"What a fool I made of myself," she laughs, shrugging her shoulders; "and what a mercy it was that Mrs. Owens did not usher him upstairs!"

"Would you have cared very much?"

"My dearest, I should have cared awfully."

"But you didn't mind Jack much."

"Jack!" she echoes, with entire unconcern.

"Jack is only a boy!"

"But you got very red when he first came in." I say mischievously.

"It was not because I cared—for my own sake."

"Why was it, then?"

She does not answer. She has plucked two long blades of grass, and is making a cross of them on the open page of the book on her knee.

"Would Lord Lorraine have scolded you?" I ask curiously.

"He is very particular—he would see no fun in a thing of the kind."

"He is a starched old—"

"I wish he had not said those things. Lord Lorraine is my friend."

"But you are afraid of him."

"When one likes a person, one does not like to be in his black books."

"But how can you like him? That's what puzzles me."

"How?" she echoes softly, still playing with the little sharp green blades of grass.

She does not say any more, but over all her face there comes a sudden soft illumination, a reflex of that "light that never was on land or sea," embodied in a smile so radiant, that it deprives me for a moment of the power of speech.

The wild bees hum about us, the air is full of the perfume of new-mown hay from the meadow on the other side of the orchard-wall, of the faint fragrance of meadow sweet. The shadows of the apple trees lie sharply defined on the long grasses about us, on the mossy rocks, on the old brick wall, on the tall privet-hedge which separates the garden from the orchard. I have been reading Tennyson's "Gnome."

"The noiseless exile holds the hill;

The grasshopper is silent in the grass;

The earth with his shadow on the stone

Lies like a shadow—"

"Talk of a donkey, and you see his ears!"

The polite quotation comes from Miss Dacre, who this time is the first to see Jack pushing his way through that part of the privet hedge which divides our orchard from Colonel Prentiss' garden.

"Talk of an angel and you see his wings."

Jack amends a little down on his favorite motto: "And then you really wishing for me, Miss Dacre?"

"Talking of you, Mr. Prentiss."

"We were wishing for you, Jack," I say, laughing. "We have been making up, oh, such a delightful scheme!"

"In which you are included," Charmian adds graciously.

"I am glad to hear it," Jack says, his blue eyes deepening in color a little. And then and there we unfold our plans.

"But what will Mrs. Grundy say?" Jack inquires when it is told. Being the eldest of the trio he feels it incumbent upon him to say something of the kind.

"Mrs. Grundy is to know nothing about it," Charmian says very decidedly.

"Nor Pleasant Owens!"—shrugging his shoulders.

"Nor Pleasant Owens. We shall just put on our bonnets-to-morrow morning after breakfast, and tell her, quite casually as it were, that we are going up town."

"She won't be satisfied with that."

"But is there anything extraordinary in going up to town—half an hour's journey by rail?"

"To Pleasant it will seem extraordinary. "Then let Pleasant be astonished. It will do the old woman good."

Jack seems to like the plan amazingly, when, like myself, he has smothered the first qualms of conscience. There is really no harm in it, after all—it is what lots of people do—and, besides, nobody will mind. My father is too much wrapped up in his own purpose to care what we do, so long as we commit no breach of propriety. He trusts us implicitly, and knows or cares very little about it.

"Aunt Probry can't have any objection. What if she could meet Dudley Prokyn in town! She is my cousin whatever objection might be raised to Jack as a chaperon, nobody could say a word if we were with my own cousin. So I reason while Charmian laughs mischievously. She does not seem to care very much what anybody says; and if she, who belongs to the best society in London, does not mind, it would be odd if ne'erbody like Jack Prentiss and Susan Coventry entered the room."

"None of us," Jack laughs hurriedly. "Don't let Pleasant it into your head."

"I suppose it's all right, if you say so," I observe, sighing again as I hang on his arm.

Jack looks flattered, and strokes my little locks in the old caressing way with his disengaged hand.

