

CONGRESSMEN'S LETTERS.

THE AVERAGE LAWMAKER GETS FROM TEN TO FIFTY EACH DAY.

Some of Them Very Funny—How the Congressman Disposes of His Correspondence—Stenographer and Typewriter—A Big Thing to a Constituent.

The letters received by congressmen are of all kinds, and some of them are very funny. Your average congressman gets from ten to fifty letters a day, and the member who would do any work upon the great questions of the day must use a stenographer. Now nearly every member has his stenographer, who comes in the morning or evening, answers all his mail, and runs about the departments for him. The congressman takes a bundle of about twenty letters in his hands, and sits down in his room with his stenographer at his side. The stenographer has a pencil and a notebook. The congressman takes up letter by letter, and as fast as he can take reads off an answer to it, just as the words fall from the member's lips.

A half hour passes, and the twenty letters have been finished. What would have taken the member four hours to do himself he has accomplished in thirty minutes by the aid of his stenographer. This may be at 11 o'clock in the morning. He now goes to the capitol, and when he returns for dinner at 5 his twenty letters are lying on the table ready for him to sign. He does this and has them mailed there. Some congressmen allow their clerks to write their notes on the typewriter. Others must have them written out by hand, as letters on the typewriter look too much like printed circulars. In written letters nine out of ten men who receive the letters will think the congressman did all the writing themselves.

A big thing to a constituent. A long letter from a constituent is a big thing to the constituent in the back country. He takes it around and shows it to his friends, then lays it away in the family Bible, and keeps it as reverently as though it was his grandfather's will and the old man was still alive, had lots of property, and likely to drop off any day. Some congressmen answer every letter they receive, no matter how trivial the affair, or how silly the request. Others throw a great part of their correspondence into the waste-basket, and some never read office-seeking letters at all. A great part of the correspondence of a congressman relates to garden seeds and public documents. An Ohio member told me the other day that his constituents get a better track of the government publications than he did himself. Said he: "They watch the papers closely, and when any thing new is published they first know of it, in many cases, comes from requests for it."

The pension letters form another large portion of the congressman's mail, and, too, Greenough says he gets letters from every state in the Union on pension matters. A number of letters have been coming in lately from an old crank who wants congress to pension school teachers who have outlived their usefulness. The man says the government has millions of dollars in the treasury, and he thinks that $15,000,000 ought to be devoted to this purpose. A Kansas man got a letter the other day, accompanied by a curious horsehoe, which a blacksmith wanted him to get patented for him, and another member I know has just answered a letter of a Yankee doctor, who is anxious that the president should send him to the Indians—"Carp" in Cleveland leader.

New Incandescent Electric Light. A new incandescent electric light has been invented by Frederick Steiner, a young German of Boston. Silk thread carbonized is employed in the globe, and it is found to be as enduring and flexible as platinum wire. The invention has been patented in the U. S. It is evident that there is abundant field for new inventions in electric lighting. The energy with which American inventors have pursued this subject is quite remarkable. The old world can learn much from the success of American experimenters.—Scientific Exchange.

An Awakening of Aspiration. If every poor child in America could be put, to-morrow, into an attractive school-house, in charge of a well dressed, well-managed and high-souled teacher, and treated for five years as if nobody expected anything but a worthy manhood or womanhood after life, there would be a revival of healthy discontent with low living, and an awakening of aspiration for better things which would tell in every region of society from the trades unions to the White House.—Journal of Education.

Human Nature Always Changing. Mr. Froide, in an article on Thomas a Becket, writes: "Human nature is said to be always the same. It is no less true that human nature is always changing. Motives which in one age are laudable and even unintelligible have been in another alive and all-powerful. To comprehend these differences, to take them up in his imagination, to keep them present before him as the key to what he reads, is the chief difficulty and the chief duty of the student of history.—Exchange.

