THE FUNNY MAN'S BABY.

The funny man went to his desk to write; He had watched all day, he would write all night. And finish his work, so he trimmed the light. In the room adjoining his baby lay, And they said she was slowly passing away, And would die ere the light of another day. So he wrote, with his heart in the other room, And thought of the babe going out in the gloom. To the shadowy land beyond the tomb. It was hard to write with death so nigh, But he ground out jokes as the hours went by. And closed each page with a grief-born sigh. It was hard to write, but the world must laugh. So he penned the rhyme and the paragraph, And even a humorous epigram! His pen flew fast and the hours went on, Till his night of toil was almost gone, And the east showed the first faint streaks of dawn. Then he dropped his pen and raised his head; "Now the column is finished," the funny man said, And the nurse coming in, said, "the baby is dead."

GIVING SIGHT TO THE BLIND.

An Old Woman Whose Lifelong Blindness Was Remedied. (Medical Journal.) At the recent meeting in New London, Conn., of the American Ophthalmological Society, the proceedings which are reported in the Medical News, Dr. L. Webster Fox read a clinical paper on a case of congenital cataracts successfully removed in a patient 60 years of age. Omitting the purely technical portions, Dr. Fox's paper was as follows: On Feb. 4, 1884, a negro presented herself at the eye clinic of the Germantown hospital, suffering with cataracts. The lenses were opaque, with well-marked deposits of calcareous concretions, situated in the interior or visible portions of the lenses. Upon examination, good projection of light was obtained. The history elicited was that since birth the vision had not changed, simply being able to distinguish day from night, or the light of a lamp, or the shadow of a dark object when brought directly in front of the patient's face. Feeling assured of the sensibility of the retina, an operation for the cataract in one eye was suggested, and was performed. The lens was successfully removed in its capsule with a Critchett's spoon. There was a small loss of vitreous, which was dried. The eye was closed, immediately, and the wound healed with-out reaction; the eye being bathed daily with a mild astringent lotion, but the lid was not disturbed. At the end of eight days the bandages were removed, when it was found that the wound was closed and a keyhole iridotomy existed which was perfect in outline and showed a clear media. The patient was astonished; she covered her eyes with her hands, but by a sign to understand the visual phenomenon. She was quite nervous from the effect of the shock, and started violently and closed her eyes as if from fear. She was unable to name any object placed before her, but readily distinguished it when her hand was placed upon it. A few moments afterward she readily distinguished a watch which was shown her. This was distinguished, not by its form, but by its ticking. At this time wools of different colors were placed before her, and a certain one given to be matched, which was done without confusion, proving accurate sensibility of the retina; the most delicate lines, although not a name was known to the patient. After several days the object and wool test was made again. When looking at a distance she tried to grasp the objects, and a flock of sparrows were supposed to be teaching. Owing to her first impression of distance, she was quite a time afraid to walk with her eyes open, the floor appearing at a distance. A red and black color produced pain in the eyeball, while green and white were soothing. After the bandages were removed she was allowed the freedom of a moderately lighted room to become accustomed to the objects about her, as well as to learn to measure distance; she repeatedly refused to walk, although the nurse assured her that no danger would befall her in the effort. The patient was soon able to associate the name of the object, and at the end of some weeks, in the evening, she was able to name any object constantly, she was able to mention all the objects in the ward of the hospital, but at times would make mistakes quite as ludicrous as the birds and the tenants. In January of this year the right eye was operated on; no reaction followed, and she is now able to see perfectly with both eyes.

The Treasury's Coin Detective.

(Brooklyn Eagle.) For many years I wondered whenever I met him who an extraordinary man would be. He was one of advanced years, with a gray imperial. He had a little, stubby nose which was as red as a bit of fire and his eyebrows grew together in a bunch. His figure was very tall, corpulent and his manner martial. He was usually accompanied by a little, dark-haired man, and was one of the hardest drinkers in New York. It was said at one time that it was impossible to go into a bar in any part of New York at any hour of the day or night without finding the colonel, as he was called among them. He died not long ago, and then I accidentally found "out" that he was a coin detective of amazing ability. He was in the treasury, and was usually discharged seven or eight times a year. The cause of his discharge was intemperance. Though he was so frequently discharged, he never had any difficulty in getting back again, as it was impossible to replace him. He could run his hand through a barrel of coin and pull out all the counterfeiters with his eyes closed. He was never known to make a mistake and his touch was accuracy itself.

