FALSE ECONOMY.

"The neighbors have been very kind, don't you think so, Mrs. Henderson?" said Mrs. Cooper, as she sat a moment, acknowledging to the door, Katy had just brought up a basket with two pairs of fresh lutes, so yellow, so delicately moulded, that they were in themselves sufficient to provoke an appetite.

"Mrs. Lawrence sends her compliments, and wants to know how Mrs. Cooper and the baby are," drawled Katy, with the indifference of one who repeats a third-rate tale. She had brought much the same message, and often with a similar substantial token of good will, from some one of the neighbors every day for a fortnight.

"I think they have. That's one blessing of living in the country—neighbors."

"Most people on the next Thursday, that was one thing we dreaded when we came out here. I had always heard and read so much of the gossip and interference of a country neighborhood, and congratulated myself that I lived where the parson next door scarcely knew my name, and I could keep my affairs to myself."

"I have not heard much gossip from the ladies who have called on you or to inquire for you," said Mrs. Henderson. "We have seen a great deal of Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. Phillips, too."

"Oh, I shall never forget how kind Mrs. Phillips was that day I was so very ill. Why, I never should have thought of offering to do what she did if I had not felt so ever so much, or even letting her do it, if I had been a fool."

"So much for being a country woman myself," said Mrs. Henderson. "We were very much in need of help that day, with you and the baby, and I think it was as good as had on the instant for any payment. She offered it frankly; and I accepted it for you. She seems a very sincere and kindly person."

"She must, for I am sure. I think you can always tell by a person's face whether they mean what they say. Can't you? Thank you, I am so comfortable. You know exactly what I want always. How did you learn to be such a capital nurse, Mrs. Henderson?"

"Mrs. Cooper had not yet left her room, though her husband, after due consultation with the doctor, had promised her if she would be a 'very good girl,' she should dine down stairs on the next Thursday, her birthday. To tell the truth she was not in any haste to get about." She had such a dread of the care and worry that would come upon her when she was where she could see things going wrong again, and it was so pleasant in her neat, well-ordered chamber, enlivened by Johnny's frequent presence, Mrs. Henderson's cheerful conversation, and the evening chat, now that her husband had no one to turn to but himself, he had never been more attentive and lover-like; and she had an instinctive dread of breaking the pleasant spell of convalescence.

"What the eye does not see the heart does not know," thought Mrs. Henderson, as she walked slowly around the room, pausing to look into the drawers, whose contents she had almost forgotten, or out on the dreary November landscape. "I suppose the kitchen and door-yard look as usual, and Kate is as idle as ever!"

"Two days more to be a prisoner," said Mrs. Henderson, who had appropriated the mending-basket, and was rapidly diminishing the pile of garments and stockings in the contents. She thought Mrs. Cooper began to feel the restraint irksome.

"It might be two weeks, and I should not cry over it," she said, turning to the pillow, "Oh, this is so nice! I don't want to go down stairs at all."

"Let me throw this shawl over your feet, there. Now you may be as idle as you like."

"I know I ought not to be lying here so helpless, seeing you work for me; that is the only trouble I have just now. Murray said last night that he had allowed you to do altogether too much; and he wished that he had made up his mind to do it all himself."

"I think now I am a nurse, since we would not get on when most needed, she would only have been in the way afterwards, with me about at the same time, I mean. She would have wanted her fashion of doing things, and I might as well not have agreed. Old India, like myself, are fanciful, or 'notional,' as they usually mean obstinate."

"Mrs. Cooper felt that she could never reply, in any shape, the peculiar error Mrs. Henderson had read, them; but even that acknowledgment could not be made except by implication.

"I think I could mend those stockings, that would be doing something," said Mrs. Cooper, looking about for her long unused work-box.

"I think you will just lie still for the present."

"But doing nothing so long, and there's so much to be done—all my fall sewing."

"You are getting well and strong too, I hope. That's much more consequence. You cannot have so much on hand."

"Oh, but there is—you don't know—I did not accomplish anything all summer. There's that lower drawer full full of things I had commenced and had to put away again for something I was in a hurry for. It has given me a headache every time I have looked at it. Some days last summer I used to feel as if I was crushed down by it."

"Why didn't you give it out?"

"Mrs. Cooper hesitated a moment.

"You know just how Murray and Mrs. Henderson began," she said, "and that we have had to be as economical as possible."

"Suppose I should tell you that, in this case, I did not think it economy."