"Senators' Hill" in the Cemetery. Senator Fair had named an eminence in Laurel Hill cemetery, San Francisco, "Senators' Hill." Five United States senators are to be buried there. The bones of Broderick and Baker, men of fame when our fathers were younger, have been under the crest of the hill a long while, and a few days ago the body of Mr. Given was there interred. Mr. Sharon is to lie near his senatorial predecessors, and a fifth senator, Mr. Fair himself, is to join them anon.—Chicago Herald.

To Preserve Buds of Flowers. Gather the buds when nearly ready to open, and seal up the end of the stalk with sealing-wax; wrap the bud in tissue paper, and put in a tin box perfectly air tight. When the bud is wanted to open, cut off the sealing-wax and immerse the stalk in water to which a little saltpeter has been added. I was very successful as to the success of this plan when told of it. I have tried it with rosebuds, however, and succeeded perfectly.—Cor. London Garden.

HAWAIIAN TREATY.

The Reports on the Resolution Recommending Abrogation.

WASHINGTON, April 20th.—The report of the majority of the House Ways and Means Committee on the resolution to terminate the Hawaiian Treaty begins with the statement that the object of the treaty was to secure closer commercial and political relations with the Government of the Hawaiian Islands.

THE PRICE OF SUGAR.

The argument that the treaty would reduce the price of sugar on the Pacific Coast has not been proven true. At the time of the passage of the treaty sugar was as cheap in San Francisco as in New York, but it has been dearer ever since, notwithstanding that New York sugar paid duty and San Francisco sugar was admitted duty free.

equivalent to a gift to the people of the Hawaiian Islands. This large bounty has gone into the pockets of the owners of estates on the Islands, while our people have been compelled to pay higher for their free sugar on the Pacific Slope than their kinsmen have had to pay for their dutiable sugar on the Atlantic seaboard.

The majority close their report with the statement that they recommend the adoption of the resolution more readily than it does not prevent the Administration from negotiating for such modification of the existing treaty, as will more nearly equalize the benefits to be derived by the two Governments from their commercial relations.

THE REPORT OF THE MINORITY, which is signed by Messrs. Breckenridge of Kentucky and Brown of Indiana says: "The undersigned, regretting that they are unable to unite either in the recommendations or the report of the majority, content themselves by expressing their dissent from each. They are not prepared to say that the treaty with the King of the Hawaiian Islands is commercially a good bargain and they would be glad to see it modified. Yet there are geographical and international reasons which are conclusive with them that the treaty ought not to be abrogated. They are not willing to surrender any advantage that may be given by that treaty to this Government toward the possible future control of those Islands. The relations which this Government necessarily bears to the Pacific Ocean and to the people bordering thereon, or owning colonies in or upon said ocean, rendering them unwilling to take any steps that may weaken our position, or possibly strengthen that of any other Government. It may be that new and various complications with European and Asiatic nations may arise if the question relative to the control of those islands be reopened, and they are not willing at present to have it reopened."

CONDENSED NEWS.