Another Natural Bridge.

A writer in Science describes a natural bridge, almost as interesting as the Virginia curiosity, spanning a canyon about twenty miles north of the point where the Atlantic & Pacific railroad crosses the boundary between New Mexico and Arizona. This bridge is sixty-five feet long and fifteen wide at the narrowest point. It consists of long gray rock, underneath which the canyon between New Mexico and Arizona. FRIDAY, SEPT. 25, 1885. SANITARY CONDITION OF HONOLULU.

Through the medium of a medical journal, which arrived by Tuesday's mail, we learn that—according to information received by the National Board of Health, the following figures represent the diffusion and mortality of cholera in Spain for the period from July 4th to 17th inclusive—districts omitted—cases, 48,941; deaths, 21,846.

"3. Linen washed in infected water transmits the cholera. 6. That surface-water and surface-soil have been proved to be a means of transmission of the cholera germs.

7. That running-water transports from the surface of the soil the germs, which multiply and diffuse themselves. Therefore he concludes that the local authorities should be empowered to take measures to prevent the contamination of the water courses, for when this happens it would not be possible to check the spread of the disease.

We yesterday showed that our water supply was such as at any time to prove a source of the greatest danger. Suppose the germs do reach us, what would be our situation? Were one case to happen above Kapena pool and a portion of the dejecta from a cholera patient or a typhoid fever patient find its way into our water supply, what would necessarily be the results?

But if we have not already cited instances enough, let us refer back seven years in our memory to what happened in Memphis, Tennessee. That was a place offering a parallel to our own position. Situated on the banks of the Mississippi River, in a region abounding with sloughs, and an inadequate system of sewerage, with a large negro population, with no more regard for cleanliness than the natives here, and no more knowledge of the laws of health and hygiene, yellow fever obtained a foothold, and the results were frightful to contemplate.

Many of our readers must remember how subscriptions were started all over the United States for the relief of the sufferers. Have we not every reason to believe that a like fate would overtake us were the germs of one of these diseases once to obtain lodgement here? We are no longer protected by isolation from the likelihood that such germs may come among us. On the contrary it is a good deal more than probable they will be here and that at any time.

daily inviting some of these deadly scourges to make us its victims. In case some plague does invade our city, who, fellow citizens, will be the ones to blame? Taught by a dear bought experience, after the epidemic was over, Memphis constructed a through system of sewerage and has since kept herself clean and as a consequence to-day enjoys an enviable health record.

HAWAIIAN JURISPRUDENCE—A FOREIGN OPINION. Messrs. Ashford and Ashford, Solicitors of this city, who are originally from Toronto, Canada, have had applications from some of the leading law-practitioners, law-publishers and law-libraries in that province for copies of the Hawaiian Law Reports, Codes, Statutes, etc.

During the visit of the Czar the greatest precautions will be maintained to keep him safe from any evil designs which may be entertained against him by nihilists. It is stated that the Czar's morbidness concerning Nihilism is increasing daily, and that as a result his mind is almost unbinged with dread.

The correspondent of the Standard at Constantinople says: A friend who had just returned from Salonica gives a very bad account of the state of affairs in that province. Bulgarian agitators, whom it pleases the authorities to style brigands, infest the country within a few miles of the town, and murder all unfortunate Turkish villagers whom they may chance to come across.

The Russian Government has decided to transfer the administration of its Black Sea fleet from Nicolaeff to Sebastopol. The harbor at the latter place is being much enlarged, and immense forts and other works of defence are being constructed around its approaches.

The Lord Mayor of London has received from the British Consul at Bahia a copy of a resolution passed at a meeting of British subjects residing in the province of Bahia, in which they express sympathy with General Gordon's relatives at the loss they have sustained in the death of General Gordon, and admiration of the extraordinary courage and skill displayed by the deceased General in the defence of Khartoum.

VENTURE. This well-known Trotting Stallion is now standing at the corner of Punchbowl and Queen streets, and breeders, horsemen and stock-owners should take advantage of the opportunity to obtain his blood while they have the chance.