"Mrs. Cooper looked her amazement at this unexpected proposition.

"I do not, indeed," said her friend. "You see what it ended in. Dr. Grant told me at once that he knew you had worried yourself sick, from the state your nerves were in."

"I want to help Murray so much, oh, you don't know."

"Do you think it is much help to any man to have a sick, broken-down wife always irritable and complaining? That was what you were making yourself."

"But I was always brought up to think that was a great extravagance to give out family sewing. I did not know how else to save."

"I think," said Mrs. Henderson, drawing off her spectacles—she only wore them when sewing or reading—"that every other of a family must have her own way of economy; but there is one thing always to be kept in mind. That is not true economy which wastes your best capital, health and cheerfulness. I know this, and necessarily often obliges men and women to work beyond their strength, but I am speaking now of people in moderate circumstances, where it is not a matter of daily bread. A mother especially needs every bit of strength and cheerfulness she can command to do her duty by her children and their father."

"But I should only be too glad to be idle, Mrs. Henderson. We all like that."

"I did not say anything about idleness, no, nor yet self-indulgence. And the speech received a gentle polish, more from habit than from present mood. "I do not believe in either when people have an abundance of means. Somebody says: 'True economy is not pinching in a few expenses, but a watch over all, and especially a wise regulation of larger outlays.' What do you suppose I was thinking when you showed me that pretty silk you are to have fitted when you go to town?"

"You can't call that extravagant! Only $1 a yard—the cheapest thing I could find. Why, in the city I should scarcely have thought it worth answer—such prices as people pay nowadays! That is one of my pet economies, I'm sure."

"The $10 or $14 it cost I would have paid for all your sewing, a mistress for two months, board and all."

"But I needed the dress."

"You showed me two good silk besides, and a new cashmere."

"But that, I am sure, ever since I was married, and it's such an old-fashioned style, that plain dress, when every one wears flounces. The other is a year old."

"But perfectly fresh and good. I think you take up least care of your wardrobe. You know I have had to be inspector of closets and drawers."

"Mrs. Cooper had always been a wonder to Lizzy Grant on that account. She looked good as well dressed, but her clothes did not cost half as much, and looked fresh to the last."

"I have always had to take care of my things," she explained to Mrs. Henderson. "Aunt Agnes was a pattern in that—and in everything else, for that matter, but I never knew much about the house. Uncle gave me an allowance every year for my clothes, and I had to make it go as far as possible."

"You must take just the same principle in managing your house expenses."

"I am sure you have, but when you first began to have an allowance you made some mistakes, I suppose."

"Quantities. I remember that I was going to make up a great deal of material, and I prided myself on paying 2 cents a yard less for the cloth than Aunt Agnes herself did. I made them beautifully and they were gone in less time than I expect on them, it seems to me, and all the comfort Aunt gave me was to say, 'You must not do so when I showed her this, uneven cloth.'"

"There, you see, was a waste of time and money both in saving 50 or 75 cents, for of course they had to be renewed."

"For instance, it taught me that Aunt Agnes was right in saying 'the best was always the cheapest.'"

"There it is again," said Mrs. Henderson. "An excellent rule when you don't carry it to extremes. For instance, the bird's-eye in those aprons of Johnny's."

"Yes, I thought of that then. It was 62 cents."

"And that at 50 would have been quite fine enough for a boy of his size, and would wear a year, and not long as I would be so, there were about eight yards in the set, I suppose."

"Well, and nine times twelve are a hundred and eight. A dollar and eight cents. It would have been for the making that has worried you so much."

"I never thought of that. But Mrs. Henderson, I can not bear to see coarse material on babies."

"Mrs. Cooper looked, with a glad, loving smile, towards the crib to which the baby had that day been promoted. Mrs. Henderson, strangely enough for a matron of the old school, did not believe in cradles or feather beds for even an infant, and had advised the anti-rocking principle from the first. It was one of the "notions" she pleaded guilty to, that children could be taught regular habits and regular hours in a great degree from the pleasure of "holding" the little one when quiet. Of soothing its restlessness by walking about, or administering any medicine, it was dressed and undressed very nearly the same hour every day, and expected to lie in bed and sound asleep for the evening at dark. So far the system had answered admirably, to Mrs. Cooper's wonder, when she recollected all the trouble there was with Johnny, his colic and his catarrhs, and the incessant creaking-rocking, whether it was the effect of "the system," or the young lady's natural amiability, she had not yet decided.