"You are a dear little child, Susan. I hope no harm will ever come to you, through me—or—any one else."

"I am not thinking of myself. Ne harm could come to me, except a scolding from Pleasant. That is the worst thing that could happen to me."

"None of us," Jack laughs hurriedly. "Don't let Pleasant it into your head."

WEDNESDAY . . . . . MAY 12, 1886.

An English author has written a letter to the New York Critic objecting to the typesetting divisions of American printers. "Cannot," says the English author, "should never be written can not; he does not explain, however, in what way he would write cannot not and could not not."

The report of the Committee appointed by the King to investigate into the cause of the late disastrous fire has been made and in every way seems to cover the ground desired to be gone over. The report locates the origin of the fire, but states the cause is still uncertain. The report states reasons for the rapid spread of the fire and also points out the necessity of increasing the size of the water mains. The committee also recommends the general provisions which have been incorporated in the new fire bill now before the Legislature. The report, which is longer than our space will accommodate to-day, will be published in our next issue.

It seems to be a thorn in the political side of the "clique newspaper" correspondent that an independent journal should be started in Honolulu with an editor who is fortunate enough to own the paper and be able to say what he likes without consulting the "leaders of our party," or any one else. We would suggest to the correspondent, who is undoubtedly coward enough to print false statements under an assumed name, that it would not be wise, just at present, to start a discussion as to poor lots on either side of the Legislature, especially as we have some political facts touching both sides, which the "clique newspaper" would refuse to publish in parallel columns.

The biennial report of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for 1886 was yesterday presented to the Legislature. The report shows among other things that the Law Library now numbers 2,445 volumes, a new catalogue of which has been prepared. The report also suggests that the title of Vice-Chancellor be also conferred upon the Second Associate Justice of the Supreme Court; that an act be passed defining proofs of criminality in extradition cases; that the Statutes of Descent be amended so that the "next of kin" shall "inherit property of an intestate in default of the present statutory heirs"; that appropriations be asked for to publish a fifth volume of Hawaiian Reports and also a volume of the decisions rendered by single justices, which have not been appealed from; that an act should be passed "disqualifying any magistrate from being a candidate for election as a representative for the people;" that the appointment of either District or Police Justices to be Tax Assessors or Tax Collectors is "detrimental to their efficiency as judges;" that the salaries of magistrates in the more populous districts should be increased.

The report further states that the former appropriations for the expenses of the Court have not been sufficient and it is therefore recommended that at least $10,000 be set aside for this department. It is also asked that the appropriation for the expenses of witnesses in criminal cases be advanced to $2,500. The report closes with a summary of Supreme Court statistics which are filled with instructive and interesting facts.

For instance, the report shows that the prosecution in the Police Court of Honolulu for drunkenness numbered 1,519 in 1884-85 while for the period of 1882-83 they numbered 1,789. The statistics show that the number of prosecutions for drunkenness throughout the entire Kingdom has decreased 468 during the last biennial period. The Chief Justice, however, does not think the statistics furnish an infallible test as to the actual sobriety of the different communities of the Kingdom. In the same manner it might be argued that "an increase of the prosecutions for gaming of 128, and of violations of the opium law of 197," would not be an "infallible test" of the actual increase in these last mentioned criminal amenities.

HAWAIIAN LEGISLATURE.

TENTH DAY.

House met pursuant to adjournment at 10 o'clock A. M., the President Hon. J. S. Walker in the Chair. After prayer by the Chaplain the minutes of the previous day's session were read and, after amendments, approved.

PETITIONS.

Hon. member Richardson from Wailuku presented a petition to the effect that it is not right to pass a law authorizing the sale of opium. Referred to Sanitary Committee.

Hon. member Nahale from North Kona presented a petition that the sum of $4.10 double taxes paid by Moses be repaid. Referred to Finance Committee.

