight. Too great a flow of supplies is needed in modern warfare. Business has become as indispensable a factor in war as any army or navy, and it is as little likely to stagnate under war's influence.

'Of course if a concern is not producing something that is needed in war-time, it may have to shift to something that is. But there will be ample demand for the product of all wisely directed effort. Of that there can be no question.'

'To be sure, individual profits become a consideration distinctly subordinate to national welfare, and that is undoubtedly as the average man would have it. Yet the government will certainly not, by taxation or otherwise, permit returns to be cut below the amount required for healthy operation.'

'War, then, practically ensures plenty of business, and reasonable returns, as long as it is within the power of the government to maintain them.'

'If we are to improve the great opportunity we now have to serve our country, we must cut waste to the bone wherever we can find it. We must train down and cast off useless tissues, like athletes. We must take a fresh view of our affairs, break with hampering tradition, and apply ourselves with energy to every means of increasing strength. Then, whether there be peace or war, a short war or a long one, we shall be so much the more effective in it.'

This upset in Petrograd must have thrown a lot of grand dukes out of jobs.

Insult To Citizens and the Flag

Honolulu, T. H., April 6, 1917. Editor Honolulu Star-Bulletin, Sir: In picking up the 'Advertiser' this morning one of the first articles to meet my eyes very prominently displayed on a front page was the heading of the scurrilous article, 'Flag Upside Down Flutters Above Home of Governor.' The flag above the house where Governor Lucius Eugene Pinkham resides was upside down yesterday. The inference conveyed being that the flag remained in that state during the entire day. Now as to the facts of the case. While I was dressing between 6:30 a. m. and 7 a. m. my telephone rang and a neighbor informed me that the flag was not in proper position. I immediately investigated and corrected the mistake made by a servant. Governor Pinkham naturally knew nothing of the matter until I spoke of it at the breakfast table. The evident intent to insult the governor as well as myself and family is deeply resented—especially at this time when the flag, above all things, is held most sacred in the hearts of all American citizens. The continued daily insults and carping criticisms by the 'Advertiser' to the representative of the president of the United States in this territory is disgusting to all fair-minded citizens and it is to be hoped that some measure will be adopted to insure 'civic decency' against a cowardly and vicious press. CHAS. E. COOPER.

CHILLINGWORTH READY TO SERVE COUNTRY'S CAUSE

President Charles F. Chillingworth of the senate will offer his services to the colors at the close of the present legislature. This he declared today when asked for a statement on the war situation. 'I do not know yet in what branch I shall offer to serve,' he said, 'but I shall try to find where I am needed most and there place myself.'

Chillingworth served in the old days in Company B, National Guard, and has had considerable military training.

Other senators expressed their faith today in the country's stand. 'The president has exercised the utmost patience in this situation,' said Senator Quinn shortly after news that the war proclamation had been signed at Washington. 'For him to have submitted longer to Prussian outrages would have been against the honor of America.'

Senator Castle vigorously denounced the German policy of intrigue and declared it is now up to Hawaii to back the president in all things.

Senator Pacheco voiced a feeling of apprehension that the war crisis may mean serious economic difficulties for the territory.

Senator Baldwin urged the need of the territory's standing back of its national guardians and is endeavoring to get his emergency fund for that purpose through without delay. Senator Conacy sees in the mobilization of the guard a great benefit. It will make real men out of our militia, he says. Three months of intensive training will do more for the guard than years of weekly drills.

ONE GIRL WOULD TAKE POSITION AS MOTORWOMAN

'If my country needs me, I will gladly volunteer to take the place of a man as conductor or motorman on a street car,' said a member of the Y. W. C. A. this morning. 'If the time comes when the women of the association are needed to take the place of the men I am sure that you will not find them hesitating.'

Following the statement of the member of the association was another who said that she would gladly take the place of a salesman for coal, or any other commodity. One young lady said that she could ride a motorcycle, while another offered to take the place of a man in a restaurant.

Members of the staff of the association said today that there has been a number of inquiries about the first aid work, and it is expected that a third class will be formed in this work at a very early date. Nearly every member of the staff has been taking lessons in first aid work, and will be prepared for any contingency.

A SOLDIER'S LOVE

I love the stars in Old Glory. Yes, I love the Red, White and Blue. I love the U. S. soldier boys. Yes, the fighting boys that are true. I love the call of the bugle. As it sounds for reveille. I love the dear old squad room. For it is home, sweet home to me. I love the commands of my officer. Although they are rough and sharp; They make sweet music in my ears. They sound like an angel's harp. I love our twenty-fifth infantry. Although the boys are black. I know they are fighting boys, And no shells can drive them back. I love our thirty-second infantry. For I know the boys will fight. I know they will stick to the Red, White and Blue. And do the thing that is right. I love the field artillery; The boys with the powerful gun. They will hold their ground like Stonewall Jackson. For they are too proud to run. I love, above all, our ninth ambulance company. For they are the helpers of man. They take the wounded from the battle field. Among the bursting shells that destroy life and land. Today is the second of April; Congress has war in hand. If congress says war, we are ready to go. And fight for our beloved land.

CLIMBS ON ENGINE; CALLS FOR HELP AFTER BACK IS BROKEN
CRAIG, Colo.—Although his back was broken and his right side paralyzed by a fall from the cab of an engine on which he was night watchman, Cooper Wren, a young employe of the Moffat road, succeeded in climbing again to the engine cab and blowing the whistle to attract the attention of the engine's crew who were asleep in a nearby rooming house. Examination showed that he had evidently fallen from the cab while attending to his duties as tender and that he had struck on a rail, breaking his back between his shoulders. He cannot recover, according to the doctors.

JAPANESE LOYAL, SAYS EDITOR IN TALK ON CRISIS

"Japanese in Hawaii will be loyal to the flag," said K. Kawamura, city editor of the Nippu Jiji, today. "The Japanese here realize that President Wilson has been patient, and could hardly do anything else under the circumstances."

"President Wilson is making a fight for humanity. He does not war for territory but to preserve the sacred rights of all Americans. When the United States severed relations with Germany the Tokio press complimented President Wilson on the stand taken, and welcomed United States as an ally. Although no word has yet been received from Tokio since the declaration of war, it is certain that the Japanese will welcome the United States as an ally."

"Japan will take care of the Pacific while the United States centers her forces on the Atlantic. In case the Pacific fleet is transferred to the Atlantic, many Japanese believe that Japan will have a squadron ready to defend the western coast of America should there be danger."

"It is known that there are a number of German ships in Mexican ports, and it is thought that they will make a dash for the open sea, and attempt damage. In this case the Japanese navy may cooperate with the American navy in patrolling the Pacific," he concluded.

At the present time there are three Japanese cruisers in this part of the Pacific, or at least it is supposed to be so. Some Japanese believe that these ships may be watching for an attempt of the Germans to send a raider into the Pacific.

Recently the Japanese fleet cooperated with the English fleet in the Indian ocean, and it appears to be the opinion among local Japanese that this will be followed out by these two nations in the Pacific.