"What were we talking about? Oh, Johnny's aprons!" said Mrs. Cooper, recalling herself from such speculation. "I believe it is partly taste; there seems to me such a fitness in having everything for a child as delicate as possible; and then I was boarding when I first began to shop for him; and I don't know anything about it. Mrs. Paul, you know, heard me talk about her. Well, I used to go to her. She always showed me her purchases, and mine. Her boy was only three months older than Johnny; and she made such a point of having everything fitted as possible. Why, you could hardly tell Charlie's apron from plain linen—a little way off."

"I've heard you say, too, that people who boarded were always extravagant in dress, because they had to keep up with others in the house."

"Yes, indeed, it makes the greatest difference. Murray thought it was all nonsense when I first began to tell him about it."

"I don't know what you mean by 'extravagance in dress,' said Mrs. Henderson; "but it seems to me that you have not left your boarding-house principle quite out of sight when you purchased a third-rate dress because one had no flounces, and all being worn a year. But here it is lunch time, and the butter from Mrs. Lawrence will make its first appearance."

"I will think it over while you get the tray," said Mrs. Cooper, good-naturedly, though she felt a little crestfallen at finding herself not quite so wise and prudent as she had imagined.

"You won't mind my plain dealing, will you, my dear?" Mrs. Henderson returned, with a second thought, from the head of the stairs. "You seem to me so much like one of my own daughters, that it comes natural to speak to you as I do to them."

"Oh, not at all! not in the least, I assure you. It is just such help as Aunt Agnes would give me if I could go to her. I can't write about such things; and I have often wished I could talk over with some one who was really experienced, and who could understand our affairs."

THURSDAY, OCT. 8, 1885 COMPARED WITH GUAYMAS. The S. F. Chronicle of the date of September 17th gives an account of an interview with A. Green, formerly proprietor of the American Hotel in Guaymas, Mexico, which is as follows:

"Yellow fever has broken out again at Guaymas," said Mr. Green to a reporter; "its first appearance taking place about three weeks before I left, which was in August 5th. We were in hopes down there that after last year there would be no more fever and many who intended to leave last year changed their minds, expecting that the dread disease would not return. But it came back this year more severe in its form than at any previous time. Three years ago when it first appeared it was very malignant, but still there were a number of persons who recovered. Last year it occurred in a lighter form than the previous year, but this year not one who has been taken down with the yellow fever has escaped death."

Dr. McFadden, the city physician of Mazatlan, states that yellow fever would never leave Guaymas until the temperature is so low as to freeze the germs out of the air, but as there is no hope of such a change in the climate it is very likely that Guaymas is a doomed city."

We remember that not long ago there was a prospect of a line of steamers to run between China and Mexico—and the prospect is not yet dead—touching each way at Honolulu. Now with cholera a yearly visitant in China and Japan and "Yellow Jack" endemic in Mexico, the prospect for Hawaii is very enchanting without doubt. Guaymas is probably just about similarly situated as Honolulu in regard to filth and the general unsanitary condition of affairs.

If that place is doomed what are our prospects in face of the great danger that cholera or yellow fever may at any time visit us, and that we rarely have a lower temperature than 65° Fahr. Whether the present Board of Health has done more than some former Board is not the question with us. In view with the admitted facts our hygienic condition is simply frightful.

As to the limited funds at the disposal of the Board, this fact is without question; the President and at least one of the members are to the extent of their powers—and they might have defeated the measure if they would—responsible for the coronation. The money spent in that way would have gone a long way towards giving us a healthful and abundant water supply. What our present dependence is we have already shown. What a pure water-supply has done for certain places in Spain can be shown from eminent authority. The question now is are we to have anything done or are we to quietly wait to be made "meat" for the undertakings. Knowing that in mild epidemics of cholera more than forty per cent of those attacked die and in some cases, as at Guaymas, 100 per cent, we have a most serious objection personally in being forced to attend the drawing of Death's lottery. We don't believe that any of the citizens of Honolulu are more desirous of drawing a black bean for their families and themselves than we are. In case any of these diseases, which are ravaging so many parts of the world to-day, reaches us, the question whether this present or some former Board of Health has been the most worthless, will be suddenly merged into the startling cry: "What must we do to save ourselves and our children!"