Hon. Member Palahao from Hanalei presented a petition that the road from Waiole to Haiana be repaired. Referred to Committee on Internal Improvements.

Hon. member Paehaole from Molokai presented a petition that the mail bag be opened at Kaunakakai (on the beach where people live) instead of seven or eight miles inland at Mr. Meyers'. Referred to Committee on Internal Improvements.

There being no report ready from Standing or Special Committees the House passed to the consideration of RESOLUTIONS.

Hon. Noble Rhodes presented a resolution to the effect that the President of the Board of health confer with Mr. Joseph Reeves, Professor of Hygiene and Hydrotherapy for the purpose of ascertaining whether Mr. Reeves' skill and knowledge can be made available for the cure or relief of leprosy.

In submitting the resolution the Hon. Noble stated that he had had an interview with Mr. Reeves. The Hon. Noble was a member of the Board of Health twenty years ago when the first public treatment of leprosy was inaugurated, and had always taken a great interest in the efforts made since then to improve the health of the people. He had no great confidence in the treatment proposed by Mr. Reeves but thought that all means should be tried to eradicate the dread evil of leprosy.

Mr. Reeves had stated that he had called on the President of the Board of Health but had received no encouragement. The speaker thought it was proper to bring the matter before the Assembly.

Hon. member Thurston from Molokai was of the opinion that if it was ascertained that Mr. Reeves could succeed in curing leprosy or improving the condition of the lepers by his treatment, it should be tried. But if the resolution involved the payment of monies for experiments by Mr. Reeves he did not think it should be adopted.

Hon. member Kaai from Hana offered a resolution that the sum of $4,000 be appropriated for printing and publishing the laws in the Hawaiian language. Ordered taken up with the appropriation bill.

Hon. member Liliikalan from Honolulu read for the first time an act to amend the act relating to the distilling of liquors by proprietors of sugar mills, permitting anyone to distill liquor and removing the domestic tax. Passed to second reading.

His Excellency the Attorney-General presented his written report upon the "Madras" Case. Upon motion of Hon. member Aholo it was ordered printed.

Hon. member Kaai from Hana offered a resolution that the sum of $4,000 be appropriated for printing and publishing the laws in the Hawaiian language. Ordered taken up with the appropriation bill.

Hon. member Thurston from Molokai offered a resolution appropriating $100 for bound volumes of all current Hawaiian publications, to be deposited in the Government Library. The Hon. member explained that there was no place now in Honolulu where newspapers in Hawaiian could be found. It was very necessary that there should be files to consult. Resolution was adopted.

Hon. member Dickey from Makawao presented a resolution that $4,000 be appropriated for building school houses in Makawao. Referred to Committee on Education.

Hon. member Nahale from North Kona gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill providing for a permanent settlement for Her Royal Highness Poomaikalan.

Hon. member Paehaole read for the first time a bill to regulate the Bureau of Public Instruction: extending the age to which children should attend school from 15 to 17 years of age. Passed to printing.

Hon. member Richardson from Wailuku read for the first time an act to amend Section 1, Chapter 18 Civil Code, changing the place for holding terms of the Circuit Court on the Island of Maui from Lahaina to Wailuku. Upon suspension of the rules the bill was read a second time by its title.

Hon. member Castle from Wailuku moved that the bill be referred to the Judiciary Committee. A lengthy debate took place on the bill up to 12:15 P. M. at which time on motion of Hon. member Castle the House adjourned to 1:30 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION

House met at 1:30 P. M. Hon. W. R. Castle continued his argument in favor of submitting the bill under consideration to the Judiciary Committee. Several other members spoke for and against the bill, and a motion to indefinitely postpone its further consideration was put and carried by a rising vote of 18 to 16.

His Excellency the Minister of the Interior upon suspension of the rules, reported from the Printing Committee the following bills as printed:

An act amending the acts relating to the collection of taxes.