The New Jersey Legislature asks for a Congressional inquiry into the expediency of setting aside a portion of Alaska for a penal colony. The Senate Committee ratified the treaty with Mexico on the 21st inst., by a vote of 25 to 27, setting aside the former awards in the famous Weil and La Abra cases and reopening the adjudication of these claims. A New York dispatch of the 21st says the Tammany people are talking of General D. E. Sickles as their next candidate for Mayor of New York city. The proposition of Mr. Eads for his ship railway has been brought forward in a modified form. In the Pension investigations charges have been brought against the Republican Commissioner. Endeavors are being made to reorganize the Texas Pacific railroad. A large sale of California bred trotters will take place in New York. The Navajo Indians have all submitted, and it is said the trouble with them is over. Commissioner Sparks has asked the St. Joseph and Denver railroad to disgorge stolen lands of Dakota territory as a State is still hanging fire in the House. Trinidad, Colorado, has been damaged by a flood. One of the three tenements comprising Libby prison, collapsed on the evening of the 21st inst. The House Committee on Foreign Affairs have changed the Morrow Chinese bill to conform with the Senate bill providing for the treaty to run ten instead of twenty years. The charges of financial irregularities in the Signal Service Bureau are not sustained. The Overland rate war is abating and the different roads are advancing fares. A Constantinople dispatch of the 21st inst., says, seven men-of-war have been ordered to sail at an hour's notice. An order has been published prohibiting the circulation of Greek newspapers in Turkey. A London dispatch states that a conflict on the Greek frontier is hourly expected. The Greeks have assumed a very provoking attitude, which has had the effect of making the Turks furious. Turkey has entrusted her cause to Lord Roseberry, British Minister of Foreign Affairs, who is freely in accord with Bismarck respecting the difficulties in the East; an ultimatum of the Powers to Greece is momentarily expected to be issued. The tide of public opinion is decidedly in Gladstone's favor at present, notwithstanding the disaffection of the Scotch members. Canada is having an investigation into a railway scandal. A Vienna dispatch describes the wretched condition of the sufferers by the Stry fire. Most of the victims are without food and means and are rendered desperate by the thought of starvation. Large Nationalist and Loyalist meetings were held in Cork on the 21st inst. There was no disorder. Six thousand employees of the Brooklyn and New York, sugar refineries have struck for higher wages. The cholera is reported to be becoming epidemic in the Adriatic. Monsignor Narcissus Martinez Esquero, Bishop of Madrid was fatally shot in that city at the door of the Cathedral by Cayetano Galeste on the 18th inst., and died next day. Rumors of a syndicate being formed to handle the Hawaiian Lottery scheme are in circulation in San Francisco. San Luis Obispo, California, had a $225,000 fire on the 19th inst. A Valparaiso book-keeper has absconded with $80,000. Zach. Montgomery has been confirmed by the Senate for Assistant Attorney-General of the Interior Department. The Dilke scandal case has been reopened. The labor troubles still continue in the United States; the railroads are still being crippled; a grand co-operative scheme has been organized.

THE PRICE OF SUGAR.

The argument that the treaty would reduce the price of sugar on the Pacific Coast has not been proven true. At the time of the passage of the treaty sugar was as cheap in San Francisco as in New York, but it has been dearer ever since, notwithstanding that New York sugar paid duty and San Francisco sugar was admitted duty free. It must be evident, the report says, that we have gained nothing commercially by the treaty. The articles imported from the United States will continue to be imported whether the treaty be abrogated or not, for the reason that no other country can supply them as cheaply. If the Hawaiian Islands should make the articles sent them by the United States subject to the duty paid by the same articles imported from other countries, which is about 10 per cent., that would be no impediment to the United States. It would only be a light tax imposed upon their home consumers. They cannot afford to put a prohibitory duty on articles so necessary to them, and which they cannot produce at home and cannot so advantageously obtain from any other country. Under a moderate duty our exports would continue to increase in proportion to the demands of the people of the Islands. The bounty given by our Government out of the public Treasury to the Hawaiian planters has stimulated very greatly the growth of population and wealth in the Islands, and it has correspondingly enhanced the growth of our export trade. But when it is seen by the returns that we have remitted more than $23,000,000 of revenue since the treaty went into effect—when our exports for the same time amount to a little over $22,000,000—it would seem that we had paid rather dearly for our bargain. The sum that we have paid could have purchased our entire exports and is

LOCAL NEWS.

The Chinese who arrived by the S. S. Gaelic were all landed yesterday.

The opening of the Legislature for 1886 will take place at Aliiolani Hale at noon to-day.

The steamer J. I. Dowsett, with the schooner Wailele in tow, arrived from Paia, Maui, last evening.

Mrs. T. S. Southwick was among the passengers for San Francisco on the barkentine W. H. Dimond, which sailed yesterday.

The Leleiohoku Guards will give a luau at the Armory, Queen street, at three o'clock this afternoon, in honor of the opening of the Legislature.

A reception was given on board H. B. M. S. Heroine yesterday afternoon. The Royal Hawaiian Band was in attendance, and discoursed fine music.

For groceries, provisions and feed, go to H. E. McIntyre & Bros., corner of Fort and King streets. This firm has always on hand a full stock of fresh groceries, etc.