ANTIDOTES FOR BODILY POISONS

(By L. H. Smith, M. D.)

The victims of auto-intoxication are many thousand every day. By reason of the toxins, or poisons bred in the intestines, these poisonous bacteria are sent all through the blood channels and the victim feels tired, sleepy and headachy, or the brain doesn't work as usual. The best treatment for this is to drink hot water before breakfast—plenty of water all day and procure a simple laxative, made of May-apple, leaves of aloe, etc., with no calomel and entirely vegetable, which can be obtained at any drug store, known as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Equally important is it to cleanse kidneys and bladder, and drinking plentifully of pure water will cleanse them to a certain extent. Then obtain at the drug store a Little Annie, which was first discovered by Dr. Pierce of Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y. Auric (double strength) should be taken before meals. It is many times more potent than lithia in throwing off the poisonous accumulations of uric acid.

Through failure of kidneys to act, through congestion, inflammation, any person's condition is ripe for disease to fasten its hold upon the system.

Auric has been tested for the past few years for kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles, rheumatism, gout, and such ailments as follow, and so many cases both acute and stubborn have yielded to this wonderful remedy that I do not hesitate to recommend it.—Adv.

ROAD LABORERS' PAY IS RAISED TO 30 CENTS

The board of supervisors yesterday afternoon by unanimous vote raised the pay of the road laborers from 25 to 30 cents an hour.

Larsen moved that the pay be increased 15 per cent and Hollinger amended it to 30 cents.

With only this change the budget for the next three months passed third reading and was approved by the mayor.

Washington died at the beginning of the last hour of the day, of the last day of the week, of the last month in the year, of the last year in the century.

It is believed that the observatory at Peking is the oldest in the world, having been founded in 1279 by Kubla Kahn, the first emperor of the Mogul dynasty.

SENATE WORKS ON MAKING BUDGET

While congress last night debated the war issue in Washington, the local senate, meeting as a committee of the whole, argued out the general appropriation bill for the coming two-year period. The national legislators finished their work at 3 o'clock this morning; the territorial legislators at midnight.

Such action as was taken is not final, necessarily, for the committee has yet to report to the senate proper and the bill must still pass that body. Members of the finance committee of the house sat as guests of the senate committee during the evening.

Castle Announces War Declared
It was shortly after 10 o'clock that Senator Al Castle rose, and everybody supposed it was to argue some question under discussion.

"Gentlemen," he said, "it may be of interest to this body to know that war has been declared."
Silence for a long 10 seconds followed his announcement, then the committee settled back to work. But shortly afterward when the committee returned to the loose ends it had left in the appropriation bill the effect of the war announcement was felt. Brig. Gen. Samuel I. Johnson was given a raise in pay from $400 to $500 a month and the salary of his assistant, Maj. Lawrence Redington, was increased from $200 to $250.

Item by item, sometimes slowly and sometimes swiftly, the committee passed over the bill. It would jump an item involving thousands to hang up soon after on a fraction involved in some individual salary.

There were raises aplenty, however, over the salaries named in the appropriation bill and some of them were as follows: George K. Larrison, hydrographer, $200 to $250; Forester Charles Judd, $300 to $350; Gen. Johnson and Maj. Redington as already named.

Public Works Criticized
The office of the public works department came in for considerable criticism and light bantering during the evening, Chillingworth being the chief questioner as to various items. He thought there were too many engineers on the list. Action on the department was finally deferred.

Considerable discussion arose as to the legality of the emergency fund which the ways and means committee has introduced as a substitute for the governor's contingent fund, as the governor has intimated that he believes the plan is not in accord with the Organic Act.

The question lies in the placing of funds into the hands of the chairman of the two finance committees for distribution—money which they have helped to appropriate. A similar question has arisen over the emergency fund of $100,000 which Senator Baldwin has proposed for the families of national guardsmen rendered destitute through the call to the colors.

Opposition from Senators Chillingworth and Castle rose when Senator Shingle tried to put through his favorite plan of having the surveyor general under the land commissioner. The two buckled Shingle right heavily and it looks doubtful now if the plan will ever carry.

In general, the salaries and items as set down in the appropriation bill introduced by the ways and means committee carried last night with the exception of a number of deferred items and those already detailed in the foregoing paragraphs.

MAN STENOGRAPHER IS WANTED FOR NAVY WORK

A man stenographer is wanted at once by the navy department in Honolulu. He will be enrolled for duty in the commandant's office with the rating of chief yeoman and a salary of $115 per month. A rise to the rank of lieutenant is the next step in the near future. Anyone wishing to answer this call should see Fred G. Cooper at the Pearl Harbor naval station today.

TAX ON FUEL FOR MOTOR VEHICLES PLANNED BY CLUB

Finance Committee is Shown How System Would Increase Revenue for Roads

If gasoline was taxed at 5 cents a gallon and the present system of taxing automobiles, which is 1 cent a pound a year, was done away with, the territory's revenues from machines would increase about 25 per cent, and automobile owners, in many instances, would contribute to these revenues in far smaller amounts than at present.

This is the contention of the Honolulu Automobile Club, members of which appeared before the finance committee of the house of representatives yesterday afternoon in support of the house bill eliminating the present auto tax and placing a tax on fuel used to propel these vehicles.

Figures prepared by the club show that, in 1916, taxes from automobiles amounted to $73,792.80. They also show that, if a tax of 5 cents a gallon had been imposed, the taxes would have amounted to $242,993.75. Jack Warren, for instance, owns a car that weighs 3125 pounds. Therefore, at 1 cent a pound, his annual taxes amount to $31.25. He uses about 50 gallons of gasoline a month. If gasoline was taxed at 5 instead of 1 cent a gallon, his annual taxes would amount to just $4.75 more than he is now paying. If the tax was 5 cents he would pay considerably less.

Circuit Judge C. W. Ashford, father of the bill, pointed out that, in the opinion of the club, the traffic should pay its own way on the roads of the territory. The plan is, he said, to have licenses granted by the treasurer to original dealers in motor fuel, and it would be from these persons only that fuel could be purchased. Consequently, these dealers would add 5 cents to the prevailing price of every gallon of gasoline sold, and every month make a return to the treasurer of the revenues derived from sales.

This revenue, he said, would be distributed among the counties and held as a special fund for the opening, construction and maintenance of roads through the territory. Judge Ashford, illustrating the idea of the traffic paying its way, took as an example a big tractor pulling 19 tons and running about a mile and a half on a gallon of gasoline. Lighter cars, he explained, would be able to run 15 or so miles on a gallon.

The plan includes the taxation of gasoline, naphtha and distillate, and includes all users of this fuel. Judge Ashford added, however, that amendments to the bill might be provided in favor of persons using this fuel for stationary engines and like machines, or that a rebate system to cover these users might be included.

Tax Assessor C. T. Wilder was of the opinion that the principle of the bill is good, but whether it would work out, he added, is another thing to be considered.