Now, we will see, for curiosity, how near VENTURE comes to possessing these three qualifications, namely: Breeding, performance and performance of his get.

As to breeding, he is the peer of any horse on earth, and I don't except the great Hermit, who is the most popular stallion in England, and whose service fee is $500, he being the sire of three Derby winners.

VENTURE is an aged horse, but he is one year younger than Dictator, who was sold only last year in Kentucky for $25,000, on the strength of his being the sire of Jay Eye See. His stud fee is $500.

LOCAL NEWS

Good apples were sold at auction yesterday at $1 per box. Cases of diphtheria are reported in two or three families in town.

The late Judge Austin's furniture and books will be sold next Saturday.

Sneak-thieves have been at work again—this time at a house on Kukui street.

There is an epidemic tendency in Honolulu which is as dangerous as powder.

We are indebted to Mr. M. Thompson for files of interesting Eastern papers.

It is reported that Dr. Peterson of Kaneohe will shortly move to Honolulu to reside.

Messrs. E. P. Adams & Co. will sell the lease of the property at Niu at their sale rooms at noon to-day.

General Secretary Fuller will lead the Young Peoples' prayer meeting at the Bethel Union Church to-night, for the Rev. E. C. Oggel.

Levey's regular cash sale of general merchandise will take place this morning. Mr. Levey will hold a sale by the order of the marshal at noon.

The people of Honolulu ought to take time by the forelock and empty two or three buckets of lime in every water closet and cesspool in the city.

The cash receipts at the Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening were over $60, besides the tickets sold which will swell the total to about $100.

Mr. Tong Wo's store near the first bridge on Nuuanu street was burglarized early last Sunday morning. Goods and a small amount of cash not exceeding $5 were carried off.

The secretary of the Y. M. C. A. announced last evening that Major Dane would speak at a "Children's Service," to be held at Fort Street Church at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

Major Dane will deliver a lecture at Fort-Street Church next Monday evening for the benefit of the W. C. T. U. and G. W. De Long Post, G. A. R. U. and "Grant, the Soldier and the Man."

Mr. Joseph E. Wiseman bought the sloop Lark yesterday for $60. Mr. Wiseman will christen her the "W" and that's just what his friends are asking themselves, "What'll he do with her?"

The matutinal cucumber served at Nolte's is raised at his Casino ranch. It is warranted to kill a small boy at twenty yards and invariably causes a doctor to grin when one happens to sit down to Mr. Nolte's hospitable board.

A picture of Charlie Reed, the "plain comedian" as he used to call himself, can be seen at the cigar store of Charlie McCarthy on Hotel street. The picture was taken some ten years ago and represents the actor, who is well known to many of our citizens, as he appeared in his prime.

The Royal Hawaiian Band gave a concert at the hotel last evening in honor of the officers of the Italian man-of-war. The programme was mostly Italian music—at least the authors of it were mostly Italians. There was a fair attendance and the threatened showers of rain for once at least did not fall.

Yesterday about noon, when the street was full of school children, about 300 cattle were driven through School street by natives who were taking them to Ewa. The Press has spoken before about allowing wild cattle to be driven through the streets. When an accident happens severe should be cold-blooded and severe.

A pig wandered into the jewelry store of Mr. Lindsay on Nuuanu street the other day looking for pearls. Mr. Lindsay gave the porker one of his stern ancestral glances and his pigish immediately walked out—grunting as he went—and put his snout into the gutter. Moral: Whenever pigs go poking around looking for pearls, give them the G. B.

The oldest employee of the Honolulu Iron Works, Mr. Antone Neilson, a Norwegian by birth and about 50 years of age, died last Wednesday at his residence on Liliha street. Mr. Neilson was a blacksmith by trade and had risen to his present position in the foundry by hard work and close attention to his business. He was merely a helper at the forge when he commenced work here.

A young mechanic who rooms in Mr. Fowler's house nearly opposite the residence of Mr. Thomas R. Foster on Nuuanu street had a suit of clothes stolen from his room during last Wednesday night. The young man retired about ten o'clock and the clothes were hanging in the room at that time. When he got up the next morning the clothes were gone. There is no clue as yet to the thief.