An act amending the act concerning fishing rights.

men would be very insignificant compared to the results he hoped would follow his treatment. He had an idea of a considerable sum of money being provided, to be given to any one who could cure a case of leprosy. He said his services would be worth $150 per month, and that in three months he hoped to see a visible improvement, and that in 6 months his treatment would be a success or a failure. There would be no further outlay beyond the cost of linens compresses and fuel for heating water.

Hon. member Dickey, from Makawao, supported the President of the Board of Health in this matter. No more important measure could come before the House than that of the care of the health of the people. The idea of having a number of physicians examine Mr. Reeve as to his qualifications was a good one.

His Excellency the President of the Board of Health fully agreed with those who thought well of the water treatment. Such treatment should be carried on by thoroughly competent persons. Baths are now administered at the Branch Hospital by fully competent persons who, with thermometer in hand, watch the temperature of the water and the patient.

Hon. member Aholo, from Lihue, offered as an amendment to the resolution, that Mr. Reeve be examined as regards his medical education, and if he was not found competent that nothing more be done by the President of the Board of Health in the matter.

Hon. member Aholo gave notice of his intention to present a bill to amend section 30, chapter 44 of the Penal Code. House passed to the first time.

Hon. member Thurston read a resolution to the effect that copies of all bills and reports be furnished the representatives of the press. Resolution adopted.

It is announced that a reception will be given by Admiral Seymour, on board H. B. M. S. Triumph, to-morrow.

The bark Forest Queen sailed for San Francisco yesterday afternoon, taking a cargo valued at $60,964.77 and also a mail.

The steamer C. R. Bishop, which arrived early yesterday morning reports rough weather and plenty of rain along the Hauakau coast.

A lot of youngsters playing outside the east entrance to the Legislature hall yesterday made considerable noise until driven off by the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Mrs. Harry Turton, who has been dangerously ill for some time past, is now very much better, and will probably be able to take a little outdoor exercise in a day or two.

Yesterday a Chinese express driver and a native passenger had a little dispute over the fare for a ride, and instead of settling it in Sullivanistic style, adjourned to the Station House and settled it by arbitration.

At 10 A.M., the hour for opening the Legislature yesterday, there was not a quorum of the members present, none of the ministry, and but one of the nobles (Col. Macfarlane). A quorum was obtained ten minutes later.

There will be a monthly concert at the Lyceum this evening. Subject: "Turkey." The pastor will give the second lecture on "Mohammed and his Religion," and Mrs. Dillingham will report from the field of Missions.

The Appropriation Bill.

The further consideration of the Appropriation Bill is the standing order of the day in the Legislature this morning. There will be two days' work to do in one, possibly, as on Monday that order of business was not reached.

Chinese Arrested with Opium in Possession.

Wong Moung, Ah Sam, Ah Pat, Son Pau, Young Wa, Ah Ki and Akuna were arrested last evening with opium in their possession. Akuna had the additional charge of carrying a knife entered against him. They will be brought up in the Police Court this morning.

Fire on Maui.

The steamer C. R. Bishop, which arrived from Hawaii yesterday morning, reports that while off the east coast of Maui, at about eight o'clock Monday evening, a large fire was seen in the direction of Waikapu. As the Bishop does not make a landing on Maui, the particulars of the fire could not be learned.

Prof. Parker's Recitals.

The hall of the Y. M. C. A. building was filled last evening with an audience who heartily appreciated the recitals by Prof. Parker. That gentleman has a fine personal appearance and in the various readings and extracts which he gave was very successful. In the scene from the "Merchant of Venice" he portrayed the various characters in a satisfactory manner. The Professor's conception of the character and manner of Shylock differs in degree from that shown by the leading actors of the age, but is, nevertheless a truthful conception of that most difficult of all Shakespeare's characters. The other recitals were graphic and that of Lord Dundreary very amusing. The audience was much pleased with the evening's entertainment and look to a repetition of the same.

The Volcano Resumes Activity.