FLAW PICKED IN EMERGENCY FUND PLAN OF SENATE

Legislators Are Given Executive Powers Contrary to the Organic Act

According to Attorney General I. M. Stainback, the plan proposed by the senate ways and means committee for an emergency fund to take the place of the governor's contingent fund is illegal.

Stainback expressed his belief today that Senator Baldwin's bill to provide for the families of national guardsmen is in the same category. Both plans are alike in that they place the distribution of funds in the hands of the treasurer and the heads of the finance committees of the two houses.

Stainback said today that while he has not studied the question very fully he is of the belief that both plans are out of joint with the Organic Act.

"The members of the legislature can make laws but they cannot execute them," he says, "and in these plans these two men are placed clearly in control of territorial funds. It is a mixing of executive and legislative powers."

"Also, this distributing committee is practically a board, and all boards must be appointed by the governor according to the Organic Act. The only appointments the legislature is allowed to make are of officers necessary to enable it to discharge duties as a legislative body, such as clerks and messengers."

LECTURE WILL BE ON TIMELY TOPIC

Appropriate to these stirring days will be the lecture by Dr. James R. Judd at the Mission memorial hall tonight. Dr. Judd will tell of the work of the American ambulance in a country in active warfare, with sidelights on happenings and conditions in war time. The pictures to be shown will help to bring home to the audience the seriousness and importance of due preparation in every department in such a crisis.

The lecture will be for the benefit of the fatherless children of France who are cared for by an organization which feeds and clothes them and assures them an education which will fit them to occupy an independent station in life later on. One child is supported for one year at a cost of $75 for food and clothing. It is the aim of the organization to keep families together whenever possible, and the allowance is usually paid to the child's mother. The fathers were soldiers of France who have been killed in the trenches or died in hospital since the beginning of the war.

The admission fee of one dollar is payable at the door. No tickets have been sold. A number of original posters by famous French artists will be auctioned off after the lecture, with M. F. Prosser as the auctioneer. Tomorrow will be a tag day for the benefit of the fatherless children of France and the French Red Cross. Mrs. Walter Dillingham is at the head of the local committee which has arranged the lecture and tag day.

For America!

OUR Country is at war. It behooves us all, individually and collectively, to gravely consider what we shall do in this event.

For nearly two decades our country has been at peace with the world.

Our development has been phenomenal in a commercial way.

Men and corporations have been thinking of themselves, of their social, political, commercial advancements.

Their aims and acts have been toward Individualism.

BUT today our country is at war. Today our paths lead to Nationalism.

Today it is "One for All, and All for One."

Today, our hands, our hearts, our resources, our talents, our time, are no longer for our selves, but for our country.

In the melting pot of Nationalism all our aims are fused into one—to stand between our Country and disaster;

to work, and pray, and fight for the integrity, for the honor, for the Glory of our Land—

WANTS AUTOMOBILE BUT OBJECTS TO CRANKING

The juvenile court officer for girls needs an automobile because of the growth of the work and insists that it be a self-starter. This information was contained in a letter received by the board of supervisors Thursday afternoon from Judge C. W. Ashford and referred to the finance committee. The letter states that the territory to be covered extends often so far from the street car lines that in order to do more effective work an automobile is needed. An expensive make is not wanted. Only one that will give good service and does not have to be cranked.

PLEBISCITE PROHIBITION BILL IS UPHELD BY THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Stainback Prepares Brief Which Upholds Senate Measure and Severely Criticizes House Judiciary for Its Action in Substituting Another Measure for It Upon the Ground That Original Plan Was Illegal

Vigorously scoring the report of the house committee which holds that Senate Bill 33, relating to prohibition by plebiscite, is illegal in respect to its provision which holds that a statute contingent upon a vote of the people is illegal, Attorney General I. M. Stainback has filed an opinion with President Charles F. Chillingworth of the senate.

Stainback maintains that a statute providing that it shall take effect upon a vote of the people is not unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative power. The opinion follows in full: "Honorable Charles F. Chillingworth, President of the Senate, Territory of Hawaii.

"Sir: Pursuant to your oral request made today, I have examined the Report of the House Judiciary Committee on Senate Bill No. 33.

"The report in substance holds that the provision making a statute contingent upon a vote of the people is illegal.

"It attempts to point out a distinction between the rights of State Legislatures and the Territorial Legislature to pass such laws as the one in question, the argument being that a Territory has no inherent power of Government, but only such powers as are delegated by Congress, while a State has all Government powers not delegated to the United States; as stated in the report:

"Any act such as initiative, referendum or other modern form of government which would be legal in a state, cannot be exercised within a Territory unless expressly granted by the power that creates a constitution, to wit, the United States Congress.

"This argument is misleading, for the very simple reason that Congress has provided by Section 53 of the Organic Act.

"That the legislative power of the Territory shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States locally applicable.

(See cases cited in note 2, Sec. 55 Organic Act, as appearing on page 40, H. L. 1915.)

"In other words, in the matter of law making, a State Legislature is limited by the Constitution of the State, and the United States Constitution, and only the United States Constitution and the Organic Act.

"The question then resolves itself into the proposition as to whether a statute which provides that it shall take effect only upon its being approved by a majority of the voters is a rightful subject of legislation, not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States locally applicable.

"Instead of stating that 'Any act such as initiative, referendum or other modern form of Government which would be legal in a State, cannot be exercised within a Territory unless expressly granted by the power that creates a constitution, to wit, the United States Congress,' I would say that any such act is legal unless (expressly or impliedly) prohibited by the United States Constitution or the Organic Act.

"There is no express prohibition in the United States Constitution or the Organic Act. Is there any implied prohibition? "When we examine the authorities, we find, as stated in 23 L. R. A. 113, 'The right of the legislature to refer to the people themselves the question of giving effect to a proposed statute is one that has been denied in a considerable number of cases in which the question was not fairly involved, as well as in a very few cases in which it was involved. Nearly all the cases in which this power is denied have been founded on the Pennsylvania case of Parker v. Com., 6 Pa. 507, and the Delaware case of Rice v. Foster, 4 Harr. 492, which, although decided on the ground that the legislature cannot refer a statute to the people, were in fact local cases and have been, on the express question involved in them, very generally repudiated by later cases, the Pennsylvania case being expressly overruled.

"Since the early cases started out with the denial of the right of the Legislature to pass local option laws which are now almost everywhere held valid, and these local option cases have been largely relied on as authority for the general doctrine that the Legislature cannot refer to a vote of the people, the question of the approval of a law, these general expressions, found any way of recital in various cases, that not be regarded as of very great weight.

"In the opinion of the Justice, 160 Mass. 585, cited in the report of the House Judiciary Committee, Justice Holmes, next to Chief Justice White, the ablest constitutional lawyer now on the Supreme Court of the United States, gave a very vigorous dissenting opinion. Judge Cooley, whose Constitutional Limitations is still the authority on Constitutional Law, in spite of decisions to the contrary upholds the constitutionality of such an act, and quotes with approval the Wisconsin case of Smith v. Janesville, 26 Wis. 291, which holds that:

"An act of the legislature affecting the people of the whole state, is not invalid because, by its terms, it was to take effect only after it should be approved by a majority of the popular vote at a certain election." "State v. Parker, 26 Ver. 357, holds: "Legislation. Submission of laws to the people. The Maine Liquor Law of Vermont was passed to go into effect on the second Tuesday of March 1857, with a proviso, that a vote should be taken in relation to the time when the act should go into operation, and if a majority of the votes cast should be 'no' then the act should go into operation in December 1852—held, constitutional."