The report of the receipts and expenditures of the Hawaiian Treasury for the quarter ending September 30, 1885, was given to the tax payers yesterday. From this report it appears that the receipts for July were $102,622.24, expenditures, $98,226.90; receipts for August, $91,264.79, expenditures, $93,369.47; receipts for September, $123,603.65, expenditures, $72,941.92. This leaves a balance in the Treasury of $58,393.85. Happy Government—if its debts were all paid.

The Treasury Department has addressed a circular to collectors and other customs officers, informing them that Article 416 of the general regulations of 1884 has been so amended as to provide that household or personal effects, tools of trade, libraries, etc., which would be free of duty if imported at the time of the arrival of the owner in the United States, arriving one year instead of six months before or after the owner, will be reported to the Secretary for his action. This change has been made in view of the fact that immigrants frequently leave their effects abroad until they have secured employment, which usually requires a period greater than six months.

New York, Sept. 25.—Horace F. Page, now here, being interviewed said: "The silver question will come up in Washington this winter, but no bill will be passed. The West is almost a unit in favor of keeping silver just where it is. I do not think the standard will be raised, either. It is impossible to fix the actual value in gold of the silver dollar. The value varies with the price of gold. One week 387 1/2 grains of silver would make the dollar worth 100 cents, and the next week it would only be worth 90 cents; later it would go up again. If we try to keep silver up to the gold standard, then we will have to change the size of our silver dollars with every fluctuation in the market. The South and West are for silver, while the East is opposed to it. The people of the East are money-lenders and wish to make it scarce. The Western people are borrowers and wish to see plenty of money in the market. That's all there is to it."

SANTA CRUZ, Sept. 25.—While the workmen were making excavations for the new Catholic church this morning they unearthed the bones of over fifty bodies, mostly Indians who were buried in the days of the mission, when the Indians were buried in blankets and without coffins. Philippolis, Sept. 24.—Prince Alexander, accompanied by his staff, to-day met the Bulgarian cavalry on the outskirts of the city, and, placing himself at the head of the column, entered the town amidst much enthusiasm, the people cheering the Prince and his soldiers all along the line of march. The Prince immediately afterward started for the frontier to inspect the troops stationed there. A large number of horses are continually arriving here for the use of troops, as the result of the recent requisition or voluntary offerings from the inhabitants. Everything points to active preparations for a defensive campaign. A number of committees of ladies are working hard making clothing for the soldiers.

Victor Hugo died worth about $1,000,000 his royalties amounting to $20,000 yearly. Jules Grévy, Leon Say and Leon Gambetta were the executors named in his will. VENTURE.

New Advertisement.

Light on his airy crest his slender head, His body short, his limbs luxuriant spread; Muscle on muscle knots his brassy breast, No fear alarms him, no pain shouts molest; O'er his high shoulder, floating full and fair, Sweeps his thick mane and spreads his pomp of hair; Swift works his double-spline, and earth around Rings to his solid hoof that wears the ground—(Ventre).

This well-known Trotting Stallion is now standing at the corner of Panchowli and Queen streets, and breeders, horsemen and stock-owners should take advantage of the opportunity to obtain his blood while they have the chance. He is now looking and feeling, nearly as well as he ever did in his life, and moves as lively and his eye is as bright and he is as vigorous as a four-year-old horse.

It does not require a long time to discover great points of excellence in VENTURE. The ordinary citizen, upon beholding him, will be impressed immediately with his grand make-up, magnificent length, and elegant finish. If he is not the greatest horse that ever came to this country, he is one of the greatest, and as a turf performer, he towers as far above them all as he does above a sticking post.

A great deal of importance has lately been attached to the value of a horse that is being kept for stock purposes, whether he is standard or not, and the President of the National Association of Trotting Horse Breeders in America strongly advises people not to purchase stallions that are not standard bred, and he also advises them to select one not only standard bred, but if possible, that is standard for his own performance, which is a public record of 2:30, or better, and even more than this in the performance of his get also. Now, if this rule was rigidly applied it would exclude all such great horses as Electioneer and the sires of Maud S. and Jay Eye See, etc., for while they have become greatly renowned by the performance of their get, they never were turf performers themselves.

Now, we will see, for curiosity, how near VENTURE comes to possessing these three qualifications, namely: Breeding, performance and performance of his get.

As to breeding, he is the peer of any horse on earth, and I don't except the great Hermit, who is the most popular stallion in England, and whose service fee is £250, he being the sire of three Derby winners.

As to his own performance, he meets the requirements, having a public record of 2:17 1/4—2:19 being the standard of admission.