About seven o'clock last evening a crowd of sailors passed the PRSS of fine singing that old ballad, "John Brown's Body." Some excellent voices were noticed among the singers.

The Hawaiian legend entitled "Keinohoomauawani and Kaleleluaka," which was commenced in the Press some time ago, will be concluded in to-morrow's issue of the Press.

The loss of a wiry haired dog, with a collar on, marked "H. W. M.," is advertised on one of the street bulletin boards. This custom of branding dogs should be at once stopped by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The S. S. Gaelic, Captain Pearne, arrived and anchored off port yesterday afternoon, eight days from San Francisco. She had a number of passengers for this port. She sailed again for Yokohama and Hong Kong at a little after five o'clock last evening taking twelve Chinese passengers for this port.

The man who was drowned in Seattle, W. T., of Scott's wharf on the night of February 8th, and whose body was recovered on the following Saturday, turned out to be John Pualoke, who has been employed at Providence Hospital for a short time. He was a native of the Hawaiian Islands.—Oregonian.

Mr. F. L. Clarke, who has been botanizing on Kauai during the past ten days, returned to Honolulu yesterday morning by the Iwalani. He reports that he was very successful in collecting fine ferns and some rare plants peculiar to Kauai; and in Waimea, Elele, Koloa and Lihue found the mills all busied in taking off the cane which looks very well. The weather has been exceptionally fine, and at the points mentioned the steamer has found landing freight and taking on sugar an easy matter. Abundance of water in the irrigating ditches, and roads in good order.

A cricket match was played at the Makiki grounds yesterday afternoon, between a team from the Honolulu Iron Works and a team from H. B. M. S. Satellite. The scores of the first innings stood, Satellite, 67; Iron Works, 59. Second innings, Satellite 21; Iron Works, 59. Totals, Satellite 88; Iron Works, 118. The following are the names of the two teams: Satellite—Creamer, captain; Johnson, Lawrence, Morgan, Murston, Evans, Emerson, Chason, Barrette, Stoyke, and Prior. Iron Works—Joseph McKechnie, captain; Wm. C. Roe, Jno. Wright, Chas. Crozier, Hugh Macmillan, Sam Harrison, Wm. Allen, Stephen Smith, T. Lishman, Harry Wicks, Thos. Rosewarne, Wm. Freudenberg—Mr. Loyett acted as umpire. After the game the two teams adjourned to the Chinese restaurant on the corner of Nuuanu and Merchant streets, where a good dinner was waiting for them.

The third of the series of Campobello Concerts took place last night at the Hawaiian Opera House, to a rather larger audience than formerly. Her Highness Princess Liliuokalani and Governor Dominis occupied a private box. The performance throughout was of unequalled excellence, Signor Lenconi seemingly being the favorite. The Misses Juran were in fine form at the piano and Miss Pauline Joran played her selections on the violin with refined taste and delicacy. On one of her recalls she played "Blue Bells of Scotland" with variations. Signor Campobello's rendition of "The Village Blacksmith" was both masterly and sympathetic. Of Miss Squier it is only necessary to say she equaled herself. "The Last Rose of Summer" was sung on an encore and was beautifully and tenderly rendered. Signor Campobello closed the entertainment with his own composition, "My Sole Command." The performance was rapturously received throughout by the audience, and their hearty appreciation, as testified by their enthusiastic encores supplemented by the handsome bouquets frequently sent to the young ladies, need no additional comment of ours. Let the music loving public of Honolulu evince its taste for a superior style of concerts and reward those who minister to it, by giving rousing houses during the remaining concerts of the series.