"The following quotation from this case is of interest:

"And it is submitted on all hands that the legislature may enact laws, the operation or suspension of which shall be made to depend upon a contingency. This could not be questioned, with any show of reason, or sound logic. It has been practiced in all free states for hundreds of years, and is one of the powers held by the legislature, and is essential to its proper operation."

"Does any one seriously doubt the propriety of the legislature, upon questions of the general policy, affecting equally the whole state, acting upon the known will of the state, where that is known? We suppose not. And if the sessions of the legislature were long enough, this might be maintained during the session—as it is to a considerable extent, sometimes—by petitions, and legislation made to conform to such informally expressed will. But if the sessions are too short, and a more formal expression of the will of the people is desired, amounts to the same thing practically, to provide that the law shall not come into full operation until the people have had an opportunity to say whether they are prepared to conform to the proposed change. And in relation to these great moral, social, and economical reforms, can it be doubted that the question of the preparation of the public mind to sustain them, firmly and quietly, lies at the very foundation of all hopeful legislation on the subject? And is this not precisely what American legislators both state and national have always, in effect, although not in form, been accustomed to do? The legislators have the power to alter county and town laws, and the places of holding courts. But legislation upon these subjects is made to conform, as far as practicable, to the supposed wishes of those interested; and numerous statutes upon these important subjects, whose binding force has never been questioned, have, in terms, been made to depend for their whole force and vitality upon the future contingency of the expressed and recorded corporate vote of those interested. Congress passes laws, almost every session, whose operation is made contingent upon the revenue laws of foreign states, or the navigation laws or regulations, and upon a hundred other uncertainties, more or less affected by the will or agency of voluntary beings or communities; and in most of these cases the suspension or operation of the enactment depends ultimately, perhaps, upon the mere will and agency of our executive government; and of the perfect regularity and constitutionality of such enactments no question was ever made. Numerous other instances may be found where statutes have been made dependent upon future contingencies, not only for the time of their coming in force, but for their very vitality; and no question of their vitality has ever been made upon that ground. This is all recognized as sound law and established precedent by these courts and by those judges who have attempted to argue that a law, made dependent upon a popular vote, was different in principle from one dependent upon other contingencies. But all other attempts seem to me altogether illusory, and, to some extent, capricious, not to say frivolous.

"The recent case of State v. Frear, 125 N. W. 951, holds that: "The legislature though having no right to delegate its power to er to make a law, it can make law to become operative on the happening a certain contingency or on the ascertainment of a fact on which the law makes or intends to make its own action depend."

TELLS WHY ARMY OFFICERS' AUTOS WERE NOT TAXED

Assessor Wilder Says They Wanted Chance to Appear Before Legislature

A bit of preliminary explanation in answer to Speaker H. L. Holstein's resolution directing the finance committee of the house to find out why automobile taxes have not been collected from army officers residing on this island, was voiced at a meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon by Tax Assessor C. T. Wilder.

Holstein's claim is that, although the supreme court has ruled that army officers must pay their auto taxes as well as civilians, for nearly two years no attempt has been made to collect the taxes. He declared on the floor of the house that there is "some power within the government" that is directly responsible for this alleged action on the part of the collectors of revenue.

Officers Wanted Time "Tax Assessor Wilder said that some time ago the judge advocate of the army had come to him and suggested that the army officers owning autos be given a little leeway until such time as they might put their grievance before the legislature—presumably in the form of a measure seeking to exempt army officers from having to pay their automobile taxes.

A few days ago Representative Lorin Andrews introduced a bill to exempt the officers, his ground being, as already outlined in the Star-Bulletin, that officers are neither tourists or permanent residents, but really soldiers, as they are stationed here the way from one to three years, and liable to assignment back to the mainland at any time.

Wilder went on to say that, after his talk with the judge advocate, he held a conference with the governor. "The governor," explained Wilder, "said to me, 'I look very small to collect taxes against army officers when I am trying to get the federal government to spend eight millions on roads here.'

"I then asked the governor 'Do you want to write me a letter and tell me what he says?' "He replied, 'Do you think I am a fool?'"

Brooks Wanted to Know "Attorney R. W. Brooks, who had asked the questions which brought forth these statements from Wilder, and who said he was present in the interest of Speaker Holstein, said, after Wilder had made the last statement:

"That is all I want to know." Wilder added that he had not conferred with the governor on the question since and that this was the only conversation he had ever had with the governor on this question.

The tax assessor went on to say that the judge advocate had prepared a list of all army officers owning automobiles, explaining that if these taxes could not be collected at some time from the officers themselves, the territory could secure the money through Washington.

"I want to see Treasurer C. J. McCarthy and be offered to take the responsibility on his own shoulders," said Wilder, in substance. "These officers wanted a chance to be heard before the legislature and we decided to give them the chance."

Wilder explained that if the army officers do not pay their taxes if the bill to exempt them is killed in the legislature the money can be secured from the government.

Wilder is Puzzled "This question of taxing the automobiles of army officers always has been more or less of a puzzle to me," declared the assessor. "Have I the right to go into a United States military reservation and take out a man's car? Has the territory jurisdiction over the military posts? Have we a right to seize officers' machines on the road? Officers owing such machines might be under orders to go somewhere."

The finance committee still has Holstein's resolution under consideration but when it will report out is not known.

House Approves War By Vote of 373 to 50

(Associated Press Service by Federal Wireless) WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—By a vote of 373 to 50, the house of representatives at 3 o'clock this morning passed the senate resolution declaring the existence of a state of war with Germany.

Immediately following the announcement of the vote, President Wilson stated that he would sign the formal declaration of war just as soon as Vice President Marshall attached his signature to the resolution as passed in the senate.

The debate in the house began yesterday morning at 10 o'clock and lasted continuously until 3 o'clock this morning, when the final rollcall was taken and the long threatened war with Germany was formally entered upon.

DEMOCRATS PLED WITH FLOOR LEADER The debate was strenuous, but lacked the bitterness which had marked the proceedings in the senate on the day before. Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, floor leader of the Democrats, led the opposition to accepting the rage of battle thrown down by the Teuton state, making a hard fight to induce a majority to follow him. Other Democratic leaders and a number of senators endeavored to persuade him to relinquish the fight in which he was so overwhelmingly outnumbered, urging him to support the president. In response, Kitchin said:

"The responsibility which is put upon me at this time is so grave that I cannot permit another to stand sponsor for my conscience. The path of duty has been pointed out to me and I have made up my mind to walk along that path, even if I must go bareheaded and alone.

