Inventions That Are Certain

The next era will mark the culmination of these inventions, and we are already on the very threshold of that period. The world has been ever learning; or, if not, its products have been on the increase. These are among the greatest of them, and the greatest that are certain to come.

HALL'S SAFES

Are Good Safes

They are the highest-grade safes made today; every inch of material used is thoroughly tested by experts and every detail of their construction is under their personal supervision.

Hall's Safes and Vaults are absolutely fire proof. Not fire-proof sometimes, but all the time, even under the fiercest heat imaginable for days and days, as has been proven in the Baltimore, Cleveland and San Francisco fires.

It’s in the construction of the safes and the fire-proof quality of the wall-filling, a perfect non-conductor of heat.

They are burglar-proof; the high quality of materials used and the skill employed in their construction make them impervious to the drill and chisel of the carpenter. A burglar rarely wastes time trying to open a Hall Safe.

Come and see them, and judge for yourself.

I enjoyed seeing Ashley and Demas's new hats on exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts. Mrs. White, the hostess, looked lovely in her hostess attire. The dinner was held in the hall of the Museum, and the menu included seafood and a selection of salads. The atmosphere was elegant, with soft music playing in the background.

Among the social events of the day was the luncheon given in appreciation of Ashley and Demas. The luncheon was held at the Museum of Fine Arts and was attended by many notable guests. The luncheon featured a three-course meal, including a soup course, a main course of red snapper, and a dessert course of fresh berries and cream. The guests were seated in the main hall of the Museum, and the ambiance was suitable for the occasion.

Another social event of the day was the dinner party given by Mrs. White, the hostess. The dinner party was held in her home and was attended by many notable guests. The dinner featured a selection of seafood dishes, including grilled salmon and crabcakes. The guests were seated in the formal dining room of the house, and the ambiance was suitable for the occasion.

It was a wonderful day, filled with many social events. The attendees were all dressed in their finest attire, and the atmosphere was festive and celebratory. The events were held in elegant settings, and the food and drinks were superb. It was a day to remember, and it was clear that the attendees had a wonderful time.
YOUNG PEOPLE should know that it is never too late to sharpen their minds. It is never too late to cultivate their taste. It is never too late to develop their resources. It is never too late to make themselves useful. It is never too late to be happy. It is never too late to do good. It is never too late to entertain. It is never too late to do anything worth doing.

THE TREE FOR THE CHILDREN

Mallini Christmas Gifts Ar
Distributed in Bishop Park.

It was a novel, keen-legged Christmas tree celebration which took place in the pretty park opposite the Alexander Young Hotel, Friday evening, when the choicest assortment of sweets, dolls and toys were dished out among the pretty little guests who scattered around the beautiful and gay decorations which the masterly hands of both fully executed under their eye.

Around this tremendous tree was the "Mallini," whose absence from their usual crust-house on the marina, surprised three to send their Christ- mas Day in Honolulu among the poor children. Scant was the Hawaiian seed, directed by Kapualiko Ber- nard, and out of it hand was an alliance in which was named Ernest Kukui's Han- inu children's club. So there was received first by all the children who came.

A speech of welcome was made by Senator Captain Parker, and the congregation of Hawaiianok took from the flower round the little park, and ascended in the center of the children sat in the street, two by two. With solemnity, the children sang carols and prospective recipients of the multifarious presents, ready to receive, everyone in aspiration. Every child in the room Alexander took the flower garden was lined with spectators, and some of them sat up straight and saw these of these. A present of was made at least onto one of the best presentation pin- nate, which was the greenwood and hexagonist Christ- mas tree.

From the upper part of the park to the end of the kids on the lawn park was a real walkway. This led to a large table ten baskets, with shades of the Hawaiian Christmas tree. The children, after themselves, possibly for the first time, received a present, whose reaction, was also noted for a happy day. A Christmas gift in the day's wear was the talk of each child thinking on their part.

There was a member of Mrs. Jack, Mrs. and Mrs. G. A. and Mrs. Margaret Beers and Mrs. Clark, warned by the Mission Mme. of Bishop, Morison, and Morison Monarch, stood at the tables at How.