They say: That 24 will be tied again before the shooting match is over; that a fine collection of Hawaiian ferns will reach Honolulu from Kauai this week; that the fund for the Chinese sufferers by the late fire has already reached over three thousand dollars; that the morning bus from Waikiki crushes the early worm; that "Solera" is the boss thing for dinner parties; that the water question will be discussed before the present Legislature; that the "three whistles" sounded shortly after ten o'clock yesterday morning; that the Secretaryship of the House was decided three weeks ago; that the telephone connections are now all completed and in good working order again; that the birds take especial delight in destroying the rarer fruits throughout Honolulu; that the B. of G. will submit an interesting and largely amended report during the present Legislature; that there is to be a new ice cream saloon started before long; that the town is dropping into the old rut of summer laziness; that the next Secretaryship of the House ought to be given to a native; that Mr. Testa's claims for the position seem the most reasonable; that the new baseball club will "strike out" for itself on the independent line; that the firm of Lewis & Co. will have the finest grocery store in Honolulu when they move into their new quarters; that the congregated wisdom of the Islands will all don fine raiment to-day; that another cricket match will be played before the departure of the men-of-war; that a steady stream of Chinese paupers have been flowing into Hawaii since the first of April; that they will continue to flow in until the country is ruined; and that an attempt will be made to stop them only when it is too late.

What is the Matter

With the local critics? "Wealth" is bound to become Pope-ular. If one cannot have it in possession the next best thing is to have it in rhyme. The author should reject all the amendments proposed by his rivals. It is Whittier than anything they ever wrote. The Lamb-ent fires of genius should not be extinguished by cynical animadversions of envious persons. Take a Buchanan Read the productions of other great authors and you will find them Stoddard with gems of thought. No one but a Hogg could expect a Prentice to produce something cut and Dryden perfect in every way. We may not be Aldrich but we may all write Poetry. Shelley mean hide hide his light under a bushel because the Ossian of literature in brilliant with Bacon? Schiller poem be condemned because men Goethe blast from opposition newspapers? Men Hugo into print often subject themselves to satire and Homer, but let those who criticize real merit Ryan Dante up something original themselves occasionally. Hood claim to know a man Hooke can estimate every Wordsworth? Hugh Conway every idea? The poem alluded to is full of merit. No parodies of envious detractors can obscure its lustre. The poem seems to be imperfectly understood. It should be viewed from various standpoints. It is not to be sung through like the multiplication table, for the subtleties of thought and delicate shades of meaning will then escape the reader. The author proceeds to the grand end by a series of climaxes. The least important idea at the beginning develops by geometrical progression into the most important at the end, to prove which let the poem be inverted, and various doubts now existing as to the writer's meaning will be dispelled.

L. MONTGOMERY MATHER.

Exert a power no monarch's sceptre sways. Set with the precious truth its piercing rays; And shines more brightly than the jewelled star. The wealth of mind is grander wealth by far. 'Tis full of finer feeling for mankind, Present in every clear contented mind, 'Tis worth increases as the soul unfolds. 'Tis found in purest hearts and richest souls— That beats with love, life's beauties to impart. It is implanted in the noble heart Where just enough, is counting happy days; Look, and you'll see it in life's humblest ways, Than in material things most men call wealth. Seek it rather in round and rosy health. With those conditions where these things abound. Not it is none of these, nor is it found Where sleek hypocrisy has built a shrine. May it by any chance be seen to shine Where all is false, unnatural in life? Does it appear where flattery is rife? Who stifles genius with an envious hand? Can it exist where jealous souls command, Or honors captured where the cannon roars? Is it the height to which ambition soars, That yields the sceptre whether right or wrong? Is it the power of place, or empire strong? Is it the virgin gold men hold so dear? 'What is the vainest wealth of which we hear?

AN IDEAL VOLCANO TRIP.

Notes and Narratives En Route.

III.

Readers of the Press are already familiar with the time and manner of Madame Pele's retirement, for a season, from the stage of volcanic action, and my observations at the crater have also been given. It is purposed in this second series of papers to deal with other, and more general features of the trip to the crater, or caldera, of Kilauea.