He refused to be influenced by the pleadings of his friends and stated that he would oppose the administration in this even at the cost of his leadership.

MANN VOTES FOR WAR WITH TEUTONS Representative Mann, who voted for the resolution on the rollcall, counseled the nation to remain patient, even under the affronts of Germany.

There were more than 90 speeches made, the majority in favor of the adoption of the declaration of war, but many against it.

McCullough of Ohio, Republican, late in the evening moved an amendment to the resolution that the military forces of the United States be not transported for service in the war to Europe except by the approval of congress, specifically voted.

As a further amendment, Britton of Illinois, Republican, moved that the use of the military forces in Europe, Asia, or Africa be prohibited without the express approval of congress, unless such troops volunteered for such foreign service.

Both these amendments were voted down, the rollcalls showing that the resolution would be adopted by an overwhelming majority.

At 3 o'clock Flood sought to obtain unanimous consent to close the debate, with the committee rising to present a favorable report on the adoption of the resolution, but there was opposition to this, in which Speaker Champ Clark joined. The speaker stated that in so serious a matter there should be every opportunity afforded for a full and free discussion, with every member given an opportunity to speak who might so desire.

The debate then continued, lasting until 5 o'clock in the morning. By 2 o'clock more than 80 members had spoken.

The rollcall began at a quarter to three and it was soon apparent that the resolution would be adopted, only about one out of eight recording a negative vote.

Woman Member Votes "No" Miss Jeannette Rankin of Montana, the sole woman representative, sat during the rollcall with bowed head and twice her name was called by the clerk without any answer. On the third call she stood up, sobbing. "No matter what stand my country make take in this," she said, "I can not cast my vote for war." She supported herself against her desk, recording her vote as "No."

Those who voted against the resolution declaring a state of war with Germany on the rollcall in the house at Washington were: Almon of Alabama, Democrat; Britton of Illinois, Republican; Bacon of Michigan, Republican; Brown of Wisconsin, Republican; Burnett of Alabama, Democrat; Cary of Wisconsin, Republican; Church of California, Democrat; Connally of Kansas, Democrat; Cooper of Wisconsin, Republican; Davis of Minnesota, Republican; Decker of Missouri, Democrat; Dill of Washington, Democrat; Dillon of South Dakota, Republican; Dominick of South Carolina, Democrat; Esch of Wisconsin, Republican; Frear of Wisconsin, Republican; Haugen of Iowa, Republican; Hayes of California, Republican; Henson of Missouri, Democrat; Hildlard of Colorado, Democrat; Hull of Iowa, Democrat; Igoe of Missouri, Democrat; Johnson of South Dakota, Republican; Keating of Colorado, Democrat; King of Illinois, Democrat; Kinkaid of Nebraska, Democrat; Kitchin of North Carolina, Democrat; Knutson of Minnesota, Republican; LaFollette, Washington, Republican; Littlepage of West Virginia, Republican; London of New York, Socialist; Lundeen of Minnesota, Republican; McLemore of Texas, Democrat; Mason of Illinois, Republican; Nelson of Wisconsin, Republican; Randall of California, Democrat; Rankin of Montana (only woman representative), Republican; Reavis of Nebraska, Democrat; Roberts of Nevada, Republican; Rodenburg of Illinois, Republican; Shackelford of Missouri, Democrat; Sherwood of Ohio, Democrat; Sloan of Nebraska, Republican; Stafford of Wisconsin, Republican; Van Dyke of Minnesota, Democrat; Voight of Wisconsin, Republican; Wheeler of Illinois, Republican, and Wood of Iowa, Republican.

GERMAN SHIPS IN U. S. PORTS SEIZED

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless) WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—Having learned his lesson Uncle Sam moved quickly yesterday, and immediately after the declaration of war officials in Boston, New London and elsewhere seized the German refugee ships before their crews had an opportunity to sink them or to further injure them, as they did following the breaking off of diplomatic relations.

The orders to seize the ships were sent out to take effect immediately after the passage of the resolution. Officials here, in speaking of the matter said that it was a "measure of safety," and added, that the government has not yet reached any decision regarding the vessels, and that it is not known whether they will be taken over and paid for after the war, or held as legitimate war prizes.

In New London, Conn., the Wilhelm was taken over by the authorities without trouble, and in Boston, Mass., the great steamers America, Cincinnati, Willekid and Kohn Ockenfels were seized.

AUSTRALIA CAREFUL OF AMERICAN INTERESTS

(By Associated Press) MELBOURNE, Australia.—Refugees to American firms represented in Australia was made by the prime minister, Mr. Hughes, lately. When a deputation from the anti-German League of Victoria waited upon him to propose legislation to prohibit firms from using names suggesting British or Australian nationality unless the stockholders were British or Australians, Mr. Hughes replied: "If the mercantile and industrial community is prepared to support me I will introduce legislation to prevent firms in fact foreign from trading under British names. The deputation is trading on dangerous ground in speaking of American firms, for today America is neutral but tomorrow she may be an ally and legislation reflecting on her cannot be introduced."

PANAMA CANAL ORDERED CLOSED SUNSET TO SUNRISE

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless) COLON, Colombia, April 6.—As a war measure, orders were issued yesterday closing the canal, at both terminals, between sunset and sunrise, during which hours no vessels will be allowed either to enter or depart.

Commencing from tonight, all lights marking the entrance channels to the transisthmian waterway will be extinguished.

JAMES LYLE, VETERAN SHIPBUILDER, DIES IN BERKELEY; CAREER NOTABLE

Member of Line of Builders, He Had Worked on Famous Clipper Craft

James Lyle, the veteran shipbuilder and a resident of Honolulu for 34 years, died at a sanitarium in Berkeley, Cal., this morning. The news came to his eldest son, J. Alex. Lyle, in a cablegram which stated the remains, accompanied by the widow and a daughter, Mrs. C. V. Starbuck, would come in the Great Northern.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle went to San Francisco in the steamer Manoa last July, partly for their health and partly for some business affairs of Mr. Lyle. He had a hard time on the voyage, having but recently recovered from a stroke of paralysis, and soon after arrival the couple took up their residence in the sanitarium.

On October 4 occurred the 62d anniversary of their marriage.

James Lyle was born at Dartmouth, on Halifax harbor, Nova Scotia, December 11, 1853, which makes his age at death 83 years and nearly four months. He was virtually born to the craft of shipbuilding for, with the exception of times he was constructing marine railways, he was engaged in that occupation from the time he quit school until a few years ago, when he retired from the management of the Honolulu Marine Railway, to be succeeded by his eldest son.