Honolulu Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar, sent to Cincinnati a short time since for a lodge banner which they received by the last steamer. The banner is made of white silk and is fringed with gold. On one side, standing in the centre of a wreath of tropical flowers is a native woman holding a kahili; on the other side is a motto in gilt letters and a masonic emblem.

Yesterday afternoon Messrs. J. M. Oat, Jr. & Co., presented the Oceanic Base Ball Club, through its Captain Mr. W. A. Kinney, a fine champion bat made of seven of the different woods of the Islands. The bat is highly polished and the different woods are skillfully inlaid in parallel strips with intersecting rings of dark wood. The handle of the bat is mounted with an ivory knob beneath which is a silver band engraved as follows: Oceanic B. B. Club. Championship 1885. From J. M. Oat, Jr. & Co.

They say: that married men need watching; that the eclipse was first discovered the other night by a moonlight party, yum, yum; that the horsemen may expect fun at the next races; that the printing press assists a man to make a fool of himself; that poi is too cheap to have any tramps in this country; that Fort street damsels always walk in the middle of the street, after ten o'clock; that somebody's coming down on the next boat from 'Frisco who'll make "Johnnie's" heart go pat-a-pat; that a young gentleman fell in the mud trying to get over a back fence the other night; and that the Premier intends to ask His Majesty's resignation.

Word has been brought to Honolulu of a murder at Hakalau, Hawaii. The murder was committed last Sunday. A native was killed by another native, his son-in-law, who struck his victim on the head with a piece of scantling until the brains oozed through the skull. The murderer was drunk when the deed was committed. The next morning he denied killing his father-in-law. After a preliminary trial the murderer was committed to the Hilo jail and will likely be brought to Honolulu by the Kinau next Sunday morning. The difficulty which caused the killing originated in the son-in-law beating his wife. The father of the woman interfered and was killed. All the parties are reported to have been drinking.

We learn that Mrs. Montague-Turner has been engaged as leading dramatic prima-donna, and Mr. Turner as first dramatic tenor, in "Theodore Thomas' Grand American Opera Company," for a tour of 60 weeks in the United States, to commence January 4, 1886. Mrs. Turner will appear as "Lenta" in "Lohengrin," and as "Elsa" in "Lohengrin," two of the most difficult characters to sustain in these celebrated operas of Wagner's. Her first appearance will be in New York City, where the company will remain fifteen weeks, and probably will reach San Francisco in September, 1886. Mr. Turner, in the meantime, will make a concert tour in the United States to terminate the last of October.

Day before yesterday our unique comrade Mr. William Williams of the Honolulu Rifles, etc., held a "picnic" at his palatial residence in the middle of the bay. The occasion was the birthday of one of the "dozen," and "Bill," who is familiarly so called by the boys generally, collected his brood around a big tub-full of thick clam chowder. The "childers" ate the chowder all up and left Bill sitting with a big wooden spoon in his hand. About nine o'clock comrade Bill appeared at the "Camp Fire" of the Grand Army and immediately proceeded to "fill up" on army beans. Between fork fuls he occupied himself telling a Press reporter that he never read the Press because there "warn't never nothin' in it." Will somebody please inform Bill that he will find something interesting in it this morning?

During last Wednesday evening a robbery was committed at Leleo, beyond the Chinese theatre, at Mr. Waller's residence in the rear of Rawling's soap works. It seems that Mrs. Waller was spending the evening with Mrs. Rawlings and it was during her absence that the theft was committed. The amount stolen was $400 in coin. The money was kept in a tin box in a store room. Mrs. Waller did not have occasion to enter the room after her return and the money was not missed until yesterday morning when she entered the store room and found that the keys to an iron box containing silver were had been taken from the hook, the box had been opened and the silver were pulled out upon the floor. The tin money-box had also been opened and the money taken. The jewelry and silver were found in the iron box were left on the floor. The police took two Chinamen in charge on suspicion yesterday morning and a thorough investigation of the matter will be made.

The following extract concerning the unfortunate Hawaiian brig Allie Rowe, is published from a letter dated Hongkong, August 8, 1885 and received by Mr. Robert Cathcart of this place by the last mail:

"In my letter by last mail I wrote you some particulars about Capt. Holland, thinking that this mail I would be able to inform you of better luck, but as it is it almost seems that the Allie Rowe has very little luck for him.