Language fails to adequately convey a correct idea of this wonderful and immense pit. Able and scientific pens have dealt with the subject, and yet there is but one universal expression of surprise, by all visitors to Kilauea, at the grand, sombre immensity spread out before them. I seemed to have forgotten this in the twenty-three years that had elapsed since my former visit, though familiar with various published accounts since; for I stood on the bank of Kilauea amazed at the expanse of volcanic desolation within its crater of some twelve miles circumference. The bed or floor of the crater I found much higher than in former years, successive overflows, or out-breaks at the lakes having raised it gradually for years past. Especially was this noticeable at the farthest end of the crater where recent flows from Halemauama had brought it up almost to a level with the sand and pumice banks on the south-east side. The vast chasm of fallen Halemauama and New Lake, with their sunken adjacent banks and cliffs but intensified the picture of ruins; and the distant columns of smoke and steam emerging therefrom arose like silent witnesses of departed greatness.

The days spent in examinations of different parts of the crater, its fissures, sulphur banks, and fern glens, as also the adjacent woods to the north, sped by only too quickly to surfeit our party with its varied attractions. The weather for the most part was delightful, the mornings being clear and bright, and giving us metropolitan-hedged mortals the rare vision of Mauna Loa in its mantle of snow. The wind was southerly during our stay, and toward evening mist and rain clouds would gather but clear again during the night.

Much has been written and said relative to the crater and its constant changes, but it takes time to "do it"—as tourists would say—to thoroughly understand this. This knowledge is not to be gained by a hasty visit, nor several visits, but Kilauea can only be known by carefully watching and studying various points of interest to understand their relative bearing on some discovered or suggested question of volcanic phenomena. On the last day of my visit a portion of the time was spent in examining the banks and ledges to the south-west of the crater, with its beds of sand, pumice and gravel. Three well defined terraces of this material were observed, the rock or cliffs, as it once forming the north-west walls of the crater being easily traced. Successive layers of the finest sand, evidently the washings of older ledges and banks of pumice above and beyond, were found in a fissure enlarged during the recent earthquake shocks, which runs from the south-west edge of the crater in the lowest bank, or terrace, in a southwest direction, showing a depth of some fifteen feet and a width varying from ten feet to a crevice. Through this section, or terrace, the cracks were numerous and the ground very spongy to the tread, though not so much as in the pumice banks in the south, or farther end of the crater itself. Now, why this peculiar formation at this point, if it does not indicate successive periods of subsidence and changing activity eastward, and why is it that the beds of pumice should all be in the southern locality with none at all to the northward? It strikes me that the prevalence of northerly winds is not a sufficient answer, for Pele's hair, a much lighter material, is often found to windward.

From observations in going and coming, I have no hesitancy in commending a day's trip around the western rim of the crater to the south, and return by way of the lakes across the crater to the Volcano House. If there is activity in the crater, or if quiescent at the time, the elevated views obtained from the high west banks surpass that of any other point. The climb out of the crater, after a long day's journey is severe to parties unused to long tramps, but the ascent can be made comfortably by frequent restings, as the winding path brings one to occasional levels, thus relieving the fatigue of what otherwise would make a severe journey.

A visit to the sulphur banks, a short distance from the Volcano House, is a natural one for all to make, not only for examination of the beds of sulphur, but also the numerous steam cracks in the vicinity, some of which emit their noisome vapors with much force. A bath house is erected for the convenience of those desiring a sulphur steam-bath, and bathers can regulate the heat to suit themselves. At the back of the sulphur banks and running to the east, are two fern glens that are delightful in their rank tropic verdure. There are also some attractive spots of a similar nature to be found on the way down into the crater, to the right of the path. Our photographer made good use of his time and opportunities to impress all the beautiful, as well as the grand and wonderful to be obtained, as the collection of views now at J. Williams', on Fort street, Honolulu, will amply testify. If time will allow, a trip to Kilauea Iki should not be missed, as it is but a mile from the house. It is an extinct crater of considerable depth, its steep sides are covered with verdure, and its bottom is a smooth floor of lava that flowed in from Kilauea proper. Brigham's map of 1865 erroneously calls it Pole o Keawe, and Captain Dutton's recent work on Hawaiian Volcanoes, repeats the error.