Mr. Lyle's father built clipper ships for Cunard, founder of the famous Cunard line, which carried the mails across the Atlantic before the days of steam navigation. Ten or 12 years ago an item went the rounds of the world's press saying that the Dartmouth ferryboat Sir Charles Ogle was then the oldest steam vessel on British registry and still in service. The elder Lyle built that little craft—the first steamboat ever built in British North America—more than 90 years ago, afterward building the steamer Pocahontas for traffic between Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

Was Noted Shipbuilder Having served a regular apprenticeship with his father, James Lyle, when quite a young man, removed to the United States. He worked for some time in the building yards of the late eminent shipbuilder, Donald McKay, at East Boston. He helped to build from start to finish the illustrious clipper ship Sovereign of the Seas, which made the record trip of 104 days from Honolulu to New Bedford, Mass. The Flying Cloud, Staghound and other famous clippers of those days were also vessels on which he wrought. Other yards in which Mr. Lyle worked were at Medford, Mass.; Danvers, Me., and Mallory's at Mystic, Conn., the owners of the last named being the founders of the Mallory line of steamers between New York and the West Indies.

Mr. Lyle was construction foreman for the late Horace I. Crandall in building the patent marine railways of British America, also on the Rio de la Platte Uruguay, and at Honolulu. He came here with Mr. Crandall to build the marine railway about 34 years ago, when the work was completed taking the superintendency of the railway for the original lessee, the late Samuel G. Wilder, and after a few years, in partnership with the late Mr. Sorenson, taking over the lease from the government at first hand. For some years after the death of Mr. Sorenson he continued the business under the same firm name, his partner's estate retaining the half interest, until he retired in favor of his son, James Alex. Lyle, who now superintends the floating drydock built by the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, which has superseded the old "ways" that did as much as anything else in its time to make Honolulu famous. One red letter incident in the history of the marine railway was a letter of appreciation from the navy department, Washington, for the excellent work done on the U. S. S. Nigah, while occupying the cradle after having been towed here from Samoa, a derelict from the disaster to American and German warships at Asia in 1899.

Fellow Workers Notable Two of Mr. Lyle's fellow apprentices in his father's shipyard became notable in the same line. One was a Mr. Jenkins, who made a fortune out of a marine railway in Port Adelaide, South Australia, leaving the works to a son. The other was a Mr. Mackay, who became the owner of East India-men. Both of these companions of his youth married sisters of Mr. Lyle—in the case of Jenkins two of them, he having married his deceased first wife's sister. A son of Mackay is Lord Inchcape of the British peerage, who was called after his uncle, the subject of this sketch. As Sir James Lyle Mackay he passed through Honolulu about 14 years ago, returning from a diplomatic mission to China. Mr. and Mrs. Lyle, with their grandchildren, now Mrs. Hugo Herzer, were at the time absent on a tour around the world, in the course of which they visited relatives in the United States, Canada, Australia and Scotland, including the Mackay family in the last-mentioned country. Lord Inchcape is one of the largest steamship owners in the world, and has served in the Council of the Viceroy of India.

Celebrate Golden Wedding On October 24, 1904, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle celebrated their golden wedding. They were married at Mystic, Conn., by the Rev. Mr. Cogswell on October 24, 1854. At the time of the golden anniversary it was stated that the Methodist church in which the ceremony took place was still standing, though moved from its original site, and that the venerable couple had revisited the shrine in 1902. Mrs. Lyle was born at Mystic, Conn., of very old New England stock. Her maiden name was Burrows and her ancestral relatives figure numerous in the muster rolls of the Revolution and the pre-revolution Indian wars, as may be seen in the records of the Connecticut Historical Society in the Honolulu law library. The couple have lived together to see their descendants to the third generation, four generations including themselves having many times been assembled in one room here.

Ten Children Born Ten children were born to them, of whom a son and a daughter are dead. There are four sons and four daughters surviving, with their widowed mother, the sons being James A. of Honolulu, Horace C. of Riddle, Ore., William L. and Samuel of Honolulu; and the daughters, Mrs. Annie Logan of Honolulu, Mrs. Sarah Dow of San Francisco, Mrs. Ida Starbuck of San Francisco, Cal., and Mrs. Mary Winslow of Spokane, Wash. There are 21 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

A curious fact noted in a report of the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle was that, while their descendants are, on the mother's side, of American citizenship, eligible to membership in the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, they are equally entitled, on the father's side, if British subjects, to be enrolled in any society of descendants of the United Empire Royalists, for Mr. Lyle's grandfather was one of the Royalists who left their happy homes in the times of 1783 rather than take up arms against King George.

Stood For Good Government James Lyle was a man of high principles, strong religious convictions and sturdy integrity, who always in his life sided quietly but never less staunchly with good government. He was a liberal giver to causes that he deemed worthy, as well as generous in aiding business schemes of persons that he thought deserving. One of the pioneers in backing the plumbing industry, the steadfastly refused to sacrifice his investment therein when others were "getting under" in the era of depression.

His Hawaiian investments were mostly fortunate, and he leaves a considerable estate as the fruit of a long life of toil and thrift, every dollar's worth of which is stamped with the hallmark of honesty.

Soldier Appeals To The 'Boys In Khaki'

Here is an appeal "To the Boys in Khaki" from one of themselves, received by the Star-Bulletin this morning:

Today our country is entered in the greatest conflict ever known, and the date of our "Declaration of War" will go down in the world's history as one of the most if not the most important events of the twentieth century.

Today we, the trained men of the service, are called upon to form the backbone of our nation's greatest army, which will be raised with all possible speed.

This mass will be built around us and our nation will be all dependent upon us until this force can be trained and equipped, ready for the field. Therefore, we men of our present standing army hold the destiny of the nation in our hands.

We are the greatest factor in this great move, and we must show the people of our commonwealth that the men of the army can do their share without a whimper.

Remember, we are fighting a nation and her allies who tread upon our flag, our pride, our honor, as though they were dust, trying to draw us into this conflict. Now let us show them that Old Glory was made to fly above all flags and that the true American Patriotism outshines them all, and that the men of the service deserve a place in our fellowmen's hearts. Let's make them proud of the Army they help support.

And boys, all of us will not return to our lovers and homes, but we die doing our duty to our country as she did to the universe in declaring war.

CLARENCE CHESTER.

PICTURE BRINGS HORRORS HOME

When a large audience at the Bijou theater last night saw living on the screen the hands of the invaders at the throats of unprotected women, as depicted by "The Battle Cry of Peace," many of them realized for the first time the horrors of the bloody business of war.
This stern dictum was launched by the first president of the United States and is just as true today as it was when uttered by the immortal Washington. To prove the truth of this statement "The Battle Cry of Peace" was made by a former naval man, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, after he had read Hudson Maxim's "Defenseless America."
The book burned its way into the soul of the producer and with the motion picture as a vehicle he has sought to burn the purpose of the book into the minds and hearts of Americans. The message is one that has been heard before—"Prepare!" But as expressed in the big photodrama its true meaning came to the audience last night with a shock that struck at the throat, at the pit of the stomach and at the heart itself.