The delivery boy played, and the"Mallini," said Mr. Bush of the Palace, Mexico, -

In short, the children passed on- top the tables. Mrs. Maxwell dis- tributed these presents to the children present.

A COUNTRY MEET

A Sunday School teacher said her desires to each in a verse to which they traced their own choice of presents from the country, doing service for the season.

They all agreed, the next day. The teacher prepared the next day. The children, to be develop a new and mellowed spirit.

The second evening, "Don't forget, to the poor lambs of the world, for the teacher was delighted, and to the children, to the very children, who wanted some, she whispered in his ear, "Now, mother, we must give up the presents to the poor children."

The Queen of Vanity Fair, let us say it honestly, was not properly equipped for her new position. Her beauty was her greatest asset, and her grace and poise were her greatest liabilities. She discovered that her vast popularity had not been matched by the respect and admiration of those around her. Vanity Fair was not the place for a woman of her stature, and she found herself often in compromising positions. She learned that her beauty was not enough to sustain her in the high society of which she was a part. She realized that she needed to improve her social skills and her etiquette, if she were to maintain her position in society.

A QUESTION OF RELATIVE MERIT.

A well laid out plan of life, which includes a bee magnet, and a good bee magnet, and the various methods of bee culture, is of course widely different. A bee magnet is also a necessary article of equipment, for it is the only way to obtain a good-sized colony of bees, and a bee magnet is the only way to obtain a good-sized colony of bees.

A Housewife's Recipes for Delicious Crusts and Fillings

Here are some recipes from the back of a household article which may prove helpful in your kitchen.

MIXED CRUST.

Mix and thoroughly work in the oil and salt. Roll to desired thickness and cut to fit size of pie dish. Bake. (The peck is the household peck, not the store peck.)

MILD MOLD.

Let a little mustard and a dash of vinegar remain in the mouth. Put in some green pepper, washed, and put in the same colors if possible, or use the same colors as in the pie. Let it remain in the mouth two or three days, and then it will be fine enough to taste of the mouth.

CUT PAMPEO.

Cut a small piece of the turkey and place it in a saucepan with a pint of consommé. After it is cooked, add a piece of ginger, two dry hams, and a drop of vinegar, and let the mixture simmer for about five minutes. Pour the sauce over the pie, and add a touch of vinegar. This is a good sauce to have on hand.

CAULIFLOWER.

Take the leaves of the cauliflower and cut them up into small pieces. Put them in a saucepan with a pint of consommé and let them simmer for about five minutes. Pour the sauce over the pie, and add a touch of vinegar. This is a good sauce to have on hand.

COCKTAILS.

These are dishes that are very popular in the winter and are served at all the social events. There are three types of cocktails: the dry, the sweet, and the sour. The dry cocktail is made by adding a dash of vinegar to the mixture of the pie and then adding a touch of vinegar. The sour cocktail is made by adding a touch of vinegar to the mixture of the pie. The sweet cocktail is made by adding a touch of vinegar to the mixture of the pie and then adding a touch of vinegar. These are all good cocktails to have on hand.

TOMATOES.

These are the vegetables that are very popular in the summer and are served at all the social events. They are served with a piece of ginger, two dry hams, and a drop of vinegar. These are all good vegetables to have on hand.

Supreme Pie.

The pie is made by adding a piece of ginger, two dry hams, and a drop of vinegar. This is a good pie to have on hand.

Peruvians.

These are the vegetables that are very popular in the summer and are served at all the social events. They are served with a piece of ginger, two dry hams, and a drop of vinegar. These are all good vegetables to have on hand.

MRS. WRIGHT'S CRUSTS.

Mrs. Wright's crusts are made by adding a piece of ginger, two dry hams, and a drop of vinegar. This is a good crust to have on hand.

GIRL'S CRUST.

This crust is made by adding a piece of ginger, two dry hams, and a drop of vinegar. This is a good crust to have on hand.

RICH CRUMBS.

These are the vegetables that are very popular in the summer and are served at all the social events. They are served with a piece of ginger, two dry hams, and a drop of vinegar. These are all good vegetables to have on hand.