Speaking of this error recalls what probably is another. Early visitors will remember, perhaps, that where Halemauama existed was what was known as Old South Lake, followed some time after by an adjoining one that was known as the North Lake. These two, in course of volcanic changes, became one, known later as Halemauama. It was not until 1881 that New Lake came into existence. The question arises when the term Halemauama is applied. Parties resident at the Volcano say that this name rightfully belongs to an extinct crater several miles to the south-east of Kilauea, overgrown with ferns and moss, hence its name Hale-mau-mau fitly applies, or more properly Hale-ma'u-ma'u—meaning damp fern house.

The forest verdure at this time of the year is also an interesting field for pastime, study and recreation, and botanists, vying with geologists, can revel in their opportunities at this point. The pulu tree-fern is at home in this region and the silver sword is obtainable without a climb to Haleakala. The yellow flowers of the mamani tree and the red feathery-blossom of the ohia-lehua brightens the variety and studies in green, which our forests afford. The enlivening chirps of many birds add to the pleasure and render a tramp through the woods bright and exhilarating.

A description of the Volcano trip would be incomplete without mention of the comforts and conveniences of the Volcano House now under the control of the Wilder Steamship Co., and management of Mr. J. H. Maby. The house is comfortably arranged with bedrooms, sitting room with open fireplace, dining room, pantry, kitchen, and drying room. The building stands a little distance from the bank, facing the crater, having a verandah running its whole length. Its table is supplied with the best that the Honolulu and Hilo markets can afford, and considering the distance from headquarters, it is more than the average traveler usually expects. Mr. Wilder, the head and front of the company, shows by his enterprise his belief in the adage that "what is worth doing is worth doing well." Experienced and careful guides are assigned parties as required, and animals are well cared for to facilitate travel and modify its discomforts. As an evidence of how thoroughly in earnest the company is to save the time and fatigue of the journey, they are now engaged in making a carriage road from the Volcano to the pali, four miles from Keaouhou.

At the time of our return, early awaking was necessary, in order to breakfast and start by five o'clock. Pack animals with baggage had been sent ahead and just at the dawn of day a goodly company of satisfied tourists cantered forth under the charge of Manager Maby for Keaouhou, 14 miles distant, to meet the steamer Kinau, from Hilo. The road led through an open forest, for the most part, for a distance of ten miles. A couple of miles from the house we came to a hole or sunken pit, in the road, which occurred during the earthquake shocks on the night of March 6th, occasioned by the falling rock-masses of Kilauea. A detour had been made and brush, had been thrown around the brink of the pit to guard travelers or animals against the danger. A short distance beyond this Manager Maby called our attention to a large sunken crater to the left of the road. Daylight was not strong enough to afford us a view of its extent, but there was sufficient to show it an entrancing spot. Easy cantering brought us to the pali just as the Kinau made the turn in her course to head in for the landing. The next four miles in a zig-zag course down this lava section of country was not the most comfortable or fastest kind of traveling, but we made good time and the feminine portion of our party felt no fatigue from the journey.

Keaouhou, the nearest landing to the Volcano, is now the property of the Wilder Steamship Company. It was once a prominent shipping point of pulu and goat skins; these products having once figured prominently in our exports, toward which the Puna district contributed an important share. Keaouhou will hereafter be known principally in connection with the new route to the Volcano, which route was inaugurated Jan. 23d, 1885.

Wind and waves were propitious at our embarkation, there being no delay or mishap of any nature. Purser Beckley had met us at the landing and received again into his charge the goodly company entrusted to Manager Maby's care two days before—with myself added. We were no sooner on board than the Kinau continued her course to complete the circuit of the Island of Hawaii, which is her route the week she makes the Volcano trip, passing the several Kau plantations and rounding South Point, with its contending currents, into the smooth water of the Kona coast. As this portion of the route has been so recently passed over, and noted, I devoted my attention to the steamer itself. In many features the Kinau is a small Mariposa or Alameda, which is natural, since they are all built by the same firm, for the same parties originally, and all for the Islands, to serve its foreign and coasting trade. Capt. King and his officers take pride in their charge, and the work of the boat is evidently in careful hands. By invitation of Chief Engineer Tucker, a tour of inspection of the engine room was made in the evening, under the advantage of the electric light with which the vessel is supplied. Everything was running smoothly and in first-class order, including the electric motor, and reflected great credit upon the parties in charge.