THEDA BARA WINS HOST OF FRIENDS

Theda Bara is undoubtedly making a host of new friends and admirers during her present visit to the Hawaii theater in the role of "Cigarette" in "Under Two Flags." It is a "new" Theda Bara that greets packed houses twice each evening, a Theda Bara that is lovable and not repulsive. This artist, and she is entitled to all that the word implies, has a large number of admirers for her ability as an actress. Those who are in sympathy with her, however, are shocked at many of the roles she is called upon to characterize. Not so as "Cigarette."
The story, as written by Ouida in the mid-Victorian era, is filled with excitement and thrills as is the film, as produced by William Fox. There is a touch of Orientalism, of the desert brand that is most interesting and gives a clear insight into some of the life of that strange people who claim the desert as "home." The scenes are laid in Algiers and, it may be well to remark, Theda Bara is right at home in these scenes as she was born and reared on the very desert she is called upon to work in for the film.

'SEVENTEEN' IS FULL OF LAUGHS

Most refreshing is "Seventeen," the current offering at the Liberty theater, for the reason that it gets well away from the ruck into which the photodrama has drifted during recent years. It is devoid of any serious plot—as much so as the usual musical comedy—and is a genuine comedy from end to end.
Booth Tarkington is the scenario writer and he is easily recognized in the play. He has taken a genuine "Penrod" type with a few more years on the youth's shoulders and given him a rather serious turn of mind—in so far as the gentler sex is concerned. There is still a "Penrod" in the story but it is a feminine one, the sister of the "hero," and her antics on the screen are comparable to those of "Penrod" in the stories.
Jack Pickford appears in the leading male role, and this young man is making rapid strides in the screen. "Louise Lure," as the "First of seven" is a delightful little lady.

COSTUME BALL IS SET FOR APRIL 12

The new Matson liner Maui will arrive in Honolulu next Thursday, April 12, according to present advices, and Manager Moront of the Moana Hotel is planning to make the costume ball on the evening of her arrival the most elaborate affair of welcome which has been seen since the days of the old regime. If the Maui's schedule is changed again to bring her here on a different date the costume ball will be held on the evening of the day on which the steamer arrives.
Little less than a week now remains in which to plan and finish costumes for the affair which is the first fancy dress ball of the season. A number of surprises have been planned for the enjoyment of the guests on that evening. Tickets for the function may be obtained at any of the Territorial Hotel Company's hostels.

WOMEN OF ENGLAND FEEL STRESS OF WAR; MET WITH WILLINGNESS

[By Associated Press]
LONDON, Eng.—Wealthy and distinguished women of England are as cognizant of the sacrifices required of them in these days of stress as their poorer and less fortunate sisters. Hence they are forced to give up many pre-war temptations which make them want to buy things they should not in the interest of economy. This temptation lurks in motorcars and taxicabs, in books, flowers, theater parties, dresses—all the pleasant things of life every woman likes.
Anxious to find out the biggest war-time temptations of leading women, a local society reporter found them all giving up something for economy sake.
Mrs. John Robertson, formerly Maud Mosher, an American woman, the wife of the widely known parliamentarian said that music was her greatest temptation. "I want to hear good music," she said. "I can economize without much trouble in everything else. I miss a good concert, a recital or the opera more than anything else."
Miss Cowdry, wife of the former business man of England, said that her hospital work kept her so much occupied she did not have time to regret the luxuries of peace times. "I miss our horses most of all," she said. "We have given up all ours on account of the war. For the twelve motor cars we had before the war we have one now, but that means nothing. Only the loss of the horses counts."
Lady Swaythling, wife of Lord Swaythling, the banker, said: "My greatest temptation was to continue to go which I am passionately fond of, but I have given it up for the war. We do not forbid our

"A referendum on any general law is constitutional because the power to make the law is not thereby delegated to the electors."
"The case further holds that there is no distinction between general and local laws and no reason exists for applying a different rule to a local law than that applicable to a general law on the question whether the law shall not become operative until approved by the people. The opinion states:—

"It is well settled that while the legislature may not delegate its power to make a law, it can make to become operative on the happening of a certain contingency or on the ascertainment of a fact upon which the law makes or intends to make its own action depend."
"Citing many authorities, again the court says:—

"We think this court was right in saying in State ex. rel. Attorney General v. O'Neill, and Smith v. Janesville, that no good reason existed for applying a different rule to a local law than applicable to one not local. In reference to the distinction between the right of referendum as to local and general laws, Judge Cooley asked these pertinent questions which are not answered by the cases in those courts which recognize such distinction. 'May not any law framed for the State at large be made conditional on an acceptance by the people at large declared through the ballot box? If it is not constitutional to delegate to a single locality the power to decide that it be governed by a particular charter, must it not as fairly be within the power of the legislature to refer to the people at large the decision upon any proposed statute affecting the whole State?'"

"As pointed out in numerous authorities, including the Supreme Court of the United States, there is no question but that a law can be passed by a legislative body to take effect only upon the happening of a subsequent event. Brig. Aurora, 7 Cranch, 332; Marshall Field & Co. v. Clark, 143 U. S. 649, and authorities cited therein. "However, the case denying the constitutionality of referendum acts attempt to distinguish between a contingency which is the will of the people of the State, and any other contingency. For example: The case of Bartow v. Hired, 3 N. Y. 483, cited in the report of the Committee, states:—

"There is no doubt of the authority of the legislature to pass an act to take effect upon a contingency. But what is a contingency in this sense and connection? It is some event independent of the will of the lawmaking power, as, for example, in making the law, or some event over which the legislature has not control. For instance, the embargo laws and their cessation were made to depend upon the action of foreign powers in relation to certain decrees. . . . The will of the people is not a contingency upon which certain things are or are not to be done under the law, but it becomes the determining power whether such shall be the law or not."

"This argument has been effectively answered in numerous cases, including State v. Parker, supra, in which it is stated—

"If the operation of the law may fairly be made to depend upon a future contingency, then, in my apprehension, it makes no essential difference what is the nature of the contingency, so it be an equal and a fair one, a moral and legal one, not opposed to sound policy, and so far connected with the object and purpose of the statute as not to be a mere idle and arbitrary one."

"It seems to me that the distinction attempted between the contingency of a popular vote and other future uncertainties, is without all just foundation in sound policy or sound reasoning, and that it has too often been made more from necessity than choice—rather to escape from an overwhelming analogy, than from any obvious difference in principle in the two classes or cases; for, as has been mentioned, one may find any number of cases in the legislation of Congress, where statutes have been made dependent upon the shifting character of the revenue laws, or the navigation laws, or commercial rules, edicts, or restrictions of other countries."

In some, perhaps, these laws are made by representative bodies, or, it may be, by the people of these states, and, in others, by the lords of the treasury, or the boards of trade, or by the proclamation of the sovereign; and in all these cases, no question can be made of the perfect legality of our acts of Congress being made dependent upon such contingencies."