His get are now just beginning to be appreciated in California, one of which (Vengeance) won a good race quite lately in Sacramento, in straight heats, making a record of 2:14, and is said to be able to trot close to 2:10, when called upon to do so.

With these facts before us, VENTURE looms up as one of the greatest horses, not only in this but in any other country, and the day is just when people will breed anything but the very best; and while the death of two such great horses as Rowell and Bazar is greatly deplored by all true horsemen, still it is a great consolation that there is so good a horse as VENTURE to fill their place.

VENTURE is an aged horse, but he is one year younger than Dictator, who was sold only last year in Kentucky for $25,000, on the strength of his being the sire of Jay Eye See. His stud fee is $500. He is also ten years younger than Volunteer (sire of St. Julien), whose fee is $500. All things taken into consideration, I cannot see why VENTURE is not as desirable a horse to breed from as any of them, or why he is not as worthy of the patronage of the public. Below I will give his pedigree, of which I invite a comparison with that of any other horse in the country:

VENTURE, chestnut horse, 16 hands, foaled in 1864; sired by Belmont, he by American Boy, he by Sea Gull, he by Imp. Expedition.

LOCAL NEWS.

There are several new cottages being built on the plains.

Carpenters are engaged making improvements at the Insane Asylum.

Yesterday passed, as far as we know, without a runaway. What's the matter now?

A party of picnics passed through Nuuanu Valley on their way home last evening about 6 o'clock.

A neat new cottage is being built on Nuuanu street, next to the International Tract Society's building.

The boat which carried the invited guests to the S. Tellie yesterday afternoon was towed by the ship's steam launch.

The appeal of Prince Albert Kunikake, in the matter of Queen Emma's will, occupied the Supreme Court yesterday.

A hand elevator which came by the barkentine Eurka will be put in position in the Chinese Club House on King street.

The steamer Mariposa is due to day and will doubtless arrive in port shortly before noon as usual. She will bring news up to the first instant.

Some of the natives residents in the vicinity of the new Chinese club house on Beretania street are complaining of the poi makers in the neighborhood.

Yesterday evening about seven o'clock a fire occurred in a Chinese store on Emma street, but was put out by the inmates without turning in an alarm.

Two natives had a dispute on King street near the Government Building yesterday which was settled by loud talk and a few blows in half earnest—both were afraid to fight.

The new schooner Domitila which lately arrived here from the Coast, left yesterday for her first trip to ports on the Koolau coast. She is commanded by the owner, Mr. J. Paiko.

All the finishing material for both the new Station House on Merchant street and the Chinese-Club House on King street arrived last week and both buildings are now being finished.

An informal reception was given yesterday afternoon by the captain and officers of H. B. M. S. S. Tellie. The King was present. The Royal Hawaiian Band furnished the music.

The Junior crew of the Honolulu made the smart time of 17:20 over the course Tuesday evening. The prospects are better now than a week ago for the entering of two crews in the coming race.

An old drunk was sobered up last night by falling into the water near the boat steps at the foot of Nuuanu street. He was fished out by an inconsiderate native who returned him with another glass of gin.

The Ladies Benevolent Society of Fort Street Church, will hold their regular monthly social this evening in the church parlors. There will be ice cream for sale, the funds thus raised to be used in refitting the church parlors.

Messrs. Henry Davis & Co. on Hotel street will receive by the steamer to-day a fresh assortment of all kinds of fruits and vegetables. One of the luxuries imported by this firm will be fresh oysters brought down on ice, both in tins and in the shell. Orders should be sent in early to secure first choice.

Yesterday evening two sailors from the S. Tellie were coming down Nuuanu street trying to hold each other up, when they reached the corner of Nuuanu and Merchant streets they both fell off the high curb and stood upon their heads. After a prolonged discussion about the "bloody" town the brave tars mustered sufficient courage to try it again and were soon zig-zagging toward the deep, blue sea.

From the Gazette we learn, that owing to a complaint from the Washington Post Office that large number of letters are constantly being forwarded from this port without going through the regular mails, thereby causing the mails open in Honolulu, hereafter, until fifteen minutes before the departure of the steamer. This will give everybody a chance to mail their letters.

According to the Luso Hawaiian, the formation of a Portuguese band in Honolulu, of which the Press spoke some time ago, is very near to become an accomplished fact. Over twenty members have already given in their names, and they are only waiting to make their start, for the arrival of their future band-master, who was the leader of the Portuguese band in Hilo. It is therefore to be hoped that very soon Honolulu will count one more attractive feature, especially as the new band will be honor bound to follow the excellent example given by the Royal Hawaiian Band.