Kawaihae was our first stopping place on this side, which we reached a little after dark. Its ancient glory—like the whaling fleet that used to rendezvous at the port each spring—has departed. In early days it was a prominent shipping point for a large extent of back country in Kohala and Hamakua, but as its potato and cattle trade have dwindled, and many direct landings are established on the windward coast, Kawaihae feels the sore effects of a reduced population and departed trade. It, however, rejoices in the possession of the last completed and consequently best preserved heiau on the Islands. We lay here till past midnight, then steamed on to Mahukona, the port of entry and shipping point for much of the produce of North Kohala, and terminus of the Kohala Railroad, another of Mr. S. G. Wilder's enterprises.

The Kinau lies at Mahukona until about 3 P. M., which gives passengers an opportunity for a trip by rail into this famous sugar district. After breakfast several of us took advantage of this to "spy the land" and note its changes. The district has developed largely of late years through the push and energy of its leading men. The interests of the railroad, Wilder's Steamship Co., and the mercantile interests of Wilder & Co. are represented at this point by Mr. C. L. Wight. On returning from a brief visit to Iole I was met by Mr. J. S. Smithies—in charge of the store here—who regretted that time did not permit him to show me around Mahukona's famous gardens, nor gather me a bowl of her prize strawberries. I believed him.

From Mahukona we crossed the channel, having a nice fresh breeze, but by no means a rough sea. Our steamer drifted along "as steady as a clock," reaching Makana, Maui, about 7:30 and Maalea at 11 P. M. We encountered a goodly share of the fierce gusts of wind that draw through this isthmus, but as we neared the landing the "woolies" moderated. From this place we touched at Lahaina, another town of departed greatness; once the favored residence of royalty, and seat of government, with its political, educational and commercial pre-eminence, but for many years past her interests have centered in sugar. It was in the "wee sma' hours" that we reached Lahaina, so had no opportunity for observations or comparisons with my recollections of her palmy days.

At 5:30 A. M., Sunday, we were off Diamond Head, having made a splendid run down, and a little after six o'clock moored at the wharf in Honolulu, having been absent but eight and a quarter days, of which four days and five nights were spent at the Volcano, and making my first round coasting trip at the Islands without having to pay tribute to Neptune.

Alden Fruit and Taro Company, OF WAILUKU, MAUI.

Taro Flour! Taro Flour! Taro Flour!

Highly recommended by physicians, and used by everybody. A boon to the sick and convalescent. A valuable article of diet for the healthy.

Poi made from this flour possesses cleanliness never found in ordinary poi. It makes by far the best mush. Taro cakes, muffins, rolls, bread, griddle cakes, gems, and puddings of unrivalled excellence can be made as readily from this as from ordinary flour.

FOR SALE BY ALL GROCERS.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING POI.—Take the desired amount of flour and mix very thin with cold water, being sure there are no lumps. Confine this in a bag or cloth and place in a kettle of boiling water, and let it continue to boil 1 1/2 to 2 hours, until cooked. When done (while warm) stir with a stout spoon, adding a little water until the whole is well mixed. Let this stand from 5 to 6 hours. Then add water in small quantities, mixing thoroughly and kneading until the desired consistency is obtained. Owing to its great purity it will take from 3 to 4 days to become acid or sour.

Bad Spelling of Type-Writers.

The increased use of the type-writer has given startling prominence to the bad spelling by those who use it. There is no blurring over with the pen, a word you can't spell. In order to obviate this difficulty it is becoming the habit in the best society to put the word "dictated" at the top of the type-written letter.

Trying the Speed of Their Tongues.

Two French women entered into a contest to determine which of them could talk the faster. A mutual friend was appointed umpire, and the sum of 1,000 francs was to go to the victor. For three hours they read from Eugene Sue's feuilleton, and during that time the victor succeeded in pronouncing 336,311 words. Her adversary came in with a second with 305,500 words.—New York Sun.