"Also, see the case of People v. Collins, 2 Mich. 343, and especially the note to the Annotated Edition which states:—

"This decision is clearly put, and is obvious, but its relevancy to the argument rests on the assumption that the legislature may make a law depend on any other contingency than the popular will, but cannot make it depend on that. It may lawfully say that if it shall rain on a given day at the state capital, then and thereafter the sale of spirituous liquors throughout the state shall be unlawful, but if it shall be fair weather on that day at that place, then the sale of spirituous liquors throughout the state shall be lawful. Neither Ruggles, of N. Y., Wins, Pratt, Douglass and Copeland of Mich., nor Justice Woodward, of Iowa, doubts that any contingency which is independent of the popular will and of the legislature could be constitutionally made the condition upon which the law should take effect, because any such contingency leaves the legislators to their full share of responsibility to their constituents, and does not delegate to or share with any other party the question of the expediency of the bill becoming a law. The judicial mind does not take cognizance of the wisdom of the contingency upon which the law is to take effect, for this would clearly invade the province of the legislature. If the legislature make it dependent, like the movements of the Roman armies under the generalship of the oracles, upon the flight of geese and the cackling of birds, it is constitutional. But if the contingency is one that permits the people to exercise a choice, the law, or at least this feature of it, is void."

"This note also clearly points out that the attempted distinction between the legality of making a prohibitory or other act go into effect in any city or town upon vote of the people, and the legality of such a provision for a general act, is absurd and foolish."

"Certainly there is no express language in any state constitution declaring that a legislature may leave to the vote of a school district the question whether it shall have a school, or to the vote of a town or county the question whether a statute authorizing the issue of bonds or the sale of liquors or township organizations, shall be accepted or rejected within that particular local subdivision of the state. Yet from time immemorial such acts have been and are all clearly constitutional. (See the numerous cases cited in Note 4, on p. 119, Cooley on Constitutional Limitations.) Nor is there any express clause in any state constitution declaring that the moment the same thing is done for the entire state it is unconstitutional. Yet the courts generally so decide. See Thorne v. Cramer, 15 Barb. 112; Bradley v. Baxter, id. 122; Barto v. Himrod, 4 Seld. 483; 44 Harrington (Del.) 479; Commonwealth v. Williams, 11 Penn. 61; and Parker v. Commonwealth, 6 Barr. 507. How fine and keen must be that judicial scent which can, at once, certify clearly the utter absence of the least trace or taint of unconstitutionality in a law so long as it is special, and applies to only fifty-nine counties of the sixty that may be in a state, but when it is extended to the sixtieth county, perceives that the whole air is not some and poisoned by the taint of that greatest of all crimes, an overthrow of the constitution. And how fortunate it is that our happily constructed and divinely perfect constitutions have had the forethought to give the judges the last guess on the question of overstepping power. For if the legislature had the 'last guess' as to what the law really is on this question, they might irreverently 'guess' that the judges, in subjecting the legislature will to the operation of those invisible clauses in the constitution which have their existence in the judicial mind alone, such as the clause which gives the power to the legislature to submit a prohibitory liquor law to the people of one or more counties, but denies the power to submit the same law to the people of a state, were themselves trenching on the legislative power."

"As stated before, the U. S. Supreme Court has frequently upheld the right to pass an act to take effect upon a happening of a subsequent event, and have made the determination of the event rest upon the act or will of the individuals. Recent United States acts and decisions thereon by the U. S. Supreme Court relate to liquor legislation. For example: The decision on the Wilson Act, upholding the constitutionality of an act of Congress forbidding the sale of liquor in a state in an original package, even although brought in through interstate commerce, when the existing or future State laws forbade sale of intoxicants. In re Rehner, 140 U. S. 345.

"It will be seen that the point urged in this case was that the power of regulating interstate commerce is in Congress and that Congress cannot delegate its own powers to, nor enlarge those of a state. As stated in the decision, it was said—

"It does not admit of argument that Congress can either delegate its own powers or enlarge those of a state, nor can Congress transfer legislative power to a state."
"But the Court held in this decision, as well as in the decision on the Webb-Kenyon Act, that arguments as to delegation of legislative power to the states is sound; that these laws rest upon the same principle as the local option laws which is not a delegation of power to make a law, but the enactment of a law to take effect upon a certain state of facts. The late decision on the Webb-Kenyon Act, Clark Distilling Co. v. Western Maryland Co., contained in the United States Advanced Opinions of February 15, 1917, holds that such act is not a delegation by Congress of legislative authority. The law is enacted by the Congress of the United States, though it becomes effective in a particular state only upon a legislative act by the state. Likewise, the Territorial Legislature can pass an act and make the same effective when the people of the Territory vote approval without delegating the legislative authority to those who determine the condition which makes the law go into effect."

"The act under recent Federal Act of March 3, 1917, to-wit, the rider to the Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ending June 30 1918, forbids the mailing of liquor advertisements addressed to any place in any state or territory at which it is or may be unlawful to solicit orders for such liquors. I received by the last mail a letter from the solicitor of the Post Office Department asking for any Hawaiian Statute which may be applicable to such matter, if any exist or may be hereafter enacted; in other words, a State Territorial statute may have the effect of making an act a Federal crime which was not a Federal crime before such state or territorial legislature's enactment. It is well settled that Congress cannot delegate its authority to a state, is this delegation of Federal legislative authority to a state? The solicitor does not question the constitutionality of this act, neither do I; the act is similar to the Webb-Kenyon Act, the Wilson Act and the numerous laws which go into effect upon a contingency, whether that contingency be an act of nature, an act of rulers of other nations, peoples of other nations or the voters of the state, or people of the particular state."

"We may conclude then by saying that there is authority holding such acts illegal as a delegation of legislative authority as cited by the report of the Committee (though the foundations of these decisions have been destroyed by subsequent decisions, yet, I believe that I am safe in saying that both our own Supreme Court, which has adopted a liberal and enlightened view upon the constitutionality of legislative acts, and the Supreme Court of the United States, which has always been extremely reluctant to declare a legislative act unconstitutional, would uphold the constitutionality of the provision in question."

"All the authorities (including United States Supreme Court decisions) hold that the operation of the law may be made to depend upon a future contingency, that such legislation is not inconsistent with the Constitution, and in the language of State v. Parker, supra, it seems to me that the distinction attempted between the contingency of a popular vote and other future uncertainties, is without all just foundation in sound policy or sound reasoning."

Respectfully,

WIVES OF SOLDIERS TO CARRY MAIL IN THE CITY OF PARIS

PARIS, France.—Women letter carriers will soon be delivering mail in Paris. This method will be an experiment and preference will be given to wives of soldiers.

Some doubt has been expressed as to whether the women would be able to shoulder the wooden box that the Paris postmen carry without being too greatly fatigued. The wooden boxes now are well filled, since several mail deliveries have been suppressed or consolidated with others. Sometimes also the mail from the United States is so heavy as to greatly increase the weight of the boxes.

Recently women tried to replace the postmen at Neuilly, a suburb of Paris, but they lasted only three days. The postal administration, however, hopes that the Paris experiment will be more successful.

PENSION LAW IN PHILIPPINES IS WORKING POORLY

[By Associated Press] MANILA, P. I.—While every bureau of the Philippine government has suffered in the past six months since the passage of the law which enables the American civil service employes of more than six years' standing to retire on a small pension extending over three years, the bureau of agriculture reports the heaviest loss from resignations and retirements. Fully fifty per cent of the Americans in this important bureau have left the government service.