He arrived here with his ship half full of water, but managed to get into dock and get repaired and to afterwards get a charter to Tientsin and back for $3,000. His dock expenses were about $1,000 and if luck had been with him he might have been back to Hongkong in 2 months with all expenses paid and $1,000 clear profit for his troubles, but poor devil, it was going to be otherwise. He loaded all right enough and left for Tientsin, via Chefoo on the 19th inst., on the 20th there was a typhoon blowing here enough to blow the hair off one's head and I was then constantly fearing for poor Capt. Holland. Both I and my wife were conversing on the probability of the brig pulling through it, but imagine my feelings this morning when I took up the paper and read that the Allie Rowe came back into port last night the crew just managing to keep her afloat by constant pumping.

Poor Capt. I have not seen him yet, but I dare say he will come up to my place this afternoon, this being Saturday. Just imagine what hard luck! Poor fellow, I wonder what he will say when I see him, I suppose he will be quite disheartened I shall certainly try to cheer him up and tell him that it might have been worse; that he, ship, crew and all might have gone to the bottom of the sea, and so he might! Just think of it, a ship full of old iron, laden with her copper one foot under water and then springing a leak in a typhoon; why it makes one shudder to think of it. You have no idea what a typhoon is, I have gone through three of them since I came here and I tell you whenever one of them commences blowing I pity those who are afloat, and especially this last one, knowing Capt. Holland to be within 100 miles outside of port."

Constantinople, the Queen of the Levant.

The lecture last evening by Major Dane in the hall of the Y. M. C. A. building was listened to by a large audience, and was a most interesting and vivid description of the ancient city of Constantinople and its surroundings. The lecturer prefaced his description by stating that a visit to the "Queen of the Levant" had been looked forward to by him with intense longing for years and that when he at last approached it from the sea and found it hid in a smooth dense fog he was inclined to do what all now do when they are not thinking; that is—grumble.

However, the fog melted away as the steamer neared the harbor, one minaret after another appearing above the vapor, and then the domes of the mosques, and finally the whole venerable and picturesque city lay before him, seated, like Rome upon seven hills.

There were the great palaces, the domed churches and other massive buildings, behind and about which dark cypresses stood in solemn groves. One felt that beneath those funeral trees dark deeds had been done. One recalled the assassinations upon assassinations which the history of the city was full of, until it seemed as though the view charmed one like a glittering serpent, repelling yet fascinating.

At the hour at which the steamer dropped her anchor, 6 A. M., there rang from many minarets throughout the city the call to prayer. "Allah II Allah!—God is great!—Come to prayer—Prayer is better than food—God is good—Come to prayer." Five times each day this call is repeated, and each time all good Mussulmen kneel in prayer.

The speaker described how from the swarm of boats of every shape and size that surrounded the steamer one can select the one that bears the name of the hotel one is bound to, and how the traveller surrenders himself and his baggage to the care of the porter in the boat and is taken to the custom house and afterwards up steep, narrow streets, that make up in length what they look in width, until safely lodged in his hotel in that part of the city called Pera, where we foreigners live. Stamboul is the home of the Mussulmen, Greeks, Arabs, and "foreigners."

Many sketches were given of street vendors of all kinds, of goods and eatables, and the peculiarities of the dog of Constantinople were depicted in a vivid manner. To them, aided by the daily breeze from the Bosphorus and its flowing stream, Constantinople owes what it possesses of cleanliness and health.

After looking about him in the Hotel the lecturer took his audience into the streets where every variety of tongue is heard and costume seen. It is a peculiarity of the Eastern brain that it can acquire languages with ease and everybody speaks from five to fifteen.

From one of the two lofty fire towers the grandest view is obtained of the city, its environs, and the Bosphorus, fifteen miles long with seven promontories on one side and seven on the other, and on its bosom lay nineteen iron-clads, black powerful engines of war and destruction.

The lecturer had the honor of meeting Osman Pasha, who as Commander of the Turkish Army, made the tremendous defense at Plevna, and also Hobart Pasha, the chief naval officer of Turkey, with the first he attended a grand military review, and with the latter visited the iron-clad squadron in the harbor.