The late high tides have washed away much of the sand from many of the private beaches this side of Waikiki, leaving the water deep close to the shore and the bottom rocky.

Mr. H. S. Davidson who broke his arm during the ball season has so far recovered as to be out on the street with his arm in a sling. He declares that he has had enough base ball fun for one year.

Last night services were held in the different churches. Rev. George Wallace gave a lecture at St. Andrew's pro-Cathedral and the usual services and subject discussions were held at Fort Street and Bethel Churches.

The effect of the dry weather is beginning to tell on the flowers and trees throughout town, the latter are becoming pretty well covered with dust, which is blown in clouds off the streets when the trade winds blow.

Mr. Sam Macey, the hack inspector, was yesterday presented with a new cane by Mr. Sam McKeague in appreciation of his joke-telling ability. It is understood that Sam will allow Sam to carry the stick half the time, as both Sams are joke tellers.

The new Temperance Hotel on Nuuanu street is now receiving the finishing touches and will be ready for use in about two weeks. The Hotel has a cool inviting appearance and has a double verandah around three sides of it. The Hotel is surrounded by large shade trees.

To young boys—a white boy and a native—were caught in Beretania street Tuesday afternoon engaged in decoying chickens out of a resident's yard. As soon as the unsuspecting chickens came out they were immediately caught and put in a sack. When the enterprising boys were found by the owner the sack contained five chickens worth fifty cents apiece.

The Post Obit Club have set apart next Saturday evening for the discussion of the political condition of the country. Member Barber will preside and Member Cathart will read a paper on the Kingdom's finances. Member Goode will discuss the opium traffic. At the close the club will go into a committee of the whole and formulate resolutions of the departure of Member Riddell.

The Luso Hawaiian does not intend apparently to take public things here in a luke-warm manner. In the last number issued, it comes out in no uncertain tone about the deplorable state of public security. Complaining of the numerous robberies of which Portuguese subjects have been victims, all over the islands. The Luso says that the insufficiency of the police gives one a wish to treat them to a drowning as is done to useless cats, and further says that the best remedy for this insufficiency of the police, and the most convincing argument to be given to intending robbers, would be to pepper their backs with a little salt. Bravo, Luso, that's well spoken!

There will be an entertainment given at the Hawaiian Hotel to-night in honor of the Captain and officers of the S. Tellie. The Royal Hawaiian Band will be in attendance and will play in the Hotel grounds. During the evening an informal dance will take place in the parlors of the Hotel. Both the grounds and the Hotel building will be illuminated. The concert will not only be a delightful affair in itself but will also be a graceful welcome to the passengers who arrive to-day by the Mariposa. It might as well be suggested here as any place, that the Government ought to take more interest in the arrival of strangers on our shores and so arrange it that the band could play at the Hotel, free of charge as it used to, every time a steamer arrives from San Francisco.

They say that the financial reports of the Kingdom never show the debts which are owned; that a full financial statement published in the native papers would ruin the present administration; that the present officials are preparing to meet the displeasure of the next Legislature; that some of the boat builders are figuring on a new yacht for a prominent Honolulu man; that there will be a merry time at the Hotel to-night; that a new fashion of swimming is in favor with the dudes at Waikiki; that the new Portuguese Band intends to blow the Royal Band away; that the best way to eat poi is with a stick; that the young man who introduced the fashion intends claiming a royalty, if the natives adopt it; that the present administration is confident of success at the coming elections; and that if the Government gets left one of the bugs in the Foreign Office will con-Tester.

Hon. A. S. Cleghorn, who has charge of Thomas' Square and has made it the delightful bit of landscape that it is, has given us the following information concerning the firing of shots there a few nights ago: Mr. Cleghorn says that for some time past some persons have repeatedly stolen the wheelbarrows used in the square, lifting them over the fence and making away with them while the Chinese attendants were asleep. These malicious persons have also at different times gone through the Square and pulled up plants, allowing them to remain on the ground near the place they were growing. To stop these depredations and stealings Mr. Cleghorn bought a cheap shot-gun and some powder and ordered the Chinaman in charge of the Square to fire blank charges into the air to frighten these suspicious characters at night. Further than this he does not believe any firing has been done at Thomas' Square.