News was received by the steamer C. R. Bishop yesterday, that the Volcano had resumed activity once more. Last Saturday afternoon, while the Bishop was lying at Honokaa, Hawaii, a telephone message was received from Hilo stating that the Volcano had broken out at eight o'clock that morning, with great force, the lava filling the chasm as of old. Although the Bishop remained at Honokaa until Monday morning, no further particulars were received. The steamer Kilauea Hou, which is now due from Hawaii, will probably bring full particulars of the re-appearance.

Last Night's Concert.

The combined concert given at the Hawaiian Hotel last evening by the band from H. B. M. ship Triumph and the Royal Hawaiian Band was a brilliant success. The hotel was illuminated with colored lanterns arranged over its entire front and a very large audience filled the verandahs of the hotel and the grounds.

The programme which embraced some fine selections was well played throughout, the Hawaiian band leading off with the first part. The band of sixteen numbers, from the Triumph, under the leadership of Band-master Agins, rendered the second part of the programme in very fine style. Our musical critics gave it as their opinion that the Triumph band was better than that of the Swifts, their instrumentation being more even. In the third part both bands played with spirit and exactness, the concert ending with "God Save the Queen," and "Hawaii Ponoi." The playing was much applauded by the audience, and everybody went away delighted with the musical treat tendered them.

They Say:

That the Minister of Foreign Affairs yesterday made mention of the "ay Board of Health" in the course of some remarks before the House; that an entertainment will be given on board the "Triumph" to-morrow; that the appropriation bill will travel over rocky ground to-day; that the wind blew G. G. yesterday; that the Hawaiian Ananas is improving its condition; that the fatal facts are the cause of such improvement; that there is no way to exclude a doubt when reasoning by analogy in political matters; that the time for the Legislature to commence its naughty tricks has been definitely set in the near future by the prophetic members; that the King ought to appoint a native for his Chamberlain; that the Hon. Sam. Parker would add dignity to the office and would be acceptable to the foreign population; that the man who carries the wine room keys at the Palace does not "stand and deliver" with the manifest grace which Court etiquette requires; that the wind blew off the top of a street lamp yesterday aft.; that the report of the Chief Justice to the Legislative Assembly is full of typographical errors for some reason; that the Englishman of the Gazette speaks quite sarcastically, forsooth! of the "English taste of thought" noticeable in the Advertiser; that the Englishman of the Gazette looks rather ridiculous masquerading as an American; that there are no American "proclivities" to be found in the editorial columns of the English Hawaiian Ananas; that the combined concert last night was a great success; that there will be another entertainment at the Palace this week; that said entertainment is the result of the late private Legislative caucus getting rumored abroad; and that the dangers of social slights are not generally seen until they react.

The Whitehead Torpedo.

Amongst the engines of destruction with which H. B. M. S. Triumph is fitted, there are none which impress the spectator more than the famous torpedo fitted for use. An extended description of these formidable missiles would consume too much space; but, in brief, one of them may be described as a polished steel cylindrical shell about fourteen inches in diameter in the middle, some twelve feet in length and tapering both ways, in front to a sharp steel point, and behind to the bearings of a compound screw, the blades of which revolve in opposite directions, and propel the torpedo through the water at the rate of twenty-four miles an hour. The polished shape of this weapon immediately suggests the idea of a sleek, swift fish, and the preparations made to launch it on its mission carry out the idea. To give it a sufficient propulsive force the lungs of the monster are charged with air compressed so as to exert a pressure of eight hundred or a thousand pounds to the square inch. The head is loaded with a terrific charge of gun cotton. Then the delicate machinery that actuates the propelling fins, as well as the truly mysterious (because secret) combination that not only steers the torpedo in the required direction, but compels it to run about a fathom below the surface of the water, is adjusted. The dangerous cylinder is then slid gently into its firing tube, the air tight gate is closed, and by the pressure of an electric button or a simple air valve, it is launched into the sea.