A glowing description was given of the contents of the great Treasury filled with gold and precious stones—of the magnificent palaces and superb mosques, the language used by the lecturer recalling the pages of the Arabian Nights.

The concluding remarks having reference to the present and future condition of the Mussulman Turk were full of interest, and we regret that our available space will not permit us to give more than this too brief synopsis of the lecture. It extended over an hour and a half and was full of interest throughout.

EXPRESS SERVICE. THE METHOD BY WHICH MILLIONS ARE HANDLED DAILY WITH SAFETY.

The Ends of the Earth Encompassed—Shipping a Bible to South Africa—Why the Express Service is so Efficient.

[Pittsburg Dispatch.] A man entered the office of the express company, and placing a small package on the counter said: "I want to send this to Auckland, New Zealand. When can it go?" Without hesitation the clerk answered him and gave a receipt for the package—which contained money—saying: "I will forward it on the Pacific mail to-night." Curious to know how an express company could thus ensure delivery at such a distant point, he reported to the superintendent of his company in Pittsburg, and learned the following facts in regard to the express business:

"Yes, sir, that is a common occurrence here. We have packages come in from all parts of the world, and we give a receipt for them, no matter where their destination may be, and we forward them by the most direct route, and have never yet failed to make a delivery. In one case which happened when I was in the eastern part of the country, a man came to me and said he wished to ship a Bible to a missionary friend in South Africa. We took the package and forwarded it. Some weeks after he called to know if it had been delivered, and we sent out a 'tracer.' We began by calling up the various offices through which it passed after it left us, and finally traced it to our agent at Cape Town, in South Africa. After two months he wrote the home office that he sent the package out only to find that the consignee had been murdered by the natives, and his mutilated body was all they found. Did they deliver the book? Why, of course, they did; and when the remains of the missionary were brought home and the case opened the first thing that met the sight of the bereaved relatives in the case was a package bearing the name of the express company."

"We will forward that package you just saw delivered to San Francisco, Cal., and there our agent will way-bill it to the agent at Auckland, New Zealand, and in due time it will arrive there by P. M. S. company's steamer, just as if it were sent to East Liberty, Lost on the road! No. If our employees attend to their duties it can not be lost, only through shipwreck, and then, if insured, we make good the loss."

"I entered the service of this company over thirty years ago, when stage coaches were in common use and frequently robbed. I had a bag of gold dust to take from a northern town into Elsinore, and I put the dust into a bottle and placed it in my outside coat pocket in plain sight. I filled the bag with iron filings at the mill, and my friend and myself laughed at an imaginary robber finding a bag full of iron filings. We were not on the road an hour when three men rode up from behind and cleaned us out, particularly taking my bottle and overlooking the bag. The company made good the lost gold dust, and I never tried since to fool a robber. I think my quondam friend helped to work the game."

"We carry millions of money for the government, and have never lost a penny, except in case of a wreck and fire, and then it was known what money was burnt, and it was easily replaced. The other day we took $8,000,000 from Washington in one lot and transported it to San Francisco, Cal., and of course had no more trouble than if it was $1,000."

"We operate some $3,000 miles of road in this country and Canada, and ten times that amount throughout the world, and the percentage of loss on goods in transit, or total loss has been for many years almost nothing. There are fully 15,000 men in our employ, including all, from platform men to superintendent, and we have the strictest kind of civil service rules, every man being promoted in the order of his seniority with regard to influence, and obtaining promotion in no other way. This is one reason why the express service is so efficient, for no man can enter it on any other man's recommendation and in capacity, unless he has already served and is capacitated. We run 10,000 horses and 8,000 wagons of all styles, and make a specialty of raising horses particularly fitted for our service. There is probably no private corporation in existence in which the detail is so thoroughly arranged as ours and in which a loss or delay can be so readily traced. A feature in our history which proves this is the total freedom from embezzlement and defalcation among our employees, which is accounted for by the simple fact that they can not go far without detection, and all trusted employees are under an approved bond, which is always responsible."

"As any one moment of the day or night our company has millions of dollars' worth of merchandise and valuables in transit, and each morning, with the regularity of clockwork, we are assured of safe delivery and the ceasing of responsibility by the company."
